Mr. Ulmer Composes Test For Visual Education

The people in the Visual Education class that Mr. Ulmer conducted the past semester took their final examination on Friday morning. According to the requirements set down by the Department of Public Instruction, passing the final test in Visual Education would ordinarily qualify the participants as second class moving picture operators. The test in this course differs from the tests that are given in other courses in the respect that it is given personally by an employee of the state of Pennsylvania. This semester, however, Mr. Taylor, of Salona, who was to have given the examination, was absent and Mr. Ulmer composed a test for his class. Unless this test is accepted by the state, those people who took it will not receive credit as second class moving-picture operators until they have passed successfully the test that the state sends.

Mr. Ulmer Speaks At Vesper Service

Sunday evening, January 17, the regular Vesper Service was held in the auditorium. Mr. Ulmer had charge of the meeting.

The total attendance at Vespers for the first semester was 1,954. The average attendance was 124, an average of five more than the first semester of last year. Only three times was the attendance below one hundred; last Sunday happened to be one of these times.

Mr. Ulmer asked for suggestions to make the Vesper Service more interesting.

The remainder of the service was a song service by the students present and the choir.

Mr. MacDougall Speaks at Education Club Meeting

Mr. R. S. MacDougall was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Education Club on Monday night, January 18, in Mr. Williams' classroom. About twenty visitors beside the club members availed themselves of the opportunity to hear Mr. MacDougall's discussion of standardized tests.

Mr. MacDougall told those at the meeting that they should practice caution in using standardized tests. He recommended to the group the use of the diagnostic test. He left the thought that there were really very few good standardized tests.

The club members hope that they can have Mr. MacDougall speak to them again in the near future.

Rupert Howard Conjures Magic for S. T. C. Group

Rupert Howard, British magician and lecturer, appeared before an audience of Lock Haven State Teachers College students on Thursday evening, January 21. Mr. Howard lectured on the subject of "Magic Through the Ages" and illustrated his lecture by performing a number of tricks, representative of the various magic practices throughout all time.

Mr. Howard handled his subject from the purely chronological point of view. He began with the magic of ancient Egypt, mentioning the earliest records of conjuring which were performed six thousand years ago. Proceeding to the magic of Greece and Rome, he described how the historic oracles were performed in the temples. He lectured on and performed various tricks that were marvelled at during the Middle Ages. Discussion of English magic was of special interest to the literary of the audience, because of its association with the chronicle "The Discovery of Witchcraft," published during Queen Elizabeth's reign. Passing over the Eighteenth Century with adequate discussion and illustration, he told of modern magic and performed tricks of Houdini, fascinating to the modern audience.

The demonstrations that Mr. Howard gave were "The Ethereal Wand," "An Early Card Feat," "Cagliostro's Predestination," "Houdini's Flying Cards," "The Phoenix," "The Divining Daggers," and "Fast or Loose."

Mr. Howard is a very accomplished magician. His engaging manner, his effective and witty stage personality and the enthusiasm he conveys to his audience account for his outstanding success.

Grade 9—Martha Zeigler

In Mathematics:

Grade 7A—Ruth Wilt
Grade 7B—Albert Sundberg
Grade 8A—Clarence Cowfer
Grade 8B—Frank Kitko

Several Graduates Return This Semester

Among the students who entered this semester are several of the people who graduated last semester after having received a Bachelor of Science degree in Education, and who are planning to supplement these degrees by pursuing courses in elementary education and by engaging in additional practice teaching. These people are: Irene Russell, Margaret Reid, Anne Sigmund, Betty Dalby, Elsie Mayes, Ruth Grier and Bernice Moran. Perhaps there will be additions to this group, since the last date for enrolling has been extended to January 29.

Faculty Contributes To the Relief Fund

The members of the College faculty have donated the sum of one hundred dollars to the Citizen's Relief Fund sponsored by welfare workers of Lock Haven. In addition to this contribution the faculty has been reaching many families through their welfare work in the training schools. This year, following the precedent established by previous years, the members of the faculty have seen that the children have been furnished with milk at a price that will suit their economic situation.

Men's Student Government Elect New Officers

At a special meeting of the Men's Student Government on Monday evening, January 18, 1932, the following people were elected as members of the Student Council for the second semester: President, Frank Kitko; Vice President, James Harlan; Junior Representative, Kermit Stover; Sophomore Representative, Clyde Snare; Freshman Representative, Harry Benton.

