

May First To Bring Big Things On Campus

LOCK HAVEN—May Day promises to be the highlight of the busy centennial year at Lock Haven State College with a dedication, the inauguration of the president, a centennial ball, and hundreds of parents visiting the campus.

Plans for the centennial ball were announced this week by co-chairmen Beatrice Brown and Alfred Hoberman. To be held on May 1 from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. in Bentley Hall, the ball will honor Dr. Francis N. Hamblin, who will be inaugurated as president of the college at 2 p.m. that afternoon. Music will be furnished by the Jack Purcell Orchestra of Pittsburgh. Tickets are available to the public from Mrs. Brown or Mr. Hoberman.

A special program of events is being prepared by Dean of Women, Evelyn Nicholson for the hundreds of parents who are being invited to the day-long activities.

At 11 a.m., a marker designating the location of the original Central State Normal School building will be dedicated. Guest speakers will be Dr. Hugh Williamson, professor of chemistry, and Dr. F. Clark Skelly, Dean of Instruction Emeritus.

At 2 p.m. in Price Auditorium, Dr. Hamblin will be inaugurated as the eleventh president of the college. The investiture ceremony will be performed by Dr. David H. Kurtzman, Pennsylvania's Secretary of Education. Miss Rebecca Gross will deliver the address.

Following the inauguration, a reception will be held on the grounds of the president's home for guests, parents, and visitors.

Folklorists Performed

Lock Haven State College was treated to a "first" last Thursday in Ulmer Planetarium at 2 p.m. when the National Humanities Series presented folklorist Dick Albin and his folksinger wife, Anne, in excerpts from Chaucer's "The Canterbury Tales."

Commenting after the performance Mrs. Albin apologized for a "fuzzy" performance explaining that this was the first time "The Canterbury Tales" was performed for the Humanities Series.

A shakey presentation of the Nun's Priest's Tale was followed by Mrs. Albin's excellent reading of the Wife of Bath's Tale. Both combined their efforts for a humorous reading of the Merchant's Tale. In what was educational as well as entertaining, the Albins tied music and folklore by singing such old English ballads as "Our Good Man," an early version of "Scarborough Fair" and Buffy St. Marie's version of "Sir Patrick Spens" after each reading. They accompanied themselves on handmade dulcimers.

Albin refers to himself and his wife as the last descendants of the House of Atreus. Just as the Greek and Roman literature of the House of Atreus covered every known genre, Albin believes his purpose is to codify and present what he believes is a universal body of folklore. As an example of this universal folklore, Albin presented in original dialect, as a final reading, an Ozark Mountain version of the Miller's Tale.

Faculty Lecture

On Culture

LOCK HAVEN—'Conflict in Cultures: Africa and Europe' will be the topic discussed by Dr. Michael W. Peplow, associate professor of English at Lock Haven State College, this evening at 8 p.m. in Bentley Hall lounge, open to the public without charge.

Dr. Peplow spent two and a half years, 1967 to 1969, in Nigeria as a teacher for the University of Wisconsin. He taught high school English as a second language to Nigerians and a course in African literature.

In tonight's Humanities Faculty Lecture, he will examine the conflict between African and European culture, as shown in African literature, from the time of colonial occupation up to the present-day period of independence. The lecture will be supported by color slides and African music. Mr. Ezell-Monts, a black student at LHS, will perform dramatic readings from African literature.

Dr. Peplow is a 1962 graduate of Arizona State University, and received his M. A. in 1964 and his Ph. D. in 1966 from Texas Christian University. He is currently teaching a course in black literature, both African and American, at LHS.

His article about a Nigerian folk tale, 'A Dream of King Marapaka,' appeared in the Summer 1970 issue of 'African Arts,' published by the University of California's African Studies Center. He is also the author of two books on the teaching of English as a second language, published by Collier-Macmillan.

Fiscal Crisis

Hits LHS

Most of us thought or at least hoped fiscal crisis in Pennsylvania would not touch us here at Lock Haven State College. However, a recent turn of events has shown that college students both state-wide and at LHS are being effected by the state's financial difficulties.

The cutback in Work Study and Campus Employment is only the first instance of crisis leveled on LHS students. What will be next?

Both the Work Study and Campus Employment programs have been cut by 50%. As the money situation stands now, there is enough money to last through March of 1971, at the present rate of spending. After that the funds would be depleted.

