

P. S. E. A. GROUP TO CONVENE HERE

Central District of P. S. E. A. to Meet with County Institute October 2nd and 3rd

The annual convention of the Central Convention District of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association will be held at our college October 2 and 3 in conjunction with the Clinton County Institute which will take place September 30 and October 1 and 2. The theme of the convention this year will be "Improvement in Instruction." The program contains the names of some prominent leaders of educational thought, among whom are Dr. H. C. Minnich, Dr. Milo B. Hillegas, and Dr. Paul Voelker.

Dr. H. C. Minnich, President of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, visited our college last year as inspector for the American Association of Colleges. He made the final inspection at that time, giving the college an A rating.

Dr. Hillegas, of Columbia University, is well known for his work in the Measurement of Education in the field of English. A large number of the faculty members of S. T. C. have had courses under him.

Dr. Rockwell, of Bucknell University, has given extension lectures in the city of Lock Haven and consequently is well known here.

It will be of special interest to those who are connected with the college to note that several members of the college faculty are also listed on the program: Miss Himes, Miss Daniel, Miss Whitwell, Miss Larabee, and Mr. Gage.

The Central Convention District of the P. S. E. A. is one of the five convention districts in our state. Lock Haven, a member of this District,

W. A. A. Sponsors Tom Thumb Golf Expedition

On Tuesday afternoon, September sixteenth, about seventy girls hiked down to the Greystone filling station on East Water Street to play "Tom Thumb" golf. The outing was sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association but was not confined to members only. After they arrived at the grounds the girls were divided into groups of four and the playing followed. The loving cup was presented to Helen Hartman, who finished with a score of sixty-three. Second prize was awarded to Relda Haagen while the third prize went to Alma Probst. Elizabeth Cox, Barbara Beckwith and Eleanor Forshey were given consolation prizes. Refreshments were served and the seventy enthusiasts departed for State Teachers College.

DR. SKINNER SPEAKS AT CHAPEL MONDAY

Traits of Scotch Character are Described in an Interesting Talk to S. T. C. Students

On Monday, September 22, Dr. Andrew Skinner, a graduate of St. Andrew's University, in Edinburgh, Scotland, gave the morning chapel talk on a subject quite in keeping with both his interests and those of the audience. Giving one of the most outstanding chapel talks of his own university career, he told how three world famous men, all from different fields of work, had spoken on different occasions concerning the most distinctive traits of Scotch character.

Dr. Skinner recalled the remarks he had heard made by Rudyard Kipling on the keynote of Scotch character, Independence, which to them means every man carrying his share of the load. Again, he told of the talk given by Sir James Barrie on Courage, so necessary among those who so often find themselves in poverty and need. The speech which was mentioned by Dr. Skinner was one by Dr. Nansen, famous Arctic explorer, who showed how necessary is the Spirit of Adventure in taking the chances that lead to a worthwhile future. In connecting these three occasions, Dr. Skinner spoke of how Scotch families sacrifice so much in order that one member of the family may go to the University, and then come back to serve and work among his own people.

Dr. Skinner attended several college class sessions during the day, and some of the college upper classmen enjoyed the privilege of meeting him at an informal discussion on Monday evening, when they asked Dr. Skinner about his country, his people and his work. Later in the evening, Dr. Skinner and Dr. Coppens, of the college faculty, attended the social meeting of Alpha Zeta Pi, as guests of honor at the club's first social function.

Dr. Skinner left on Tuesday for Columbia University, where he is completing his studies in the Teachers College of the university. He is one of the thirty-two university graduates who were sent to America from the British Empire by a Commonwealth Fund supported by a memorial fund similar to the Rhodes Scholarship which sends American students to Europe. During his study and research in this country, Dr. Skinner has traveled from coast to coast and in Canada. He returns to his homeland next June.

Host: (appearing on darkened veranda)—"Are you young folks enjoying yourselves?"

Host: returning indoors—"That's fine."

