No love, no friendship can cross the path of our destiny without leaving some kind of mark on it forever.
-Unknown

As our time in college goes by quickly, and things constantly change, as they always will, one thing is for sure; the memories that we've shared with our friends will keep us connected for a lifetime. This year, I have chosen to dedicate this book to all my friends and all of yours. This book is in honor of all those people with whom we've created strong friendships throughout our time at S.U.

I think everyone will agree with me on one point. The memories that we will take with us from our years in college would never be the same without our friends. They are those precious people that make everything worthwhile. Friends come into our lives for a specific reason and become part of our identity. Each one has a special significance to us, but without any one of them, we would be lost. They contribute to our good times, creating wonderful memories to live on, and also guide us through our worst times, encouraging us when we feel we can't continue. Overall, they are the people that add meaning to our lives.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those special people who have made my life as meaningful as it has been. All of you have blessed me with the wonderful gift of your friendship and for that I am forever grateful. You all know who you are, and I only hope that you realize the impression that you have left on my life. I wish you all the best of luck with your future encounters. I know that the friendships we've made are strong enough to keep us connected for a lifetime, and I look forward to our life together.

Some people come into our lives and quickly go. Some stay for awhile and leave footprints on our hearts. And we are never, ever the same. -Source Unknown

I hope that as each one of you reads this book, you will realize how blessed you are to have the friends you do. Learn to treasure them, because they truly are one of life's greatest assets.

Sincerely,
Chasity A. Willey

Every day the different activities and events that go on at Shippensburg affect us. Every day these events help us to connect to a new person. The events and activities that we experience on a daily basis at Ship will help us to grow for the rest of our lives. This section helps to capture the moments of the fun and special times that we have all had here at Ship. Hopefully, these pictures and stories will help you connect to the memories that were made.

GRAND MASQUERADE OF 2000

Shippensburg University's Homecoming, "Masquerade 2000," was an exciting celebration enjoyed by both students and alumni. The Homecoming events kicked off on October 2nd with a Masquerade Ball in the CUB. Students who attended the Ball dressed up to show their Homecoming spirit. Throughout the week, many other exciting events, such as Big Chair Photos, caricatures, and wall climbing, were held to conjure up school spirit.

Another exciting event included the Homecoming Coffeehouse that was set up in the CUB's Great Hall on October 4th. The spirit rally was held on October 6th and glow-in-the-dark necklaces were distributed to the crowd. Following the rally was an exciting display of fireworks. After the fireworks, a comedy show, featuring Simply Marvelous and Co-Co Brown, was held in the CUB.

Saturday began with the annual Homecoming Parade. Many groups, organizations, sororities, and fraternities made floats and were part of the parade. Marching and walking units also participated in the spirited parade. The football game, which kicked off at 1 P.M., was played against Slippery Rock in the Seth Grove Stadium. Pregame festivities included a performance from Slippery Rock's Marching Band, the inductees to the Athletic Hall of Fame, and the announcements of the parade competition winners.

Although the Raiders put up a valiant effort, Slippery Rock defeated them with a score of 28-21. During half time, the Raider Marching Band performed and the 2000 Homecoming King Michael Hanawalt and Queen Toni Reber were crowned. This was the first year for a king to be voted on by students.

Other events held on Saturday included the annual ROTC 10 K Class run, key chain photos in the CUB, and the SHAPE 1st Annual Arts Festival. Living up to its name, "Masquerade 2000," was an exciting event filled with friends, alumni, and parties.

A FAN'S DREAM COME TRUE

HIP-HOP

Homecoming weekend ended with a bang on October 8th with MTV's Campus Invasion Tour. The concert, held in Heiges Field House, spotlighted the artist Wyclef Jean whose opening acts included the talented Black Eyed Peas and De La Soul.

In deciding the event to be chosen for the fall of 2000, the APB was looking for a new and different approach. The concert committee, consisting of 65 people and headed by Brooke Fredrickson, thought hip-hop was the way to go and that Wyclef fit the bill perfectly. The time and planning put into the concert by many individuals paid off when Wyclef and his entourage took the stage.

Wyclef, with his new album "The Ecleftic-2 Sides II a Book," has broadened the reach of hip-hop culture. The types of music on his new album vary from classic rock to country to rap. Wyclef started out his music career in the successful trio the Fugees and has since garnered critical acclaim on his solo projects.

Wyclef's Shippensburg performance included both new and old hits, as well as a number of covers, including songs by Pink Floyd and Bob Marley. Wyclef's enthusiasm throughout the night created a sense of togetherness amongst the crowd, the musicians, and the music. He seemed to have made it his goal to provide the best concert for his audience of about 1,500 people.

After begging and finally receiving additional time from the concert coordinator, Wyclef held a number of contests on stage involving the crowd, one in which he gave a reward of $500. Some of these contests included "freak dancing" and "free styling." The students were extremely excited and pleased by the interaction that took place between the audience and the performers.

Wyclef's performance was a great show and made for a wonderful conclusion to Homecoming 2000. Thanks to the work of many students, the well planned concert was a complete success that left many with memories that will last forever.

DID THE MAIL COME YET?

Every student loves to receive mail. Reaching into your mailbox and pulling out a letter seems to brighten the entire day. But the question is: how does Ship's mail system work? After you slide your mail down the slot in the wall, what happens next? The large amount of mail processed through the university calls for a finely tuned mail machine.

The mail process begins around 8 a.m. every day. Each morning, someone from the Old Main mail room takes a trip to the downtown Shippensburg post office where he or she picks up all the mail for the university. The mail room then sorts through the mail and delivers it around 9:30 a.m. to the residence halls and offices. The mail room's first priority is to make sure that everyone receives his or her mail on time.

The mail that is sent from the university, including student mail, is sorted before it is taken to the Shippensburg post office on King Street. From King Street, the mail is taken to the main post office in nearby Harrisburg, where it is distributed to each destination. This process of transporting the mail takes about two to three days.

Residence halls receive about 50 packages and 15 feet of letters per day. The administrative offices receive about 30 packages and eight feet of mail per day. Other types of mail, such as UPS and Priority Mail, are usually delivered directly to the residence halls because they require authorized signatures.

When a student receives a package, a slip of paper is put into his or her mailbox, stating that a package is waiting at the residence hall's front desk. Many parents like to send care packages to their children at various times throughout the year.

The process of sending and receiving mail is more complicated than it seems. So, next time you send a letter, just take a moment to think of all the people and effort that goes into making sure that your words are delivered efficiently and quickly to their destination.

FREEDOM TO MAKE YOUR OWN CHOICES

As freshmen enter Shippensburg each year, they are faced with a new lifestyle. The unexpected changes and adjustments that they will soon encounter will teach them many of life's lessons.

One of the biggest adjustments is to dorm life. Many students for the first time are living with someone other than their family. The adjustment to new roommates may be easier for those who have grown up in larger families and who have already experienced situations in which they must compromise.

This new life away from parents provides students with the opportunity to gain a better sense of responsibility and freedom. Students suddenly handle everyday problems without constant support from loved ones. They learn to live as independent individuals and gain a new sense of respect for the support they have received in the past.

Along with the freedom and responsibility comes time management. Students' schedules change greatly from their senior year of high school to their first year of college. This transition takes some time getting used to. Perhaps the most difficult adjustment most freshmen must become accustomed to is having to sit through a three-hour night class once a week. However, it is refreshing to no longer have to deal with eight-hour high school days and to have breaks in-between classes to go home and relax. Because of these breaks, students learn to use time between classes to their advantage.

New students are also exposed to different kinds of people than they may have come across before entering college. This provides them with new experiences among a more culturally diverse population.

The new experiences faced by freshmen give them the opportunity to become more independent as they move into the first step towards the "real world."

WORKING TO HELP OTHERS

You see them in their dorm rooms, in the hallways and at functions across campus. They always seem to be busy, whether it's running from one meeting to the next, or trying to finish homework for tomorrow's classes. But what are the actual responsibilities of a Resident Assistant?

Resident Assistants are on duty once a week from 7p.m. - 7a.m. and on the weekends during 9p.m. - 9a.m. They perform "rounds" three times in that twelve-hour period. Rounds consist of walking around the entire dorm, making sure that everyone's okay, and turning off the hall lights at 8 o'clock. RA's get to know a lot of people while they do these tasks. Many RA's feel that this is one of the many things that RA's looked forward to before they applied for the job.

Many RA's took the job because they like to work with people; it was convenient to live on campus, and it was a way to get involved with a variety of activities. Tanesa Moten, a first year RA in McCune Hall, commented, "Being an RA isn't the typical job — you don't have to go off campus and it's a way for you to get involved with different activities you normally wouldn't." Neile Bechtold, a second-year RA in McClean Hall, got the idea from his Resident Assistant his freshman year. "He told me I would do a good job as an RA, so I applied for the job. Halfway through the year a job opened up and it was given to me," stated Neile Bechtold.

For the most part RA's feel that the best thing about their job is getting to meet and deal with various people. Megan Murphy, a second-year RA in Harley Hall, said, "Working with people and being able to affect them in good ways is the most rewarding part of the job."

The worst part of the job was the same across the board: late-night phone calls. Joy Bingaman, a first-year RA in Harley Hall, mentioned, "Being an RA is very demanding and time-consuming, but the worst part of the job is definitely late-night phone calls because of lockouts." Like any other job, being an RA can have its good and bad parts, but Megan Murphy put it best when she said, "Some of it is tough, but the good parts definitely outweigh the bad."

Despite the stress that may come along with the job, the life of an RA is definitely a rewarding experience.

THE RACE, KNOW THE PERSON FORGET

Students from Shippensburg University, as well as many others, gathered on Dickinson College's Biddle Field on Saturday, September 23rd, 2000. The assembly brought together those who support principles of equality and unity. The celebration honored the basic principle of American democracy: that all people are created equal.

This celebration was held in order to counter the Ku Klux Klan, which was partaking in a rally held in the streets of Carlisle. The Klan is a hate group that craves publicity and confrontation. Members of the community were urged to stay away from the Klan and deny them the attention that they so crave.

Unity Day was for all members of the community and included a number of activities for people of all ages. As participants entered the function, they were welcomed with smiling faces. Purple ribbons and nametags were worn throughout the field. Enthusiastic speeches were performed while other forms of entertainment were underway as well. These activities included dancing, music, art, and different games.

The main idea behind this event was to stress the importance of strength. As Americans, we have the right to celebrate our diversity. Unity Day was an event that allowed the people to celebrate unity and peace.

Hate groups preach intolerance, inequality, and hatred. If people continue to support such groups, they will grow in potency. Therefore, it is our duty to stand up for what we believe in and to support our neighbors who may be oppressed by prejudice and intolerance.

Carlisle's Celebration of Unity took a stand against these groups. Through this action, the community expressed the importance of support, strength, equality, unity, and democracy.

MOVIES NOW PLAYING...

Students often find themselves scrounging for spending money so they can partake in something that will relieve them of stress or boredom. Many times, little or no money at all can be found and students may find it difficult to think of something to do with the funds available to them.

For these reasons, we often find ourselves looking for great bargains. We all love to be entertained, in one form or another. Going to the movies is often the number-one choice of entertainment among college students. The bill adds up quickly for students attending a movie theater or even going to the video rental store.

The Activities Program Board offers students a chance to spend their money wisely. Students will get a bargain price for viewing the film at the CUB. Movies can be seen Tuesdays and Fridays in either the Multi Purpose Room or in the Orndorff Theater. The Tuesday movie is shown at 7:00 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., and the Friday movie may be viewed at 7 p.m., 9:30 p.m., and even at 12:00 a.m.

The Entertainment Committee, part of the APB, is responsible for deciding what movies will be shown throughout the year. The Committee often asks students what they would like to see. Themes are often implemented to help draw a bigger crowd to the movies shown each week. For example, during the showing of American Pie they handed out condoms, and the committee played Runaway Bride and Pretty Woman in back-to-back-weeks. During December they pick movies that take the students' minds off of finals and put the students in the holiday mood.

After the movie titles are chosen, the movies are purchased through the Swank Company. This company allows the APB to show new and old movies to the students at a low price. After each movie is shown, it is then sent back to the Swank Company.

