BSGP board is hopeful about settlement

By Terry Day
Eagle Eye Editor in Chief

Eleven representatives from the fourteen state universities met to discuss the strike last Saturday in the Parsons Union Building coffeehouse.

The Board of Student Government Presidents (BSGP) composed a statement on behalf of the 96,000 students in the State System of Higher Education.

The board in this statement demanded "an immediate agreement on a new contract." Also, the board stated that this interruption had caused severe irreparable damages and consequences, but they were encouraged by the progress.

BSGP Chair Tracy Dudeck said that the board is hopeful about a settlement.

"We are a bargaining chip. We can't take sides," said BSGP Vice Chair Tyrome Smith.

West Chester Student Government Vice President Debbie Seiler said, "It is getting to the point where absolutely no information is being given to the students."

At Indiana University of Pennsylvania, the students are ready to walk out, IUP Student Congress President Shawn Sharbaug said.

Clarion Community Government President Jennifer Yaple said that there is no tension and professors and administration are assured that a strike will not happen. She added the students have a list of details if they do go on strike.

Also, Yaple asked the board to help Clarion with the toxic waste incinerator that may be placed there.

"All states need one and Pennsylvania doesn't have one." Clarion is the proposed site.

She said, "We could be losing one of our sister institutions." She added that the students oppose it.

In other business, the parking problem doesn't only face Lock Haven.

According to Yaple, at Clarion there are only 1323 parking spaces and over 200 extra stickers were given out.

Smith said that Shippensburg is lucky. "We have storage parking for freshmen, residence hall parking and commuter parking," he said.

Further talks slated for today and Saturday

By Terry Day
Eagle Eye Editor in Chief

Both the State System of Higher Education (SSHE) and Association of the Pennsylvania State Colleges and Universities Faculty (APSCUF) resumed negotiation talks.

The talks will continue today, and a Legislative Assembly meeting is set for tomorrow in which they will discuss a possible proposal.

University APSCUF President Dr. John Zaharis said he hopes there will be something to discuss or recommended to the faculty during the meeting.

Not much information is being released due to a blackout agreement between both the APSCUF and the SSHE, Zaharis said.

"I was (hopeful that there would be a settlement) until I talked to someone at the APSCUF office," he said.

Zaharis said, "I think it is the salary article that is put in the back burner to get to the others."

Dr. Mary Pursell, Vice President of Academic Affairs said, "From what I understand, it is still hopeful that there will be an agreement."

She thinks this is the last opportunity for an agreement.

"Nearly 150 tons of aluminum, glass, and cans were recycled in the first seven months of the recycling program at LHU.

That is equivalent to 44 truckloads that would have otherwise occupied landfill space.

The Clinton County facility was slated to close in April of 1990, but received an extension until December 31."-see "Recycling," page 3

Brown discusses problems caused by toxic waste

By Ken Patton
Eagle Eye Reporter

Michael H. Brown, a published author noted for his exposition of the Love Canal pollution crisis, lectured about toxic waste Wednesday night in Price Auditorium.

Love Canal, N.Y., was the site where the Hooker Chemical Co. dumped 20 thousand tons of toxic materials, including 130 pounds of dioxin.

Brown spoke in detail about how he, as a

Niagara Falls reporter, learned of the health problems suffered by Love Canal residents. He characterized the county Health Department as apathetic, and Hooker Chemical as suppressive of his reports.

The community was eventually evacuated by state and federal officials, becoming what Brown calls "the first toxic ghost town in the United States."

The discussion also included dozens of other examples of damages caused by toxic waste, from ladies' nylons that dissolve in the air in Texas, to bald squirrels found near Hemlock, Michigan.

Brown then shifted into explaining and exemplifying how toxic fumes diffuse into the atmosphere worldwide.

Carbon tetrachloride, for example, is in the air in Tanzania, Africa, thousands of miles from any plant that handles the substance.

He described the world as "a global village, in which pollution anywhere eventually may arrive in distant lands." Pollution is especially severe in recently liberalized Eastern Europe.

Concerned citizens in the audience seeking advice from Brown were advised to write letters to elected officials, and organize into effective groups.

He believes that America as a nation has not yet galvanized into action on repairing the environment. He expressed that pollution will not destroy humanity unless the problem is ignored.

Some of Brown's works include Laying Waste, about Love Canal and toxic wastes, The Toxic Cloud about air pollution, and The Greenpeace Story.

