Edinboro Players Thrill 600 With Novel Drama

by GEORGE FREEMAN

On Thursday and Friday nights of last week, Crawford Gymnasium reverberated with the throbbing of ancient drums of Mexico as the Edinboro Players presented their much-talked-about play, "At The Sacred Well." The large audiences, totaling over 600 persons, showed the keen interest that was aroused by such a novel undertaking.

Surrounded by colorful scenery, made under the supervision of William Frazier, the dramatists unfolded the story of human sacrifice in fourteenth-century Mexico as Yak Chilon, Annette Henness, offered her life to appease the gods and bring rain to the parched land. The aquatic skill displayed by Miss Henness and E. Clyde Snyder and the supporting swimmers was the high point of the performance.

SWIMMERS STAR

Act II consisted of synchronized swimming, a new and popular form of the art. Group rhythm and straight-line form and patterns were conspicuous in the interpretation of the Mayan at play in water. The use of percussion instruments brought out the true Mayan approach to music. Precision and adaptability were conspicuous in the presentation of this scene. The most difficult numbers were the Dolphin, performed by Annette Henness and Richard H. Young, and the Finale, where Mr. Young stood on the bottom of the pool and took an adagio hold on Miss Henness as he held her high above the water and walked backward.

E. Clyde Snyder gave an unusual performance, not only in the portrayal of the overwhelming grief of the young fifteen-year-old brother but also in a display of skill as a synchronized swimmer.

Annette Henness presented a convincing picture of the Mayan maid ready to give her life to save her people. Her swimming showed perfect rhythm. Her versatility has resulted in her being acclaimed as the most outstanding swimmer on campus. Her voice was clear and well modulated and presented depth of feeling.

MISS LUDGATE DIRECTS

The play was under the direction of Miss Ludgate, faculty advisor of the Edinboro Players. The governor's son was nicely portrayed by Ted Levi. Other leading parts were played by William Hunt, Mary Frances Malney, E. Clyde Snyder, Annette Henness, Malcolm Yaple, Vincent Salmon.

News Briefs

Last Monday at State College Dr. Offner attended a meeting of the deans of instruction of the fourteen teachers colleges cooperating in Penn State's off-campus freshman program. The meeting was devoted to a discussion of instructional problems.

All freshmen except Penn State assignees had a day of headaches last Monday when they took the imposing battery of Freshman Tests.

Mrs. Campbell, director of music, has disclosed that the Mixed Ensemble (see concert story for names) is scheduled to sing at the Christmas dinner of the Shadbrush Club next Tuesday evening.

The officers and council members of the Off-Campus Girls met with Miss Norton, advisor, on Monday in order to plan their social activities for the remainder of the year. Girls in attendance were Clea Johnson, Lois Cumpson, Margaret Gedeon, Helen Conrader, Roberta Rohrer, Katherine Bartoo, Mary Livingston, Jean McGraw, and Shirley Randall.

Dr. Offner, Dean of Instruction, states that mid-year examinations are scheduled to begin about January 13.

ESTC Faculty Member Issues Hist. Volume

"James Harvey Robinson-Teacher of History" is the title of the latest volume to find its way to the shelves of the E. S. T. C. library. Written by Dr. Luther V. Hendricks and published by the King's Crown Press, a branch of Columbia University Press, the new work is a scholarly study of the part played by Professor Robinson in the formation of new concepts in regard to the teaching of history.

Dr. Hendricks brings out the fact that it was Robinson, the Columbia professor, who spearheaded the attack upon the common nineteenth-century practice of blindly following textbook material, which was largely devoted to the military and political history of man, to the neglect of the social, cultural, and economic forces lying behind the development of modern civilization. Through the media of his own textbooks, lectures, and membership in various and numerous professional committees, Robinson demolished outmoded concepts and practices while laying the groundwork for the "new history," of which he was the chief advocate.

Dr. Hendricks, New at Edinboro

A recent addition to the E.S.T.C. faculty, Dr. Hendricks states that his interest in Robinson came as a result of graduate studies, in the field of history, at New York University and Columbia University. It was from the latter institution that the author received the Doctor of Philosophy degree in April of 1946. It was also at this time that Dr. Hendricks was teaching various courses in history, economics, and sociology, at the School of Education, New York University. At Edinboro, American history, sociology, and ethics are the subjects taught by this member of the social studies department.

