To get in the spirit of winter and to prepare for the Blizzard of '96, the Sisters of Sigma Delta hosted a winter wonderland Rush.

Due to many feet of fallen snow, sidewalks and streets were covered. To remove snow, Shippensburg University and the surrounding community found tractors with snow plow attachments a necessity.

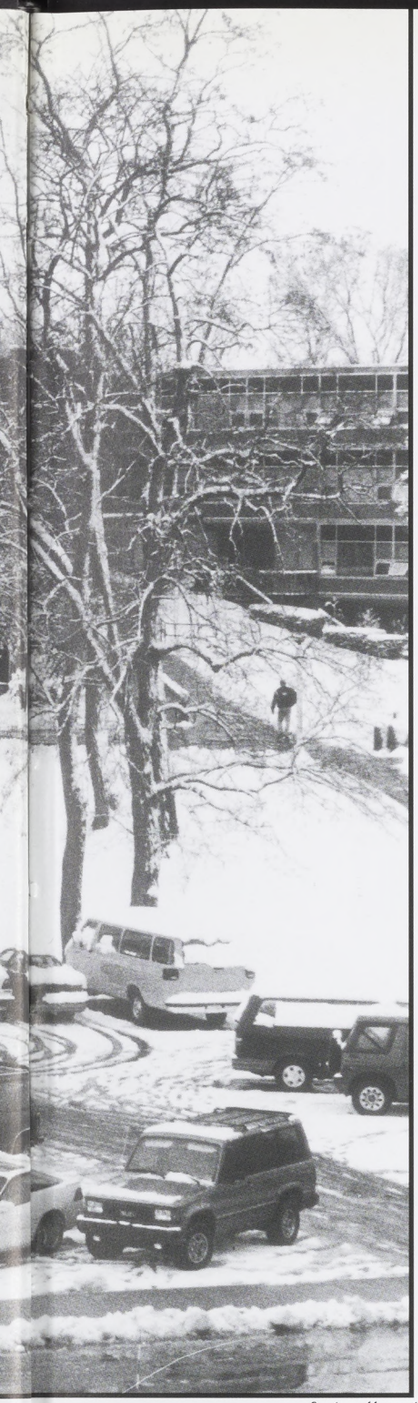
Welcome Back

THE BLIZZARD OF 1996!



Andrea Hazard

Parking on campus was difficult. Shippensburg University parking lots were covered with snow and ice. There was no place to dump the excess. Therefore, full snow removal was impossible.

At the start of a new semester, students are welcomed back by the faculty and administration. In addition at the beginning of the Spring semester, students were welcomed back by the staff, administration, and the Blizzard of 96.

The blizzard made life difficult and left many challenges for students and administration on and off campus. Driving conditions were horrible. If roads were not covered with snow, then they were covered with layers of ice. This made driving nearly impossible on and off Shippensburg University's campus.

"I WAS STUCK IN MY HOUSE FOR FOUR DAYS AFTER THE BLIZZARD!"
-- ILANA CUTLER

Parking and walking to and from classes were treacherous but mandatory. Finding a good parking space was tough enough in good weather, but with the snow and ice one found it nearly impossible to find a parking spot. The few spaces that were in fact plowed were still covered with ice.

Travelling around campus was horrendous. Ice created slippery conditions.

Students who lived on campus were faced with just as many challenges as commuting students. The Blizzard of '96 brought feet of snow to the Shippensburg University campus and the surrounding community.

The "Amazing Maize Maze"

IT'S CORNFUSING!

Shippensburg, Pennsylvania is in the Guiness Book of World Records.

Shippensburg was the home to the world's largest maze. This two-mile long maze, which encompassed a thirty acre cornfield, was an idea of entrepreneur Don Frantz, an amateur maze enthusiast. Frantz, who was a production executive for the Walt Disney Company, invested approximately $70,000 to build the maze.

Mr. Fisher, the maze's inventor, modeled the maze after Sir Francis Drake's clipper. The maze took Fisher over a month to design.

The land for the maze was donated by Shippensburg's Jim Witter.

"IT MADE ME FEEL LIKE A RECYCLED TEENAGER AFTER IT WAS ALL OVER."

The "Amazing Maize Maze" coincided with the annual Shippensburg Corn Festival. Thousands of people flocked like crows to the corn field to experience the "Amazing Maize Maze."

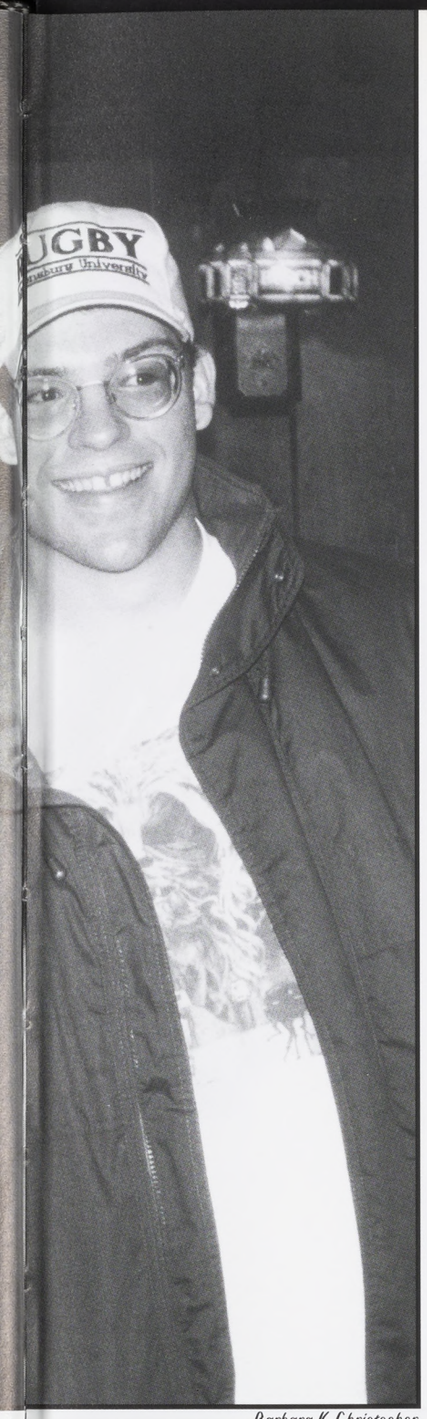
FOR THOSE STUDENTS OVER 21!

Shippensburg



Barbara K. Christopher

Happy hour at the Gingerbread Man was a great place to go with friends. Many relaxed and socialized. Most had fun and at the same time grabbed some great specials.

Every weekend, and even sometimes on weekdays, students looked for something to entertain themselves and take their minds off the weekdays which were filled with classes, exams, and stress. For those students over 21, that meant bars.

Many points factored into a student's decision of whether to study or party. Mostly that depended on what one had due the next day, but it could also include what one had due the day before.

The bars of Shippensburg offered appealing specials to get friends together and hang out. They were guaranteed to unwind, while spending a few hours socializing with friends. If dancing was the criteria for the weekend, Wibs would do, but if it was pool on the agenda, Maxie's could always gratify. Other establishments such as Orky's and G-Man could not be omitted from the list of stops in which one could make.

When Sunday rolled around, students started the mental processes again for another five days . Eventually, Friday once again made it possible to relax, have fun, and escape the pressures of college life.

where to reside

ON OR OFF CAMPUS LIVING!

Of all the decisions a college student had to make, one of the biggest was deciding where to live.

Many students often chose to live off campus because they had more freedom. They could come and go as they pleased and did not have to abide by the rules and regulations of the residence halls.

Students moved off campus because they felt that it was cheaper to pay rent for an apartment rather than paying room at the University.

Off campus living also made students become more responsible for themselves by experiencing life on their own.

