SCC committee reviews policies

By Andrea Vecchio
Eagle Eye Co-News Editor

A policy review committee has been appointed this semester by the Student Cooperative Council (SCC) in order to review and update all SCC policies.

Brad Long, a fifth year Health Science major, is the chairperson of the committee which is comprised of seven members representing senators and students at-large. Andy Wendel, President of SCC, is one of members.

The committee was organized at the first SCC meeting of the year and is, according to Long, the first time a review committee was put together.

The committee will review each SCC policy then they will revised it. The revised policy will then be submitted the Senate for approval.

Leland Spangler, Director of Student Activities and Jean Nestlerode, Business Manager of the SCC, will also be working with the committee.

"They (Spangler and Nestlerode) help out by knowing why the policies were there in the first place, and also how effective these policies have been," said Long.

After SCC policies are reviewed, the group will go over the SCC employees manual which contains policies for those employed by the SCC such as the Co-op Bookstore and the Eagle Wing Snack Bar.

Long hopes to complete the group's project by the end of the semester, but thinks it will not be completed until spring 1991 semester.

Joe Yalch, vice president of the SCC, agrees the project is "something that will take awhile."

Dr. Matthews elected president of division of American Association on Mental Retardation

By Jennifer Adams
Eagle Eye News Reporter

University professor Dr. Peter R. Matthews was recently elected president of the Leisure and Recreation Division of the American Association on Mental Retardation (AAMR) at the national level.

Matthews was installed as president during AAMR's annual meeting in Atlanta in May 1990.

Before being elected president, Matthews served for three years as president at the regional level and held the office of chairman of the division for one year.

"I am very happy to be serving as president on the national level," Matthews said.

Matthews will hold the post for two years. During this time he will be responsible for planning the division's presentation for next year's meeting in Washington D.C.

Other duties will include editing AAMR's newsletter and addressing issues involving the leisure and recreation of citizens with mental retardation.

AAMR promotes the well being of individuals with mental retardation and supports those who work in the field.

They review and shape public policy, encourage research and education and aid communication and excellence by advancing the highest standards of service, training and research.

This year the organization's goals are to increase the membership of the Recreation Subdivision, increase the member's awareness of the normalizing potential of recreation to persons with mental retardation, and to increase the member's awareness of the importance of persons with mental retardation having a choice in the recreational activities in which they participate.

The organization has already elevated the Recreation Subdivision to a division in July.

AAMR was founded in 1876 and is the oldest organization of it's kind. Its membership extends throughout the United States and has chapters in 55 other countries.

Matthews is the chairman of the Department Special Education and Early Childhood Education.

A social sorority interest group recognized by the SCC

By Vicki Lopez
Eagle Eye News Reporter

A new club has been added to the list this year. As of Wednesday, October 10, Club Eboné, a social sorority interest group, has become recognized by the SCC.

Club Eboné is a predominantly black organization and has come together to promote unity.

Eboné is a club that emphasized cultural, community and academic oriented activities for the members and general students.

It offers assistance to interested students with any social or academic problems they may face as a student at LHU.

The main goal for the members of this organization is to prepare for membership as a national sorority in the future.

If this goal is accomplished, LHU will have it's first predominantly black sorority on campus.

This, it is believed, will aid in the recruitment and retention of minority women at the University.

By giving the women a choice to go Greek, it will enable them to get further involved with the University.

The club has prepared many fund-raisers and community oriented activities for the remaining months of semester.

For October, Club Ebone' will be sponsoring a Halloween dance in coordination with the "crescents" of Phi Beta Sigma on the 27th in Rogers Gymnasium.

They have also arranged to visit the children of Lock Haven Hospital with treats for Halloween.

You can look forward to many more activities which will be sponsored by Club Eboné in the upcoming months.

OPINION/EDITORIAL

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor should be submitted to the Eagle Eye no later than noon on Thursday.

Hello Lock Haven:

If you enjoy meeting new people, discovering a new culture, and experiencing a new way of life, Chernovtsy, Ukraine is the place for you.

A city of some 250,000 inhabitants, Chernovtsy is located in the southwestern part of the Ukraine, a mere 25 kilometers from the Rumanian border. Chernovtsy's economy relies mainly on industrial plants: oil production, machinery, auto-parts, chemicals, clothes, lumber, etc. The people of Chernovtsy remain strongly connected with their national heritage and traditions, as is visible in the numerous cultural events and museums throughout the city. They are very proud to be Ukranian and are always more than happy to show foreigners around the city and talk about its history.

The University of Chernovtsy is undoubtedly the most beautiful and interesting feature of the city. Built when the city was occupied by the Austro-Hungarian empire, it was originally a monastery. When the soviets reclaimed this region in 1940, the complex was re-established as a university. Comprised of 11 faculties, the University presently accomodates about 10,000 students, the students, generally very curious and anxious to meet foreigners and have questions about life in the United States.

Our classes begin daily at 8:20 a.m. and run until noon. Together we are taking intensive Russian Language classes, encompassing grammar, phonetics, reading, and conversation. With the aid of student interpreters, we also attend lectures covering various topics in Soviet economics, political systems, and culture. Additionally, we have the option to individually partake in classes of our specialty areas.

As the first exchange group to the Ukraine, we are especially fortunate to be witnessing firsthand such a historically significant period of change in the economic and political systems. Of course along with the changes toward a more capitalistic society, some temporary setbacks are to be expected. At the moment there is deficit in several consumer products--even in such items as sugar, coffee, bread, cigarettes, and soap. However, the university's foreign department has proved very helpful in accomodating us with most of these inconveniences.

Now, after one month here, we are all pretty well adjusted to our new home. We are progressing rapidly in our language skills, thanks to the patience and help of our friends and fellow students. The overwhelming hospitality of the Ukranian people has made us feel more than welcome in Chernovtsy, and we can only hope that our counterparts in the United States are enjoying their experience as much as we are.

With best regards,

Mom, Look What I Brought Home with me

By Nancy L. Panko, R.N.
Glennon Health Services

"Hey, I'm home from school, whatcha got good to eat?" Oh, looks like no one's here; guess I'll help myself to milk and a couple dozen of these homemade cookies.

