First SCC open forum enlightening

By Mike Flanagan

A group of students and Student Cooperative Council (SCC) senators attended the first SCC open forum to discuss SCC problems Wednesday night.

Robin Belitsky, an SCC off-campus senator, was one of the students responsible for organizing the open forum. Belitsky was pleased with how the meeting went, although she was disappointed that only about 20 people attended. "People were participating, which is good," Belitsky said, "An open forum can get some things across and people speak more freely."

SCC President John McNamara did not attend the meeting, although he was invited by Belitsky. "I didn't want to go to a kangaroo court with kindergarten allegations," said McNamara.

SCC Senator John Stemler was the moderator of the meeting which lasted two hours. Among the things discussed were the sound system at the SCC movies, the Eagle Wing Snack Bar, the Bookstore, and the Commonwealth Association of Students (CAS).

Student Dan Oppedisano brought up the question of the sound system in Price Auditorium being inadequate. Oppedisano was concerned with who he could contact concerning the repairs of the sound system.

Oppedisano also asked whether or not the bookstore is a service or money-making operation. He noted that the bookstore showed over $22,000 profit at the last SCC meeting.

After the meeting, McNamara said, "The SCC is a non-profit organization, but it's also a student government. The SCC is not only a business but a service. We are going to have to decide what we want to be."

Also discussed at the meeting was the relationship between the SCC and the CAS. Stemler noted that the official SCC constitution is the one in the 1982-83 handbook.

Several problems were also discussed concerning the Eagle Wing Snack Bar. "There is a lot of stealing," Stemler noted, "The equipment is also bad, we need another pizza oven."

SCC Vice-President Brian Lane, who attended the meeting, noted that he stole a cheeseburger in the snack bar a few days ago just to see if he could get away with it. Lane said he later paid for it. "Our main concern at the snack bar is personality conflicts," Lane said.

Lane feels that the open forum is a good idea. "As an executive board member, I feel that this is an excellent idea," said Lane, "If you push this, you can really get something out of it."

Although he did not attend, McNamara feels that the open forum is a good idea. "The executive committee should let the senators be on their own, they should develop their own personality. I'd love to have an office hour for every senator and work together," McNamara said.

"The open forum is designed to listen to viewpoints of the constituents. We want people to air any grievances they have," Stemler said.

An open forum will be held every other Wednesday, alternating with the SCC meetings. The meetings are held in Raub Hall 106 and begin at 6:00 p.m.

New CAS seeking improved relations with SCC

By Dave Prusak

During Monday's night's Commonwealth Association of Students (CAS) meeting, Coordinator Pam Davis stressed the importance of better cooperation between the Student Cooperative Council (SCC) and CAS for the effective operation of the Lock Haven State College (LHSC) CAS chapter.

Davis said that another goal for CAS is to fill four openings on its board. One opening was filled when Dan Oppedisano accepted the vice-coordinator position during the meeting. Remaining positions available are legislative director, chairman of disabled caucus, and chairman of the gay and lesbian caucus.

Davis also brought up the key issue of a possible tuition increase. "I asked the director of financial aid at LHSC, Dr. William Irwin, a series of questions about a possible tuition increase." Davis said she was told by Irwin that approximately 2000 students at LHSC receive financial aid through grants, work study, or campus employment. About fifty percent of their tuition is paid for by these programs.

Davis said that when she asked Irwin if LHSC would be affected by a loss of students due to a rise in tuition he said that LHSC would fill the vacated spots with students who are forced to drop out of larger universities. According to Davis, Irwin said the only thing students can do to protest a possible tuition hike is to write their Congressman.

CAS advisor Ed Clawson said, "There is no way to tell if a tuition increase will occur."

Overall, Davis said, "Our CAS program here at LHSC is slow getting off the ground compared to other colleges. I believe we (LHSC) have the worst participation rate of any state college in Pennsylvania. Students should care about CAS since we all pay two dollars out of our pockets to support it each semester. Through increased student involvement our CAS chapter can improve."