Seniors Combine Senior Ball and Praeco Dance

The annual Senior Prom will be held in the Gymnasium on February 13 under the auspices of the Senior Class.

The seniors have decided to charge the admission of $1.00 to all underclassmen and alumni to be set aside as part of the Praeco Fund, since the regular Praeco dance has been omitted from this year's calendar.

The decorations in a Valentine Motif are under the supervision of Miss Lyndall Fox.

Thirteen Students Secure Their Diplomas

With the close of the first semester, January 16, thirteen students were graduated from the Lock Haven State Teachers College. There were no formal commencement exercises or awarding of diplomas, since these graduates return in May to take part in the regular graduation exercises, held then.

Three of the graduates received the Bachelor of Science degree in Education, while the remaining ten received certificates.

The three graduates who completed the four-year course were: W. Max Bossert, Mill Hall; Harry A. Shaffer, Lock Haven, and Miss Hazel J. McKay, Ebensburg.

The ten who completed the two-year course were: Misses Dorothy J. Dunlap and Marjorie L. Young, Jersey Shore; Miss Erma Callender, Town Hill; Miss Dorothy W. Drake, Irwin; Miss Clara P. Fitzgerald, Galeton; Miss Gladys E. Lockard, Lamar; Miss Clara M. Halberg, Byrnedale; Miss Antonina M. Palenski, Force; Miss Mary M. Thompson, Hollidaysburg, and Miss Anna Mary Yockey, New Alexandria.

Board of Trustees Hold First Meeting This Year

On January 13, 1932, the Board of Trustees held the first meeting of the year in Dr. Armstrong's office. Those members present from Lock Haven were Dr. David W. Thomas, Chairman of the Board; Mr. M. E. Haggerty, Vice Chairman; Mr. I. T. Parsons, Secretary; Mrs. George H. Diack; Dr. J. W. Sweeney from St. Marys, and Mr. S. L. Lush from Galeton. Mr. Lush is a new member of the Board of Trustees.

Radio Is Purchased For Y. W. C. A. Room

The girls of the Y. W. C. A. and of the Women's Student Government Association have purchased a Philco electrodynamic radio to be presented to the girls of the school. This radio has been placed in the Y. W. C. A. room in West dormitory and those who have been interested have succeeded in getting splendid programs. This addition to the Y. W. attractions has made the room a center of quiet social activity in reality. All of the girls are invited to enjoy the benefits of this purchase at any time except during the study hours specified by the Women's Student Government Association. These hours are from 7:15 to 9:45 P. M. and after 10:00 P. M.

In the first scheduled game of the season, Coach Kaiser's errant basketekers won from California Teachers College, Friday night, by the score of 39-20. The locals outclassed the visitors from the first play until the end of the game.

Playing before a large crowd, filling the balcony of the gym, the Kaiserites—dressed in their new white suits—played a fine brand of ball for every minute of the game. Starting out with a rush, they soon jumped into a ten-point lead and certainly displayed some nice passing and excellent shooting. Not many shots missed the rim during the first half. The guarding was of such a nature that the Californians had to shoot mostly from behind the double lines. The first half ended with the "whites" in the lead, 27-9.

The second half was a little slower, but the ball was kept moving from one end of the floor to the other. The visitors tried numerous shots from the back lines. The locals played a safe game during this half and had the edge all the way.

Cooke, the acting captain, featured with some good shots and accurate passes. He was high scorer for the day. Sisson, the lanky bespectacled center of the visitors, was high scorer for them with ten points.

In a preliminary game, which began at 7 o'clock, the J. V.'s defeated the downtown Citizens Hose Co., 21-16. Schnarrs was high scorer with six baskets.

THE THRILL OF A LETTER

Events in the Life Of a Co-ed

(ON MAIL)

Something that strikes me as worse than smallpox . . .

Is gazing into an empty mail-box.

I await with dread and trepidation Each arrival from the station;

Bills, notes . . . ads and cards . . . even an ad

Makes one feel important and glad,

For the feeling is empty and vague and blue

When not even a card looms in view.

Now Sally's received a special today,

And specials make Sally yell "Hey-dey!"

Even if letters repeat and repeat,

Letters from beaus are consistently sweet.

This one informs her that, at last, after all,

Her sweet man will come for the senior ball.

PART II

(To the Tune of Jack and Jill)

Jackie and Lil went to the office

To see if they had mail there,

Jackie had none, but Lil had one:

Imagine Jackie's dismay there.

