Thomas Field House nears completion stage

Phase 1 of the Thomas Fieldhouse renovations is 99% completed

by Jean Newcomer

Phase one of the renovations for Thomas Field House is 99% complete, according to George Marshall, vice-president for the administration.

There are still a few minor discrepancies which have to be checked, such as the two new plastic floors which were poured last week and have not set, Marshall said.

Phase one began approximately seven months ago. In this phase, a weight room, a classroom and offices were built over the wrestling room. New windows were installed and the wiring, heating and plumbing systems were updated.

Phase two of the renovations began on September ninth and are 12% complete, Marshall said. All the new contractors were hired except for one. The second set of renovations were made possible by an appropriation of over $500,000 from the state.

The small building in front of Thomas Field House is being remodeled as a health science building with this money. A new entrance to the basement of Thomas Field House has been installed for the handicapped and will eventually become the main entrance to the building.

The contractors also plan to build ticket booths, and a snackbar in the basement. A new press box will be installed behind the main bleachers. The brickwork on both buildings will be completely restored adding to the over all improvement of the buildings. Construction of phase two will be completed in mid-April 1984.

Mr. James Meckley, head of maintenance at Lock Haven University (LHU), was involved in the pre-planning of the renovations and is presently working as a go-between for the LHU administration and the contractors.

Steamline deadline extended

By Holly Williams

Lock Haven University will be spending approximately $20,000 more than anticipated for the completion of the steamline project between Bentley Hall and Price Auditorium, according to Jim Meckley, maintenance supervisor. George Marshall, vice-president for the administration, said that the extra money is needed because the plans for the steamline do not agree with the existing placement of the steamline.

Meckley said that the plans, made in the 1960's, do not show the existence of a Lock Haven Suburban Water Company Line. The difference between the plans and the placement of the line was not discovered until after digging had started and all the materials had been received.

Meckley said that a steamline off-set has been proposed to eliminate the problem. The off-set would stay clear of the water line, but involves new pipes being made. Meckley said he is waiting for approval of the off-set plan.

The discrepancies in plans will mean a four to six week extension in work time. Meckley said that he would like to get at least one lane of Glen Road open soon. He said that the steamline would not be completed in this area, but that the area would be backfilled so that the road could be used.

Meckley said that the plans were supposed to be "as built" plans and show any changes made in the line placement. He said he talked to a man in Harrisburg who inspected the steamline when it was built. The inspector told Meckley that he remembers "as built" drawings being made, but does not know why they were not with the official plans.

Meckley said that there is the possibility that other parts of the steamline might also be inaccurately shown on the drawings. The next part of the steamline to be replaced is from the boiler plant to the flagpole by Ulmer Hall. Meckley said that he has a photograph of that section of the steamline, so there should not be a problem.

Industrialist visits LHU

Dr. Robert Romancheck served as Lock Haven University's first Industrialist-in-Residence last week. Dr. Romancheck is a senior manager of Rate Administration for the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company (PP&L) in Allentown.

As a rate manager, he is responsible for rate case filings with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PPUC), administration of the company filed tariff and rules for service and the direction of analysis of rates.

Dr. Romancheck has held positions with PP&L since 1960. He has served as Cadet Engineer, Industrial Sales Representative, Technical Consultant, Supervisor of Market Research and Supervisor of Research and Technical Service.

He earned a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering in 1961 from the Pennsylvania State University and a Ph.D. in Environmental Engineering and Science in 1979 from Drexel University.

Dr. Romancheck visited several classes during his stay here. He was the guest at a reception at LHU President Dr. Craig Willis' home and he was the speaker at a press conference in the TV studio.

On Thursday night he presented a public presentation, "Economics of Alternate Energy Systems" in the Sloan Theatre. Dr. Romancheck also met with the area Kiwanis Club, the Clinton County Solid Waste Authority and the Management Science Coordinating Committee.

Dr. Willis to meet students

Dr. Craig D. Willis, president of Lock Haven University, will be holding an open meeting with students on Tuesday November 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the Woolridge Hall Lounge.

Matt Huber, Student Cooperative Council (SCC) parliamentarian, said of the LHU administration, "We are fortunate at Lock Haven because our administrators are accessible to us and are willing to listen to our concerns. A prime example of this is the recent extension of library hours on Saturdays. Soon after a group of students proposed that library hours be extended on weekends. Dr. John Zaharis, vice-president for Academic Affairs, reported that, although funds are low, hours would be lengthened. We commend the administration for this action."

Club sponsors forum

The Greek dramatist, Euripides, is quoted as saying "It is a slaves lot not to speak one's thoughts."