For those who still think one dollar is a lot to see a movie, the APB will sometimes cut the cost in half or even make it free for the viewers. For example, during Halloween when the APB let anyone view the movie for free if they were dressed in costume.

Viewing movies in the CUB is a great way for students to break away from the daily routine of classes. Students have an easy access to seeing great movies at a bargain price right here on campus.

YOUR MIND SPEAK FROM BEHIND

When you find yourself cruising the highways and byways, hundreds of cars pass you by. You may frequently find yourself bored during the time you spend on the road. To make the drive a little more exciting, why not read the bumper stickers that are displayed on the cars passing?

Bumper stickers are placed on thousands of cars for many different reasons. It seems like almost every car in this vast country has at least one sticker.

People place bumper stickers on their cars for various reasons. More often than not, stickers are a means of self-expression. They are a great way to show others who you are and what your personality is like. The bumper stickers on cars come in all kinds of shapes, sizes, and colors. Placing a bumper sticker on your car allows you freely to express, promote, or display something you enjoy and shows people where you have traveled to or what you think is important or amusing.

If you were to drive across campus, you would find an abundance of bumper stickers stuck to students' cars. Many students attend Ship and they have various types of personalities. Many students enjoy displaying their school's logo, or their club's or organization's name somewhere on their car. Such stickers symbolize who the students are and what they feel is important.

On the cars throughout campus, you will find a variety of bumper stickers, ranging from advertising favorite musicians, to travel destinations, to quotations, to sport teams. Here are just some examples of bumper stickers you may see across campus: "DMB," "Kid Rock," "Diva," "HONK YOUR HORN!," "OBX" (Outer Banks), "Ski It To Believe It," "Yankees," "Don't Drink and Drive," "Not Everybody's Lost," and "I'd Rather Be Driving a Titleist."

As you can see, a wide variety of bumper stickers can be found. The next time you go for a drive, or even when you are walking through a crowded parking lot, why not take a moment to look at how people express themselves?

REMEMBER YOU ALWAYS

April 20, 1999, is a day that America will never forget. It is the day that Darrell Scott's daughter, Rachel Joy Scott, was gunned down along with twelve others at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colorado. Last fall, Darrell came to Shippensburg to spread his message of peace to America's youth.

Darrell's son, Craig, was in Columbine's library during the massacre and witnessed the murder of ten of his fellow classmates. Rachel was killed a few yards away, just outside the library doors. The murderers were two of Rachel's peers. These students felt like outcasts and were referred to as the "trench coat mafia." After their murderous rampage, the two turned their guns on themselves and committed suicide.

Darrell Scott has spoken to millions of people since the tragedy through radio, television, and public appearances. He and his wife have written a book, Rachel's Tears, which provides a fresh look at God's sovereign purposes in the lives of His people.

Darrell has been featured in Time, Newsweek, and Christianity Today, among many other publications. He has been interviewed by Oprah Winfrey, Tom Brokaw, Larry King, Leeza Gibbons, and Katie Couric. Darrell has also met Bill Clinton and speaks regularly with governors, senators, and congressmen.

Darrell feels that his most important task is to give to the country's young people his message of triumph over tragedy. He shares with his audience writings from Rachel's dairies as well as his personal thoughts and feelings. His mission is to talk to as many people as possible and spread a message of peace and love. Darrell has faith in America's youth and has been quoted as saying, "My daughter's death will not be in vain. The young people of this country will not allow that to happen."

Darrell continues to campaign for America's youth by speaking of Rachel's life and tragic death. His stop at Shippensburg touched the hearts of many students and spread his inspirational message to all those who attended.

SHOW YOUR SPIRIT ALL YEAR ROUND

As each holiday draws near, Ship's campus seems to come alive with decorations and holiday spirits. Students break out their seasonal decorations and adorn their dorm rooms with a variety of festive motifs. The dining halls and the CUB also join in the fun as they too decorate for each holiday.

Many students decorate to make their rooms seem a little more like home. Dorm rooms can be very confining with their cinder block walls and plain tiled floors. Putting up just a few decorations can really transform a plain room into one with a spirit of its own.

The CUB and the dining halls decorate to bring the students into the holiday spirit and to make the campus more festive. Not only do they decorate, but they also make special food and desserts to celebrate the current holiday.

Perhaps the holiday that spurs the most excitement and décor is Christmas. Students decorate with strings of bright lights, wreaths, ornaments, paper snowflakes, mistletoe, and even tiny Christmas trees. The CUB displays a large Christmas tree in the lobby and the dining halls decorate with all sorts of Christmas-themed decorations.

Another widely celebrated holiday is Halloween. Students carve pumpkins and trim their rooms with ghoulish decorations such as ghosts, skeletons, and witches. Many students even get dressed up in lavish costumes and go to Halloween parties to celebrate the holiday. Also, students transform Naugle Hall's basement into a haunted house and its elevator into the "Hellavator."

Valentine's Day is also a holiday that garners much attention and decorations. Cupids and hearts can be seen all across campus, both in dorm rooms and in dining halls.

Many students celebrate the holidays by giving to and receiving gifts from their friends. Others hold parties or get-togethers to celebrate each holiday. However students choose to celebrate, one thing's for sure: holidays are widely enjoyed and appreciated by all.

Holidays help to take the students' minds off their schoolwork, tests, and the other stresses in their lives. The decorations are just another way to bring joy to the students and help bring the campus to life.

The most exciting times of the year are when holidays approach, and the festive decorations throughout campus help to elevate that excitement. Many students cannot be home for the holidays and having the decorations on campus can help them cope with being away from their loved ones.

SPECIAL ENTREES ARE...

TONIGHTS

Each month, the Reisner and Kriner dining halls sponsor two maxi-specials, one mini-special, and one birthday night. These special events are part of the food program, and the cost is covered in the meal plan. The mini- and maxi-specials are an attempt to break out of the traditional dining hall experience and create enjoyment and excitement for the students.

Maxi nights involve festive decorations and a specially planned menu based around a specific theme. The dining hall staff creates an extraordinary ambience for the students by incorporating such events as holiday dinners, movie nights, and luaus into the dining hours.

The dining halls also sponsor nights that focus on different cultures, exposing students to a variety of foods from beyond the typical American table. Some of the most memorable nights included this past Halloween dinner. Festive decorations and a creative menu coaxed students into a ghoulish mood. The Thanksgiving dinner also had a lot to offer, with a hearty home-style meal and a wide variety of pies reminiscent of the meal you'd expect at Grandma's table.

The mini-specials are smaller and don't require the amount of decorating that maxi-specials do, but they still provide enjoyment for students after a rough day of classes. Activities such as "build-your-own snow cone" and "decorate-your-sweetheart cake" are just some of the activities the dining hall staff offers. The dining hall staff also selects one night each month to celebrate with a special cake the birthdays of all students born within that month.

The masterminds behind these galas are the managers and directors of the university, the management team, and the dining hall chefs. Together, they determine what themes will be used each semester and how to coordinate decorations along with the food. With their creative talents, they transform the dining hall into a festive atmosphere and attempt to satisfy the culinary yearnings of distraught students with a good meal and a night of fun and entertainment.

WHERE DID EVERYONE GO?

For many students, Shippensburg University is a home-away-from-home, but only on the weekdays. Every Friday, there is a rush of students packing up their cars and heading home for the weekend. The campus parking lots become mere skeletons of what they are during the week.

Why is Shippensburg a suitcase school? Because it is in the middle of nowhere and if you don't party, there is no real reason to hang out here on weekends. For some, the location adjustment is just too much to take. Many students come from big cities and can't feel comfortable in the rural area that is Ship. Also, some students can't adjust to the fact that if they want to shop or see a movie, they have to drive to Chambersburg or Carlisle. Many Ship students are not used to being in such an isolated place and feel the need to go home, where there are things to do and friends to hang out with.

In addition to the rural locale drawback, many Ship students' hometowns are practically around the corner, maybe 45 minutes to an hour and a half away. Therefore, jumping in the car every Friday for a quick trip is no big deal and can be done week after week.

There are a million different reasons why students go home on the weekends. Some go home to see their family, friends, or significant others. Others go home for good home–cooked meals, to do their laundry, to shop, or to work.

The average student goes home about every other weekend, but many go home every single weekend. Some students go home because not a lot of people stay here on weekends. There are some weekend activities held on campus, but unfortunately they do not hold the attention of most. So for students who do not like to party, the weekends are a good opportunity to go home and escape college life and the stress that goes with it.

Every university has students who abandon the campus on weekends. It seems to be more prevalent here at Ship, but that may only be because Ship is a very popular university for students who live close by to attend. Ship has a good central location, which is why, even though the town has little to offer, it is still a very appealing university.

WE LIVE HERE?

SHOULD

After living on campus for a year or two, many students decide to get together with their closest friends and move off campus. In order to find a place to live in town, students begin searching early, in October and November.

The first step to finding a house or apartment is to pick up a list of rentals from Old Main. The comprehensive list gives the names of the landlords and their places for rent. Then, the phone calls begin. Students have to call around to see which places are still available and to set up times to take tours. However, many students bypass these steps by deciding not to look any further than College Park or Stone Ridge.

The biggest factor in deciding where to live is cost. The ultimate goal is to find a house or apartment where the rent plus the approximate cost of utilities will cost about the same as it does to live on campus. However, this goal is not easily obtainable. To find a place that is both livable and cheap takes time and patience. In this town, there seems to be a plethora of shabby apartments with only a few nice ones thrown into the mix.

The desire to move off campus stems from several motives. Students can't wait to get out of the dorms, where there is hardly a moment's peace and RAs keeping watch 24/7. College is about freedom and the dorms do not allow the same freedom that living off campus does. By getting out of the dorms, students no longer have to swipe a card to get into their place; they no longer have to sign in guests, and they no longer have to worry about an RA writing them up for "violations." Living in off-campus housing is a chance for students to live on their own and actually see what life is like — by paying bills, cooking, and cleaning.

Some of the places students choose to move into include Bard Meadows, Britton Court, Chateau, sorority and fraternity houses, and sports teams houses. However, practically every street in Shippensburg is lined with private rentals that give the students a wide variety and a good chance to find a suitable house or apartment.

Moving off campus definitely has its advantages, but so does experiencing dorm life as a freshman. Living with your peers allows students to develop friendships and go through the "college experience" we all hear so much about. However, after one or two years of dorm life, it is time to take those experiences and friends and move off. Moving off, for many students, is as essential to the "college experience" as making friends, partying, and classes. Moving off campus is part of growing up and taking another step into the real world.

IN THE RUNNING WILD OPEN

The weather heated up and we enjoyed five beautiful days of sunshine; then, Springfest 2001 arrived on campus just in time for afternoon showers.

A variety of fun and wild activities were held during Springfest, whose theme was, "In the Wild." Morning competitions, sponsored by the APB, were held between different organizations on Seavers' rec field. The games kicked off at ten in the morning and ended at a little after eleven.

Some of the games that organizations were able to participate in were izzy dizzy/dizzy bat, potato sack races, balloon toss, ball bounce, and free throws. Out of the organizations that participated, APB placed first; Christian Fellowship placed second, and Health Sciences came in third.

At noon, the band, "Love Seed Mama Jump," performed on the CUB lawn. The band played a number of cover songs and also did a few of their own original tunes. A cookout buffet sponsored by the dining hall was also held, featuring hotdogs, hot wings, BBQ spare ribs, hush puppies, pasta salad, bean salad, fruit salad, cookies, and brownies.

The band gave out free CD's and APB gave out blow-up animals. Other activities held throughout the day included a Velcro obstacle course, jousts, bungee races, and airbrush temporary tattoos.

The fun times would've continued longer into the day if rain hadn't put a damper on things and made the day come to an early conclusion. Springfest 2001 was a fun time for all those who attended and gave students a much needed break from classes and studying. Whether it was good music or fun activities that you were looking for, you could definitely find it at this year's Springfest. With the help and hard work of APB, Springfest was once again a great hit among the students.

Sports are a major part of life at any college. Here at Ship, a wide variety of sports are offered. This section highlights these sports along with their ups and downs, victories and defeats, triumphs and frustrations. The students who participate not only juggle an academic schedule, but a practice and game schedule as well. Each of these teams work to the best of their ability in order to reach a common goal-success.