Prior to his entering the collegiate field, Dr. Hendricks had a wide range of experience in public-

BONNELL, FORMER GI EDITOR

Mr. Lowder, advisor, has just announced that John E. Bonnell, former editor of "The Echelon," a G. I. newspaper, has been appointed to the co-editorship of "The Spectator." Bonnell advanced rapidly from positions as reporter and associate editor to his present responsible job as co-worker with Joe Spence.

A graduate of Hackettstown (N. J.) High School in 1939, Bonnell later attended night classes at Churchman Business College at Easton, Pa., while working for a dental-supply company. Following his entrance into the Army in 1943, he was sent to Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, under the A.S.T.P., in order to study basic engineering. He later served in the quartermaster corps and in the ordnance department, finally ending up with the occupation forces in Germany.

It was while he was stationed at Pforzheim (near Stuttgart) that Bonnell worked on "The Echelon," serving first as sports editor, then as news editor, and finally, as College instrumental and vocal groups will combine to give their annual Christmas Concert in the College Auditorium at four o'clock next Sunday afternoon. An outstanding program composed of appropriate Christmas and sacred music has been prepared under the direction of Mrs. Esther Campbell, Director of Music.

Always an event of major importance in the pre-Christmas season, a large audience of students and friends of the College is expected at this year's concert. Following the usual custom, a silver offering will be taken.

toire are the portrayal of scenes from such plays as "Idiot's Delight," "Pygmalion," and "Little Women," as well as readings and clever monologues from a variety of sources.

Miss Enders, a graduate of the Rollins Academy of Acting in New York City, has appeared on Broadway in "The American Way" and has starred in many other famous plays in different sections of the country. Press comments have been overwhelmingly laudatory. A typical one: "Best program of the year. Ruth Enders charmed and won the audience with her artistry and versatility."

A Christmas Wish

Once again we observe the birth of the "King of Kings," or what we call Him today — "The Prince of Peace!" This is really the first real Christmas in quite some time. Most of us are going to spend our first Christmas at home since the war.

The war is over, and world conditions are getting better. Let's really sing "Peace On Earth And Good Will To Men" — with a spirit that will last forever.

Perhaps Old Santa is far from your thoughts, but there's really something to him — whether he's retained in your family circles or not. Carols can be sung with the same spirit of years ago. And, yes, the Christmas "goodies" will still fill us — everything from turkey to Mom's plum pudding.

So let's get home and enjoy the best Christmas in years and bring the New Year in with a jovial and hilarious time. Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Welcome - 1947

After years of keen observation — often involving late night work with no overtime pay — we have found one answer to the poet's question, "What is so rare as a day in June?" Our answer: a New Year's resolution that is kept as long as the end of January.

By the use of mathematical methods which would drive Dun to drink and cause Bradstreet to leap through his skyscraper office window, we have so classified our statistics that they reveal the following disheartening truth. Only a fraction of one percent of all resolutions made survive their maker's early morning hours of celebration.

The obvious futility of making resolutions however, does not deter us from indulging in this annual sport. Our resolutions are unique; breaking them will make no difference to anyone. We therefore resolve:

To open a textbook sometime every day, always taking care to avoid mental exertion before and after meals as well as before bedtime. This adherence to the rules of good health should leave just enough time between eating and sleeping for us to browse through "Newsweek" and the "Plain-Dealer."

To stifle our laughter over the blatant wisecracks by Kilroy and all his ghost-writers. If they are encouraged, it soon may become impossible for us to distinguish legitimate bulletin-board announcements from the masterpieces by Smoe, Luke, Clem, and the rest of the corps.

To take no sides in strikes. Anyone who boldly states that the welfare of the country should take precedence in labor-management disputes, exposes himself to the talents of the best name-callers in the business. We heard about one columnist who wrote along these lines. After he had absorbed such flattering cognomens as labor-baiter, Wall Street tool, international banker, and reactionary, from one camp, he was bombarded from the other side with tender names like un-American, enemy of free enterprise, Moscow stooge, and Red.

With the above listed vows in mind, we say, "Welcome 1947. May we pass all January exams without sacrificing any beautiful Yak Chilon."

It is our suspicion that a bit of old-fashioned "boning up" will be more effective anyhow.