Wish you were here Mom; I sure would like to be able to tell you what I've brought home. It's called pelvic inflammatory disease (PID) and the particular bacteria which caused this problem is called chlamydia.

I didn't know anything was wrong until I started having abdominal and back pain. I thought I had a kidney infection, but those tests were negative so I had a pelvic exam and other tests. My chlamydia test came back positive and now I'm on medication for the infection.

Gee, I hope it clears up, I really want to feel better. I am so embarrassed, Mom; I haven't had sex for two months and didn't think I could end up with something after this much time. I only had sex once but we didn't use a condom; thank God I didn't get pregnant. I hate keeping secrets from you Mom, but I don't want you to think less of me.

The nurse told me that just one sexual contact can infect someone; she says it is simple to avoid Chlamydia and/or other venereal diseases by using condoms (spermicidally lubricated), a diaphragm with a spermicidal jelly, by knowing your partner very well and by limiting the number of sex partners if you choose to have sex at all.

I've learned a lot about Chlamydia from the nurse at the infirmary at school; she told me that chlamydial sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) have become epidemic. But, once diagnosed, treatment is fast, simple and effective! My partner (of two months ago) should be notified and treated, but he probably knew he of men who are infected and should have let me know. (90 percent urination and/or a discharge).

I'll call him to make sure he has been checked and treated because I don't want anyone else to go through what I have. It is a shame that 80 percent of the women have no noticeable symptoms and can become sterile, experience tubal pregnancy, abnormal periods, pain during intercourse and even inflammation of tissues on the surface of the liver (perihepatitis).

Men may also have complications from chlamydia. Acute epididymitis, which is inflammation of the sperm duct behind the testicle can result in fevers and swelling with extreme pain in the scrotum and may cause sterility.

Chlamydial infection may be linked to some cases of Reiter's syndrome which symptoms include: joint pain, inflammation of the eyes and sores on the skin. Both men and women can develop conjunctivitis if the discharge from a genital chlamydia comes in contact with the eyes.

Both sexes can suffer from proctitis, which is an inflammation of the rectum. I never realized Mom, that if I hadn't been diagnosed with chlamydia and had gotten pregnant, that my baby could be infected while being born resulting in conjunctivitis (eye infection), pneumonia, or ear and other infections. Scary isn't it? The treatment for chlamydia consists of taking certain antibiotics for 7-14 days; penicillin is not effective against chlamydia. I must take all of the antibiotic. I must not have sex (no problem there and I must have a follow-up exam for a test of cure to make sure there is no more chlamydia).

A sex partner must always be treated at the same time otherwise partners will just infect each other all over again. I love you Mom, your cookies are the best!

If you have questions about chlamydia or pelvic inflammatory disease call Glennon Health Services at 893-2276 or 893-2380.

Dear Editor:

There has been some misunderstanding by some people regarding the article in the Eagle Eye, October 12, 1990, about recycling. Houser Vending Company in its efforts to be enviromentally responsible has, at their expense and initiative, purchased several hundred recycling boxes for their customers. We are the recipients of many of these boxes for our use, as we see fit, at no charge to the University Recycling Committee. Houser Vending Company does not want to circumvent the University recycling program in any way.

They only want to assist us in reaching our goals which were mandated by the State of Pennsylvania. Houser Vending has stated many times to me, "What you do with the empty contianers is up to you.

We just want to provide you with some boxes to help you in collecting the cans on campus. If anyone has any questions on this cooperative effort, please call me at 893-2125.

ASPEN system installed campuswide

By Beth Pressler
Eagle Eye reporter

Lock Haven University has provided its departments, faculty members, and all of its dormitory students with a new communication system "The Automatic Speech Exchange Network," otherwise known as ASPEN.

All of the students were provided with a quick-reference guide that has an illustration and directions explaining how to use ASPEN to its full potential.

In spite of all the programs set up by the Resident Assistants to further educate the dorm residents about their new telephone opportunities, no students showed up for the programs.

Admissions receptionist, Paula Zener, who is the most trained on ASPEN, said she still receives at least two calls a day from students who want to learn how to use ASPEN.

She explained the many different options ASPEN users have, in simple English.

1.) Set up your own mailbox that can only be reached with your personal identification code number. (The 'mailbox' is where all of the messages sent to you are stored.)

2.) You may check the messages in your mailbox from any phone on campus.

3.) You can also speed up, slow down, or skip over the messages you are reviewing in order to save yourself some time or listen more carefully to important messages.

4.) You can send a copy of a message in your mailbox to someone else's mailbox or to someone else directly.

5.) You can reply to a message in your mailbox without talking to the caller who left the message to you.

6.) Even if the persons are in their room at the time of your call, you can put a message in their mailbox, instead of taking time to discuss the message with them.

7.) You can also send the same message to up to five other users of ASPEN, simultaneously. You can leave it in their mailbox so you don't have to carry on a conversation with them.

8.) You can trace obscene calls and find out the exact time and place of the call. Also, you can get the name of the caller, if the caller is an ASPEN user.

9.) You can also learn the weekly menu of Bentley dining hall and the weekly calendar of events, including the time and place of the sporting events.

10.) Any calls from outside the university will automatically be directed to the department the caller needs to talk to specifically. If the caller needs to speak to someone before deciding what department he or she needs, there is always a person on the university's side of the line to help if the caller remains on the line for a moment.

As far as trying all of these options out goes, Zener wishes students would follow their quick-reference guide, before panicking.

"If they mess-up, they can always start over...they can't break it," Zener said.

Her advice for success with ASPEN, is to always dial 893-2600, first, to get into the system. Then, follow the instructions in the far left box in the guide, before moving along in the direction of the task you wish to accomplish.

"As long as you follow it, (the reference guide), it tells you what to do, but it's important to read the instructions carefully," Zener said.

Admissions Director, Joseph Coldren, said the qualities the administration liked most about ASPEN specifically, over other communication systems were, "the features, service, installation time, past success stories of ASPEN, and its cost efficiency."

Coldren said that Lock Haven University is one of the first Pennsylvania state schools to have a system like this with its students included in it.