Tonight the History, Political Science, and Economics Club will be sponsoring the 2nd Open Forum of the semester. The topic of discussion will be "SCC Athletic Spending: Too Much? Too Little?". Is $106,000 of our yearly activity too much or not enough? We encourage all students to attend tonight's forum so that you can express your opinion on this controversial issue. Many SCC senators will be in attendance. Tonight to hear what is said, so your voice will influence how much will be allotted for athletics in next year's budget.

SCC Senator Kevin Choate will begin the forum by arguing that not enough SCC money is spent on athletics while High Hall resident, Joe Platko, will argue that spending for athletics has become excessive. The Open Forum will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Hall of Flags.

Senior wins 2nd championship

For the second time in a row, graduating senior Hank Putek has won the Canadian National Aerobatic Championship.

Putek, flying a red, white, and blue Pitts Special, flew 12 tournaments with 9 perfect scores.

Aerobatic flying is one of the most exciting and dangerous of all motorsports. To the untrained observer, aircraft seem out of control and on the verge of crashing, when in fact, the maneuvers are completely rehearsed. Contestants must fly their aircraft within an imaginary "box", and if they stray from that box, points are deducted from their score. The score also reflects degree of difficulty of the routine, as well as the execution of all planned series.

Mr. Putek was flying in the under age 25 class, and his degree of difficulty rating for all 12 flights was 10 out of a possible 10. His overall score was 116 out of a possible 120. Last season he won the championship with 118 points, the highest ever for this competition.

Hank is an FAA certified Airline Transport Pilot, and he holds a Boeing 727 Flight Engineer Certificate.

The next edition of the EAGLE EYE will be published on Friday, December 2.

Preventing the inevitable may be impossible

What is the point of human life? After watching Sunday night's ABC presentation, "The Day After," more than a few people have asked that question. Seldom has there been such a sense of hopelessness conveyed in the thoughts and feelings of so many people as a result of this sort of dramatic presentation.

Why go to school? Why work so hard to make something of yourself if it really doesn't matter in the end? How can people even think of human life being so invaluable as to destruct it in such an inhuman manner?

These questions and hundreds like them are easily asked but not so easily or readily answered.

If nothing else, "The Day After" portrays a situation all too real. At the conclusion of the film, the producers stated that the results of a full scale nuclear attack would be much more devastating than was shown. Carl Sagan, who was one of the featured guests on ABC's Viewpoint after the film and who has done extensive research on the subject, reiterated the fact. No living specimen in this world, according to Sagan, could possibly survive a nuclear war. There is a lot more than winning or losing at stake here, for there would be no winner; just losers.

So what is the solution? Is there one? Of course, we can open up our lines of communication with the world and agree to disband most if not all nuclear warheads. This is the only logical answer, but is it possible?

Perhaps the answer to that question can be felt through the thoughts of emptiness and hopelessness of the viewers of "The Day After."

Wrestlers finish third in Navy tournament

By Dave Prusak

The Lock Haven University (LHU) wrestling team performed well over the weekend against seven other strong squads but had to settle for third place in the Navy Tournament at Annapolis, Maryland.

First place honors went to host Navy with a team total of 64 1/4 points. James Madison University was a distant second, followed by LHU. Behind LHU were Temple, North Carolina St., West Virginia, Morgan St., and Salisbury St.

At 150 lbs., LHU's Wade Potter defeated James Madison's Tony Gentile 3-1 to capture his second consecutive Navy Tournament title. LHU's Leonard Mammau took fourth place at 150 lbs.

At 118 lbs., LHU's Ken Whitsel had to settle for third place despite winning an award for most falls (3) in the least amount of time (3:27). Charles Kennedy of Morgan St. defeated Rob Calabrese of Temple 9-5 to win the 118 lb. championship.

LHU's Matt Avery took third place at 126 lbs. Avery's only loss came to Navy's Jim Peters. Peters eventually fell to fellow Midshipman Dave Marquis in the 126 lb. championship.

Don Parsley also came up with a third place finish for LHU. Parsley's only loss came to Navy's Craig Dellorso 10-9. Midshipman Andy Lynch captured the 134 lb. championship.

At 142 lbs., LHU's Joe Ianuzzi took fourth place. LHU's Dave Toggas placed eighth. Midshipman Don Schleicher defeated West Virginia's Mark Sanders 5-2 to take the 142 lb. championship.

LHU freshman Jody Karam took third place at 158 lbs. Karam's only loss came to Navy's Brad Williamson 15-5. N.C. St.'s Chris Mondragon beat Mike Ramos of Temple 12-10 to take the 158 lb. title.

