Foul Goals—L. H. T. C.: Weber 3x5, Gunderman 2x4, Marshall 2x2, Hammaker 1x2, Plummer 0x2, Cowfer 0x1; S. T. C.: Spangler 2x2, Green 1x7, Slaybaugh 1x1, Conrad 0x1, Mitchell 0x1.

Substitutions—L. H. T. C.: Marshall for Plummer, Cooke for Hager, Weipsic for Weber, Cowfer for Hammaker; S. T. C.: Day for Spangler, Conrad for McVicker, Krug for Slaybaugh.

Playing their best game of the season, the Raiders passed and shot their way to a 38-16 victory over the powerful Shippensburg T. C. five Saturday evening on the local court. A large crowd of students, alumni, and townspeople were on hand to witness the more or less one-sided struggle. The locals ran up a score of 12-1 in the opening quarter and were never headed nor in danger of losing their lead. Their team work, fighting spirit, and shooting were of the highest quality and rank with the best exhibitions ever seen on the local court. In the scoring Weber, Hager and Hammaker led the Raiders with Green and Mitchell outstanding for the visitors. The entire Raider squad, including the subs, played a great close-guarding game, limiting the visitors to six double-deckers, three in each half. The result of this game will no doubt give Coach Morgan and his squad the

Former Dean of Women is Week End Guest of S. T. C.

Miss Gertrude Roberts, of Altoona, former Dean of Women at S. T. C., visited friends here over the week end. Miss Roberts is now a member of the English Department in the Altoona High School.

Those who were home at Williamsport during the week end were Evelyn Hinkleman, Gladys Messinger, and Marion Francisco.

Rev. C. W. Guinter Addresses Joint Meeting of Y. M.-Y. W.

The campus Christian associations held their weekly meeting jointly on Wednesday evening, January 21, in order that all the students in the college might have the opportunity of hearing the message brought by Rev. Clarence W. Guinter, whom the Y. W. C. A. had invited as guest speaker for its evening meeting.

Reverend Guinter, at present a resident of Williamsport, has been for many years a missionary in Africa as a representative of the Evangelical Church. Though poor health has forced a prolonged furlough from the field where his interests lie, Reverend Guinter hopes to return to his work in the "Dark Continent" in the future.

The message which Reverend Guinter brought to the large audience of students who assembled in the college auditorium was in interesting story form, bringing home so clearly his point of what change the Christian Gospel can bring to the lives of people totally uneducated and uncivilized. Reverend Guinter told of the many things that had been done among the natives of the Nigeria country where he has been stationed and of the wonderfully improved living conditions which have come to these people through the heroic efforts of pioneer Christian leaders and teachers struggling against seemingly impossible odds. In concluding his remarks, Reverend Guinter showed what a wonderful field of service is open to those, especially men and women trained in the teaching profession, who have the courage and vision to enter such life work.

Life

By J. SILAGYI

Life is the echo of a nymph's cry for a star;

Life is a long sip

From the dregs of Pluto's cup;

Life is a cactus

Into which has been breathed

A quivering soul.

Life is the torn garment of a baccharal reveler;

Life is a pattern of ragged leaves

On cold, dry ground;

Life is seventy miles to the moon

When it hangs directly behind

The house of Peace.

Life is the swansong of God;

Life is a windblown melody

Played on Pan's flute;

Life is a toy kite flying the sky—

Its gauzy silver string

I cannot hold.

Faculty Members Entertain Two State Educators at Tea

The Blue Room was the scene of a very attractive tea given on Tuesday, January 27, by the faculty in honor of Dr. Mary Riggs Noble, chief of the pre-school division of the state health department and Miss Helen Purcell, director of the state kindergarten and elementary education. Many of the faculty were present. Miss Jessie Scott Himes, assistant director of the Training School in charge of the kindergarten and primary department, together with Miss Belle Holaway, Dean of Women, and Miss Sue Northey, supervisor of the kindergarten, received the guests. Girls of the third and fourth year college group specializing in kindergarten aided in the serving.

Lock Haven was honored with the presence of these distinguished guests, who are here for a few days for the purpose of observing the Training School.

Y. W. C. A. Entertains New Members at Tea in Y. Room

A tea in honor of the new girls was given by the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet on Wednesday, January 21, from 4.30 to 6 o'clock.

