SCC must approve action

Can Bower remain until Nov.?

Pending SCC approval, LHS student trustee George Bower will retain his position on the board of trustees until November 1.

According to Rich DeBernardo, SCC President, Mr. Bower and State Secretary of Education John Pittenger reached an understanding whereby Bower would remain as student trustee until November 1. Bower would resign at this time so an undergraduate student could have a position on the board.

Secretary Pittenger notified Mr. DeBernardo Thursday that this agreement would stand only if it is approved by the LHS students. If approved, Mr. Pittenger would then make this recommendation to Governor Shapp. If this agreement is not acceptable, Mr. Pittenger requested DeBernardo to contact him at his earliest opportunity to explore alternative solutions.

This agreement will be discussed at Wednesday's regular SCC meeting. The meeting will be held at 7 pm in the PUB Lounge.

Pittenger explained that names of candidates for student trustee should be sent to Harrisburg in October to set the selection process in motion. If the state senate does not confirm a student candidate before they adjourn on December 1, Governor Shapp will make an interim appointment.

According to the education secretary, this plan will provide continuity and the assurance that there will always be student representation on the board of trustees.

It will also avoid the situation which currently exists at Millersville of both a graduate and an undergraduate serving on the board of trustees.

Letterman helps to close information gap

Through the efforts of State Representative Russell P. Letterman, the LHS Stevenson Library at Lock Haven State College has been able to secure Pennsylvania legislative documents needed to complete its files.

The Stevenson Library has been a depository for Pennsylvania government documents since May 1972. However, the depository program was unable to include many of the documents considered essential for a complete file, according to head librarian, Robert S. Bravard.

"Among those working to close this information gap was Rep. Letterman. He engaged in very strenuous efforts to secure the legislative documents for depository libraries, and his efforts bore results in early February," said Mr. Bravard.

The Stevenson Library was notified on February 4, that it could receive upon request the Pennsylvania Legislative Journal, the Combined History of the House and Senate, the Pennsylvania House and Senate Bills, and the House and Senate Calendar.

Mr. Bravard reports that the first materials have been received and are available at the Periodicals Desk.

Senators answer your questions

The Senate Office reopens today from the hours of 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. These will remain the operating hours from Monday through Thursday. On Fridays, the office will be open from 10 am to 4 pm.

A senator will be on duty in the office between these hours to enable students to get any information that might be needed and to have questions answered. The senators will also be using this time to do their committee work or any other student government projects.

It is hoped that this will justify the awarding of credit to senators for their involvement in student government.

Nelson protest s new road bill; asks cooperation

by Betsy Woolridge

"We are delaying implementation of House Bill 582 pending legal decisions," stated Carl Nelson about the bill which makes college roads into state highways.

Mr. Nelson is waiting for a response from Harrisburg to a letter explaining LHS's plan of protest. The plan consists of posting signs such as 'authorized vehicles only' rather than make the roads state highways. He does not know if the plan will be accepted.

Mr. Nelson feels that if the students cooperate by keeping vehicles out of firelanes the plan might work. He suggested that if students who do not use their cars frequently might park in parking lot 7, visitors might park in areas close to the dorm and keep out of fire and emergency lanes.

"The citations cost much more and I know students here can't afford paying them," said Nelson.

Nelson explained that students who are parked illegally only a short time to load might leave their blinker lights on, the door or trunk open. Also a note could be left explaining where the driver is. In which case if a firetruck or ambulance needed to get through, the driver of the car might be contacted immediately to move the car.

He also said that if the college roads were state highways the car would get a ticket even if parked there for only a few moments.

Due to the current paper shortage the Eagle Eye has reduced the number of published copies to 1,000 per issue. Your cooperation is requested in sharing your copy with a friend. Thanx

Lenny irreverent and irresistibly funny

By David C. Heverly

"Lenny Bruce was a jazz poet who lived his own truth."

That's how Frank Speiser described the great satirist of the 50's and 60's, Lenny Bruce. If you weren't in Price Auditorium on Thursday to see Speiser recreate Lenny you missed one of the best shows ever to come to this campus.

Speiser came on stage to tell a little bit about Lenny and about the show he was about to do. It was to be in two parts: First, he would do one of Lenny's routines from around 1960. Next, he would recreate a scene from Lenny's life five years later, when he was at the lowest point in his career.

Speiser, hereafter to be referred to as "Lenny", walked on stage and nonchalantly asked, "How many of you have ever pissed in a sink?" Such a question would normally bring at least a look of incredulity. This time it brought a wave of laughter and a sea of raised hands.

So it went for an hour and forty-five minutes. Lenny, took the audience into his confidence and made them admit, by way of laughter, to things that they normally would have been embarrassed about.

It was almost therapeutic. Imagine being able to laugh about "bad-early toilet training." No neurosis was safe.