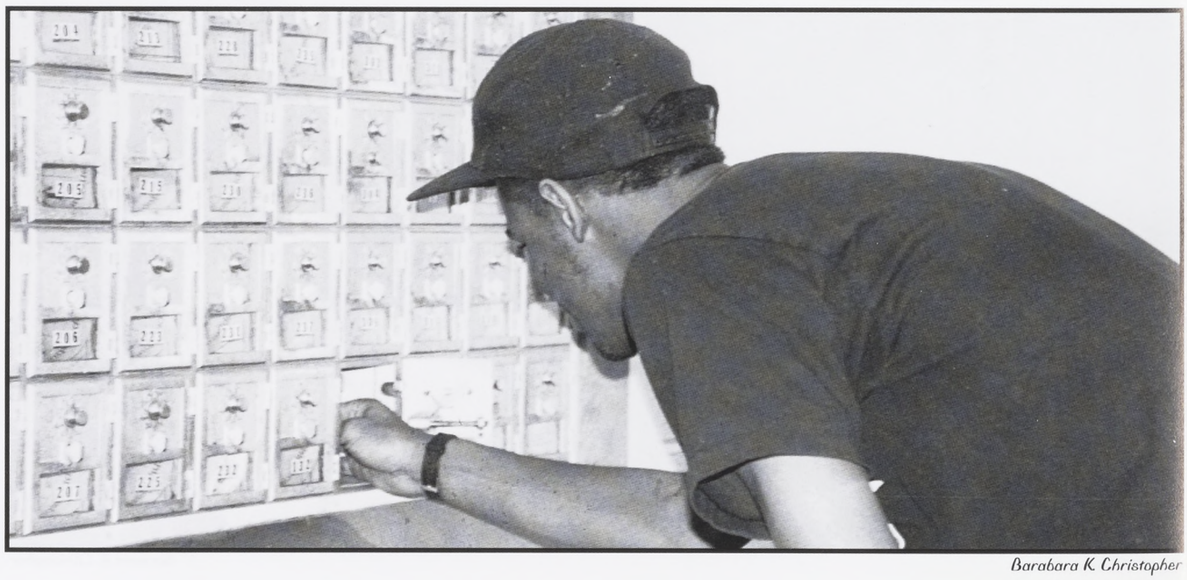
Although there were many advantages to living off campus, there were also many disadvantages such as having to wash dishes, finding a parking spot, and furnishing the apartment. Security was also a concern of many off campus living students.

"LIVING IN RESIDENCE HALLS GIVES YOU MORE OF AN OPPORTUNITY TO FORM LIFE LONG FRIENDSHIPS."
-- JILL MILLER

So if one was trying to decide whether or not to move off campus, one had to first take into consideration reasons for moving. Although living on or off campus both had advantages and disadvantages, one had to decide for oneself if the advantages outweighed the disadvantages.

-- Joan Holtz

Natalie Khouri, a freshman who lived in McLean hall, was taking advantage of some quiet time to write a paper. Finding quiet time to work was very hard to come by in the residence hall because there were so many people.



Checking mail was one of the highlights of living in the residence halls. Some days one might have been bombarded with mail. Other times one may not have gotten mail for weeks.

relationships

Andrea Hazard

Sometimes a girl took time out of her busy schedule and gave her guy a little squeeze to let him know just how important he truly was to her. One little hug can go a long way in making someone's day.

If someone sat by the phone at night waiting for that "special someone" to call, or if someone checked their mailbox three times a day, chances were that person was involved in a long-distance relationship.

Andrea Pressler, a Freshman, was just one of many people involved in a long-distance relationship. Pressler admitted there were a lot of downfalls to a long distance relationship, such as the phone bills and not being able to see her boyfriend as frequently as she would have liked. "However, absence makes the heart grow fonder, and the time we do spend together means so much more," said Pressler.

"WHEN THE ONE YOU LOVE IS SO FAR AWAY YOU HAVE TO TRUST ONE ANOTHER."
--ANDREA PRESSLER

On the flip side of things, there were many people who were involved in on-campus relationships. At college it took a lot to balance a relationship and a class load. On-campus relationships also had their problems. These relationships suffered from priority conflicts. For instance, the girlfriend wanted her boyfriend to spend time with her, but he had a test the next day. What was one to do?

Relationships turned out to be a big juggling act, and quite stressful at times. Each situation is different and meaningful to each person individually. However, relationships are a fact of life.

A DAY OF SCHOOL SPIRIT!

The day was filled with shouts, cheers and a lot of school spirit. The day was October 21, and the event was Homecoming 1995. The inclement weather on Saturday may have dampened the ground, but it sure did not dampen the spirits of students, alumni, or faculty.

The traditional Homecoming Parade was cancelled due to the rain, a disappointment to everyone. It was the first Homecoming Parade to be cancelled in over 22 years. However, the hard work parade participants put in did not go unnoticed. The floats were still judged, with Acacia and Theta Kappa receiving first place in the University Float category, Mellon bank in the Community category, and Circle K won the Vehicle Entry.

Luckily, the Shippensburg versus Lock Haven football game was not cancelled. The Red Raiders played a victorious game, winning 73-29.

During halftime, the band played and the 1995 Homecoming Queen was announced. This year's Queen, Nicole Morrison, was sponsored by Sigma Pi.

After the game, people celebrated our school's victory in the field behind the stadium with some beer and a barbecue. Overall, Homecoming '95 was a huge success.

Piercing of both the nose and belly button were very big trends during the 1995-1996 academic school year. One of the many fashion trends of the 1990's was getting one's tongue pierced as shown.

Every year new fads and trends emerge, and what better place to see these trend setting styles than at Shippensburg University.

1994-1995 brought about the never seen before body fashion fads of body piercing and tattooing.

During the academic year, these two fads, body piercing and tattooing, had risen in great popularity amongst students. Piercing and tattooing had not only become an artistic way to decorate your body, but a unique way in which one could express oneself.

Dozens of students journeyed to tattoo parlors to adorn their bodies with decorative symbols. Many more students flocked to various piercing parlors to have eyebrows, noses, tongues, belly buttons, and for some, more remote places pierced.

WHAT'S THE SCOOP?

Dozens of students and members of the community flocked to the SU campus to hear Fred "Chico" Lager, the former president and CEO of Ben & Jerry's ice cream, speak about his experience at the top of the ice cream empire.

Larger explained how Ben Cohen and Jerry Greenfield, two husky, nerdy guys decided to go into business in 1977.

Lacking in business knowledge, Ben and Jerry read a book on starting and managing restaurants. After they decided ice cream would be their venture, they took a correspondence course in ice cream manufacturing at Penn State. With their newly found knowledge and only $12,000, Ben and Jerry opened their first store in Burlington, Vermont. In May of 1978, the two opened in an abandoned gas station.

Their business was booming, but by 1982, they had run out of steam and considered selling the business. Instead, Larger came to the rescue. From there, the Ben & Jerry's Co. had a confrontation with the Pillsbury Co. This gave Ben & Jerry millions of dollars worth of free advertisements. The advertisements coupled with their remarkable ice cream concoctions, took the Ben & Jerry Co. straight to the top of the ice cream empire.

University Diversity

AN EDUCATIONAL EXTRA!

Shippensburg University students and staff created displays to inform others of their unique culture and life-style. Many were displayed in the Cumberland Union Building or in Residential Halls.

Shippensburg University stood for diversity.

Each year students from all across the world came together for an education at Shippensburg University. Student backgrounds were unique in their own special way. Some students travelled from as far as California and Japan. With these people came different cultures and life-styles.

Family relationships also contributed to Shippensburg University Diversity. Some students originated from large, two parent families. Others were an only child or parentless. Students had to learn how to live together in a large close-knit family, Shippensburg University.

Income was statistically diverse as well. Some students came from rich families while others came from low income families. Rich or poor, students learned that money was not everything in society. Education was the key to the future. After all, that was why students attended the University.

GETTING TO KNOW THE FACTS!

Shippensburg University held Drug and Alcohol Awareness Week, October 9-13, 1995.

