Students were treated to a beach party in Rogers Gymnasium last Friday night, as the SCC kicked off the spring semester with its first student-funded activity.

"It was a real blast," said SCC social activities chairman Jamie Crankfield. "The people were dancing, and everybody had a great time."

Although only 211 campus students attended the event, Crankfield did not feel that the number of people adequately represented the success of the party.

"When I judge the success of the party, I don't look at the number, I look at how the people there felt about it (the party)," said Crankfield.

However, Crankfield did say that he would have liked more people to come to the event to see how their activity fee is being spent.

"People should come down to see how their money is being spent," said Crankfield. "Too many times people listen to others about how an event was instead of seeing for themselves."

Because of student apathy, Crankfield believes that many complaints he receives about campus activities are unjustified.

"I don't appreciate complaints from people who don't come to SCC meetings to make suggestions," said Crankfield.

To combat some of the student complaints, Crankfield said he would like students to come up with more ideas for social activities.

"I can always use some new ideas," said Crankfield. "We want to know what other things the students would like to see."

In response to the question of why so few students attended, Crankfield said, "I'm not sure, but it was their loss. Where else can you get free Haagen-Dazs ice cream?"

One student who attended the event said of the lack of attendance, "If the fraternities had seen how many girls were there, they would have probably shown up."

Martin Luther King Jr. speaker visits campus

By Jeffrey Hilty
Co-News Editor

The secretary of revenue for Pennsylvania will visit the campus to present a speech as a part of the Martin Luther King Jr. Lecture Series and also to meet with students, faculty, and administration.

Barton A. Fields will speak tonight at 7 p.m. in Sloan Theatre, as part of the lecture program organized by Richard S. West, coordinator of human relations and minority affairs at Lock Haven University.

"I received recommendations from some of the faculty here at the University to invite him as this year's speaker, and his office said that he would be available," said West.

"I think that he will become a role model for the students who come to hear his speech," said West.

Shields, who is a native of Philadelphia, graduated from Pennsylvania State University with a degree in political science and has approximately 30 years experience in state government.

Past president of the Greater Harrisburg Area Branch of the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), Shields is a lifetime member of the NAACP and the Penn State Alumni Association.

Shields is also scheduled to give a presentation to LHU's Introduction to Marketing, Regional and Urban Economics, and the State and Local Government classes concerning his responsibilities as revenue secretary.

West said that Shields will attend a luncheon this afternoon with the University's administration and faculty. Also, he will advise LHU student leaders about what the state government is looking for in its student leaders and will also meet with the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

West said that Shields is also scheduled to socially interact with invited students, faculty, and administrators at a buffet-dinner at President Craig Dean Willis' home prior to tonight's speech.

Committee seeks changes in registration system

By John P Elder
Co-News Editor

Members of the University's ad hoc committee on pre-registration revealed some of the flaws of the new scheduling system in a meeting last Friday.

The committee, formed by Dr. Ronald Woodbury, vice president of academic affairs, and composed of faculty and students from various departments on campus, discussed the advantages and disadvantages of the system.

According to student member Mabelle Grace, the committee discussed what changes could be made in time for the fall 1988 pre-registration.

"Basically, all we did was present the good points and bad points of the system," said Grace. "Most of the problems we encountered we had anticipated, and we'll discuss what changes can be made with the administration today."

In what came as a major surprise to some members, the committee found out that the pre-registration process was not fully carried out.

According to Dr. James Smalley, associate dean of academic affairs, the pre-registration process was set up to find out what courses had the heaviest demands and then to open up the appropriate number of sections.

However, according to Grace, the computerized system was never set up to respond to the pre-registration tally.

"The whole purpose for pre-registration was to make scheduling easier, but for some reason, the results of it were overlooked," said Grace.

In addition, Grace said that the computer system permitted some underclassmen to receive courses before upperclassmen. To accommodate the upperclassmen, some freshman were bumped out of upper level courses during the first week of classes.

Another reason Grace believes the system is flawed is that the administration was pressed for time in preparing the system.

"They jumped into it so quick that they didn't have time to think about it," said Grace. "Dr. Smalley's staff was meeting some deadlines by only five minutes. That's no way to have to run a system."