Residence halls plan newsletters

By Doug Miller
Eagle Eye Reporter

Three of the seven residence halls have started, or are planning to start their own newsletters.

North Hall and Gross Hall currently have newsletters in existence, while McEntire Hall will tentatively be starting one this week.

Gross Hall's newsletter is titled "The Other Eye." Editor Steven Infanti said he likes to "think of it as LHU's alternative news source."

The newsletter comes out every week on recyclable paper and takes about two hours a week to complete on a computer.

Infanti said "The Other Eye" came into existence because "we didn't feel the Eagle Eye could cover all that's going on, and it isn't able to devote enough time to the residence halls."

The motto of the newsletter is "all the news that's gross."

"It's good for hall students to get a chance to write and get involved without spending a lot of time," added Infanti.

McEntire Hall's newsletter is not titled as of yet, but it may be called "The McEntire (News?) Letter."

Angela Roher, a journalism major living in McEntire, is in charge of getting the newsletter underway. She said she wants the paper to be "not so rigid, a paper you can look forward to and have fun reading."

The first issue will cover such topics as homecoming and a listing of McEntire Hall Resident Assistants. Roher said the newsletter will be published "as often as possible, probably monthly or biweekly."

The newsletter is in need of writers, artists, and cartoonists. Roher said that any McEntire residents interested should call her.

North Hall's newsletter is called the "North Star," and was the first of the three newsletters established. It is printed every two weeks.

No one from the newsletter staff could be reached for comment.

Academic Advisement Fair to be conducted

By Rob Heller
Eagle Eye Reporter

The Academic Advisement Fair will be open to all students on October 30, 31 and November 1 at 6:30p.m. in the Hall of Flags, Robinson Hall.

The Fair is an opportunity for all students to learn more about the minors and majors available at LHU. All 69 majors and 11 minors will be represented.

The purpose of the Fair is to help those students who have not yet selected a major, or who are not doing well academically in their present one. It can also help students who have already declared a major to learn more about specific minors related to that field of study.

A brief orientation will be held from 6:30 to 7p.m. each night of the Fair. Afterwards, faculty representatives will be available to discuss the minor and major areas of study offered by their department. The schedule is listed below. Anyone with questions concerning the Academic Advisement Fair should con-

Reactions to proposed levee system mixed

By Mary Lee Shroat

Eagle Eye Reporter

Lock Haven's proposed levee system has benefits and drawbacks.

The main benefit is that Lock Haven will be protected from floods when the levees are completed.

Two additional benefits are that there will be 500 construction jobs and the income from those jobs will benefit Lock Haven and surrounding areas starting next month. They will continue for the next five years.

Although the levee system will take all of the scenic view on the Lock Haven side of the Susquehanna River the proposed system includes recreational facilities such as a boat launch.

Other facilities slated for construction are fishing accesses, beach and bathhouse, swimming area, canoe portage, and a trail system. Four mini parks will also be created, including the largest one near the lower end of campus.

The LHU 'mini park' will encompass the lower parking lot except for 15 spaces and a turn around. It will include 18 picnic tables, a water fountain, trash cans, and a sidewalk leading to the paved trail system on the levee crest.

The trail system starts at LHU and ends in Memorial Park near the Jay Street Bridge. The trail will be lighted at night.

The main drawback to the levee system has been the high cost to the taxpayers of Clinton County.

Another drawback will be that the levee facing the river will limit participation in activities such as the Annual Labor Day Boat Regatta.

The amount of time the levee system will take to complete is another drawback. The construction will leave Lock Haven in a very vulnerable position, said Hoberman, since a flood can happen anytime.

Without a levee system, studies have shown that Lock Haven can look forward to only moderate growth.

The annual cost of the levee's maintenance has been estimated at $73,000. The cost is solely Lock Haven's responsibility.

Model United Nations Club Formed

By Jim Garraway

Eagle Eye Reporter

Assistant professor Jeff Burnham of the History, Political Science, Economics and Management Science department has formed a model United Nations club this semester.

According to Burnham, the club is a general interest club that deals with current events and serious world issues. It not only will deal with debating, but will simulate diplomacy in action.

In January the club will be participating in a debate conference, which will be held in Cleveland, Ohio.

According to Burnham, the conference is a four day meeting where each delegation participating will represent a country.

A meeting of all the United Nations is simulated through formal and informal debating.

Marie Sandy is the student advisor of the club. She said the club is just starting to reorganize for the fall semester.

Anyone interested should attend the organizational meeting on October 23 in Raub Hall. It will be held room 212 at 1:00p.m.

Pittsburgh National Bank and SSHE sponsor essay contest

Undergraduate students at the 14 state-owned universities have the chance to turn their homework into cash in the Pittsburgh National Bank/State System of Higher Education (SSHE) essay competition.

This year's topic is "What are the Investment Opportunities for the Securities Investor in Europe after 1992?"

One student from each university will win the "Best of the University" prize of $500. These winners will be eligible to compete for the "Best of the State System" award with prizes of $2000 for first place, $1000 for second, and $500 for third.

Three finalists in the "Best of the State System" competition will be given the opportunity to present their papers at the 1991 spring conference of the Association of Pennsylvania Business and Economics Faculty.

Established in 1988, the competition is designed to recognize research and writing talent across the State System on topics of interest to the financial and business community.

The competition is funded by a $15,000 grant from Pittsburgh National Bank to the Fund for the Advancement of the SSHE, Inc.

Dr. Joseph Hunt, dean of the College of Business at Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania, serves as project director for the essay competition.

"This competition offers State System students the opportunity to demonstrate their writing and research ability," said Hunt.

The essays, not to exceed 5000 words, typed double-spaced, are to be written by full-time, undergraduate SSHE students. Winning essays become the property of Pittsburgh National Bank.

Campus coordinator at each university have been selected to oversee the local competition.

Associate professor John Washburn, chairman of the history, political science, economics, and management science department will oversee the LHU competition.

"Best of the University" winners must be selected by the end of the current fall semester to advance to the "Best of the State System" competition.

Interested students may contact Washburn at 893-2187.