Recycling helps reduce the landfill

Ken Patton
Eagle Eye Reporter

On-campus recycling is helping reduce the load on the Clinton County landfill that is scheduled to be closed at the end of the year.

The Clinton County Solid Waste Authority (CCSA) is working to open a new double-lined landfill to replace the current one, according to John B. Hoy, CCSA Chairman.

Pennsylvania law now requires all landfills to be double-lined, said Hoy.

Many unlined landfills statewide, including the Clinton County facility, were granted an extension past the April 1990 deadline until Dec. 31 before being closed.

According to Hoy, the proposed site for the new landfill includes 9.8 acres classified as wetlands by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Extensive studies were conducted in order to advance the permit application submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

Acceptance of the permit may come as early as Oct. 10. Hoy said that if the "go-ahead" were secured at that time, the new landfill could be opened as soon as July 1991.

According to Hoy, the CCSA has not yet determined a course of action if it is without a landfill between closing of the current facility and opening of the new one.

Hoy said some options being considered include temporary use of neighboring Lycoming County's landfill, or the establishment of a transfer station.

Clinton County also handles a large portion of Centre County's solid waste. Approximately two-thirds of the material currently processed at the Clinton County landfill originates in Centre County, said Hoy.

Pennsylvania's Act 101, passed in 1988, requires all communities to recycle as of September 1990. Recycling began in Clinton County in Dec. 1989, and the LHU campus last March.

Figures compiled by Fred Teti, the Waste Authority's County Recycling Program Coordinator, show that nearly 150 tons of aluminum, glass, and cans were recycled in the first seven months of the program.

That is equivalent to 44 truckloads that would have otherwise occupied landfill space. Countywide participation had risen to over 84 percent by July 1990, said Teti.

John Moyer, Director of Maintenance, coordinates the Recycling Committee on campus.

Other members include Teti, Leland Spangler, Steve Fisher, Dwayne Haines, Ben Manion, Ken Fisher, and John Wilt. A student representative will soon be added, according to Moyer.

In addition to recyclable collected by the County, the University also collects computer cards and paper, said Moyer.

Moyer describes the campus custodial force as the front line in gathering recyclable. Materials taken from the collection bins are taken to a staging area, where they are in turn removed by the grounds crew.

Paper and computer cards are sold separately, while glass, aluminum and tin are collected by the Solid Waste Authority.

The Recycling Committee reports that "recycling has been accepted very well by the University community.

"We feel that we collect no less than 90 percent of all recyclable that we are mandated by state law...this is due to distribution of educational material, the cooperation of the University community and the Recycling Committee."

Problems still exist, however. Moyer cites contaminants in the recyclable paper as a chief difficulty. Trash and white paper need to be kept separate. Conversely, some items that could be recycled end up in refuse.

"Every time you keep a beverage can out of the trash," Mr. Hoy said, "you leave that much more room for something else in the landfill." He also emphasizes that recycling works best when done at the source.

He points out that it is much more difficult to sort recyclable at the dump site than to simply place them in proper locations in the home, school or office.

Masemore appointed to ABPAPT advisory board

By Anna Marie Burton
Eagle Eye Reporter

Dr. Ira Masemore, Dean of College of Education of Human Services has been reappointed for a two-year term to the Advisory Board of the Pennsylvania Academy for the Profession of Teaching (ABPAPT).

Masemore, a graduate of Shippensburg and Penn State, joined the staff 22 years ago. He majored in Secondary Education with a minor in History.

ABPAPT, located in Harrisburg, is an initiative of the State System of Higher Education (SSHE) which seeks to improve teaching and learning at all levels of education. ABPAPT also seeks to enhance teaching as a profession.

The Academy Board of Directors consists of the Chancellor of the SSHE and the presidents of the fourteenth system universities.

According to Masemore, the advisors are 45 men and women with diverse backgrounds and perspectives who share a common concern about the quality of teaching and learning and the advancement of the profession of teaching.

Masemore was first appointed in 1988 for a two year term.

"The total board meets four times a year to set program goals," said Masemore. "We work in subcommittees and the subcommittees work whenever we are needed.

For example, I have a meeting this week for a subcommittee. I belong to the Rural Education Subcommittee."

The Academy will not serve as a center, but as a catalyst, said Masemore.

It will respond to the call for reform in education not with rules and regulations, but "with creativity and cooperation, with partnerships and pilot programs, and with experiment and expertise," said Masemore.

