

Student found dead in N.Y.

By Matt Connor, Jay Zech,

A 27-year-old sophomore died this weekend in a motel in Olean, N.Y.

Susan Ardell Hall, of 22 Pineview Drive, Flemington, was found dead at 8 am on Saturday in her room at the Castle Inn Motel.

Mr. Frank "Buck" O'Reilly III, LHU Sports Information Director, of the same address, discovered the fully-clothed body when he awoke in the room which was flooded with water and steam.

Officer Wayne Reeds of the New York State Police, gave the following account of the incident. After having dinner and a few drinks at the motel restaurant, O'Reilly and Hall returned to their room around 1:30 a.m. Then, O'Reilly went to bed and Hall took a shower. O'Reilly found the body near the shower later that morning.

O'Reilly and Hall were on their way to the LHU football game with University of Buffalo. Part of O'Reilly's responsibilities as Sports Information Director is to attend away football games.

Police are calling the death accidental. "There were no signs of heart trouble, no wounds, and no signs of trauma when police arrived at the scene," said Reeds.

An autopsy was performed Sunday by Dr. E.F. Comstock, Jr., Allegheny County Coroner, but no cause of death has been determined so far. Results of the toxicological tests will be released by Comstock's office within 10 days.

"Until the toxicological results come out we won't know what the cause of death is. It puzzles us as much as it does everyone else," said Reeds.

Hall had also worked as a secretary in the LHU Alumni and Public Affairs Office.

"I was totally shocked. She looked fine the last time I saw her," said Director of Public Relations Sandra Hammann.

Hammann described Hall as "friendly, outgoing, hard-working, and always willing to do more than she was asked to do."

Hall was born in Bellefonte, Pa., on Feb. 17, 1958.

She was the daughter of Walter D. and Dorothy Dunkle Hall of Lock Haven R.D. 2.

She was a 1976 Lock Haven High School graduate, and a member of the Swisssdale United Methodist Church near Lock Haven.

Surviving, besides her parents, are four sisters, Karen Rondeau of Springdale, Maine; Barbara Santonica of Lock Haven, Sandra Coleman of Camelot Estates, Mill Hall, and Virginia Hall, an LHU student; two grandmothers, Jennie Hall of Phoenix, Arizona, and Blanche Dunkle of Camelot Estates.

The viewing will be tonight at the Helt Funeral Home, 109 West Church Street, from 7-9 pm.

Funeral services will be tomorrow at 11 am.

Contributions can be made to the LHU Foundation.

Smoke-out Thursday

By Sherri Lee Wray
Staff Reporter

Students and faculty here are encouraged to quit smoking for a day during the Great American Smoke-out this Thursday.

The Great American Smoke-out is sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Millions of people across the United States will quit smoking for this day.

Jackie Widman, Campus Coordinator for the Smoke-out, said, "I really hope LHU students join the Smoke-out because if you can stop smoking for 24 hours, you stand a good chance of quitting for good."

A recent survey of 52 million smokers said 85 percent of them would like to quit. Widman said, "The Smoke-out is a very painless way to start the quitting process."

The Smoke-out is not limited to cigarette smokers. Widman said it is also a day for giving up smokeless tobacco. She adds, "The day is really a celebration--a holiday from smoking."

A campus activity scheduled for Smoke-out Day is a drawing. In exchange for a chance to win, the smoker will give up a used pack of cigarettes or smokeless tobacco.

The winner of the drawing will receive gift certificates from area merchants, a one month membership to Genesis Fitness Center, a reserved seat to LHU wrestling matches, and a smoker's quitting package.

C.A.S. reorganizes

By Kim Madgiak
News Editor

The Commonwealth Association of Students, last Wednesday, met and discussed reestablishing the organization here.

Reagan Straley, Acting Organizer and Legislative Liason for C.A.S., stated, "The C.A.S. is for the students like APSCUF is for the faculty." Some of the activities that the C.A.S. is involved in are successfully organizing students around such issues as voter registration, tuition increases, rape awareness, black student leadership, and financial aid.

The C.A.S. maintains Chapters at each of the 14 state-owned institutions, and has a central office in Harrisburg.

Recently, the funding base for C.A.S. was reapproved by the Pa. State House of Representatives.

"We are thrilled by the vote," said Carolyn Constantino, former C.A.S. President. "This is a victory for all the students of the State System. Getting C.A.S.'s funding back insures that the students will have a strong voice in Harrisburg, speaking out for their interests."

Sharin Sabin and Ted Tymchak, of IUP, were also recently elected President and Vice-President of C.A.S.

Sabin is a senior with a double major in International Studies and Spanish. A Pittsburgh resident, she has previously served as C.A.S. Coordinator at IUP.

Tymchak, a senior political science major, is the current C.A.S. Campus Coordinator. He is from Folsom, Pa., and has been active in C.A.S. for several years.

They replace outgoing officers Constantino, of IUP, and Jeff Diehl, of Shippensburg.

