Freshmen applications stable; LHS only school with increase

By GEORGE MORRISON
Staff Reporter

The incoming freshman class will be about the same as it was last fall according to Mr. Joseph Coldren Assistant Director of Admissions. "Our new freshman class will be about the same size with maybe a 10 to 20 student difference," said Mr. Coldren. The expected freshman class will be between 730 to 750 total students.

The male-female ratio here on campus is expected to increase due to more applications being received from women than men," stated Mr. Coldren. This is in terms of applications received by the Admissions office.

The most important way of attracting students to Lock Haven is by recruitment. There are 3 professionals here at Lock Haven who go to different junior colleges and community colleges to recruit students. A direct mail approach is also used.

The admissions office receives names from such organizations as the College Entrance Examination Board, the National Council of teachers of English, and the National Merit scholarship Board. These groups send out names of students with high ranking scores or students receiving recommendations of merit which plan to further their education.

They go to high school college nights and use many different pamphlets and types of literature which tells the interested high school students and transfers the many things Lock Haven has to offer them. When visits are made at different communities, newspaper advertising is used.

Emphasis is put on attracting minorities and foreign students to campus. Foreign exchanges such as the Nottingham program are also used to attract students to Lock Haven.

Our course offerings also help in the attraction of students. We are the only state college to offer a major in computer science. Our social work and early childhood development programs are one of a few offered throughout the state.

This year a new program was set up. Dr. Williamson, Dr. Sterns, and Dr. Maetozo now send letters of congratulations to all accepted freshmen in order to encourage them to think about

If a ballot had been run, the choices would have been: Thursday night, Sunday night, Saturday afternoon, or Sunday afternoon. I'm sure Thursday and Sunday nights would have won. With Spring and warm weather on the way, I'm sure none of you would want to sit in a stuffy auditorium on a nice afternoon.

I'd also like to say that I know the films this year haven't been the best that money can buy, but with students always saying that there's nothing to do, we felt that having movies twice a week would give you something to do. By having them twice a week, we aren't able to spend as much money on each one, as we'd like to be able to do.

Walk softly and carry a sharp fountain pen

By DAVID C. HEVERLY

Perhaps one of the brightest and most innovative things to come out of Harrisburg in the way of education is the Student Internship Program. This program allows students to come out from behind their books and act like real, productive human beings -- or at least as real, productive and human as one can be in Harrisburg.

Two questions that come to my mind: Why should Harrisburg get all that cheap labor? Can't we have internship programs right here on campus?

Think of the benefits that could be reaped if students could be interns here on campus, in jobs that really meant something. With the rising inflation, the administration could hire students to do jobs that really meant something, instead of creating some new administrative post. Each semester, some new bright, young minds would step in and give a fresh new perspective to tired, old problems. They could help keep the "other" administrators in touch with the problems of the student, while giving the students some insight into the internal workings of the college.

Internships wouldn't have to be restricted to administrative positions. Some credit/cash courses could be started to augment such services as law enforcement. A student could enroll in a criminology or psychology course and have the opportunity to put theory into practice. Once again, participants would be both students and teachers.

What about off campus? I'm quite sure that local governments would be anxious for an opportunity to get in on the internship program. After all, we're talking about people who, once they get their degree, will pull down two or three times what they can be had for now. It just makes sound economic sense, that's all.

What about off campus businesses? Wouldn't they enjoy the opportunity to have people they can train, while not having to pay them the salary they would have to if these people were out on the job market for real?

And what about town and gown relations? Wouldn't the fact that "those college kids" and "those townies" could see and work beside one another in the light of day help create an understanding of one another's problems?

Perhaps, with the job situation, this would be a bad time to start such off-campus internships, but it is something to think about. When good times do hit, perhaps, instead of thinking of this as an option for students, it is made a requirement. After all, people in education have to student teach, why shouldn't liberal arts people go out and put their theory into practice? Perhaps then, there would be fewer people in college hiding behind books.

I know that two weeks ago I said there would be a ballot in an upcoming Eagle Eye that would allow you to vote for the days you want to have the movies shown. After discussing it with several people, I've decided not to have a vote taken.

For the remainder of the semester, the movies will be shown on Thursday and Sunday nights. The times may vary due to the length of some films, and if complications arise as to a showplace, they'll be shown on Friday night. For most weeks though the showings will be Thursday and Sunday nights. Read this article weekly to know exactly what night, times,

Eagle grapplers travel to Penna. conference tourney

Five defending champions and seven former winners in all are expected to be in action this weekend when the 32nd annual Pennsylvania Conference Wrestling Tournament is staged at Kutztown State College.

Slippery Rock, by virtue of its 22-16 victory over Clarion last Saturday, is the favorite to claim its first conference mat title in history. Clarion has claimed the title the last three years and figure to be the top challengers to the Rockets of Coach Fred Powell.

Two PC All-Americans, Jack Spates of Slippery Rock and Don Rohn of Clarion, will be seeking their third straight their third individual titles while back to defend the crowns they won last winter are Randy Watts of Bloomsburg, Bill Shuffstall of Slippery Rock, and Bob Stetter of East Stroudsburg. Stetter injured his knee early in the season, but is expected to compete in the tournament.

