How can we better serve you? Let us know.

by Jennifer Bowes
Eagle Eye News Editor

The Eagle Eye. It's been a tradition on the University campus for nearly thirty-nine years, according to records held by the Eagle Eye office.

Over the years, various changes have been made in the format of the newspaper. As the years go on, the Eagle Eye, as with anything, needs to meet the changing needs of the times.

That's where you, the University campus, comes in. We need to know what YOU would like to see change in YOUR Eagle Eye.

The Eagle Eye has always strived to serve the campus community with information we feel is valuable to both students, faculty and staff.

In 1989, the staff made minor changes, due to both a lack of reporters and constructive criticism from faculty and students.

Then changes included paying reporters 20 cents per column inch and trying to generate more student interest in the newspaper.

An October 1972 edition of the Eagle Eye also featured a comical attempt at generating interest in the student newspaper.

Dr. William Schulz, executive director, Amnesty International USA (AIUSA), will serve as keynote speaker at the University's Gerald R. Robinson Academic Honors and Foundation Awards Convocation, Sunday, April 23, at 1 p.m. in Price Performance Center.

Schulz, the leader of the 80-person staff, 400,000 member AIUSA, directs the everyday operations of the U.S. branch of the Nobel Prize winning international human rights organization. He is the former president of the Unitarian Universalist Association of Salvador, India, Romania and South Africa.

He planned and participated in on-site missions abroad on a range of issues, including persecution of religious and ethnic minorities and the plight of bonded laborers.

read the large headline on the front page, referring to the small number of staff members at the time. In addition, the graphic of the eagle had been turned upside-down.

Although the current Eagle Eye staff is not going to go to the above-mentioned extreme, we are also hoping to generate more student interest.

But first we need to know what the students are interested in.

Send us constructive criticism -- suggestions, changes, fresh ideas. We will take all ideas seriously and do our best to implement all that we feel will give the students better information. This implementation will take place during the Fall 1995 semester.

If you PERSONALLY would like to make the change, apply for the staff position in the area in which you feel the change should be made. Those who contribute the most innovative ideas will contribute generously to the staff.

Ideas can be called in by phone, left on the Eagle Eye voice mail, sent via campus mail, or dropped off at the Eagle Eye office in the bottom of the PUB. Additionally, E-mail messages may be sent to jbowes@falcon.lhup.edu.

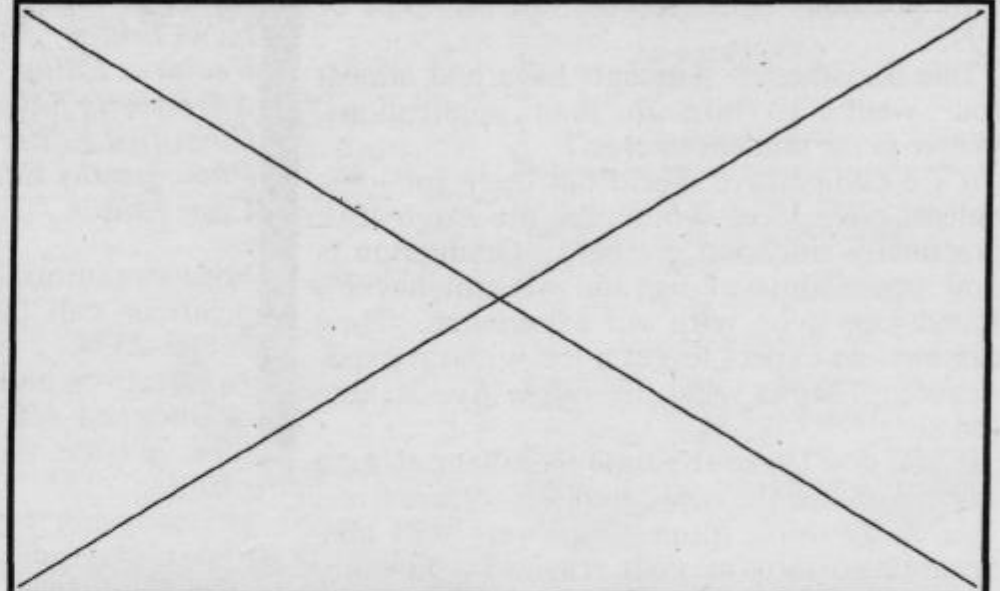

Use any form of communication you feel is easiest for you! We'll be looking forward to hearing from you!!!