Another activity C.A.S. has dealt with is the prevention of a tuition increase for the academic year 1986-87. The Pa. General assembly must appropriate $290. million, an increase of 9.9 per cent, to the State System of Higher Education over this fiscal year in order for this to occur. If the appropriation does not happen, tuition will increase anywhere from $100.-$200. for the next school year.

C.A.S. offers a permanent voice for students in the political process, as well as resources to accomplish individual campus projects.

Drink, drank, drunk again

Let's kick around the idea of the fraternity party system. These are my views on the issue.

First, I'm going to work with an assumption. I know what is said when you make assumptions, but I feel pretty confident with this one. The assumption is as follows: college students will drink beer and sometimes in great quantities (probably will forever, too).

Secondly, let's not play naive, as I sometimes feel the administration does. Fraternities serve beer. They serve it to any college student or any college-looking person who shows up at their door with cold hard cash.

Now it's time to get down to business. It's illegal to sell beer, especially to minors. There's no possible room to debate this fact. Now, in my mind, a law is only a law if it is stringently enforced.

To further explain this point, let's try some basic math. There are 14 State Universities in the system and let's figure there are four fraternities on each campus. That's 56 total frats. Figure each frat has one party per weekend. That's 56 parties across the state. We've been at school for about 11 weekends; if there were 56 parties each of those weekends, then there has been 616 parties so far this year, which I'm sure is a low number.

A couple of weeks ago there was a bust at IUP and before that there was one at Slippery Rock. Three or four busts in 616 parties, (some math genius can figure up the average and report to me) does not qualify as stringent in my mind. I mean, it's not like they disguise the frat and move it around so the PLCB can't find it.

Score one for the frats.

Regretfully, there are no other mass-attended social functions at the "Haven." There have been numerous attempts to start some kind of social event on this campus. They either failed to draw a large crowd or drew just enough to scrape by until the next year. A prime example of this is "Cheers," which changed to an occasional opening only club a while ago. The reason for this was, what else, but lack of student support.

Sadly, score two for the frats for providing a meeting place.

Three of the big four partying frats are within easy walking distance of campus. This is a very positive aspect; as long as people are walking around drunk they can do a lot less damage than if they were driving an automobile. The bad aspect of this is that the yards of townfolk on the way back from the parties are the recipients of way too much abuse. (One of my friends suggested that a portable toilet be installed along the walk home.) This is part of the reason for the hard feelings between the town and the University.

According to Lt. Grenninger of Law Enforcement, there has never been an alcoholic traffic fatality resulting from drinking at a frat party although there have been a number of very serious crashes. AXA claims to stop people from driving home drunk. I can't personally vouch for this, but it sure sounds like a good idea and I think they are the only frat that does this.

Take one away from the fraternities for contributing to possible tragic accidents.

The "host liability law" makes the host who serves alcohol responsible for the actions of their guests. This means that, if a student mashes himself into a tree on the way home from a party, the frat can be held liable. I sure wouldn't want that kind of responsibility.

Score one for the frats for extreme bravery, or take one away for extreme stupidity.

Now, on to the "closed party rule," which will begin in some form in January. The actual meaning of the rule has yet to be defined. I'm taking a wide view of the possible meaning and that is that only a few people will be left into the parties.

The rule, like most rules, has some good and bad points. Some of the good effects will be that more drinking will take place in the dorms. This is pretty good for the safety factor because the reasons for driving will be fewer, not so good for dorm type damages and behavior. Also, with the absence of the largest social function on campus there will be a need for other things. Necessity being "the mother of invention," it is my hope that some new exciting form of social gathering will evolve.

One bad feature is that there will be more people going out to bars. In my opinion, the less driving done after drinking, the better.

I have no firm answers to these questions. I'm glad that it's not my responsibility because it seems that there are no final solutions. Trial and error, as slow and cumbersome a process as it is, will finally decide the issue. I just hope that nobody has to be hurt to get a solution.

These are my opinions, basically because I'm one of the editors and I'm supposed to express my opinions in editorials. I'm the editor and anybody can write to me to express their own opinion. Just drop a letter in the campus mail with The Eagle Eye written on it. If the letter could cause you some trouble it will be run anonymous, but it still must be signed.

TS SPORTS SPORTS SPORTS SPORTS SPORTS SPORTS SPORTS SP
Fisher's squad ends with a 23-21 victory

Jack Fisher's Bald Eagles finished what has become a heartbreaking season on a winning note as the Bald Eagles pulled out a 23-21 victory over the Bulls of the University of Buffalo.

Lock Haven was down by a margin of 21-6 with 8:11 remaining in the third quarter. LHU scored 17 unanswered points with sophomore place-kicker Wayne Quinn booting a 32-yard field goal with 42 seconds remaining in the game.

The Lock Haven wishbone registered 357 total yards, 336 of which came from the strong ground game. The Bald Eagles threw the ball only five times, completing two for 21 yards.

The Eagle defense, tough against the run all season, completely shut the Bulls' running attack down, the hosts acquiring only 44 yards rushing on the artificial surface.

Buffalo quarterback John Mings did have some success airing the ball out as he connected on 18 of 31 passes for 207 yards and two touchdowns. Buffalo finished with 257 total yards.