MORGAN'S RAIDERS DOWN TO HARD WORK

First Three Weeks' Drill Gives Indication of the Strength of the Squad for 1930

The end of the first three weeks' drill has revealed the fact that the Lock Haven State Teachers College football team, barring injuries, will be the most powerful that has represented the college in a decade. With a squad of more than 35 candidates from which to select, the coaches are in a position denied to those of other years in that they have plenty of fairly good reserve material to fill whatever holes unexpectedly appear.

A first string varsity has not been selected yet, and no candidate has made his position a certainty. Some of the outstanding candidates to date include Hart, Kachik, and Bob Smith, who are competing for a half-back position. These boys are equally fast and each is a dangerous opponent in the open field. Both Hart and Smith have been doing some very nice passing. At fullback Gunderman, Burd and Weipsic, all newcomers, are waging a pretty fight for the honor. Gunderman and Weipsic, in addition to their ability to hit the line, are excellent punters and under the able coaching of Wynn Fredericks are developing nicely. The battle for the quarterback position will be a bitter one, with Hatter, Plummer, Cook and Imdorf all in the running.

The line will be unusually strong from end to end and undoubtedly will be considerably heavier than in previous years. At end, Poust, Rice Shively and Baker are about of equal ability, with Poust having a slight edge because of his kicking ability. Bossert and Dettrey at tackle, will have to fight hard to keep Sundberg, Poole and Weber from a starting assignment. Hammaker, Achenbach,

A. P. Akeley Elected President of State Trustee Group

At the annual meeting at Harrisburg on September 19, 1930, Superintendent A. P. Akeley, a trustee of our college, was elected president of the State Association of Trustees for State Teachers Colleges.

Mrs. George H. Diack, also a trustee of Lock Haven State Teachers College, was elected assistant secretary of the same organization.

The State Association of Trustees for State Teachers Colleges is very influential in the educational matters of the state. To be elected to any office in its organization is considered a high honor.

The official delegates from our College Board of Trustees were Mr. A. P. Akeley and Dr. J. W. Sweeney.

MORGAN'S RAIDERS DOWN TO HARD WORK

Snare and Bloom are in the van for the guard positions, while a pretty battle is being waged between Robb, Hank Smith, Biddle and Renolds for the center berth. There are a number of candidates who will undoubtedly be heard from later who to date have been handicapped by injuries. McCall, a letterman from the 1929 varsity, has been troubled with a bad ankle received during the baseball season. Cooke, a Portage product with the reputation for being an able field general, has been another victim of the bad ankle complex.

The squad as a whole is much better organized than in previous years and as a consequence more progress has been made with individual instruction. Coaches Griffin and Fredericks have been assisting Coach Morgan, and their conscientious effort is surely appreciated by the school.

Whitey Lawrence has been added to the staff in the capacity of trainer for the boys and is proving himself a very able assistant.

Through the cooperation of the administration new uniforms have been purchased and the 1930 squad will be as well equipped as any college in the country. When the new stadium is completed it can truthfully be said that our college has one of the best equipped teams and gridirons in the state.

Dickinson Seminary has been scheduled for Nov. 22nd, and that game will close what is hoped to be one of the best seasons the college has had.

The first game of the season will be on the home gridiron on October 4th, with the Susquehanna J. V.'s as opponents.

Former President of College A Recent Campus Visitor

Mr. James Elder, a former president of our college in the days when it was known as Central State Normal School, was a visitor on the campus on Wednesday, September 17. Mr. Elder was the third president of C. S. N. S., holding that office from 1887 to 1900. He was here in that capacity at the time of the fire which destroyed the old Normal School building.

Mr. Elder taught for a time in Millersville S. T. C. and now, at the age of eighty-eight, he has retired and is living in Millersville.

