A cold start to the 'spring' semester

compiled from local weather reports

Classes have been cancelled, we've eaten off of paper plates in Bentley, and a water-main pipe in the Parsons Union Building (PUB) has broken - all due to the cold weather and more snow than we've seen since the "Blizzard of '93."

The extreme cold caused water pipes to freeze and burst in the PUB on New Year's Day. The destroyed pipes flooded the building's lower level with six inches of water, knocking out the phone and computer network systems in the process.

The broken pipe is in an area which is not heated, and a piece of insulation had also fallen off the duct. The broken valve was the feed for the entire building, commented Moyer.

It took over 72 man hours to suck up the water with Shop-Vacs. The rest of the mess took nearly a week to finish cleaning, said maintenance supervisor Ken Fisher.

The total cost of the damage isn't known yet, but it could be over $10,000, according to John Moyer, assistant director of the maintenance department. Most of the damage, minus a $1000 deductible paid by the University, will be covered by insurance, Moyer said.

Broken pipes weren't the only messes the extreme cold created at the University. At 2 p.m. on Jan. 17, the first day of classes, the University closed after Gov. Casey declared Pennsylvania to be in a state-of-emergency. That gave students an extra long weekend to prepare for the semester's eventual start.

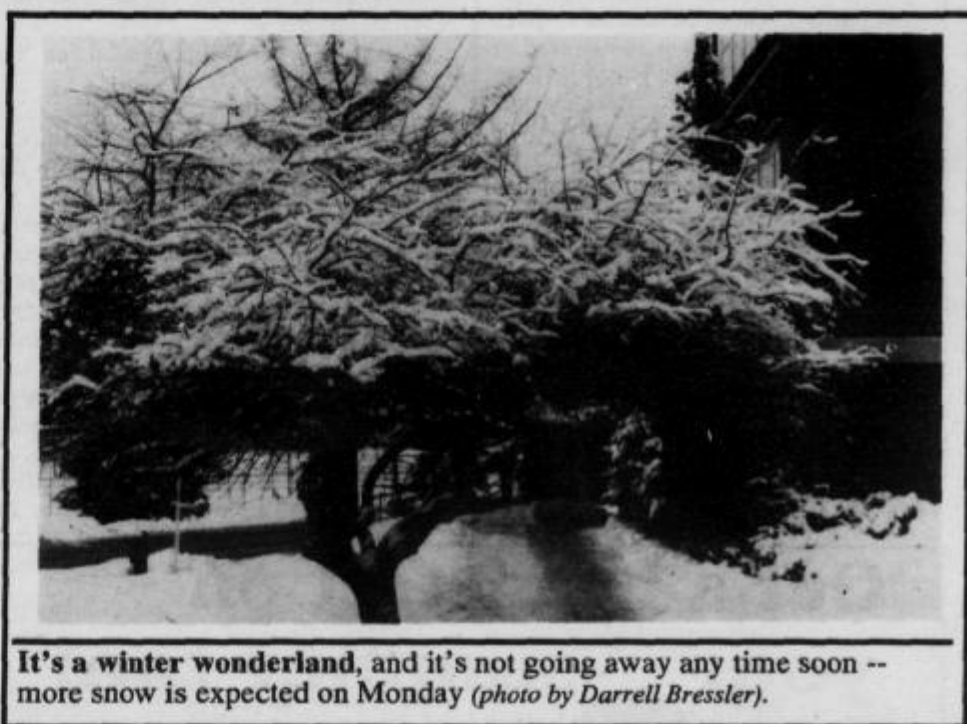

But while students were relaxing, Bentley employees were scrambling to try to keep the dining hall open.

The weather took its toll on Bentley. Since most of the equipment in the cafeteria is electrical, the power outage brought just about everything but the people in the dining hall to a standstill.

"It (the weather) affected us in the worst possible way from that aspect," said John Wilt, director of Bentley's vendor, the Wood Company.

