

Open frat parties to be thing of the past

By Jay Zech
Co-editor

Open fraternity parties, as they are now known, will become non-existent as of January 20, 1986, according to Tim Susick, Associate Dean of Student Life.

"I'd like to close open-parties tomorrow, but I wanted to give them (the frats) a chance to respond to the proposed changes," said Susick.

All parties for the spring semester

1986 will be closed. But the definition of closed parties has yet to be defined.

Ken Foster, $\Phi\text{M}\Delta$, is chairman of the Intra-Fraternity Council (IFC) Party Policy Committee, whose purpose is to develop a policy around the new changes. The definition of closed party is to be one of the main topics. The committee meets tomorrow at 7 p.m.

Reasons behind closing

There are a number of reasons behind Susick's closing of the parties besides the obvious reason of serving beer without a license, and the main one is that the Greek image at LHU is tarnished.

The community views all party guests as members of the fraternity. Consequently, when people are singing loudly on their way home at 2 a.m., or urinating in the bushes, the fraternity is blamed.

"There are too many 'Three buck a week Greeks'; they take in the social aspects without actually having to be Greek," said Susick, "I want to make it something special to be greek."

About five years ago the greek population on campus stood at 18 percent. It's now below 7.5 percent.

It is hoped that the absence of open parties will be a beginning in improved relationships between the Greek community and the town.

Another of the reasons that Susick cited was the "host liability law", which basically says that hosts' are responsible for the actions of their guests on the way home. This law especially deals with alcohol related problems, such as car accidents.

The possible liability resulting from beer served at a fraternity should be a deterrent that makes the risks far greater than the benefits. Another concern is that some advisers to fraternities may also be liable.

"...not for the beer"

"Students tell me they go for the socialization, not for the beer," added Susick.

Last Thursday "Cheers to L.H. You" committee, the non-alcoholic alternative to frat parties, decided to only open for special events. The reason given was lack of student support.

"The fraternities at Lock Haven were on a course to destruction. These are needed changes. The frats are just going to have to bite the bullet for a while," said Susick.

Coming on Friday. The Frats Response.

84, Charing Cross Road opens this week

By Chris Fischer
Feature Editor

84, Charing Cross Road, a play about an intercontinental friendship spanning several decades, will be presented this week by the Lock Haven University Players.

The postal love affair that takes place between these two distant groups, shows that the world does not have to be so impersonal and cold.

This play has recently gained publicity as a Broadway production. Special permission had to be obtained by LHU to be able to produce the show since it is still touring.

This production will be directed by Dr. Robert Kidder, professor of Speech and Theatre at LHU.

84, Charing Cross Road, is the James R. Evans adaptation of Helene Hanff's best-selling novel of the same name.

The show is described as a warm, gentle and funny dramatization of an international friendship among people who love the great books of the world.

The play is centered on Helene Hanff, a middle-class woman writer living in New York City, and the staff of a small bookshop in London, England.

The sarcastic and funny part of Helene Hanff will be played by freshman Angela Sparks.

Her lead counterpart on stage will be veteran LHU performer Robb Warren, playing the part of Frank Doel. Doel is Hanff's main correspondent in the London bookstore.

Other cast members of 84, Charing Cross Road, are: Robert Craft, as George Martin; Alison Darks, as Cecily Farr; Amy Ludewig, as Maxine Stuart; Claudia Corvalan, as Megan Wells; Kate O'Neil, as Joan Todd; and Stephen Zoldi, as William Humphries.

The play is aided by an outstanding split set, designed by professor John B. Gordon. The lighting designer for the production is Rick Ansel, a student at LHU.

Handling the costumes for 84, Charing Cross Road, is second year professor, Linda Roethke.

The drama will open Thursday at 8 p.m. in Sloan Theatre, and run through Saturday night. There will also be a special preview performance Wednesday evening.

Tickets for the performances may be purchased in the Student Cooperative Council Business Office located in the Parson's Union Building. Tickets will also be available at the box office on the night of the play.

Price of admission is $2.50 for the general public, $1.00 for students, and free with a validated LHU I.D. card.