Up Jackie got and up did trot

To find a pen and paper;

And to her beau, she wrote just so;

"Now go and cut a caper."

PART III

(To the Tune of Little Jack Horner)

Little Nell Norm

Sat in the dorm

Wiping a tear from her eye.

A special came—

She wasn't the same;

She shouted to the sky.

From the College Papers

The Student Government Association of the State Teachers College at Farmville, Virginia, conducted a series of orientation classes to familiarize the freshmen and new students with the customs and regulations of their school. Two evenings were given to the student handbook, one to the honor code, and a fourth to a general review. An examination was given on the fifth evening. It is hoped the school will secure a greater loyalty and spirit of co-operation as a result of this procedure.

On Saturday night, after the California victory, the Kaiserites drove up to Mansfield, where they suffered defeat to the tune of 32 to 24. This is the first defeat in a scheduled game. From the looks of things Lock Haven can expect great things from their courtmen in the remainder of the games.

Playing in their white outfits again, the boys jumped into a nine-point lead in the first five minutes of play. Fighting desperately, the Mansfieldites gradually crept up until at half-time the score stood 16-12 in their favor.

In the last half the play was a little faster and more attempts were made at the basket. Had the locals converted half their tries for the basket, there might have been a different story to tell. As it was the Mansfield aggregation though—they had difficulty in getting under the basket—converted most of their tries for the hoop. Both teams fell down miserably on their foul shots, missing about sixty per cent of their tries.

It is expected that the tables will be reversed when Mansfield plays here on March 4, where there is a high ceiling and no girders to confuse the players.

Shippensburg will be here on Friday, January 22. The students can expect to see a fast game every minute of play. Shippensburg comes here with a highly touted team, so watch out Lock Haven.

Miss Rowe Entertains Student Teachers

Miss Rowe entertained the fourth grade Student Teachers, Monday afternoon, January 11. After school was dismissed they went to the "Arbor," where Miss Rowe treated the Student Teachers. Everyone reported a good time.

EDITORIAL

In view of the fact that the College Times represents the news of this College, it would be a good plan for each and every student to feel directly responsible for the paper.

How? Why? Where? When?

How? If you see a bit of news, such as the unexpected arrival of some one or other, whom no one else knows, get in touch with a member of the staff of the paper. If something funny happens, jot it down and let the college enjoy the laugh.

Why? Because, in this way, our paper is being broadened and truly representative of the group. The College Times is read in many colleges and their opinion of our school based upon the paper. Boost your paper, and thus boost your school.

Where? College Times representatives are in the dorms and day rooms. Find their names in the paper; then, get in touch with them.

A Code of Ethics for Teachers

As prospective teachers we are interested in learning what rules or what standards will direct our conduct and our attitude toward our superiors and toward our pupils. In this and following issues, The College Times will publish a teachers' code of ethics as adopted by the Pennsylvania State Education Association at its annual meeting, December, 1920, and amended at the Scranton Convention of that organization in 1925.

"This code is an application of the general principles of ethics to the special obligations, rights and privileges of the teaching profession.

1. Professional Attitude—Educational Attitude. The highest obligation of every member of the teaching profession is due to those who are under his professional care.

2. Compensation. The teaching profession should demand for each of its members that compensation which will enable him to render the most efficient service. To attain maximum efficiency the compensation must be sufficient to enable him to live upon a scale befitting his place in society, to permit the necessary expenditures for professional improvement, and to make proper provision for those dependent upon him, and for himself in his old age.

3. Open-minded Study of Education. Every member of the profession should be a progressive student of education. To this end he should be a thoughtful reader of educational literature, should attend and participate in educational meetings, should engage in such experimentation and collection of data as will test the value of educational theories and aid in the establishment of a scientific basis for educational practice, and should be willing to give to his fellow members the benefit of his professional knowledge and experience.

4. Criticisms of Associates. (a) The motives for all criticism should be helpfulness and improvement. Adverse criticisms, known or heard, should not be made or repeated except to the one criticized or to his superior with the full expectation that opportunity for explanation will be afforded. On the other hand, when corrupt and dishonorable practices are known to exist, they should be fearlessly reported to the proper authorities. (b) Adverse comments and insinuations in regard to the work of a predecessor or of the teacher of previous grade are to be condemned.

5. Appointments and Promotions. (a) All appointments, promotions, or advancements in salary should be obtained exclusively on merit. To this end, it is proper for the candidate to make his qualifications known to the proper school authorities, either directly or through a teachers' agency. (b) A teacher should take no steps towards obtaining a specific position until he knows the position is vacant or about to become vacant. (c) Upon accepting appointments in a given district a teacher should notify all other districts to which letters of application have been sent.