Davis said, "There are three levels of a CAS membership. The first requirement is to be a state college student. The second is to pay the two dollar fee. The third and most important level is to be an active CAS member by attending meetings."

Davis is looking forward to lobbying day on March 15 in Harrisburg. On this day a workshop bringing together all 14 state colleges will provide the opportunity for students to compare their respective CAS programs. Davis said, "Although transportation is a problem, the more students we send will result in better legislation for LHSC."

Davis is looking ahead to membership week in March, which will hopefully attract new CAS members. Also Career Awareness Day is being planned in the near future. This day will especially benefit students wishing to engage in discussions with professors about job opportunities. members will have preference over others in deciding who can attend, according to Davis.

The next CAS meeting will take place at 7 p.m. on Thursday March 3 in the lower level of the Parson's Union Building (PUB). Dr. William Irwin, director of financial aid at LHSC will discuss the possibility of a tuition increase. Mr. Alfred Hoberman, who is a professor at LHSC as well as a city councilman, will speak on downtown housing laws affecting LHSC students.

Mild winter saves administration $

By Marcelo Cancelli

Lower heating bills this winter have provided a $40,000 budget surplus in the area of heating costs for the college, according to George Marshall, vice-president for the administration.

Most of the money comes from the savings on the heating fuel and will be used to buy new instructional materials.

According to Marshall, since the college didn't spend so much on fuel this year, this money will be used to buy new materials mainly for the Science Department. "We really haven't bought much instructional material for a long time and the science department, for example, needs new materials," said Marshall. He referred specifically to laboratory equipment which is where most of the extra money will be going.

"The deans are working on a list of these materials now and we hope to purchase everything that is needed," said Marshall.

At the same time, the plans to repair Lock Haven State College's track are under way, according to Marshall. He said that the money for these repairs was budgeted previously and it has no relation to the $40,000 saved. "Right now we're trying to find out how much it's going to cost us to repair the track. We hope to repair the track as soon as possible so that the track team can have a good place for its use," Marshall said.

DUI law comes into focus

By Kim Wilkinson

The ramifications of the new "drunk driving" law were discussed at the Campus Alcohol Misuse Prevention Service (CAMPS) program on Tuesday night.

According to the speaker, Gail Porrazzo, community education coordinator for the West Branch Drug and Alcohol Commission (WBDAC), the "intent of the law is to get drunk drivers off the road."

Under the new law, a police officer only needs a "reasonable suspicion" of drunk driving before he may stop a driver. Once a driver is stopped, the driver is requested to take a field sobriety test and a pre-breathalyzer test. At the police station, more than one type of test may be required by the officer.

A person may refuse the breathalyzer test, but this will result in suspension of a license for one year, according to Porrazzo.

For the first offense a 48 hour jail sentence and a fine ranging from 300 to 5,000 dollars are two of the penalties. A license will be suspended for one year, and the offender must attend an Alcohol Highway Safety School at his own expense, according to Porrazzo. An alternative for first time offenders only, is the Accelerated Rehabilitative Disposition (ARD) program.

The penalty increases for a second offender to a minimum of 30 days in jail and fines will be increased, according to Porrazzo.

Porrazzo also stressed that students should realize under age drinkers over 17 years of age will be tried as adults.

Although, "some feel the punishment is worse than the crime," said Porrazzo, "how do you put a price on life?"

To be arrested for drunk driving, the driver must have a blood alcohol content of .10, according to Porrazzo. For the average person (150 pounds), he must drink four to six drinks in two hours, she said.

"Our (WBDAC) purpose is to alert and inform the public of the true seriousness and urgency of the drunk driving problem," said Porrazzo, "we can prevent drunk driving by education."

The discussion went "very well," according to Carol Rinalti, director of CAMPS. "It seemed like students who were here, were interested in obtaining information."