Who else could make you laugh about masturbation? (Lenny, why'd ya blow snot all over the National Geographic?)

Even blasphemy brought laughs when Lenny lampooned the Church. In this sketch, Christ and Moses come down to earth to "check up on things." (They could tell it was Moses because he looked like Charlton Heston.)

Christ and Moses enter St. Patrick's Cathedral and wondered what such an opulent structure is doing in the midst of such poverty. Wasn't the Church for the people? Jesus and Moses decide to move the poor into the Cathedral.

When Bishop Sheen and Cardinal Spellmen see Jesus and Moses trying to bring leper into the Cathedral they decide to phone the "big man in Rome."

"Look here Johnny," says Spellmen, "what are we paying all that protection money to Rome for? Of course you know them. You better do something fast. Look (to lepers): keep your feet away from the robes and don't touch anything, will ya."

This was the Lenny Bruce that I had read about. He was irreverent, irrepressible and irresistibly funny."

After the night club act, the scene changed to a hall outside a New York City courtroom. It was five years later, and Lenny was at the nadir of his career. This was to be the last in a series of "obscenity trials."

The trials themselves should have been termed "obscene" trials instead of obscenity trials. The thing that was really obscene was what they had done to Lenny. Here he was on trial because of the way he made people laugh. Humor had become a crime.

"Lenny" looked run down and unkempt. Before he was engaging, now he was agitated and a bit paranoid. He had once been funny, now he was only desperate.

He ranted through the story of his prosecution--or perhaps more apt in this case, his persecution. Conviction had stripped him of his livelihood--his comedy.

The courtroom scene was Lenny's last. He died a few days later. Officially, it was a result of an overdose of

Who wrote that article . . . ?

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to the article in Monday's issue on the wrestling match. I would like to know who wrote that article. He must have been a TKE.

heroin--unofficially it has been said that he died of an overdose of police.

The Magician comes to campus

This weeks Humanities film is Igmur Bergman's "The Magician."

This horror tale stars Max von Sydow as a wandering magician who uses his power of illusion to what seems to be his advantage.

The film has been described as a sort of "cinematic chess game". This tale of ghosts and the supernatural, while seemingly inexplicable at first, is explained logically and persuasively at the film's end.

"The Magician" will be in Ulmer Planetarium at 8 p.m., Tuesday and Wednesday.

You said in your article, "The TKE's once again were out in full force to cheer their wrestling "brothers" and the team in general. What's wrong with some of the other fraternities on campus?"

I'll tell you what is not wrong with the other fraternities on this campus.

We not are quite unique as TKE. Everyone knows TKE is Unique with their drum and "brothers" sitting together acting like children.

The other fraternities do show up to the sporting events on campus, but why do we have to be so unique as TKE. Why can't we just sit and enjoy the sporting events as any other normal person instead of just beating a drum and making a lot of noise.

Signed,
Ununique Frat Brother

Trash problem disposed of

by Jan Albright

"We've had a trash problem for some time," commented Mr. Joe Nagy concerning the disposal situation at the Pub. A solution has been the large trash container which the Eagle Wing uses at no charge.

The container is provided by a local disposal service that charges for the removal of the trash, a $15 weekly expense. Mr. Peters, of Peters Coal and Disposal Service, now comes only three times a week compared to everyday as he used to. The decreased expense from coming less often offsets any rental charge for use of the receptacle.

Mr. Nagy explained the possibility of the Eagle Wing purchasing a trash compacter, which would cost $1200. Increased costs to the Eagle Wing are reflected in increased food prices for students, so the $1200 expense was not favored by Mr. Nagy. Even with a compacter, a disposal problem would still exist. The amount of trash would be less, but it would still have to be picked up.

At present, the new trash container is a temporary convenience provided by Mr. Peters. If it works out, the present arrangement for trash removal may become a permanent one.

Could you qualify for campus police ?

With the campus police force in the news lately, perhaps a little information on qualifications for the positions are in order.

There are only a few basic requirements to be met, to be considered for the position of either a campus police officer or security officer.

Applicants for the posts must be between the ages of 21 and 70, be physically able to perform their duties and must pass the Civil Service exam. The only difference in the qualifications for the two posts is that an additional exam must be taken. This exam is of varying nature and is more difficult for the campus police position.

According to Carl Nelson, Director of the Department of Law Enforcement and Safety, the policy of the college is to hire younger men to fill positions on the force, however the state requires that older 'veterans' on the list of perspective employees, must be hired before the younger applicants of equal experience.

Nelson also added that LHS is slowly trimming the force to consist exclusively of Commonwealth police officers. The reason for the move is that the campus police must now enforce the Motor Vehicle Code, effective Feb. 19, and security officers have no jurisdiction in dealing with the code.