The week was kicked off on Monday with two lectures given by Leo Wisniewski, a professional football player and Shippensburg University alumni.

Tuesday's activities consisted of a B.Y.O.C. Happy Hour, an information fair, and a panel discussion pertaining the effects of alcohol and drug related topics.

On Wednesday, Creative Options, a three women theatrical group from Philadelphia, performed an interactive program.

On Thursday, blaring sirens and flashing lights could be heard and seen across campus. Many rescue vehicles responded to a mock accident located in front of the CUB.

Greeks and organizations provided shocking Drug and alcohol related signs which were posted along Adams Drive.

Throughout the week, students could sign up for both pledge to P.A.R.T.Y. and S.A.D.D.

During Alcohol Awareness Week, rescue workers were called to campus to participate in a mock accident. The week was filled with lots of activities in which students were made aware of the dangers of using alcohol and drugs.

SHIP THROUGH THEIR EYES!

Shippensburg was a diverse campus. However the physically challenged were often overlooked by the community. Day to day challenges that these individuals faced were taken for granted by non-physically challenged students.

Mike Maughlin, an off-campus Shippensburg student who used a wheelchair, was one of many students who were physically challenged. Maughlin, a full-time student, said he was confronted with some downfalls on campus. Some of the dorms did not have elevators in them and the handicapped parking spaces needed to be enforced. Maughlin also said, "The ramps are always the longer routes around campus. They need to be straight." All in all, however, Maughlin said he liked attending school at Shippensburg University.

John Dibiagio, was slightly mentally handicapped when he was injured in a car accident. Despite the physical challenge, Dibiagio majored in Geo Environmental Studies at Shippensburg University. Due to the University's willingness to help, Dibiagio said he really enjoyed school.

Charlie Neil, who was interested in social work, travelled to class by means of a wheelchair. Neil said during an interview, "Little things can make the difference between a good and a bad day--someone who smiles or helps me with a door really brightens a day."

Mike Maughlin, who was a full-time Shippensburg University student, lived off-campus with his ferret and cat. He said the handicapped parking needed to be better enforced. Maughlin also stated that the ramps were always the longer routes around campus.

ROCKING THE SU CAMPUS!

Collective Soul knows how to put on a high-energy performance.

Collective Soul rocked Heiges Field House on November 5, 1995, when they made Shippensburg a stop on their United States concert tour and entertained approximately 1,200 fans.

As Collective Soul entered the stage, the enthusiastic crowd in attendance broke out into thunderous cheering, letting the band know they had a devoted number of followers in Shippensburg.

The five member band led the audience in a massive sing-a-long as they played their hit songs "December" and "Shine."

Besides playing their hits, Collective Soul also gave the crowd a special treat. They performed their very first song, "Hymn 24." This song cannot be found on any of their albums.

The sensational, energy-packed concert came to a close with the song "Gel."

However, the fans in attendance did not let the concert end quite that soon. The audience gave the group a standing ovation, and in response Collective Soul gave an encore performance of "Collection of Goods" and "Persuasion."

The overall performance presented a night of entertainment and fun for Shippensburg.

trial of the century

THE JUICE IS LOOSE!

The O.J. Simpson trial was undoubtably the trial of the century.

As hundreds of Shippensburg University college students clung to televisions all around campus, the 16 month long trial against Simpson came to a close in October. The jury announced their unanimous decision and acquitted Simpson on all counts.

Just as one watched the California police escort Simpson to the Orange County Jail, a little over a year later one watched him be escorted back to his mansion.

"O. J. DIDN'T DO IT! IT WAS THE ONE-ARMED MAN."
-TIM SUTO

Shippensburg University students had many different opinions about the verdict. Prudence Shank said, "I think it was a miscarriage of justice." On the other hand, Bonnie Fry said, "I don't care if he did it. I'm just glad it is all over." Andrea Pressler said, "I think it was wrong that it lasted as long as it did."

After the lengthly trial, "The Dream Team" led by Johnny Cochran and Robert Shapiro came out victorious.

While Marcia Clark, Los Angles District Attorney, said despite the loss, the prosecution did a first-class job and everyone gave 110 percent effort.

Ironically, perhaps the real losers in the end were the Browns and the Goldmans. Their families did not put the murderer of their loved ones behind bars, whomever that person may have been.

-- Michelle Lee Hall

The jury of ten women and two men found that Simpson did not kill his former wife, Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend, Ronald Goldman in June, 1994. The trial twisted and turned through a maze of scientific evidence and dozens of expert witnesses.

Judge Lance Ito presided over the O.J., Simpson murder trial. The jury took less than four hours to reach a verdict in the sensational trial that lasted eight months.

Academics with a Theme

Beginning in the late 1980's, Shippensburg University started an annual event called Academic Day. During Freshman orientation, Academic Day was held at the very beginning of the fall semester. The purpose was to have all the freshmen focus on one shared educational experience on one specific day.

In 1994 the idea was expanded into an Academic Theme. The first Academic Theme was Immigration. Over the summer, students read the novel, Dreaming in Cuban, by Cristina Garcia, and then discussed Dreaming In Cuban on Academic Day. The book touched upon such issues as immigration and emigration, the role of government in daily life, family relationships, success and failure, religion, mental illness, and the role of women. This novel gave students and faculty a variety of topics to discuss.

The fall issue of the University's journal, Proteus, examined the theme of immigration, as did some of the Colloquium speakers of the College of Arts and Sciences. A conference held in the spring by the Council for National Education also addressed the theme. For the first time the theme of Academic Day became the yearlong academic theme for the University.

In 1995 the theme was "The World the War Created: The Impact of World War II." Because 1995 marked the 50th anniversary of WWII, the University believed this would be an appropriate topic. This theme was also reinforced through an Arts and Sciences Colloquium Series. WWII even became the focus of some classes such as "Film and World War Two."

The theme in 1996 will be "Pennsylvania: Voices of the Commonwealth."

Construction Plagues!!

Everything was so hectic on Shippensburg University's campus, especially in the beginning of the 1995 academic year. To make matters worse, there was construction and it was EVERYWHERE. Dauphin, Shippen, Franklin, and the Ezra Library were all under construction.

Some students were faced with inconvenient last minute classroom changes in the fall semester due to a problem involving contractor and subcontractor unions. The contractor, Herre Brothers, had work running on time. However, the subcontracted Sheet Metal Workers Local 19 Union went on strike. Members wanted a three year agreement rather than the offered one year agreement. Construction was delayed temporarily. Classes thus were relocated.

People slowly got used to the construction plague. The purpose of construction was to improve campus for students and faculty. Even through the confusion, hard work, and chaos, it was easy to see the benefits for prospective students.

A college student never forgets how hectic scheduling was: the scramble to get an appointment with your advisor; the anxiety of checking the computers to see which classes had closed; the long lines that wrapped around McLean; and the last minute decision on which classes to take because all the classes one wanted were closed.

Can one imagine if, in addition to all the stress of being a first semester freshman, one also had to schedule classes? Luckily, at Shippensburg, freshmen were given their first semester schedules. That was one less thing to worry about.

Other universities did not have this policy. For example, at Westminster College, freshmen received a packet in the summer that contained directions on scheduling procedures. It included information on the core requirements and on one's major requirements. After reading, freshmen chose their own schedule.

At Allegheny College, freshmen arrived three days ahead of all other students in order to schedule. They met with an advisor who helped them chose their courses.

Paul Demsey, the assistant dean in the Registrar's office said there were numerous reasons Shippensburg pre-scheduled freshmen. First, he thought it was difficult to find a time at which they could schedule. Also, as a freshman, a student's options were limited. They had to take certain required courses, such as World History and Basic Oral Communications, in order to fulfill the core requirements for graduation. For each major there were fundamental courses which also needed to be taken. Therefore, the university was capable of designing a schedule that fit the needs of the students. And with the opportunity to make changes during schedule adjustment, this method appeared to be most practical.

