Senate opens nominations

By JULIA MCGOVERN
Editor-In-Chief

Highlighting the second SCC meeting was the opening of nominations to all students interested in running for a position on the SCC Executive Board.

Any student interested in the position of President, First Vice-President, Second Vice-President, Treasurer, Corresponding Secretary or Recording Secretary should contact Jeff Caulkins, chairperson of the SCC Executive Office in the lower level of the PUB.

Potential candidates must contact Caulkins before the next formal meeting of the SCC Wednesday, October 20 when the Senate will officially close nominations.

Phil Burlingame, SCC Parliamentarian, in conjunction with the SCC Constitutional Revisions Committee found many areas of the constitution which they feel need revision.

On Wednesday, October 13 at 7pm in the South Lounge of the PUB the SCC will hold an open meeting for all students to answer any questions regarding the proposed changes. The revisions are posted in each dorm and major bulletin boards around campus. The SCC Senate urges all its constituents to take the time to read the revisions and attend the meeting Wednesday to voice their opinions.

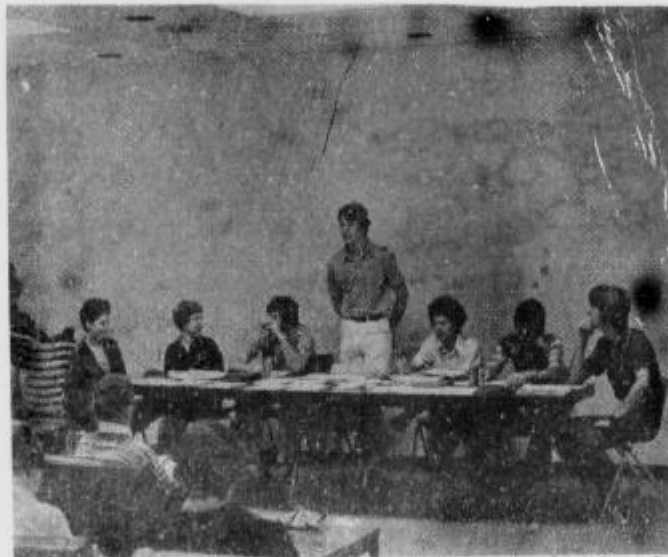

Mr. Joe Nagy, Director of the Student Union, reports that homecoming plans are coming along well and things are looking good for the upcoming weekend.

The SCC Food Service Committee chairman Lewis Wertyl, in his report to the Senate, stressed that the cafeteria will be open for the fall break weekend of October 23, 24 and 25. The only change from the regular schedule is that on Monday brunch will be served instead of breakfast and lunch.

For the fall semester the Cultural Affairs Committee hopes to attain either a science fiction or political speaker. David C. Heverely, chairman of the committee, reported that because of a budget cut and the increase in lecture fees the Cultural Affairs Committee may only be able to

New duties are planned for S.C.C. V.P. Shimer

By KEITH VERNON
Staff Reporter

The duties of Rob Shimer, the second Vice-President of the SCC, are going to be totally different, starting the week of Monday October 18.

When interviewed about his new job Shimer stated, "I'll become manager of the PUB, overseeing operations and becoming more a part of the working order of things."

Shimer also acknowledged that he would handle more student complaints than he had in the past. According to Shimer employees in the bookstore have been receiving a lot of complaints from students about such things as the cost of books. "I'll be up there to become involved and take the burden off the employees," said Shimer.

In the past, the second VP was purely concerned with organizing social activities such as dances and coffeehouses. Recently however, the job of organizing social activities was turned over to the SCC Social Committee, making it possible for Shimer to turn his attention elsewhere.

Shimer confessed that the executive board was fairly ignorant of what was going on in the bookstore. "We had no one up there to represent us," stated Shimer. "Hopefully with direct supervision by students like myself, things will be better for the students in the future."

The Parson's Community Center Executive Board works closely with Shimer and helps him carry out his duties. Shimer admitted that when his roles change from supervisor of social activities to manager of the PUB, he may have problems utilizing everybody on the board. "My big trouble will be knowing how to use them," said Shimer.

"My past Parson's Community Center Committee did

Dean Maetozo discusses Mexico's sports program

By JACK SOHNLEITNER
Staff Reporter

Dr. Matthew G. Maetozo, Dean of the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation here at Lock Haven State spent two weeks in August in Mexico at the request of the Mexican government and its National Sports Confederation. He was assigned to the state of Veracruz and resided in the city.

The program was set-up four years ago by the agreement between the National Association of Sports and Physical Education in Washington, D.C. and the Mexican government. Each year the association identifies eligible people in the United States and asks if there people would be willing to go to Mexico as guests of the Mexican government and the sports confederation. While there they would conduct clinics, seminars and workshops with students, professors, teachers, and coaches on how to improve their sports and physical education programs.

