Lock Haven State College Is Accredited

In the year 1960, the name of Lock Haven State Teachers' College was changed to Lock Haven State College. The reason behind this change was the new educational idea that the state of Pennsylvania was taking responsibility for changing state teachers' colleges into multi-purpose schools. The curriculum in these colleges would not be limited to teacher education.

A student at Lock Haven State College can now take preparatory work for later study in the fields of medicine, law, dentistry, and most other professions. The student can also take all of his undergraduate studies in preparation for a career in the teaching profession.

Lock Haven State College is accredited by the Middle Atlantic State Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. In accrediting a school the Association evaluates all educational facilities and instructors. The school is accredited as a whole, not by particular departments.

To be accredited by the association means that the school is on a par with the other colleges that are accredited. The school is not rated with the other schools according to a high-low system. To be accredited also means that credits from Lock Haven can be transferred to any other accredited school, provided that the student does not make a change in curriculum. Graduates from Lock Haven may also enter graduate schools as long as their grades are of a standard set by the school that they wish to enter.

Lock Haven State College is an accredited institution of higher education. As such, the accredidation includes all departments and instructors.

Tonight's Madras Hobnob at Roger's Gym will feature "Bob Horak and the Keggs." The dance, sponsored by the Association for Childhood Education, will be held from the hours of nine to twelve. "The Keggs" consists of a four-piece combo and Al Muraswki, David Doran, and Donn Wagner. They will be three of the guest singers at the madras special.

The admission charge will be 50 cents for those who do not wear madras. For those who wear madras the charge will be only 35 cents. Any article made of madras is considered eligible for admission.

The Aquafin's Water-Ballet is also scheduled for tonight. The water-ballet will feature soloists Marie Marcotte swimming to "I Love Paris," Donna Schirf and Don Colbert swimming to "Shangri La;" and Ed Dean, Jeri Monks, and George Rosenfelter swimming to a number with a Latin Flavor.

If you plan to go to the Aquafin's Water-Ballet tonight, don't forget to crash the dance in Roger's Gym immediately following. The result of a recent S.C.C. meeting initiated active plans for a new Student Union Building. A student union committee was appointed including Ute Kerner, Rosemary Dasbach, Mike Williams, Barry Headings, the chairman of the committee, and Mr. Hurwitz, the advisor. This committee will be travelling to other colleges such as Gettysburg, Dickinson, Muhlenburg, Lycoming and Shippensburg, to observe their unions. The purpose of this is to avoid making the same mistakes other colleges have made and to take from the unions of other colleges any good ideas to be incorporated into our own union.

The proposed location of the building is a site behind Ulmer Hall. The building will also have regular closing hours.

Included in the building will be the student offices such as the Praeco, Eagle Eye, and S.C.C. Other areas will include the book store, meeting rooms, and a multi-purpose room rented under the Snack Bar. Facilities will include pool tables, ping-pong equipment, a stereo set and possibly a bowling alley.

A tentative completion date is scheduled within two years. It is up to the students and trustees to organize the building with the $500,000.00 allocated for this project. Student opinion is welcomed and should be directed to the S.C.C. Representatives, Greek Letter Societies, or Letters to the Editor of the Eagle Eye.

Art Class Plans Interesting Trips

Every semester the members of the art classes on campus are going to take a trip to New York to visit places of interest. This semester's group will leave for New York City on Friday morning, December 4 and will return the following Sunday evening.

Among the places of interest to art students which are to be visited are The Metropolitan Museum of Modern Art, The Guggenheim Museum, The Cloisters, and the church of Saint John the Divine or Saint Patrick's Cathedral. There will be free time granted to the students for the purpose of visiting any particular places which are of special interest to them.

This group is presently considering a trip to Pittsburgh next semester in order to visit Frank Lloyd Wright's Kauffmann home. This trip would be a one-day excursion.

Students are also reminded that on the second floor of the new classrooms building there is a new art display. This exhibit includes paintings, sculpture, and jewelry from Millbrook Art Gallery.

Any student who is interested in going on either of the excursions planned by the art group should contact Dr. Kreiger of the art department. Contacts should be made as soon as possible. At that time students will be informed as to the fees and other arrangements that are necessary.

Any student of the college is eligible to attend these trips. Those now having art courses are especially urged to go. sciences, recently spoke to a large audience of Elementary Majors at the Association of Childhood Education meeting. McAulay, recently returning from his work in Texas with the Warren Commission investigating the assassination of President Kennedy, urged all teachers to expose their students to real world.