So when one was standing in line praying for at least one class, be thankful there was one semester when one did not have to deal with scheduling!

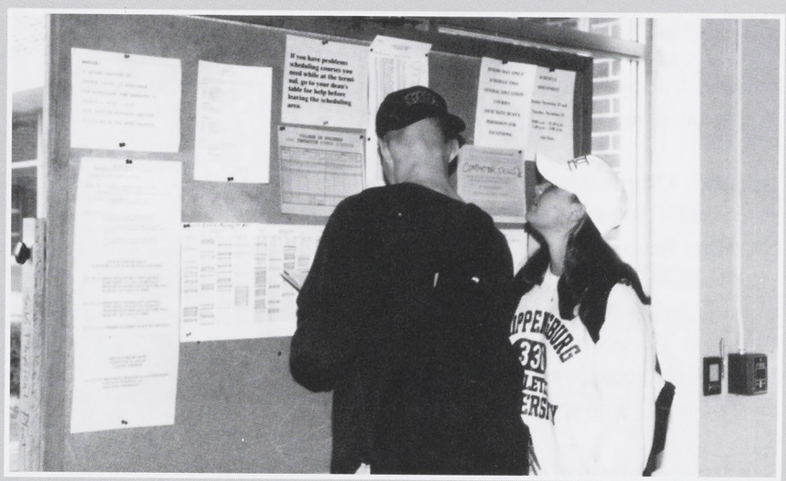
This student peered anxiously at the screen to see which classes were still available. Once one decided which classes to take, one went to the computer and an assistant helped. Hopefully one got the classes one wanted.



Andrea Hazard

Before going to the computer to schedule classes, most people checked the bulletin board to see which classes had closed. These students searched through the multitude of numbers in hopes that their classes were still open.

Andrea Hazard

One thing students dreaded the most during scheduling was waiting in line. Sometimes the line wrapped around McLean. Other times the line was short. Since one did not set the appointment time, one had to take the luck of the draw.

Transformation in Time...

On the edge of Shippensburg University's campus, the Little Red School House served as a reminder of Cumberland Valley history. Often overlooked, the school house sat along route 696 behind Gilbert Hall.

In 1865, Originally named Mount Jackson, the Little Red School House was erected on a site north of Newville. Students from age 6 to 21 attended school in this one room school house. One teacher who acted as doctor, janitor, and principal, taught approximately 50 pupils. On eight grade levels, a wide range of academia was taught from grammar and history to mathematics, music, art, and geography.

Mr. Samuel Meyers of Newville donated the Little Red School House to Shippensburg University alumnus. In 1967 through a Loyalty Fund drive by the General Alumni Association, Shippensburg University raised $25,000 to dismantle and reconstruct Mt. Jackson., brick by brick, on campus.

In addition, the inside of the simplistic Little Red School House was transformed to resemble the original. Pictures of past Presidents, former students, maps and certificates of achievement hung on the walls. A worn chalk board hung from corner to corner along the front. Between two rows of wooden desks, the original pot belly stove sat. Most importantly the American Flag in the corner swayed to a warm settling breeze.

Mount Jackson stood on Shippensburg University's campus to serve as an educational reminder of the past. True structure as well as the original atmosphere has been preserved. Step inside the doors and travel back in time.

Around the World ...And Back Again

People studied abroad for many reasons. Some went to enhance their ability to speak a different language. Others went to experience different culture or for an opportunity to see a foreign place. Many students from Shippensburg have studied abroad as a part of Shippensburg's Foreign Study Program.

Adina Coleman spent a semester of her junior year studying in Spain. There, she attended the University of Valencia. Adina took courses in Spanish conversation, Spanish Art, and Spanish Literature. Instead of residing in a dorm, she stayed with a host family who taught her many valuable things about the culture. Adina said the program was the most rewarding experience of her life.

Another Shippensburg student, Annette Chilson, studied in England for nine months. Her sophomore year she attended the University of Humberside and lived in a residential hall. Annette took classes in communications, geography and science. She discovered that in England classes were run much differently than in the United States. Students attended a variety of lectures and seminars instead of a regular class. Even though no tests were given, each student handed in a number of essays. Annette chose to study abroad in order to experience a different culture. She said the time spent abroad was the best nine months of her life.

Both Adina and Annette had incredible experiences studying in other countries. They became involved by contacting Shippensburg's Foreign Study Program. Studying abroad was a rewarding experience and a wonderful way to broaden their horizons.

Learning other cultures was a valuable opportunity available during foreign study. While living with her host family, Adina learned much about life in Spain. For example, the majority of Spain's population lived in apartments. This was a representation of the housing. Here, Adina stayed on the seventh floor.

The Thief of Time....

Just five more minutes... And an hour later one finds oneself still in bed. Looking horrible, feeling disgusting, one thinks there is no way to make it to class now. One goes back to sleep. It has happened to all of students and it seems to be beyond our control.

Just one more day... And a week later one realizes that their days are running out. A ten page paper on the book one never read is due the next morning at 8:00. All one can think about is buying more coffee for the predicted rough night ahead. Okay, not exactly quite that extreme, but, well, all students have been through a similar scenario.

Students look back on all these stressful times and laugh. However, back then the problems were nightmares. Why did students procrastinate? Who stole all the time? Did students make time for that party on Thursday night and decide they were too tired to get up on time Friday morning. Were students too busy to start that paper before they went because there were more important things to do.

There are always more important things to do, or so students think. But what is the main reason students came to Shippensburg University? Definitely for the education! Eventually one can accomplish everything their hearts desire. Students should keep that in mind the next time they wait another day or push another snooze button for five more minutes.

A Business Opportunity

PHI BETA LAMBDA

Phi Beta Lambda was a professional business association that gave students the opportunity to explore the business world. The organization was open to all students at Shippensburg University, including non-business majors. PBL was the college level organization of the Future Business Leaders of America. Their goals included helping the members develop leadership skills, strengthen their confidence, and understand the American Business Enterprise.

This year PBL participated in numerous activities including fund-raisers for the organization, service work, and social events. At Christmas time PBL held a Santa Gram sale in which they delivered Christmas wishes to Shippensburg University students. They also held a Valentine's Day sale where they sold chocolate covered strawberries and chocolate roses. In addition, the members participated in the WCHA Community Club Awards Program and they assisted with Dickens Days in December.

PBL tried to promote professionalism and educate members. Throughout the year, the organization invited professionals from the business community to speak at meetings. Some of the speakers discussed different careers in the business field. Others talked about resume writing, interviewing, and preparing for a career in business.

Phi Beta Lambda encouraged members to explore all the aspects of a business career.

Orientation played a vital role at Shippensburg University by fostering the identification of the students with the University, building students' confidence and having a positive impact on student retention.

This was the focus of the New Student Orientation Committee. In addition, the New Student Orientation Committee promoted the growth and development of all new students by giving them a personalized introduction to the University. The intention of this introduction was to assist the academic and personal adjustment of the student by creating a set of learning experiences which helped the student to become aware of the opportunities, resources, and responsibilities of university life.

The New Student Orientation Committee was a standing senate committee of the University Student Senate. The organization was composed of a Director, Graduate Advisor, Student Director, Assistant Student Director and approximately eight to ten committee members. The committee was established to plan, coordinate, and implement the summer, fall and winter orientation programs. This helped new students become acquainted with the many facets of college life. Each spring the committee recruits current university students to assist with the orientation programs.

Bringing Entertainment to SU

ACTIVITIES PROGRAM BOARD

Entertainment was brought to the Shippensburg campus by the Activities Program Board. This organization was made up of seven committees; Entertainment, Minority Affairs, Arts, Public Relations, Travel and Recreation, Concert and Equipment.