Throughout the years, the Advisory Board has sponsored several programs for the university.

In one such program, a professor exchanged positions with a public school teacher. Masemore pointed out that the purpose of this program was to help the professor to "get back into the classroom" and to introduce higher education to the classroom teacher.

According to Masemore, as a result of this program, the classroom teacher enrolled for a doctoral program.

The professor who was involved with training the teacher has established a program where the local teachers (elementary and secondary) may spend a day on campus.

In another program, a professor worked for 15 days in city schools in Harrisburg. The purpose was for the professor to learn about inner city schools.

Masemore said this professor is now helping recruit inner city students to attend LHU.

The funding for these programs is provided by the legislature, SSHE, and each university that belongs to the Advisory Board, according to Masemore.

The legislature and SSHE both provide $50,000 a year. The universities provide between $5,000 and $15,000 per year depending on the size of the institution.

Lock Haven provides $5,000 per year. As soon as funding is available the actual work of the Academy will begin. Once the initial projects are underway, the Academy will seek federal and foundation funding to extend its work.

Masemore added that the board's future goals during the next two years are to "establish rural professional development centers, where school districts, intermediate units, and colleges can come together to help the public schools meet some of the problems they are having.

"It also will help the universities and their student teaching programs. Finally, it will help universities and public schools to implement new technology in teaching."

Masemore has also provided other perspective programs such as the teaching project mentioned earlier.

Other proposals include the establishment of child care institutes, an attempt to develop partnerships between public schools and colleges; to improve programs for their young children and parents, and also sponsor projects in Latin Education.

Military police conduct team demonstration

By Amy Mueller
Eagle Eye Reporter

The Special Reaction Team (SRT) stationed at Fort Indiantown Gap gave a demonstration in Rogers Gymnasium Tuesday.

The SRT was invited to the University by the Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC).

Members of ROTC, faculty, the student body, and the general public were invited to attend the demonstration that was held from 1p.m. to 5p.m.

Captain Donald Numer brought six members of a eight member SRT. SRT is also known as the Military Police and all the members are part of the active Army Military Police.

They participate in hostage rescue missions, drug raids, barricaded subject removal, and surveillance activities.

Since military police are not allowed to enforce laws, they only work on a military base.

Each member explained what his responsibilities were in relation to the other members of the team, including an explanation of their equipment.

Equipment used for protection, night vision, communication, was on display at the demonstration. After the presentation, those watching were allowed and encouraged to pick up and view the equipment.

LHU 55th best buy says Money magazine

By Rachel Hosterman
Eagle Eye Reporter

Lock Haven University was recently ranked 55th in Money magazine's "America's Best College Buys" guide to the nation's top 100 public higher education institutions.

To be rated higher than such schools as Penn State and the University of Pittsburgh, which ranked 99th and 33rd, respectively, is an honor, according to President Craig Dean Willis.

He was "glad to see that we were included," he said that he has his own ideas about what is so special about LHU.

"It is a combination of factors that include a friendly group of 4,000 people including faculty, staff and students, an attractive, pleasant, rural setting, an emphasis on international study, and a high-quality faculty."

Other Pennsylvania schools ranked were Indiana University of Pennsylvania at 22nd, Shippensburg University at 29, Bloomsburg University at 30th, and Millersville University at 42nd.

The writers of the article took into consideration 17 criteria and tuition costs in rating each school. Average SAT score, the number of books in the college library, and the professors with doctoral degrees were some of the criteria.

The evaluation was done in conjunction with Peterson's Guides, publishers of educational analyses and college directories.

The top-ranked school, Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art, is located in New York City.

According to the 1991 edition of Peterson's Four-Year Colleges guide, Cooper's Union is officially listed as $0. While the cost of "college room only" is $3650, a fee of $300 is mandatory.

The college is listed as most difficult for entrance, since it is by scholarship only.

The enrollment is 1027.

Joseph Coldren, Director of Admissions at LHU said "according to Peterson's assessment, we would still be within the range of 'most difficult'...Lock Haven is highly selective."

He added that the university offers a "premier educational package" for a student looking for high-quality education.

Louis Fabian, Director of Planning and Evaluation, Academic Affairs, verified that 52 percent of the full-time professors hold doctoral degrees.

Willis estimated that the university has "the most stable faculty in the SSHE system...people come here and stay."

