IT'S YOUR MONEY!
If you care who handles your activity fee, come to the Open Forum of the SCC Executive Board Nominees Wed., Nov. 8 at 7 p.m. Hear the debate of the slates in the PUB Conference Room.

Majors Present Program On Adapted PE

The Physical Education Majors Club will present a program on providing dynamic physical activity for a school aged population with disabling conditions on November 9. Mr. Karl G. Stodefalke, Associate Dean for Resident Instruction at PSU, will present the program at 7:30 in Ulmer Planetarium.

The program should also include opportunities in adapted physical education, methods of instruction, and slides.

The lecture is opened to all students and faculty free of charge and Physical Education majors are urged to attend. Refreshments will be served after the lecture.

Concerts, Visits By Gynecologist Topics of SCC

The presentation of the nominations for the SCC Executive Board offices began the order of business last Wednesday's SCC meeting.

President George Bower then gave a brief summary of the PSASG convention held October 26, 27, and 28 at the Seig Conference Center and thanked those LHS students who helped with the technical work of the convention.

In response to a request made at the last SCC meeting, George then presented an itemized list of bookstore mark-ups on the book prices. It was found that, by comparison, the LHS bookstore mark-up is the lowest of all the state colleges.

President Hamolin's letter was read to the senators in which he accepted the resignation of Colonel Latta as Director of the Parsons Union Building. A research committee has been formed to find a replacement for Latta. In the meantime, everything will be run as before with Mrs. Zakem serving as temporary director.

In other matters of business the formation of a committee to investigate the initiation of faculty evaluation was announced and the possibilities of a December concert and of a gynecologist practicing on campus for two nights a month were presented.

demo memo

by jim bowman

Election day is tomorrow and in my last article, I will not dwell completely on the issues, since so much has already been said. I will however have to include them in response to my Republican counterpart's statements

First of all, he claims that the war is just about over, and that some people will say that the recent cease-fire news is nothing more than campaign propoganda. He goes on to say that there are more people who are interested in seeing George McGovern elected than seeing peace in Vietnam. Well, may I state to him that George McGovern started his campaign long ago on the promise to seek an immediate end to the most horrifying debacle in United States history. Senator McGovern said he is "sick and tired of old men trying to dream up wars for young men to die in." I personally have been against the war since high school, and may I point out to my opponenr that we want peace but we believe in Senator McGovern's principles more so than that of Mr. Nixon's. It also goes farther than that. After the war we will be faced with a post-war economy of which we believe

Senator McGovern could handle more efficiently. Mr. Nixon cannot even handle the economy presently, and we would be horrified to see what four more years would bring us to.

When he talks about the economy, my opponent says that business has improved. He should emphasize that BIG business has improved. It also leads him to wonder where our tax loopholes are. Is he aware that Ronald Reagan, governor of California, paid no income tax last year? He is not alone either. It is also rather a coincidence that the biggest benefactors in big business today are the ones that contribute to Nixon's campaign. They make their profits from such actions as our wheat deal with Russia.

On welfare, he says the President has time and time again tried to instill needed welfare reforms. The only one to date that has been submitted by Nixon gives welfare families of four almost $2500 a year to live on. In our era of rising prices and high unemployment, this is not much help. However, at the same time, Nixon feels that it is all right to bail Penn Central out of bankruptcy, while they are real estate holders of approximately nine acres of buildings in Manhattan

My opponent also says that Nixon is the expansion President for blacks. Today, more blacks are living in a poorer situation than four years ago. Nixon has helped very few blacks with the exception of a few well-to-do blacks who put their monetary value before their heritage. In addition, what has Mr. Nixon done for other minorities? For example, the Chicanos. Mr. Nixon and his party have never supported Cesar Chavez in his fight to give the migrant workers something to live for. One just has to go to the southern U.S. for proof. I can speak of this experience personally. It makes one sad when one see these poor people working on farms, picking crops all day with torn shreds on, and after they finish working, get in line for their potato meal and go to their shanties for their night's sleep. When one sees this, one wonders why, in the richest country in the world we can let this go on. George McGovern and Sargent Shriver have proposed health, education and housing programs for

Keaton Comes to Campus

"He brought pure physical comedy to its greatest heights," said James Agee of Buster Keaton, who appears on campus this week in a Buster Keaton Festival sponsored by the Humanities Film Series.

In "The Navigator," Keaton and Kathryn McGuire play a rich boy and girl adrift at sea on an ocean liner, with no other passengers, crew, steam, or lights. Their attempts at domesticity provide the comedy on board a ship that is floating toward an island of cannibals.

"Sherlock, Jr." finds Keaton as a movie projectionist whose alter ego rises from the audience onto the screen. The second part of the film has Keaton parody the master detective, and includes the classic sequence of Keaton's controlling a motorcycle from the handlebar seat.

