Officers installed at Senate meeting

By JULIE BRENNAN

First on the agenda for the December 1st Senate meeting was the installment of the SCC Executive Committee officers. The newly elected officials sworn into office are: President, Mike Hanna; First Vice-president, Jayne Bolduc; Second Vice-President, Jack Sohnleitner Treasurer, Joe Harper; Recording Secretary, Sue Daum; and Corresponding Secretary, Mary Walsh. Mike Hanna appointed Rick Mather to the position of Parliamentarian for the SCC. Mather will replace Phil Burlingame, who was the former Parliamentarian in the Mock administration.

The next line of business was a report from Jeff Caulkins, chairperson of the Election Committee. Caulkins stated that the voting date for the Senator elections will be Tuesday, December 7 from 11 am - 6 pm in the Bentley Hall Lounge, and 11 am - 3 pm in the PUB.

Ten Senate positions are available to be filled. Petitions will be accepted until today at 3pm.

With the installment of new officers, three additional positions for SCC Senator became available, one in McEntire, one in Russell and one off-campus. The election for the three new positions will not be until after Christmas break because of the need to publicize the event.

Instead of adjourning the Senate meeting in the traditional manner, the Senate voted to recess until the school re-opens in January. The purpose of this is to allow the Senate Appropriations Committee (SAC) election to take place with a full Senate. The Constitution requires that SAC

Money exists for students without aid

By TERRY CORNELIUS

There are many sources of extra money available to students to help them with the financial strain of college. The only thing required is a little time taken to fill out certain applications.

According to Mr. Bryan Van Duen, student Financial Aid Director, over three quarters of a million dollars are being used by Lock Haven students this year through financial aid programs. The three basic forms available are grants or scholarships, loans, and part time employment

Grants are money received by a student that does not have to be paid back. Among the various grants available is the

Applications available in Smith

Applications for student counselor positions are now available from the Student Life Office in Smith Hall.

The application form is relatively easy to fill out but students should note, that if they are interested in a position for next semester, applications must be picked up, filled out, and returned by December 8, 1976.

Also, Ms. Nancy Meacham noted that some of the main problems with being a counselor are : counselors must come early at the beginning of a semester to Homosexuality lecture presented in Sloan Aud.

By MARLENE DAVY
Staff Reporter

On Wednesday evening in Sloan Auditorium a lecture on Homosexuality as a lifestyle was presented. The two featured speakers were Tony Silvestri and Janet Cooper.

Silvestri spoke for a short time on how to say that homosexuality as a lifestyle is totally irrelevant. He said homosexuals are still oppressed even though they are more openly presenting themselves to society. He said they must deny themselves and lie in order to protect themselves and their families.

Ms. Cooper started her talk by showing slides depicting how people used to touch each other in poems from books printed at the turn of the century. When questions arose from the audience as to what she was trying to prove from the slides Ms. Cooper hurried the slides up and never finished them. She then started a question and answer period during which many heated arguments developed. An especially heated argument developed when Ms. Cooper tried to tell the audience that homosexuality was what the world needed. She did not answer some questions and laughed at one professor when he asked her what would hap-

Lebin praises Vernon's Dylan album review

To the Editor:

It was most refreshing to read Keith Vernon's interesting and astute review of Bob Dylan's Hard Rain (Vol. XIX No. 50). I wish I could disagree with Keith's criticism, but alas-- I can't. Perhaps I can, however, offer some justification for an album that has been written off by most major Rock critics.

I have followed Dylan's music and poetry and myth for more years than I can remember. I distinctly recall the first time I heard "Like a Rolling Stone"; it was one of those... "And here is the WKWK number one song of the week. BOB DYLAN'S 'LIKE A ROLLIN' STONNNNEEE!' I almost wrecked my 1962, Corvair. I couldn't believe that a song so good could possibly make it to the top of the AM charts. I have listened to every album Dylan has ever made. In addition, I have seen him perform live four times, twice on film and T.V. I have learned more about myself and the world from Bob Dylan than from any teacher I ever had in school. I think this is true of a lot of people my age.