6. Contract Obligations. A teacher should never violate a contract. Unless the consent of the employing body is obtained releasing the obligation, the contract should be fulfilled.

7. Relations to Parents. (a) Teachers should maintain cooperative relations with parents and should meet criticism with open-mindedness and courtesy.

8. Loyalty to School Boards. It is the duty of every member of the profession in a school system to recognize the legal authority of the board of directors and to be loyal to its policies established in accordance therewith.

A. S. T. FAREWELL SUPPER

On Wednesday evening, January 13, the A. S. T.'s had a farewell supper for Dot Drake, their president, and Titter Thompson, their corresponding secretary. Both Dot and Titter graduated at the end of the semester.

Supper was served in the demonstration room in the new training school. After supper, the girls hurried back to the dorm to study for exams.

The A. S. T.'s held a meeting Friday afternoon at which a report was given on their National Convention at Denver, Colorado.

Us!

Bang! go the push cans.
Slam! go the doors—
Out in the hall
A tumult occurs.

By and by a yell is heard
Echoing all about,
"Everybody out now,
The Hall Chairman's out!"

First goes the banner,
(A bed sheet will do)
Then goes the army,
Marching two by two.

Later it's an engine,
Then it's a train,
Then they're weary teachers
With knowledge ungained.

Down goes the banner
The group looks with fears.
All quiets down, when
The Student Council appears.

Among the Plots

John Henry Roark Bradford

Roark Bradford is known as the foremost modern interpreter of the Negro. Marc Connolly's play, "Green Pastures," is based on Roark Bradford's "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun'."

John Henry was born in Black River country "whar de sun don't shine." He weighed forty-four pounds at birth. The night of his birth he had a fit of temper because his supper wasn't ready.

John Henry believed in doing things in a large way. Whether it was picking cotton, shining mules, or driving steel he outshone the rest. He was all right until he tried to outwork the steam engine. John Henry got tired, the steam engine didn't, and in the end John Henry died from overwork.

"There Is Another Heaven"

Robert Nathan

The fact that all of the characters of the book have crossed to the farther side of the Jordan and the fact that every thought a character has is all right, because he "has been saved," one would expect this book, "There Is Another Heaven," by Robert Nathan, to be a satire on life, rather than a satire on a death, concerned with death. However, it is a satire on life. Just as the narration in this book is a means to an end, so are these absurdities of character and absurdities of setting means to a definite end—that of observing life from a point of view that will reveal all the absurdities of life in as ridiculous fashion as they appear in truth to the writer. Much light is made of the fact that the characters have been saved. To the discerning reader this is really satirizing the belief that eternity is merely a place where everyone is happy. Perhaps, suggests the author, it is true that eternity is only another existence, where everyone is happy, but who shall decide of what true happiness consists is the question that the author poses in this satire. For those who are discerning enough to apprehend what true happiness is "there is another heaven."

In his use of the interesting narrative, Robert Nathan is similar to Samuel Butler who wrote the satire, "The Way of All Flesh." Both writers, in order to impress their readers that life is full of absurdities, have their characters do the things that will make them appear in their most futile aspect.

Mr. High Is President Of Local Temple Club

Snatched From the Blotter

"People do not marry as early as they used to," says Temple Bailey in a recent news article. Not as early, Temple, but oftener!

From a recent London Charivari:

Tweedle: Whither art thou going?

Deedle: To the doctor's. I don't like the looks of my wife.

Tweedle: I'll go along. I hate the sight of mine, too!

Things that linger:

The coming publication of R. C. (Journey's End) Sherriff's new novel, "A Fortnight in September."

The January's National Geographic's profusely illustrated "Grave of George Washington." Indispensable for those history majors.

Ogden Nash's "Free Wheeling." Mutilated verse that begins to annoy.

News of a new Broadway play, calling for a flock of sheep to gambol about the stage . . . What a boon for critics who suffer from insomnia.

Will Cuppy's "How to Tell Your Friends From the Apes" . . . rib-tickling nonsense and humor. Also, Christopher Morley's "Swiss Family Manhattan," whose title should give one an insight into the book's contents.

We found out that Mata Hari's real name was Margaret Gertrude Zelle . . . that she was Dutch and Jewish . . . that she lived in Java for a while with a husband whose name seems distinctly Irish . . . that her daughter is still alive, in Holland . . . that she was really a rather revolting character. The Garbo movie broke all house records at the Capitol in New York. If you saw it here, you can make your own comments . . .