From the Editor's desk

Small turnout at forum proves to be enough,

This past Wednesday there was a small gathering of LHSC students in Raub 106 that was intended, as I understand it, to bring about evidence pertaining to the alleged misdeeds of SCC President John McNamara. Actually, a larger attendance was expected, but the small turnout was brought about partially by my failing to run an announcement in last Tuesday's issue of the Eagle Eye, that was intended to publicize the meeting.

In my defense, though, I'm sure a lot of people who did not attend the meeting were informed that it was going to take place. The 23 people who did attend the meeting were not blitzed with allegations against McNamara, but rather, were enlightened as to what can happen when people come together to resolve some differences that are mostly due to some sort of misunderstanding.

If more students were there, including McNamara and PUB Administrator Joe Skarbowski, a lot more would have been accomplished. By accomplished, I mean that the "truth" would have come closer to the surface.

Before I go any further, I would like to pay tribute to a person who I feel had a tremendous amount of effect on the success of the meeting. That person is SCC Vice-President Brian Lane. Lane was the only member of the executive committee that showed up, and he answered all questions with complete honesty. Many of the questions directed towards Lane were beyond his scope of responsibility, though, and had McNamara and Skarbowski been there, those questions could have been better answered.

I could also mention Off-Campus Senator John Stemler. Stemler, who acted as the moderator, also had much to do with the success of the meeting. His knowledge of organized political activity clearly allowed the meeting to not get out of hand. Stemler also commented on certain questions, as his experience pertaining to the SCC is matched by no one on this campus.

Let's proceed. Among the topics discussed were: The SCC movie dilemma (sound system), Lou Alberse, the operations of the SCC, the snack bar and bookstore, and the SCC constitution. These five issues were discussed in a very mature way, and many questions were asked and some were resolved.

The SCC plans to hold meetings such as this every other Wednesday in Raub 106 at 6:00 p.m. These meetings are intended for students to ask questions and to voice their opinion. It should be noted that students are welcome to attend all the regular SCC meetings which are also held every other Wednesday.

Without preaching, I would like to urge students to attend these meetings. Rumors spread like wildfire around here, and if you attend these meetings, you can get the straight scoop.

I know that these meetings aren't as interesting as a lot of other activities, but like it or not, the wheels of the world spin on politics. The SCC is a political unit that has an awful lot to do with what goes on around here, and their actions should not be foreign to the majority of students.

To The Editor

Due to the number of rumors concerning Kappa Delta Rho that are currently circulating around campus, we the brothers of KDR feel we should offer some clarification.

First of all, we have not secured our charter from our national office, and no effort has been made by either party to do so. However, we firmly believe that Kappa Delta Rho is far from dead in Lock Haven.

We are currently in the process of investigating the circumstances behind the revocation of our charter and of our house.

We have been fortunate enough to secure financial and legal help from parties interested in our future, and are now studying the possibility of legal action against the parties involved. What we have uncovered has been very encouraging to our goal, which is to be an active fraternity here at Lock Haven State College.

If the success of our efforts continues at the current pace, we will be in a position to return to an active role in the near future.

Guest Columnist

A word from the top

By Dr. Craig D. Willis
President of LHSC

I am pleased to add my opinions to those that have already been expressed and those that will be expressed.

The good thing about a column like this is that it is good for all of us to be exposed to a diversity of opinions. A raison d'être of the academy is to exchange ideas, opinions, and facts. Such a column can help toward the highest goals of academe.

My main opinion is that Lock Haven State College is an excellent place to learn, to teach, and to live. Like any institution or family, we have problems that need to be worked through from time to time. However, taken as a whole, our well-qualified student body, our dedicated faculty and staff, our fine physical facilities and surroundings, our attention to the baccalaureate degree solely, our diversity of academic programs, our emphasis on learning about people in other countries, our variety of extracurricular activities, and our relatively low cost as a state college add up to a fine experience for all of us who participate.