Rivalry between two Mississippi riverboat owners provides the comedy for "Steamboat Bill, Jr.," climaxed by the famous cyclone sequence for which Keaton did many of his stunts live.

A different chapter from the Humanities Film Series' continuing presentation of a Flash Gordon serial, starring Buster Crabbe will proceed each film.

A few of the college calendar listings for time and date of the Buster Keaton Festival are in error. The corrected listing follows: Tuesday, Nov. 7, "The Navigator," 7:30 p.m., PUB (note time change for those who wish to hear Margaret Mead); Thursday, Nov. 9, "Steamboat Bill, Jr.," 7:30 p.m., PUB.

2 LHS Co-eds Killed in Crash

Two LHS students were involved in a fatal car accident while enroute home for the weekend Friday.

Pronounced dead by the Lycoming Coroner were Jean Marie Hess, 21, of 863 Memorial Drive, Williamsport, and Anita Ford, 21, of R.D. 1 Rome, Pa. Anita's mother, Virginia Ford, was also killed in the head-on crash.

The accident took place at 5:15 p.m. approximately three miles north of Roaring Branch in Tioga County on Pa.

Route 14.

According to the Mansfield State Police, the '68 Chevy sedan in which they were traveling, was headed north on Pa. 14. It swerved to avoid hitting a deer and steered into the path of an oncoming '73 Chevy pick-up truck.

The driver of the truck sustained 'fairly serious' injuries.

Both students were seniors at LHS, majoring in Elementary Education, and were student teaching this semester.

America's migrant camps, and Indian reservations. While Mr. Nixon would veto domestic necessities such as these because they are inflationary, according to him, George McGovern would put major emphasis on this issue in his administration.

I believe, as many people do, that this election is one that is based on issues and principles. I do not want to see an administration that is plagued with accusations of spying, espionage, and sabotage running the country. I do not want to see the political party of the President be the one who, through sabotage, tries to destroy the opposition. I do not want to see the war linger on because of President Thieu, while our prisoners are sitting in cells rotting away their lives. I do not want to see increased welfare, increased unemployment, and increased inflation. I do not want to see an administration pledged to the interests of big business, the military-industrial complex, or the "fat-cats". I do not want to see bills to build more schools and hospitals and day care centers vetoed because they are inflationary, while bills to build more bombs and ammunition are signed by Nixon because they are "vital". I particularly do not want to see the oppressed minorities of our country continue to be oppressed, while millionaires can avoid paying income tax. I think it is time to give America back to the people, not the rich. For my opponents information, I do not get these facts from campaign literature, but rather from newspapers.

What I do want to see is improvement. I want to see more jobs, lower prices, and inflation halted. I want to see our involvement ended in Southeast Asia. I want to see an equal opportunity given to every American. That is our American heritage. Above all, I want to see America have a pride in itself, where every American has a feeling of belonging to our country which is something that we have not felt as a nation over the past four years. The time has come and unlike my opponent, I fully believe the Democratic party, as always, is the party of the people. It is for these reasons, and for the sake of a true United States that I urge everyone to vote for George McGovern tomorrow. Remember, the next four years will affect your lives very much, and if your outlook on the future is bleak now, try to imagine what it would be like with four more years of the same Nixon policies, with no holdbacks on what he could do, and with no re-election for him to worry about.

Think about it!!!

Five Bad Minutes Costs Booters Frostburg Contest

by Robert Singer

The Lock Haven soccer team deserved better than what they got last Saturday. They were handed a 2-1 loss by a Frostburg State College team whom they had dominated throughout the vast majority of the game. However, five bad minutes toward the end cost them the contest.

Coach Karl T. Herrmann, remembering last year's identical result, figured that whoever controlled midfield would win. The Eagles did; indeed, they nearly ran the Frostburg team off the field. The goalie was the only one who kept them in the game by making 18 saves. The score could easily have been 4- or 5-0 at the half, had the shooting been straighter.

There was no score in the opening period. After five minutes of hacking around on the field to open the second the Bald Eagles got to work and came up with their lone goal at 15:25, when Barry Johnson got his foot on the ball long enough to score. Things continued to be dominated by LHS after that, until about two-thirds of the way through. Frostburg mounted an offensive drive that stayed alive and culminated in a goal at 31:05. The Bald Eagles continued their sluggish actions, however, and the Bobcats scored another goal at 35:13 to make the final difference. After that there were only one or two significant drives into Frostburg territory, which were always handled by the goalie.

It was the "most frustrating and disappointing game of the year," said Herrmann later.