At 167 lbs. Doug Buckwalter gave LHU another third place finish. Buckwalter lost to eventual champion John Davis of Morgan St. 12-4.

At 177 lbs., LHU wrestlers Greg Wykoff and Joe Hoffman finished seventh and eighth respectively. N.C. St.'s Greg Fatool edged Navy's Tim Curry 10-9 to win the 177 lb. title.

LHU's Joe Ryan took seventh place in the 190 lb. class. Temple's Larry Cox, son of LHU professor Dr. Kenneth Cox, won the 190 lb. title by defeating N.C. St.'s John Connelly 12-1.

LHU heavyweight Rick Peterson took second place after dropping a tough 6-4 decision to N.C. St.'s 452 lb. Tab Thacker in the championship match. LHU's Tod Ribovich finished fourth.

LHU head coach Neil Turner said, "I'm pleased with my team's performance for this time of the year. Everyone looked good at times. Many of our wrestlers came back to beat guys they lost to earlier."

The LHU wrestling team will travel to Bloomsburg on December 1 for a dual meet. Coach Turner said, "I'm looking for us to continue to improve. Bloomsburg won their own tournament by one point over Virginia this weekend. They (Bloomsburg) have a nice balanced team, and it should be a donnybrook."

Women hoopsters capture Lady Eagle Classic

By Christa Landas

Three years in a row the Lock Haven women have reigned as queens of the Lady Eagle Classic, and this season they did it again by trouncing Glassboro State 77-60 and California University 87-66. California was the victor over Salisbury State which qualified them for the championship against LHU. In the consolation game, Salisbury narrowly beat Glassboro 89-80.

The title game against California was a close contest, but the Eagles ended by clobbering the Vulcans with a 21 point spread to capture the championship.

At the 18:01 point it appeared LHU might be in for a fight as the score stood at 6-5. But by 10:03 the home team had a five point lead which widened to nine points with six minutes left. Then the Lady Vulcans hit a dry spell and didn't score until only 3:04 remained in the first half, and LHU went into the locker room with a comfortable 51-28 lead.

Tina Martin again had a hot hand scoring 16 points in the first period, while Sue Kuhn tallied 8 more.

Lock Haven continually pressed the Vulcans, stealing the ball twice at 16:10 for two big baskets. California could not handle the full court pressure and played sloppy.

Martin finished again as high scorer with 30 markers followed by Sue Kuhn who swooshed an additional 13 points.

In the opening game against Glassboro, the Bald Eagles got 22 points from Tina Martin and 18 points from center Helen Woltman to defeat the Lady Profs by 17 points.

Although the game was never out of the Lady Eagle's grasp, coach Fred Kiley seemed concerned about the team's performance.

"We were a bit on the sloppy side," he commented. "They did manage to take us out of our patterns, but we really had too much strength for them."

One bad note for coach Kiley and the Lady Eagle team was the injury to Woltman, a 6-2 junior center. Woltman suffered a dislocation of her knee. It is indefinite as to when she will be able to return to the starting line-up.

LHU's Tina Martin was the tournament's M.V.P., leading the Eagles with 52 points in the two Classic games. California was runner-up in the event, and Salisbury State was third followed by Glassboro State.

The Lady Bald Eagle squad returns five veterans from last year's squad - Helen Woltman, Sue Kuhn, Tina Martin, Lisa Maneval and Brenda Jabs. Freshmen Lori Young and Donna Sergi were starters in the Classic and according to Coach Kiley should have a bright future at Lock Haven.

Martin, last season as a freshman, led the team in points with 435 and in rebounds with 150, and she seems to be continuing on that same course so far this year.

"This is a close, very coachable, cooperative team. We will have to play hard each game in the conference because it is so very tough. Our veterans are good basketball players, but we do have a young, inexperienced team and it will take time for them to get used to this kind of play," commented Kiley.

The Lady Eagles will resume play after the break against host Shippensburg.

Soccer team loses 4-1 in NCAA regional final game

By Martin Pflieger

The 1983 soccer season ended abruptly on Saturday for the Lock Haven University (LHU) men's team, as they lost, 4-1, to Oakland University at Rochester, Michigan, in the NCAA regional final.

Unlike Lock Haven, Oakland was on top of their game from the start. Although they didn't score until the 17:55 mark of the first half, Oakland pressured the Lock Haven defense and tested Bald Eagle goal keeper Bruce Cocker.

The score stood at 1-0 at halftime, but Oakland struck quickly at the 51:30, and 56:39 marks, respectively, to open the second half, and the score was 3-0. Robby Gould gave Lock Haven hope with an unassisted goal that sailed over the keeper's head into the corner of the net at the 70:00 mark.