The only equipment in the Upper Deck that is not electrical is one of the ovens, the woks in the international line, and the toaster grills, Wilt said.

All of the equipment in the Eagle Rock

It's a winter wonderland, and it's not going away any time soon -- more snow is expected on Monday (photo by Darrell Bressler).

Cafe is electrical, so the decision was made to close this part of Bentley, he said. The Eagle Rock Cafe was closed from January 17, following the power outage, until Saturday, when it re-opened.

The C-Store remained open during the deep freeze that was taking place outside. According to Wilt, nothing would be lost in the store if the power went off, unlike in the Eagle Rock Cafe, where food that was being prepared could go to waste if there was a power outage.

Because of the power outage and the need to conserve electricity, many dishes in Bentley remained dirty. Although the weather outside did not set the mood for a summer picnic, the paper plates and cups, as well as plastic spoons, forks, and knives that had to be used in the Upper Deck certainly did.

According to Wilt, the dining service always has enough of these items available to "get through a meal or two." However, after hearing from Pennsylvania Power and Light (PP&L), the dining service called the paper supplier and received more paper and plastic dining supplies last Thursday morning, he said.

"We got tons of paper supplies," Wilt said.

The paper plates and cups and plastic utensils were used during the dinner meals on January 17, 18, and 19, Wilt said.

Another way in which the winter weather affected Bentley was that, due to the possibility of the power being shut off, the dinner hours were shortened. The shortened hours ran from 3 to 5 p.m. After 5 p.m., it would have been too dark in the cafeteria to serve a meal if there was no power, Wilt said.

"The most difficulty we had was with the extreme cold and what to do with all the snow because it didn't go away - it stayed," said Vice President of Student Affairs Dr. Linda Koch about the recent weather.

Things aren't about to get any better. While the bitter cold is gone, the snow isn't. And with more of the white stuff due to fall Monday, we can be sure that things will get even messier before they get better.

Phone-a-thon to raise money

by Jen Baer
Eagle Eye News Editor

The phones of University alumni across the nation will soon be ringing as the annual alumni phone-a-thon is held next month.

Sixteen students will be needed to make roughly 10,000 calls to those who have graduated from the University, Jim Reeser, alumni director, said. The alumni phone-a-thon is conducted every year to raise money for the University.

The phone-a-thon will begin on Feb. 9 and continue until Feb. 20.

This year the alumni will be asked to give their donations for student scholarships, although they can give their money to other University needs, Reeser said.

"I feel that, as I sit here as alumni director, that student aid is very important," he said.

Reeser feels the students are the most important need at the school. "Our biggest need is to get as much money as we can to help students pay the bills," he said.

According to Reeser, the phone-a-thon usually raises about $50,000 for the University.

He feels this year's phone-a-thon will also be a success. "We're getting almost a little more every year," he said.

Reeser said he hopes to get young alumni to give a small contribution of perhaps five or ten dollars so they get in the habit of donating money every year.

"If we can raise money to help 50 more students this year, this phone-a-thon will be a success," Reeser stated.

Students are needed to make the phone calls, which will usually be made between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m., Reeser said. Calls will be made on Mondays through Thursdays, as well as on Sundays, when alumni in the western states will be contacted, he said.

Reeser would like students who can work every night to make the calls. He would also prefer students who have had some experience talking over the telephone, whether it involved doing fundraising or having a summer job that entailed making a lot of phone calls.

Students will make $5 an hour making the calls through the week and $6 an hour calling on the two Sundays during the phone-a-thon, Reeser said.

According to Reeser, the phone-a-thon has been conducted for ten or eleven years at the University. Director of Development Lynn Lytle was the originator of the event, he said.

Groups used to volunteer their time to conduct the phone-a-thon, but it was not as controlled when this was the case, Reeser said. Students would show up if they wanted to and leave when it suited them, he said. According to Reeser, paying students to make the calls has worked out better.

