Popular string quartet returns

One of last season's best received groups in the Lock Haven Artist Series will return on Thursday, November 6, for a lecture-demonstration and concert, made possible through a grant from the Pa. Council on the Arts.

The Concord String Quartet of Mark Sokol on first violin, Andrew Jennings on second violin, John Kochanowski on viola, and Norman Fischer on cello will begin the day of musical activities with a demonstration and lecture on string music at 11:00 a.m. in the Sloan Center. Last year, students found this activity to be quite informative and enjoyable.

The concert, beginning at 8:00 p.m. in the Sloan Theatre, will feature selections by Mozart, Bartok, and Beethoven. Tickets may be picked up in the pub by showing an I.D. card.

The quartet's visit to Lock Haven is a cooperative project between the college music department and the Keystone Central School District. At 12:30 p.m., elementary string students will be brought in from area schools in the district for an instructional program by the quartet.

The Concord String Quartet is one of the youngest of the country's nationally-acclaimed string quartets, with all four members in their 20's. Their matched set of instruments was made especially for them by master craftsman Sergio Peresson of Italy. During the morning session, they will discuss the musical qualities of each instrument and demonstrate how the matched set blends together on quartet selections.

ENCORE PERFORMANCE -- The Concord String Quartet is shown as they performed last season in Sloan. One of the youngest nationally acclaimed quartets, the group will make a repeat appearance at LHS next Thursday.

Tapes facilitate language self-learning

By TINA BROOKS
Staff Reporter

Do you want to learn to speak Swahili? You can, now that self-instructional "critical language" cassette tapes are available to help students learn foreign languages.

According to Dr. Marcus Konick, Director of Academic Services and International Education, self-instructional language tapes now include Modern Greek, Polish, Swahili, Arabic, Portuguese and Italian. A tape instructing English is also available for foreign exchange students.

Other tapes that could be purchased if the money was provided include Chinese, Japanese, Hindu, Serbo-Croatian, Hebrew and Hungarian.

Language tapes are made available by the Pennsylvania Consortium for International Education. This organization consists of representatives of the 13 state colleges and state university. Konick is the representative for Lock Haven State.

In addition to the self-instructional language tapes, cassette tapes just received are on such varied topics as Mylai and Vietnam, Agnew and the news, U.S. and Latin America, and Policy Makers Unmasked, among others. These new tapes will be ready for student use within the next few days.

The cassettes can be found in the audio-visual department of the library located in the basement. They may be checked out of the library for a period of one week.

Konick stated that the language tapes can be used by "any student for his own self-instruction in these languages." These tapes, cont. on page 2

Who says you can never go home?

Editor's note: The following is one Lock Haven alumnus' reaction to Homecoming '75. The article was written by John Heagney upon his first return since his 1970 graduation, and was printed in the Bucks County Courier Times.

It would be difficult to imagine a place more resistant to change than Lock Haven State College.

More so than even the conservative, central-Pennsylvania town in which it is situated, my alma mater remains virtually unaltered by the five years since my graduation.

When I drove those familiar 200 miles northwest into the Susquehanna River Valley last weekend, I found nothing to distinguish this from any other homecoming weekend I had spent there as a student.

Granted there were structural changes such as an alien dormitory or two, a fine arts building, not to mention several new parking lots and assorted walkways. There's even a stone wall emblazoned with the college's name and date of birth adorning a previously-naked corner of campus.

But I'm not referring to those types of change.

I'm talking about the still-present, terribly constructed homecoming floats, the apathy and the corpulent cheerleaders who have been rah-rahing on Lock Haven sidelines for more than a century. It was all there and all as I remembered it. Even the weather was its usual drizzle-threatening overcast.

I felt right at home as Lock Haven's football team was hammered silly by Edinboro State.

It was like old times, with the exception of the new football stadium - an unimposing, cyclone-fenced field resting atop an even less-imposing landfill a quarter-mile walk from the heart of campus.

And despite aspirations to the contrary, the stadium is nothing more than a cosmetic touch, a useless trapping. It has done nothing to bolster the team's spirit, or to improve the caliber of football which Lock Haven alumni and students reluctantly have come to call their own.

But the football fiasco was only part of this nostalgic scenario.

For three of the four years I attended Lock Haven, we were shamed by the absence of musical accompaniment on the football field. As glorious bands from other colleges doubletimed across our 50-yard line, we sat mutely envious of the opposing-team's high-stepping drum major and precision marching. By my senior year, however, Lock Haven was being serenaded to defeat by a "miniband," which was little more than two sousaphones, a trumpet and a bass drum.

Now, however, this problem has been eliminated with typical Lock Haven zeal - misguided as it may be. The miniband has been replaced by a larger musical rabble which - dressed only in jeans, blue T-shirts ("The Band" printed across the chest) and tapes facilitate

unlike the Language Library tapes of Spanish, French, and German, are not used for classes with one exception. Dr. Peplow's class in "English as a Second Language" uses the English cassette tape.