In past, fire claims University

By Rachel Hosterman

Eagle Eye Reporter

One hundred and two years ago, tragedy struck in Lock Haven, according to Robert Bravard, director of library services in Stevenson Library.

On December 9, 1888, a fire broke out in the single complex Central State Normal School, leveling the structure and destroying all of what was then LHU.

The building was located on the present-day site of North Hall.

The magnitude of the blaze was monumental for the school, said Bravard, because the dining hall, library, residence rooms, and administrative offices were all housed in the same building.

"All they had (after the fire) was a pile of ashes and debt," said Bravard.

The Normal School was granted its charter in 1870, and on February 14, seven years later, began holding classes and housing students.

During the summer of 1888, renovations were made and additional wings were built, only to be totally destroyed by the winter fire the same year, said Bravard.

There was no loss of life but heavy debt was incurred.

The students were relocated in the (see

Montour House, which stood across the street from the present-day Lock Haven Court House, according to Dr. Harold T. Wisner's thesis in "Educational Administration", written in 1966.

In 1889, the new cornerstone was laid on the site that is now Stevenson Library. Bravard also commented that LHU is the only institution in the system of state universities that has incurred a "100 percent" loss due to fire.

There was a trend toward library expansion that started after the fire and continues even today, he said.

East Stroudsburg University currently uses ASPEN in a smaller capacity. Coldren emphasized the importance of the establishment of a reliable information center.

Business Manager John Gallagher said the whole system cost the university $118,000. The automatic attendant (which directs all calls from the info center to a more specific destination, if needed) cost $54,000 dollars. For the faculty and staff to be added on, it was about $24,000 dollars. Finally, for all of the resident students to have access to ASPEN, it was about $40,000 more dollars, said Gallagher.

Vice president of Administration and Finance, Dr. Dean Phelps, agrees that ASPEN is a very wise investment. Phelps thought it was a good idea because it saves labor.

"We've got excellent secretaries, and we thought of this as a labor service device," said Phelps.

He also outlined the benefits of having the faculty and students included in the ASPEN system. The faculty can now have messages left for them in their mailbox which will not be lost, and communicate at a faster pace, instead of a lot of running back and forth to their offices for messages.

When asked about all of the student workers' jobs at Law Enforcement where the previous information phones were located, Phelps said it was always very difficult to get work-study help to monitor the phones during early and late hours, before ASPEN, and now they're not needed for those time.

Gallagher said they're currently working on a 24-hour phone directory to be implemented into ASPEN.

Confessions of a dangerous mind...

101 phrases every woman has heard once

By Steven Infanti
Eagle Eye Columnist

I decided to devote this column to the phrases that every woman has heard once. I wish I could take credit for all of these, but I had some help from T.K.A. and two of her friends from Gross Hall. I had to get help; it's not like me to use lines like these. Hey, where did that lightning bolt come from?

Phrases Every Woman Has Heard Once

1. I promise it won't hurt.
2. It gets better the more often you do it.
3. This is the first time I've done this too.
4. I don't do this with just any girl.
5. I could hold you forever.
6. I'll pull out in time.
7. Trust me, I'm sterile.
8. This is more than a one-night stand for me also.
9. We don't have sex. We make love.
10. If you get pregnant, I will marry you.
11. You wanted it as much as I did.
12. It was your idea. I never even thought about doing that with you.
13. We'll still be friends.
14. It's like wearing a raincoat in the shower.
15. No, I'm bigger than most.
16. You weren't on the pill?
17. I could spend 24 hours a day with you.
18. I have never met anybody like you before in my life.
19. You're special.
20. I love you.
21. I will always love you.
22. Of course I'm not going out with anybody else!
23. I wanted to talk to you about her, but I didn't know how to break the news.
24. It's over between her and I. You're the one I want.
25. She fell asleep while taking a nap. That's the only reason she was in my bed.
26. I just love to be touched.
27. Why buy the cow if the milk is free?
28. I called, but there was no answer.
29. Nobody gave me the message.
30. I lost your number.
31. Rinse your mouth out first.
32. I'm not into relationships. It's the companionship I'm looking for.
33. She's just a friend.
34. I don't see a ring on my finger.
35. Anything more than a handful is a waste.
36. Hey babe.
37. Come on, kiddo.
38. You're reading between lines that aren't there.
39. It's a boys' night out.
40. You don't have to if you don't want to, but I really think it will be special.
41. I need you now.
42. If you loved me you would.
43. What are you complaining about now? It must be that time.....
44. You spend more time with your friends than you do with me.
45. You know I would never do anything to hurt you, but.....
46. No, I like a girl with a figure just like yours.
47. I only get Playboy for the articles.
48. Trust me.
49. What the hell do you want from me?
50. Can I borrow ten bucks, I'll pay you back.
51. I don't do parents, they never like me.
52. I didn't know what I was doing. I was drunk.
53. Just because we had sex, it doesn't mean I want a relationship.
54. I was home, maybe there's something wrong with the phone.
55. You just don't understand what it's like to be a guy.
56. I need it so bad it hurts.
57. Of course I still respect you.
58. Oh no, it broke.
59. Why do I have to make all the decisions?
60. Don't I know you?
61. Was it good for you too?
62. How was I?
63. I hope you made it also!
64. How do you know you won't like it until you try it.
65. I thought you were older than that.
66. Baby, a man has needs and I need it now.
67. Where's the beer?
68. I'll never love anybody the way I love you.
69. I know I still owe you from the last time, but can I borrow another $10. I'll pay you back.
70. I'm just not ready for that type of commitment.
71. Sorry, I only dance to slow songs.
72. I would, but I have an old-knee injury.
73. I have those tapes in my room. Drop by and we'll listen to them together.
74. I just need somebody to talk to.
75. Have you ever seen the painting on my ceiling?
76. Want to come in and meet the house dog?
77. Let's get to know each other a little better.
78. Why not?
79. Can I buy you a drink?
80. Can you fix me up with your roommate?
81. No, you can't get pregnant the first time, and this is my first time.
82. Do you want a piece of candy?
83. I once had muscles like that.
84. I don't say this to every girl I meet.
85. Here, have another drink.
86. The phone? Oh, that was my mother.
87. I'm trying to find myself.