Stevenson Library has over 240,000 more books than Cooper Union's and the number of paid periodical subscriptions is almost four times as large, according to director of library services Robert Bravard.

Although Indiana University of Pennsylvania ranked higher than LHU, Bravard said that per year, "you (Lock Haven) students use more books than Indiana."

The average number of SSHE library uses per student during the 1988-89 school year was 32.55 as compared to Indiana's 18.09 uses per student per year.

Housing lessens despite increase in enrollment

By Mary Lee Shroat
Eagle Eye News Reporter

Severe crowding in residence halls has lessened although overall enrollment has increased. The enrollment for new students including freshmen and transfers for the Fall of 1990 was 917 compared to 906 for the Fall of 1989.

Tim Susick, associate dean of students, said, "In the Fall of 1989, we opened with 1,835 resident students and in the Fall of 1990 we opened with 1,797 resident students." These figures leave no males in triples except by choice, 53 males in lounges, 18 females in triples, and 49 females in lounges. A few of the students have made the choice to stay in the temporary situations rather than move.

The problems with overcrowding this semester have been minimal. "There have been very few roommate conflicts," according to Sussick.

At the present time the only effort to improve the overcrowding problem has been a feasibility study on either putting an addition onto one of the existing residence halls or possibly connecting two residence halls together as one.

The University has no plans presently to purchase any additional property to construct a new residence hall.

A demonstration on how the SRT would handle a hostage situation was given.

During this, the team demonstrated ways of entering the premises, break-in techniques, and how they would capture the criminal. While they did this, Numer explained what they were doing and why.

This was the third visit the SRT has made to the campus, the first two were during last year

According to Numer, if they are invited again, they will be back.

Captain Numer was content with the turnout, saying "even if only two people showed up I would still be happy."

It pays to get an internship

By Kristi Smith
Eagle Eye Reporter

It is well-known that someone with experience in any given field will be chosen for a position over someone without the needed experience. Now, how do you go about getting the experience you need? Choose an internship.

An internship is simply a summer job offered by employers to help students gain experience in his or her chosen field. Many majors require students to participate in summer internship programs, though it is recommended that all students take an internship so they can be sure of what they want to do and get the much needed experience many companies are looking for.

Your best bet of finding a good internship program is to go see Joan Wilker in the Career Placement office in the bottom of Ake-ley. Ms. Welker will help find the right job by asking such questions as:

What are you majoring in?

What are you interested in?

Where would you like to live?

She also has books and directories to help you find what you are looking for. You may also want to ask your advisor what type of internship would be good for your major.

Another way to find out about what an internship can do for you is to ask Ms. Welker about the "Summer Job Fair" to take place sometime in late February, early March. This program brings in employers looking for prospective employees for the summer.

Look into an internship even if your major doesn't require one, the experience will help you in the long run.

The board will provide subject area in grants, the idea to provide opportunities for faculty in the liberal arts and sciences and faculty in teaching education.

According to Masemore, the advisory board will be holding a meeting to introduce these grants. It will be on October 5, 1990 at the Hamblin Auditorium in Robinson

Hall from 10:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

Masemore has spent ten years in the Department of History and Political Science. He was appointed 12 years ago as Dean of the College of Education of Human Services.

SCC President Andrew Wendel: Who is he?

By Karen Carlson
Eagle Eye Features Editor

Andy Wendel, this year's new Student Cooperative Council President, has the makings of a very good leader.

"I love it" said Wendel of his new post. "It's a great position. I love dealing with people and trying to get things done."

Being president of the SCC is quite a responsibility. The SCC is a student governed council with an executive board. Each senator represents 100 students.

There are several committees in the SCC, such as Election, Homecoming, and Cultural and Social committees.

The SCC is in charge of "daily business" such as making sure the bookstore and snack bar are running smoothly. It also organizes plays and concerts presented on campus.

Currently the SCC Social Committee is planning a concert for the spring semester. "We don't know who it will be yet" said Wendel. "It depends on who is touring at that time, and on our budget."

The SCC budgets money to several clubs and organizations. "The amount is determined by the Student Appropriating Committee," said Wendel. SCC gives to the Residence Hall Association (RHA) for programs, such as Club Haven, and to athletics, cheerleading, and small clubs.

Being President takes up a lot of Wendel's free time. "I work at least ten hours a week" said Wendel. "It's like a full time job."