With Mr. Elder when he visited the campus last week were several other alumni, including Robert M. Elder '93; Miss Mary Elder '89; Mrs. Florence Shoemaker Elder '97; Corwin J. Elder '92; Harry W. Elder, and Mrs. Kate Elder Shower '94.

S. E. A. WILL OFFER GREAT OPPORTUNITY TO STUDENTS

The convention of the Pennsylvania State Education Association to be held at the Lock Haven State Teachers College next week, offers to the students of the college a rare opportunity to hear some of the people who are noted leaders in their own professional field. It is to be hoped that they will attend as many of the addresses as possible.

CAMPUS CHATTER

The members of the Times eats committee move that the student kitchen be moved next to the gym. As they were passing from the kitchen to the gym with plates of cake and ice cream, their progress was seriously impeded by some hungry students who insisted upon getting their feet in the way just as the committee was passing.

Ev. Bosworth threw a wet party down at her end of the hall the other evening. Soup and watered cocoa were the refreshments. Did everyone say "when" soon enough, Ev?

We thought that we had elected an impartial Student Council, but they seem to like third floor west better than any other part of the building. 'Tisn't fair to all of us.

We are anxiously awaiting the picture which Lil Lawhead had taken just the other evening.

An extremely intelligent Freshman inquired sweetly of Miss Dixon how much W. A. A. credit she would get for joining the Y. W. C. A.

And then there was the girl who, after chatting for a half hour to a fellow in Social Square, turned to her silent girl friend and said, "I'd introduce you to this man but I don't know him myself."

Have you heard about the fellow from the dorm who won't take a girl out because he is afraid she will fall for him. That's right, George Washington did tell us to keep out of entangling alliances.

Most any of the Scranton gang or their Freshman guests ought to be able to write a book on "The Advantages of Being a Professor's Daughter," after Charlotte High finished reciting them that night.

We just happened to notice a week end case with the initials E. G. G. on it. She isn't, though.

A cute little Freshie came into the pressing room the other day and wanted to know where the irons were kept.

Speaking of nonchalance—a certain Senior strolled in at 10.20 on Monday evening, signed the correct time and stood in Social Square to chat with the boy friend for ten minutes.

Freshman football stars are surely given the breaks with our co-ed aggregation. They are not allowed to dance during football season and after that the Tribunal will check flirtation until Washington's birthday.

The Dramatic Club decided that they would need a motto, and after choosing "The Fight is On," hostilities were resumed.

Esther Hostettler tried to pull a fast one and convince us that all that glitters isn't glit, but a little bird told us that the former mayoress of Social Square is still on the straight and narrow.

Several manikins were seen toting davenport through No Man's Land on Monday night. Hal Poust couldn't find his room.

We hope that we can give you the low-down on this man Einar Eliason in the next issue. Believe it or not, he is now preparing to teach a Sunday School class in the church of his choice. A little divine inspiration, we think.

Some of our extremely green Freshman girls were overheard making the bright remark that they were contributing a great deal to our new collegiate atmosphere. Very true, very true!

Peg Beeson has been up in the air during the last few days. Her elevation has something to do with a color scheme.

A discussion on the fickleness of men held sway at one of the tables in the dining room the other evening. Being the only male present Mike was slightly overwhelmed.

We are greatly surprised to hear that there are still a few girls who believe in undying love. We thought they didn't make that kind any more.

Rip Harris intended to take his girl out for a ride the other night but there wasn't much time left after his track practice and his visit to the alderman were over.

Miss Larabee is Impressed By Local Mountain Scenery

Miss Lottie Larabee, new member of the faculty in the department of music, is most enthusiastic about the beautiful setting of our college as well as the general loveliness of this section of Pennsylvania. When asked for her impressions by a TIMES reporter, Miss Larabee contrasted the wooded Pennsylvania mountains with the peaks near Albion, Idaho, where she taught in the Teachers College. The Idaho mountains extend above the vegetation line and in many cases are snow-capped, while the Pennsylvania mountains are entirely covered with vegetation. This distinctive characteristic gives to the eastern hills a quality as beautiful in its own way as the bolder and more barren grandeur of the western mountains.