A.P.B. created a calendar each semester which informed students of the events at Shippensburg University. These events consisted of concerts, speakers and movies. The movies which were shown every Tuesday and Friday during the 1995-96 school year consisted of new releases such as "Dangerous Minds" and "Waiting to Exhale." Older favorites such as "Grease" and "The Breakfast Club" were also shown.

During the 1995-1996 academic year, the Activities Program Board also brought to Ship such events as a comedian Lance Montalto and a modern dance company. The Committee also had the pleasure of welcoming Kareem Abdul Jabbar to Shippensburg University.

The A.P.B. Concert Committee did an outstanding job when members invited the band Collective Soul to play here this past year. Many Shippensburg University students attended the concert and enjoyed themselves as Collective Soul rocked Heiges Field House.

Overall, A.P.B. did a great job bringing entertainment to students all year long! They brought interesting and exciting events to our campus to make college life a little more enjoyable, and their efforts were greatly appreciated.

A Treat for the Senses

MUSIC

The Shippensburg University Madrigal Singers were an ensemble of 20 voices auditioned from the Shippensburg University Concert Choir. Under the direction of Dr. Blaine Shover and accompanist, Nancy Folgelsanger, the Madrigals have been highly praised for their spectacular musicality, as there was no music major at Shippensburg University. The group had the unique quality of blending individual soloists into a group blended harmony. These features prompted an invitation from American Music Abroad to share the Madrigals' music internationally.

The group toured Pennsylvania, Maryland and New York, singing at various functions--from religious gatherings to political events. Most notably, the group toured Europe in March of 1996.

The Shippensburg University Concert Choir was also directed by Dr. Blaine Shover. Members performed a variety of music from secular to religious, modern to classical. Their holiday concert was held on November 18, 1995. "We had a bigger group this year," said President Jeff Clifton.

For their annual Spring Tour, the Choir traveled to a variety of locations including Bethlehem and Clark Summit. Members sung a diverse musical program. The tour ended the choir's 1996 academic year.

With the Madrigals travelling to Europe and the S.U. Concert Choir performing throughout the year, these two groups proved to have an exciting musical year.

Caring for the Arts

ART EXHIBITION COMMITTEE

During the 1995-96 academic school year, Kauffmen Art Gallery was a major highlight on Shippensburg University's campus. This place allowed students to view and show their artistic talents. Shippensburg developed the Art Exhibition Committee to care for the works displayed in this gallery. Shippensburg University students involved with the Art Exhibition Committee were in complete control of soliciting artwork and deciding how it should be displayed.

In addition, members recruited and set up outside artists here on campus. Shows for this past year included Phillip Pearlstein, Mary Brindle, and Berrisford Boothe. The committee also featured a special "SU Student Art Exhibit" in March and a "Senior Art Exhibit" in May. All art exhibits were held in the Kauffmen Gallery, located in the Hubert Arts Center.

To become a member of the Art Exhibition Committee, one did not have to be an art major. Anyone who possessed an interest in artwork was welcome to join.

The students who took part in this committee's activities for the 1995-96 school year worked very hard to make each display a great success. The Art Exhibition Committee made sure their displays were a fitting tribute to Shippensburg's cultural life.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT ORGANIZATION

The International Student Organization was an organization that provided international students with the opportunity to become more aware of the community on campus and throughout Shippensburg. This organization was run by students and was always looking for students to participate in the program. International Student Organization also gave students the opportunity to travel and to broaden their horizons by learning about American culture and society. Overall their main goal was to make the transition to this country as smooth as possible.

The I.S.O. planned many activities and trips for members in 1996. The members took trips to Washington D.C., Baltimore, and Gettysburg among other places. They also held social events for their members. These included shopping trips, a Super Bowl party, a ski trip cosponsored with Lackhove Hall, and a mixer with the International Business Association.

The I.S.O. also provided programs to help students deal with their studies and life in general. Some of these programs were on stress and time management, study skills and diversity.

Besides going on trips and learning about American life, international students also gave back to the community. In cooperation with the International Speakers Bureau members had the opportunity to educate people from the community. They discussed how they came here, why they came here, and where they come from.

The I.S.O. gave members the opportunity to learn about American culture and society. In return, members contributed to the Shippensburg University campus and community.

SHIP'S OWN WSYC!

WSYC, Shippensburg University's student run radio station provided students with various listening music styles. From rap to jazz, D.J.'s kept the tunes spinning and the listeners listening. Freshman Jamie Fahnestock said, "When I'm getting ready for class in the morning, I tune in to WSYC to help me get my day started."

Besides playing great tunes, WSYC provided their listeners with contests and giveaways. The D.J.'s also spent some time updating Shippensburg University on local, national, and international news and events. When the blizzard of '96 approached, WSYC was on the ball and up-to-date with the current weather conditions.

WSYC is now 39 years old. Founded in 1957, a few students began a radio club as a hobby in conjunction with the physics department. By 1959, the club had the President's approval to broadcast on a small, makeshift radio transmitter which was located in Old Main. On a good day, you could hear the station in the building. The first letters were WBSC but changed in 1964 when they applied to the IBS and became WSYC. In 1975, WSYC started broadcasting on the FM dial but kept their AM frequency. By 1981, they got rid of their AM frequency and installed the 100 watt flame thrower.

Thirty years later, WSYC was still playing favorite tunes from the Dead to disco and Mariah Carey to Pearl Jam.

LATINO STUDENT ORGANIZATION

The Latino Student Organization was dedicated to uplifting the Latino culture. Throughout the past academic year, members strove to educate others.

This goal was achieved through a variety of activities. In September, to kickoff Latino Heritage Month, an Open House was held where new and returning members were welcomed.

The Second Annual Latino Conference: Latino Lingo was a great success which included participants from all over Pennsylvania as well as participants from various other states.

In addition, the first ever Latin Extravaganza was held. This convention informed people about the differences and the similarities within the Latino culture.

The LSO also facilitated class discussions dealing with different Latino issues such as language, culture, ethnic identity, and the impact their identity had on their everyday life.

Throughout the year other social events were held for members to come together in a family like atmosphere.

Helping to Build a Better Future

MARKETING CLUB

The Shippensburg University Collegiate chapter of the American Marketing Association was established in 1976. This club originated for any students who was interested in the Marketing field and related fields. These students organized to obtain many benefits.

The benefits obtained by the members of this organization included gaining knowledge that cannot be received in the classroom. They learned to use marketing techniques to organize, execute, and plan club activities. Students also learned to be active members of this reputable association. Marketing Club members leave this organization with a better understanding of the marketing field.

Throughout the 1995-96 academic school year, the Marketing Club organized various events in which members participated. Such speakers as Bert Wendeln from Norwest Financial, and Guy Lebo from Franklin Life Insurance appeared to inform students about marketing techniques this past year.

The goal of Shippensburg University's Collegiate chapter of the American Marketing Association for the past twenty years has been to enhance members knowledge of various marketing ideas and strategies. Members worked together to build a better future.

S.U. THEATRE

Most people thought that theatre was all about acting but in reality theatre is much more. The S.U. Theatre Group offered students a chance to work with acting, directing, lighting, costumes, publicity and other roles in a theatrical production.

This group listed their main goals as "to train those dedicated workers for a career in theatre, to introduce different genres of theatre to those who have never been exposed to theatre, to allow that stressed out business major a different means of escape, and most importantly, to do good theatre." While this might have been a slightly comical look at the role of theatre, this was exactly what the group did.