Alumni living nationwide will be contacted during the phone-a-thon. "We're going to call from Pennsylvania to California," Reeser stated.

Reeser has been in charge of the event for four years, although he made it clear that everybody in the advancement department does their job to help.

According to Reeser, students have made important contacts with alumni whom they have been asked to call. The students seem to enjoy it and get to know older people who may be in their major, he said.

Students interested in making the calls should report to the Alumni Room on the first floor of Akeley on Tuesday, Feb. 1 at 6 p.m. There they will have an orientation session, where they will learn more about the event and fill out an information sheet. They will then be notified as to whether or not they were hired.

University professor and student participate in geography meeting

Dr. Donald E. Green, professor of geography at the University, and David Hill, a University student, recently participated in the Pennsylvania Geographical Society's (PGS) annual meeting held in Grantville, PA.

Green, president of the society and member of the program committee, acted as convener of each day's activities at the two-day event. He also was the master of ceremonies at the banquet and delivered a paper concerning the research he conducted during the summer of 1993. The paper was titled "Cultural Adaptations to Physical Environments--The Siberian Example."

David Hill, from Perkasi, PA, presented his paper, "Pollution in the Mediterranean," to those in attendance.

The society holds the annual meeting to highlight new research and teaching methods and foster the application of geography. PGS also publishes a semi-annual journal, "Pennsylvania Geographer," which presents a variety of articles of general interest to all.

Professor invited to participate in computer conference

Dr. Douglas S. Campbell, the University's chairperson of the English/philosophy/journalism department, has been invited to give a presentation on databases at the first Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education Computer Conference.

Campbell's presentation, "Constructing Computer Databases for Academic Department Course Scheduling," focuses on using computer programs to design more effective curricula. He will demonstrate how a relational database can prevent potential scheduling conflicts and make possible more diverse schedules for students that are also more equitable for faculty.

The conference is scheduled for May 1994 at Bloomsburg University and is dedicated to exploring ways that the computer can be used to improve the curriculum.

End the heat wave

It's winter and there are 20" of snow outside... so why are students wearing shorts and sweating in the dorms?

Does anyone notice something odd about this campus? Maybe the fact that in the middle of winter almost every window in every residence hall is open?

During last week's energy crisis, Pennsylvania residents were asked to turn down their heat. It was one of the few times we were able to sit in our residence hall rooms with the windows shut.

If the temperature in the residence halls was lowered to a livable temperature, the University could save a good deal of money. Every time a student opens a residence hall window, he or she is allowing all the heat to escape outside.

With tuition continuing to climb and the state continuing to cut our funding, we simply can't afford to keep heating the great outdoors.

Although there are some complications concerning how the heating systems are networked in the residence halls, the heat could be turned down. Last week proved that.

Does it really take an energy crisis for us to realize that we could turn down the heat and still survive? We're not advocating that we all walk around in woolen clothing to save a few bucks, but when you wear shorts every night in your room during winter, it's a little warm.

In an effort to adjust temperature, there will obviously be some people who will think it's too cold. But most people are tired of sweating in their dorms, and as has been demonstrated again and again, majority rules.

Snow, tremors cancel comedians

To the editor,

First allow me to clear up a few misconceptions about several non-events last week. Jon Stewart was not able to perform Friday, Jan. 21 due to the earthquake(s) in Los Angeles.

Every effort is being made for Jon Stewart to perform at Lock Haven University later this spring or next fall.

Initially comedian Robbie Printz was to appear in Jon Stewart's place, but he had to be canceled due to the weather emergency.

Additional entertainer "Simon Sez" Bobby Gold was to have appeared on Tuesday Jan. 18, but he had to rescheduled until March 15 due to the snow and ice storms the previous day.

I must say that it is a dubious accomplishment to invoke the "Act of God" clause three times in one week, for three different acts, and for three different catastrophes.