Lock Haven got on the scoreboard first when it took the opening kickoff and gained 67 yards on nine plays. Eagle halfback Gary Simpson drove the final ten yards for the TD just 3:53 into the first quarter. A bad snap from center on the conversion attempt caused the kick to never get off of the ground.

Buffalo then took control and, behind the passing of the Mings, scored three straight touchdowns. The first came with 2:28 left in the opening period, Mings hitting Joe Neubert out of the backfield for a 31-yard touchdown to cap a four-play, 42-yard drive after a short LHU punt. Dan Friedman added the extra point to give the hosts a 7-6 lead.

With 4:28 gone in the second quarter, the Bulls capped a 15-play, 82-yard drive when Mings passes the final 16 yards to Duane Walker, another back. Friedman tacked on the PAT to give the Bulls a 14-6 edge.

Buffalo increased its lead to 21-6 as Mings scored from the one at 8:11 of the third quarter. The TD was set up by Dave May's fumble recovery at the LHU 39. Mings rolled to his right and scored on the sixth play of the drive. Friedman's conversion proved to be Buffalo's final point of the afternoon as the Bald Eagle defense held the Bulls without a first down the remainder of the game.

The Bulls' final five possessions resulted in three downs and a punt. Following Buffalo's touchdown, LHU took the kickoff and went 80 yards in 10 plays, junior fullback Roosevelt Brown going up the middle for a 12-yard TD. Sophomore Eric Speece rushed for a two-point conversion, which also proved to be very big.

The key play in the drive came from Buffalo 44 where the Bald Eagles were faced with a third-and-12 situation. Simpson took the pitchout from Pat Cahill and ran 24 yards to the Bull 20-yard line. Speece gained eight to the 12 and Brown took it in. After Speece's two-point conversion, the Eagles trailed 21-14 with 3:45 left in the third quarter.

Midway in the final period, the guests took control at the Buffalo 32 following a short punt and a personal foul penalty against the Bulls. Three plays moved the pigskin to the 22 and Speece took it the rest of the way, taking a pitch from Cahill and going around the right end for the six-pointer. On the conversion attempt, Cahill's knee was ruled down before he made the pitch.

That still left the Bald Eagles one point shy at 21-20 with 6:11 remaining in the game.

However, the defense again held and LHU set up at the Buffalo 44. Six plays moved the ball to the 15 where on fourth-and-5, Quinn came on and split the uprights with the field goal as LHU took the lead with 42 seconds to go.

Brown finished the game with 102 yards to push his season total to 548 yards on 134 carries. Simpson added 78 yards on 11 tries and Speece gained 76 on nine carries. Junior Tom Smykowski had 46 yards on nine tries and Cahill wound up with 33.

Cahill was two-for-four passing for 21 yards, sophomore wideout John Klacik catching both passes, setting his season totals at 33 receptions for 461 yards.

Senior outside linebacker Todd Ritter led the Bald Eagles defensive effort with nine tackles, including two sacks for minus 14 yards. Bill Peterson, a senior inside linebacker, added eight tackles, while junior strong safety Jeff Swanson had seven tackles, including a quarterback sack. Sophomore linebacker Julio Enos added seven tackles, with junior backer Stan Allen contributing six and sophomore middle guard Steve Suriano five.

Fortier will also meet with management science majors to discuss arts management. In addition, a psychology class will have an opportunity to interact with Fortier to discuss the mind and behavior of the performing artist.

A photography class will develop a documentary on Fortier's visit.

Fortier will also be visiting Lock Haven High School, where he will meet with students who play string instruments. Additionally, he will meet university students informally in the residence halls and dining halls.

The three-day residency will conclude with a formal concert this Thursday at 8pm in Sloan Auditorium. The concert is part of the Artists Series.

The residency and formal program is being funded by a grant from the Pa. Humanities Council, the Jephson Educational Trust Number Two, the LHU Student Cooperative Council, and LHU.

Computers aid the disabled and handicapped

Approximately 80 students here, enrolled in special education courses, spent last Tuesday learning how computers can help people with disabling or handicapped conditions.

The Pa. Special Education Assistive Device Center presented the workshop, entitled "Introduction to Assistive Devices". The Center is located at the Elizabethtown Hospital and Rehabilitation Center.

Dr. Ira G. Masemore, Dean of the College of Education, opened the morning segment of the program. Mary Brady, Coordinator of the Center, along with other personnel, also gave an overview of its available services and resource materials. A video presentation dealing with state-of-the-art assistive devices currently in use and an explanation of the functions of such devices was also given.

The morning session also included a presentation of team integration, addressing the criteria necessary for the use and maintenance of assistive devices. This presentation emphasized the "team approach" among the various professional disciplines.

The afternoon session provided a hands-on opportunity for LHU students to work with some of the computer devices currently in use. Four separate workshops were presented, each lasting approximately half an hour. These sessions introduced specific assistive devices and concepts of their operations to the students.

Also involved in the workshop were personnel from local school districts, intermediate unites, and local programs that help the physically disabled.

Dr. Peter Matthews, Professor of Special Education, organized the workshop in conjunction with the university's special education program.