He said that children see many things which go on in the world. They do not understand many things. They may develop prejudices toward certain peoples in light of what they have seen. He continued stating that the children deserve to have class discussions and units of current study devoted to the national election, the racial riots in Philadelphia, the tax cut, and the "demoralization" of our country. These are as real as the bomb that the Red Chinese ex-ploded and the job from which Kruschev was removed which are usually discussed in current events periods in schools. These "controversial" topics are as important to citizenship training as the "big' news of the week. He concluded his talk with a humorous and informative survey of the various types of teachers and schools in America.

As a living memory to Betty Jean Conway, the Betty Jean Conway Memorial Fund has been innovated to provide academic scholarships to needy students. Dr. Bone, Dean of Student Affairs, reports that the fund is steadily growing. Any donations from students, faculty, administration, or friends will be welcomed. The donations are being accepted through Dr. Bone's office.

Dr. Kreiger Heads Panel Discussion

Dr. Myrrl Krieger, a faculty member of the art department, recently headed a panel discussion at Penn State University. The College Art Education Group and The Pennsylvania Art Education Association members, which included both elementary and secondary school teachers, were present for the panel.

The topic for the panel was "Curriculum Structures in Art Appreciation in All Levels of Teaching." Structural devices discussed included excursions to museums and places of interest as a means of developing the student's aesthetic sensitivity. This method and the one of allowing students to select their own reading material on aesthetics are to be used on the college level. Another idea brought to the attention of the group was that art appreciation in the schools was taught in isolation. The panel emphasized the importance of integrating knowledge through the teaching concepts rather than subject ma-terial. In this way, art will be come more meaningful and vital for the students.

Thanksgiving Vacation To Be Extended

Lock Haven State's Thanksgiving Vacation begins on Tuesday, November 24, 1964. Vacation will begin at the close of classes on that day. Classes will resume the following Tuesday.

The Christmas vacation will begin at noon on Wednesday, December 16, 1964 and will end on Monday, January 4, 1965, at eight o'clock.

Students are reminded to take notice of section eight of the attendance regulations which states: "Attendance at class within two days prior to or following a scheduled holiday is required according to the regulations of the college administration. Such absences shall be reported to the Dean of Academic Affairs." This statement can be found on page forty-eight of the Compass.

Final examination will begin on Thursday, January 14, 1965 and will end on Friday, January 22, 1965. The one day which is added to the Thanksgiving vacation will be made up by moving examination week ahead by one day.

KAPPA DELTA RHO

The big question in the house this week has been who is going to win our Thanksgiving turkey. The prize bird which will be given away to some lucky brother or date tomorrow night will rank as another Kappa Delta Rho first.

During the past week the brothers have been kept busy working on house improvements. Under the guidance of house man-ager Bob "Slippery Rock" Horak and Jim "The Pin" Shimp, the basement party-room floor is being refinished while Joe Pascale, Jim "The Prune" Thompson and Joe Skelley have been busy planning the construction of our new kitchen and dining room.

Dave "Hoagie" Doran, who was recently appointed Pledge Master has been keeping the pledges active in their pledging responsibilities.

A Fraternal congratulation goes out from the brothers to football stars Joe Pascale and pledge Bob "Geech" Gutshall for the recent laurels they received. Joe placed high among the top scorers in the Pennsylvania State conference and finished among the top ten NCAA pass receivers in the nation. Student Affairs

There are three procedures which a student should follow to make his own personal ideas or complaints known to the administration or the student body.

The first, and perhaps the most reasonable, is through the S.C.C. It is not necessary that these, we shall call them ideas, be presented to the S.C.C. by a representative. On the contrary, ideas presented second hand, lack the motivation they would have were they presented first hand. Few students realize, and none take advantage of the fact that anyone and everyone can express an opinion at an S.C.C. meeting.

A substantial number of students are afraid to say what is on their mind for fear of becoming "Marked Man;" marked by those students and administrators who would take offense to their statement. This is where the second procedure comes into being . Any student who wishes to express an opinion without automatically attaching his name can simply put his opinion on

The Sisters of Sigma Kappa pledged the following new members: Bonnie Cartright, Margie Husted, Judy Miller, Nancy Sheerer, Shirley Giza, Bonnie Dory, Connie Shoemaker, Gloria Long, Lori Koehler, Betsy Stambaugh, Judy Rogers, and Sue Volk. paper and send it to the editor of this paper in the form of an anonymous letter to the editor. If the letter is rational and based on fact, it will be published. Many students look upon the letters to the editor as nothing but a big joke. They are not. Many reforms on this campus and other campuses have been brought about by letters to the editor. Democracy is based on freedom of speech, and letters to the editor is democracy in

The third procedure of presenting ideas to the administration does not involve any aspect of publicity. It simply involves taking the idea to Dr. Parsons, Dean Young, Dr. Bone or any other administrator. Dr. Bone, Deans Young and Nicholson, and Dr. Robinson all operate offices in which advance appointments are not necessary. Ideas, reforms, and complaints can be presented to these administrators without fear of personal reper-