When Wendel does have free time, he works on homework and spends time with his girlfriend. He enjoys exercising and biking. "On Sundays I go home and work at my Dad's hotel" said Wendel.

Wendel lives in St. Mary's, PA. He is a senior majoring in Management Science. After graduation, he would like to go into a management position. "I love making decisions and dealing with problems" said Wendel.

During his sophomore year he was Treasurer for the RHA and a member of the Management Science Club.

In his junior year he became the Treasurer for the SCC. "I got to know the SCC inside and out," said Wendel. He was also Treasurer for the Educational Opportunity Program (EOP).

This year, in addition to being SCC President, Wendel is the Parliamentarian for the Board of Student Government Presidents. "My job is to keep the meeting running and to make sure the agenda is followed."

Despite his demanding schedule, Andy

Wendel is thriving in his new position. "I'll try to get problems solved" promises Wendel. There is no doubt he will do his best.

Turning your college days into a resume

By Steven Infanti
Eagle Eye Columnist

It's a shame but eventually college has to end. No more scheduling classes to start at noon so you could go out the night before and party at Sal's. No more two-hour lunches in the dining hall scoping or checking out the latest batch of freshmen women on campus.

That really sucks!

Of course, some of us will try to hide from the real world a little bit longer by going to graduate school. Others will take a few months off just to hang around soaking up the sun and suds. Bills will become due. All those student loans that you were taking out you will have to start making payments on. We have to get jobs!

That really sucks!

The moment we get our diplomas, we are unemployed. Since I can't get seem to buy anything with my good looks (believe me, I have tried) I'll have to put my degree to use.

It's really disheartening when you walk by the janitor and he tells you he got a liberal arts degree also.

That really sucks!

I guess there's no sure fire way to get a great job, although being related to the boss or having photos of your perspective employer in a compromising position would help. You need to have more on your resume than your name, address and telephone number. Some people aren't involved in much up here in college and will need to turn every little experience they have had into something for their resume.

If you threw good parties or helped couples hook up, you could list yourself as a SOCIAL ACTIVITIES DIRECTOR. If you handed out condoms to a friend, you might be able to give yourself the title of DISEASE CONTROL TECHNICIAN. Those of you that clean the bathrooms in your apartments could try listing that as FECAL ENGINEER.

If you eat in the dining hall, you might be able to get away with placing that under HAZARDOUS WASTE REMOVAL TECHNICIAN. If you do nothing but watch television, you can list that as MEDIA ANALYST. If you enjoy kinky sex and fool around a lot on your boyfriend/girlfriend, you should say you were studying for a future in politics.

If the thought of getting a job doesn't appeal to you, then think about the money. That's right, moolah, dead presidents, greenbacks, dinero..... Don't even think about giving me the old line that "money can't buy happiness." Horsepuckies! Money may not be able to buy happiness, but it can buy me a yacht; that way I can sail right by happiness and wave at it.

Get involved while you are in college. Remember, life is like a sled-dog race and unless you're the lead dog, the view is mighty unpleasant.

Students give professor's truck a makeover

By David Beahm
Eagle Eye Reporter

As some of you may be glad to hear, Dr. Rumbalski's truck has been repainted. Those of you who liked its wild, random jumble of color needn't be disappointed, however. The new coating has the same character.

Anyone unfamiliar with the vehicle in question probably needs his eyes checked. The '65 Chevy pickup truck is splattered with riotous patterns and chiaroscuro coloring, a sight hard to miss.

Rumbalski's art class students saw the truck during a field-trip to his house and volunteered to repaint it for him, just for fun. The exercise teaches them about mixing paints and contrasting colors, as well as how to find fun and original projects.

Asked about people's reactions, Dr. Rumbalski said they either loved it or hated it.

One of the students said, "It makes a statement."

"Yeah," another responded, "confused."

New professor is not your average professor

By Heather Sicchitano
Eagle Eye Co-Features Editor

Professor Jeff Burnham is a new assistant professor in the history, political science, economics, and management science department.

However, Burnham is not your average, run-of-the-mill professor. How many professors do you know that have lived in three different foreign countries or regions for up to six weeks at a time?

Burnham has a doctorate in International Relations from Claremont Graduate School in California. He has used his knowledge and expertise in international relations for a wide variety of purposes.

Besides having taught at the collegiate level for the past eleven years, he has been a Malone Fellow at the National Council of US-Arab Relations. He has also traveled and lived in Sub-Sahara Africa, southeast Asia, and Egypt for up to six weeks at a time.

