Hypnotist Gil Eagles will perform on Thursday night.

Hypnotist Gil Eagles will be back to dazzle crowd

By Kim Wilkinson

Gil Eagles, hypnotist and mentalist, will be "back by popular demand," according to LaCrenda Young, co-chairperson of the Cultural Affairs Committee.

Eagles will be performing on Thursday at 8 p.m. in Price Auditorium. Admission to the event is free, with no identification necessary.

The evening's activities will include a combination of extra-sensory perception (E.S.P.), hypnotism and total audience participation. Eagles is noted for using volunteers from his audience in the show.

Gary Interdonato, SCC President, said that last year Eagles took 12 volunteers from the audience and gave them hypnotic suggestions.

"His use of audience participation is on a volunteer basis," Interdonato explained, "with good taste and his respect for the privacy and dignity of the volunteer always taking priority."

In his 20 years of performing, Eagles has appeared in over 4,000 settings. He has received rave reviews from over 600 colleges and universities, and has expanded the program into the business setting. The performer is a popular television and radio program guest as well.

Eagles is the only hypnotist and mentalist to be awarded The National Academy of Variety Artists prestigious "Mike Award" as the best international specialty and novelty attraction.

More than one thousand colleges and universities in the National Association for Campus Activities awarded the hypnotist the "Campus Activities Award" as the most outstanding College Lecture Program.

A year ago Eagles dazzled the audience with his ability to identify coins in the pockets of audience members. He identified the serial numbers of dollar bills and performed other mystifying acts.

"It's a three hour show," added Interdonato. "Overall it's great. Those who missed it last year should be sure to see it this time."

Governmental review may force federally funded writing, math centers to be limited in use

By Rocco Pallotto

The use of the federally-funded writing and math centers may soon be limited to Special Service students as a result of a review by the government last summer.

"Special service" students are those who are economically and/or educationally disabled. Of the approximate 2600 student enrollment, only about 154 or six percent considered special service.

"We had our program reviewed by the U.S. Department of Education," said Writing Center Director Carolyn Perry. "We found out that our giving help to any student who asked for it was in violation of the federal grant."

The government has now given the special service program until February 15 to let it know how they are going to correct the situation.

Lock Haven University President, Dr. Craig Willis said that the government is just interested in seeing that the centers serve the group they are intended to serve.

Perry said that there has never been any conflict in serving all students who asked for help.

"We had been helping the students we were supposed to help and many others," she said. "The special service students are not only ones who need writing help."

Last year total of 1619 students used the two centers, now in their fifth year, and of these, only 147, or nine percent, were special service.

The math center tested and evaluated 800 students last year for placement into math courses, 46 of those being special service. The center may no longer be able to aid the math department in student placement in the capacity it once served.

Bruce Skolnick, director of Special Services, said that the government is not taking any action against the program, only asking for the situation to be corrected. He said the evaluator did praise the program when he visited, however.

Both Willis and Skolnick declined comment on whether the university would come up with its own program, saying they are still looking at the situation. Skolnick did say, however, that anything he could do would keep as many students involved in the program as possible, however, but they have to remain in compliance with the grant.

He also said that he may have more answers in a week or so, since the news was just announced this past Thursday.

So, according to Skolnick, it's "business as usual at least until the 15th of February. There is potential for change, but two weeks is a lot of time."

These two students find the sledding to be fun as they make their way down the snow covered hill behind Smith Hall.

Bureaucrats hinder center

The bureaucracy involved in the higher education system never ceases to amaze me.

The Federal government has begun to enforce the special service requirements that students must meet before they are eligible to receive help from the tutorial services on campus. (This includes the Writing Center and the Math Service.)

The requirements are so specialized that only about 150 of the 2600 students at LHU will be able to use the services.

Where does this leave "Joe Average Student"? No longer will Mrs. Perry and her staff be able to help raise that C paper to a B. What if he needs help with comma splices, wants a knowledgeable person to proof-read his research paper or needs help with his fractions? Tough Luck. Joe better have some smart friends to help get him by or his professors will be spending greater amounts of time grading his papers and tests.

Why should a majority of students suffer? We ALL pay tuition and ALL of our parents pay taxes.

What right does the government have to discriminate against a person because he is NOT from a low income family or he is NOT the first generation in his family to go to college?

Everyone needs help once in awhile. College is supposed to be a learning experience. If you can't get outside help here, where can you?