Roving Reporter

by JACK OWEN

Christmas is almost here, and everyone is making lists and wondering what he can give friends and relatives. Santa Claus has to have a list of gifts, too; so the Roving Reporter volunteered to help him find out what some of the students at Edinboro would like to find in their stockings on Christmas morning. All last week the Roving Reporter was roving around the campus with a crimson countenance asking nearly everyone he met, "What do you want Santa Claus to bring you for Christmas?" Here are what some of the members of this institution of higher learning would like to see protruding from their stockings on December 25.

Peg Gedeon — "I can't think of anything I'll bet my mother would like to hear me say that."

Don Cherrie — "A few good grades in the coming semester exams."

Bill Loury — "Hmmm. That's a good question. A rubber balloon—a blue one."

Ada Belle Gollmer — "What a question! I haven't even thought about it. Oh, a nice pair of ice-skates and a book with lots of pictures — I'm getting tired of reading."

Willie Bennett — "A 1947 Buick convertible with red leather seats. I don't know how he'll get it down the chimney though."

Alline Eichhorn — "Oh dear! That will require deep thought. A fur coat would be just lovely. I've always wanted an onyx ring."

James DeConna — "A nice two-room apartment right next to the college."

Ray Zimmer — "Bring me my new car and a good report card."

Peg Gillespie — "Well, nothing much in particular, everything in general."

George Pinkoski — "A nice blonde about 5'4" and about 115 pounds."

Paul Zarenko — "I'd like to have a new car I like the Lincoln pretty well. Not a convertible — just a five-passenger."

Miss Forness — "Just a little peace and quiet for two weeks."

Miss Baron — "I'd like to have a new car, but I know that's impossible. Maybe if someone would do something with John L. Lewis, I could get a car."

Den Unangst — "I'm thinking! I'm thinking! Take it easy! A nice big — No!!! A good dairy farm and I'll be satisfied."

George Kandra — "What's a good answer? Never gave it a thought. Just being able to spend another Christmas at home. The first since '42."

Lucille Bowman — "Well. Hmm. An 'A' in Biology most of all. After that golf clubs and a fur coat, but the 'A' comes first. I hope Dr. Johnson sees this. Maybe he'll take pity on me."

Priscilla Worster — "Now let me see. Well, I've a fur coat I guess what I want most is my big blond man to be with me always. And a Merry Christmas for everyone else."

Robert Simpson — "A longer time to sleep in the mornings and hey—how about one of those sharp shirts like the girls are wearing?"

Grace Young — "What would you say if I said I didn't have any particular wants?"

Ann Johnson — "That's a hard question. Now don't put that down, you dumb thing! I want a copy of Dvorak's "New World Symphony" album, and I want all the rest to be a big surprise, which it probably will be."

Eunice Theobald — "Well, a radio, two suitcases, a pair of shoes, evening gown, a man, and a dance to go to with the man and the evening gown."

Druth McClure — "Some good books, a ready-made encyclopedia of psychological terms, clothes, a pretty pair of slacks like Pogy's. There's a lot more I want along the lines of clothes and like that —and, oh yeah—a deck of pin-ochle cards."

Bill Bechman — "I want Betty to go home with me for a Christmas present."

"Crash" McCoy — "More publicity!"

Jack Bonney — "I know what I want Good ice-skating weather and plenty of good cats."

Lew Ploch — "A new pair of ice skates complete with red-head. Especially the ice skates."

Jim Albright — "Oh, my achin' back. A book on how to do plane trigonometry in six easy lessons."

Albert Hoffman — "Yi, Yi, Yi. There must be something important in life; isn't there? How about some quiet place of refuge where women are unknown."

"Geo Gee" Houghton — "A black velvet dress and some money to buy my mommie a Christmas present."

Connie Killingsworth — "I don't want anything from Santa Claus. I just want to go home."

There's the list; so you can see what poor old Santa has to contend with. If anyone has any old 1947 Buicks or Studebakers sitting around, don't let them just sit there and rust; Santa needs them, as you can see.

Your Roving Reporter will be back again in 1947, but until then, he wishes you a Very Merry Christmas and the Happiest of New Years!

 editor-in-chief. "The Echelon" was an eight-to-ten page weekly, with a circulation of about five thousand copies. Bonnell's newspaper duties were brought to a close when he was returned to the United States for discharge. This hard-working newshound expects to study journalism at Penn State in future years.