Miss Rowe and Alice Read, President, received. The Social Committee, Frances Stokes, chairman, had charge of refreshments, and Madeline Lesser, the undergraduate representative, poured.

Rev. C. W. Guinter, guest speaker at the evening "Y" meeting, and Mr. Ulmer and Miss Holaway were also present to receive the new students. The Social Relationship Committee, under the direction of Kathleen Noll, was also present since their work deals with the little sister problem and the adjusting of the girls to the social life of the college.

The decorations for the tea were a symphony of black and white. White luncheon cloths bore clever black motifs and the same design was carried out on the napkins. Nut sandwiches, cakes, tea, and mints were served.

Credit Courses in Visual Education Now Offered

A visual education course, which is being offered this semester as an experiment, will meet every Wednesday and Friday at 3.20 under the direction of Mr. Ulmer. The object of the course is to give the student an appreciation of visual aids and to acquaint him with those aids which can be used for teaching.

Mr. Ulmer outlined a very interesting program to the few students who reported for the course last Wednesday. The class is open to students who do not have the maximum number of required credits for a semester. One credit is being given for the work.

More Carnegie Tests on Schedule for Junior Class

Last Monday Mr. R. Stewart MacDougall, Director of the Training School, conferred in Harrisburg with Dr. W. S. Leonard, Director of the Russell Sage Foundation, concerning the next phase of the Carnegie Test Series, which are being administered to all the 1928 high school graduates in 51 different colleges in Pennsylvania. These tests, an experiment which may result in a worth-while standardization, indicate among other things that the general level of intelligence in Teachers Colleges in the state ranks on an equal basis with the intelligence in the other liberal arts college education courses.

Mr. MacDougall's trip is of special interest to the members of the College Junior Class, who for the past four years have been subject to these tests. What the next phase of development is has not yet been disclosed.

Rev. W. M. Taylor Talks On The Holy Land at Vespers

Rev. William Morgan Taylor, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church, drew a most interesting word picture of the Holy Land in his talk at the Sunday evening Vesper Services. Every student who attended these services surely has a much more definite conception of this land where so much of world-wide importance has occurred.

The services were held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and were led by Kermit Stover.

Special music was furnished by the Vesper Choir under the direction of Miss Lottie Larabee. This music included a very fine baritone solo, "Face to Face," by Harold Cronister.

Miss Himes Addresses the Ferndale P. T. Association

Upon the invitation of Mr. H. M. Spengler, President of the Ferndale Parent-Teachers Association, Miss Jessie Scott Himes, Supervisor of the Kindergarten-Primary Group of S. T. C., addressed the January meeting of the Ferndale organization last week on the subject "Conserving the Wealth of the Commonwealth—its Children."

Miss Himes, who spent several days in Ferndale, Johnstown, and vicinity, visiting the Kindergarten-Primary schools, commented very favorably upon the organization of the Parent-Teachers Association which she addressed. Its program regularly includes a forty-minute study class composed of men and women, a forty-minute entertainment by the school pupils, and a forty-minute address by an outside speaker. On the evening of Miss Himes' address, the pupil participation consisted of music by the Junior and Senior High School and the Kindergarten orchestra.

Intra-Mural Basketball

The Intra-mural Basketball League has gotten well under way with the close of last week.

In the American League, Captain Poust's team has won three games in as many starts. They also hold the scoring honors, having piled up 100 points to the opposition's 35. Captain Sekula's team also has a clean slate with two victories in as many starts. The highest individual scoring honors are held by Hal Poust, captain of team No. 1, followed by Hoy, Kell, and Ziff with 35, 25 and 21 points, respectively.

Competition has been very keen in the National League, also, the teams generally winning by close scores. Captain Dettrey's team holds first place, closely followed by Captain Bob Smith's team. Both teams have been undefeated thus far. Dettrey's five has won two games while Smith's quintet has captured one game, the only tilt played by them. The highest individual scorers in the National League are Bossert and Robb, with 20 and 14, respectively.

Boxers Being Coached by Morgan, Fredericks, Swan

Coach Morgan, assisted by Wynn Fredericks, well known assistant T. C. football coach, and Joe Swan, who has had experience in training and conditioning boxers in Buffalo, N. Y., are now engaged for part of each afternoon in giving boxing instruction to the men students of our college.