Anyway Keith, you're right. Hard Rain doesn't quite come off. And it's strange. I saw THE ROLLING THUNDER REVIEW in Rochester, and I saw the T.V. special, A HARD RAIN. Both were considerably superior to this album. It is interesting that the concert I saw was considerably different from what you saw of ROLLING THUNDER over the tube. What I saw, live, was a program that could well have been called "WOODY'S KIDS"; it was all the original "folkies"--all grown up, and having one hell of a good time on stage with themselves and with us, the audience. Quite an experience! Roger McGuinn, Joni Mitchell, Ramblin' Jack Elliot, Allan Ginsberg (Alan Ginsburg???) and that great lady of diamonds and rust herself, singing "SWING LOW..." and filling the War Memorial completely with her voice. And then Dylan. Alone with his acoustic guitar and mouth harp, dressed not in a Burnoose, but, rather like Alias, the character he played in Sam Peckinpaw's PAT GARRETT AND BILLY THE KID. And Dylan like Alias and John Wesley Harding... "was never known to make a foolish move".

Well Keith, Maybe Hard Rain was a foolish move, but at Team deserves more recognition

To the Editor:

I would like to bring attention to something I consider unfair and a gross injustice. That is, the fact that the women's field hockey team is ranked third in the entire nation and yet they are receiving no publicity (one article in the Eagle Eye?), no official congratulations, no nothing for this outstanding achievement.

After fourteen women work their asses off in the heat of August until the cold of November, have an outstanding regular season and place third nationally (tying the national champion) and then get virtually nothing for it. Not a banquet, a token of some sort to remember it, nothing except personal satisfaction.

Can you imagine if the men's basketball or baseball team was third in the nation...the school would go wild, Hamblin would undoubtedly congratulate them personally, and all sorts of joyous celebration would ring out at Lock Haven State College.

The women's field hockey team, under Sharon Taylor has accomplished a tremendous achievement with no scholarships, one coach for a varsity and junior varsity team, and little backing except for a handful of interested women fans. The team doesn't even get spikes issued, they buy their own!!

I believe the women deserve much more recognition and should be congratulated on this outstanding athletic accomplishment. They have brought recognition to a school least it kept Dylan in the public eye. After all, Dylan is coming off what must have been an exhausting and extended concert tour, one that stretched from New York Island to California. He's been interviewed by T.V. Guide. He's put out DESIRE. And from what I hear has released still another album. That would be his fifth album in less than two years. I doubt that even that shows them nothing in return. Like true champions they don't complain but I think it's unfair and something should be done.

Maybe if they are National champions next year they'll get their shoes paid for.

Anyway, congratulations to a team and coach that have surpassed any title or standing that was formerly held by any LHSC team, men's or women's.

Zeppelin fans will find new movie to be a must

By DEB KERNER
Staff Reporter

After reading numerous reviews all of which panned the movie, I expected Led Zeppelin's venture into the cinema with their The Song Remains The Same to be a boring, mind boggling, totally abstract, and confusing flick. Instead I was left with the opposite effect and for the most part I enjoyed the film.

The film is a must if you're really into the musical perfection of Zeppelin. If you are turned on by machoism which is personified by lead singer Robert Plant you'll love the movie.

If you're expecting a story with plot and meaning you won't find it in The Song Remains The Same. The major portion of the two and a half hour production consists of live concert footage shot at the Madison Square Garden during Led Zeppelin's 1973 tour.

Sigma Pi holds annual fund raising party

To the Editor:

As the end of the semester draws near, we the Brothers of Sigma Pi once again turn our thoughts to our deceased Brother, Mark Manahan. It was three years ago this month that we lost Mark in an airplane accident. A few upperclassmen will remember that Mark was a very artistic person and was an active member of the College Players.

Each year at this time, our fraternity holds the Mark Manahan Memorial Social, proceeds of which go to the College Players. The College Players always work hard to present the best shows possible, but they also need money to pay for advertisement, costumes, materials for props and items too numerous to mention.