Burnham's classroom is not based on lectures and dictations. How could it be that traditional when he describes himself as being "somewhat radical?"

It doesn't matter if he is teaching his Political Science class or his American National Government class or his upper level classes. His attitude is the same. He expects his students to think critically and to consider traditional ideas from another perspective.

He feels that his classes are geared to any student, not just the history or political science major. He encourages students to enroll in history or government-related classes because by knowing about the world students have a greater control on their destiny.

He decided on coming to LHU because it looked like an interesting place. The students and faculty are good-natured and pleasant. The surrounding countryside offers him many opportunities to pursue some of his hobbies like skiing and camping.

LHU and the Eagle Eye are happy to welcome Dr. Jeff Burnham to Lock Haven University.

RHA plans for Family Day

By Jennifer Adams
Eagle Eye Features Reporter

October 6 is Family Day, and this year's Family Day promises to be one of the most successful. There are 1,200 people expected, with 1,000 of them signed up for the President's Oktoberfest dinner.

The Residence Hall Association has scheduled enough events to keep family members busy from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The day's events start at 11:30 a.m. with receptions and registration in the residence halls. All off-campus student's parents will register in Woolridge Hall. At this time all those participating in the President's dinner may to pick up their tickets.

From 1-2:15 p.m., The Brass Quintet and The University Players are scheduled to play at a location to be announced.

The RHA has scheduled events for the kids as well. Face painting, clowns, free computer portraits in Woolridge Hall, and more will take place from 1-3 p.m.

Zimmerli Pool will be open for all those wishing to swim from 1-3:30 p.m.

Athletic abilities will be tested during mother/daughter, father/son games like volleyball, basketball, horseshoes, croquet, and bocci. The games will be played from 1-3:30 p.m. at a location to be announced. A change of clothes is advised.

Singer and acoustic guitarist Barb Schloff will be performing songs for the young at heart from 2-3:30 p.m.

Shower and freshening-up facilities are available from 3:30-4:00 p.m.

The President's Oktoberfest dinner will be at 4-5:30 p.m. Due to the overwhelming response, the dinner has been moved from the President's home to Bentley Dining Hall. Since Bentley Hall seats only 700, the families are asked to eat and leave so that other families may be seated.

At 5 p.m., during the President's dinner, the winner of the Lock Haven Business Bureau Contest will be announced. The winner will receive a $500 award which will go towards the spring 1991 tuition.

At 6 p.m., RHA members and families will gather at the Seig Conference Center.

This year's Family Day is sure to be full of fun for students and family members alike.

The Northeastern Huskies were fresh off a loss to Harvard on national television (ESPN) and were looking for their first win of the year in a big way.

Unfortunately for LHU they were the team in the way as Northeastern used its power and size to blow out the Bald Eagles, 52-6.

The Bald Eagles got a surprise at the beginning of the game when the Huskies made some personal changes at the quarterback position and the fullback slot.

LHU head coach Dennis Therrell described the quarterback to be a better passer than the former quarterback.

The fullback was also bigger. "They had moved a backup linebacker- who goes about 6'2"- into the fullback position."

So as it seems the Bald Eagles were going into the game facing a better Northeastern team than the one that faced Harvard.

After picking up a first down LHU running back Mike Samsel fumbled the next play on the Bald Eagles 33 yardline.

From there the Huskies used six plays to cross the line of the end zone.

"(The fumble) gave them a spark," Therrell said. "From there they just ran the game."

From that point on in the first half Northeastern flexed their muscle as LHU's offense failed to move. The defense never got a chance to rest as the Huskies ran out to a 31-0 lead.

It was time for a gut check for the Bald Eagles. "Going into this game I was worried about the mental approach of our players," Therrell said. "Can they go in and battle or will they fold up their tents?"

The second half began with the Bald Eagles drive to the Huskies 30 yardline. A fumble by Rocky Vuocolo gave the ball back to the Huskies.

Northeastern took the ball and drove 70 yards in 10 plays for another touchdown.

The Bald Eagles never quit in this game. In the fourth quarter LHU quarterback Jimmy Broadway hit Dave Wyland with an eight yard pass for a score.

Therrell was proud of the fact his team never quit if anything else. "They stood in there like gentlemen and fought for their university," Therrell said.