EDITORIAL

Ho, Ho, Ho,

Ho-ho-ho, Merry Christmas. What's that you say, there's still a month and a half till the big day? You'd hardly know that by the way advertisers are already bombarding us with "Buy for the Holidays" messages.

Turn on the TV, and you'll see what I mean. Every other commercial seems to contain a pitch for mail-order Christmas albums, sales on Christmas trees, and anything and everything for you could possibly want for your cabbage patch kid.

I'm a big fan of the late Bing Crosby, but even "White Christmas" can be pretty nauseating when it's played behind the voice of a revoltingly enthusiastic announcer two weeks before Halloween. And that's when I saw the first Christmas commercial this year, two weeks before Halloween.

I always held to the obviously mistaken assumption that the "Holiday Season" started on Thanksgiving and continued until New Years Day. I guess I was wrong. Hell, even the bookstore has Christmas decorations up already.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not a Scrooge or anything, but I need a little more time to breathe before I start to feel guilty about not having enough cash to buy presents.

Christmas has been around for 2,000 years. Yet, somehow I doubt that parents back then worried about which accessory to buy for their daughters' Cleopatra doll when Christmastime came around, and I'm sure they didn't worry about it two months ahead of time. But what I am sure of is that people back then had just as good a Christmas as we do today.

If we don't watch out, Crazy Eddie and his "Christmas in August" may turn out to be prophetic. After all, with Christmas in mid-October, we're already halfway there.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Lock Haven University varsity soccer field is a marvel of modern landscaping. In fact, I wonder if we students fully realize what a gem we have.

The field adds so much to the teams performance and it is capable of manipulating the ball better than the best of the players on the team. Why, it even has a mind of its own.

How many times has an opponent been dribbling the ball down the field on a breakaway and had the ball mysteriously jump away from him?

I say this was no accident but rather a skillfully executed steal by our 12th player, the field.

And how many times has this 12th player assisted in goals. I remember numerous times when our booters were charging down to our opponent's goal and this great offensive weapon would juggle the ball to mix up the defense; thereby setting up the ensuing goal.

Perhaps the most effective weapon in any athletic team's arsenal is its power to mentally intimidate its opponent. Our 12th player has this skill mastered.

The sight of him is enough to send fear into the hearts of some opponents. And I've seen their faces turn white as soon as they got a look at him.

In fact, some teams are so intimidated that they won't even come to play us because of the threat he imposes.

Aside from its contribution to the game, the soccer field is a landscaping marvel with a beauty unparalleled by most fields.

The functional, yet picturesque, pattern of ditches and gulleys combined with a striking display of rich brown soil lightly sprinkled with grass brings back memories of a time when things were built with an eye for beauty.

And to think that some people don't like our soccer field, they say that a nationally ranked Division II soccer team should have a "real" soccer field. I think these people are warped or just plain dumb.

How could they be so blind that they can't see the obvious advantages the field gives our team.

I think they should all wake up and smell the coffee.

Clarion drops Bald Eagle gridgers 22-13

by Dave Walters
Sports Editor

The Bald Eagle football team dropped a 22-13 decision to the 20th ranked Golden Eagles of Clarion in their final home contest of the season Saturday.

In the first half of play, the Bald Eagles wishbone offense registered 291 yards in offense. Dispite LHU's outstanding offensive performance in first 30 minutes, Clarion took a 15-13 advantage into the Locker room a halftime.

LHU turned the ball over four times in the first half and missed three scoring opportunities. Wide receiver John Klacik didn't have a defender within 15 yards of him and dropped a pass in the endzone. LHU also had two drives stopped inside the Clarion 25 yard line.

Clarion's first TD of the day came on an interception by cornerback Lorenzo Burrus .Burrus picked off Pat Cahill's pass at the 2:45 mark of the first quarter.

After the ensuing kick off, the Bald Eagles moved the ball from its 20 to the CU 13. LHU was then faced with a fourth-and six situation. Helping the Bald Eagle drive was fullback Roosevelt

Brown with a 36-yard run and halfback Gary Simpson with a 28-yard carry.

The Bald Eagles went for it instead of kicking the field goal. Sophomore half back Eric Speece only could pick up a yard before the Clarion defense stacked him up.