This particular institution boasts of a tutorial service in its catalog. It does not list the requirements a student has to meet to use these facilities.

Everyone is going to suffer from these decisions unless some type of action is taken. Speak to your professors and the administration. Circulate petitions. Perhaps the administration can come up with sufficient funds to help those of us who are not "special."

"A Nation at Risk": Philosophy of Education

After reading the conclusions and recommendations of an 18-member commission on education, appointed by Secretary Terrel H. Bell, to examine the quality of education in our country, I present my philosophy of education as follows:

We have a basic responsibility to our most vital resources--our youth and our educational institutions. Our responsibility to education is reflected in our institutions in the way we set about developing those institutions and the minds that pass through them.

Since the challenge of Sputnik, we (referring to every sector of responsibility: government, educators, private sector, professional and community organizations, parents and students) have allowed a rising tide of mediocrity in education to claim increasing numbers of youth who do not possess the levels of skill, literacy, and training essential to function competently and productively in the marketplace and in this nation as a people. Ironically, not all of these youth are minorities, but most of them are. To paraphrase the Commission's Report, ... the educational foundations of our society are presently threatening our very future as a nation and as a people. According to the Commission's Report, for the first time in the history of our country, the educational skills of one generation will not surpass--will not equal--not even approach--those of their parents.

The urgency of the state of education signals a clarion call for educational reform based on the following goals:

1. A paramount goal is a strong continued public commitment to the twin goals of equitable treatment for the nation's diverse population and for quality schooling. One must not yield to the other. Educating all our students to their fullest must be the goal of every educational institution. Blacks and other minorities must not be locked in or limited by inequitable education, programs, or opportunities.

2. A second goal that must not be overlooked is that of creating a learning society that is committed to a set of values and to a system of education that affords all members the opportunity to stretch their minds to full capacity from early childhood through adulthood, learning more as the world changes itself.

Where does one begin to implement the above mentioned goals? One begins to implement them by addressing what ails our present educational system. Our educational system suffers in four major areas, and calls for reform, but not without effective leadership in mobilizing the raw materials necessary to improve education. The major areas of educational deficiency are in content, expectation, time, and teaching. Secondary and post-secondary institutions of education must strengthen basic requirements in areas of general education. Schools, colleges, and universities must adopt more rigorous and measurable standards and higher expectations for academic performance and student conduct; furthermore, four year colleges and universities must raise their requirements for admission. Thus, programs like EOP must continue to rise to the challenge of preparing and motivating our youth for more rigorous performance and success in college. More time needs to be devoted to learning new basic skills. Nine weeks or eighteen weeks, sometimes, may not be enough time for some learners, especially minorities, but with programs like EOP, crucial and essential "time" for learning can be facilitated. Finally, teaching needs to be made a more rewarding and respected profession through requirements of those entering the teaching profession, competitive salaries, eleven-month contracts, career ladders, non-school personnel resources in areas of teacher shortage, incentives to attract outstanding students to teaching programs, and supervision of teachers during probationary periods.

A start to address any one or all of the aforementioned concerns would certainly help or begin to arrest the decay of the educational process in our society. The declining trend in education has resulted more from weakness of purpose, confusion of vision, underuse of talent and lack of leadership than from conditions beyond our control. The decline in education has also resulted from inadequate fiscal support. If education is top priority and if the economic and social well-being of the nation depends upon the success of education, then we must pay for education by making it a number one priority in federal and state budgets, thus furthering the missions of programs like EOP in their thrusts to gain quality education and equitable opportunities for minorities to compete in the marketplace and to live full, productive lives in this great nation of ours, for the greatness of our nation depends on the greatness of every individual within it.

Wrestlers open EWL with impressive win

By Dave Walters

Wins by Dicky Howell (118), Tom Kreamer (142), Jody Karam (167), and Rick Petersen (Hwt.) led the Bald Eagle wrestling team to a 21-18 victory over 15th ranked Clarion Saturday in front of a capacity crowd at Thomas Field House. The wrestlers will be going for their second Eastern Wrestling League win tomorrow against Bloomsburg.

Head coach Neil Turner noted the importance of tomorrow's match. "Every Eastern Wrestling League meet is important," he said. "The Bloom match has added significance because they are an hour away and the winner gets bragging rights of the valley."