Now, let's put the shoe on the other foot. Many students who wish to complain, base their complaints on half-truths. A very recent incident comes to mind where would-be reformers based their reforms on halftruths and rumors. It is a shame that on this campus, made up of supposedly intelligent adults, that rumors spread like wildfire and facts like molasses. Many people base their complaints on rumors, which they feel, after considering the source, are facts. Most times information taken "straight from the horse's mouth" is distorted and disfigured by the horse itself. Everyone is inclined to tell a story in a way which makes himself seem lily-white and others dirty-black. The solution to the problem is so simple as to be ridiculous. When a student wants valid information all he need do is ask an administrator. One of the major purposes of the Dean's office is to provide students with information. All one need do is ask. However, students are inclined to ask other students for information. Many rumors would be nipped in the bud if a student simply replied, "I don't know," instead of, "I think it's this way."

Thanksgiving Day--1964

In the United States of America, November traditionally is the month of Thanksgiving. It is the time especially set aside to give thanks to our bountiful, loving, all-providing Father-God.

It is the time set aside to look appreciatively at our many blessings. It is the time set aside to give thanks for all the things we usually take for granted.

Thanksgiving quickens a new spirit of apprecia-Thanksgiving creates joy. giving for our blessings never fails to open the way for more good. Thanksgiving sets in motion an endless cycle of good that enriches us in mind and body.

Let us make this an unforgettable day of Thanksgiving. Let us give thanks for peace, life, family and friends. Let us give thanks to God for the glorious world in which we live. Let us give thanks for our blessings great and small. Let us say, "Thank You, God, for everything." — The Daily Word.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I have just finished reading the article on page two of the Nov. 6 issue of the Eagle Eye concerning school spirit. In the article a few examples were cited as reasons for lack of enthusiasm; I would like to list a few

Yesterday, Nov. 7, I went to the Lock Haven-Indiana football game at my own expense, and cheered our team along with less than fifteen other Lock Haven students. These students were our only representation other than our team. Many students wanted to go to the game, but lacked transportation. To my knowledge, student transportation has never been suggested. I am suggesting it now, other schools have student buses, why not Lock Haven? Our band was not present because of a lack of funds for transportation. Why couldn't the S.C.C. sponsor a charter bus for the band? We hear so much about our school being run by we, the students, and yet we, the members of the S.C.C. cannot send our band to all away games. Another element missing of those needed to win a game was cheerleaders. The cheerleaders could not go to Indiana because a member of the faculty advisory staff was not available to chaperone them, this is ridiculous. In my estimation students do not and cannot compose a school. Teamwork is necessary between the student body and the faculty. By working together we can make Lock Haven State what we want to. Let's have faculty support at this school.

Time and time again students tell me that they are so excited to be going home for a dance or football game at their old high school, when their home team is playing a game. It is time for the students of Lock Haven State College to realize that their high school days are over, they have a new loyalty. The students go home to cheer their high school teams to victory while their college team which should be supported loyally, goes down to defeat.

We should have won that game against Indiana, they were no match for us, but lack of support can defeat the most talented. Football is past now, but new sport seasons are coming up, wrestling and basketball. Come on students and faculty, let's support our teams and our school. Let's not have another game like yesterday's. Our team is doing its share; let's do ours. Let's make Lock Haven State MICHAEL Moss, '68 the best. Ed. Note:

As far as the transportation of the band, that comes entirely under the jurisdiction of the S.C.C. Transportation of students is a different situation altogether. At other schools, the pep club or varsity club charter the student buses. I recently inquired at the Susquehanna Transit Company about the rates of chartered buses. They stated that the rates vary according to the distance traveled, and the number of students desiring transportation; each bus has a capacity of 44 students. If an organization on campus wishes to charter a bus, they are available. R.J.R.

Dear Editor:

I'm one of the many students on campus who is fed up to his eye balls with the term "Professional Attitude" that is so loosely thrown about by our instructors. However, I've come to realize the serious malady that these teachers parroting "Professional Attitude" are trying to combat.

In my past experiences on campus, I've noted many enthusiastic, interested, prepared classmates engaging in discussions in classes. I've also noted many other students snickering, jeering, deriding these active participants. Can we let these immature, irresponsible individuals, who criticize what they cannot do, influence our children when they become teachers? I think not! Something must be done!

These individuals are actually detrimental to a healthy class-room atmosphere. They induce fear in people who might participate in class with the possible consequences of ridicule, ostracism, and loss of friendship. These students surely are not "Professional."