"Spiderman" takes position in the biology department

By Jeffrey Huckel
Eagle Eye Reporter

It is a real shame that people do not take the time to understand their environment and the creatures in it because as one University professor has discovered, befriending a spider can lead to a lifetime of opportunities.

Dr. Steven Tessler, professor of biology, had his first "showdown" with spiders over fifteen years ago when he was a student at Delaware County Community College in Media, Pa.

"I had stayed out too late fishing at a nearby creek. As I attempted to find my way back to my car in the dark, I swayed off my trail and ended up walking through very large spider webs," explains Tessler, "When I got back to my car, I had to shake off the heebie-jeebies."

Although his encounter made him uneasy, Tessler was more curious than scared.

He removed a flashlight from his glove compartment and went back to find the spider webs which had given him his scare. He came across a couple of golden garden spiders which are commonly found near water. Tessler placed them in a little tupperware container and drove home. When he arrived home, there was only one spider in the container. One had eaten the other.

Tessler's fascination has led to not only a collection of 1,200 spiders and photographs numbering in the thousands but also an educational and professional career in the field.

He received a bachelor's degree from Penn State University (PSU) in Animal Science. In addition, he spent his senior year as the assistant arachnid (spider) curator. His job was to identify, name, and organize PSU's collection of arachnids.

After receiving a master's in entomology from Purdue University, Tessler accepted a job at Bryn Mawr College in Philadelphia in which he studied the genetic effect on sperm movement in mice. This experimentation was done in the hope of finding a form of human male contraception.

Tessler confirms that it was his knowledge of the spider's reproductive system that enabled him to get the job studying mice.

"My employers knew that I could easily adapt to the job because of my broad background. They allowed me to show my diversity," acknowledges Tessler.

The diversity has continued as Tessler has had jobs at Sea World in San Diego, where taught courses for universities of San Diego State and California at San Diego. He also worked at the Medical School of Pennsylvania and Temple and as a computer technician and programmer. His most fulfilling work, he notes, was achieving a doctorate degree at PSU because he was able to do outdoor research at his own pace.

Upon recommendation from a professor at PSU, Tessler was asked for an interview here at Lock Haven. Once again, he is positive that his diverse background got him his job, this time as a professor.

Some students are very glad that the "spiderman" has decided to teach.

"Dr. Tessler's teaching style is a refreshing change. He enables us to learn without us realizing that we are learning" says Herb Samuels, a senior.

Sarah Langowski, a secondary education/biology major, feels the same way. "He is very enthusiastic about teaching, plus he makes you think about and question what is going on in the world around us."

Working with spiders for the past fifteen years has also given Tessler an appreciation for his fellow inhabitants of the earth. He feels most people are conditioned to fear spiders when they are children because most adults do not have an appreciation for them.

"If people are introduced correctly to spiders then they will develop a positive attitude about them," believes Tessler.

The Bald Eagles in last year's homecoming, fell to the Clarion Golden Eagles, 16-10 in the final seconds of the contest.

Clarion took the early advantage as Damon Avery intercepted a Kevin Harney pass returning it 15 yards for the score. Clarion added a 23-yard field goal in the second quarter to up Clarion's lead to 10-0.

LHU opened an 80-yard scoring drive late in the second quarter but failed to move the ball after picking up its initial first down of the series. Punter Sean O'Connor then pulled up and tossed a pass on a 4th down situation to Dwayne Tooles for a 21-yard gain. LHU ended the scoring drive as Guy Wade scored on a 7-yard scamper who also finished with 124 yards.

Rich Marriott added a 28-yard field goal in the third quarter to knot the game at 10. But Clarion rallied in the final minute putting together an impressive drive ending with a 3-yard run by Ken Dworek with just 11 seconds to go in the game.

The last homecoming victory for LHU occurred in 1985 as it defeated the California Vulcans, 14-7.

It was the first win against the Vulcans since 1979. Head Coach Jack Fisher's stingy defense allowed a mere 92 yards on the ground while his wishbone offense produced a whopping 293 yards rushing.

LHU scored on its second possession as halfback Tom Smykowski took a pitch from quarterback Pat Cahill on first down and broke through the Vulcan secondary for a 60-yard gain from the Bald Eagle 25 to the Vulcan 15.

Two plays later, Roosevelt Brown plowed into the end zone. Wayne Quinn's extra point made the score 7-0.

Brown added another score late in the first half with a 1-yard plunge giving LHU a 14-0 halftime lead. Cal managed only one score giving the Bald Eagles their second victory of the season and upping their season mark to 2-3.

Soccer

The 1988 soccer match between LHU and Christopher Newport was a memorable one as the Bald Eagle booters tied a school record with their 10th shutout of the season as Gary Ross scored a pair of goals and Andrew Monteith added another as LHU was a 3-0 winner over Christopher Newport.

Field Hockey

In 1988, Missy Carman had a hat trick as the Lady Eagles shutout the Maine Bears, 5-0. LHU also added a shutout over Lowell, 2-0, but fell to the hands of 12th ranked Providence, 1-0.

In 1986, the Lady Eagles evened their record at 3-3 when Ginny Neiss scored a first period goal giving LHU a 1-0 victory over Bucknell.

Feature twirler Alicia Philips brings exciting routine to halftime show

By Shawn Gerhardt
Eagle Eye Staff Reporter

In case you've been wondering who the blonde haired, blue-eyed wonder is twirling for the Lock Haven University Marching Band, it is feature twirler Alicia Philips.

Miss Philips, a senior health and physical education major and a native of Montoursville, Pa., has twirled batons since the age of four.

Bill Bruce, Alicia's current instructor, flies in from California to work with her.

But who does Alicia give all of her credit to? Her mother Marsha Philips, owner of Philips Fancy Footwork, a baton twirling studio, located at Dynamat's Gymnastic Center in Williamsport, Pa. She has been Alicia's inspiration over the years.

Mrs. Philips, mother of four, has dedicated much of her time to teaching all of her daughters the art of baton twirling. She has taught them everything from the basic 1-2-3 twirl to the more difficult double illusions.