"It's a tremendous challenge for us to know we are going to Bloom and into a hostile environment. I love to wrestle under those conditions. I think it challenges you as a coach and it challenges your athletes. If you can win under those conditions, then you know you've got it together."

"I think a student following will really help the team. A big following at Bloom will assist us."

The fans that came out to see the Clarion match got their money's worth as they saw the lead switch hands seven times. In the end it was the Bald Eagles on top.

At 118 Howell (26-9) faced Golden Eagle Randy Richard (17-5) for the opening bout. Richard came out very aggressive and scored a two point takedown. Howell answered back about a minute later with an escape. Richard then put Howell on the mat again for two more points. The second period belonged to Howell as he tied the score at five. A penalty point was awarded to Richard as a result of a questionable stalling call two seconds into the period. Howell came alive and put Richard on his back for two near fall points with 13 seconds remaining in the bout, en route to a 7-6 victory.

Freshman Jeff Husick (18-13-1) went up against Golden Chris Mary (7-4-1) at 126. Both freshmen went scoreless during the first period and came out fighting in the second. Mary lit up the scoreboard first with an escape. He was awarded a penalty point because of stalling by Husick, and gained another for riding time to shut out the Bald Eagle wrestler 3-0. "I've got to improve on the bottom," said Husick. "That was one of my biggest faults in the bouts."

At 134 sophomore Willy Metzger (20-15) lost a 5-0 decision to Paul Clark (19-4). Clark's points came on a takedown, an escape, and riding time. At this point LHU trailed 6-3.

Senior Kreamer (21-9) put the Bald Eagles back into the hunt as he won a five point decision over Jim Georgevich (5-6).

mage at the Bethune-Douglas CC on Feb. 13th in preparation for the remaining invitationals before the Easterns, when we must peak, both physically and mentally," concluded Dr. Cox. The ECBA-N Tournament will be held at the Thomas Field House on March 22nd and 23rd.

Eagles swim over Juniata, 88-41

Jan Pechart and Jackie Thomas captured three first place finishes to pace the Lady Eagle swimmers over Juniata College Saturday.

The victory gives the team a 3-4-1 slate, as they prepare for Lycoming tomorrow in Williamsport. The team will return home Saturday to entertain Edinboro.

Pechart and Thomas both swam on the 200 medley relay team which captured a first place in 2:24.28. Tracy Holm and Sandy Kozden were the other two swimmers in that victory.

Thomas also captured the 100 backstroke in 1:18.54 and the 200 backstroke in 2:52.16, while Pechart won the 200 butterfly in 2:56.45 and the 100 butterfly in 1:16.58.

Holm also captured the 200 individual medley in 2:54.84 to aid in the win. Darlene Birney took first in both the required and optional one meter diving, amassing 334.65 points in the optional event.

First place finishes were also recorded by Laura Carathanasis, 200 freestyle, 2:34.30; Jenny Sinclair, 100 breaststroke, 1:32.24; Joanne Eghigian, 200 breaststroke, 3:16.35, and the 200 freestyle relay team of Jenny Quiggle, Dwyn Zaharis, Atsuko Kitagawa and Lori Deem.

Second place finishes were recorded by Amy Nailor, 800 freestyle, 11:48.48; Eghigian, 100 breaststroke, 1:32.59; Deem, 200 butterfly, 3:13.22, and 400 freestyle, 5:54.46; Holm, 200 backstroke, 2:58.04 and Carathanasis, 100 butterfly, 1:21.31.

Icers start season with two big victories

By Dave Walters

The Lock Haven University Ice Hockey Club opened their Nittany Hockey League season with two wins this past weekend.

In the opener on Saturday against the Wizards, the Bald Eagles outscored their opponent 4-3 at the Penn State Arena.

Defenseman John Gridley popped one in the net within the first minute to put the Eagle stickmen on top, 1-0.

Sophomore Lenny Brockman added to his fellow defenseman's goal with a breakaway shot past the opposing goalie.

Before the midway point, sophomore transfer Don Lawson put yet another goal past the Wizard goaltender. Lawson said, "I just dumped the puck toward the net and it went in. I didn't expect it to."

Brockman scored the game winning goal

Kreamer fell behind in the early going, 6-3, but came back and scored 16 unanswered points for a 19-6 victory. Of those 16 points, nine were back points, which gave Kreamer plenty of chances to show Georgevich what the ceiling of the Field House looked like.

