Donnie Iris event only three days away

By Kim Wilkinson
Eagle Eye Staff

The concert event of the year at Lock Haven State College (LHSC) is only three days away. Donnie Iris and the Cruisers will be rocking "the Haven" in Thomas Field House at 8 p.m. this Monday. All tickets sold at the door will be $7.98, according to Christopher Theodore, Student Cooperative Council (S.C.C.) Social committee chairman.

Tickets are being sold in the lower level of the Parsons Union Building (PUB) for $4.98 with a validate ID and $7.98 general admission.

Donnie Iris is from Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania. According to a MCA record press release, he has been singing all of his life and at the age of nine, he "took first prize in a national radio talent show - a brand new refrigerator - and kept it in his garage filled with beer."

Iris performed with such groups as Donnie and the Donnells, The Jaggerz, and Wild Cherry. "The Rapper", Iris' number one single and gold record was recorded with The Jaggerz in the late 60's. Back on the Streets was his first solo album with MCA Records, according to the press release. "Agnes", "She's So Wild", and "Ah! Leah!" were written in honor of two of his wives, Agnes and Leah. The Cruisers are Albritton McClain, bass; Marty "The Bear" Lee, guitars; Kevin Valentine, drums; and Mark Avsec, keyboards.

Their second LP is titled King Cool, which includes "Love is Like a Rock." Their most recent album, The High and the Mighty includes the hit "Tough World".

Theodore said, "Donnie Iris and the Cruisers are ready to jam at the fieldhouse. I'm looking forward to seeing a packed house. And I want to see 3,000 excited, happy faces."

Donnie Iris concert tickets are on sale now in the lower level of the PUB for only $4.98. Remember, all tickets sold at the door will go for $7.98 (Eagle Eye photo by Jeff Tinsman)

LHSC winter sporting events to be televised locally

By Kurt Gallagher
Editor-in-Chief

Several LHSC wrestling matches and basketball games (both mens and womens) will be televised locally this year as part of a sports package being organized by the LHSC Athletic Dept and Cox Cable Company in Lock Haven. The games are sponsored by Central Counties Bank.

They will be shown on channel 10 a few days after they're taped and are being hosted by Charlie Roberts and Dennis Harris, junior Journalism majors at LHSC.

Helping out with stats and color will be Rick Tadisco, mens basketball specialist; and Steve Donahue, wrestling specialist. Steve Gannon will be do-

Roberts feels that televising the games "puts Lock Haven Athletics on the same level as other major college athletic programs due to the exposure that T.V. provides."

He added, "I view it as a challenge. I enjoy broadcasting sports and in the meantime, I can pick up some valuable experience."

A similar project that Roberts and Harris helped with last year received a lot of positive reaction from the community, the college, and the athletes.

Anything goes Sunday in Thomas Field House

By Kim Wilkinson
News Editor

Anything Goes, a charity event sponsored by Phi Mu Delta, will be held on Sunday at 1 p.m. in the Thomas Field House, according to Eric Stanton, a co-chairman for the event.

A series of eleven events make up Anything Goes. Teams consisting of three men and three women compete for monetary prizes, according to Stanton. The event is fashioned after the television program, said Stanton.

Registration will be held in Bentley Lounge during the dinner hours, said Stanton. He said Phi Mu Delta is "hoping to get six to ten teams."

There is a ten dollar registration fee for each team which will be donated to the Lock Haven Infant Development Center, according to Stanton.

Admission is free and extra donations will be accepted. "It should be a really good time," said Stanton.

Dear Editor:

One-third of the students on this campus expect John McNamara to fall flat on his face. One-third expects him to keep all of his campaigning promises, and trust him to do it. The final third want to know what the fuss is all about.

Everyone is throwing accusations and insults at each other, whether they be cleverly worded or vulgar. Both sides are guilty of this. Many people including John, know how I feel about his election and some of his methods. Neither

John, nor myself are innocent of flinging insults. At this point, however, the insults and accusations are irrelevant. The SCC will go down the drain unless these accusations cease. You've heard it before; the key word is cooperation! It is time to stop arguing and get used to the new administration. Let's see what they can do along with the senate to help the students.

