The President's Message

Edinboro University is honoured to recognise Doug Watts for his four decades of success inside and outside of the classroom.

Edinboro's motto, "Great Things Happen Here!" represents much more than a catchy phrase. It reflects upon a university that strives for excellence. This motto has only been in existence for a few years; however Doug Watts has been living and breathing it since he arrived on campus in 1969.

To the scores of scholar-athletes he worked with, Doug was and is a coach, mentor, teacher and friend. He nurtured All-Americans, national champions, hall of famers and scholars. Additionally, his unprecedented success in track and cross country garnered national recognition for Edinboro University. For this and more, we are all indebted to him.

It is with great pride that Edinboro University names its cross country course to honour and celebrate Doug Watts.

We Are Edinboro!

by Dave Antognoli '73, '76

The Erie Metropolitan Chapter of the Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame inducted Doug Watts along with nine others into its 2009 class on June 23, 2009. The irascible reputation of Doug Watts precedes him, so it was no wonder that when he took his turn at the podium he said, “What took you so long?”

I sat at one of two tables that represented Edinboro beneficiaries of his forty years of coaching and teaching service at Edinboro. “Service” is an appropriate word as I reflected on how “Coach” has been influential in our lives. Yes, for the Fighting Scots he has produced 199 All-Americans, six national championship teams, and seven runners who captured nine individual national championships, but keeping numbers on his personal associations and support would require more advanced bookkeeping. For example, he attended my wedding in 1974—one of the early demonstrations of his coach/athlete bond beyond the classroom and athletic arena.

He has kept his relationships to his athletes fun throughout the decades, as evidenced by his fishing excursions with Roy Shinn, Yi Min Wu, and anyone else interested in a Watts’ rite of passage. The many personal occasions of his athletes continue to be calendar items, like his attendance at the June 2009 wedding of Edinboro All-American and current assistant coach Julie Nemergut. He has written more letters and completed more phone calls of recommendation than press releases can document, and he secured more jobs for his athletes than record books can reflect.

The pleasant but long June 23 evening recognized many quality area high school athletes as well as the inductees, and anticipation mounted as many in the audience waited for the personable Doug Watts to speak. Being the second to the last speaker on the dais only sharpened his admirers’ expectations. Watts noted that his speech of nine pages would not fit into the four-minute speech that the evening’s directors allotted as last-minute directions to the inductees. No problem—he distilled the contents to the essence of his coaching. He said he stayed at Edinboro instead of being lured to the glamorous Division I level because here he was able to maintain his philosophy without the pressure of only producing statistics. Indeed, over his career he has taught his athletes to see running as a part of their lives, not as their life; to develop the mental toughness that will produce results: champions of spirit and then champions on the awards stand; to submit to teasing and joking so that they do not take themselves or their coach too seriously and lose two of the great rewards of a disciplined life—fun and pride. During his speech he jokingly mentioned that he far exceeded the initial expectations of Al Hall, the Boro athletic director who hired him. In fact, Coach has made a regular habit of welcoming runners who have received low expectations from others and perhaps had low expectations of themselves, and he has transformed scores of them into champions. Vintage Doug Watts—never take oneself so seriously that the joy of life evaporates, develop the gifts that God gives us, and give credit to the people who make our journey through life more worthwhile.

Throughout his forty-year tenure as director of Edinboro track and cross country, Watts has received many accolades leading up to his recent Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame induction: for example, the NCAA five times named him Division II Coach of the Year. Pointing to his many accomplishments, Watts’ admirers hail him as the guru of running, while some critics call him flamboyant and unconventional. Maybe some people only focus on his florescent, lime green Nikes; perhaps they remember him making a point by dancing on a table as master of ceremonies for an athletic social event at an NCAA National Cross Country Championships. The proof of his true measure is not only in the impressive statistics that he has accrued or the garish t-shirts at his high school cross country camps, but more importantly in the way his athletes respond to him. At the November 22, 2008 NCAA Division II National Cross Country Championships at Cooper's Lake, the usually frenzied (fanatic) Edinboro men's pre-race huddle of runners swelled to 40 as alumni gathered to support the current runners, their coach, and the program he continues to nurture. With that race, the Boro men's team established an NCAA II record: 29 consecutive appearances! Much to their credit, Edinboro President Dr. Jeremy Brown and Boro Athletic Director Bruce Baumgartner demonstrated their support of their student-athletes and their coach by braving the two inches of snow and blustery weather to be in personal attendance, but they also witnessed a statement the cross country alumni made affirming the importance of this program and this man in their lives.

On June 23, as Doug Watts' four-minute speech crept closer to ten minutes, he acknowledged and thanked his biggest fan and someone largely responsible for his success: his wife Margaret. Margaret is that proverbial coach's wife who for three decades has kept for him a foundation of security and "class" while her husband has been gone for long hours with coaching responsibilities. "I would like to thank Margaret for allowing me to play coach all of these years. If she wanted me to quit, I would quit today."

With this overwhelming support from his wife and athletes, it is also little wonder that when Watts' legions heard of a movement to honor him for his dedication and longevity, they banded together to man the phones and mail out letters to publicize the Watts Track & Field / Cross Country Scholarships

In some respects, one might say that the day Doug Watts decided to coach track and cross country at Edinboro University was the day that a type of obscurity began to recede from the small rural college in Western Pennsylvania. While Watts and Edinboro track and cross country were little known national entities in 1969, Watts' boisterous and engaging personality combined with his innate knowledge of running has allowed him to inspire his runners in a way that has changed the landscape of Edinboro sports forever. The Fighting Scots faithful in the women's pre-race huddle at the recent NCAA Championships emotionally understood Doug Watts when he said to Tina Yi, the Edinboro runner from China, "You are Edinboro Cross Country!" Through forty years the Boro singlet has carried a depth of pride and prized memories that has elevated the bar of our own expectations and helped to make our lives more meaningful. From various backgrounds, states, and even continents, under the tutelage of Doug Watts, we possess a common bond: "We are Edinboro!" The ironic result is that although we honor Doug Watts, Doug Watts has brought honor to us all!

Dave Antognoli is a native of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio and earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Education (Secondary English) in 1973 from Edinboro State College. In 1976, he earned a Master of Arts degree in English, also from Edinboro. While representing Edinboro, he was the national champion for cross country in 1971 and the national champion in the 10,000 meter run for track in 1972. Dave was a 3-time All-American in cross country and a 3-time All-American in Track & Field. He competed in the 1972 U.S. Track & Field Olympic Trials in the 10,000 meter run, where he was the top collegiate finisher. Dave is a member of the Edinboro Men's All-Time Cross Country Team, and a member of the Edinboro University Athletic Hall of Fame.

Currently a teacher and cross country coach in the Neshannock Township School District in western Pennsylvania. Dave has coached two high school state cross country champions: Mary Jean Wright-McCarthy (Kirtland, Ohio A/AA 1978 & 1979) and Kacey Gibson (Neshannock, Pennsylvania AA 2006). Dave has been married for 35 years to fellow Edinboro graduate Ann Abraham, and they have two children: Erin and Jason.

Friends of Cross Country/Track Alumni -- Watts Scholarship

The Doug Watts Celebration Banquet is an opportunity to celebrate the many accomplishments Edinboro has achieved under head coach Doug Watts. More importantly, the celebration provides another opportunity to build the Friends of Cross Country/Track Alumni -- Doug Watts Endowed Scholarship. Through the hard work and dedication of many alumni and friends, this endowed scholarship fund went from a humble beginning to its current total of over $12,000. Edinboro University would like to thank the many who have contributed to help Edinboro cross country and track & field remain among the top programs in the country.