Fresh on the Field

The Lady Raiders' hard work during the 2000 field hockey season led them to twelve victories, four losses, and one tie. Coach Bertie Landes felt that the team finished the season really well, despite the fact that they did not make the playoffs. Coach Landes said that "the games that were lost were from lack of experience, not lack of skill." The team worked hard and gave 100 percent at games and in practice.

This season, the team was comprised of very young members, including 14 freshmen players. One remarkable player, senior Meredith Henry, was one of the team's co-captains and scored 14 goals and had three assists. She ended up 5th in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference. Other leaders on the offensive line were Sarah Paine, a sophomore, ending the season with 10 goals and 2 assists. Anne Furman, a sophomore, had 4 goals and 7 assists, while freshman Carli Bordner finished her first season with 5 goals and 3 assists.

The offense could not have done as well without the backing from a strong defense. Leading the team defensively was senior Jess Bencsik, who did a great job for the team as right-hand back. Playing midfield, one of the hardest positions in field hockey, was sophomore Heather Rothrock.

Two of the fourteen freshmen proved to be phenomenal goalies. Kira Fisher and Heather Mullen split time throughout the season. Another freshman, Hilary Manning, stepped up two-thirds of the way through the season and displayed her exceptional ability. All of the upper classmen really became leaders and worked hard during the off-season to pull the team together.

"The team gave 100% determination and heart."

>>>Sarah Paine

One of the most memorable games was against Philadelphia University, where the Lady Raiders won 4-1. One major goal not met this season was the playoffs. The crucial game against East Stroudsburg was a disappointment to both the coach and the team.

This year, however, the team finished well, especially considering they were such a young team. Coach Landes would like to improve the players' "physical conditioning by building strength and muscle endurance in order to build a stronger team." During the off-season, the team will weight train and attend a summer camp in July.

Coach Landes can't wait for next season to begin because of the talent that will be returning. She is also excited to welcome new talented recruits and other players from some of the top programs in the state.

Quarterback Attack

The 2000 Red Raiders Football team had a good season but, according to Coach Rocky Rees, did not meet their expectations. "We didn't do as well as we had hoped because of injuries and other things that popped up throughout the course of the year," said Rees. The team ended the season with a record of 5 wins and 6 losses.

The team held the hardest schedule in the Pennsylvania Conference this year. Five of the first seven games they played were against nationally ranked opponents. Therefore, considering the tough competition, Rees believes that the season was a success.

>>>Ryan Haugh

The team's key leader was senior quarterback, Chris Gicking. Gicking was injured during the season and had to miss three games. Despite this setback, he was the first Red Raider to reach 51 touchdown passes for a career. In addition, Gicking also broke the mark for career passing yards of 6205 set by Brian Gilbert in 1992. Another asset to the team was senior Gary McChalicher, an offensive tackle who was very instrumental throughout the season. Other team leaders included Ryan Hartley, and defensive players Tony Green, Josh Goodman, Jeff Hannum, and Deon Harrison. Harrison, according to Rees, had an outstanding season. Freshman Matt Phillips stood out in his class as an exceptional runner and as a key player on the special teams.

The most memorable game of the season was against Bloomsburg. Shippensburg was its last loss of the season, prior to losing to Delta State in the national title game on ESPN. According to Rees, "The win against Bloomsburg was an indicator of what our players are capable of doing. Ending on a good note with defeating Kutztown was also a real plus for Ship."

Next year will be a rebuilding season because the team is losing 13 seniors, a majority of whom are from the offensive line. Rees will be looking for players to step up and fill in the gaps.

The team is preparing for next season by working out in the weight room, keeping in shape, and improving on their weaknesses. Rees and the team are working hard and keeping an optimistic attitude about the 2001 season.

Set to Unify

The Lady Raiders Volleyball team, after going through two rebuilding seasons, was stronger than ever this year. After losing only one senior, Coach Randy Hood and the returning volleyball veterans were ready for a great season. Captains Sabea Mosemann and Jenn Fuhrman led the young team throughout the season.

Furhman, a senior transfer student, was a huge boost to the team. Mosemann is one of the top all-around players on the team and acted as a real leader.

According to Coach Hood, "the team had some pretty high hopes for this year." However, the season did not go as smoothly as everyone had hoped because "as soon as the team fixed one part, another part seemed to be hurting. We were moving people a bit and that is a little tricky." The team's overall season record was 19 wins and 15 losses.

At one memorable game during the season, Furhman led the team to a 3-2 victory over Millersville and tied the Shippensburg single-match record for kills with 28. At the Juniata Tournament, Furhman made 11 solo blocks, which tied the team single-match record set in 1992.

Although the team is still in a transitional stage with girls filling in and moving around, they maintained game confidence and are becoming extremely competitive. Sophomore Kelly Laughlin had to fill in for the spot left by Dawn Scholl and did a tremendous job.

"We have nowhere to go next year but up."

>>> Jenn Fuhrman

The players, as well as the coaching staff, are looking at next year as the year that the program will really become competitive. According to Hood, "the team is surprised that it came so quickly." Although Jenn Furhman will be graduating and there will be big shoes to fill, Coach Hood is certain the girls will pull through and have another great season: "Provided we have health as a team, I think that some kids are going to do tremendously. We have a lot of youth on our side."

Their Final Goal

The Lady Raiders Soccer team started off the 2000 season strong with five wins in a row. However, after losing several close games, their season ended with a record of eight wins, eleven losses, and one tie. Coach Guy Furfaro said he feels that the season was pretty positive. "We have a very young team with three seniors that did a great job as far as leadership goes."

The 2000 season is the last for three graduating seniors, Patty Hill, Lisa Trombetta, and Sarah Kane-Grimes. Furfaro said, "they have all done well, but with the seniors leaving, we'll be losing a lot, both on and off the field." Both Kane-Grimes and Trombetta are leading offensive players with outstanding records in scoring goals. Trombetta is the first Shippensburg player ever to score 50 goals in a career. Also, she scored the winning goal in four of the first five games. Hill leads the defense with her great passing ability and ball control.

Guy Furfaro has been the Shippensburg soccer coach for five years. With his three seniors leaving, all of whom he has coached for the past four years, he is hoping that some of the younger players will step up and take leadership positions: "It is going to be interesting to see who is going to decide to take control."

Although the team will miss the graduates, the younger girls have the potential to fill their shoes. Furfaro did not mention specific names of who he believes will step up next season, but he did say that there are definitely one or two that could potentially become next season's leaders. He has high hopes for next season and knows that the team, with new and returning talent, will be a force to reckon with on the field.

"It was the team that made this my best season."

Fighting With Force

The 2000 Red Raiders Soccer team had, according to Coach Guy Furfaro, a disappointing season. Although the team started off strong, after a couple of injuries, the losses started to add up. Overall, the final statistics were seven wins, eleven losses, and two ties. Furfaro has been coach of the Red Raiders Soccer team for the past four seasons.

No one player really stepped up this season and that was one of the team's problems. "When things don't go our way, we are looking for somebody to really try and step up and take control and take charge on the field," said Furfaro.

The team is very talented and most of the players will be returning next year. Returning players include junior and co-captain Brett Hofstrom, offensive player and co-captain Ryan McFadden, and sophomore offensive player Tony Simonetti. The number-one goalkeeper for the team was freshman Bob McComsey. Furfaro is hopeful that next season will bring on a whole new array of talent from newly enrolled students.

This season, the team realized that they were going to have to do some things differently in order to have a winning season next year. Some of the losses this season were close ones that could have gone either way. "If we get a win instead of a loss in a couple of those games, like Lock Haven or Kutztown, it's a different season, but we didn't," explained Furfaro.

"I'm looking to make something happen next season to show that our program can compete."

>>> Brett Hofstrom

In the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, the team won only one of the eight games and tied one, ending up with a 1-6-1 record. Although the season wasn't the most successful for the team, Coach Furfaro and the rest of the team will be looking forward to next year with the return of veterans and hopefully the appearance of some new talent.

Cross Your Fingers

The Lady Raiders Cross Country team had a very successful 2000 season. They ended the year with a record of 71-55. The team placed an impressive 5th place at the conference, which was extremely close to the times of the 2nd and 3rd place teams. Their record was 8-4 at PSAC meets.

They placed 3rd in the East Region with an outstanding record with 17 wins and 2 losses.

In order to prepare for this year's season, the Lady Raiders ran all year round. They also did intensive weight and mental training throughout the year, concentrating on how to focus. These exercises helped the team gain strength, both physically and mentally.

Returning team members included LeeAnn Weaver, Lisa Ogryzek, Mary Rachel Pearce and Sarah Baer.

Sarah Baer, a junior, was the team's number-one runner during the season. Erin Krug, a senior, was a new runner this year. Although she had never before competed, she ran number four for Shippensburg at the conference. Coach Steve Spence said he wishes Krug would have come out earlier because she is such an excellent runner. Another asset to the team was freshman Jessica Rinesmith.

>>> Sarah Baer

At the end of the season, the team competed in the NCAA Championship which is a culmination of the team's year-long efforts. The team placed 16th in the Championship with a record of 8-15.

Overall, the season was very successful. With returning veterans and the possibility of new recruits, both the team and Coach Spence are looking forward to and preparing for next year.

Stride to Win

The Red Raiders Cross Country team did very well during this year's regular season. They ended the year with a record of 83-38, finishing 2nd in PSAC. Coach Steve Spence said that he is very pleased with the team's performance during the 2000 season.

Coach Steve Spence brought the team through a well performed regular season. However, their focus throughout the year remained on the post-season and the NCAA Championship. The team gave a great performance in the Championship, placing 19th.

The top runner of this year was Justin Gindlesperger. Justin is a senior who is running under junior eligibility. Therefore, the team is looking forward to his return next year as he enters graduate school. Gindlesperger served as an enormous asset to this year's team.

As a sophomore, Michael Rothermel was a new runner this year. He was an extremely strong runner who proved to be a real benefit to the team. He came in only two seconds behind Justin in the conference this year and received tenth place.

The team had two freshmen running in the top seventh, Terry Lillicrapp and Eric DeMerice. DeMerice is a red shirt freshman who did not play his freshman year due to injury.

Terry Lillicrapp's performance included a break into the top second, an incredible accomplishment for his first year. This success creates a bright outlook for his future three years on the team. James Stehle, who came in 15th in the conference, was a strong competitor, but he will not be returning next year.

"We knew that in the end, teamwork and consistency would take us to nationals."

>>>Justin Gindlesperger

The team's training regiment included a number of exercises. The team ran year round and did both physical and mental exercises in order to prepare them for their upcoming season. The exercises consisted of weight training and mental training. Through these exercises, the team centered attention on their strength and development.

At the end of the season, the team placed 19th at the NCAA with a record of 5-18. Overall, the team and Coach Spence are pleased with the 2000 season. With new recruits and the returning talent, they are hopeful that next season with be an even bigger success.

Take your mark! Go! The Lady Raiders Swim team got off to a great start and improved tremendously throughout the season. Head Coach Tim Verge is not surprised by their improvement, saying "It's been fun to see our program develop that way."

The team lost little to graduation and had a strong core of key swimmers, made up of a number of talented freshman, including Erin Galetti, Erin Goodhart, and Erin Taylor. Goodhart and Taylor both set school records, which is a very impressive feat at this stage in their college careers, while Galetti ranked in the top five in two events in the conference.

> "Our constant support for one another helped us to achieve our ultimate goal."
> >>> Jennifer Coble

Other key swimmers who contributed to the Lady Raiders' success included seniors Jessica Jengeleski, Laurie Wolz, Kelly Zimmer, and Lyndi Croft. In addition to the aforementioned swimmers, other team members who were consistent in the past came through for the team once again.

Verge said that the season as a whole was very successful. The Lady Raiders beat IUP and Bloomsburg, both of which are teams that Ship hasn't defeated in a long time. Verge said that the team is getting better, seeing results, and meeting their goals: "We've started to reestablish the tradition of women's swimming that we need."

To stay in shape, the team trains both in and out of the water. They work out three mornings a week, in the afternoons, and on Saturdays. In the off season, the team members are on their own to keep in shape and maintain an exercise routine.