The first three weeks are to be devoted mainly to instruction and training. After this the men will be divided into classes according to weight.

Several Students Leave

In addition to those who left S. T. C. through graduation, several other members of our group have departed with the closing of the first semester. Eleanor Cox, Elizabeth Hendricks, Ann Viering and Helena Gehron have withdrawn from the school, the latter to take up work at Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport. Six other girls—Esther Hoffer, Cora Beck, Alice Allen, Florence Winter, Betty Dalby, and Anna Mary Gilson—have also left the campus, but these girls plan to commute during the present semester.

Beta Sig's to Entertain

The Beta Sigma Chi's will entertain the other sororities at an Intersorority Tea on February 6th, in the Blue Room. Decorations will be carried out in valentine motifs.

Times Staff Elects Editors

The Times Staff held its weekly meeting Monday evening. At this meeting the Board of Editors for the ensuing nine weeks was elected: Peg Beeson, Alumni Exchange Editor; Eirar Eliason, Men's Sports Editor; Mary Thompson, Girls' Sports Editor; Royce Johnson, Joke Editor; Kermit Stover, Business Manager; Paul Bundy, Circulation Manager; Olive Livingston, Subscription Manager. Julia Silagyi has been chosen by the board of control as make-up editor.

R. O. L.'s Hold Meeting

The Rho Omega Lambda sorority held its regular meeting in the sorority room Monday evening. Plans were made for the Alumni Banquet which will be held April 25. The business meeting was in charge of the president, Ruth Grier.

Music Clubs Plan Operetta

The Girls' Glee Club and Men's Choral Club are planning to jointly produce an operetta sometime in April under the direction of Miss Mabel-Louise Arey and Miss Marjorie Roach. The orchestra will play the accompaniments.

Clever tooled change purses are the next project of the Art Club.

necessary confidence to make themselves and their ability felt in basketball circles among the Teachers Colleges of the State.

The next game on the local schedule finds the Raiders opposing the Bloomsburg T. C. five at that place Friday evening, and, though not predicting victory, Coach Morgan expects his boys to put up a hard fight against the so-far undefeated Bloom quintet.

Pantomime Given Under Direction of Miss Dixon

Under the direction of Miss Dixon, a pantomime, "Pussy in the Well," was given for the benefit of the first three grades in the demonstration room of the Training School on Friday morning, January 23, 1931. The fourth grade girls danced "Jump Jim Crow," the accompaniment being played by Miss Dixon. The rest of the music was furnished by James Harlan. "The Bad Boy, Jim Green," was played by Frances Stokes; "The Good Boy, Tommy Trout," by Peggy Stouck; the constable, by Clara Williams, and the bellringers by Barbara Rhoads and Barbara Sloop. The pantomime was greatly enjoyed by the youthful audience.

Among the Plots

"Dawn," Irving Bacheller—One of the prerequisites of a historical novel is that it must adequately reproduce the spirit of the age with which it deals. The novel need not be a succession of bare historical facts, but like any other novel it may range anywhere from the unrelenting realism of a Hamlin Garland to the symbolism of a Nathaniel Hawthorne. The author, however, must know his materials and handle them with skill. Irving Bacheller in "Dawn" has not failed to follow this precept. He has evaluated for us the autocratic Roman officials of the Empire and the morally undisciplined Roman gentlemen; he has reproduced for us the cleansing effect Christianity had upon the decadent Roman civilization.

Irving Bacheller's technique in writing this novel is very simple, but far from crude. He has taken one single incident related in the Bible and employed it as a climax for his novel. All the events that precede this incident in some way prepare us for the climax and every event that follows contributes to the unraveling of the plot. The particular incident he uses is Christ's rescue of the woman whom the Pharisees stoned and whom He commands at the same time to go and sin no more.

Irving Bacheller entrusts the relating of this narrative to the heroine, Lady Doris herself, and the effect is so vivid that it is as if we ourselves had suddenly come upon her sheets of vellum in a niche in a crumbling wall of Jerusalem; it seems as if we had almost seen her dignified, sincere, serene, self-respecting, and courageous spirit as we read the story of her life.