While the previous week put a damper on the initial activities planned for this semester, at least four other comedians, several bands and coffeehouse performers, and a full movie schedule are planned.

Oh yeah, and a major concert is being planned for the end of the semester. If you or anyone you know would like to become involved, please stop by the SCC offices [in the upper level of the PUB - e.d. note] or call 893-2331.

Office hours

The editor in chief holds office hours from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., Monday through Friday. The advertising sales manager holds office hours every Friday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Layout hours are from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday. The Eagle Eye offices are closed Saturday and Sunday.

Letters to the Editor

Last semester we had to throw out nearly a third of all the letters we received. Not because of the content of the letters -- we'll print almost anything submitted as long as we have the room. No, the reason why many letters didn't get in was because of little things.

Like the author forgetting to sign the letter. Or the author not including his or her phone number. Or because the author wrote too much (letters should be no longer than 200 words).

We want to publish any letter we get, but we can't if all of these basic criteria, expected by any newspaper, are not met. These rules exist to protect you as well as us -- you don't want people running around impersonating you, and we don't want letters we can't prove are legitimate. So please, keep your letters short, sign them and include your phone number.

You can drop them off at the Eagle Eye, (on the lower level of the PUB) or mail them to "Eagle Eye, Parsons Union Building, LHU Lock Haven PA, 17745." All letters are due in by Tuesday at 5 p.m., the week of publication.

All announcements, meeting listings, club information and personals are free to the students, faculty and staff of Lock Haven University. All others pay $2.50. Classifieds are due in at the Eagle Eye office by noon the Wednesday of the week of publication.

Display Advertisements

Display ads sell for five dollars per column inch. University-related organizations receive a half-price discount. Special rates are available. All advertisements are due the at noon the Wednesday before the week of publication (This Wednesday for next Friday's paper).

For more information, call our offices at (717) 893-2334 on Fridays from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and ask to talk to our Advertising Sales Manager, Jessica Stulls.

Who runs the Eagle Eye?

Who runs the Eagle Eye? The answers is simple -- the editors.

The Eagle Eye is not funded by the administration of Lock Haven University. Our bills are paid by the Student Cooperative Council, Inc., and by the advertisements we publish every week.

The articles, opinions, pictures and layout of the Eagle Eye are the responsibility of the staff, and do not reflect the views of the students, faculty or the administration unless specified.

What that means is simple. The University doesn't tell us what to write. The SCC doesn't tell us what to write. A secret, ultra-left wing liberal alliance doesn't tell us what to write either.

We write what we think the students want to know. We try to keep you informed of events both on and off campus. We try to keep you thinking about the topics that affect the student body. That's our job. It's what we're being trained to do.

Using art to understand the natural world

The University's 1994 Artist Exhibit Series opened Monday evening at 8 p.m. with a lecture by featured artist Rosalyn Richards in Sloan Gallery.

"The source for my visual work has been the aerial landscape and the textures found within rock formations," Richards said. "These subjects provide a richness and complexity of organic form and visual relationships, while also conveying the spirit and energy of the landscape."