He has been a tireless campaigner against racism and for the rights of women, indigenous people, gay men and lesbians, as well as for religious freedom and the abolition of the death penalty.

Schulz holds a Doctor of Ministry and a Master of Theology from the University of Chicago's Meadville Lombard Theological School. He also holds a master's in philosophy from the University of Chicago and a baccalaureate degree from Oberlin College.

The Convocation will recognize outstanding University students who have excelled in the areas of scholarship and leadership. In addition, more than 50 University Foundation scholarships will be awarded at this event.

The Convocation is free and open to the public. For additional information, contact the University at x2293.

Family appreciative of support...

Dear staff and students of Lock Haven:

Just a short note to thank you all for your ongoing support of our son, Matt Duncan. The outpouring of concern, banners, cards, and calls (as well as visits) have been overwhelming for us. We tell Matt everything, the banner is on the wall (as are cards), balloons are in his room, and the tape has been played multiple times. I do think his recovery will hang on his knowing he is loved and missed, along with prayer. We are now telling him "kick your butt" messages -- he's had a long enough nap! I always knew Lock Haven was special -- both in students and staff -- now we've just added another dimension to that knowledge. Bless you all.

Love,
Louise & Bob Duncan

*Matt Duncan remains in critical condition, but he is recovering. According to Dr. Linda Koch, vice president for student affairs, he opens his eyes when asked and moves his hands. Anyone wishing to send cards and letters should send them to the Intensive Care Unit at the Williamsport Hospital, 777 Rural Avenue, Williamsport, PA 17701.

Eagle Eye faces extinction?

Disappointment. No word could better describe how we feel right now. Out of the 117 journalism majors here at Lock Haven University, as of Wednesday only two had turned in applications for Eagle Eye staff positions.

The Eagle Eye is a small newspaper. It only takes 14 dedicated students to keep it rolling of the presses every week. Including the two applicants, we currently have only half our staff positions filled for the fall semester of 1995.

This is pathetic! Students have had almost four weeks to turn in their applications. Where is the student interest?

It's a competitive world out there for journalists. We have worked at the Eagle Eye practically since we got here. Graduation is now upon some of us, and we still haven't found jobs even with our experience. How can anyone expect to get a job without experience? That is what the Eagle Eye is here for.

If you don't take the time in college to take advantage of the opportunities offered, do you really think future employers will take the time to look at your resume? Probably not.

Employers are looking for someone with experience -- someone with ambition and motivation. They don't want someone who knows nothing about journalism other than what they've learned in their classes.

At larger universities you have to take a test to even be allowed to work on the student newspaper. At Lock Haven you don't even have to have experience to get a job at the student newspaper. All you need is to be willing to put in some time and effort to get the with computers, layout and design, writing, editing and leadership skills are all gained by working at the Eagle Eye.

The fact is, you don't even have to be a journalism major. We have had students from a variety of majors, such as music and computer science, work for the Eagle Eye.

Everyone is probably wondering why the Eagle Eye is only four pages this week. We just thought we'd give students a sampling of what next year will be like if we can't fill these staff positions.

In addition to being a vehicle for experience for the journalism majors, the Eagle Eye is the voice of the students. Without the Eagle Eye how would students have known the details about the Basketball House alcohol bust last spring, the poster controversy in the Bookstore, or that a squirrel caused the power outage across campus last semester? How would they know how the sports teams fared in their latest games or which comedians and musicians are entertaining on campus? Where else would students be able to voice their complaints to the entire campus? Finally, can you imagine a Friday without reading the personals?

The Eagle Eye has been around for 22 consecutive years, its future is in your hands.

Lady Eagles sweep IUP

by Amy Coles
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

With their weekend showdown against Slippery Rock fast approaching, the Lady Eagles softball team improved their PSAC record to 7-3 this week.