Sincerely,
Joan Patrick

Dear Editor:

The Student Cooperative Council is a great organization. The SCC is also an awesome asset to a person's education. Working with a big business and student government at the same time is an experience that is almost as valuable as a college degree. This experience gives you responsibility, patience, and leadership. I feel that time spent working for the SCC can be very important to strengthen a person and prepare him for the real world...away from The Haven.

The freedom that lets these experiences happen could be taken away from us, the students, if we don't learn to compromise a little. When working for an organization such as ours I feel that bickering and quarrelling over nit bit nothings hinders our strive for independence and responsibility. The SCC has a responsibility to provide many services for the students of LHSC. The students must stick together and handle, with hard work and cooperation, any obstacle that gets in our way. Students can handle anything that anyone else can handle. So let's work out any problems together and let's regain the responsibility which we once had. Then we could put our emotions away and get some work done.

Thank You
Amicably
Social Chairman (SCC)
Christopher Theodore

Wrestlers deserve assistant

Maira McCarty

Lock Haven State is an athletics oriented college, no matter how people may try to deny the fact. Our School of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation has the largest enrollment of any other major. It would make sense then that our athletic programs could be treated and staffed equally or according to the records of the respective teams. This does not seem to be the case.

The Lock Haven State Wrestling team is the only Division I team on campus, is nationally ranked, and has had a winning record for many years. Until this team of very talented and dedicated athletes does not have an assistant coach.

Head Coach Neil Turner has done a lot of good things with this team, but he shouldn't be expected to continue to do everything himself. He needs someone as motivated and dedicated to wrestling as he is.

The administration currently has a job description for an assistant in circulation. The description calls for an assistant wrestling coach who will also work as head track coach. The position is part-time with no tenure or benefits. In my opinion the people who will apply for this job, as it is now described, will not be of the quality that both Coach Turner and the team deserve. They deserve much more than is being asked for by the administration now.

It seems to me that the school always expects excellent performance from both coach and team. But very few people take the time to look beneath the surface at what goes on behind the scenes. Not only does Coach Turner need to train this year's team, but he must also look ahead to next year and recruit and scout high school seniors across the state and beyond its boundaries. This takes a lot of time away from training with the team. One person can't do this job alone, and knowledge and experience is needed by anyone who attempts to take on this job.

The wrestling team deserves a good assistant coach and the support of the students and the campus media. These guys are champions and should be created as such.

Souchak uncovers IRIS plot

Satire by Ernie Souchak
Guest Columnist

I was undercover, of course, and my mission was to scout a new singer. His name was Donnie Iris. His head was unique. I was being paid by a concert promoter named Ted Furr. Furr and other members of the concert industry had heard rumors that Iris was only performing as part of a communist plot to promote Fidel Castro haircuts. Could he carry a note? A dangerous job, but, I was Ernie Souchak.

I posed as a college student. Iris was performing at the University of Miami. An obvious place for a Castro scheme. I had to gain the confidence of several students if I was to be successful. I moved into a co-ed apartment that was occupied by five students. Many of them had foreign connections that I hoped would be beneficial. Two of them, Maureen Rodriguez and Bekita Hernandez, were big Donnie Iris fans. Both were regulars at the nude beach. Maureen was blessed with what some called the eighth and ninth wonders of the world. Bekita was a partier who often confused the Alpha frat house with the nude beach. They both wanted me, but, this was a job. Besides, I was Catholic.

Iris, whose big hit was "Love is Like a Rock," arrived in town early to help promote the event, or-so he said. It was my suspicion that Iris was having an affair with Ted Furr's girl, Lauren Macaroni. With the concert only days away, Lauren looked like the key to breaking this plot wide open. One bat of her lashes had gotten us an invitation to a backstage party with the band. My foot was in the door, all I needed was a concert ticket.

I solved that problem after finding out that two of my roommates, Clark Lacey and Jose Bloomwald, were working for concert security. They were easily bought with one hand rolled Havana cigar. It was these two who convinced me to socialize the night before the concert at a bar called the Blackstone. Drinking was a big part of college and after all I was undercover. Clark was partial to Tequila and Jose plied me with Marijuana cigarettes all night. The plight of an undercover agent is often a hard road. At the Blackstone that night was Liza Fawcett. Liza was in a Spanish class I was taking at the college. Although this was business, one could not help but notice that Liza had hips that worked overtime. The Spanish class helped me in case any code messages were to be used. I did not want to blow my cover. I needed a date for the concert. Liza was the perfect choice. It was strictly business. I knew Lauren and Liza were good friends so people would not find it unusual to see us all together. Two drinks later, Liza and I were double-dating with Ted and Lauren. What can I say - Ernie Souchak was suave.