So in order to help them and help preserve the memory of

The concert footage is interspersed with elaborate fantasy sequences which were designed to project the group's individual personalities and the particular meanings that specific songs hold for each member.

In this sense the critics are partially right in claiming that the film is extremely individualistic and egotistic. I don't think this can be avoided however when you consider that you are dealing in personalities and individual reactions.

The fantasy sequences offered are by far some of the most attractive visual effects. The cinematography is absolutely stunning as it provides some truly magnificent and majestic shots of the English, Scottish, and Welsh countryside.

PRO BALL

by Steve Heverly

Cardinals and Colts in St. Louis on Saturday shapes up as a big and interesting game. If the Cardinals lose they're out of the Play-offs and if Baltimore falls they would be tied with New England.

My record finally reached the century mark with a 10-4 record last week (101-57).

St. Louis 24 Baltimore 21

This game means more to the Cardinals than to Baltimore. The Colt's, a shoe-in for the playoffs whether first or second in their division. The toe of Bakken wins the game in the last minute.

Los Angeles 27 Atlanta 10

Los Angeles exploded for 33 points in Colosseum last week and should tune-up some more against Falcons.

Minnesota 24 Green Bay 6

In this "Black and Blue" Division clash at Frostbite Field, Minnesota, Green Bay turns blue, not only from the cold, but also from a heavy loss.

New England 34 New Orleans 21

New England will be ready to pull into a first place tie with Baltimore by unleashing their powerful offense on the road-poor Saints.

Washington 24 NY Jets 10

Redskins old men can smell playoff money and a weak team like the Jets won't upset them.

Detroit 20 NY Giants 10

The lions had 10 days off to get ready for Giants who slipped by Seattle last week. Lions should get a lot of dancing practice in the New York end Zone.

Dallas 20 Philadelphia 3

A lot of college offense's look a lot better than the Eagle's do. Dallas's only problem might be falling asleep by half-time.

Pittsburgh 35 Tampa Bay 0

This is the mis-match of the year. Tampa Bay's above score is the amount of wins they will have this year. It also might be the amount of first-downs they get against the Steelers.

Cleveland 17 Houston 10

Cleveland survived its toughest game the rest of season when it got by Miami last week. This week will be no breather against Houston Oilers broke their 6 game losing streak last week.

Miami 17 Buffalo 16

Miami's playing for pride now and a loss to Bills in the Orange Bowl would really hurt their pride. O.J. should account for Bills 16 points.

Denver 20 Kansas City 17

Broncos wild-card shot was lost in New England last week. Could still finish well with two wins. Kansas City a long way off but should put up decent fight.

San Francisco 27 San Diego 17

The national Television special that Delvin Williams put on last night should continue in San Diego. Chargers offense will have a tough time against "The Gold Rush."

Chicago 28 Seattle 10

one of the only easy games on Bears schedule. Walter "Sweetness" Payton should have big game against Seattle Seadoves.

Cincinnati 20 Oakland 17

Bengals' don't have to worry about snow in the Bay area. This is for the play-offs in the Central division.

Grapplers capture 300th bi-competition victory

History was made at Thomas Field House Wednesday night as the Bald Eagles whipped Youngstown State 38-9, thus gaining their 300th duel victory. In 38 years of varsity wrestling, Bald Eagle wrestling teams have compiled an amazing record of 300-80-7. The record 300th win coming in this Cox's eighth year as head coach. The duel matching LHS and youngstown was an exciting match filled with tough yet slick wrestling. The Bald Eagle squad showed a potent combination of muscle and slick as they crunched their opponents one by one.

Haven Gets Off to a Quick Start! The opening bouts of the evening saw fine wrestling displayed by LHS lightweights. 118 pound Gary Uram outlicked, outshined, and then proceeded to put the lights out on his Youngstown opponent. Uram decked YSU Gordon Myer in the second. This is Gary's second pin of the season (Way to go Yacky!) LHS veteran 126 pounder Sean Ahern then went out and reversed Youngstown State's Dan Dinger to a 9-4 decision.