This past year there were four people on a team working in Mexico. "My particular task was to lecture on and help with problems concerning the organization and administration of physical education and sports" Maetozo said.

Each of the four members of the team presented a two hour seminar per day. One seminar was in track and field, another was on swimming, the third dealt with basketball, and the fourth was organization and administration of the programs. The four conducted discussions, lectures and demonstrations to the participants. All of their work was done at the Central Physical Education and Sports Complex in Veracruz.

When asked about how the sports programs looked when he arrived in Mexico Maetozo responded, "In my estimation the people associated with physical education and sports, both in the public schools and colleges need considerable upgrading. They need considerable help on a consultative standpoint."

Maetozo suggested and recommended the kinds of things they could do to make their programs more viable and up to date. "This particular program is certainly benefitting physical education and sport in Mexico and that's the whole idea of the thing. The Mexican government feels the latest innovations in physical education and sport is here in the United States and they want to tap these resources."

Some of the students and professors of Mexico would like to come to Lock Haven for observation, discussion and/or course enrollment. Dr. Maetozo has been very busy corresponding with the Mexican government and he is working with the International Relations Committee on campus who have encouraged him to continue his correspondence. He hopes a couple of

VIEW

BY MICHAEL J. CIGALA

Autumn is here, winter is just around the corner and likewise, another Lock Haven wrestling season is about to unfold.

Hello my name is Michael Cigala and this is the first of a series of articles geared to report and inform wrestling to you, the Lock Haven wrestling fan. It is my opinion that LHSC wrestling fans deserve informative and inquire wrestling literature. That is my intention and that is what the wrestling review is all about.

On September 1, sixty wrestlers were present at Coach Ken Cox's First Annual Wrestling Meeting on the '76-77 season. Since then the squad has been reduced to forty hardworking, dedicated wrestlers. The team is a mixture of freshmen and veterans all working in unison with one goal in mind, gaining for Lock Haven its 35th consecutive winning season. The team in its 5th week of practice has shown remarkable spirit as it prepares for the long season ahead. Lock Haven's dual season schedule is, as always, a tough one, but Coach Cox feels he has the horses to do it. While the first match and test for the Bald Eagles is Nov. 20, the squad will be involved in many small preseason tournaments. Come out and support the Bald Eagle Grapplers as they venture to capture their 35th consecutive winning season, a national collegiate record!

What would the Mexican students hope to accomplish here? "The students would hope to get a great many ideas to help incorporate in their own programs when they returned. They first have to have the ideas of how to do it and hopefully with that kind of background it would be their intention to implement on some kind of progressive basis or to develop some sort of one, three, or five year plan of program development at their

According to Dr. Maetozo, he and his team members stayed in a comfortable hotel in Veracruz. "The Mexican government and the people of Veracruz did all they possibly could to make our stay one of comfort and one we enjoyed. We also felt we were ambassadors representing the United States so we were tactful in some of our discussions concerning our observations," said Maetozo.

Dr. Maetozo does not know if the policy allows for him to return to Mexico but if it does, "I certainly am interested in returning," he said.

"Right now the plans are in the infancy stages," stressed Lomison, "We still have a lot to do."

According to Lomison, before any definite plans can be made the committee must form a corporate body. This six-month process has been started. The corporate body will be named the Greek Housing Corporation of Lock Haven.

In the near future President Francis Hamblin will be hosting a banquet in honor of the Greek Housing Complex. Local bank representatives, local civic and community leaders and representatives of interested fraternities and sororities will be invited to attend.

Paul Benkert reported that the recent voter registration drive on campus ended with 200 newly registered students. Benkert found it surprising that of the 220 new voters there were more republican than democrats which is the opposite of the average trend in student party partisan politics.

SCC Treasurer Joe Harper informed the Senate that the small clubs budget will have to be reconsidered before the Senate can vote upon it. The Senate Appropriations Committee (SAC) recently held a meeting for all small club presidents and representatives to allocate the $2000.00 that the SCC set aside for small clubs. But as Harper said "It went real badly," resulting in having to find a new means of allocating the funds.

In an effort to promote a fair understanding of the rights and duties between students and professors, the SCC hopes to establish a college wide committee. The committee, to be headed by Paul Benkert will handle issues ranging from students caught cheating to students who feel that a professor isn't abiding by the course syllabus. Anyone interested in helping to form the committee should contact Benkert in the Executive Office in the PUB.

Before the close of the meeting the agenda was amended so the issue of closing the dorms for fall break could be discussed. It was mentioned that many students were upset because they felt they should be able to stay in their dorm rooms for the holiday weekend without any added restrictions. SCC President Lorin Mock stated he will look into the matter and report back to the Senate at the next meeting.

THE GRE [Graduate Record Examinations] will be administered Sat, Oct. 16 at 8:30 am in Ulmer Planetarium. Some walk-in registrations are available.