The team is looking forward to next year and they have already begun recruiting new talent. Verge said that the recruiting is going well and that the team's success is one contributing factor. He's begun to branch out into western Pennsylvania and he's received a lot of positive interest from possible recruits in that area.

As for next season, Verge says that he and the team are going to keep doing what they've been doing. He wants the team's attitude to continue to improve and wants to find swimmers to take on events such as distance freestyle, sprint freestyle, and breaststroke.

Marc Walter caps off an impressive four years as one of Shippensburg's top swimmers.

The Red Raiders Swim team had an overall successful season. They consistently worked hard towards a goal of succeeding at PSACs. They tried to attain the same level of success that they had achieved at last year's PSACs. The team has had strong leadership from different swimmers to help it achieve that success. This year's frontrunners were John Hughes and Marc Walter.

In the "George Mason Invitational," Coach Verge said that out of the "nine or ten teams there, Ship was the only Division II team there and we wound up second. That was a real good experience for us." Meets such as the George Mason Invitational and the Bloomsburg Relays really helped "set the tone" for the rest of the season and how well the men swam.

Several swimmers really picked up the pace and worked hard this year. John Hughes, who took 12th place in the 100-yard backstroke, was a major asset to the team this year. Mark Walters, Dave Fullmer, Mike Robinson, Tim Kronstain, Derek Johnston, Matt Martzel, and Jay Bellas were also great contributors. All the Raiders swimmers made very good contributions to the team.

One area that the team will have to work on in the future is sprints. Derek Johnston, a returning contender, has contributed in the 200 and 400 free relays. Johnston and Kronstain, as well as others on the team, have helped to swim the middle distances whenever they were needed. Newcomer Adam Smith, who had never competed before this year, as well as three other freshman, was really able to "step up and help us in a lot of places," said Verge. The four new swimmers show a lot of potential for growth in upcoming seasons. The Raiders also improved in the breaststroke events. With the help of Tim Kronstain and Josh Esposito, the Red Raiders proved that the team was strong, as well as competitive, in breaststroke.

> "We challenge ourselves every day by displaying pride and unity."
> >>> Hugh Ferry

The Raiders were lucky this year to have a strong core of seniors that gave stability to the team. Coach Verge is looking forward to having a few good recruits for the upcoming season to help strengthen the team even further. As he pointed out, "Mentally, as a team, we are more sure of ourselves." This mentality will help in the future to improve discipline and consistency. The Red Raiders swam swiftly and stayed healthy, both of which helped to contribute to the season's success. Hopefully, these assets will carry over to next year so that the team can continue to improve and bring home another successful season.

The 2000/2001 wrestling season was plagued by a number of illnesses and injuries that were not anticipated by the team. However, the team refused to quit and ended up exceeding all expectations, as well as showing what the word "team" is all about.

The team performed well during its regular scheduled matches and at The National Wrestling Coaches Association Division II Duals, held on January 19th and 20th, and at the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Championships, on January 26th and 27th.

> "It'll be hard to replace the seniors next year, but hopefully some underclassmen can step up."
> >>>Jason Zinn

This season's key wrestlers included seniors Kevin Boccella, Mark Mentzer, and Brett Owen, all of whom have competed at the national level. The seniors' dedication and experience provided a strong foundation for the younger wrestlers who were included in this season's lineup. The loss of these seniors will greatly affect next year's team. However, throughout the season they worked with the younger team members and helped them enhance their abilities as wrestlers. By doing so, the seniors benefited the underclassmen as well as the future of the team.

Head Coach Mike Dunsmore is proud of the team and its performance this season: "I've seen so much growth and development out of these kids that it's just phenomenal to see where they're going as individuals and wrestlers."

Dunsmore stresses the importance of an education and tells the men that wrestling should come second to academics. Mentzer, Boccella, and Owen all came to Ship with that philosophy. They came to get an education, but also put a good deal of time and effort into achieving a high level of success in wrestling. Their successes both on and off the mat made them all excellent role models for the younger wrestlers who are striving to succeed athletically and academically.

As the team builds up strength for the years to come, they will never forget the effort put in by all who supported them. Although the season was a rough one as far as injuries go. Dunsmore says that the team has "gotten a lot stronger because we've gotten a lot of younger kids in the lineup and a lot of kids getting experience that is going to pay off down the road. This season was tough, but it was a learning experience and brought a new sense of unity to Shippensburg's wrestlers."

The Lady Raiders came to this season expecting to be successful but ready for a battle. With the loss of their starting point guard, Vickie Mikesic was ready and willing to step up as starting point guard.

The team has not been without their ups and downs, especially when it comes to their offensive game. They started out slow on outside shooting, and brought in some low numbers and averages that the team was not used to. Each game was taken one at a time until they got to the conference. Their biggest challenge was keeping motivated to achieve that level of success.

> "Now that we're seniors, we know what it takes to reach our goal; a national championship."
> >>> Janette Pieczynski

The team made a terrific effort with some incredible performances by Christa Cline and Janette Pieczynksi. Although as Head Coach Kristy Trn points out, "Overall, we are very equal. I don't think there's one person you can take away that isn't going to be important to the overall success of the team."

The team has always kept defense as their biggest advantage. In every game, there are two things Coach Trn believes must happen: "The team must put out a great defensive effort in the half court, and do a good job rebounding." Janette Pieczynski and Vickie Mikesic go after the ball defensively, causing major problems for any point guard or wing on the opposite team trying to keep a handle on the ball. Jess Gordon helps contribute the height factor, which has been lacking on the team in past years, while Christa Cline has the speed to defend.

In her first year on the team, freshman Katie Bray has stepped up as well against some of the larger, faster guards. Coach Trn said, "She is the freshman of the year in the conference." As for the offensive game, Jess Gordon, Christa Cline, and Katie Bray were strong competitors. Jess's size, Christa's quickness, and Katie's sound shooting skills have all contributed to the strong offensive skills of the team.

The strong, competitive seniors leaving the program this year are going to be hard to replace. Janette Pieczynski, Vickie Mikesic, Steph Rothery, and Christa Cline all had the desire to win and a common goal of team togetherness.

But Coach Trn is "confident that [next year's team] will be competitive." Hopefully with the help of players such as Jess Gordon, Katie Bray, and Emily Swingler, the Lady Raiders will go far.

Sophomore Jeff Madara earned the role of "spark plug" for the Raiders with his inspired play.

This year, the SU Red Raider Basketball team has stumped many of the critics who thought the team would perform poorly. Although the Raiders were not able to put out great performances in the last few years, this year was different. The team proved that it is capable of playing ball. The team's success came from the experience that was acquired from playing together the year before.

The team seemed to have great potential this year due to hard work and determination of many of the players. Aleksandar Pavlovic has provided the team with great offensive and rebounding strength during the season. On the other hand, Jeff Madara has done many of the little things on the court that have made his teammates look to him for leadership. He always took charge, defended well, and was able to come up with huge rebounds. Another key player on the team this year was Ron Banks. Banks, who started as point guard his freshman year, became more comfortable with this position and gained more confidence to lead the team to many wins during the season.

The team has definitely experienced many successes this year that they have not had in the past. The Raiders defeated many of their archrivals during the season. Two of their most exciting wins came when they defeated IUP and Edinboro on their home courts. Many of the guys were very emotional after winning against such powerhouse teams. These are memories that team members will keep for a lifetime.

> "For those of us on the team, it's a great experience to be in a play-off run."
> >>>Brian Gleason

Memories are all that Brian Anderson, Brian Gleason, and Tom Roth have. The team has lost these three players to graduation, but the veterans seemed to have given their heart and soul to their team. They have been with the team battling uphill during their entire college careers. Brian Anderson has made many positive contributions that really helped motivate his team. Tom Roth was capable of giving the team twenty points or more on any given night. Brian Gleason had the most experience of anyone on the team this year. Gleason has always been there emotionally and communicatively for the team and has worked very hard on perfecting his skills.

Coach Rodger Goodling is looking forward to a solid program in the upcoming years. Goodling stated that what the program needs "is to bring in another exceptionally good center." The Raiders look forward to recruiting not only good ball players, but good students as well. Hopefully, all of the effort placed into the program this year will carry over into next year's season.

Ready! OK! This year's SU cheerleading squad had a new look; the ladies were able to recruit a few more gentlemen to join their squad.

The cheering ability represented at Ship this year was quite impressive. One of the major strengths the squad possessed was their ability to tumble. According to Coach Misty Armstrong, "Probably over 50% of the squad has the ability to tumble." The men joined the team with enthusiasm and wanted to learn to tumble as well.

Many of the men were determined to learn to tumble, and for most, practice made perfect. The men have seemed to adapt and learn the stunts very quickly. They have worked to make the squad the best it could have possibly been. The men on the squad were given a lot of credit. They have even gone out to try to recruit more men to join the squad next year.

Another strength that the squad possessed was "their ability to do every stunt that they need to be able to do." Many of the moves performed were very impressive to those who watched wide-eyed from the stands. The audience had the opportunity to see some of the new moves that have not been seen from the cheering squad in the past. This year's squad was definitely an above-average squad and hopefully they will continue to improve next year.

The squad was led by captains Wes Smith, Kate Shuemaker, Nicole Smith, and Erin Merrell. Coach Armstrong said, "They are tremendous in leading the squad and getting the squad organized. They are great motivators and have a love for cheerleading. They go above and beyond the duties as a cheerleader."

> "In a sport that has always had to go the extra mile to prove itself, this year's team proved our squad as top athletes."
>
> >>> Erin Merrell and Katie Shuemaker

The squad attended and performed at as many of the games as possible to encourage the sports teams to perform their best, to entertain the audience, and to show their school spirit. They did a great job getting the crowds involved and enhancing the atmosphere with their cheers and entertaining stunts.

Coach Armstrong felt that the squad has not only come together in terms of technical abilities, but they have come together as a family as well. They have been a group of friends who did things together during the weekend, and who practiced with one another. The squad has performed well this year and is looking forward to a great season next year.

The Sports Medicine staff has grown at Shippensburg University since its beginning in 1975. Prior to 1975, the training staff consisted of two students trainers. Today the staff is led by director Steven J. Heckler, a full-time certified athletic trainer. His staff consists of one part-time assistant athletic trainer, three certified graduate assistant athletic trainers, and 14 student athletic trainers. Most of the student trainers and graduate assistants are former athletes because part of the job is knowing athletics.

> "The decision to work as an athletic trainer is one of the best decisions I made here at Ship."
> >>>John Steiner

The staff oversees the training needs of 18 men's and women's athletic teams, and attends practices, along with home and away games.

According to Heckler, there has been an increase in the knowledge of athletes and how they can be cared for: "I've seen an increased awareness develop on behalf of our student athletes to seek out the new techniques and care now available to them in the area of sports medicine." He has also commented that "Incoming freshmen classes continue to be surprisingly sophisticated in their knowledge of today's sports medicine methods. The coaches have been very supportive of our program. Since many sports don't enjoy the depth of talent found at other schools, strong and healthy athletes are at a premium."

According to Dr. Richards, the university has been extremely supportive of the sports medicine staff: "Appreciating the ever increasing importance of maintaining a close relationship between medicine and sports, the SU administration and athletic department have continued to expand the already superior Sports Medicine program and facilities under the supervision of Steven Heckler."

Heiges Field House accommodates four training rooms for the Sports Medicine staff. Three of the training rooms have state-of-the-art rehabilitation equipment, such as the Cybex II isokinetic dynamometer. The fourth room is the rehabilitation room, where the graduate students oversee athletes who have had surgery.

Football coach Rocky Rees feels that the Sports Medicine staff and equipment are superior to those of any other Division II school: "The staff and I are very impressed with Shippensburg's commitment to excellence. When we consider the facilities for our athletes, the Sports Medicine complex here rivals and exceeds many Division II schools. And it continues to be a leader among Division II schools."

The Sports Medicine Staff looks to the future in anticipation of adding an x-ray developer to Seth Grove Stadium to better serve the student athletes.

