Salisbury Warns

China: Key to World Future

The fate of the world quite possibly could depend on the future relationships between Russia, China, and the United States. "We either have a choice of getting along together or destroying ourselves," warned Harrison Salisbury, assistant managing editor of the New York Times last evening.

According to Salisbury, China looms as the key to the situation because of its already large population, for she must expand - and she will.

China's population is expanding at the rate of 25 million per year, and by the year 2000 will total one third of the world's population.

Food Production Can't Keep Up

This country's food production presently cannot keep up with its vast population growth, thus necessitating the need for more land.

So long as they are confronted with this problem, Salisbury said, "China will not stand by and let pestilence, war, disease and famine resolve their difficulties."

Presently China cannot produce enough food for its vast population and imports a half billion dollars worth of food per year.

Geographically China can only expand into Russia to alleviate their food problem, which would cause an armed confrontation between the two powers.

Ultimately this conflict would pull the United States into a nuclear war, simply because of its status as a world power. In order to avoid such a devastating conflict, Salisbury proposed that nations producing a food surplus pool their surpluses into a world food bank. He referred to this as "a common program for the common good."

Alludes to Overpopulation

He alluded to the fact that nations like the U. S. do not reach their full potential capacity for food production. Accelerated production by such nations should result in a large enough surplus to feed underdeveloped nations such as China and India.

Although such a program would not solve all the problems orbiting around the China question, it would, said Salisbury, "strike at the heart of the ulcer." Salisbury suggested that population controls would have to be effected by all nations desiring to draw from a world food bank.

China's efforts at population control have been largely ineffective because of its lack of technology in birth control methods and insufficient money to institute a wide-ranging program. He feels that China would be receptive to outside help in solving its population problem.

Food and Expansion One Aspect

Salisbury called food and expansion on the Asian continent only one aspect of the tense international situation.

In a brief summation of Sino-Soviet relations, Salisbury expounded upon the nature and reasons for their conflict. He stated that the two nation's geographic proximity was a major factor in their volatile relations, in addition to their historical antagonisms.

He explained that Russia is presently the only power occupying lands on the Asian continent once belonging to China, intensifying centuries-old hostilities.

An additional source of friction between the two countries, stated Salisbury, is their basic differences in Communist political doctrine.

Oriental-Hitlerism Charged

Russia charges that Communism has been driven from China by Mao's brand of "oriental-Hitlerism." By taking his cause to the rural areas, Mao defied basic Marxist principle, stating that the revolution must take place in the urban industrialized areas.

The Pulitzer prize winner stated that a Chinese Communist related to him that there is no communist regime in Russia, that they are on the path to capitalism in partnership with Wall Street.

Salisbury referred to ongoing negotiations between Russia and China as being "a bit less successful than our own Paris peace talks." On another diplomatic front, Salisbury called upon the U. S. to support China's entry into the United Nations, in an effort to involve all the great powers in world decision-making. "It is

Evaluation In Progress

The Middle States Accreditation Team arrived in Lock Haven Sunday night, and began their evaluation of Lock Haven State College Monday.

The evaluation committee, headed by Albert W. Brown, consists of two other members, Oscar E. Lanford and Margaret Healy. The group received reports approximately two months ago; these reports are the product of two years of self-study of the programs, educational techniques and the physical plant of LHS. The committee is on campus, meeting with students and faculty.

In addition to the committee, twelve teachers and administrators from other schools will be observing the campus for their own personal benefit.

The Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is an independent organization of educational institutions and agencies established for the improvement and development of educational institutions, relationships and services. The association covers schools in New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, and Washington, D.C.

Student Spotlight

"Theatre at LHS is a growing thing" observed Carol 'Corky' Gudson who, together with Maura Schuck, produced 'Rumpelstiltskin,' last week in Price Auditorium. Filled to near capacity at each performance, the auditorium resounded with delighted laughter of the hundreds of children attending. Commenting on the play Miss Gudson said, 'We had excellent cooperation from all of the cast.'