Clarion could not move the ball on their next possession and the LHUdefense forced them to punt. After the punt, LHU had the ball on their own 45.

The Bald Eagle wishbone took over and moved the ball 55 yards into the endzone. Brown took the ball on the ninth play of the drive and powered his way 10 yards for the score. Wayne Quinn's extra point tied the game at seven apiece.

LHU's defense got the ball back and allowed the wishbone to go to work again as freshman Mike Hofer recovered a fumble at the LHU 46.

After the fumble recovery, LHU's offense moved the ball 54 yards on seven plays for another score. Cahill optioned down the left side off the Clarion defense and kept the ball, going 18 yards for the TD. Quinn's PAT was blocked and LHU led 13-7.

With 2:42 remaining in the half, Clarion quarterback Doug Emminger and the rest of the Golden Eagle offense went into their two-minute offense. Clarion drove 71 yards in two plays for a touchdown. Emminger sneaked the ball in from the one.

The Lock Haven extra point defense led by the enthusiasm of Hank Boyd would have easily blocked John Desmond's extra point, but quick thinking holder Jerry Haslett pulled the ball up, rolled out to the right and threw a pass to Mark Kelly for a two-point conversion.

Clarion scored their final points of the game as they took the second half opening kickoff and sparked a ten-play 75-yard drive, capped by Emmingers seven-yard run.

The Bald Eagles are now 2-7 overall and finished the Pennsylvania Conference Western division at 1-5. Fisher's Bald Eagles finish the 1985 season this Saturday against State University of New York at Buffalo.

Andy Shearer: Off and Running

By Kim Madgiak
News Editor

Andy Shearer, a senior Cross Country runner for the Bald Eagles, feels the success of any runner, whether competitive or not, lies within the sacrifices the individual is willing to make.

Andy doesn't find it hard to make himself run each day.

"I really enjoy running or I wouldn't put my body through it," he said. "If you have a goal in mind that you really want to succeed at, you work at it until you get it. My goal is to run the Boston Marathon."

Andy has qualified for Boston twice, but still hasn't run the actual race. He hopes to qualify for the '86 Boston Marathon later this year.

"Boston is really important to me. It's very disappointing to know I can run and then have an injury slow me up," he commented. Shearer has had two operations on his knees, both directly related to running.

This August, however, Shearer came back to win the Tiaghdaton Run in Jersey Shore after having mononucleosis last spring.

"I was really surprised at my mile pace when I finished, as it was almost a minute faster than my training times had been," he added.

Shearer first became involved in running when he was a freshman in high school.

"Another goal I've had, since then, is to cover the Appalachian Trail next summer," he stated.

"I feel running has helped me in my personal life especially. It's really easy to think through problems when I'm all alone on the road and I plan to continue running until the day I die," he stated.

Shearer is a journalism major, with a minor in philosophy.

Black History Month slated for Nov.

By Kim Madgiak
News Editor

Indian Festival set for LHU

By Arvind Sood

LHU's Indian Festival, to be held November 17, will be highlighted with international cuisine and a cultural program.

Various other activities include classical and native folk dances, along with a book display. The book show will begin several days before the actual festival, and contain novels by several Indian authors.

This event evolved when Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi spoke with President Reagan on her visit to the United States last year. They both agreed that a cultural exchange program would help to develop a better understanding of the two biggest team performances. The month's events will conclude with a dinner, a fashion show, and a guest speaker.

Tentatively scheduled to speak at the dinner is Tony Brown, host of the nationally televised PBS program, "Tony Brown's Journal." Last year's speaker was accomplished poet Nikki Giovanni.

Also discussed at the meeting was the group's desire to become a greater part of the socio-academic life here.

democracies in the world.

As a result, these programs show the culture, art, history, and technology of India. They have since been occurring in various areas of the U.S.

The Festival began here when the Indo-American Corporation presented the idea to Professor of Social Work, Sociology, and Anthropology Dr. Renuka Biswas. H, in turn, spoke with Dr. Craig Dean Willis and plans for the event began to take shape.

Following the Festival next Tuesday, a slide show on the country will be held by Associate Professor of Art, Dr. Mohinder Gill, on November 19. Proceeds will go towards a scholarship awarded to an international student.