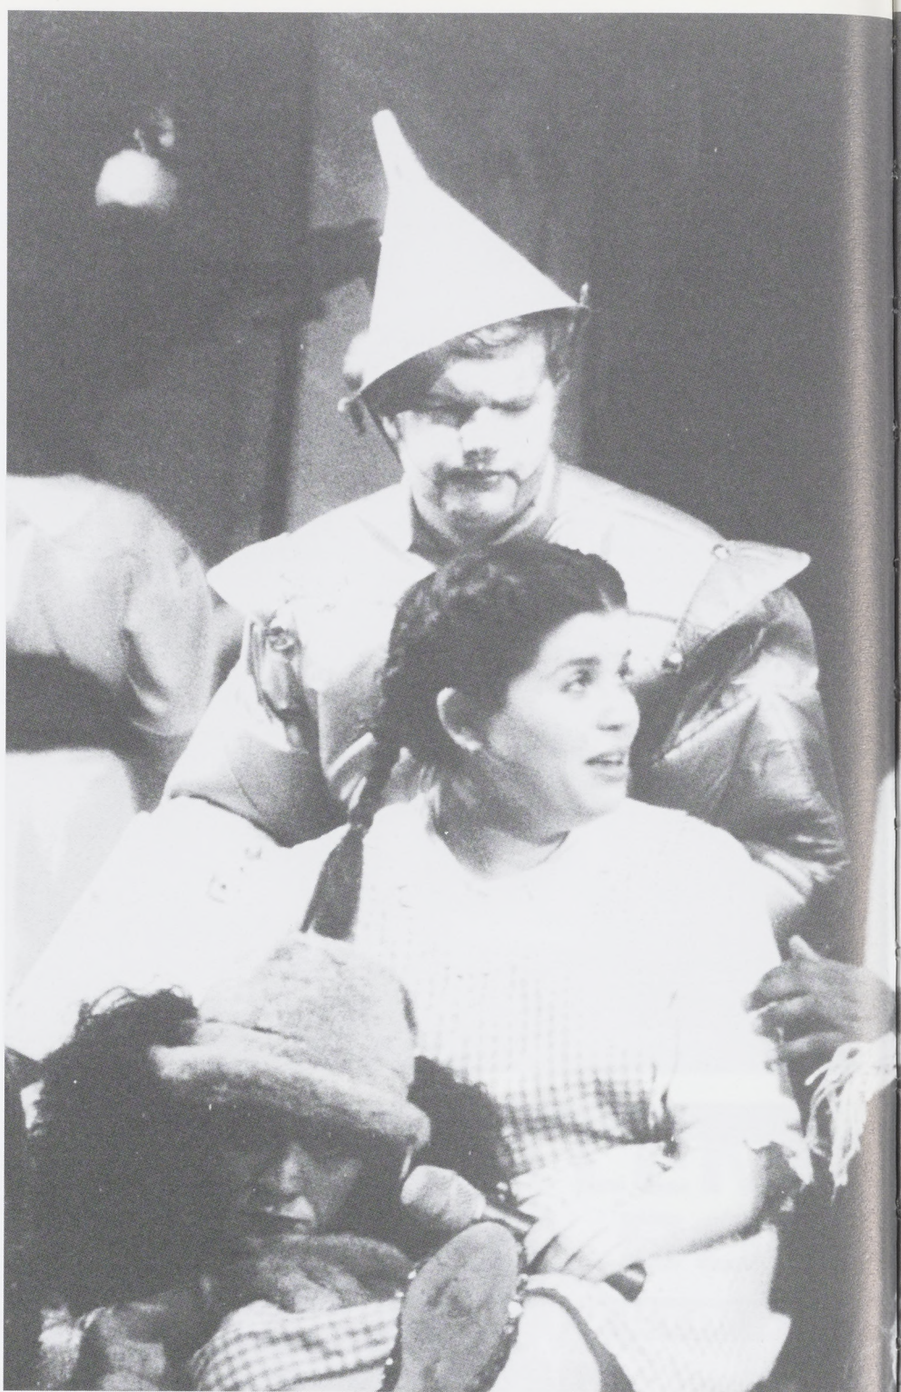
This past year was certainly no exception to the goal of "doing good theatre." In the fall, audiences were delighted with the performances of "Someone Who'll Watch Over Me" and "Eleemosynary". During the spring semester, the student group reminded students of childhood with the performance of "The Wizard of Oz."

All of these productions were overseen by professor Paul Lightner, academic advisor of S.U. Theatre. However, all of the work was performed by students. Everything from set design to costume creation was the responsibility of the thirty member crew of dedicated students.

When asked what was the highlight of the season, professor Lightner responded, "There are two main highlights: The fall show touring the Cumberland Valley and the fact that "The Wizard of Oz" "is one of the biggest shows in S.U. history." Professor Lightner also commented on how involved the students were in the production and how impressed he was with their performance.

Lightner was not the only person who was impressed. Audiences of all ages enjoyed the outstanding performances.

-- Joy Hoffman



From April 24 through April 27, the SU Theatre group performed "The Wizard of Oz" in Memorial Auditorium. Dorothy and Toto were in Oz with their newly founded friends, the scarecrow and the tin man.

Dorothy arrived in Munchkin Land where her house killed the wicked witch of the east. Frightened Toto, Dorothy's dog, hid quietly behind the fallen house.

Residence Hall Association

ESCORT SERVICES

The Escort Service at Shippensburg University had been in effect for the past three years. The Residence Hall Association provided the Escort Services for Shippensburg University students.

The Escort Service was provided as a means of safety and convenience. An Shippensburg University student could receive a ride from one place on campus to anywhere else on campus. In addition, the Escort Service also ran from the Earl Street Parking lot.

The van used during the 1995-96 school year was a new, red, Residence Hall Association van. Previously, the Residence Life van was used to transport students.

Escort Services on the Shippensburg campus were provided on a volunteer basis only. The groups who usually volunteered for this appreciated duty were the fraternities, sororities, clubs, service organizations, and the Residence Hall Councils. During operating hours, these gracious volunteers could be found at the old Cub information desk waiting for calls. The hours normally ran Sunday through Thursday from 9 o'clock P.M. to 1 o'clock A.M.

Shippensburg University students were extremely grateful for the convenience of the Escort Services.

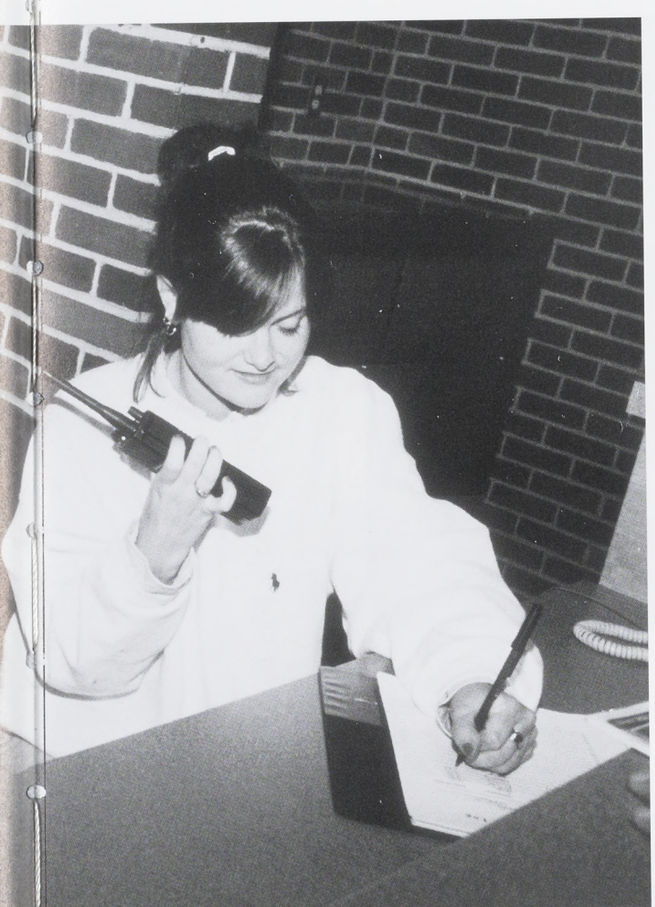
Various clubs and organizations on campus volunteered to take calls for the escort services. Here, Sarah Beck worked a shift as a volunteer for the service. She was a caring member of Circle K.