On Wednesday, LHU avenged their one loss to IUP earlier in the season by making swift work of the Lady Indians. The Lady Eagles swept IUP, needing only two hours to do so.

Game one lasted only 45 minutes, thanks to a no-hitter by junior pitcher Jen Geary. The only thing that prevented Geary from making her performance a perfect game instead of a no-hitter was a walk she issued to the very first IUP batter.

This was Geary's second no-hitter of the season. She posted the other in one of LHU's Rebel Springs Games in Florida. That no-hitter was also only one walk away from being a perfect game.

Behind Geary's strong performance in game one, the Lady Eagles blanked IUP 8-0 in five innings.

Offensively, LHU was clicking on all cylinders. Junior Tiff Amore homered in the game — the Lady Eagles' first round-tripper of the season.

Freshman Diane Drumheller also got into the homerun derby. In game two, Drumheller sent one over the fence, en route to a 7-1 LHU win.

Once again, it was Geary who supported

Eagles hopes looking up

Baseball

by Suzanne Shultz
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

On Tuesday the Bald Eagles came out hoping to at least split a doubleheader with Edinboro and that is just what they did. The team won the first game, 4-3, but could not take the second game.

In game one, seven errors from Edinboro benefited the Eagles and allowed them to take the game away from the Scots in nine innings.

Erik Steinbacher had two singles. It was his second one that advanced David Hartlaub that set the game-winner. Marco Randazzo singled through the left side which let Hartlaub to score the final run.

In the second game, though, Edinboro came back and scored seven runs in the first inning. After that the Scots had a smooth ride to the victory.

Although the split kept playoff hopes alive for the Bald Eagles, it was a letdown for the team. Because the team had lost a doubleheader to Edinboro earlier on in the season, the Scots have a 3-1 series edge this season.

This split leaves the Bald Eagles with an overall record of 16-14-1 and a 6-6 record in their conference.

The team will visit Slippery Rock Saturday in a PSAC-West doubleheader.

Softball

the win for the Lady Eagles with another solid pitching performance.

Head Coach Kim Lindsey said that the IUP games were exciting, because her team played hard from start to finish — one of the few times they have done so this season.

"Normally, we don't start playing until the sixth inning, and by that time it's too late," said Lindsey.

A good example of what Lindsey is referring to occurred on Saturday, when LHU traveled to Edinboro.

After crushing the Lady Scots 9-1 in five innings to take the first game, LHU dug a big hole for themselves in game two.

Down 6-1 to Edinboro in the sixth inning, the Lady Eagles mounted a massive comeback. The team rallied for an unbelievable nine runs to eventually steal the game from the Lady Scots, 10-6.

While Lindsey admitted that game two was exciting, she said that her team "can't expect to go out there and win many games like that one because really good teams will never let us get back into games like that."

One of the many positive signs that came from Saturday's games was the improvement in the LHU offense. The Lady Eagles, who were struggling of late, exploded against Edinboro.

Leading the way for the Lady Eagles was Geary, who went 6-7 on the day, including two doubles.

Freshman Melissa Caldwell was also a big contributor, knocking in four runs in game two.

As LHU hopefully begins to come together offensively, the end of the season is drawing closer.

Tomorrow, the Lady Eagles will host Clarion at 1 p.m. on Lawrence Field.

PSAC-West action continues for the team on Tuesday, as they travel to California for two pivotal games against the current West leader.

On Thursday, LHU will hit the road once again to take on Edinboro. All of these games are just a prelude to two crucial games against Slippery Rock next weekend.

The Lady Eagles are battling The Rock neck-and-neck for the second PSAC Final Four playoff spot. Because of rain, LHU's initial doubleheader at Slippery Rock, which was scheduled for April 8, had to be postponed twice.

The new make-up date for the game is Sunday, March 30 — just one day after a regularly-scheduled game against The Rock here on Lawrence Field.

Lindsey admits that these remaining games down the stretch are crucial if the Lady Eagles still want to be playing softball on May 5-6.
