Overflow Rally

Last night an overflow crowd assembled at the student Boycott Rally in Price Auditorium.

Larry Wise began the discussion by explaining the three stages of planned student action:

-Thursday: student boycott and major rally at 2:00 P.M.

-Monday: Governor Shapp's arrival on campus for a Democratic fund-raising dinner.

-Two weeks: Possible forum with State Legislators.

Wise pointed out that further student action depends upon the success of Thursday's rally.

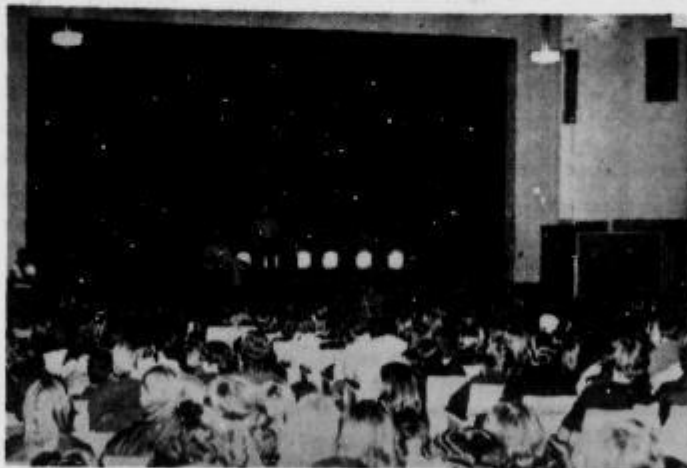

The media which is scheduled to cover the boycott was also discussed by Wise. The AP wire service has been contacted. In addition, television station WBRE is tentatively scheduled to cover Thursday's events.

Tim Foltz then informed the students of the attempts to get the state legislators here for Thursday's rally. The legislature responded that the notice was too short for them to attend. Furthermore, the House and Senate have adjourned and will not be in session for two weeks.

Foltz announced that Sec. of Ed., John Pittenger recommended a budget cut for education. "We have a Sec. of Ed. who doesn't believe in education," stated Foltz.

Next, Mike Holter expanded on the list of problems and grievances. He discussed the necessity of the Law Enforcement Division and the Infirmary. Holter then pointed out the possible discontinuance of these services.

"Students have to become educated, know the arguments and the problems," stated Doug Dows. He further stated that the reason the state colleges aren't getting money is because they don't have the loudest voice." He ended by saying: "TOMORROW IS OUR OPPORTUNITY, OUR CHANCE, IT'S A STEPPING STONE. LET'S DO SOMETHING!"

Hamblin Hopes for Effective Boycott

"We hope it will be effective," said President Hamblin in support of the student boycott. He hoped the boycott would "attempt to bring our problems to the attention of people (legislators) who can do something."

He continued that the boycott is "entirely within the rights of the students as long as they don't violate others' rights."

Hamblin said of state colleges, "these are the colleges of the people of

"To Die in Madrid", a documentary about the Spanish Civil War, is said to be the best ever made in regard to photography and editing. It will be shown on Thurs., Oct. 25, at 7:30 P.M. in Raub 106. Anyone is welcome to come!

Faculty Supports Objectives

By Lloyd Peters To The Students of LHSC:

The Bargaining Unit I representing the Faculty of Lock Haven State College unanimously approved last night a resolution supporting the student boycott of classes. The resolution reads:

"The Faculty of Lock Haven State College supports the objectives of the student boycott of classes on Thursday, October 25, 1973. We recognize the problems and grievances that the student body of Lock Haven State College is trying to bring to the attention of the college administration and state officials."

This tremendous display of support by Lock Haven State's Faculty adds a greater degree of respectability to the class boycott.

The Student Directory will not be distributed on Thurs., Oct. 25, due to the boycott, but will be distributed again on Friday, Oct. 26 and Monday, Oct. 29.

Secretary McIntosh decided to take $78,000 dollars from supplies and equipment allocations and add it to personnel allocations. The letter "doesn't ask if we can do it or if we want to do it. The letter just says that it has been done."

President Hamblin continued by saying that the immediate effects won't be felt right away because supplies have already been bought for this semester. However, "it will really hurt the second semester."

Pennsylvania." These colleges "make it possible for people who aren't generally wealthy to receive a better education."

President Hamblin also stated that this is a problem of the state college system. "We're not saying Lock Haven is being discriminated against."

Hamblin, in an effort to show that some of the state's attempts to alleviate the colleges' monetary problems, read a letter from the Budget Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

EDITORIAL

The problem facing every student enrolled in a Pennsylvania State College is finally about to be brought to the attention of legislators in the state capitol.

Through the effort of the student body of Lock Haven State College and with full cooperation from the Commonwealth Association of Students, our elected representatives in Harrisburg will be made to realize that fiscal responsibility can and does cause educational dilemma.