No-Hitting Adversity

With the success of last year's season still fresh in their minds, the Red Raiders baseball team knew they had a lot to live up to. "Going into the 2001 season, Coach Bruce Peddie said that he felt that the team would live up to and surpass everyone's expectations; and they did." The 2001 season was yet another outstanding season for the Raiders. Peddie said that he is most proud of the team's ability to "overcome adversity" and step up when something, such as injuries, occur.

> "The team being so close, on and off the field, keeps us together through thick and thin."
> >>>Mike Tandlmayer

The veteran players who really stepped up included two outfielders, Steve Berkey and Jeremy Bohonko. Peddie said, "[Berkey and Bohonko] were not only great leaders, but also did what they were fully capable of doing." Joe Kitt was another asset to the team and, according to Peddie, "is just as steady a player as you are going to find." Matt DeSanto is one of the best hitters in the league, while Paul Abraham has been one of the premiere pitchers in the league. Joe Grant has also stepped up and done a great job on the mound.

Peddie feels that the team's strongest point is that the players are fighters: "They are gritty, getting dirty, and they are not afraid to work. That's why I think they are in such a good position." He also added that younger players who have really been assets to the team included Ryan Lindstadt, Matt DeSanto, Todd Day, and Mike Haake.

As for next season, Peddie believes that the team needs to get four infielders to gain depth in that area. He also thinks they need at least two outfielders. As for pitching, Peddie feels that the team is pretty solid: "We've got a great sophomore pitching class, and we've got some good freshmen arms."

Pitching New Beginnings

"Swing, batter-batter-batter, s-w-i-n-g!" The softball team got off to a swinging start this year, despite the inexperience of the team, and as the season went on, the team grew into a competitor not to be taken lightly.

With the loss of a head coach and five starters to graduation, the softball team headed into the 2001 season young, but full of potential. Last year's assistant coach, Bob Brookens, stepped into the head coaching position in hopes of leading the team to a winning season. He credited the team's split decision with Kutztown early in the year with getting softball off to a good start.

> "As the season progressed, the team pulled together as a family leading us to enjoyment of the game and victory."
>
> >>>Sandy Smith

The team returned four starters from previous seasons. The two seniors on the team, Amy Baughman and Hollie Stover, led from the outfield. Captain Sandy Smith, catcher/infielder, worked to unify the team, while junior pitcher Lindsey Williams also provided a strong lead on the mound as one of Ship's best pitchers in recent years.

The nine freshmen who joined the team this year were integral in providing the ability to recover from the loss of the five seniors. Coach Brookens remarked, "Brenna Eck, catcher and 1st base, has played very well. Freshman pitchers Nicole Brunt and Dana Burgess have come along very well." He credited Brunt and Burgess as having put in the extra work to excel at pitching at a very competitive level. Arriving late on the team, Kelly Kase was also an asset to the team, providing foot speed, which was needed on the team.

Coach Brookens complimented the team on their hard-work ethic. The team conditioned with weights twice a week, and worked out in the pool and trained in the gym the rest of the week. They will work year round in hopes of having an even more successful season next year since they will only be losing two seniors to graduation.

Cradle to New Goals

Overall, the women's lacrosse team this year has been faced with the challenge of playing some of the top-competing teams in the League. The team had high expectations of doing well this season but it was tough going with so many young girls on the team. Of this year's team, head coach Bertie Landes said, "As a coach I look at how much they improved, and, yes, I think we have been successful. They have a passion for the sport." The team with the new freshmen is playing much better than it did last season.

Some of this year's twelve freshmen were extreme assets to the playing field: Page Heath had 27 goals and 3 assists, and Amy Cook scored 21 goals and 4 assists in her first season. Heath has been one freshman who has really helped the team. She "makes it look so easy," said head Coach Landes. Along with the other freshmen, Heath helped to raise the level of attack on the team. Kori McDaniel was also a key defensive player. These three teammates will definitely be huge assets to the team's offensive and defensive game in the upcoming seasons.

> "There was a lot of talent and personality within the team. We definitely had fun."
>
> >>>Kristin Berkenbaugh

Offensively, senior Keri Hopkins finished her college career with 26 goals and 19 assists this season. She was the returning top scorer for the Lady Raiders. Defensively, Kristin Berkenbaugh, one of the captains who tore her ACL in the beginning of last year, has been not only a good player, but an excellent role model for the team as well. She has helped lead by her example. In goal, Junior Jen Clemente "has really done a nice job" as well, said coach Landes.

Though having so many freshmen on the team made the 2001 season more difficult, next season the team will have many veterans. This could give lacrosse the edge they need to become one of the best teams in the league.

Touching Finish Line Glory

The Lady Raiders track team had a very good 2001 season. Coach Steve Spence said, "I'm very pleased with where the team is at." Spence has been a head coach at Shippensburg for three years. He is a former Shippensburg University All-American and U.S. Olympian. He expects the ladies' success to continue next year: "Our team is young, and they are working real hard. We'll have just about everybody back next year except our long-distance runners."

After a strong performance, the ladies placed fifth at the indoor conference championships.

The ladies who really stepped up this year were Renee Geist, Jess Hurley, Heather Reed, Kelly Noel, Susan Sperduto, Steph Hauze, Tara Witmer, LeAnn Weaver, Erin Krug, Lisa Ogryzek, and Ilana Tabak.

Geist carried the team on the long, triple, and high jumps. Hurley did very well in the long jump, and Reed was exceptional in the triple jump. Noel and Sperduto were the team's best throwers. They placed second and third in the shot put indoors and did very well outdoors in the shot and discus. Hauze was the strongest sprint runner, and Witmer did very well in hurdles. Ogryzek, Weaver, Krug, and Tabak were the team's strongest distance runners. Krug was a first-year runner and placed sixth in the indoor championships. Freshman Jessica Helbig was also a major asset to the team. She ran the 400, the 800, and was also a leg on the 4x4. Spence says, "We are pleased with her progress." Another freshman who really made her mark was Jess Rhinesmith, who ran the steeplechase for the first time and came very close to being a national qualifier.

> "Over the past three years, I've seen the team grow together and become a family."
> >>>Mary Rachel Pearce

According to Coach Spence, the Lady Raiders are a "well-balanced" team. He says, "We have strong people in every area." He also said that, "We have a pretty good dual meet team, but we don't have the superstars that are going to score the big points at the conference meet for us."

Next year, Coach Spence is looking for ladies to fill in the gaps, especially in distance: "I have a transfer and a couple of recruits that I think will step in and hopefully get the job done for us. We need some impact people that can come in and place in the top two or three in the conference."

One thing's for sure: the Lady Raiders are a strong team who are just going to keep improving because of their dedication and love for the sport.

Hurdling Through Challenges

The Red Raiders track team had a good season but feel as though they could've done better. Coach Steve Spence said, "I feel disappointed with our indoor performance at the conference championships. I felt like we should have done a lot better than we did." According to Spence, the team performed better outdoors.

The Red Raiders' goal was to be the third-place team, and although they came close to that, they feel as though they should have been there.

The team's stars included Mike Sage, Dave Brown, Corey Nolan, Greg Ryan, and J.W. Stehle. Sage is among the top athletes in the shot put, and Nolan was among the top hurdlers in the conference. Brown, who was the state conference champ as a freshman in the 100-meter, sat out the last two years. Ryan was one of the conference leaders in the javelin, and Stehle ranked high in the conference in the steeplechase.

Several young team members have really helped the team in throwing events. Dan Maha stepped up in the javelin, while Brian Haupt succeeded in the shot and discus, and Chris Leavenworth excelled in the shot and discus. All have a lot of potential and helped the team tremendously.

The Red Raiders' strongest areas, according to Coach Spence, include throws, sprints, and hurdles. Spence said that "The team is still pretty young in distance and jumps." During the 2001 season, the team suffered some injuries that set them back. For example, freshman Dave Magill, one of the best triple jumpers in the conference, was injured during the season.

> "We've got a great mix of young and upper class talent and hopefully we can bring it all together and win a team championship."
> >>>Corey Nolan

As for next year, almost all of the strongest team members are returning. Coach Spence said, "We just need to keep everyone improving." Spence is looking forward to another successful season and believes that they are going to be "pretty competitive for the championship next year."

Although the season wasn't as successful as the team and Coach Spence would have liked, the experience gained from this season and the returning talent should help make the team a major competitor during the 2002 season.

When the Wolf's Bus rolled out of the Heiges parking lot on the morning of March 19, 2001, carrying with it the Shippensburg Lady Raiders en route to Harrisburg International Airport, the team began the last leg of its season-long journey to the National Championships in Rochester, Minnesota.

The Lady Raiders showed they deserved to be one of eight teams remaining when they defeated fourth-ranked Delta State and legendary coach Lloyd Clark, 70-65 in the quarterfinals. The Lady Raiders were led by the 16-point efforts of Vickie Mikesic and Christa Cline. But it was in the national semifinals the next day when Shippensburg left its greatest impact on all involved with the Elite Eight Tournament. Facing a three-time National Championship team in North Dakota, the Lady Raiders did not stand a chance, according to those not familiar with the team. When Shippensburg found themselves down 50-24 with 20 seconds remaining in the first half, it looked liked those people were right. But Shippensburg utilized a 19-2 run over the first 8:27 of the second half to close the gap to within 7. The Lady Raiders would get to within 6 points with 7:00 left in the second half, but ended up on the short side of a 76-67 decision. Jess Gordon led the way for the Lady Raiders with 24 points and 9 rebounds. She was named to the Elite Eight All-Tournament Team. Mikesic also became the all-time assist leader in Shippensburg history during the game. Despite the loss, the Lady Raider team epitomized what had gotten them to within one win of the National Championship game; heart, determination, and a desire to leave it all out on the court. Shippensburg's post-game comments reflected that same character.

"This team really helps each other and supports each other. I am very proud of them. I thought we did a good job representing our school, our conference, and the region," said Head Coach Kristy Trn after the loss. Junior Jess Gordon added, "We played our hearts out, and that's what I love about this team, we never give up." Senior Christa Cline commented, "I am extremely proud to have been a part of the team for four years. We played hard and didn't give up. No one can be upset about it, people dream about the Final Four and our dreams came true."

Greek life is an important part of Shippensburg University. Every year students are eager to join a fraterinty or sorority. Many people think that greek life just involves being with your friends and having a good time, however, it is much more than that. All of the greeks on campus participate in community service projects and other activities. Greek life also allows students to experience academic and personal growth. This section features greek sororities and fraternities on the Shippensburg campus.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

With 47 members, Alpha Omicron Pi has become a well-known and respected sorority here at Shippensburg. AOΠ is an international sorority founded in 1897 at Bernard College in New York. Tau Lambda, Ship's chapter, was founded in 1984 with goals of sisterhood and leadership for the campus and the community.

The sisters of AOΠ participate in both social events and service projects. Their main philanthropy project, Arthritis Research, receives donations from their chapter. All AOΠ chapters participate in raising funds for Arthritis Research. The donations are raised through events such as the Mr. S.U. Pageant and the "Mile of Quarters."

The Mr. S.U. Pageant is held every April and consists of ten male contestants who participate in four categories: formal wear, casual wear, talent, and question and answer. Spectators must pay to watch the pageant and the money raised is given to Arthritis Research.

The "Mile of Quarters" was held in the Chambersburg Mall and raised $700 for the Arthritis Research. AOΠ also does Highway Clean-Up, Greek Week Clean-Up, and various other community services. One such service is the Children's Fair held in Heiges Field House. The fair consists of a variety of fun activities and children's games. Each participating organization sponsors a booth at the fair and all proceeds go to their philanthropy.

As for social events, the sisters enjoy semi-formals and formals held each fall and spring. They also participate in weekly social functions and sisterhoods. AOΠ has been given the 5-Star Award and has been past winners of Greek Week and Homecoming.

Many of AOΠ's sisters are involved in extracurricular activities, including holding offices on the Women's Panhellenic Council and sports. AOΠ stresses a well-rounded college career with exta-curricular involvement. Their mascot is a panda, their color is cardinal, and their flower is the Jacquemenot Rose. AOΠ's motto is, "One motto, one badge, one bond, and singleness of heart."