During the time in which she maintained her own studio in Lincoln, Nebraska, and still later, when she taught in the Teachers College at Springfield, Nebraska, Miss Larabee had a number of opportunities to see the Colorado mountains in the vicinity of Pike's Peak. Speaking of her impressions, Miss Larabee said that much of the beauty is cheapened by commercialization. She told how one is whisked up the famous Peak and down again before one has had sufficient time to see a fourth of the natural beauties. In ascending this peak, Miss Larabee said, one encounters virtually every climate from the sunshine of the tropics to the cold of the northern regions.

Miss Larabee's advanced musical training has been obtained in two of America's most famous conservatories. She received her bachelor's degree from the University School of Music, which is affiliated with the University of Nebraska, and it was at the American Conservatory of Music, in Chicago, that Miss Larabee did her advanced work, which earned for her a master's degree.

Whyte will discuss "Seeing and Hearing Ourselves." This convention will close with a violin solo by Mrs. Anderson.

On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock there will be given a program of mirth and music by "The Stones Merry Makers." Geoffrey O'Hara, well known composer, pianist, and singer, will present a program Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Both of these entertainments will be of special interest to the students of the college as well as the members of the Institute.

A. C. E. Starts Year's Program

On Wednesday afternoon, September 17th, at 4.15 the A. C. E. held its first meeting of the year as an informal social meeting for all Group 1 girls. After becoming acquainted with each other through a "Good-afternoon" game, the girls were welcomed by the president, Dorothy Palmer. Miss Himes then introduced the secretary, Betty Machtley, and the treasurer, Gertrude Marks. Miss Hatcher and Dr. Coppens, who were guests at the meeting, then told of some of their experiences with kindergarten and nursery school children.

Art Exhibition to be Held In the College Next Week

Arrangements have been made by Dr. Armstrong with the Brown-Robertson Company, educational art publishers of New York, for an art exhibition at the college during the two days of the convention of the Pennsylvania State Education Association to be held here next week. The exhibition will consist of more than one hundred and fifty facsimile color reproductions of the world's famous masterpieces in painting.

It is usually taken for granted that all men are vitally interested in the sport of football and since most women are interested in men they should naturally be football fans also. However there are some indications at the present time that no one on our campus cares about the progress of this fall sport except the players themselves. Now these men can play hard and have all the equipment to win but they need that spirit behind them to push them on to victory and over the top.

This year's football team is better prepared for work than ever before. There are more men to play and the equipment is the best among the Teachers Colleges of Pennsylvania. With such a background our team can do remarkable work. The men have practiced faithfully since the beginning of the term in order to be in trim for the big day.

New bleachers have been placed on the lower field for the accommodation of fans and it would be quite pleasing to the coaches and players to see a few more students come out and cheer for their favorites during the practice sessions. Training for a football team is not the easiest of tasks and a few encouraging cheers from the sidelines often go a long way toward helping the individual player over the rough spots.

By the way, that date is October 4th, and is against Susquehanna University. Be sure to know the songs and yells and make some noise. Any freshman or other unfortunate who Miniature golf is keeping the nation busy all night, while the most skilled teacher finds it extremely difficult to construct a lesson plan that will keep a couple of dozen pupils busy for more than half an hour. It might be worthwhile for some psychologist to call for a conference some rainy day to devise some scheme to make use of the golf principal in school.

The old adage, "Idle hands are up to no good," has been revised to suit the modern generation and now, due to the influence of miniature golf, reads, "Idle hands are always up to something."

This ingenious game is a product of the same brain that conceived the idea of lesson plans. The big difference is that it is quite simple to discover the "aim" in a game of golf. In the near future, miniature golf will be a required pedagogical subject instead of a Knockdown to Teaching. Anything to get that infernal "aim" question settled.