The concert hall hummed with excitement that night. The weather was so bad that a cloud seemed to hover above the crowd. Backstage at the party, I met Donnie Iris. This guy was a performer on and off the stage. We were alike in many ways, chicks dug him. I swear I heard Lauren whisper in his ear, "Donnie you reek of sex." Ted, who oozed with confidence himself, snapped his fingers and Lauren was his for the night. Mr. Iris then introduced me to the band. My suspicious were aroused by the drummer, Milton Binson. It was my keen senses that tipped me off to Binson. The fact that he had a short wave radio in his drum stick was also peculiar.

Donnie Iris played for hours. The entertainment industry had a blossoming star. His version of "Love is Like a Rock" had Maureen and Bekita sleeping with boulders for weeks. He captured the hearts of the audience by

Cornhuskers outmuscle LHSC grapplers

By Kevin Campbell
Sports Editor

The Bald Eagle grapplers entered last night's dual meet against Nebraska anticipating a major upset, but were dealt their initial setback of the young season as the Cornhuskers walked away with a 30-11 triumph. Nebraska, who last year finished sixth in the country, captured seven of ten bouts to seal the victory.

The lone victors for coach Neil Turner's Bald Eagles were recorded by Tom Kreamer at 142 pounds and heavyweight Rick Peterson. Mike Millward managed a draw at 126 pounds.

Kreamer defeated Cornhusker Alan Freeman with a default victory midway through the match. Freeman went down in the third stanza of the bout when his knee gave out, giving the Bald Eagles six points. Kreamer was leading 8-4 at the time of the injury. The Haven wrestler opened the bout with a quick takedown, and added three points with a nearfall in the same period. Kreamer added a reversal and an escape before Freeman went down with the injury.

The default tied the score at eight points apiece, thanks largely to a Mike Millward draw at 126 pounds. The Bald Eagle standout trailed 4-2 after the first period, but came from behind to record the draw. Millward, who finished first in the Naval Academy tournament a week ago, is now 4-0-1 on the year.

Lock Haven could not get on the board again until the final bout of the evening, as heavyweight Rick Peterson notched a 7-4 victory. The heavyweight opened the bout with a takedown to jump on top 2-0, and held on for a 7-4 triumph. The victory brought the final score to 30-11.

The Bald Eagles will enter their second tournament of the season as they travel to the prestigious Lehigh tournament. The Eagles will face the Cornhuskers again at Lehigh, as well as Lehigh, Bloomsburg, Hofstra, North Carolina State, and Trenton State. The team will host Shippensburg on Thursday, December 9.

Eagle cagers drop home opener, 74-73

By Chris Brooks
Sports Editor

The Lock Haven State men's basketball team dropped its second heart-breaking defeat in the last week as the University of Pittsburgh-Johnstown Mountain Cats hung on for a 74-73 victory in the Eagles' home opener Wednesday. Last Saturday, LHSC suffered a 112-105 overtime loss at the hands of Shepherd (W. Virginia).

Turnovers and mental errors, two problems which have plagued Coach Brad Black's squad during the early season, again presented themselves Wednesday. The Eagles, 1-5, committed 16 turnovers in the first half as UPJ jumped out to a 42-30 lead.

With LHSC on top 23-16 and just over nine minutes to go in the opening half, UPJ's leading scorer Dave Higinbotham, who tallied a game high 28 points, sank a jump shot to begin a spurt which saw the Mountain Cats outscore the Eagles 24-7 over the rest of the half. As play resumed in the second half, UPJ gradually increased its lead to 16 with 15:30 remaining.

During the next five minutes, though, Mike Greene and Sam June, who led the LHSC scoring attack with 22 and 15 points respectively, sparked the Eagles to a 16-2 spurt which drew them within two points, 52-50.

After six unanswered points by Pitt-Johnstown, senior Gregg O'Connell hit a jump shot, June converted on a three point play, and Greene sank two straight for the Eagles' first lead since the early going of the first half, 59-58.