I am concerned that we do not always get our positive message across to constituencies who could help us financially in these troubled economic times. I hope we can do better in this area in the future.

I have gleaned the above opinions and facts from talking with faculty, staff, students, alumni/ae, and friends. Of the few negative criticisms I have heard, I have found that sometimes the person has not participated fully in our positive attributes. I urge students in particular to attend, participate, and do the work concerned with classes, and to seek out faculty and staff members for advice and counsel. Also, I urge students to participate in our international programs, become acquainted with international students and, if possible, plan an international experience as part of The Haven experience. Living in another culture can be a valuable addendum to a student's undergraduate years.

If you want to be a guest columnist, contact me at 893-2334 or 893-3004 or just drop off your column at the Eagle Eye.

Lady Eagle cagers hold off Bloomsburg, 77-67; Miller completes successful basketball career

By Dave Prusak

The Lock Haven State College (LHSC) women's basketball team finished their regular season on a high note by defeating league rival Bloomsburg State 77-67, in Thomas Field House, Tuesday night.

The game held special interest because it highlighted two significant hoop performers in the Pennsylvania Conference. One player was Lady Eagle senior forward Sandy Miller who played her last game in an LHSC uniform. Miller had an impressive college career which included a 12.6 scoring average and a 6.9 rebounding average. Miller leaves the 'Haven' with a total of 946 points scored. The other player was Bloomsburg State freshman forward Jean Millen, whose brother Matt happens to be a former All-American linebacker at Penn State, currently playing that position for the National Football League's Los Angeles Raiders. The Millen of the hardwoods entered the game pacing the Huskies in scoring and rebounding.

The game was an excellent example of fundamental team basketball by both squads. The Lady Eagles, while challenged throughout, led from start to finish in a fitting conclusion to a 12-10 campaign, which looked better on the courts than on paper.

Freshman guard Chris Agresta nailed the game's first shot on a short jumper with 19:39 left on the first half clock to give LHSC a lead they would never relinquish. LHSC broke out to a 14-6 lead on a Helen Woltman basket with 14:08 left. In the next few minutes the Huskies closed to within a point on two occasions.

Baskets by the well balanced Lady Eagle scoring quartet of Miller, Woltman, Agresta, and Tina Martin kept the Huskies at bay. The Lady Eagles led by 10 points at three junctions in the first half, including 39-29 at the intermission.

In the second half the Lady Eagles grabbed their biggest advantage of the evening, 12 points, when Miller hauled down a rebound and raced the length of the court before hitting a layup with 18:10 left. LHSC then maintained a five to ten point lead the rest of the way. The same quartet of Miller, Woltman, Agresta, and Martin paced the 'Haven' in the second half. LHSC playmaking guard Sue Kuhn added seven second half markers.

The Lady Eagles were led by freshman guard Martin who ripped the cords for 24 points. Miller had 17, Woltman canned 13, and Agresta contributed 12 to complete the double figure scores. The Huskies were paced by Diane Alfonsi's 16 points. Also in double figures were Millen with 14, Hilarie Runyou with 12, and Kris Zimmerman with 11.

On the season Martin led the Lady Eagles with 178 field goals, 395 points, and an 18 point scoring average. Agresta's 82 percent average from the free throw line was high for the team.

The Lady Eagles finished the season by scoring an average of 74.2 points a game, while allowing 73.5 points a game. The Lady Eagles were impressive 8-2 at home, but were only 4-8 on the road. The Lady Eagles may receive a bid for the Eastern AIAW tournament depending on a decision by a Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) committee.

Swimmers competing in state meet

By Kevin Campbell
Sports Editor

The Lock Haven State women's swimming team will be competing at the state meet in West Chester this weekend, and although expectations for a high team finish are not great, many strong individual performances are anticipated.