Most of us have gone through high school, not knowing that we ever had an aim. We come to college and they tell us that pupils have an aim for every lesson. Somewhere, some teacher has pulled something over on us.

One of our great behaviouristic psychologists is working on a plan whereby he expects to train monkeys to play football. His plan will no doubt fail because any sane monkey knows enough to climb a tree where he sees a two hundred pound ape tearing toward him. Believe it or not, there are a lot of them in the business.

Anyone who believes that all is quiet on the western front would do well to read the papers.

This same psychologist believes that the gentle practice of getting married will be entirely abandoned within the next fifty years. This prediction has about as much chance as a kleptomaniac with the dropsy in a dynamite shed. Men will be dragging extra expenses to the altar long after the twentieth century has been forgotten.

There are two rooms, and I am dominating the upper one, with the title, I guess, of principal, but haven't located much of the principalship to it. It is just plain school teaching to me."

"The town of Five Points hasn't materialized yet. I understood that it was quite a thriving metropolis, and perhaps it will be, after the mines open up. There are about three or four families in the town now, and about twenty-five houses. It reminded me of the DESERTED VILLAGE when I looked at it."

Student Opinion

Editor's Note:—

The staff of the College Times solicits thoughtful contributions to this column. The articles printed here are not to be construed as expressions of editorial opinion.

To the Editor of the COLLEGE TIMES:

The question of what organization we will join is one we all must face. In our college organizations cover varied fields of interest. There are some whose aim is service to the student body; there are others which are chiefly concerned with the cultural development of their members. The staff of the college paper, the staff of the college yearbook, and the orchestra are directly representative of the first purpose. Although in an indirect way, but no less obvious one, they raise the ideals of the college, the literary societies, the science groups, the art club concentrate upon the intellectual activities of individuals.

It makes little difference, however, what organizations we join. It is our attitude toward them which determines whether they will continue to exist or not. Unfortunately, there are some students who regard membership in school organizations as an excellent measure of personal popularity. This attitude is welcome neither in the organization itself nor in this college. On the other hand there are those who plunge into extra-curricular activities to the exclusion of regular work. No one needs to do this. All limits to the number of organizations one can join are arbitrary, provided each student uses care and judgment not to overtax his native capacity.

These false ideals, however, should not eliminate entirely from college life a system of school organizations. Each group has been born of some definite need and it is for each member to uphold the integrity of the group. If a student anticipates entering an organization he must dedicate his services to the realization of its ideal. To make a literary society an asset to the college each one must make his personal influence of value to those with whom he comes in contact. If the college paper is to represent our college each editor must earnestly contribute his efforts.

Therefore, if we but have a worthy purpose in engaging in extra-curricular activities, joining organizations need not be a problem to be faced, but an opportunity for worthwhile service.

Also, had my first discipline case today, when one of the boys insisted on calling the lady teacher several names that would be censored. All the members of the Alpha Zeta Pi and Mr. Williams, the new faculty advisor, with Miss Holaway, Dr. Coppins, and Dr. Skinner as special guests, enjoyed a peppy social time in the Gym on Monday night. If you doubt our word, ask Mr. Williams about his square dancing class and ask anyone about the food.

The Art Klub galvanized itself into action on Wednesday last and decided among other things, to remove the antediluvian car schedule and replace it with a beautiful new bus schedule. Florence Deihl and her crew deserve the thanks of the college for this humanitarian deed.

The Educational Enthusiasts, under the leadership of Ray Zaner, met last Monday and read the Constitution (of the club, not the United States) and a committee was also appointed to map out a topical plan for the year's work.

The Boys' Tribunal met Monday evening to decide on the future chastisement of the Freshies. Nuff sed!

The three sororities met as usual last week. The Bittersweets and the R. O. L.'s discussed feeds. Oh, these caloric chasers! The A. S. T.'s talked about finances. We surely are glad to know anyone who can discuss finances in this terrible period of business depression.