Girls' Choose Leaders for Coming Basketball Games

Girls' basketball captains have recently been selected for the coming season. The experienced players, divided according to classes, have chosen the following to lead them:

- Dorries—First Year Primary
- Benson—First Year Primary
- Hopler—First Year Intermediate
- Oven—First Year Intermediate
- Barndt—First Year College
- Hill—First Year College

The beginners also divided themselves into three groups and selected the following captains:

- Payne—First Year Primary
- Waltman—First Year Intermediate
- Pelton—First Year Intermediate

The scheduled teams play at regular practice periods and at a later date the best players from the various teams will be chosen for the varsity. Since varsity membership means 100 points, W. A. A. credit, everyone is working hard to earn a berth on the team.

The first tournament games played Monday afternoon, resulted in the following scores:

- Benson's Team—24
- Cole's Team—4
- Hill's Team—5
- Hopler's Team—5

CRITICISM

The development of a critical attitude is one of the fine outcomes and evidences of educational expansion. However, criticism wholly on the destructive plane, without any attempt on the critic's part to find good qualities or to better existing conditions, degenerates in time to mere grumbling. The tendency on the part of many college students to thus tilt over backwards in their attempts to judge matters in a critical light is quite evident.

In regard to any criticism which our college paper may incur, we of the editorial staff are asking more consideration for our efforts. Realizing the limitation of the paper, we welcome constructive criticism and any suggestions from the students for the betterment of the "Times." Instead of complaining because certain news items in which you were interested have been overlooked, however, we ask that you get in touch with a reporter before the issue comes out and guarantee its being written up. Help us by sending in your campus chatter and personal notes, and we will respond by working even harder to make the "Times" representative of the whole school.

Why Pinchot Won

Gifford Pinchot won the governorship of Pennsylvania because he was Gifford Pinchot more than because of any particular issue which he espoused. The mill workers, as well as the miners and farmers, believed in him thoroughly—a result of their experience with him under his former administration. The overwhelming bulk of their votes went to him as a result of this confidence. He made war on the Public Service Commission for what he maintained has been its unfair discrimination between the people and the public utilities. Undoubtedly this accounted for a considerable slice of his vote. But Pinchot won because he was Pinchot.

Born into a family of great wealth, part of which he inherited, nevertheless, from his youth to this day he has been a tireless worker. He seemingly has not known what it is to be wearied. The campaigns which he has conducted in Pennsylvania in the spring and fall of last year have caused even the most strenuous campaigners to stand and look in amazement. Many have wondered at the intensity with which he labors when he might retire to his estate and live the remainder of his days in ease and peace.

While Gifford Pinchot is a man of large wealth, there is no chasm between him and the poor. Thousands of his friends are sons of toil: farmers, clergymen, school teachers and housewives. Nobody thinks of the difference between rich and poor when Pinchot is present.

Governor Pinchot won because he enjoys a fight; not a fight for his own sake but for the purpose of making right something that is wrong. Nobody ever heard of his running away when a worthwhile fight was on. He has no more fear of a powerful utility boss than he has of a precinct politician.

Our state can look forward to four years of the best possible service in Pinchot's administration.

MONOLOGS OF A MORON

ON EDITORS

An editor is a singular person. He always talks about himself in the plural. There are several types of editors, the best known ones being the over-worked editor. (We know several of the type.) Then there is the make-up editor, who has nothing to do with amateur theatricals but must be a combination designer, an architect, and writer of Egyptian hieroglyphics. In fact the word "editor" is derived from the old Sanskrit, editor, oris, which means Jack-of-all-trades and vocations. About the only thing an editor doesn't have to know how to do is tap dance—the only thing an editor doesn't have to learn how to do is swear.

Editors are hard working individuals. Their big job (around S. T. C.) during January is to manufacture synthetic news. The 1930 census shows that editors are short-lived people. This is not surprising. The mid-year slump in news drives more editors to the wall than the present business depression. When this editor succumbs please inscribe on his grave:

To I. Q. M.

His life was short and sweet;
 He was noted for big feet;
 He was an editor.

By the way, speaking of Mr. Poole—he certainly takes his half out of the street.

Mary Beaver is so fond of cheese. Why does she refuse to eat it sometimes?