What is starting here as a non-violent boycott of the educational process may well end up as the greatest politically responsive process of this quarter century. Since Harrisburg seems to understand only dollars and votes, it is expedient to the student body to determine the priority of these elements. The boycott, although not a solution to the problem, will hopefully identify it for the seemingly blind and deaf politicians.

If politics has become a byword of the educational process, it is now time for the educated to enter the political arena and do electoral battle with their seemingly responsive elected representative officials.

All the plans made for today's boycott will be useless without the support of Lock Haven's 2400 students. You must actively support this action. It is your education that is being short-changed, and it is you who must live with this the rest of your life.

What you do today may well determine not only the future of Lock Haven State College but all the State Colleges in Pennsylvania.

Frequently our todays don't affect our tomorrows, but today, Thursday, October 25, will affect all our tomorrows and all the tomorrows of Lock Haven State College.

Impact on State Officers ??

I understand the legitimate concern of students, but I have a personal question as to the impact on state officers." The preceeding was a statement by Dr. Gerald Robinson about today's boycott. Dr. Robinson is Vice-President for Academic Affairs.

"All state colleges have a lack of funds," he commented, "I feel the impact of all state colleges through a co-ordinated effort of student government associations might be more effective." He also said a demonstration in Harrisburg would be more effective.

Dr. Robinson explained he didn't know the plans of Governor Shapp being on campus Monday evening.

"I feel the boycott may have been scheduled at a good time."

When asked about teachers who will take attendance or give quizzes today he said, "I would hope that they don't. Teachers are in a key position to understand student concerns," he continued, "but they should be available to teach students who elect to attend class."

Students Think That...

Due to today's boycott a wide variety of opinions have been expressed by the student body.

The following is a cross section of views voiced by the students at Lock Haven.

Jolene Borgese, a freshman: "I am for the boycott, but if any action is to be taken we must be heard through the media, and the only way that will come about is if all the students join together!"

Hal Elliott, a junior, "I am for the boycott, I think people will show student concern for the situations that exist on this campus."

Tina Bonci, sophomore: "I agree with the idea behind the boycott, I hope it accomplishes something. In order for this to work we have to have direct influence on Harrisburg.

Jeanne Bayuk, a sophomore, "I think the results from the student body will be favorable. Hopefully the legislation will recognize the problem. This may not have as much effect as many more future bigger rallies."

Other viewpoints were "I am completely undecided, because I have doubts as to what the boycott will accomplish." Also, "Nothing is going to come of it, but at least it will show student concern."

Though not everyone was positive about the results, most people interviewed were enthusiastic about the boycott and were willing to let their concerns be known.

Rap Corner

Have you ever asked yourself what you do not like? Or have you ever laughed at something because someone else made a derogatory comment about it? In essence you are simply being prejudiced and are stereotyping situations.

Prejudices and stereotypes exist in all aspects of our society. People who we consider "different from ourselves", receive the brunt of our stereotyping and prejudice. Kind of inhuman don't you think, applying a label to people and to laugh at them only to make our position more sound.

Stereotyping certain groups is a dehumanizing process. Psychologically it hurts to consider these groups on the same human plane as ourselves. In order to lower them you apply a "sarcastic trend" to these group.

Then to keep these groups down on this lower plane we apply another dehumanizing weapon, called prejudice. Prejudice is an active process of not granting certain groups certain things because, unlike us, they do not deserve what we have. For years even centuries prejudice has existed and has touched all groups. It would seem that today with the new awareness and move towards more humanization we should have destroyed prejudice in this generation.

But shockingly enough these two demons of society still loom, and if allowed to run rampant, will corrupt the very fiber of our society. The result would be that between us there would not exist any interaction. Thus society would then become meaningless blocks of ethnocentric concentration.

As an individual reads this article he or she is to be reminded that no one group in society does all the stereotyping or prejudicing. Each of us carry on this practice regardless of which group to which we belong. And no one group can claim that they don't misjudge or stereotype because by now these processes are almost second nature.

Speaking particularly of our own campus, I believe that if in any of our minds there exists fears or uncertainties about another group or person, do not close your mind and react negatively through your ignorance. Instead, try communication. Communication is a powerful weapon against ignorance. Do not through ignorance attempt to poison others' minds against other individuals. Instead, with communication one can teach constructively about others. What say if we all meet in an informal group and talk about each of us. The whole experience would be beneficial to those who remain open minded enough to have their own mind constructs revived.

At this institution as we attempt to expand our minds let us expand also our humility. Prejudice and stereotyping have no place in our society, and each one of us harbors the most effective weapon against them—our minds. Let us use this incredible organ to humanize individuals not to dehumanize. Also let us attempt to gain more knowledge about different groups. Thus, through this we can realize that all groups are human and deserve all that we have to offer regardless of stereotype or prejudice.