A missed chance by Mark Dumar a few minutes later would have turned the tide of the game and put Lock Haven back on the track. Instead, Oakland made the score 4-1 on a penalty kick at the 86:09 mark, and Lock Haven didn't threaten to score again.

It wasn't a pretty game to watch because of horrendous field conditions. A 24-hour rainstorm two days prior to the game, combined with two inches of melted snow, turned the field into a quagmire of water and mud.

Although he was disappointed with the loss, Head Coach Mike Parker felt his squad could have won the game. "If a couple things had gone our way at the right time, we could have won the game," said Parker.

"I think the key turning point came shortly after we scored our goal to make it 3-1," continued Parker, "and a good chance to score escaped Doc (Dumar). I think we panicked at that point."

"The game was not as bad as the score indicated, but they forced us to come forward and take chances," said Parker. "In reality they deserved to win. They were the better team today."

Oakland registered 25 shots on goal, to Lock Haven's 11. Oakland goalie Paul Larkin saved eight shots, and Cocker saved 14.

It was somewhat of a bonus for Lock Haven to even be in the NCAA playoffs when considering Parker's sentiments at the beginning of the season. At that time, Parker would have been happy to get to the PSAC championship game.

As it turns out, the Bald Eagles advanced to the championship game after defeating Western Conference foe Slippery Rock, 3-0. Lock Haven then captured their sixth state championship title in eight tries with a 1-0 victory over East Stroudsburg.

For the five seniors on the squad it was a sour way to end their LHU career. Dave Lam, Cocker, John Lucosky, Alan Dawson, and Robby Gould played their final game for Mike Parker.

Men Cagers lose opener to West Chester, 67-50

By Rocco Pallotto

The Bald Eagle basketball team, for a while at least, looked as if they might be better than a lot of people gave them credit for. But the West Chester Rams reeled off 21 unanswered points in the second half to defeat the Bald Eagles 67-50 in the 1983 season opener.

The Rams jumped out quickly with the help of two field goals by All-American candidate Kevin Givens to make it 5-0.

WCU made it 18-12 right before the Eagles called a time out with 12:20 to go. The time out apparently helped, as LHU outscored the Rams 10-4 over the next 4:45, knotting the score at 22.

Freshman forward Junior Price then sparked the Eagles with six of the team's next eight points to give LHU its' biggest lead of the night, 30-24, with just 4:02 left until intermission.

After blocking a shot by Price, the Rams got hot and finally pulled even on a long jumper by Givens.

"Overall we did some good things. Everything we did right in the first half, we did wrong in the second half."

Lock Haven coach Brad Black

The two teams exchanged buckets right before the half to set the score at 32-32.

The Eagles jumped on top once again to start off the second half as senior Kevin Babcock sank the only score LHU would see in over twelve minutes.

WCU then went on to score 17 straight points before starting center Rich Grieb fouled out for the Eagles. Givens added another bucket to make it 19 straight for the Rams before frosh Brad Yoder nailed a jump shot to make it 53-36 with just 7:06 to play.

With the help of a jumper and two foul shots, the Rams increased their lead to 21 points with 6:10 to go.

Jeff Jackman became the second Eagle starter to leave the game after fouling out, as he left with 4:51 left in the game.

The Eagles cut the WCU lead to 17, but that was as close as they would get. The team's traded buckets the rest of the way to set the final at 67-50.

Bald Eagle head coach Brad Black attributed poor shooting and incorrect pacing to his team's loss, noting that when they got down, they tried to catch up too quickly.

"Overall," said Black, "we did some good things," pointing out the Eagle defense in particular.

"Basically, everything we did right in the first half, we did wrong in the second (half.)"

Ram head coach Earl Voss was impressed by the Bald Eagle performance. "Lock Haven worked the ball very well the first half and shot extremely well. Except for the one cold spot, they played a good game."

Givens said that the Rams saw early on that LHU didn't go inside very often. "We wanted to get them in a running game. We knew they liked to come down and shoot."

Voss also noted that the game was good experience for his freshmen, whom he gave a good workout during the night. Said the Ram coach, "We can play a lot better than that."

Givens paved the way for the WCU victory with 25 points, including 19 in the first half. Price came off the bench to pace the Eagles with ten. Senior Sam June chipped in with 9, while Jackman added 8.

Next on tap for the Eagle hoopsters is a Tuesday night tilt with Lycoming, also on the Thomas Field House hardwoods, slated for an 8 p.m. tipoff.