CAMPUS CHATTER

Ask Bob Plummer if he is training for track. He was seen doing some 100 yard dashes between Juniata and Altoona after missing the last street car on Sunday night.

Bibs Craine certainly picks peculiar spots to read poetry.

M. J. and Eileen are getting along fine. The green checks and the cretonne are also looking amiable.

By the way, when it comes to using field glasses for observations we give up the ghost. Might as well use a radio.

This moving business isn't all it's cracked up to be. One bright immigrant put all her belongings in her trunk, locked the trunk and proceeded to lose the key. What would you do in a case like that?

Our idea of the most absent minded creature in the universe: the college student who forgets to sign out until he comes in.

Talk about over-learning things—In this institution it's a sure fact that the first five letters of the alphabet will be overlearned. The practice period is about to commence.

It's too bad this picture-taking epidemic is over. We got quite a kick out of those artificial smiles and smirks which decorated the campus there for a while.

Then there was the new freshman who wanted to know if student teachers taught observations . . . .

Listening to some of these crushable, droppable records around here is complete evidence that some of us are playing the same old tunes more than the allotted fifty times per day.

Poole's taking up a new kind of exercise—heaving chairs.

Dean Weber Acts as Judge In Farm Show Play Contest

Dr. Harry F. Weber, Dean of Men, spent last week in Harrisburg, where on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday he served as one of three judges in the first State One-Act Rural Play Tournament held at the Fifth Annual Farm Show under the direction of Raymond G. Bressler, of State College. A representative group from each of twenty-one counties, presented a one-act play, production being given in the Farm Show Building. Lennox Grange, Susquehanna County, received the state sweepstakes banner for the best play.

Dr. Weber had also the pleasure while in Harrisburg of being present at the inauguration of Governor Gifford Pinchot and of being entertained along with the members of the county dramatic organizations by the Edna Preston Players. After the play the guests were invited back of the scenes to see the back stage properties which the company uses.

Listening to some of our enterprising Latin and Ancient History students around here you'd think you were walking the streets of Rome. Kay and Skin gave an exhibition of Caesar's assassination with all the trimmings the other night, but it failed due to the narrowness of our corridors.

June Breining wants to know if she can't belong to W. A. A. without paying her dues. Scotch, ain't!

These Ladies of Shallott who sit in tower windows watching for white chargers and gallant Launcelots are several centuries behind the times. They don't come that way any more.

Wouldn't it be great if we were marked solely on the efforts we take to make a good impression on our new teachers?

If Florence Daye could live 900 years she would sleep the first 400 and eat the last 500. Not bad, Florence.

Someone else says he would get married and start a harem, if he had 500 years ahead of him.

Popular Co-ed, on receiving her College Times—"I'll have to look in Us and Others and see if I went home last week."

Bobby is always much interested in his extra of the Altoona Mirror. How does he rate those special editions?

Prof. Sullivan: "Mr. Thall, what treaty closed the war of the Austrian Succession?"

Mr. Thall: "I don't know, I am not a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

Al was so anxious to use the fireplace on Friday evening that she suggested opening all doors and windows so that it would be cold enough.

Betty Fullmer Describes Pinchot Inaugural Ball

Announced by a blare of trumpets and moving under an archway of sabres, the newly elected Governor Gifford Pinchot and his wife were led onto the floor by General Stackpole. Following them came ex-Governor John S. Fisher with Mrs. Stackpole by his side. The long-awaited for Governor had come, and the dance continued, couples passing by the dignitaries box to shake hands, everyone receiving the same firm handshake from the new executive, and a cordial smile from Mrs. Pinchot. All the while, Vincent Lopez and his famous orchestra kept playing popular dances.

The occasion for the festivities was the Inaugural Ball, the time Tuesday evening, January 20th. The ball was held in the Zumbo Mosque, the new Masonic temple at Harrisburg, and was given in honor of the newly inaugurated Governor by the 104th Cavalry. The ball room reminded one of a stadium, rows of seats forming a horse shoe ranging to the floor above, while at the end was the stage. In so vast a crowd one lost any idea of size for soon the floor became thronged with dancers. The scene well resembled a flower garden, the dim lights playing in and out through the room catching a hue or sparkle of the many colored gowns.