This is Alicia's second year as the feature twirler with the University Band. Alicia enjoys working under the direction of Dr. Caimi, "I do all of my own choreography, so I come to band camp in the summer with my routine prepared. I show Dr. Caimi what I have come up with and we go from there. A few minor adjustments to my show and I'm ready to perform."

With that gleam in her eye and the baton in her hand, Alicia comes alive on the field.

Through the years, Alicia has twirled in state, regional, and world competition, including this past year when she competed internationally.

She has held past honors such as 1989 Miss College Majorette of Pennsylvania, but her highest achievement was when Alicia and her sister Alana combined their talents and won Senior World Pairs in Notre Dame's American Youth on Parade.

Finally, Mrs. Philips was able to sit back and watch all the sweat and long hours of baton instruction come to a fulfilling climax in April.

Winning this event qualified them for the First Annual National Baton Twirling Association International to be held in Holland. There they went on to win first place and capture the Senior International Pairs Championship title.

"It was exciting to take my talent abroad, especially because this was the first time Americans were invited to compete, due to the fact that in the past baton twirling was just in the process of catching up to our standards in the United States", said Alicia.

Her older sister Alana, an LHU graduate also endured the long hard hours of practice in preparation for Holland.

"I was sick when we had to practice," recalls Alicia, "and some days I just didn't have the energy to do it. Alana and my mother kept my spirits high and encouraged me to continue giving 100 percent even though at times I just wanted to throw in the batons."

Dedication, hard work, and lots of practice have been the backbone of Alicia's success.

One of her biggest thrills was climbing past her opponent hand in hand with her sister. As they reached the number one position on top of the boxes the only sounds she can recall are the thousands of chanting spectators, the National Anthem screaming in her ears, the squeezing of her sister's hand on her own, and the United States flag being raised.

Seventeen years of hard work had finally paid off and indeed, it felt good.

Alicia currently is teaching a class for the young children in Jersey Shore. She hopes to remain active in competition and one day operate a baton and dance studio of her own.

Renae Weaver declared second runner-up in pageant

By Karen Carlson
Eagle Eye Features Editor

On September 29, 21-year-old Renae Weaver was declared second runner-up in the Miss Lancaster County beauty pageant.

"I really couldn't believe it" said Weaver. "I was completely amazed it was utter disbelief."

The pageant was held at Ephrata High School auditorium where she received a $400 scholarship for placement.

In the talent competition, Weaver performed a two and half minute monologue from Women of Note and Notoriety. She played a millionaire from the 1870's who "returned from the dead to talk about her life". She received a $400 scholarship.

Weaver has participated in the Miss Pennsylvania National Teen pageant in June '87 and the Miss Pennsylvania USA pageant in March '88.

"The pageant was a really good experience" said Weaver.

Weaver is a senior business major from Lititz, Pa. She is a member of the swim team.

Renae Weaver was awarded second runner-up in the Miss Lancaster County pageant on September 29.

Stress Manager to lecture on Wednesday

A pioneer in the area of stress management, Dr. Jerry V. Teplitz has been lecturing at colleges and universities since 1974.

He will be lecturing at the University on Wednesday, October 24, 1990 at 8 p.m. in Price Performing Center.

In his program, he will teach students how to relax during examination and other tension filled situations, cure a headache or hangover in one and half minutes, and energize naturally for "all-nighter" time.

He holds a masters and doctorate degree in Wholistic Health Sciences and has appeared on numerous radio and television shows throughout Canada and the United States.

Teplitz has spoken to over a quarter of a million people at over 500 colleges and universities in North America.

He has also been honored by his peers in the National Speakers Association by receiving the title of Certified Speaking Professional, and was selected as a "top rated speaker" by the International Platform Association.

Hosts West Chester for Homecoming...

Bald Eagle gridders drop fourth straight game

By Herb Samuels

Eagle Eye Sports Editor

The football team is left once again with the thought of what could have been as LHU let mistake after mistake turn a competitive game into a blowout.

"The game could have been within a touchdown," said Bald Eagle head coach Dennis Therrell. "We just shot ourselves in the foot."

When it was all said and done Clarion University beat LHU by the count of 50-14 lowering its record to 1-6 overall and 0-4 in the PSAC Western Division.

"There were mistakes in practice," Therrell said. "We had a punt blocked in practice, we dropped a punt in practice and we had an interception returned for a touchdown."

Incredibly enough those nightmarish plays in practice served as a preview to last Saturday's game.

"We just didn't correct our mistakes in practice," Therrell said. "Of course in a game it's magnified 6,000 times."

With a 7-0 lead in the first quarter LHU's punter Sean O'Conner's punt was blocked and Clarion's Damon Avery dashed 30 yards for a touchdown.

The Bald Eagles did get a break at the 8:55 mark in the second quarter. Clarion fumbled and gave LHU the ball at the Clarion 41-yard line.

From there the Bald Eagles took six plays and finally quarterback Jimmy Broadway scored to make the score 21-7.

But another mistake hurt them bad. The LHU defense forced Clarion to punt and return man Jesse Cleare fumbled the ball giving Clarion the ball at the 11-yard line.

From there Clarion quarterback Mike Carter hit Brendan Nair for an 8-yard pass for a touch down.

In the second half things looked as if they would turn around for the Bald Eagles.

Clarion again fumbled an O'Conner punt and LHU recovered on Clarion's 5-yard line.

After losing some yards, Broadway hit Bo Thurman with a pass for a touchdown.

But at the 8:23 mark in the third quarter Broadway was intercepted in Bald Eagle territory and Clarion was again ready to capitalize.

From the 34-yard line Clarion grinded out a nine play drive. The highlight was a fourth and seven situation in which Carter hit a receiver for a 19-yard gain.

The final blow against LHU came in the fourth quarter when backup quarterback Radford Mason was picked off by Jim Hornidge.

Hornidge ran back the interception for the final touchdown.

"We gave them 28 points," Therrell said. "We can't even beat our scout team if we spotted them 28 points."

But Therrell also noted some good efforts on some drives and executions. It was the mistakes definitely ruined those efforts.