A senior majoring in English, Miss Gudson has worked extensively on numerous plays on campus. Involved in various facets of production she served as stage manger for 'Major Barbara,' designer for 'Hansel and Gretel' and 'Winnie the Pooh,' and director of last summer's production of 'Firebugs.'

Miss Schuck has also had a wide range of experience on stage. A junior majoring in theatre, she has to her credit the portrayal of Lady MacBeth in Reader's Theatre, and Gretel in 'Hansel and Gretel.' She was set designer for 'Public Eye and Private Ear.'

Future plans? Miss Gudson hopes to go on to graduate school to obtain her masters degree in theatre. Miss Schuck plans to pursue a career in Children's Theatre and possibly to 'form a traveling puppet show in the back of a Volkswagen bus.'

These 'amazing fellows' are currently working the lights for Dr. Robert Kidder's two one-act plays 'The Death of Bessie Smith' and 'Picnic on a Battlefield.'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TO THE EDITOR:

To the people who run campus buildings on weekends:

Why is it that a primarily physical education college with a new multi-million gym insists on constantly screwing the average student who would like to work out in the gym with a basketball? One Thursday several weeks ago suddenly turned into a holiday due to the snow. Are the college administrators so naive as to think that all the students will sit in their rooms all day and study? What's the hassle? The fieldhouse has some good reason year round to keep us out (basketball team practice, wrestling team practice, baseball practice, intramural wrestling). I'm all for these things but why on almost any weekend (especially Sundays) when a fellow wants to exercise his body as well as his mind, is he forced to go into a gym (Rodgers) at least 90 years old with the worst lighting facilities? He has to hope that not every fraternity decided to work out at once and that the fellows on the gymnastic equipment are done. We don't want to bust up anything, all we would like is a chance to make use of the 3 gyms (7 full courts) instead of one old broken down, warped, over-crowded excuse for a gym. Is it asking too much to make this facility available to our free time needs? I was always taught at Lock Haven that the schools should tailor themselves for the needs of the students, how about cutting us a break? Some of the average students are trying not to become fat and lazy.

Respectfully,

TO THE EDITOR:

We, the Libertarians, would like to take this opportunity to express our thanks to THE PEOPLE for their undying support in March 8th's SCC elections. We would also like to thank those who are responsible for the daily destruction of our Libertarian signs, for that action proves to us that some actually fear the Libertarian movement. It, however, is not a movement to be feared; rather it is a movement to be embraced by ALL THE PEOPLE!

Finally, we would like to say that we had a great time running for the SCC; in fact, we had such an enjoyable time that we plan to run again next year. We doubt that we will win because we are FREE and there are so few of us on this campus. In addition, in order for us to win there would have to be a FREE election and we doubt that will ever happen because that's ANARCHY, my friend.

There is no such thing as A TENDER TRAP

Consider the raccoon — one of the earth's friendliest, most lovable creatures. He is part of the woodland lore and wonder of nature. Favorite children's stories endow him with almost human qualities along with the otter, the fox, the beaver, the muskrat and other forest dwellers.

Trapping animals like the raccoon is neither a friendly nor lovable occupation. Forty million leg-hold traps are set out continuously in the United States and Canada alone. The cruel, jagged-toothed traps can crunch an animal's leg, leaving him to bleed, suffer and starve for days before the trapper comes to deal the final death blow. The animals are so agonized that they often chew off their own feet.

It takes forty raccoons to make one coat for a human. Yet hundreds of defenseless animals may die before those forty pelts are collected. The traps snap at anything — turtles, eagles, groundhogs, porcupines, dogs and cats. A trap doesn't have any feeling about that... and neither does a trapper.

You, too, can help in the crusade to stop the vicious killing of animals that keep our environment alive and give joy to our children. You can refuse to wear the skins of animals for prestige or pleasure. You can speak out against these ungodly trapping practices in the name of the animals that still survive. And you can make a TAX DEDUCTIBLE CONTRIBUTION to Friends of Animals which is doing something constructive about this wanton destruction. DO IT NOW and feel better immediately — in the knowledge that you are helping to preserve our natural wildlife heritage — for your children and their children.