Praeco Ask Co-operation

TO ALL CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS, SORORITIES & FRATERNITIES:

We on the PRAECO staff are asking for your co-operation in taking Organizational Pictures. A professional photographer from Victor O'Neill Studios will be here Monday, October 29 and Tuesday, October 30 to take candid and formal group shots. Below is a schedule of times where these will be taken. Please note the time and location and be prompt. To get away from the monotony of the PUB setting, we are asking your groups to meet at a variety of specified locations and times. We remind you that it is the organization that makes the picture, so anything you can bring to it (uniforms, plaques, banners, etc.) will add to the uniqueness of your photo. Keep in mind that unity in the photo will reflect unity in the organization.

If you cannot meet at the indicated time and/or location, PLEASE contact Kathy Osborn or Ginny Schuyler (ext. 414/748-6921) before Monday at NOON, October 29. Thanks so much for your co-operation.

*Note: Those marked PUB will meet in the downstairs lounge.

Women Elect Officers

On October 16, the Executive Board of the Women's Dorm Council held the elections for individual residence hall officers. Results are as follows:

Woolridge:
Pres. Mary Ellen Brown
V.P. Ruth Wiesner
Sec. Susan Chobany

Russell
Pres. Paula Rossetti
V.P. Karen Hoffer
Sec. Leah Miller

McEntire
Pres. Joan Dux
V.P. Kathy Card
Sec. Shelly Robinson

A high percentage of students turned out to vote in this election. These girls should serve to relay input and student demands to the Executive Board. We hope you will be as enthusiastic about utilizing them as spokeswomen to make your needs known, as you were about electing them.

The Executive Board of the Dorm Council is in need of a TREASURER! Anyone interested may contact Ellen Miss Clemmer wishes to thank all students who helped assemble and distributed the Directory.

Lambert in Russell 228, or the Student Life Office. Your help will be greatly appreciated.

October 17-20, Ellen Lambert, Beth Cowden, and Kathy Russell represented Lock Haven at a convention of the North Atlantic affiliate of College and University Residence Hall Associations. Schools from Maine to Virginia shared in an exchange of ideas, problems, and possible solutions. The conference and the individual workshops stressed communication, and attempted to foster the growth of the idea that because students live in the residence halls nine months of the year, the dorms become their home. One of the objectives of the residence hall councils should be to make that "home" as interesting and as enjoyable as possible.

This is where you come in. Our representatives came back with many new and positive ideas. Now we need student response and concern, so that together we can build a sense of community at Lock Haven.

The social committee will meet on Tuesday, Oct. 30, at 7 p.m. in PUB music room.

Professors Share Concern

Today, as yesterday, the student boycott of classes is the major topic of conversation on campus. Professors as well as students are concerned with the outcome, and here is what a few have to say.

Mr. Vaughn: "I'm in favor of it, I hope it calls attention in the right places to the predicament of the state colleges. I'd like to see the budget of the Commonwealth go up and the college tuition of the students go down."

Miss Huttenstine: "I think its a great idea if its kept to its stated purposes. I think something must be done to make Harrisburg aware of the problems created by their recent budgeting patterns. Its ironic that as tuition goes up the quality of Education goes down-not because of the students and not because of the staff, but because of class size, library limitations, and other supportive services. I hope it works."

Mr. Young: "I feel strongly that we need and receive action from the students. I'm not sure whether a boycott is the right thing to do technique wise because of the 'missing classes' facet of it, but I'm glad to see they feel strongly enough to want to do something about it. It is going to be effective only if its really publicized."

Mr. Black: I think the objectives are okay. The protest came so quickly that it is hard to tell how effective this boycott will be until its over and we see the results.

Mr. Eberle: You're not going to know how effective it is till its over. I'm all behind it especially when 3/4 of the things we are trying to get deal with the physical education department. The only way it will work is to give it alot of publicity. The purpose of publicity is to make the people aware of the problem. Something needs to be done- we've got nothing to lose. As for my football game Thurs. every student wants to play- they are not being pressured. I told them that this was the only day they would be able to play the game. It is not in a classroom situation. All my other football classes will probably be boycotted."

Ms. VanDine: I'm glad to see the students moving out of the period of complacency. If it succeeds I'll be excited. I feel though that the boycott is at the wrong time- It should come when all 14 state colleges are able to get together and hold one big gathering.

Harrisburg Could Help

"I hope that it will make an indelible impression on members within Harrisburg." These were the words of Dr. Mathew Maetozo, Dean of Health and Phys-ed at LHS-C, concerning today's boycott.

"Students have every right to make our plight known to the people in positions of power in Harrisburg, who could conceivably help us resolve our problems."

Maetozo also pointed out that "the administration has done all it can up to this point," and with appropriate faculty and student support we can all move forward in solving our apparent problems." The faculty and administration are conversent with our difficulties at present" Maetozo added, but we have reached a point where we are powerless to do anymore without the support of state legislators, the Commissioner of Education, the Commissioner of Higher Education, and the Governor.

In conclusion, Maetozo stated, "I hope that whatever measures students decide to take, they will have positive effects on the problems that we face not only in the Physical Education department but in many other departments in this institution."

"I believe that the students needs should be met and that the state has the responsibility to meet these needs."