In other action over the past week, the Bald Eagles fared better at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, where they notched a 3-1 victory on goals by Barry Johnson and Don Copeland. This victory iced the PSCC Western Division. The JV's also won 2-0, on goals by Bill Romano and Mike Siegfried, leaving them undefeated for the year.

After rolling up a record of 8-3-2 for the regular season the Eagles have one more game coming up. This Saturday at 2, they play East Stroudsburg away for the conference title. This may be their last game of the season, unless they are invited to other postseason tournaments.

LHS Hockey Closes 8-1-1 '72 Season

The Lock Haven State College women's field hockey team has just completed another highly successful season with a record of 8-1-1. With the loss of only two seniors, Rose Ann Neff and JoAnn Regimbal, the outlook for another winning season next year is very bright.

In the past ten years under the coaching of Dr. Charlotte Smith, the Eaglettes have posted one of the top records in the nation. Over this long period, LHS has lost only four matches.

The Eaglettes, led by goalie Cindy Karl recorded six shutouts this season over Keystone Hockey Club, 4-0; Slippery Rock, 3-0; Susquehanna University, 5-0; Elizabethtown College, 8-0; East Stroudsburg State, 4-0; and Penn State University, 9-0. Other wins came over Ithaca College, 4-2, and Slippery Rock, 5-1. The tie came against the unbeaten Lock Haven Alumni Club, and the 1-0 loss was to powerful West Chester State College.

For the second straight season junior Kelly Cromer led the team in scoring with 18 goals. In the runnerup position for the second year is Jackie Crowell with nine goals.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

Well, the word is out and finally around to the Library staff that several interested students have worked out and put into practice a system of beating the Library's security system. It is no surprise to us and right now we are debating methods of stopping this system and also whether it will be worth the time and expense to try and stop it. As every librarian in this country will tell you in a moment of total candor, there is no system in the world, including locks and chains, that will prevent a book from being stolen if somebody is determined to steal it.

What concerns me to the point that I have decided to write this is why the students of any college want to steal from the college's library. All educational literature is full of long articles on why the library and free access to it is necessary for a good education. Every educational institution worth attending has made an enormous investment in a library building and materials. In the case of this library, the funds for the building and the books are provided by the commonwealth from tax monies; when you steal from this library, you are stealing from yourselves. The taxes collected on such popular items as beer and Boone's Farm Apple Wine go for education in Pennsylvania.

So let me ask two questions of this campus' students. I am very interested in the reasons because I cannot understand the impulse to rip off the college library, whether here or anywhere else.

Question one is: Why steal from the Stevenson Library? Everything here is free for the asking, or rather the charging. The loan period is four weeks with unlimited renewals. We collect fines only to insure the return of borrowed materials; the money goes into the Commonwealth's General Fund and the Library doesn't benefit from it. Why steal something that is freely provided in the first place?

Question two is: What do you do with the books, etc. after you steal them? I assume that you read the books you steal or at least look at them, but what do you do with them? We almost never have anything returned anonymously that has been stolen. Instead you throw it down the incinerator shaft, or put it in a campus waste basket. Why are you destroying it? If your conscience doesn't bother you while you are stealing the book, does it suddenly start bothering you after you have read the book? Why not just drop the books through the outside book return slot of the library? You will have made your point: you are a very clever fellow and can beat our security system. OK, but they why go on to destroy that book? The book hasn't done you any harm; indeed it may have entertained you or helped you in your research. The cost of replacing missing Library material is high, and cuts down on the number of new materials we can purchase.

As I said, I am very interested in answers to my two questions. If I should get any (anonymous replies, of course) I'll post them on the "Library Lip" bulletin board in the Library; a very nice way to slip some hot books through the book return slot.

Sincerely yours,
Robert S. Bravard,
Head Librarian

Neff Leads List Of Returning Eaglette Dribblers

The Women's Basketball team will hold its organizational meeting on Tuesday, November 7, at 1:15. Preseason conditioning for prospective members of the team will start November 13. The girls will meet each weekday 4-6 p.m. In the first part of December, Miss Mary Breid, the coach of the team, will pick around 20 girls, and begin official practice.

The season opens on February 3 against the LHS alumni girls. During the season the girls play four games on their home court and six away.

"With the fine lettermen we have returning and no injuries we should be the strongest team this year," enthusiastically stated Miss Breid. When asked what she will be looking for this year she replied, "Height and quick, aggressive girls. The type of game we play requires snappy ball handling and good physical condition."

Heading the list of six returning lettermen is Rose Ann Neff, last year's captain. The other letter winners back are Beth Miller, a six foot senior; Georgia Burns, senior; junior Kelly Cromer; junior Betty Miller, and sophomore Barb Collins.

For the first time the Mid-Atlantic Regional Tournament of AIAW will be held at LHS on March 8-9-10.