Despite the lopsided score Therrell felt that Northeastern was a class team. "They were hunting for a win. They were 0-3 and needed something to get them going. I don't think they did anything to run up the score or purposely beat us up."

The main problem in this game however was the fact that the Bald Eagles could not finish their drives for scores. "We move the ball but we hurt ourselves in their territory," Therrell said. "We have been guilty of stopping ourselves all year."

"They stood in there like gentlemen and fought for their university."

-Head coach Dennis Therrell

The numbers for the Bald Eagles proved their short passing game to be working. Broadway completed 18 of 36 passes (both season highs) for 112 yards. Vuocolo caught a season high nine receptions in the effort.

But the rushing game still suffers. "We definitely have to run the ball better," Therrell said. "When you run the ball well you can do a lot more on offense."

The road for the Bald Eagles continues to be a bumpy trail as they travel this week to face last year's Western Division champion, the Fighting Scots of Edinboro.

Edinboro features the number one scorer in the Pennsylvania Conference, wideout Ernest Priester, who has eight touchdowns this year.

They also have Hal Galupi the second rated passer in the conference (146.4 rating points), and the number two rusher, Lester Frye who has 435 yards.

Edinboro leads the Western Division in both total offense and total defense.

"They have a lot of speed and their line moves very well," Therrell said.

Last week Edinboro beat Clarion 23-14 to run their record to 1-0 in the division (3-1 overall).

Some observers note that the Fighting Scots may be looking over and past some opponents and focusing on IUP (the main threat to their current crown).

This could help the Bald Eagles who are now 0-2 in the division (1-4 overall). The game is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. in Edinboro.

Cross Country Results

Both the men's and women's cross country teams placed fourth last Saturday in Bloomsburg University's Cross Country Classic.

The men tallied 124 points while the women 103.

Other school that participated were teams such as Mansfield, Shippensburg, Millersville, and Division III foes University of Scranton and Lycoming College.

Only three men placed in the top thirty for LHU. Along with their times and places, they were:

7th Ron McMichael 27:55
22nd John Widl 28:47
26th Travis Faulkner 29:12

The women had four places in the top thirty.

The results are below along with their places and times.

16th Dawn Brenner 21:47
27th Pam Sheppard 22:28
28th Dianna Szymanski 22:40
30th Jodi Crandel 22:40

Ice Hockey kicks off season

The ice hockey club opened their season at the Penn State Ice Pavilion last weekend in grand style.

Awaking early in the morning Saturday (9:15 a.m.) the team faced the Harrisburg Wolves as tough as they could.

LHU played hard but the Wolves tied the game late and the game ended 2-2.

Scoring for LHU were newcomer Larry Patterson and Gross Hall residence director Steve Fisher.

The next game was played a game against The Geohabs, the team considered by many to be the best in the league.

The Geohabs stomped LHU 10-1. The lone LHU goal was put in by senior Terry Stangil.

"I feel were looking good so far this year," Stangil said. "We have a lot of talent and we should do well this season."

LHU next opponents will be the Flyers tomorrow at 8 a.m. and the Wizzards Sunday 8:15 p.m. All of the ice hockey games will be played at the Penn State Ice Pavilion.

SPORTS

Badminton: going places

By Michelle Riddle
Eagle Eye Reporter

Do you have what it takes to be one of the few, the proud, the competitive badminton players? Yes, I said badminton.

LHU proudly sponsors a small hardcore group of diehard badminton champs who make up the LHU Badminton Club.

This sport is one of the most stimulating, strategic and exciting games I have ever played.

Quickness, agility, power, and finesse are all combined to make this sport a joy to play and a pleasure to watch.

The many tournaments in this term take the team to Penn State, Mansfield and Brockport, NY.

If you are interested come to a practice (time and place are posted around campus), or talk to me, the club's president, at 3286 or call our advisor Dr. Nan Wood.

Be warned, this is not the benign, behaved, backyard badminton you may be used to; WE PLAY TO WIN.

Ranked 14th in Division II...

Soccer posts two more victories

By Maryellen Jaskuta
Eagle Eye Sports Editor

The Bald Eagle soccer team, who is ranked 14th in Division II, picked up a pair of wins this past week.

LHU was victorious 2-0 over both and St. Francis College and Bloomsburg University (BU).

Yesterday, Lock Haven scored both goals in the second half to beat St. Francis.

Glen Davis and Mark Waite scored while Ray Bruce and Kenny Tewsley recorded the assists.