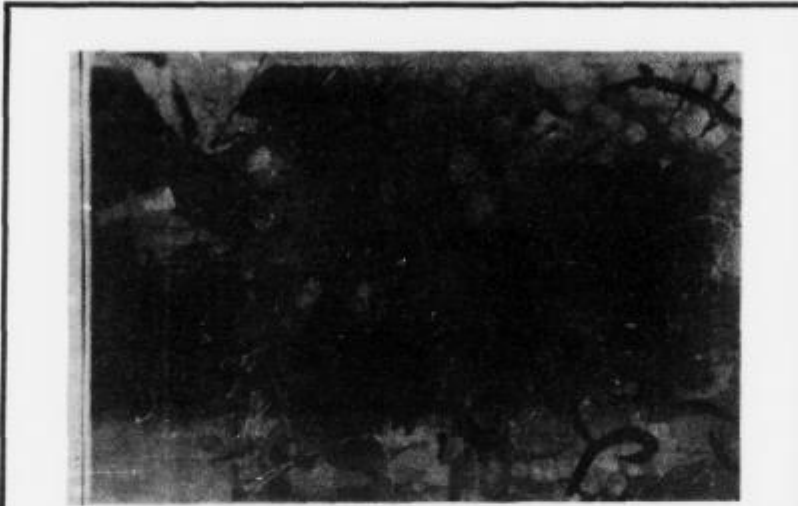

"Movement, change, growth and decay are the center of nature's flow and the energies that I attempt to touch through my work," said Richards, who blends chaotic qualities with more structured forms to create her memorable works.

"What lies at the heart of all I do is an attempt to grow in understanding and sharpen my perceptions of the natural world," said Richards.

She earned her Master's of Fine Arts degree from Yale University School of Art and has shown her work in solo and group exhibits since the mid-1970s.

Richards recently displayed her art in Boston, Richmond and San Antonio. Her illustrations, woodcuts and etchings have been published in four books, the most recent being The Light Station on Tillamook Rock by Madeline DeFrees.

Sloan display shows artist's use of landscapes and rocks as subjects

Richards said the source of her work are "the aerial landscape and textures found in rock formations" (photo by April Miller).

She has also received various awards including the Patron Selection Award from the R.J. Reynolds Corporation, the Vera List Award from the Society of American Graphic Artists, and the Cook Award from Bucknell University.

Richards' works will be on display until Feb. 25 in Sloan Gallery. The Gallery is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Artist Exhibit Series invites artists from across the country to display their works in the Gallery of Sloan Fine Arts Building. A reception, in which the artist gives a lecture about his or her art, is held the first Monday of the month the artist's works are displayed.

Comedian problems are not funny

by Sue Heintzelman
Eagle Eye Features Editor

Last week just wasn't good for comedians. After scheduling and rescheduling, the SCC still had no entertainment for students during their long weekend.

Comedian Bobby Gold with his 'Simon Sez' act was scheduled to appear in the PUB's Multi-Purpose Room at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 18. Snow, ice and assorted winter weather hazards prevented the comedian from traveling to Lock Haven from New York, said Steven Bennett, social committee chair for the SCC.

Bobby Gold has been rescheduled for March 15. More details will follow at a later date.

After taking care of the effects of one natural disaster, another struck -- an earthquake. MTV's Jon Stewart, who was scheduled for performance on Jan. 21 was stalled in Los Angeles because of the earthquake.

To remedy the situation, Bennett rescheduled another comedian for the Friday performance time through the same agency.

Then yet another natural disaster struck. With the University being closed because of the emergency disaster situation, Bennett cancelled the comedian.

Bennett said he will work to reschedule Stewart for a later date. Comedian Rondell Sheridan will be appearing in the PUB Multi-Purpose Room at 8 p.m. Let's pray for sunshine.

(See related letter to the editor on page 4.)

MTV Comedian Jon Stewart was unable to appear at LHU due to the Los Angeles earthquake.

Music

Lock Haven Life

With third music review, King's X to rule

By Matt Walsh
Eagle Eye Music Critic

Welcome back! Now that we're done trudging through all that snow and ice, it's time to realize how much we forgot from last semester due to brain cells we killed on New Year's.

For those of you who actually decided to read my column this semester, I am the music director for our campus radio station, 90.3 FM WLHU. Each week I will review an album on the cutting edge, which you may not have heard of otherwise. This will keep you a few steps ahead of the "MTV World." In the past, a lot of the bands I have mentioned have gone on to big careers. Two of the big new names in 1993, Stone Temple Pilots and Tool, and what seems to be the next "big thing," Rage Against The Machine, popped up in my column in 1992. Hopefully I will be as fortunate in 1994.