Despite the shortcomings found at the meeting, Grace said that the committee feels that there must be a pre-registration, but that it should be expanded to include tentative course times.

"Everybody (in the committee) favors a pre-registration system, but we would like it to have the times of the courses listed," said Grace. "That way students could pick the class time they want."

However, not everyone on the committee believes that a change in the system will correct the campus' registration problems.

Committee member Dr. Howard Congdon, professor of english/journalism/philosophy, thinks that the scheduling problem will continue until more general education classes are made available to students.

"It's a matter of mathematics," said Congdon. "No matter what kind of system we get, we still can't serve the students until we get more staff. There just aren't enough general education classes."

Another possible change that was mentioned at the meeting was for athletic practice sessions to be scheduled as classes so that campus athletes can avoid further scheduling conflicts.

As to the future of the system, Grace hinted that troubled times are not over for the new system.

"Of course there is room for improvement, and that's why the committee was formed," said Grace. "I'm not sure what changes can be made before the fall pre-registration, but the next one should be better than before."

Eagle cagers down Slippery Rock 80-67

By Robert Cooper
Sports Reporter

Head Coach Kurt Kanaskie's men's basketball team improved their PSAC West record to 2-0 Saturday night as they defeated the Rockets of Slippery Rock University 80-67.

The Bald Eagles pulled away from the Rockets midway through the first half and never looked back.

"I thought we were in complete control of the game from midway through the first half on," said Kanaskie, whose Eagles are now 8-7 overall and are currently on a three game winning streak.

"We were struggling, but we felt all along we have a pretty good team. The fact that we lost some games early, I think, had to do with scheduling. We played a tough schedule," Kanaskie added.

Eric Hearn led the way for the Haven, scoring 20 points and dishing off four assists.

Hearn now needs just 13 points to join former players Junior Price and Kevin Charney in the 1000 point club.

Freshman Myron Brown, cousin of Price led the Rockets with a game high 21 points, four of them coming off two thunderous dunks.

Jeff Null goes for two over a Slippery Rock defender during Saturday's game. The Bald Eagles defeated Slippery Rock 80-67.

The Haven shot 46.3 percent from the field to SRU's 42.4 percent.

The loss drops the Rocket's record to 8-8 overall and 0-1 in the conference.

Lock Haven will continue their conference play Wednesday evening when they hit the road to take on the Fighting Scots of Edinboro at 8 pm.

Lady Eagles rally for 67-57 win over SRU

By Merritt La Porta
Sports Reporter

The Lady Eagle basketball team took on the Lady Rockets of Slippery Rock University in a Pennsylvania Conference Western Division match-up and came out victorious 67-57 Saturday night.

From the opening tip-off, the Lady Rockets seemed to be in control leading 10-2 just four minutes into the game.

The LHU women had problems hitting any of their shots from the floor, while SRU sank shots from all corners. A strong defensive effort by the Lady Eagles kept the game close, and with seven minutes left in the half, SRU was up only by four, 16-12.

LHU continued to play catch up until freshman Lisa Sporer sank two foul shots to put the Lady Eagles ahead for the first time in the game, 19-18. SRU's Melody Washington put the Lady Rockets back in the lead minutes later. When the halftime buzzer sounded, SRU was up by four, 30-26.

The second half began like the first with the Lady Rockets storming down the court and increasing their lead to ten during the opening minutes. It wasn't until LHU turned on the back court press that the tide began to turn.

Maryellen Jaskuta, who led all scorers with 19 points, and captain Cindy Richards, who scored 16 points, helped the Lady Eagles outscore the Lady Rockets 41-27 in the second half and go on to the victory.

"I told the girls at halftime that their performance was disappointing in comparison to our last five or six games," said Head Coach Frank Scarfo. "We've played well in losing efforts despite coming out on the short end."

Sporer snared 9 rebounds and was 2 for 2 from the foul line against SRU.

The addition of Lisa Sporer pleases Scarfo. "We feel that Lisa will give the team an added emphasis on offense. Our biggest problem is offense, but not too many people notice that we have an outstanding defense which has kept us in many close games," said Scarfo.