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Dedication to Excellence: that is the motto the brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha live by. Lambda Chi Alpha has been a part of Shippensburg University since 1981. They are the Phi Tau Zeta chapter. Their dedication to excellence includes community service and academics.

The brothers believe they have lived up to their standards and in some cases exceeded them. The community service that the brothers participate in has a positive effect on the community. One of their most successful events this year was the Haunted House. Children from the Shippensburg Area were admitted for free and they raised 270 pounds of food for the needy.

The brothers also participate in Adopt-A-Highway, in which they clean a two-mile stretch of Interstate 81. In addition, they participated in the North American Food Drive. The drive was one of their greatest achievements because the fraternity contributed over 3,100 pounds of food to the cause.

Because of their dedication to community service projects, Lambda Chi Alpha is the top fraternity in service hours. Their dedication to excellence gives them a strong brotherhood of which they are very proud.

Lambda Chi Alpha is continually growing as more and more students become brothers. Rush-chair Derrick Smith said, "The Spring 2001 pledge class was the largest the fraternity has had in a long time, bringing in 12 new brothers."

The brothers participate in many social activities, including parties for Greeks and non-Greeks and mixers with sports teams and sororities. They also hold date parties and an annual formal, which was held in Philadelphia in 2000. Thanks to the fraternity's strong alumni backing, they were able to move onto Greek Row in 1999. This gives the brothers a place to live together off-campus. The alumni also sponsor the annual Golf-Outing at Cumberland Golf Course. They also make the publications of the chapter's newsletter possible, as well as the maintenance of their web page.

PHI SIGMA PI

Scholarship. Leadership. Fellowship. The words resound like trumpets announcing the goals students set for themselves. These three qualities rely upon each other to achieve success. Without the support of each, the goal cannot be reached. Thus, these three words became the core principles for the members of Phi Sigma Pi.

Phi Sigma Pi is a coeducational honor fraternity founded in 1871. As members, students are required to maintain their commitment to education with 12-95 semester hours and maintain a 3.0 or better grade point average. Their active participation in community service projects encourages the development of cooperation and communication with others.

The fraternity embraces three main ideals that serve as the core objectives for their brotherhood. First, it encourages the acquisition and dissemination of information and knowledge through scholarship. Second, members strive to improve the welfare of humanity using the professional skills and leadership qualities that they have attained through their participation in the fraternity. Last, the organization fosters non-discriminatory, fraternal fellowship amongst its own members to achieve stability and friendship.

These ideals have established Phi Sigma Pi as a sociable and admirable fraternity. Through their dedication to scholarship and their devotion to helping others, Phi Sigma Pi has established its presence in the Shippensburg community as one of dignity and honor. They continue to seek the positive goals they set for one another and themselves while making friendships that will last forever.

At some point in your time at SU, you will be involved in some kind of organization. There is a wide variety of organizations on campus ranging from those related to a major to others that are purely for pleasure. Organizations offer students the chance to become involved with something they enjoy as well as the chance to meet people who may become life-long friends. This section covers different organizations offered on SU's campus.

Student Senate

Someone once said, "Excellence begins with involvement." This statement holds true for many of the students that have taken an active role with the Shippensburg University Student Senate. Every undergraduate student is a member of the Shippensburg University Student Association, of which the Student Senate is the governing body.

The Senate is comprised of four executive members and four elected officials from each respective class. The Student Senate has been very active on campus and would like to recognize the many students who utilized their student government to help implement changes on campus throughout the year. This year, the Senate managed a $1.8 million dollar budget. This money was allocated to many of the clubs and organizations on campus to help fund the different events that took place on campus.

One of the Senate's major functions was to make certain that students' issues and concerns were addressed. The Senate started off the year with its annual retreat, which was held at Camp Joyel. At this retreat, goals and expectations were established for the academic year.

The Senate also thought it was vital to collect student concerns. To do so, universal office hours were implemented for Senate members to go and gather issues/concerns from their colleagues. The feedback gathered through these one-on-one meetings have enabled the Senate to address some of the concerns that seemed to be common around campus.

Another issue this year was the fact that the Senate looked into having elections conducted on-line via Shippensburg University's Intranet. This is a goal that the Senate has worked to obtain for many years. The Senate will continue to work to implement this change for next year. The Senate also concentrated on the proposal for a new service contract during the year. Student members played a critical role on the service committee and had considerable say as to what company would maintain the university's food contract over the next five years. The Senate had many committees that students could join, including the Recreation Committee, Food Service Committee, and Campus Safety.

A transition took place on April 5, 2001. Outgoing President Damien Golden swore in Kara Wealand, the incoming president for the 2001-2002 academic year. This prominent event marked the passing of power and a new chapter for the Shippensburg University Student Senate.

Madrigals

In order to participate as a Madrigal Singer, vocalists must first try out for Shippensburg University's Concert Choir. Once accepted to this group, they have the option of trying out for the Madrigals.

This elite ensemble consists of about twenty to twenty-four singers. The collection of music that they sing includes a wide range of styles. Some examples of their work are motets and madrigals from the Renaissance period, Classical pieces that were written for chamber choirs, and even some Broadway show tunes.

The Madrigal Singers appear both with the Concert Choir during their local performances and also as an independent group. One of their biggest events is the Christmas Dinner Concert, which has become a tradition at Shippensburg University.

However, the ensemble does not only perform locally. They have traveled to such countries as Austria, England, France, Germany, and Wales. Currently, they are planning a trip for March of 2002, which will include stops at Florence, Venice and Rome, Italy.

In the past, the Madrigals have sung under the direction of composers such as Aaron Copland, Vincent Persichetti, Allan Hovhaness, and Daniel Pinkham. They did so during a week-long festival they participated in.

Former Madrigal Singers have continued their singing careers through various community, semi-professional and professional performances. In the film version of Madam Butterfly, Richard Troxell sang the leading role of Pinkerton. Also, Steve Cramer is currently a part of the Broadway production of Les Miserables in the leading role of Jean Valjean.

The Slate

The Slate has undergone major changes since its first edition on March 21, 1957. At that time, the newspaper was a two-page 11x17 sheet of paper distributed free across campus. Since then, the campus newspaper has seen tremendous growth and improvement.

The Slate has become a weekly 28-page tabloid production, featuring news, focus, opinion, events, sports, and entertainment sections. The staff also includes a photography, business, and ad sales department.

The Fall semester editorial staff included News Editors Matt Furman and Justin Jordan; Focus Editors Hannah Leff and Carolyn Comly; Sports Editors Matt Moyer and Jason Ritter; Opinion Editor Ryan Phillips; Entertainment Editor Jason Lukach; and Photography Editors Terry Baker and Mark Wojciechowski.

The Spring semester editorial staff included News Editors Kelly Arnold and Leah Farr; Focus Editors Hannah Leff and Michael McHale; Sports Editors Matt Moyer, Jason Ritter, and Dennis Mullarke; Opinion Editors Ryan Phillips and Christopher Staskiel-Kirkhoff; Entertainment Editors Jason Lukach and Kait McLaughlin; Events Editor Katie Shahan; and Photography Editors Tiffany Harwick and Brad Walmer.

The Slate holds elections every spring for the Fall semester and every winter for the Spring semester. The staff includes between five and ten copy editors, two ad designers, and approximately 25-30 full- and part-time staff writers and photographers.

The Slate's production takes place every Sunday night and all day Monday in order to be ready for distribution at 11 a.m. on Tuesday. The Slate has ten issues a semester and prints 4,000 copies weekly. It is distributed across campus by Greek organizations and various club organizations as a service for their community.

The newspaper is under the advisement of Dr. Jeffrey Bitzer, a communications professor and lawyer, and Kami Masemer. Masemer has been a member of the staff since her freshman year. Since then, she has progressed rapidly through the ranks. She has served as a sports writer, a sports editor, a managing editor, editor-in-chief, and now as an executive editor. She is responsible for editing pages, holding office hours, dealing with conflict resolution, attending meetings, conferences, and workshops, and overseeing the overall newspaper production.

The Slate continues to grow and improve every year. They are always looking for students who are interested in becoming part of the staff. Not only does The Slate offer students a good chance to meet a lot of new people, but it also offers valuable experiences that will benefit them later in life.

Psychology Club

The Shippensburg University Psychology Club has had a very productive year. With a total of thirty-five undergraduate students, they were able to plan and accomplish many tasks. Membership in the club was open to any student that had an interest in psychology. Dr. Suzanne Morin and Dr. Scott F. Madey advised the club during the year. Their job was to inform club members on any new topics that have entered into the field.

The club was lead by President Miles Lyons who worked with the other members to plan and schedule different events. The club's secretary and treasurer, Katie Hockersmith and Anja Thiele, assisted Lyons with many tasks. The psychology club held bi-weekly meetings in Gilbert Hall where various hot topics in the field of psychology were addressed. Some of the topics that were discussed were possible internship opportunities, the importance of attending graduate school, and many other important concerns in the field of psychology.

They also participated in movie night with Dr. Sato where they discussed psychological issues that appeared in the films such as American Beauty. Members also volunteered their time at "New Visions" in Shippensburg and Chambersburg. Many of the members volunteered their time and participated in the annual Shippensburg University Children's Fair held in March. The club conducted trips to prisons and other facilities that in some way relate to the field of psychology. The club also went on a trip to the annual Eastern Psychological Association Conference which was held in Washington, D.C. Students were responsible for completing a research project and presenting their findings during the duration of the conference. A few famous psychologists were present to answer any questions that the students had.

In addition, the psychology club has collaborated many of their activities with Psi Chi, the National Honor Society for Psychology. The events that were sponsored by both organizations were Habitat for Humanity, the Phone-a-thon, the EPA conference, and many speakers.

Asian American Organizations

The Asian-American Organization was founded in April 1995. Currently, and in the past, this organization has represented such countries as Vietnam, Japan, Korea, Taiwan, India, Pakistan, Hong Kong, and Cambodia.

Their mission statement is: Our purpose shall be to serve as a support system, as well as provide programs for Asian-American students, to provide opportunities in which all students will gain a better understanding of the diversity within the Asian student population, and to promote unity among students of color.

The current officers include President Amy Tran, Vice President Sean Albert, Secretary Jennifer Hunt, Treasurer Masako Nakanishi, and Historian Jackie Garrison.

The organization performs a variety of community services. In 1997, they donated money to help those in the Taiwan earthquake, and in 2000, they held a clothing drive for Kosovo citizens. Most recently, in 2001, they volunteered at the Children's Fair.

Their annual projects and activities include the Asian Extravaganza, the Egg Role Sale, the Fall Picnic, and the Holiday Craft Sale. In the Asian Extravaganza members perform in areas such as martial arts and Chinese ballet. A fashion show is held and Asian food is served. Games, prizes, and origami are also a part of the Extravaganza.

Last spring a conference titled "Breaking Down Barriers" in the New Millennium was held in conjunction with the Asian Extravaganza. The keynote speaker was Louisiana University professor Luoluo Hong.

The organization helped sponsor a Buddhist speaker with the Honors Program at Shippensburg. They also participated in the Art of Being Asian program with ResLife.

FCA

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes, otherwise known as the FCA, is an organization whose goal is to present athletes and coaches with the challenge and adventure of receiving Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord, and growing in a personal relationship with Him in the fellowship of other believers.

The FCA was formed when a couple of student athletes and coaches at Ship expressed the need and desire for an organization in which they could come together and deal with some of the everyday stresses with which Christian athletes are faced. However, they realized that all students face these stresses so they made the FCA open to all those interested. Although not all of the members of the FCA are athletes, all do have some sort of athletic interest.

FCA is an influencing ministry, using athletics as its platform and athletes and coaches as its role models and spokespersons. Its members strive to present the complete Gospel, and athletes and coaches are encouraged to make thoughtful decisions for Christ.

The FCA focuses on fellowship and Bible studies. They meet Monday nights in a Henderson classroom. One meeting a month is a time for fellowship and games, such as soccer and volleyball. The other nights focus on a closer look at the word of God. Some nights a guest speaker, such as a pastor, will attend the meeting and speak to the FCA. Some topics that have been discussed include "Getting Along" and "How to Study the Bible."

The FCA's advisors include Gail Schuyler, SU's assistant Field Hockey and Lacrosse Coach; Bertie Landes; and Jeff Nixon, SU's Assistant Football Coach.