AnhThi Vuong

The old Cub information desk was the location where telephone calls were answered for the Escort Service. After calls were received, the voluteers at the desk contacted the driver of the van who would then report to the designated area and give the student a ride to their destination.

The Reserve Officer Training Corps or R.O.T.C. was an alternative to a traditional career path at Shippensburg University. Shippensburg University has supported a chapter of R.O.T.C. since 1982. The program grew and grew with each passing year.

In Matt Sober's words, public relations officer for the R.O.T.C., main goals were "to build confidence and leadership skills." Both qualities were valuable in a variety of field intrests, and did not necessarily require participation in the military.

The organization was open to both men and women, and was designed to prepare candidates for a position as a second lieutenant with the United States Army. In addition, the skills learned through the organization helped prepare members for a career in the civilian sector as well as the military world.

R.O.T.C. was a great place for students to learn about procedures in the United States military forces. Valuable leadership skills were acquired. Thus the Reserve Officer Training Corps was an excellent starting place for any career.

Lending A Hand

VOLUNTEER ORGANIZATIONS

Students at Shippensburg University had many opportunities to do volunteer work. Many organizations gave students the opportunity to lend a hand in the community. These organizations include Big Brother/Big Sister, Circle K, Explorer Post 2126, Ship Cares, and T.O.U.C.H.

Big Brother/Big Sister was a service organization whose goal was to provide a positive environment for children. College students were paired up with children and spent approximately two hours a week together. This year they held activities such as a holiday party, roller skating, and an end of the year party.

Circle K was affiliated with the Kiwanis Club. Circle K held numerous fund-raisers this year including a rose sale, spaghetti dinner, and silent auction. The Special Olympics was their district project. In addition, Circle K held social events for members and performed services for the community.

Explorer Post 2126 was an organization that provided high adventure for members and services to the community. This year, they were involved in the scouting for food projects. Explorer Post members also went hiking, camping, and white water rafting.

Ship Cares was another organization that lent a hand to the community. It was divided into four subgroups; Amnesty International, Hunger and Homeless, Children and Youth, and Student Environmental Action Coalition. Each group performed volunteer services. For example, members held a recycling drive and helped at the YMCA.

T.O.U.C.H. organization gave students the opportunity to do volunteer work. It consisted of seven committees ranging from "Lend an Ear" to "Take My Hand". This year Touch worked with young people, the hearing impaired, and the aged.

There were many organizations at Shippensburg University that gave students the opportunity to give back to the community. All of these organizations welcomed new members and played a huge part in the development of the community and campus.

Happy Thirtieth Anniversary

ACACIA

Acacia was an international social fraternity here at Shippensburg University that stressed the motto "Human Service." Acacia celebrated its thirtieth anniversary this past year. They held a formal dinner in the Conestoga Room and also gave out special awards. They invited over 500 past and present fraternity brothers.

This past year the Acacia fraternity tried to assist college men in becoming well-rounded individuals by performing service projects, participating in social events, and also by participating in intramural athletics.

The service projects for the year included the Adopt-A-Highway program, helping at the local Y.M.C.A., and sponsoring Challenger Basketball. At the Y.M.C.A. and in Challenger Basketball, the fraternity brothers worked with the mentally handicapped.

In addition to providing services to the community Acacia provided a social environment for its fraternity brothers. Throughout the year, members held many social events including date parties and mixers. At socials, they also brought in bands such as Solace and Redemption. Their major social event was the mud slide which they held every spring in the backyard of the Acacia house.

The Acacia fraternity also competed for the Intramural Cup by participating in all the intramural athletics offered here at Shippensburg University. The Acacia brothers took first place in softball.

The brothers of Acacia are looking forward to many more exciting years of providing services to the community and holding many fraternity social events.

Fraternity of Brotherhood

ALPHA CHI RHO

Alpha Chi Rho was a fraternity at Shippensburg University that performed service and social activities throughout the year. The fraternity only came to Shippensburg five years ago. The goal of Alpha Chi Rho was to have high quality members who were loyal to the fraternity and the University.

This year Alpha Chi Rho participated in many service activities including the "Copper Touchdown" where they tried to raise enough money to connect pennies back to back from one end zone of the football field to the other end zone. The money raised was donated to Cystic Fibrosis Research. They also participated in a canned food drive in the spring, and held a faculty night out where the fraternity brothers baby-sat free of charge for faculty and staff children. Alpha Chi Rho also helped out at a local soup kitchen and the Adopt-A-Highway program.

Socially, Alpha Chi Rho participated in the intramural athletics here at Shippensburg University. These included intramural softball, hockey, basketball, volleyball, and cross country. They also participated in a Crow Bowl tournament, which was a national basketball tournament.

Alpha Chi Rho plans to continue serving the local community and their members will continue to prosper in knowledge and brother hood.

DELTA ZETA SORORITY

A few of the Delta Zeta sisters assembled to show their creativity with their 1995 Halloween costumes. This picture proved that these girls always wore a smile.

These Delta Zeta sisters portrayed the fun-loving attitude that their sorority was known for. Special occasions always brought the sisters closer together.

Delta Zeta, which had chapters throughout the United States and Canada, was the largest international sorority. On October 15, 1971, Delta Zeta became the second national sorority at Shippensburg University when the Kappa Psi chapter was founded.

The Kappa Psi chapter of Delta Zeta assisted the community in various ways. This group of fun and intelligent girls could be found cleaning the highway for the Adopt-a-Highway program and baby-sitting at a local church. In addition to occasionally driving the Escort Van, the sorority also volunteered for other on-campus activities.

During the year of 1995, the Delta Zeta sisters were the champions of Greek Week, and they participated in the annual Turkey Bowl game. Another prominent event for this sorority in 1995 was the crowning of Delta Zeta sister, Nic Morrison, as Homecoming Queen.

As a result of the sisters' activities and accomplishments, they had become known to many as a group of fun-loving girls who always wore a smile. Their slogan, "Love grows in Delta Zeta," is an accurate depiction of the friends and fellowship one found when acquainted with this sororitity. The Delta Zeta sisters were willing to lend a helping hand when everyone was needed.

PI NU EPSILON

"Pi Nu Epsilon is an inclusive fraternity which is dedicated to music, diverse musical organizations, and college-community service." Goals included "preserving traditional values, enhancing the social life of college students, and promoting musical art." (Mission Statement 1996)

At Shippensburg University, the Delta chapter of Pi Nu Epsilon was founded in 1956. This coeducational fraternity honored those students who had contributed time and energies to musical organizations. Pi Nu Epsilon provided students with the opportunity to pursue a musical interest, regardless of ones major.

During the Fall of 1995 and the Spring of 1996, Pi Nu engaged in diverse fund-raising activities. Sheetz MTO cards were sold and a car wash was held.

The profits were then used for the Spring 1996 Pi Nu Epsilon National Convention. The convention was held April 19th through the 21st at Shippensburg University. Three area chapters, Drexel University, Millersville University, and Shippensburg University were in attendance.

Members discussed expansion efforts. A strategic plan was established. This listed the mission statement, core values, goals and actions needed to obtain those set goals. Members also created an expansion kit in order for prospective chapters to join the fraternity.

Through the musical orientation and hard work, lifelong friendships and an extended family were established.

Theta Kappa was a local social service sorority at Shippensburg University. This past year they celebrated their thirtieth anniversary on Founder's Day by holding a celebration at the Theta Kappa house. Theta Kappas' motto was "Know us by our deeds" and their colors were green and gold.

Theta Kappa, being a social service sorority, participated in many service activities throughout the community. They also held many social events for the sorority sisters. A few of their sisters were also sweethearts to other fraternities on campus. Theta Kappa even had one of their sisters nominated for the Homecoming Court.

Throughout the year, Theta Kappa held many service projects for the local community. These included two dances for the Retarded Citizens of Chambersburg. In addition, the sisters of Theta Kappa also participated in a Walk for Cancer.