Some of you may have heard of King's X before. Their video for "It's Love" in 1991 was one of MTV's first "Buzz Clips." They also had a second "Buzz Clip" with "Black Flag." This past Tuesday saw the release of the fifth album from King's X, Dogman (Atlantic Records.) The King's X sound had always been some of the best structured music I have heard. Combining a heavy, melodic sound with incredible Beatlesque vocal harmonies, Dogman brings King's X one step higher. The one thing that makes King's X stand out from other bands is that all three members have fantastic voices. This provides a little added variety in the songs without a loss in quality, especially the harmony they bring when they sing together. Songs include the title track, "Shoes," "Fool You," "Human Behavior," and an incredible cover of Jimi Hendrix's "Manic Depression."

With two buzz clips under their belt, there is sure to be another one when they release their first single, which will probably be "Dogman." Hopefully, with alternative music being more acceptable in mainstream America, King's X will finally get the success they've deserved for a long time. As far as my knowledge, King's X is the first band to have three of its albums reviewed in the Eagle Eye (I wasn't the only one,) so it's safe to say that this is an album you definitely should check out.

1994 has just begun and already there have been enough great albums to keep me occupied in this column for most of the semester. Look out for great new releases from ZZ Top, Prong, and Carcass. Being involved in the music business, I sometimes have the privilege of getting albums well before they are released. This past Tuesday brought the release of another great album which has been stuck in my walkman for the past month. Next week I'll review an album so good, a major company sponsored its release.

"We played well, there's no question about it," stated Blank. "We had nine guys who played their hearts out and gave 110 percent, we have some guys who are short on talent but long on heart, and I think we showed that tonight."

The team, wearing numbers 33 and 10 taped to the back of their Nikes, seemed to be paying homage to their fallen stars, and Blank summed up his team's performance as "spirited."

This was no more evident than in the second half when the game was wrapped up as Watkins swatted a Shippensburg shot into the mezzanine and then hustled back down the court to finish the break with a sweet reverse lay-up.

Watkins contributed 14 points and seven rebounds and provided the intensity to a Haven game plan that was the essence of team ball. Five players scored eight or more points and the team racked up an impressive 24 assists, half of which were play of the week caliber.

The Eagles shot a remarkable 53 percent from the field and erased any doubts about their ability to play without Crosby or Franklin. The only question that remains is if they can sustain this level of play and achieve the goal at hand, the playoffs.

The Haven now enter the heart of their schedule with eight divisional games and must go at least 6-2 for a realistic shot at the post-season in the parity filled PSAC-West.

The Shippensburg victory can be used as a springboard, but the odds seem to be against the young-squad. Still they seem to relish the challenge if the Ship game was any indication.

The Crosby-Franklin situation is still unraveling as of this moment and their absences will be felt.

The second season has begun for the Eagles -- a new team with a new attitude, and still a lot left to prove.

Lloyd and Co. thrash York

by Mike Bower
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

Beth Lloyd set three new school records and qualified herself for every PSAC championship event when Lock Haven blasted York College, 148-74.

"It was an absolute blowout," said Coach Tom Justice. "Our programs are going in opposite directions." It was the first time in the history of Lock Haven swimming that the team finished first in every event.

The 1,000 freestyle saw Lloyd break her first record of the evening. She swam the event in a time of 11:22.89, beating the old record by 30 seconds. Meg Wetterau finished second.

Lloyd also broke records in the 200 backstroke and the 100 butterfly. It was the first time she swam the backstroke this year. Justice said the problem with Lloyd qualifying in every event for the PSAC's is choosing which events to swim.

A swimmer is allowed to swim only three individual events at the championships. On the subject of the meet against York College, Justice praised Lloyd's swimming.

Lock Haven swept every event that they could enter two swimmers except two. They earned a first in the 200 medley relay. Brenda Tkaczuk and Jen Lewis finished in-first and second place respectively in the 200 freestyle.

The 100 breaststroke had Tkaczuk and Mona Guha sweeping the first two positions. Carla Ford earned a first in the 200 fly with a time of 2:34.75.