The FCA also participates in volunteer activities. Recently, they made Thanksgiving dinner for a needy family. The dinner included turkey, stuffing, gravy, corn soufflé, sweet potato pie, and apple pie. They have also made similar dinners for needy families at Christmas time.

Also, they participate in an event called "Angel Tree" for "Head Start," located in Carlisle. In this program, the FCA members bought gifts for children of incarcerated parents. The gifts came directly off the children's wish lists. To make the gifts even more special, they were made to look as if they children's parents purchased them.

Throughout each semester, the FCA holds tournaments, such as the "Marshmallow Tournament," and parties, like the annual Halloween party. Such gatherings offer a chance for the students to come together and have a good time without the pressures of alcohol and other substances. The FCA offers a good chance for students to meet other students and build lasting friendships through their faith.

The FCA's future goal is to be a part of every school campus in America. Currently, there are over 7,400 huddles with an estimated 500,000 students involved. Therefore, the FCA is present at about 24 percent of the schools in America and continues to grow every year.

SUTV News director, Kim Hammell, prepares for her show in the Grove Hall studio.

Most people forget that when you come to college, a large part of what makes up college life is learning. This does not mean only learning in the classroom, but also includes learning in every regard possible. The academic perspective of college is often forgotten. However, it is an intrigal part of what students take from their college experience. This section takes a look at the academic aspects of Shippensburg University and the ideas that can be learned.

AN ELECTION TO REMEMBER

November 7, 2000 is the Election Day that will live in infamy, forever frozen in people's memories as a national political Doomsday. Democratic Vice President Al Gore, with running mate Senator Joseph Lieberman, strove to win the presidency over Republican Texas Governor George W. Bush and his chosen running mate, former Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

American citizens clung anxiously to their television sets as they watched the race unfold. The totals jumped back and forth, the lead swaying to one party and then the other in the closest presidential race in history. The proximity of the numbers was staggering.

Viewers watched as the states were slowly gobbled up by one candidate or the other, until eventually all eyes fell on Florida, the last and deciding state. The race continued well into the next morning. But it did not end there. A situation aroused suspicion from the Voter News Service, and it soon became clear that there was a problem with the voting systems in certain Florida counties. America still had not elected a new president, and citizens were left questioning what had gone wrong.

The discrepancy in Florida stemmed from the large mass of absentee ballots in the state and confusion with certain voting booths. Because of the closeness of the race and confusion with the voting system, an automatic recount of ballots, as well as hand recounts, went into effect in certain counties. In a trying legal ordeal, the election process continued for 35 more days following Election Day.

Inspection into the voting process consumed the daily news. Soon the phrases"hanging chad," "dimpled chad," and "pregnant chad" became clichés heard in casual conversations. Students perused newspapers, magazines, and Internet searching for up-to-date information. In doing so, they learned just how important each person's vote is in an election.

Our campus was buzzing with rumors of the election. Opinions were tossed about the lunch tables as people updated each other on the latest outbreak of events, which were quickly erupting into a full-scale legal battle. Both students and faculty were waiting, often impatiently, for America to announce its next president. The court battled over recounts of Florida's 25 electoral votes drew world-wide attention.

At last, an answer was given: George W. Bush was to be the next President of the United States.

To win the presidency, a candidate must hold at least 270 votes in the Electoral College. The Electoral College members vote on behalf of their supportive citizen voters to accumulate these numbers. Bush, with 271, had just enough to claim victory over Gore who, with 267, lost by a mere 4 electoral votes. It was just enough of a gain, however, for Bush to shoulder ahead. This was not the end, however.

When looking at the totals from the popular vote, it was Gore in the lead with 50,158,094 votes, with Bush trailing with 49,820,578 votes. This uneven balance of votes sparked a controversy over how much weight should be given to the Electoral College and whether the popular vote should have more importance. George W. Bush, however, remained our president-elect, and the election took its place among memorable historic events as the first election to occur in the new millennium. -Erin Kennedy

AN AUSSIE EDUCATION

For most people, traveling to "The Land Down Under" is no more than a far-off dream. But last summer, a group of Shippensburg University students jumped at the chance to spend five weeks studying and traveling in Queensland, Australia.

They were the participants in the study abroad trip called "Environmental Science in Australia." From June 26 through July 31, 2000, twelve students traveled to various locations, absorbing the surrounding culture and natural beauty of the country. Led by Geography and Earth Science professor Dr. Diane Stanitski-Martin, the students participated in a series of lectures, field assignments, classroom presentations, and field trips that focused on the distinct characteristics of Australia.

The program aimed to promote an understanding of environmental problems and their relationship to human interaction. At the same time, the course gave students the opportunity to experience and study a diverse environment.

For part of the program, students snorkeled among the beautiful fish and coral of the Great Barrier Reef. They visited the Tjapukai Aboriginal Cultural Park, where they were exposed to traditional habits and practices, such as medicines and music, of the aborigines. Students also spent time with the Warlpiri people in the Central Australian Desert, explored a portion of the Outback, and inspected tropical rainforests.

When their stay drew to a close, the students returned home to the States with a wealth of education and memories. In coordination with the summer's excursion, the academic trip sparked the beginning of the "Year of Australia" on campus. This program launched several events at Shippensburg University related to Australia.

The journey abroad was followed by the "Art of Being Australian" on September 27. Dr. Stanitski-Martin and some of the students recounted their lasting experiences from the trip. As part of the evening's festivities, the audience of students and faculty enjoyed some traditional Australian food. A slideshow at the end of the program documented the incredible 5-week journey, leaving onlookers with peaked curiosities about the country.

Dr. Stanitski-Martin and four students, Peter Price, Brandy Thoman, Karen Alloway, and Melissa Iacono, conducted a presentation on Australian culture and geography to the 1st through 5th grade students at Rowland School on December 8. Led by Dr. Martin, the students teamed their efforts to introduce the children to a portion of the education they gained in their experience. The children's faces lighted up with interest as the students recounted their observances in the far-away country. In a few years time, the impressions the Shippensburg students left on these children may one day lead them to visit the land down under.

VIRTUAL MOVE

Have you been channel surfing lately and seen someone on TV that you have class with? You will now that Comcast Cable has joined with SUTV to broadcast news and sport shows. The alliance was made possible by a special fiber-optic line connecting the two sites. SUTV hopes to get more of their shows broadcast, including basketball, baseball and softball games.

This new agreement brings the shows to households in the Franklin, Fulton, and Cumberland counties. You no longer have to be on campus to watch the broadcasts of the football games. The shows will still be broadcasted on the campus cable station 75, but having some of SUTV's shows previewed on public cable gives the students a better chance for exposure for future jobs.

SUTV gives students a chance to have hands-on experiences with television production. Some students join to gain experience in their major while others join just to have fun.

Programming occurs on Thursdays, Fridays, Sundays, Mondays, and Tuesdays and taping occurs on Thursdays.

SUTV is made up of a several different departments. They give students news not only from campus but from the local area as well. In this department, students learn how to use the camera and perfect their editing and interviewing skills.

The entertainment department broadcasts four programs: "Insert Title Here", a sketch/comedy show; "Pass or Fail", similar to Jeopardy; "Movie Review", a movie review show; and "Boy Meets Girl", a dating show where couples get paired up.

The third department is sports. All home football games and two away games are taped. Basketball and softball games are also taped. The "Sportsforum" covers all of the Raider sporting events and reports game highlights. SUTV has started doing game highlights from Shippensburg High School as well.

The SUTV/Comcast Cable alliance is a step in the right direction as far as SUTV's exposure goes. Now more people than ever will get to experience SUTV, and the students working for SUTV will gain more recognition, which could help them out later in life.

WELCOME TO THE REAL WORLD

The journey was ending for many students on December 16, 2000. Excitement and happiness filled the air when the last of the class of 2000 at Shippensburg graduated.

Undergraduate degrees consisted of 222 Bachelors of Arts and Sciences, 101 Bachelors of Science in Business Administration, and 140 Bachelors of Science in Education. Graduate degrees were also given: 5 Masters of Arts, 88 Masters of Education, 24 Masters of Public Administration and 106 Masters of Science. A total of 686 students had the honor of graduating.

The procession was led by the General Alumni Association Executive Board members: Robert LeGrand '76 immediate past president; Robert Nelson '74 president; and Joan Crouse '74-'76M president-elect. After the graduates were at their seats, Eva Lynn led the National Anthem, which was followed the invocation by Rev. Jan Bye, the United Campus Minister.

The guest for the event was Rachelle Hood-Phillips. She is the Chief Diversity Officer at Advantica Restaurant Group, Inc., the parent company of Denny's. Her goals and objectives have made a mark in the business world. She helped "prepare and equip the workforce to value and manage cultural diversity and help Advantica and its brands leverage the diversity that surrounds the food industry into a business advantage."

Following Hood-Phillips' words, Dr. James L. Sieber presented the Honorary Doctoral Degree candidate, Mr. H. Ric Luhrs of the Beistle Company, Shippensburg. The next award given was the Outstanding Young Alumnus Award. The recipients were David Calvario '82 B.S.-'86M Ph.D; Paula Johnson '83 B.A, and Steven H. Runkle '87 B.S.B.A. This led to the presentation of the Master's degree candidates by James G. Coolson, Ph.D, Interim Associate Provost and Dean of Graduate Studies. The hooding of the graduates and awarding of the degrees followed.

Provost Ruth gave the long awaited presentation of the Bachelor's Degrees. Then, President Ceddia ended the ceremony with his closing remarks.

The end of the last class of the year 2000 has passed through the doors of Heiges Field House and out into the real world. The graduates will now have to choose either to further their education or begin working in their field of expertise. Good luck to them all!

Teaching S.U. students about the aging process and living with the elderly is satisfying for Professor Wiscott.

A WISE MAN ONCE SAID...

You aren't getting any younger. Does that phrase sound familiar? Well, it's the truth, and now here at Ship a new department focuses completely on the aging process: Gerontology. The program's mission is to enhance the quality of life of older citizens through interdisciplinary education, research, and service.

The Gerontology Program consists of three components: the Undergraduate Minor, the Research Institute on Aging, and the Service Center for Aging. The minor is an interdisciplinary undergraduate minor designed to provide students with a broad view of the aging process. How will it help the students in their future careers? Because the older population is growing tremendously and, obviously, every student will encounter older people, whether or not the student wants to. Having a gerontology credential can show employers that you have what it takes to serve the older population.

The goal of SU's Research Institute on Aging is to design and conduct scientifically rigorous research that will help to improve the students' understanding of important aging issues. Currently, there are a number of on-going research projects in the works, as well as ongoing assessments of the gerontology-related needs of students, faculty, and the community. The Service Center for Aging has the primary goal of identifying and meeting the needs of local area older adults and of their caregivers.

The director of the program is Dr. Richard Wiscott, a trained Gerontologist who has extensive teaching, research, and service experience. Faculty with aging expertise from over a dozen departments teach courses and volunteer their time in an effort to continually improve the program.

Wiscott earned a BA in Psychology and Sociology from Youngtown University in Ohio. Later he received his MA and Ph.D. in Applied Cognitive Aging, with a concentration in Neuropsychology, and a certificate in Gerontology. He researches alcohol and other substance abuse among the elderly.

He wants Ship students to realize that although the Gerontology Program is new, it is quickly becoming established both on and off campus. Wiscott also points out, "Within the next 20 years, 20 percent of the U.S. population will be over 65 years of age." He says that "it is a myth that gerontology is just about sick old people and nursing homes. It's actually more about positive growth and development."

Some of the Gerontology Department's future plans include offering graduate coursework to meet the continuing-education needs of those who currently work with older adults and those interested in later-life issues. The program will offer internship and volunteer opportunities for interested students and have expert speakers to share the latest in aging research and other important related issues.

