Sloan dedication officially begins

Inaugural banquet held Sat. begins a year of celebration

By BILL MAHON
Editor in Chief

Gala festivities and decor somewhat reminiscent of Hollywood in the 1930's provided the setting for the dedication of the new John Sloan Fine Arts Center on Saturday evening.

Approximately 250 guests attended the Inaugural Banquet held in Bentley Hall which marked the beginning of a year-long program of dedication for the $2 million Fine Arts Center. The events began with a reception at 6 p.m. followed by dinner and introductions of special guests by the general chairman of the inaugural events, Dr. Marcus Konick.

A talk was given by Helen Farr Sloan, widow of artist John Sloan, for whom the Fine Arts is named. Shortly after 9:00 p.m. ribbon cutting ceremonies marked the opening of the building and an exhibit of John Sloan's personal collection of Navajo Indian rugs and jewelry.

Mr. Gary Renzelman treated the guests to a performance by

The Madrigal Singers in Sloan Theatre, Reader's Theatre, under the direction of Dr. Blanche Shamma, followed the musical entertainment. The evening culminated with a tour of the many unique facilities provided in the new John Sloan Fine Arts Center.

Mrs. Sloan presented her husband's self portrait (shown at right) to the Friends of Lock Haven State College with the stipulation it must be sold to help defray the expense of the year of inaugural events. Because he didn't want to see the college lose the painting William Hodrick Sr., a board member of the Friends of Lock Haven State College called a classmate of his from the college and explained the situation. That friend, Albert A. Brayson (LHSTC class of 1938), purchased Sloan's "Self - Portrait, with Clock and Pipe, 1916" for $6,000 and has lent it to the college for display in the Sloan Fine Arts Center for an indefinite period of time.

Today's Editorial

Dreams are nice, but . . .

In the next two months another class of Lock Haven Arts and Science, and Education majors will graduate and begin trying to find their "dream job." For many, this "dream" will never come true.

According to the Career Development Center's Annual Report, many of the students that graduated last year never found the "dream job" they had prepared for. For example, only 49 per cent of those certified to teach entered the teaching profession. Among Arts and Science graduates, 34 per cent listed themselves as "seeking." Overall, 26 per cent of last year's graduates, or one out of every four, found themselves listed in the job "seeking" category.

The question arises as to just what happens to these graduates who don't find a job in their field; those who don't get teaching jobs or who lack the business knowledge that many employers require. The more important question, however, is what can be done to more completely prepare students should their "dream job" fail to materialize?

Currently a college committee is working to determine what course areas and offerings LHS should develop. One suggestion worth consideration is the offering of business courses for students who wish to supplement their major with some business knowledge.

While it would probably be impractical to initiate a business degree program at this time, it might be a good idea to provide students with some business course offerings. Students that don't want to spend four years studying business administration or finance still might want to supplement their major with one or two business courses.

After graduation, and beset by unemployment, they may find business knowledge to be what employers are "seeking."

Letter to the editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter was forwarded to our office from Dr. Hamblin, President of Lock Haven State College.

Dear Dr. Hamblin:

Thank you for your letter of March 25, 1975, to Secretary Pittenger and the enclosed student resolution on the subject of tuition increases. This is the kind of well done and reasonable things that the students of Lock Haven have become known for doing.

Someone has apparently conveyed to them that a reasonable approach carries a great deal more weight than an approach that is emotional or sarcastic.

I realize that you are personally opposed to a tuition increase as are many of the Presidents. However depending on the appropriation, there is no question that one may become necessary.

The members of the Board who were at Lock Haven were very impressed with the entire program and again with the attitude and manner of the students.

Sincerely,

George H. Marshall
Assistant Commissioner for Administrative & Fiscal Management

Susque-view project forms close, working relationships

"They love it, they look forward to the student's programs, and there is a very close relationship between our guests and the college students who participate in these programs."

Those are the words of June Gardner, administrator of Susque-View, Clinton County's home for the aging. She was describing the attitude of Susque-View's guests toward visits and programs offered to them by Lock Haven State College's social welfare majors.

In 1970, the social welfare majors began a volunteer project designed to entertain and befriend citizens at the county home. Each semester students visit the elderly folks once a week. Mrs. Gardner said the students work on a one-to-one basis with the guests, and added that all participants "seem to enjoy it."

Two of the main projects perpetuated by the students are a Christmas and an Easter party. At the Christmas party reported Mrs. Gardner, the students bring gifts and refreshments. Entertainment is provided by the Lock Haven Community Choir, and the event is open to the public.