At 150 Brad Lloyd (21-9) was out to revenge his 10-0 loss to Ken Haselrig at PSAC's. After a scoreless second period, Haselrig took control of the third and outscored Lloyd 3-1 for a 6-3 victory. Lloyd said, "I think I did a lot better, but I have to work on getting out of the bottom. I wanted to win bad; maybe at EWL's."

Bryon Benner (22-13) got a rematch against Adam Cochran (8-13) and still couldn't get the Golden Eagle's number as he fell 8-2 in the 158 pound bout. Benner's only points came on a takedown late in the third period. Clarion took a 12-8 lead in the match.

Karam (28-6-1) came through in the clutch for the Bald Eagles to put the Eagles on top 14-12. The sophomore grappler put LHU back on top with a technical fall over Jim Flaherty (6-8). Karam dominated throughout the bout and proved himself to be a force to be reckoned with. "I felt great at this weight and I work out better," said Karam. "I want to thank Doug Buckwalter for coming out in the morning to workout with me, and I'd like to thank my Lord Savior Jesus Christ for my performance. I'm just working hard to go to Nationals."

Junior Greg Wykoff (21-8-1) came to a 1-1 deadlock against Scott Hall (13-11-1). Both wrestlers scored escapes late in the match. Wykoff explained that the tie was a result of "conflicting styles."

Clarion's Jim Beichner (24-0) put the Golden Eagles back on top 18-16 with a 10-2 major decision over Ty Hall (21-8-1). Hall's points came on two escapes.

It was then all up to Petersen (28-3) to pull out the victory with a win over Kirk Butryn (12-7). The Clarion heavyweight came out very aggressive and took the number one ranked wrestler down to the mat, but after that he didn't have a prayer. Petersen went on to capture a 20-6 victory. "I felt slow in the first period," Petersen said. "I got my head together and came back."

"I think individually some of the guys performed up to their potential, but I thought there were a couple of bouts that we weren't up to our potential," said Turner. "I thought it was a very hard fought match and Clarion was very well prepared. We were disappointed that we only got four bouts and a tie."

Boxers fight at Penn State

On Saturday night, LHU's All-American boxer, Steve Greber, 156, won a hard earned 3-0 decision over tough Steve Brace, Central Connecticut, in the featured bout at the annual Penn State University Invitational Intercollegiate Boxing championship in the White Gymnasium. Greber, a junior southpaw, had to use much boxing 'savvy' against the tough Central Connecticut senior.

Five eastern boxing schools were represented on the eleven card invitational. Shippensburg University could not compete because of the weather conditions, forcing three cancellations for LHU boxers, including two-time 'All-American' Tim Frymyer, 112; John Morrin, 172, and Renay Dowdell, 180. Morrin, an experienced sophomore from Philadelphia, decisioned Dowdell, a promising freshman from Syracuse, N.Y. in an exhibition.

Three "Haven" novice boxers suffered defeat. Jimmy Connors, Central Connecticut won a hard-earned decision over improving freshman Martin Brewer, 3-0, at 139 pounds. Novice 178 pounder, Brett Stevens, a junior, lost a RSC at 1:10 in the second round to PSU's Joe Pillari. Geoff Glenn, a senior and in his first college bout, lost a RSC at 0:55 of the 3rd round to the Nittany Lions Tim McCauley.

According to Dr. Ken Cox, the Bald Eagles displayed very good boxing skill, but must now seriously begin concentrating on condition. "We spend the first half of the season perfecting technique and emphasizing ring generalship, but it's now time for Coach Ken Cooper to begin the serious physical conditioning phase of the program," continued Dr. Cox.

"We're scheduled to box in a full scrimlate in the game to put the Bald Eagles spell on the Wizards.

Goalie Andy Heffron saved 37 shots for the winning cause.

During the second game of the twinbill, the Eagles outlasted the Flyers, 7-6.

Sophomores Brockman and Doug Rutter scored two goals apiece to lead the attack.

Freshmen Mark Colangelo, Chad Pesonchik and Scott Wagner added one goal each. Wagner put the puck by the goalie for the game winner.

Heffron saved 28 more shots.

Team player President Doug Kiss has a very optimistic view of this season. Kiss said, "We've got some really dedicated athletes on this team and we hope to be a team to be reckoned with in the league."