CREATING A WORK OF ART

Have you ever wondered what Huber Art Center is? Well, here is your chance to find out. HAC is the building where all the art majors get their bachelors of art degree in art. Art students can concentrate in ceramics, painting, sculpture, crafts or computer design. Not only do art students just concentrate on art courses, they also concentrate on academic courses in English, Math and the Sciences. The art center believes in educating art students into becoming very career oriented. Art majors are encouraged to take what are called foundation courses. These courses include Art Appreciation, Basic Drawing, Color & 2-D Design, and 3-D Design. Also students are expected to have stability in two classes of Art History. All of these courses are to give experience in different aspects to have a more rounded knowledge about art. All classes taken by art students enable them to have a life long learning degree. Students will have better skills in communications, writing, and reading.

In addition to the art class requirement, all incoming art majors are expected to produce a Freshman Portfolio. In it, students must include two pieces of their strongest work from either in or after high school and generate two pieces of art with instructions from the Art Department, which allows the faculty to see their personal creativity, and show their art skills and knowledge that they currently obtain. One theme should be used for both projects and should be on social, political, environmental, personal issues, or another focused idea. These projects are not graded or compared to other students; they are for faculty to see where the students' art experience and personal interest is in their art.

Apart from class courses the Art Department requires, they also have monthly exhibitions held at the Kauffman Gallery. Every year at Shippensburg University we will have known artists come to exhibit their work. Artists also dedicate time to workshops and discussions held with students. To get students involved with art outside of class, many trips take place to surrounding metropolitan areas such as Washington, D.C., Baltimore, and New York City.

Upon graduation, art students are responsible to take Senior Exhibition and Seminar. Here students get a real life experience in putting their own exhibition together. This major exit course is writing intensive and prepares students career portfolios. The portfolios contain such things as computer design work completed by the student and paintings, which are put onto slides. Portfolios help students when searching for jobs or if they plan on furthering their education.

After graduation the marketable aspect of the art degree is in computer design. The majority of art students work in computer design fields, such as advertising, newspapers, and graphic design. However, some students decide to further their education and get their Masters of Fine Arts, or MFA degree.

AMONG THE PRESENCE OF A LEGEND

Many important people have spoken at Shippensburg University. Just a few who have visited recently include Julius "Dr. J" Erving, Morris Dees, and Dr. Robert Ballard.

Erving, a living legend, came to Ship on February 15, 2001 in celebration of Martin Luther King, Jr. Day. Erving spent 16 years of his life playing basketball for the Virginia Squires and the New York Nets, and 11 seasons as the captain of the Philadelphia 76ers. While with the 76ers, Erving earned All-Star MVP honors twice and was an All-Star in each of his 11 NBA seasons. Erving retired from professional basketball in 1987 and has since divided his time between entrepreneurial projects and community service efforts.

Erving spoke of destiny, his role models, and the importance of leadership. He told the audience that if they took anything away from his speech, it should be a "can-do spirit." Erving's positive thinking and inspirational messages made for an exciting night and a wonderful learning experience.

Morris Dees, one of the country's leading civil rights activists, spoke at Ship on September 26, 2000 as part of the "Day of Human Understanding." Dees is an attorney who uses his status and his wealth to fight for the civil rights of minorities and the oppressed.

Dees's speech, "Responding to Hate: Voices of Hope and Tolerance," centered around the question: "Whose America is this?" He spoke of tolerance and civil rights. He said that America cannot not work unless it includes diversity.

Internationally-known oceanographer and finder of both the luxury liner Titanic and the battleship Bismarck, Dr. Robert Ballard, spoke at Ship on March 15, 2001, as part of this year's cultural theme of exploration and play.

Ballard is an explorer, educator, and has been involved in the production of many television productions in connection with his oceanographic work. Ballard has led or participated in more than 100 deep sea expeditions. He is also a best-selling author with books detailing his discoveries. Ballard has appeared many times on television, including a spot hosting the weekly National Geographic Explorer on TBS.

Each speaker had a lot to offer with his stories of amazing accomplishments. Students who were able to attend the speeches given by Erving, Dees, and Ballard learned valuable lessons that cannot be taught inside a classroom.

A STEP TO A SUCCESSFUL FUTURE

Job Fairs! Rows of employers, resumes, and individuals professionally dressed. They might have seemed overwhelming, but they were a terrific way to network. Job fairs provide students the opportunity to observe what types of career opportunities are available on the market. These fairs took place all over the region during the year to assist students in their career search.

Job fairs are an excellent way for students and recruiters to interact with one another. The fairs that were held this year were the Cumberland Valley Consortium (CVC), the Education Job Fair, and the Central Pennsylvania Employment Consortium (CPEC). The Career Development Center encouraged all students to participate. All of the fairs were well attended and allowed many students to make contacts with possible future employers.

The CVC Job Fair was held on February 15, 2001 at the Holiday Inn Conference Center in Frederick, Maryland. This event provided professional development for many students and offered many career services to students. The CPEC Job Fair took place on February 21, 2001 at the Lebanon Valley Career Expo in Lebanon, Pennsylvania. The mission of this fair was to provide quality career services to students through a pooling of resources and the expertise of the members involved.

The students that attended these events are generally juniors or seniors that are looking to land a position before they graduate. However, any student was welcome to participate in the fairs. Many students usually wait to attend until they have built up their resume or established their portfolio. Many students looked to these job fairs as a way to help prepare for their future. The fairs enabled students to sell themselves to companies and gave them the opportunity to determine their career path.

A DAY FOR EXPLORING YOUR MAJOR

Although many students consider it time off, University Day is actually a day full of events that call for student involvement. University Day took place on April 10, 2001. The theme was internationalism/ globalism.

Some of the events that took place included "BaFa BaFa," "Sailing the Ship as an International Student," the Criminal Justice Career Fair, the Alpha Kappa Psi-sponsored fashion show, "The Taste and Feel of Thailand," a college mathematic contest, "Careers in Chemistry," "Timothy House Where There's Always Room to Grow," and an international food extravaganza.

"BaFa BaFa," held in Dauphin Humanities Center, was a cross-cultural game that allowed participants to travel into imaginary cultures. "Sailing the Ship as an International Student," held in the Cumberland Union Building, was a panel discussion consisting of several faculty members and graduate students. Most of the panel members were raised in a country other than the USA. The Criminal Justice Career Fair included representatives from a wide range of local, state, and federal law enforcement, correction, and youth service agencies. The Fair took place in Heiges Field House.

The Alpha Kappa Psi fashion show was titled "Creating a Professional Appearance" and gift certificates were given as prizes. The show was held in the Cumberland Union Building's Multipurpose Room. "The Taste and Feel of Thailand" was held in the Conestoga Room and featured authentic Thai cooking, as well as a view of genuine artifacts and a video portrayal of life in Thailand. A Thai chef prepared the meal.

The "Careers in Chemistry" was a panel discussion held in the Franklin Science Center. Three graduates of Ship's chemistry program who are currently employed in industry, government, and education discussed careers in chemistry.

"Timothy House Where There's Always Room to Grow" consisted of a presentation given by a Special Education teacher, Classroom Aid, and the "Life Skills Gang" from Shippensburg Area High School. The international food extravaganza was a lunch for students, faculty, and staff.

University Day 2001 had a lot to offer Ship students. The wide variety of exciting events educated, informed, and entertained participating students.

A BRIGHT FUTURE AHEAD

It was a slightly overcast day May 5th, 2001, as the graduates slowly processed into Seth Grove Stadium for the commencement ceremonies. The stadium was packed as family and friends waited anxiously for the festivities to start.

The 2001 May graduating class consisted of 828 undergraduates and 135 graduate students. Of the undergraduate students, there were 230 graduates from the John L. Grove College of Business, 407 from the College of Arts and Sciences, and 191 from the College of Education and Human Services.

Representatives of the class of 1951 led in the candidates for graduation. The National Anthem followed the procession and was led by Erich John Cawalla. The Rev. Robert Yohe, Catholic Campus Minister, gave the invocation.

The special speaker of the day was Shippensburg University alum Todd R. Platts, J.D. Mr. Platts is an U.S. representative for the 19th Congressional District of Pennsylvania. He was elected in 2000 and serves on three standing committees and one special committee.

He also serves on the Statewide Children's Health Insurance Advisory Committee. During his speech, he reflected on what he had learned at Shippensburg. He also encouraged the class of 2001 to become involved in their community in any way they could.

After the address was concluded, Senior Class President Lisa Puchyr presented the 2001 Senior Class gift. This year the graduating class decided to do something a little bit different. The money they raised will go towards a scholarship for students attending Ship.

The ceremony came to an end with the awarding of degrees. President Ceddia ended the commencement with some final remarks and was followed by the alma mater. The ceremony was officially over when the screams of joy from the graduating class when pierced the sky.

When one looks back on his or her college experience, professors are often the forgotten ones. However, what many of us do not realize is that without these people, college would not be the same. Students may become very fond of some professors and others not so fond. However, no matter what kind of professor you had, they made an impact in your college life. This section highlights some of those professors who have helped us to grow.

Year in Review
Closing

Destiny's Child performs during the Billboard Music Awards. They received 4 awards including the coveted Artist of the Year.

This past year has proved to be one of many different events. Whether these events contained sorrow or joy, comedy or tragedy, they have had an effect on our lives. Some events were world-wide and others were here in the US. Hopefully this section will be a reminder to us all of what took place this past year.

The final section of "Connect to . . ." is the closing. There were many people involved in the creation of this book and they all put a lot of time and effort in to make it what it is. We all hope that you, as students, will be able to look at this book in the years to come and connect to the friendships that you made, the ideas that you learned, the activites that you participated in, the events of the world at that time, and the people that you have become.

cumberland's thank you

Marilyn Maitland & Herff Jones Staff:
Marilyn, it's always a pleasure to work with you and the Herff Jones staff. The help and support that you continue to offer does not go unappreciated. We look forward to the years to come working with your company!

James Rainey & DaVor Photography:
Jim, working with you and DaVor has been a pleasure since day one. You are always willing to help the CUMBERLAND when we need it and we will always remember that. Thank you so much for working with us and always showing us a great time. We look forward to next year!

Professor Evans & Dr. Faber:
The support and time that you have given to the CUMBERLAND is immeasurable but always appreciated. We have enjoyed having you as advisors and hope you have enjoyed working with us too. Professor Evans, we look forward to next year with you again! Dr. Faber, thank you for the past two years, best of luck!

Darrell, Dena, Rich & the rest of the fiscal office:
We are always at ease to know that you are taking care of our financial business. Thank you for all your time and help.

Tim, Connie, Linda & Judy:
Thank you for all your help with everything. We appreciate all the time you spend to help us.

President Ceddia:
Thank you for your continued support of this book.

Jody Harpster & Administration:
Thank you for all the help and support you have offered our organization throughout the years.

Public Relations & Publications Office:
Thank you for your continued help with press releases, photographs and much more.

Alumni Office:
Thank you for everything you do for us. Providing us the access to keep in touch with our alumni is such an asset to the book.

CUMBERLAND Staff:
A book would never exist for this university if it weren't for hard working individuals like yourselves.
You preserve the memories of this campus through your hard work and dedication. No matter what anyone tells you, the university needs people like you, so don't ever forget that. Thank you for all your hard work and support.

CUMBERLAND Editors:
You are the true heart and soul of this book. No matter how hard things were, you never gave up and that means something. Thank you for everything.

"Connect To" is the 84th volume of the CUMBERLAND, the official yearbook of Shippensburg University, a member of the State System of Higher Education of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The page size for this volume is 9x12 inches incorporating 256 pages, printed on 80lb. triple coated gloss paper with first quality printer's black ink.

The cover was designed by the yearbook staff, in consultation with Herff Jones artist, Scott Cool, using a mix of blue and black ink applied to a lithograph cover. All elements were then applied to a 160 point binders board.

The endsheets, also designed in consultation with the Herff Jones artist, were printed different front and back using VC-01 white stock with black ink applied.

The layout and typography utilized Adobe Pagemaker 6.5 with Adobe Illustrator 5.5, along with a library of Adobe fonts. All pages were produced by the staff using Power Macintosh G3 computers.

Photography was provided by various staff members, as well as DaVor photography, in Bensalem, PA, with James Rainey serving as the representative.

The publisher was Herff Jones Yearbooks, in Gettysburg, PA with Marilyn Maitland serving as the representative.

Expenses were paid for by the Student Association of Shippensburg University, along with several fundraisers by the CUMBERLAND staff.