McCamey Was Superb!

At 134 Capt. Tim McCamey of Philipsburg Faced Youngstown's toughest wrestler. Don Hernan capt. of Youngstown has lost only a handful of bouts total in high school and college. Both capt's squared off for battle as the whistle blew. "Mac" barreled Hernan for a 2 point takedown and rode him out the entire first period. Misfortune then hit the lhs wrestler as he was hit with a technical violation. This same technical violation was to puzzle Coach Cox and haven fans throughout the night. Hernan reversed Mac and made the score 3-2. Riding him out the second. However the inspired McCamey was not to be denied as he shot a spectacular duck under that set the crowd to his feet. Mac added back points and displayed a reding show comparable to that of the greatest rodeo star. Final score: McCamey 8 Hernan 5, a truly exciting match!

142 pounder Michael Moore added to Haven's total as he dominated his opponent and pinned him in the 3rd period.

At 150 capt. George Way whipped Youngstown's Dan Stilgenbauer 10-2. YS Stilgenbauer was long and tall as his name, but Way (the Williamsport Wonder) cut him down to size.

The tide turned as two Bald Eagle wrestlers met defeat in succession. Litho ware was pinned in the 3rd and Jerry Peterman was decisioned in a squeaker 5-3. With two wins in a row Youngstown State was knocking on the duel victory door.

Enter Murderer's Row!

At 177 Al Fricke pinned Joe Guido

At 190 Tim Thompson decisioned Bill Perkins

At HWT Greg Koontz pinned Stan Spencer

Fricke, Thompson, and Koont are thus labeled the name Murder's Row for their physical beatings they administer to their opponents.

night through 18th century graveyards in a grotesque mask. By day he gently plays an enormous pipe organ to the sound of "No Quarter."

Drummer John Bonham's portrait concentrates on realism rather than fantasy. As his drum solo of "Moby Dick" echoes in the background we see Bonham doing some of the things he particularly enjoys. He is shown working on his farm with his wife and children and racing automobiles.

Robert Plant's sequence, which is done to "The Song Remains the Same," is gallant and fanciful as it is filled with chivalry and beauty. Plant makes the perfect knightly romantic type of hero. He sets off to seek his fortune only to be confronted by self-doubt and the elements of nature.

Jimmy Page's sequence is one of the best. Set to an extended but masterful performance of "Dazed and Confused" most of the scene takes place on stage at the Garden. Shifts in the pace of the song are shown by photographic tricks such as double images of Page strutting around and his furious fingerwork. The scene then changes, repeating the image from their Stairway to Heaven album as Page is shown searching for the truth within himself. We see Page making a desperate climb up a steep mountain as he attempts to reach the hooded Father-time figure who represents truth. Upon reaching the hermit we see that the figure is Page himself, first as an old man who slowly reverts to Page as an infant. This starts the cycle again as Page's image progressively returns to the old man figure.

The concert scenes were the next best thing to being at a Zeppelin concert. The camera featured each member of the group doing what he does best from Jones on bass guitar and keyboards to Page taking it to the bridge.

The basic weakness of the film was the failure to fulfill one of its main objectives and that was to present Led Zeppelin as people not just as the kings of rock and roll bands. Throughout the movie we are given very small glimpses into the private lives of the most popular heavy-metal band existing today. These scenes consisted of each member reacting at home with his wife and children. They were interesting because a side of the group was portrayed which most people don't realize exists. The other off-stage scenes however, failed to bring about any real significance. They tended to be superficial, meaningless, boring, and obnoxious.

You were never provided with any form of conversation by the group. This strongly contributed to making Led

And so Keith, it looks like we have yet another Dylan to cope with. Dylan the Prolific. And maybe no one has it together all the time, not even little Billy Zimmerman from Hibbing, Minnesota. As far as I'm concerned, if he had just written and recorded the songs on HIGHWAY 61, REVISITED that would be sufficient, but he has done a great deal more than that. Hasn't he?