Mistletoe & Holly

by DOLLY JOHNSON

The mistletoe hung in the castle hall,
 The holly branch shone on the old oak wall.
 Thomas Haynes Bayly — "The Mistletoe Bough."

I heard the bells on Christmas Day
 Their old, familiar carols play,
 And wild and sweet
 The words repeat
 Of peace on earth, good-will to men!
 Longfellow — "Christmas Bells"

"What means this glory round our feet,"
 The Magi mused, "More bright than morn?"
 And voices chanted clear and sweet,
 "Today the Prince of Peace is born."
 Lowell — "Christmas Carol"

Let's dance and sing and make good cheer,
 For Christmas comes but once a year.
 G. MacFarren — From "A Fragment."

The time draw near the birth of Christ:
 The moon is hid; the night is still;
 The Christmas bells from hill to hill
 Answer each other in the mist.
 Tennyson — "In Memoriam"

As many mince pies as you taste at Christmas,
 So many happy months will you have.
 An Old English Saying

It hath been writ that anye manne
 May blameless kiss what mayde
 ne canne;
 Nor anyone shall say hym "no"
 Beneath the holye mistletoe.
 Oliver Herford — "The Enchanted Oak"

The sound effects, by Richard Bonnett, and the lighting, provided by Arthur Jarvis, gave an ancient atmosphere to the realistic setting. Costumes and properties, prepared under the direction of Anna Johnson and Adrian Sorenson, respectively, were appropriately colorful and in keeping with the spirit of the play. CAMBRIDGE PARADE

by HUGH HACKETT

The new oil burner at the Fleischer Hotel seems to be having a rough time orienting itself to the problem of heating the place. Rumbling and growling, it makes the most stouthearted men flustered. Johnny Doyle, Gray Mattern, Ivor Jones and Jerry Byrem have gone to some expense to equip their room with a knotted rope fire escape for a quick exit.

While we are in the cellar, thanks to Mr. Babb, the custodian, for his extra time spent in improving and furnishing the swell new shower room.

Consolations to Don Fargo, who forgot his shotgun barrel and also his pants in his frantic rush to reach Norristown, Pa., for his Thanksgiving vacation. His girl didn't seem to miss the gun barrel, but she certainly was embarrassed at the movies Saturday night. (He wore his dungarees.)

Carl Peterson thinks that the Bartlett Hotel is just like home — now. He says it was a flat tire that caused him to get home so late the other night. Nevertheless, he still had to climb into a window to get to bed. It seems the owner of the hotel believes in locking up at night.

The fellows staying at the Riverside Hotel have been very quiet lately; even "Solid Crash McCoy" hasn't been operating.

"Tummy" Martin, the original mind who discovered "Nadium Sotratec," the ninety-eighth element, is now entranced by "Houdini's Escapes and Magic." He says he will gladly give lectures and demonstrations at any time to anyone. He is also available for quotations from "Medisiba." Timmy is working on a unique alarm clock. Watch this column for news of its development.

Jimmy Stefens (Ike) says, as an excuse for missing a few classes last week, "I got my dear on Saturday, and here's my hunting license to prove it." He got married Saturday, so he must have been hunting for some time after all.

ence Weyrauch, makeup, Madeline Ledwick, tickets; Joe Spence, posters; Therese Malinowski, programs; and Floyd Nesbitt, usher.

Dan Susi, drummer, gave excellent background effects with his percussion instrument.

The cast of "At The Sacred Well" is as follows:

Hunaphu, the father, William Hunt; Tayalak, the mother, Mary Frances Matney; Chacomal, the son, E. Clyde Snyder; Yak Chilon, the daughter, Annette Henness; Yen Maak, Uncle-Priest, Malcolm Yaple; Izumna, a story-teller, Vincent Salmon; Gugumatz, Governor of the City, Nestor Bleech; Ixkaka, son of the governor, Ted Levi; Otan, a matchmaker, James Currie.

PRIESTS: George Freeland, Joseph Grube, Robert Wallace, John Plucinski, Adrian Sorenson, Malcolm Yaple.

MAIDENS WHO SPEAK: Margaret Gilbody, Rita Kennedy, Roberta Rohrer, Jane Venman.

Barbara Yocum.

SPECTATORS: Virginia Batchelor, Lois Braham, Gloria Dennis, Martha Evans, Dolly Johnson, Louise Kaufman, Helen Elaine Kelly, Janice Lytle, Patricia McNarney.