Other results were Jen Tomel's winning 50 freestyle time of 28.10. Wetterau and Lewis garnered first and second place respectively in the 500 free.

Ford took a first in the 200 IM with a time of 2:42.58 and a second in the 100 fly. Guha finished second in the 200 IM and dueled it out with York College's swimmer to earn a first in the 200 breaststroke.

The only negative note for the team was a disqualification in the 200 free relay for a false start. Justice described the incident saying the official called the swimmers to the blocks, told them to take their marks, and then told them to stand up.

At that time Tomel fell into the water and was disqualified. There was no discussion between the official and the referee even though the rulebook states this should take place. Justice said he did not hear the referee say stand up or he would have questioned the call at the time. He did not find out until the ride home when the other team told Justice they heard the referee say stand up. Justice had the team swim the event anyway and they swam 16 seconds faster than York College.

"We needed a meet like this. We matched up well with them. Where they had their best swimmers, we had ours and we were a bit better. It was the same with the slower swimmers, but we were still a little better," said Justice.

The team swam well even though they did not get the benefit out of their Florida trip as they usually do. They trained in an outdoor pool, but because of the cold weather the pool closed of unbearable conditions.

"They did not get the benefit of the Florida trip as they did in the past. The same could be said for the other teams. Our swimmers just rebelled to the cold water and we lost some conditioning."

This Saturday, the team is having their last home meet of the season. They will be hosting Kutztown and Millersville. Justice says his team is much better than Kutztown and will have little problem with them, but Millersville will be tough. The team will take an overall 3-3 mark into the weekend meet.

Kozlowski and Baird steer Haven past Ship

by Kevin Kovac
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

Win. Loss. Win. Loss. That's the pattern the University women's basketball team has been into since their quick jump out of the season starting gate.

The Lady Eagles, who won four of their opening five games, have not captured nor lost back-to-back contests in their last eight. Following their narrow 71-69 victory over Shippensburg University Wednesday night at Thomas Fieldhouse, their record stood at 8-5 overall and 2-2 in PSAC-West competition.

Frank Scarfo, the women's head coach, surely would be happier if a couple of close ballgames had gone his team's way -- there was a two-point loss to Kutztown on Jan. 5 and a three-point defeat at the hands of Slippery Rock Jan. 15 -- but he's smiling about his squad's performance, nonetheless.

They've played competitively in almost every encounter, and even garnered a big Conference road win at Clarion University last Saturday.

As Scarfo forecasted, seniors Holly Kozlowski and Suzie Baird have been the constants on a relatively young, inexperienced Lady Eagle team. Kozlowski leads the squad with an 18 ppg average, while Baird has shined brightly in PSAC-West play, converting 44 percent of her three-point goals and averaging 18.3 ppg.

Baird's long-distance accuracy was especially important in Wednesday's victory over Shippensburg. She nailed a trey late in the second half to give her team a lead it never relinquished.

The Lady Eagles will return to the Thomas Field House court in search of an elusive second consecutive win against Edinboro University tomorrow afternoon at 1. They then travel to East Stroudsburg University for a non-division game Monday night.

Eagles sink Ship as ...

Crosby, Franklin are suspended

by Dan Murray
Eagle Eye Sports Editor

Basketball standouts Shon Crosby and Chris Franklin were two of three students asked to leave the University this past week by the administration after an investigation into the two hoopsters' participation in a hazing incident, according to University spokesperson Luanne Lawrence.

The players were charged along with another student in violation of the University's policy on conduct and the hazing of a student stemming from an incident within the Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

In a statement released Wednesday by the Sports Information office, Lock Haven University director of athletics, Sharon Taylor, had announced the immediate suspension of senior Crosby and junior Franklin from the basketball team.

Details of the incident were unavailable and terms of the suspension are undisclosed.

The three students were asked by the university administration to leave the institution.