Five swimmers and two divers will compete in the meet for head coach Nan Wood's Lady Eagles. Perhaps the greatest hopes for an individual championship rests on the shoulders of Jane Kimmerly. Kimmerly, who has performed strongly for the Lady Eagles all season, will be competing in the 50 yard free style, 100 yard freestyle, and the Free Relay.

Also swimming for Lock Haven in the meet is Maura Kenny. The Lady Eagle sophomore will be swimming in the 50 yard breaststroke, the 200 yard breaststroke, and the medley relay.

Senior Gay Vellekamp will be performing in her final state meet of her career. Vellekamp will swim in the 50 yard butterfly, the 100 yard butterfly, the Medley relay, and the Free Relay.

The other two swimmers for the Lady Eagles are Mary Jackson and Chris Weighand. Jackson will perform in the 200 yard breaststroke, 50 yard backstroke, and Medley Relay, while Weighand will swim in the Free Relay.

Divers Darlene Birney and Jan Shehan will also be competing as well. Birney, a Bald Eagle sophomore, has already qualified for the national meet in California. The divers are under the coaching of Stacy Meurell.

The team does not expect to challenge for the championship, but is anticipating some outstanding individual performances.

"Each individual will just try to do the best they can do," said junior Mary Jackson.

The meet will be the final chance for the swimmers to qualify for the national meet.

ROTC scholarships offered

"Yes, Army ROTC does have four-year scholarships to offer to qualified high school graduates. We've had those since 1964, and we awarded them to almost 1100 freshmen entering college this school year. But that really doesn't compare to the number of scholarships we have to offer to men and women already enrolled in college," explained Major Ken Johnson of the ROTC Department.

"Everyone may not understand that legislation passed several years ago authorized us to increase the number of scholarships from 6500 to 12,000. We chose to put most of the scholarship money in shorter-term scholarships. This means there are more scholarship programs for those already enrolled in ROTC as well as for those who aren't," he added.

"A lot of students who come to talk with us are taking a lot closer look at Army ROTC than ever before. There's been a steady growth in ROTC enrollment not only at our school but also across the nation as well. One important reason, and I can certainly understand why, is our scholarship program, which I believe is among the best," he noted.

ROTC Scholarships are based strictly on merit—not financial need—and are aimed at attracting the best students. Financial benefits are impressive. Covered are such major costs as tuition, lab fees, textbooks and certain educational expenses. There is also what the Army calls a subsistence allowance of $100 per month for a maximum of $1200 each academic year the scholarship is in effect.

For freshmen and sophomore students who are interested, now is the time to act! Applications are now being accepted for next year's scholarships at the ROTC office in Bentley Hall.

Play portrays quack

by Andrew Ashenfelter

A somewhat different look at the medical profession will be shown March 10-12 at 8:00 p.m. in Sloan Auditorium when the College Players present Dr. Knock, Jules Romains' comedy-satire, as their spring mainstage production, directed by Dr. Denys Gary.

Whereas last semester's play Whose Life Is It Anyway? was a serious portrayal of medical ethics, Dr. Knock offers an example of medical quackery at its finest in the form of a clever, smooth-talking charlatan named Doctor Knock.

At the start of the play Knock (Chris Oeste) sets up practice in a small rural town at a practice fairly given to him by the former physician Dr. Parpalaid (David Hullhorst), who is relieved to get rid of it. The tiny community is so backwards in the ways of medicine that its citizens believe a microbe to be a "kind of insect." However, the townspeople are soon affected by the force of Knock's philosophy which includes such revelations as, "Health is a word we could just as well erase from our vocabularies," and before long an unusual reign of medicine begins in the little hamlet.

Also appearing in the cast are Keith Wilson, Nancy Compton, Marcelo Cancelli, Andrew Ashenfelter, Diane Hruska, Kidist Asrat, Joanne Billinghamurst, Scott Porter, Robb Warren, Tracy Swisler, Edison Culver, Lori Schaller, and Wendy Piney.