Speaking from a personal and very real experience, I can honestly say that in the first nine weeks of this semester that I learned more through our class discussions than I've learned about my profession in the past three years. If the students in my classes had not engaged in these important digressions, I know that we would not have gained the rewarding intellectual experiences that made us so rich. I don't know what motivates the students who make degrading remarks to do so, but they must be too blind to see the enrichment of our education through classroom discussions. Most of our professors are willing and enthusiastic to engage in these discussions vital to the future of our teachers. They welcome classroom contributions.

Those students who wish to make the most of their college education should actively participate in classroom discussions and disregard the petty criticisms of the narrow minds. The participant is well on his way to becoming a contributing member of his profession; a "Professional." The narrow minds will be the "foot-draggers" that cause many of the great problems in education. Regarding the loss of friendship through class participation; one should realize that the loss of a college friend is very insignificant when compared to the loss of the knowledge that you should have acquired to last the rest of your life.

It does get pretty irritating to hear "Professional Attitude" a great deal of the time on campus. But it is very important to awaken some of the petty people on campus.

I've seen the light. And the light is rewarding. It is the duty of those of us who are striving for professionalism to keep working and participating, while helping awaken those less fortunate students who seem to be wasting a great deal of the college experiences offered to them.

A Character Sketch of Douglas Macneal

by Mel Hodes

Thick, curly, sand-colored hair with a slightly unkempt appearance grew about that thought-wrinkled forehead which formed a long, oval face set off with a slightly protruding chin and a small mouth. This Harvard graduate's small observing eyes were rather deeply set into his head. His voice revealed the time and place of modern Boston. This is Douglas Macneal.

He graduated in Greek and Latin Literature in 1954 from that institution with an A.B. degree. An early triumph of his hard academic work earned him a key to the intellectual mastery of life. His key is Phi Beta Kappa. He was graduated Magna. This is Douglas Macneal.

Upon graduation he studied at the University of Hamburg and the University of Munich in Germany under a Fulbright grant. "Then the army got me," said Douglas Macneal.

"In 1957 I was graduated from the army," he quipped with his warm sense of humor. After "graduation" he settled in Livinia, Pennsylvania about 20 miles from campus. There he began a career as a writer. He has completed a novel Wby You Haven't Heard of Me, which he hopes to sell to a publishing house soon. This first work deals with civil disobedience. In addition to this novel, Macneal has written several stories and is working on his second novel, Cruelty To Animals. This is his profession and great love. During his interview, his statements revealed a great awareness and super sensitivity of his environment. This man of the new generation of writers was graduated from college with contemporary author John Updike, whose novel The Sin Tower hovered in and around the best seller's list recently. Macneal's past seven years have been spent as a professional writer. This is the novelist Douglas Macneal.

"He's just a poor goat farmer," claims his son. Mr. Macneal owns two goats. He and his wife Patricia have three children who are Christopher, age six, Alice, age three, and Andrew, age two. One of Mr. Macneals hobbies is building. He built a tree-house and tee pee for his children and a garage, he admitted with a glint in his eye and the sound of childish delight in his voice. He also reluctantly admitted that he drew maple syrup. This husband, father, and provider is Douglas Macneal.

SPIECE RETURNS AFTER ACADEMIC ABSENCE

The new history of civilization professor isn't really new at all because Mr. Spiese taught at Lock Haven State before. When asked what observations he had made on campus this year, he replied, "New brick buildings, increased enrollment and above all the beginnings of academic electricity."

Graduating from Millersville State College with his B.S., Mr. Spiese went on to obtain his M.A. at Penn State and is now completing his Ph.D. at Penn State in the area of Russian History. His interest in the aspects of life which are true for all ages and the motivating factors of society convinced him to study in the field of history.

He sees teaching as a challenge for him to combine methodology with content. It is quite apparent that Mr. Spiese enjoys his profession of working with

Four LHS Coeds Travel to Field Hockey Tournament

Fall sports are over and now the Winter sports season is coming into focus. Head Coach Elliot Gray Simons, named Head Wrestling Coach last year after Coch Jack retired will assume his position some time in December. The team opens up with Mansfield on December 1 and then hosts Yale University on December 5. Coach Simons will probably be here on December 10 after being discharged from the army.

The Intramural basketball season is under way with 20 teams participating in three leagues. Many college men are involved in the activity and teams are vying for the honor of Champion. Many fraternities consider itself supreme to others if they beat the other fraternities. Good crowds have turned out to watch these men put on their basketball antics.

Our field hockey team which represented Lock Haven State so well in the Central Pennsylvania tournament is stil on tour. Ten of our girls received All-Star nominations in this tournament. Last week they were at the Finger Lakes in Rochester (N.Y.). The girls who qualified there will attend the National Tournament at Philadelphia over Thanksgiving Vacation. Good luck All-Stars.