The Lady Eagles play at Edinboro on Wednesday and Coach Scarfo has one goal in mind. Scarfo feels that good offensive play is necessary to beat a team of Edinboro's caliber.

"We need to play two halves of offense to compliment our defense," said Scarfo.

Bald Eagle grapplers pin Pitt Panthers

By Mike Leavy
Co-Sports Editor

They may hold the edge in basketball, but LHU holds it in wrestling as the Bald Eagle grapplers crushed the Pitt Panthers 23-10 at Pittsburgh last Saturday.

Craig Corbin got win number 25 as he easily decisioned Matt Rizzo 8-4.

Jeff Husick was glad to be back at 126 pounds as he notched a major decision over Matt Gerhard 11-2.

Pitt then came back with three consecutive wins to take the lead and add excitement to the contest.

At 134 pounds, Dave Ciafre decisioned Tim Ellison 10-4 to put the Panthers on the board.

NCAA runner up Pat Sanders then got a 17-4 major decision over Gary Chaddock. Chaddock put up a superb effort in avoiding a pin in the third period.

Scott Hoven proved to be the Panther's last scorer as he edged out Thane Turner 6-5 for the decision.

Turner started out with a 5-0 lead, but Hoven got him on a five point move in the third period to tie it up. He then got the winning point through riding time.

John Barret tied up things for the Haven as he decisioned Jeff Turner 4-2 to make it 10-10.

Jody Karam put the grapplers up for good as the 167 pounder used the riding time point to gain the decision over Mike Rossi 9-8.

Third ranked Brad Lloyd remained unbeaten on the year as Mike Tongel became victim number 21 on a 17-3 major decision.

Turner said that Lloyd will probably stay in the number three spot until he meets the number one 177 pounder from Penn State later in February.

Bill Freeman put the team in the win column for good with a decision over Perry Miller, 9-2.

Mike Mazza proved his versatility as he jumped up from his duties last week as a 167 pounder to the heavyweight spot for a 6-1 decision over John Owens.

The next test for the grapplers is the PSAC championships in Bloomsburg this Friday and Saturday.

Head Coach Neil Turner hopes to have an intact squad for the championships.

"Anthony Melfi will get x-rayed tomorrow (Tuesday), and if he clears then he'll be our man at 134 pounds," said Turner.

Coach Turner feels that a healthy Lock Haven squad will have only one or two competitors at Bloomsburg.

"It will be a three way contest between us, Edinboro and Bloomsburg Universities," he said.

The matches start at 12 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The matmen then travel to Cleveland State on February 6th and return home for a one week homestand against Bloomsburg and Penn State on the 13th and 20th respectively.

Swimmers sunk 147-111 by Millersville

Elizabeth Miller, Tara DeWane and Penny Kissenger were multiple winners for the Haven.

Miller took the 100- and 200-yard backstroke in times of 1:08.81 and 2:31.45 respectively.

Kissinger won the 500-yard freestyle in 5:59.08 and joined with Kissinger to form half of the 200-yard first place relay team.

DeWane won the one-meter optional and one-meter compulsory diving events.

The Lady Eagles host Susquehanna University this Thursday at 7 p.m.

Tryouts scheduled for upcoming play

By Bill Hunter
Staff Reporter

When you hear the words "play on" you are probably thinking of jargon used by referees at a sporting event, but this semester "Play On," written by Richard Abbot, will be the play put on by the University Players.

Described as "gut-bustingly funny" by the 1988 Catalogue of Plays, it is the story of a theatre group who tries desperately to put on a play, but can't quite come up with a final product.

The first act is a rehearsal of the author's dreadful show, the second is of a near-disasterous dress rehearsal, and the final act is of a performance that if anything can go wrong, it will.

"I read the play and just burst out into laughter," said John Gordon, chairman of the speech and theatre department. "It's really very enjoyable."

"We suspect the cast too will have the time of their lives going through all the dreadful experiences of trying to rehearse and perform a show where even the sound-effects reap their share of laughter," said the authors of the 1988 Catalogue.

Tryouts, which are scheduled for tomorrow and Thursday between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m., are open to any interested student. The play will be staged on March 24, 25, 26.