Famous personages . . . Rousseau Colombo (crooner); Voltaire Vinchell (purveyor of scandal); John Marmore (movie idol); Cynclair Lewis (need we elaborate) . . .

It is a large, cheerless sort of a room. The huge rafters stretch drearily across the ceiling. The barred windows only serve to accentuate the gloom of the place.

In the far corner of the room a strange scene is being enacted. A figure is hurled from the group into the air. A breathless pause ensues as the victim descends. But stay! Life still exists, as can be seen by the tortuous antics of waving limbs. It is a wondrous sight as the aeronaut disengages herself with only a few unnecessary bones dislocated.

In another part of the room still stranger sights are being unfolded. Two crouching figures, locked within each other's arms, are swaying back and forth in rhythmical unison. As they sway, one of the figures is slowly suspended in mid-air. With astonishing agility the figures are hurled aloft. They rebound to earth. Shrieks issue from the spectators.

What is this weird assembly? Is this one of those so-called "suicide" chibs?—a torture chamber from medieval days—or a section of Barnum and Bailey's?

Nay, my dear reader, this is the very modern year of 1932 in the up-to-date gymnasium of a modern institution of learning. The victim is nothing more than some of our own fair co-eds learning that art of tumbling, a relic of ancient days of infancy.

Where We Spent the Week-End

Al Marie Hackett spent the week-end with June Breining.

Many Altoona girls spent the week-end at home. Among them were: Dorothy Geist, Peg Dorries, Edith Elvey, Dorothy Cunningham, Irene Dougherty, Elsie Meckley, Jane McGirk, Hildegard Baer, Mary Alice Kettl, Ellen Fleming and Margaret Stephens.

Wanda Brown spent the week-end with Esther Thompson at Phillipsburg.

Julia Cornely spent the week-end with her sister, Margaret, who attends Bucknell University at Lewisburg.

Barbara Sloop and Jerry Jones again spent their week-end with their parents in Bellefonte.

Ann Oven spent the week-end with her roommate, Ann Krupa, at Ann's home in Beaverdale.

Ellen Reighard spent the week-end with her aunt in Loganton.

Kay Yount, Don Francisco, Ruth Sponsler and Marian Behmer were welcomed home over the week-end in Williamsport.

The Mt. Jewett gang, who include Helen Johnson, Vivian Benson, Kay Thomas, and Virginia Bengston, were home over the week-end.

Among the Johnstown people who were at home over the week-end were: Betty DeFrehn, Mildred Tumosky, Alpha Davis, Mildred Parks, Sydney Sauter, and Virginia Robinson.

Campus Chatter

The librarians, at least, had a pleasant time during examinations.

Professor—Where is Molly Hamman today?

Ruth Harpster—She is ill; she ate too many olives for lunch.

THOUGHTS FOR THE NEW SEMESTER

1. Remember when you were in high school and you had the same schedule the whole year around.

2. Remember to put your last semester note carefully away. Put the name of the course and professor's name on them because you won't remember a year from now where in the earth those pieces of paper came from.

3. Remember to make your semester resolution for keeping your work up-to-date. Just for fun, see how long you can keep it.

Students walking on the campus with their eyes glued on their note books.

In any corner, groups of co-eds wildly discussing an exam.

A student's reaction to an 8 o'clock class:

Um . . . what a class . . . wish he wouldn't come . . . joy, but I'm tired . . . um . . . I wonder if I will have a test . . . um . . . what did we have for today . . . only two more minutes . . . um . . . here he is . . . what a life!

Condo wants to know if the girls are scarce in the dorm.

Miss Dixon: "All these exercises for increased strength must be done in front of the open window."

One of the frosh: "But that's just it. I want increased strength so that I can open the window in my room."

"Ex Annalibus"

Forty years ago on November 6, our school had the honor of being host to a most distinguished guest. Probably no other college in the United States has had such an honor bestowed upon it.

The Lock Haven Express describes the occasion as follows: "One of two steers being driven past the Normal School by a local butcher became frightened at some object and dashed across the campus and into the main building which caused much commotion among the students."

Much commotion seems like a mild term to use if girls then were as much frightened by a mouse as girls are now. It must be remembered that one steer equals about a thousand mice.

It probably is not exaggerating to say that the gentlemen students had ample opportunities to play hero to fainting ladies.