"The field was terrible, ten percent of it was underwater," head coach Lenny Long said. "But it was nice to come away with a victory."

The Haven outshot St. Francis 26-7 and had a four to one advantage in corners.

Freshman goalkeeper Chad Abend recorded his third shutout, second in a row, as he had to stop only three shots.

St. Francis goalie Mark Tieklo stopped 18 LHU shots and played a great game according to Long.

Even though Lock Haven beat PSAC East rival Bloomsburg last Saturday, Long was not pleased with the victory.

"I'm not pleased because we played in spurts," Long said. "But that's a sign of a young team."

Five freshmen and three sophomores start for the Bald Eagles.

LHU scored once in each half.

Senior Gary Ross tallied his fifth goal of the season off a direct kick thirteen minutes into the game.

He nailed the shot around the Huskie defensive wall into the upper left corner of the goal.

Ross is currently third in the conference for scoring.

Forward Chris Cassidy added an insurance goal in the second half to complete the scoring and make the score, 2-0.

Abend recorded another shutout as he was threatened with only three Huskie shots.

Abend is also ranked in the conference standings. For goalkeepers, he is second with 35 saves in five games and has a 0.67 goal against average.

The Haven had 20 shots on goal while BU recorded only eight.

Long noted the Bald Eagles played "the first 20 minutes and the last twenty minutes" on Saturday.

"We're going to run into a time where we will have to play for the full 90 minutes or it's going to hurt us."

The biggest complaint Long noted was concentration. This might be because the freshmen are used to playing quarters as compared to halves in college.

"I need to know we can play for 90 minutes," Long said. "We got a great bunch of players, they need to prove it to themselves."

The Bald Eagles, whose record is 7-4-1, will host the University of District of Columbia Sunday at 2 p.m.

Field hockey settles for second consecutive tie

By Herb Samuels
Eagle Eye Sports Editor

The field hockey team repeated a feat which head coach Sharon Taylor has never seen in her 17 years of coaching here at LHU.

"This is the first time ever in my career as a coach that I've had a team go back-to-back 0-0 ties," Taylor said.

The reference she has made was to last Thursday's tie with Kutztown followed by last Saturday's tie to Salisbury University.

"Anytime we are in a scoreless tie we should win with the forwards we have," Taylor said.

The two games ended the same but the action was much different. "We were down right lucky (against Salisbury)," Taylor said. "They missed three or four shots with an open cage."

The statistics were also very different between the two games. Against Kutztown, LHU dominated every statistical category except scoring. In the Salisbury game LHU was outshot 17-13.

LHU had more penalty shot opportunities (16-13) but the Lady Eagles could not capitalize the advantage.

LHU goalie and team captain Dot Schmidt played a great game making 15 saves. Taylor also made reference to the stellar play of back Christine (Cricket) Ossman.

While the Lady Eagles showed some flashes of aggressive play, the overall inconsistency is the mystery. The jolt of energy needed has been coming and going the entire year.

"We don't have the intensity and that comes with self-confidence," Taylor said. "We turned around after we beat East Stroudsburg (7-0) and haven't played intense since."

Now entering their ninth game the team should be heading into a groove instead of playing tentative. Surprisingly the Lady

Eagles are a very experienced team up front.

"We are young in back but the forwards are not," Taylor said. "Besides we are into our ninth game. You can only use youth as an excuse for so long."

LHU is now seventh in the conference with 1-2-1 record. This week the Lady Eagles go on the road for three conference games. The first is tomorrow at Slippery Rock, the next game is Monday at Shippensburg and the last is Thursday at Mansfield.

"These are all teams we should do well against," Taylor said. "If you lose one of these games then it could put you back come conference championship time."

Taylor also said the 0-0 ties have to end. "All it takes is one fluky thing to get the ball past you," she said.

These games will could either make or break the Lady Eagles season; this week is definitely critical for LHU.

Eagle Eye Player of the Week

Field hockey goalie
Dot Schmidt

Schmidt, the senior captain of the team, posted her third consecutive shutout this week against Salisbury University. Schmidt snared 15 saves as she kept LHU in the game for a 0-0 tie.

The shutout was her fourth of the year as her save total was raised to 87. She is also allowing just 0.71 goals per game; good enough for second in the conference.

Schmidt received honorable mention for Pennsylvania Conference Player of the Week as she continues to lead by example.