The Susque-View administrator explained that the college students donate a sum of money at Christmas time each year from a collection fund. This year, Mrs. Gardner said, the students gift of $150 is being used to buy birthday gifts for the elderly guests as each one's birthday comes around.

"It's a very good working relationship," concluded the county home official. "The students take a very keen interest in the Susque-View guests."

When the program was initiated in 1970, only social work and social welfare majors were invited to participate in the volunteer project at Susque-View. That aspect of the project has been changed, and all interested and concerned students may now take part in the heartwarming cause.

"Older people are people just like the rest of us," commented Mrs. Dolores Lynch advisor to the students. "We just bridge the gap between us."

Baseballers drop doubleheader Netmen smash Lycoming 9-0 in opener

By MIKE CRONE
Staff Writer

Opening their conference schedule on a rather disappointing note, the LHS baseball team dropped a doubleheader to conference power Indiana, 7-2 and 3-0.

The Eagles led the first game 1-0 but the lead was short lived. Several Indiana hits, coupled with several Lock Haven errors, opened the gates for the seven runs. Bob Weber pitched well in defeat for LHS and probably deserved a better fate.

One of the bright spots in the first game was the hitting of first baseman Steve Delisle. Delisle was 3 for 3, with a single, double and triple. He also scored the only 2 runs of the day for the Eagles, being driven in both times by second sacker Mike Mersky.

Game two was the biggest disappointment of the day for Coach Tod Eberle. Pitcher Steve Lebo fired a fine 3 hitter at the Indiana hitters and yet lost the game 3-0. The Eagle hitters garnered 8 hits off Indiana pitching, but could not push a run across, although they threatened throughout the game.

Lock Haven was only behind 1-0 going into the 6th inning, but two costly errors gave Indiana 2 more runs to seal the final margin of victory.

The Eagles next game is slated for Monday at Bloom. The next home game is Wednesday with Slippery Rock.

Netmen smash Lycoming 9-0 in opener

The LHS mens tennis team began the 1975 season on an auspicious note last Thursday by whitewashing Lycoming College 9-0 on the Lycoming courts.

Number one singles player, Ken Gibson defeated Levergood; 6-3, 3-6 and 7-6. Freshman Tag Helt gained his first collegiate win by topping Murphy; 6-3, 3-6 and 3-6. In the third singles, John Hubert nailed Spotts 6-1 and 5-3 while Craig Shindler pounded Sourmare 6-0 and 6-2. Lenny Long reeled off 11 straight points after being down 1-4 to overcome Exposito 3-6, 6-4 and 6-0. Rich Morrell blasted Petgold 6-3 and 6-0 while in an exhibition match Scott Bishop defeated Rodgers 6-0 and 6-2.

In doubles competition the Eagles completely dominated contests. Gibson and Helt defeated Levegood and Spotts 6-2 and 6-3. Hubert and Shindler devastated Esposito and Connell 6-0 and 6-1 while Petgold and Sourmare fell to Long and Bishop 6-2 and 6-4.

Novice Olympic Weightlifting Chappell, Coltrane take firsts

Freshman Jon Chappell walked away with first place honors on March 22nd at the Open Novice Olympic Weightlifting Contest held in Woodbury New Jersey.

Chappell competed in the 123 pound class. He snatched 130 pounds, and clean and jerked 175 pounds to win the division. Bob Coltrane also added a first place trophy to his other accomplishments in weightlifting in the 165 pound class at the competition.

Coltrane was very pleased with young Chappell's performance. "If Jon continues with his weight training," Coltrane stated, "I predict that next year he will give Lock Haven State its first National Collegiate Champion in weightlifting."

Chappell actually clean and jerked 185 pounds, but his left elbow did not lock for the required time and the judges disqualified the lift.

Coltrane won the 165 pound championship at the weight of only 149 pounds. "I missed the official weigh-in at 148 pounds by half a pound," Coltrane revealed, "so I had to compete in the next weight class."

Winning season predicted for women's tennis

By MARY FEUSNER
Women's Sports Editor

Despite frosty, windy, and wet practice conditions Ms. Mary Breid, second year coach of the women's tennis team, is predicting a productive winning season. Ms. Breid reports that the returning letter women look strong and that the vacancies created by graduation will be filled by competent, talented freshmen.

Returning regulars include the number one and two singles standouts, Deb Stopper and Ellen Magliaro. Returning doubles regulars include Paula Wolfe, Linda Stout, Cheryl Prosser and Mary Evans.

Freshmen standouts Cindy Stopper and Donna Tyler and transfer Sue Barner are vying for singles and doubles positions.