Therefore, no new employees may be hired. No time sheets will be accepted with more than 15 hours for every two week period, for Work Study, this is effective February 18, 1971. For Campus Employment the date is March 4.

Through reductions in other areas of expenditures in the College, it is hoped the student employment cut will be held at a minimum.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

With the election date (March 8) one week away it would seem most probable that the student populous would now be forming opinions as to who to vote for. At the same time a rationale should be devised as to why you made the choice you did. With the formulation of a pragmatic rationale in mind we would now like to set forth a series of questions which each voter should ask himself before making his or her choice in the upcoming SCC elections. Look at the questions and then look at the slates:

1. Which candidates will be able to promote truly responsible government?
2. Which candidates have proven their qualifications by the fruits of their labors?
3. Which candidates will be the most conscientious in their efforts to meet the needs of ALL students?
4. Which candidates now have a very meaningful relationship with the faculty and administration. (Such a relationship would allow our government to work in an expedient manner.)
5. Which candidates are most likely to devote their FULL time to our student government?
6. Which candidates are truly concerned?

We know personally all the candidates on the CAUSE slate. In all honesty we can attest to ourselves that they are the answer to the above six questions. The time is now present when other concerned students on the LHS campus answer these questions. This is our school and our government. If we honestly want an improvement then it is our small task to look carefully at the slates and vote March 8.

Respectfully,
Jim Dawes

I should like to express my appreciation for the complimentary article concerning Praeco, and my position as adviser to the staff. However, the article, which appeared in the Eagle Eye on Friday, February 26, did not make mention of the fact that Dr. Isidore Becker, Associate Professor of English, is co-adviser to the yearbook staff, and deserves much of the credit for any success we have had. Dr. Becker has been of great help in producing Praeco 1971 and I would be remiss if I did not call this to the attention of the faculty and student body.

At times such as these when one hears so many unpleasant things, it is indeed gratifying to know that one's efforts are appreciated. The Praeco staff, under the direction of their extremely capable editors, Joe Baratta and Pam Hockenberry, is a fine group, and should be applauded for a job well done.

To the Editor:

The following letter was received by the Interfraternity Council on Feb. 16, 1971. It was written by Dr. Harriette D. Furst, the recipient of the $600 I.F.C. raffle. We, the members of the Interfraternity Council would like to share this heartwarming letter with you.

Dr. Harriette D. Furst

Feb. 14, 1971

Mr. Lee Hummel
President of I.F.C.
Lambda Chi Alpha House
244 Main St.
Lock Haven, Pa.

Dear Mr. Hummel,

I am sorry I wasn't available to receive your generous check in person. I am most grateful to the Interfraternity Council. I never won anything in my life.

I thought that you would be interested in how I purpose to spend my winnings.

Dennis Killian was roped to my husband and lost his life in the tragic accident climbing the Austrian Alps in August 1969.

I had always planned to establish a memorial in Dennis' name but my husband's estate is yet to be settled and my illness has been a tremendous expense so I have not been able to carry out my plans.

I am going to use the money from the raffle to establish the memorial to Dennis. He was a wrestler so I am going to establish a modest grant to a needy wrestler. I intend to add more when I am able. Dr. Maetosa has my ideas and he is going to spell them out for me. I have already seen Mr. Young.

I know you will be interested to know I am a Chi Omega. When I bought the chance I was helping a good cause. I hope that the raffle was a paying proposition. In an age when fraternities are under attack, I believe in the system. Of course I think your policies are so much more enlightened than those in my day.

My best wishes to the Interfraternity Council and many, many thanks.

Sincerely yours,
Harriette Furst

The Interfraternity Council again congratulates Dr. Harriette Furst and thanks her for a very inspiring and enlightening letter.

Openings Still

Available

For Women

Enrollment at Lock Haven State College for women students, both freshmen and transfer, of closed for the first semester of the 1971-72 academic year, the Admissions Office has announced.

A limited number of openings for women students are still available for the second semester, which runs from January to May 1972.

Applications are still being accepted for men freshmen and transfer students for both semesters of the 1971-72 academic year.