Over the remaining seven minutes, UPJ and LHSC battled equally as the lead changed 13 times. With 20 seconds left in the game, Higinbotham hit his biggest shot of the night, giving the Mountain Cats their final score of the night.

As the Eagles set up the next time down the court, sophomore center Scott Dobak was caught setting an illegal pick and the ball was turned over to UPJ. With two seconds left, Tom O'Neill rebounded a missed shot and called time out. Dobak, however, then had to throw a desperate full court pass and when UPJ intercepted, time expired.

Black, who now is with his team in Virginia for tonight's matchup with Division I William and Mary, said, "We had way too many turnovers in the first half. They were unforced errors. There were a lot of thinking errors."

June added nine rebounds and Fred Shuey contributed 10 points and eight rebounds in the Haven's losing cause.

The junior varsity team of head coach Don Taylor, backed by Greg Overton's 35 point performance, edged the Youth in Action squad from Chester, 81-80.

Dennis cueing up an album track in WLHC-FM's studio

By Susan Loew

Dennis Harris, a second semester sophomore at LHSC, is the first student to hold the position of Station

Manager at WLHC-FM, Lock Haven State College's radio station. He is a journalism major who applied for this position in the spring of '82. When the radio station went on the air on November 2, 1981, Dr. Hybels was manager. She is now the advisor.

Dennis Harris

First WLHC-FM manager

This position holds a lot of responsibilities, including taking a lot of phone calls about problems and ideas for the radio station. He decides who is good for the position of disc jockey. He is in charge of discipline, but says "it is hard to tell people to shape up." He puts in about 14 hours a week, and doesn't get any credits for this job.

To become a disc jockey one must be a journalism or speech major and have a certain personality. You have to audition for the position.

The equipment at the station was paid for by the state, but they currently don't have a budget. Their income comes mostly from advertisements. Dennis wrote a few record companies and is hoping for a response. The station needs more albums. Dennis realizes that a larger record collection would be a betterment to the station that would lead to broader experience.

Dennis likes this position of Station Manager because he gets to meet a lot of people. He is learning how to work with people and make them happy. When he goes to look for a job, this position will look good on his resume. He's becoming familiar with what broadcasting is all about.

Dennis' main interest lies in sports broadcasting. He played sports and learned a lot about them. He decided he wasn't good enough to go pro, and would like to interact his career with sports. He likes to talk a lot, which helped him decide to be a sports broadcaster. Dennis would eventually like to be on national television or hold a network position. Said Dennis, "I would like some day to take over for Howard Cosell."

Dennis Harris is from Doylestown, Pa., where he graduated in 1980 from Central Bucks East. He is also a brother of Sigma Pi Fraternity.

Souchak uncovers

showing he enjoyed his work. He could sing, play and dance. Girls showered him with roses and he responded with acrobatic moves off the stage. This guy was no communist spy.

Binson was another story. An old friend, Deb Wolf, happened to remember Morse Code from her days in the Girl Scouts. Although she was thrown out of the Scouts for selling more than cookies door to door, Deb had met a guy named Johan Cruyft who had helped her clean up her act. Deb told me that Binson was sending messages to Cuba. With the help of my friends, the plot was exposed.

Binson was part of a ring who were attempting to take-over the fashion world. The ring saw the potential that Iris had. His hair-do could catch on and create the biggest fad since the hoola-hoop. Cuba decided to subsidize the venture after noticing that Iris' style in hair was similar to Castro's. Much like Hitler and his master race, Cuba visioned Castro-type heads wandering around the world. The plot was foiled. ROTC arrested Binson on the spot.

Iris has a new drummer now. His show is a bigger smash than ever. Ted Furr is the King of concert promoters. He recently married Lauren, who just wanted to get Ted a bit jealous. Maureen and Bekita joined the Charles Manson cult and shaved their heads. I dated both after their hair grew in. Deb Wolf, who was instrumental in uncovering the plot, now runs a health spa with Johan. Clark and Jose own a bar where female mudwrestling is big on Friday nights. Liza Fawcett has not spoken to me since finding my true identity. She'll come around. After all, Ernie Souchak is suave.

Past experience tells me this will be some concert...