"It's a shame the score doesn't reflect the type of game that it was," Therrell said. "You look at the mistakes it gets a little ugly."

The next game will be this Homecoming Saturday when the West Chester Rams invade Lock Haven.

The Rams have suffered though this season (2-4 record) and is ineligible for conference play.

West Chester scheduled a non-conference opponent in place of its game with Mansfield. Conference rules require that a team must play all teams in its division.

With both teams needing a win the game should be wide open and exciting. Kickoff time is at 2 p.m. at Hubert Jack Stadium.

Skating Eagles take two last weekend

By Herb Samuels

Eagle Eye Sports Editor

The ice hockey club was faced with the problem of playing games understaffed last weekend. With fall break upon the campus many players on the team went home.

Despite this LHU did what many considered impossible; they won twice.

"It's got to be the first time in history we won twice in one weekend," said icer Terry Stangil.

The first game was early Saturday morning (6:30 a.m.) when the Bald Eagles faced the Pterodactyls, a new team in the Nittany Hockey League (NHL).

LHU gave them a rude welcome as they destroyed the Pterodactyls 11-1. The scoring was spread between Chuck Schwitzer (4), Steve Fisher (3), J.R. Poster (2) and Stangil (2).

The next night the team had to wait until 9:50 p.m. to hit the ice at the Penn State Ice Pavilion.

But that didn't stop the LHU icers from beating the Wolves 2-1. Scoring goals in this game were Poster and Stangil.

Now after the incredible weekend the ice hockey team gets a chance to go for it again when they take on the Wizards tomorrow at 6:30 a.m. and then the Flyers at 8:30 p.m. Both games will be played at the Penn State Ice Pavilion.

Cheerleaders: the team behind the team

By Maryellen Jaskuta
Eagle Eye Sports Editor

There is a group on campus who practices just as much as the athletic teams in order to help those same athletic teams.

The group I'm talking about is the LHU cheerleaders. They put in their time to boost the school spirit at the more attended athletic events such as football, wrestling and men's basketball.

They practice hard when it comes to learning the cheers, routines, stunts and all the other crazy stuff they do to liven up the games.

Even though they all love the job they are doing, they would like a little more recognition.

This year they have a little task they would like to accomplish: get the crowd more involved.

The 1990-91 squad is made up of five males and seven females and is full of energy.

Captained by Rick Merrifield and Dana Martz, you can always find the LHU cheerers improving their ways.

Lock Haven is fairly new to the guy scene on the cheerleading squad. The males became a part of the team three years ago.

"I was practically begged to go out for the team three years ago," Merrifield said. "Once I did I enjoyed it and now I have a great time cheering."

"It's fun to get the school motivated, I'm always behind them win or lose."

Merrifield is currently in his fifth semester cheering.

Martz said the addition of the guys have brought more attention to the squad.

It allows them to do more stunts and be louder.

The guys tossing the girls in the air or building a pyramid adds some zest to the performances.

The reason the cheerleaders do many crazy things is to get the crowd into the game.

"The fans don't realize how the crowd can effect a team's performance," Martz said.

Martz, who is in her fourth year cheering, commented on how it's fun to get the crowd involved.

"When the crowd gets involved, it makes our job a lot more fun."

One of the guys you may hear more than others is Mike Tanguay.

Tanguay, a "loud mouth", enjoys his position and loves to "play with the crowd."

You can always see Tanguay doing some sort of maneuver or being loud through his megaphone to get the crowd wound up.

Another thing the cheerers take into consideration is they like to let people know they have pride in LHU.

"We like having pride in our school even if a program isn't doing especially well," Wendy "Ferris" Kaplowitz said. "When people see that they start to cheer along with us."

"When a program isn't doing well we are there to support them and give them inspiration. We are out there to get the team and crowd into it."

Each member you talk to, will say without a hesitation, they enjoy cheering and have a great time doing it.

Each time out they are trying to get more impressive and hopefully soon they can get to a competition to show their stuff.

The team is coached by Ron Crayosky and the other members of the squad include Jim Kennedy, Karen Wagner, Dusty Graves, Doug Atkinson, Dee Cordner, Lisa Womer, Marlene Kern, and Stacy Lambiase.

The cheerleaders are looking for more guys to help team. Anyone interested can talk to a cheerleader or call Merrifield or Martz.

Next time you are at an athletic event you'll be sure you can hear the cheerleaders and they will be trying to get you involved.

Women's tennis heads for PSACs

By Dave Corwin
Eagle Eye Reporter

The women's tennis team will be going to the PSAC tournament this weekend despite not winning a meet this season.

After this season of rebuilding, the team hopes only to see signs of improvement this weekend.

First year coach Dale Fisher hopes that one more year of hard work will put the Lady Eagles into contention.

Fisher, who replaced Delbert (Tag) Helt, is an instructional professional at a Williamsport tennis club. He has also worked as an instructor in South Carolina and Mexico.

The Lady Eagles most recently suffered a 9-0 loss to Bucknell University. Bucknell finished first in its NCAA Division I tournament.

The individual match scores were:

Singles

1. Mary Ann Berack (B) def. Rebecca Chase (LHU); 6-2, 6-0.

2. Kymm Carlson (B) def. Kenna Werkeiser (LHU); 6-0, 6-2.

3. Stephanie Ryer (B) def. Karen Johnson (LHU); 6-4, 6-0.

4. Jennifer Wyckoff (B) def. Stacey Clark (LHU); 6-1, 6-1.

5. Elizabeth Murphy (B) def. Jen Ferris (LHU); 6-1, 6-3.

6. Barbara Rosengarten (B) def. Kim Shilling (LHU); 6-3, 6-1.

Doubles

1. Berack and Kristen Vandergrift (B) def. Werkeiser and Johnson (LHU); 6-2, 6-0.

2. Carlson and Kim Thompson (B) def. Chase and Ferris (LHU); 6-1, 6-0.

3. Murphy and Rosengarten (B) def. Clark and Shilling (LHU); 6-3, 6-3.

Soccer team has winning streak snapped

By Maryellen Jaskuta
Eagle Eye Sports Editor

The soccer team had its six game winning streak snapped Wednesday as they fell to host Mercyhurst College, 3-0.