When asked to elaborate on the situation, Taylor said, "All I can say right now is what's in the statement, and that is the two players (Crosby and Franklin) have been suspended."

Taylor continued, "This is standard procedure and we are trying to act responsibly in keeping the best interests of both parties."

University men's basketball coach Dave Blank's response was similar, "As of now I've been instructed not speak beyond what's in the statement, what I do understand though is that the players are going through appeals with the administration."

Crosby, a pre-season All-American, is the men's basketball team's all-time leading scorer and the focal point in the offensive scheme.

Franklin, the Eagle's starting point guard, is the team leader in assists and steals and regarded as the leader on the court.

Men's Basketball

Both players were unable to be reached for comment on the situation and this story is still in the early stages of development as of press time.

Although this shocking news has undoubtedly caused a major rift of uncertainty surrounding the team, the squad still had matters to tend to Wednesday night as they tipped-off against divisional foe, Shippensburg, at Thomas Fieldhouse.

The Haven responded by turning in their most inspired game in recent memory as they banded together in routing the Red Raiders, 87-67.

The win snapped a four game losing streak for the Eagles which saw them drop to 7-7 overall and 0-3 in the PSAC-West and give the team a glimmer of hope for the playoffs.

A milestone was also set Wednesday night as coach Dave Blank broke the mark for career wins by a men's basketball coach with eclipsing the previous mark of 92.

Michael Shue, the precocious freshman from Dover, Pa, led a squad that did more than an admirable job in the absence of Crosby and Franklin.

Shue poured in 33 points on 9 for 17 shooting and was fearless from three-point land, burying six of twelve shots.

Shue was backed by a slew of newcomers in Leo Skorupa, Todd Pavlovich, Chad McKinney and Dan D'Angelo as the Eagles dominated the tempo from start to finish.

The venerable ones, Harold Tyson, Vic Watkins, Keith Greene and Todd Hawkins provided gasoline for the fire in jumping starting the Eagle attack, which saw the Haven jump out to a 20-7 lead.

Gillespie out four weeks ...

Grapplers prep for PSAC's

by Jason Hagan
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

The Lock Haven wrestling team is now halfway through their season, posting a record of nine wins and three losses (2-1 PSAC; 1-1 EWL). Over the break they suffered two hard fought losses to Cornell and Wisconsin at the Virginia duals and placed seventh. In their last dual meet the University of Pittsburgh was able to slip through their fingers as Lock Haven lost 20-19.

The Haven grapplers have had to deal with losing valuable varsity players in four weight classes due to injuries. All was not lost however. The injuries gave the younger matmen a chance to standout.

Wrestling

Sophomore Shawn Miller (126), freshman Joe Barbera (126), and Bryan Litzol (142) have come in and recorded wins crucial to the teams success. They were part of the three match sweep at the Old Dominion Duals in early January and a 25-12 spanking of Cleveland State last weekend.

Success is the goal of the Lock Haven wrestling program and it is individuals like team leader Shannon Gillespie who show the way. Unfortunately Gillespie is temporarily out of action due to necessary knee surgery this week.

Gillespie was a third place finisher in the NCAA Division I tourney last year. Now as a senior he will hopefully return despite his knee. Currently ranked fifth in the nation, he is already beginning therapy and other treatments on his knee. Coach Carl Poff said that Gillespie should be back on the mat in about four weeks.

Junior 158-pounder Scott Goodale is on a rampage this season leading the team with a 23-6 record. He nearly defeated the number two ranked man in the nation from Cal Poly, losing by one point. The loss was the end of Goodale's impressive 7-0 unbeaten streak.

For Goodale, the competition is welcomed and the momentum will be taken into this weekends PSAC Championships. Along with Goodale, Senior Brad Silimperi (118), Shawn Husick (126), Mike Rogers (134), Tirso Valls (167), Joe Eaton (Hwt) and the entire team will attempt to defend their title.