Theta Kappa held social events for sisters including formals and semi-formals, one of which took place in Baltimore's Inner Harbor. In addition, many of the Theta Kappa sisters also took a group vacation to the Bahamas over Spring Break.

Theta Kappa was not just a social sorority, or a service sorority, it was both. They performed many service activities but held social events for the sisters of Theta Kappa as well.

The team was optimistic at the beginning of the season. With leading senior Rob Emerick, strong sophomore Kevin Taylor, and other promising runners returning from last year, hopes were high. Though they did not reach all of their goals, they did place second in the PSAC Championship.

Coach Bob Walker is looking for improvement next season and is optimistic about the future.

Achieving Wins

The 1995-96 Lady Raider Lacrosse team finished the season with an 9-4 record overall; 4-1 record in the PSAC, tying West Chester for the best record in the conference. Most of the season, the Lady Raiders were ranked second in the PSAC and second in the nation.

Between BASES

The Shippensburg Lady Raider Softball team finished out the year with a losing record despite improvement at the end of the season. Head Coach Bobby Davis was not overly disappointed with the outcome of games lost by a mere one point. There will be many new faces coming next season which will mean a young team, and if they stick together the newcomers will have time to develop a winning softball team.

Showing Spirit

If one ventured out to a Red Raider football or basketball game, chances were that one encountered the Shippensburg University cheerleaders. For every game members were out on the track or on the floor motivating the team and the fans.

Andrea Hazard

These athletes practiced for several hours a day to perfect their jumps, stunts, and cheers. They also had to keep up their morale because a losing score could not get them down. The cheerleaders' efforts were rewarded as they entertained the crowds, and cheered Shippensburg University teams to victory.

Sports Clubs

A demand for excellance is a part of any sport. At the college level, a sport can feel this excellence if it has obtained a regular position in a conference. Three sports at Ship which have shown such excellence, however, still stand apart from regular NCAA sports. Women's Rugby, Men's Rugby, and Men's Volleyball are all classified as club sports. All three teams have shown great skill over the past years and look to make each of their respective sports as common at Ship as football and basketball.

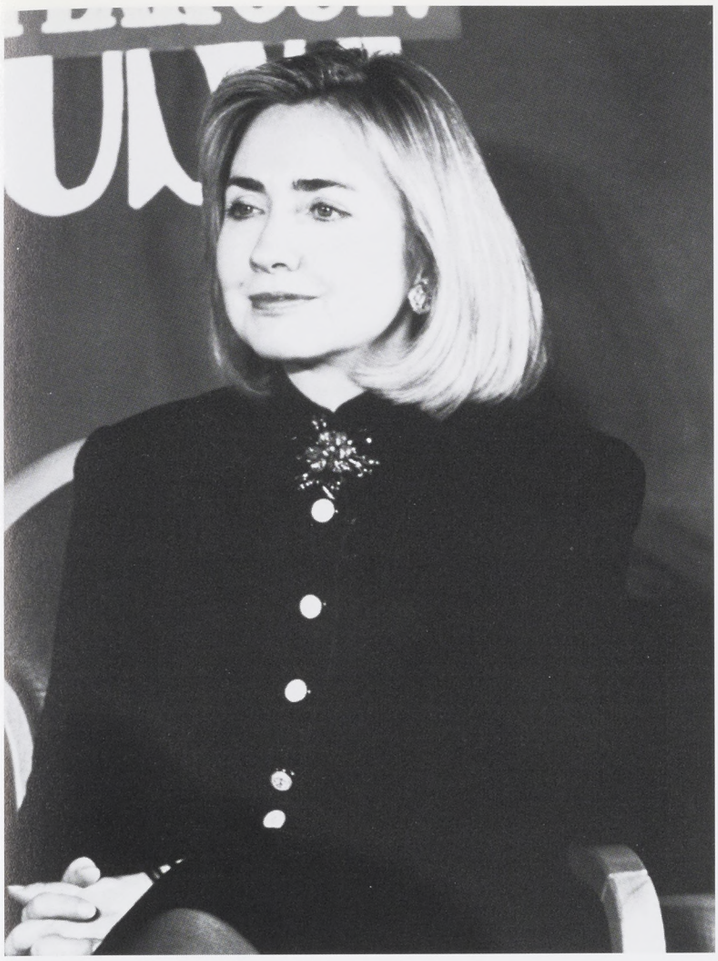
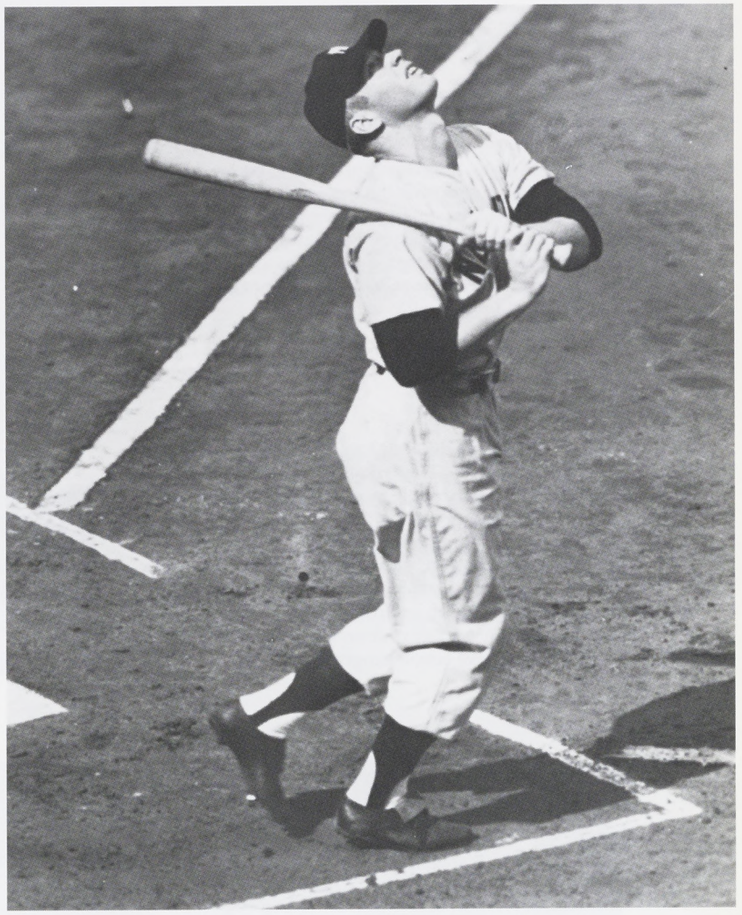
House Speaker Newt Gingrich, a Republican congressman from Georgia, rose to the heights of Speaker of the House of Representatives. Gingrich was always considered a 1996 presidential candidate. He promised to overhaul more than generation of social programs that began in the eras of the New Deal and the Great Society.

One critic described Hootie and the Blowfish as a pleasent band with a mellow sound, a winning and unpretentious attitude, a goofy name and a lot more. The South Carolina band includes Darius Rucker, vocals and guitar, Mark Bryan, guitars, Dean Felber, bass and Jim Sonefeld, drums. Musically, Hootie can move casually but efficiently from harmonizing to country rock, from blues to thick-as molasses Southern rock.



First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton had difficulty this year finding an appropriate role for herself, one that Americans would be comfortable with, after her prominent leadership of administration's failed health care reform campaign. She remained am important advisor to the president. But in public, Mrs. Clinton concentrated on tasks more traditionally associated with first ladies-- tasks such as her crusade to improve the lives of women, children and families.

Mickey Mantle was one of the greatest baseball players who ever lived. From the time he broke into the major league in 1951, six months shy of his 20th birthday, untill he retired following the 1968 season at age 37, Mickey Mantle inspired generations of fans with his power and ability. He died of a fast-spreading liver cancer at the age of 63, two months after a liver transplant.



The Atlantic region's hurricane season this year was so active that it produced the most named storms since the National Hurricane Center started assigning names in 1953.