Students

Questioned

The following question was asked of various LHS students yesterday in order to determine student reaction to Pennsylvania's current fiscal crisis:

Grace Sloan, the Pennsylvania state treasurer, cannot legally sign checks today, since Governor Shapp did not put his signature on the appropriations bill calling for expenditures of $2.2 billion until June 30. Seventy thousand state employees will not get their paychecks. It is not yet known what will happen to state schools and scholarships. What is your opinion on the subject?

R. Reyes - Elementary
Special Education - '72

"It would be very interesting to see how Shapp even survives."

D. Whitmire - Elementary - '73

"Just what is Shapp waiting for?"

P. Beebe - English - 71
"I don't care what happens to this state as long as I get my money. I need it to survive."

T. Cruse - English - 73

"I am not dependent on either the state or this college for my education. Politics is only a bad joke."

D. Zedreck - English - 74

"I am very concerned with the fiscal problem of Pennsylvania and am particularly concerned with my state scholarship. I have confidence in the state, but wish the legislators would get on the ball."

K. Haile - Social Science - Social Welfare - 73

"I read where Governor Shapp can't sign the bill because according to him 'it is unconstitutional.' However, I feel that something must be done soon because I need the money!!"

Eagles Clip Ship.

By Al Smith

Spurred by upsets at 126 and 134 pounds, the Lock Haven State College grapplers swept to a 17-0 lead after five bouts and then went on to clip Shippensburg, 23-9 in Thomas Field House last Thursday evening.

"I did expect to win at 126 and 134 and when we didn't, it turned it all around," said Shipmentor Bill Corman after the match.

Tim Rupp pulled the first upset of the evening after brother Jim had given LHS a 5-0 lead with a third period pin over Randy Bogar in 5:35.

Rupp Gets Upset

Rupp hustled his entire match with Glen Miller, who sported a 10-2 record, and gained a 7-4 verdict on a fireman's carry takedown with only 17 seconds left in their bout.

Bynie Parker followed Rupp's upset with the biggest surprise of the evening when he knocked Bill Corman from the unbeaten ranks at 134 pounds with an 8-7 decision.

Parker gained a quick takedown in the first five seconds of the opening period, but Corman battled back and knotted the score at 3-3 early in the second period. The LHS 134-pounder gained a takedown and a predicament with a minute left in the second period and then held on in the final period for his upset.

Shippensburg then came up with fine showings in the next two bouts, even though they lost both of them.

Rippey Wins Close One

Gary Price gave Larry Rippey a battle at 142 pounds and dropped a close 11-7 decision to the Bald Eagle NAIA champion.

Still showing effects from a rib injury sustained at California, Rippey used a takedown near the edge of the mat with only 40 seconds showing and two riding time points for his victory.

Paul Brodmerkel upped the LHS lead to 17-0 when he gained a close 6-4 decision over Rick Lentz at 150. Brodmerkel used an important third period takedown for his margin of victory against Lentz, who was a third place finisher in the conference last year.

The Raiders put their first points on the board in the next two weights as John Corman handled Don Adams, 11-2, at 158 and Tom Nissley nipped John Blackwell, 2-1, at 167.

Nissley Wins by One
Corman easily controlled his bout while Nissley used a point for stalling against Blackwell for his win after each man had registered escapes.

Hank Hawkins came through with his third straight fine performance and whipped Bob Swope 10-4 at 177 pounds.

Scott Brooks followed with a 12-6 verdict over Dave Horner at 190 before Frank Myers gave Ship their final points when he edged Tom Zimmerman, 5-2, at heavyweight.

Lost All Three

Commenting on his team's loss, Corman added, "I thought 126, 134, and 177 would be the turning points, and we lost all three.

"We should have a nucleus for next year, but the answer is like Lock Haven. They have a real tough schedule and it makes their wrestlers tougher."

LHS mentor Dr. Ken Cox said, "We're sure good down below. That's what carried us this year. I was afraid of both 126 and 134, when we got them I knew the battle was just about won."

"This was the type of team that could have nipped us, but we won those crucial bouts," he added. "Hawkins is really coming now and Blackwell should have won, but he'll get better."

"Rippey is still bothered by the ribs and won't have contact now until the conference meet. Brodmerkel is still bothered by his knee too."

The win brought the Eagles' final dual record to 10-3 under first-year mentor Cox and was the best dual meet record registered in the conference. The Eagles will be back in action Friday afternoon when they host the conference tournament in Thomas Field House.