SWIMMERS: Richard Bonnett, Margaret Gillespie, Annette Henness, Gretchen Houghton, Cornelia Killingsworth, Margaret Stormer, Madeline Ledwick, Walter Linburg, Dorothy Peplinsky, William Smith, E. Clyde Snyder, Jane Twitchell, Richard Young.

Miss Ludgate says that much credit should be given to the sixty-odd students, other than the cast, who worked so hard on the production.

ESTC Off-Campus Classes Conducted Far-Flung Program

by JOHN B. BONNELL

The tremendous expansion of facilities which was accomplished on Edinboro's campus last September received a fair amount of well-deserved publicity. Comparatively little, however, has been said about the far-flung program of extension classes being conducted by E.S.T.C. in the major cities of northwest Pennsylvania.

Teachers who served in the armed forces and college graduates and undergraduates who wish to continue their studies constitute the bulk of the 150 extension students. The present courses, which are scheduled to run from September to January, are worth three semester-hours of credit.

A total of ten afternoon and seven evening classes meet each week in Franklin, Titusville, Sharon, Warren, Erie, and Meadville.

The following schedule, furnished by Dr. Offner, discloses the wide range of subjects being offered off-campus this term.

Franklin: Educational Psychology, Dr. LaFollette; Economics, Mr. J. A. Reed; American Literature, Miss Ruth Morton; Educational Measurements, Mr. Ellenberger.

Titusville: Geography of the U. S. & Canada, Dr. Offner; U. S. History Before 1865, Dr. Hendricks.

Sharon: Philology & Grammar, Mr. Zahniser; History of U. S. & Pa., Dr. Offner; Abnormal Psychology, Dr. Butterfield; U. S. History After 1865, Dr. Hendricks; Modern Novel, Mr. Lowder.

Warren: Social & Industrial History of U. S., Mr. Neal; Philology & Grammar, Miss McDonnell. Meadville: World Literature, Mr. Book; Adolescent Psychology, Miss Whitney.

Erie: World Literature, Mr. Book; Educational Psychology, Mr. Mallory; U. S. History After 1865, Mr. Griffin; Ethics, Dr. VanHouten.

'Tis Better To Give

"Ike" Steffen, the Eternal Philanthropist, has been showering humanity with numerous gifts lately.

On Saturday, Nov. 30, "Ike" gave his name away — yes, his very name, to his childhood sweetheart. When he came back to school on Monday, he bestowed cigars on all who came within arm's reach of him. They were good cigars — good and strong. Mr. Griffin was presented with one of the post-nuptial rolled weeds; but we doubt that Mr. Griffin has indulged because as yet he hasn't missed a day of school.

Edinboro should be proud indeed of having such a bountiful personage as Mr. Steffen on the campus. Besides his innumerable personal gifts, "Ike" is also a generous "E" Club booster.

On December 17, 1935, Richard Halliburton, the unforgettable writer and traveler, spoke to the students of Edinboro about his experiences.

Campbell Unseats Champion In Tennis Court Competition

ROHRER WINS GOLF TROPHY

Ruth Campbell, a sophomore, won the autumn open-tennis tournament on December 5. Betty Gross, who won the tournament in 1945, finished second this year. A total of 32 girls participated.

The tournament, consisting entirely of singles, was completed on outdoor courts in this unusually temperate fall.

Betty Price, who had never picked up a tennis racket until this autumn, made a notable achievement when she remained in the competition to become a semi-finalist.

Spring Tournament Planned
A series of tennis matches, which will include women's singles, doubles, and the selection of a men's varsity to play other colleges, is being planned for the coming spring.

Rohrer Tops Golfers
Out of 21 beginning girl golf players, 11 qualified for the recent four-day play-offs.

Roberta Rohrer, whose score was lowest, won the trophy, which is a key having a golf engraving on it.

Gloria Dennis was the second lowest scorer. The advanced golfers' low score medal was won by Lois Jean Byers.

Henness Cops Hockey Award
A four-year hockey trophy has been awarded to Annette Henness.

This distinction has gone only to six Edinboro students in the last 11 years.

The varsity hockey award, which is a 10-karat gold pin, has been earned by Yvonne Davis, Shirley Hazen, Joyce Weldon, Betty Deeter, and Madeline Ledwick.