Don Eichenlaub of Lock Haven and Chuck Coryea of Clarion, two 1973 champs, also are eligible to compete although Eichenlaub's appearance is doubtful. He has not been competing on a regular basis in the LH lineup.

A total of 36 former Pennsylvania Conference place winners are expected to compete. Slippery Rock and Clarion each have seven ex-players on their roster while Lock Haven has five, while Bloomsburg, Millersville and East Stroudsburg each have three.

Bloomsburg and/or Lock Haven could seriously threaten Slippery Rock and Clarion for the top two positions this weekend. Millersville and West Chester, both highly regarded earlier have been hampered by injury and illness.

East Stroudsburg, Indiana, Shippensburg and Edinboro all have the potential of jumping up into the upper half of the team finishers while Mansfield, California, and host Kutztown will be battling to move up.

Thirteen of the 14 Pennsylvania Conference schools participate in wrestling. Cheyney is the only school not represented.

The first round of action is scheduled to get underway at 1 o'clock on Friday with the quarter finals slated at 7 o'clock that evening. Semifinals will begin at 1:30 on Saturday with the finals at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

Lock Haven has a 8-7 record under Dr. Ken Cox and the Bald Eagles faced a rugged schedule. LH shows good balance with Tom Parker (10-3) at 126, Gary Walk (14-3) at 142, Dave Crowell (12-8) at 150, George Way (15-8) at 158, Greg Hackenburg (17-2-1) at 167, Art Baker (14-7-1) at 190, and Jim Schuster (15-4-2) at heavyweight.

Eichenlaub, a champ at 150 in '73, placed third at 158 a year ago, while Schuster placed third in '74 and fourth in '73 in the unlimited division. Walk was fifth at 134 a

Street hockey popularity is gaining at Lock Haven

By JOHN JAROCKI
Staff Reporter

A new sport has hit the Lock Haven campus with many persons becoming both interested and involved. Propelled by the success of the Philadelphia Flyers, the Lock Haven Ice Hockey Club, and hockey in general, street hockey is fast becoming the "Little League" of professional hockey.

The craze has already spread nationwide with thousands of people taking part. Lock Haven is no exception as teams are being formed and games are being played.

Street hockey is very similar to ice hockey, except for the obvious difference that street hockey isn't played on ice. Also, there are three 15 minute periods. The only face off comes after a goal is scored with a "tied up" puck being given to the team with the last possession.

Street hockey is as fast and furious as ice hockey and just as enjoyable. The general reaction to the sport is that it is here to stay.

Any floors or persons interested in starting a team or playing some games should contact either Mike Farren, 748-8083 or KDR 748-8923 for information.

Coal would help economy

Rate increases and environmental standards that permit burning of Pennsylvania coal are urgently needed in 1975 if the Commonwealth is to blunt the effects of an economic recession, the state's top electric utility official has predicted.

Higher electric bills are a certainty in the next 12 months, said Walter M. Creitz, president of the Pennsylvania Electric Association (PEA). "But by paying a few dollars today, consumers will eliminate the need to pay more in the decade ahead and insure an adequate supply of electric year ago as was Way at 142. Crowell came in third at 150 too.

Last February, when the tournament was staged at Slippery Rock, Clarion won the title with 250 1/2 points with the Rock second with 129 1/2.

Bloomsburg was third with 80 1/2 followed by East Stroudsburg with 68, Lock Haven with 60 1/2, Millersville with 56 1/2, West Chester with 53 1/2, Edinboro with 46, and Indiana with 43 1/2.

California followed with 17, while Shippensburg scored 6 points, Mansfield had 5, and Kutztown totaled just 4 1/2.

energy," he added.

Politicians who say it can be done any other way are talking through their hats, Creitz stated. "They don't understand economics and maybe that's the reason for the fix we're in today," he said.

According to Creitz, the more than $11 billion cut from utility construction budgets must be restored. "Those deferred or eliminated plants were intended to supply the power Pennsylvania consumers will need in the years ahead," he said.

Despite all the economic mistakes that have been made in the past, it is still a demonstrable fact that improvement in human well-being is tied to a growing supply of electric energy, Creitz said.

If higher rates are not forthcoming, Creitz predicted further layoffs in the electric power industry this year. More than 650 electric utility workers in 1800 workers in supporting industries in 1974.

"Obviously the immediate effect is on the utility workers, his family and the stores, services and other groups in the local community," Creitz explained. "But over the long-term an inadequate supply of electric energy will adversely affect jobs, industry and the entire economy of Pennsylvania. It would be a statewide tragedy if this happens."

attending Lock Haven.

Most of the emphasis is placed on recruiting students from Pennsylvania but students are contacted from out of state also. Besides recruiting new freshmen the Admissions office would like to have 100 transfer students for next fall.

When asked about the acceptance standards of Lock Haven compared to the other state colleges Mr. Coldren said that there has been a decline of student's applications to state colleges statewide. "We are the only state college to have an increase in applications received," said Mr. Coldren. The acceptance standards have had to be relaxed by all Pennsylvania state colleges due to the slack in students applying.