The language tapes also have a "strategic use," noted Konick. He gave the example of a LHS student who is going to Poland in an exchange program. The self-instructional Polish tape would be helpful for that student to learn the language. Konick also stated that the English tape is useful for the "foreign student who needs more instruction in the language."

Eagle machine rolls over Pitt

By GARY BRUBAKER
Staff Reporter

Led by Roger Bernecker's three-goal hat trick and solid defensive play by the entire Bald Eagle team, Coach Karl Herrmann's "Big Red Machine" rolled over a surprisingly slow University of Pittsburgh eleven 5-0 last Wednesday afternoon on McCollum field.

The Bald Eagles, playing a tough, physical, and intelligent game never let the Panthers get untracked as Kevin Crump scored the initial goal of the contest just 13 minutes into the first period. Taking a Mike Seigfried cross, the Eagle halfback blasted a beautiful shot which caromed off the right post and into the net for the score.

Lock Haven made it 2-0 just six minutes later as Roger Bernecker scored on a direct penalty kick - the Haven booter awarded the free kick on a tripping infraction called against a Pitt defender inside the penalty area.

Bernecker, perhaps the best center forward in the history of soccer at LHS, scored his second goal late in the first stanza to give the Eagles a commanding 3-0 in the contest. On a Dean Wilson corner kick Mike McCartney slammed a hard head shot toward the goal, Bernecker deflecting the shot with his hip into the left corner of the net from three yards out; McCartney garnering the assist.

Jon Conner concluded the first half scoring for the Bald Eagles, blocking a goal kick by a Panther fullback and slipping a pass to the Eagle junior who bombed an 18 yard shot into the left corner of the net for the score, with exactly 40 minutes gone in the game.

Lock Haven's defense which had been stingy all year continued its fine play allowing the Panthers just two shots the entire first half. Second half action found much of the same as the Panthers just couldn't penetrate the Eagle maze of defenders. Lock Haven's only score in period two came on Bernecker's third goal at 23:16 of the second half. A Dean Wilson corner kick landed among a host of players from both teams - Mike McCartney deflecting the ball to Bernecker who slammed a point blank shot into the net, the Pitt goalie never having time to react.

The Bald Eagles with Wednesday's win over Pitt, set a new all-time mark for "most victories in a season by a LHS soccer team," running their seasonal mark to 11-1-1

Weller refuses resignation bid

By FRED SCHULTZ
Staff Reporter

LHSC Head football coach Bob Weller announced Wednesday that he does not intend to resign his position as coach of the Bald Eagles.

Athletic Director Tod Eberle, earlier this week, asked for Weller's resignation. His ultimatum was that Weller either resign or be fired. Weller has stated that he does not intend to give up on this season because of the circumstances. He does plan to finish the season as coach of the Bald Eagles and has no intentions of quitting at the present time.

Weller's coaching record is not quite a respectable one although he has managed to gain the respect of most of his players. Many rumors have circulated as to who will be Weller's replacement, but as of yet, they are still rumors.

Further developments on this situation will be covered by the Eagle Eye as they occur.

CHARLEY LUCAS
Lucas receives hon. mention

Lock Haven State freshman fullback Charley Lucas has been selected for Honorable Mention honors on the weekly ECAC All-Star Squad for Division III (71 Colleges). Lucas, a 210-pound power runner was picked for his fine performance in Lock Haven's tough 21-12 loss to Mansfield State in football last Saturday.

The former Bald Eagle-Nittany High School star athlete rushed for 148 yards in 20 carries including a brilliant 85-yard touchdown run from scrimmage in the third quarter.

The frosh fullback has gained 325 yards this season in 62 carries for a great average per carry of 5.2 yards.

sneakers - merrily pumps dissonance into the half-time air.

And wedged between all this, our college president, dressed in a western-cut black suit, red-and-white string tie, 10-gallon hat and cowboy boots, moseyed onto the football field like the Hoot Gibson of Academia to announce the homecoming queen and her court.

"Is that guy for real?" my wife whispered.

"That's the president of the college," I answered as she tried unsuccessfully to stifle a laugh.

And after the crowning of the homecoming queen, after the president had retreated from the field, the band had trudged back to the stands and the cheerleaders continued with their thankless job, the fans began leaving. As the second half started, the stands were emptying faster than an hourglass.

With the team behind 26-0, we all had seen the end of the game a hundred times before. So it came as no surprise when we heard the final tally was 52-0.

But if anything had been different, if the team had won or the band had been decked out in finely-tailored uniforms, it just wouldn't have been Lock Haven. And I would have been miserable because of it.