The bronze two-year award, based on faithful attendance at practice, and participation in a varsity game, has gone to Katherine Bartoo, Clea Johnson, Druth McClure, Wilma Fox, Anna Johnson, Dona Flower Marilyn Palmer, Nancy Spraggon, Dorothy Peplinsky, Barbara Buckley, Mary Jane Rozelle, Jennie Sokolowski, and Jeanne Kennedy.

News Briefs

ity will gather at the Culbertson Hills Country Club tomorrow night for a dinner meeting of the Edinboro Chapter of the Alumni Association. Mrs. Royce Mallory is secretary-treasurer of the local chapter.

Dr. Ernest R. La Follette will speak to the members of Phi Sigma Pi next Monday evening. He will discuss photography and movie-taking.

Dr. L. H. Van Houten, E. S. T. C. president, and Mr. C. W. Ellenberger, supervising principal of the Training School, recently gave talks at a conference of Area II of the Erie County Branch of the Pennsylvania State Education Association. The meeting was held in Edinboro High School.

Miss Portz, Secretary to the President, has placed a number of U. S. Department of Agriculture pamphlets on the long table in the main hall of Normal Hall. Among these are "Making a Dress at Home," "Mending Men's Shirts," "Meats for Thrifty Meals," and numerous others, which should be of special interest to faculty wives and to the wives of married students.

A number of student meetings and faculty conferences were scheduled for this morning's assembly period.

Dr. Van Houten has stated that there will be no assembly next Wednesday morning. Instead, classes will be moved forward one period to allow additional time for students to make earlier buses and trains when they leave for the holidays.

Directly following the holidays, three students of speech will present, under the direction of Miss Ludgate, a series of interpretations. George Freeland will perform on Tuesday, the 7th of January, while Janet Melvor and Madeline Ledwick will follow on Friday, the 10th. Each performance will be divided into five separate selections: a play cutting, a narrative poem, a lyric poem, a monologue, and a short story, unified to present a blended whole. Everyone is cordially invited.

Reminder: Camera Club Contest closes next Wednesday.

Next Friday evening the Red Raiders take to the water in a swimming meet with Buffalo State Teachers College.

Thirteen men have been splashing the water around in the gym's pool for the last month or so. Mickey Schindwein is the instructor of this capable squad. He knows swimming well enough to take over those duties efficiently.

Swimming is not like playing tiddly-winks. When one is in the water, the only thing holding him up is buoyancy (some people seem to have very little of that). Treading water is easy; but when the factor of forward progress over this aqueous medium is added, it complicates things. Yes, practically all of us can swim. The only time an average swimmer would swim for speed would be to rescue a drowning young lady (beautiful, of course). Try swimming to save a more intangible thing — time. Have your water wings along, just in case.

The men on the team don't have a picnic. For 15 minutes they have calisthenics. For five more each man bounces up and down in and out of the water to build up his wind. Sometime during the training some of the "ducks" swim while using only their arms, their feet being attached to a rope which is held stationary. All contestants must race against time in their particular events at least twice. Then there is a little matter of 11 to 22 lengths of the pool to be swum. (60 ft. per length). —Fun? You can be sure that Buffalo will know that they have had some good competition after Friday's meet. Confidence is high for victory.

The members of the team are Abbott, Badgley, Barker, Bruker, Eisaman, Kosanovic, Lindburg, Long, Meyers, Schindwein, Venick, Warren, and Young, who will participate in the following events: 60 yd., 100 yd., 140 yd., 200 yd. breast, 220 yd., 440 yd., backstroke, relay, medley, and diving.

Courtsters To Meet Buffalo On Friday

Raider dribblers will journey to Buffalo State Teachers College, Buffalo, N. Y., on Friday for their first tilt of the season. They will follow their schedule with an engagement on Saturday with Fredonia Teachers. After weeks of hard work-outs, under Coach "Sox" Harrison, the Raiders are prepared for a promising season.

school instruction, a prerequisite to teachers-college work in this state. Not entirely preoccupied with educational matters, however, Dr. Hendricks professes a keen interest in hunting, fishing, and gardening. Brief ventures in building and in poultry-raising have varied his career. The presence of Mrs. Hendricks and four-year-old Barbara at Dr. Hendricks' Meadville Street residence attests to the fact that Edinboro's new instructor is a versatile individual.