According to assistant coach Phil Stephenson, Wednesday's loss can be contributed to lack of defense and better caliber of play.

"We were not ready to play the game at all, not mentally ready at all," Stephenson said.

"Our defense was poor all over the field, we were not defending as a team."

LHU's defense has not allowed a goal in six games and in their last three games they have outscored their opponents by a combination of 19-0.

But against Mercyhurst the Bald Eagles couldn't capitalize on either end of the field.

"As a team we let the opponents get behind us in the defense which allowed them to score," Stephenson said.

"We've been playing well against the easier teams and yesterday (Wednesday) we ran into a team that was all pumped up for us."

Lock Haven's past three games have been pretty easy caliber and Stephenson noted because of the low caliber of play it might have carried over to Wednesday.

John Melody of Mercyhurst hurt the Bald Eagles as he paced his team with a hat trick.

Melody scored one in the first half and connected twice in the second 45 minutes.

Lock Haven managed 15 shots on goal but Mercyhurst goalie Tim Jett stopped 12 of them.

Haven goalie Chad Abend snared seven of Mercyhurst's nine shots.

The 13th ranked Bald Eagles did have numerous chances to score but could not connect.

"We played well offensively but when we broke down that's what really hurt us," Stephenson said.

On Monday the outcome was totally different as LHU shut out University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown (UPJ), 6-0.

UPJ brought in a record of 9-2 but the Haven proved to be too powerful as they scored four first half goals to open up the game.

Freshman Adrian Blewitt started the scoring binge just three minutes into the game as he nailed a shot past Mountain Cat goalie Robert Travis.

Blewitt was assisted by Lance DiFabio. Twenty minutes later Paul Greitz set up Chris Cassidy to make the score 2-0.

Blewitt, assisted both times by Craig Shale, completed his hat trick in the first half to give LHU a 4-0 lead at halftime.

Mark Waite and Glenn Davis each tallied one in the second half to complete the romp.

"That's the best we've played at midfield all year long," head coach Lenny Long said.

Tomorrow for Homecoming the Bald Eagles host Western Division rival Slippery Rock University.

"The Rock" beat Mercyhurst 2-1 two weeks ago and bring in a record of 5-9 and 1-1 in the West.

Lock Haven dropped to 11-5-1 and is 1-0 in conference play. Game time is scheduled for noon.

Lady Eagles split against tough opponents

By Merritt La Porta
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

It was a seesaw week for the nationally ranked Lady Eagle field hockey team as they hung on to defeat Cortland 2-1 on Monday; but lost a tough 2-1 battle to second ranked Messiah College Wednesday afternoon.

Cortland

Against Cortland, LHU got on the scoreboard first following a scoreless first half when sophomore forward Amy Dante redirected a whistling shot by Michelle Smith past the goalkeeper.

Cortland came right back however, midway through the game and knotted the score at one.

The score remained tied until Robyn Rinkowski scored with 52 seconds left off a penalty corner from Teresa Cisney to give the Lady Eagles the victory.

Getting the win in the dying seconds of the game pleased head coach Sharon Taylor, but the game still had its downside.

"We were flat on offense in the first half," said Taylor. "In the second half we shuffled the line up around and put some of our guns up to the midfielder position and they're the one's who put the pressure on Cortland."

Senior goalie Dot Schmidt made six saves to notch her seventh win on the year.

Messiah

Wednesday afternoon Messiah College came to town for what coach Taylor deemed, "a huge game." With a 14-1 record going into the contest, the Lady Eagles had their work cut out for them against the mighty Messiah.

Both teams played aggressively in the first half. The Lady Eagles would press forward with a burst of pressure, then Messiah would come back with some pressure of its own.

LHU's best chance in the first half came off the stick of Gia Sgrignoli. She rifled a shot from close range, but the Messiah goalie Carrie Brown made a nice save to keep the first half scoreless.

"At halftime I said things were looking up because of the scoreless half," said Taylor. "We did a good job of shutting down (Messiah leading goal scorer) Jen Lapp Balmer."

Cisney broke the ice with a goal off a pass from Sgrignoli. Sgrignoli waited for the defense to come to her and found Cisney wide open in front.

Her goal brought fire to the play of the Lady Eagles and the offense was sparked and ready for the upset victory.

The hopefulness that Taylor was feeling soon turned to the edge of despair when Balmer broke through the Lady Eagle defense and scored just two minutes into the second half, blasting a shot past goalie Schmidt.

"That was a good clean goal," Schmidt said.

With time winding Messiah's Laurie Hooper knocked in a controversial goal with a minute left to play and Messiah avoided possible upset.

"She kicked the ball," said Schmidt. "It shouldn't have counted. We played too good a game to lose it like this."

Coach Taylor accepted the defeat but said, "We still should have scored enough to win."

"They were quick and hit clean. They're a good team and that's why they're ranked second in the nation," she added.

This Saturday the team plays host to Indiana University in their final regular season PSAC game at 12:00 p.m.

Eleven unauthorized students discovered in student's room

By Sharon Brooks
Eagle Eye News Reporter

Eleven unauthorized students were discovered in another student's room while the occupants were away for the weekend, said Grenninger.

The occupants left their keys to another student who was among the eleven students in the room, said Grenninger.

Drinking was suspected, but alcohol was not observed, said Grenninger.

Law Enforcement officials observed a visitor smoking marijuana last Saturday night outside of a residence hall, said Grenninger.

The evidence was not substantial enough for an arrest but, he was referred to counseling, said Grenninger.

Three students were charged with possession of alcohol by minors after a bag containing alcohol was discovered in a residence hall room, said Grenninger.

Another student was charged with harassment by communication after repeatedly pranking another student's room on a regular basis, said Grenninger.

Many more incidents of harassment by communication have been reported over the past few weeks, said Grenninger.

A dual cassette radio, headphones, and three compact discs were stolen from a Sloan Fine Arts Center office, said Grenninger.

The door had obviously been left unlocked for there were no signs of forced entry, said Grenninger.

A student was cited for theft after stealing a sign off of North Fairview St., said Grenninger.
