Twelve revisions proposed

By PHILIP BURLINGAME
News Editor

Publicity has appeared in the Eagle Eye and on posters around campus in the past few weeks for a student referendum scheduled for October 19. Students will vote on whether or not to accept a package of revisions to the constitution of the Student Co-Operative Council: a pretty important decision when consideration is given to the fact that the SCC spends approximately $250,000 of student activity money and student owned funds every year.

A list of recommended revisions have been posted on campus bulletin boards since late September but the actual proposed changes are somewhat masked by the reality that very few students have ever seen a copy of the SCC constitution.

There are only 12 proposed revisions of article subsections listed on the posted recommendations. All of the recommendations were submitted by the SCC's Ad Hoc ("for that purpose" or temporary committee) Constitutional Revisions Committee and have been approved by the executive committee of the SCC.

Perhaps the most functionally important proposed change is one that would specify a line of succession for executive committee officers-elect. This would permanently eliminate last years election confusion when the president-elect resigned before actually assuming his office. Nobody was sure who would replace Joe Eucalano as president when his term ran out, because the wording of the constitution was unclear and subject to misinterpretation. This revision would simply make the line of succession for officers apply equally to officers-elect.

Another proposed revision would require executive committee candidates to obtain 200 student signatures on a petition before being eligible to run for office. A similar proposed would require senate candidates to obtain 50 signatures at least three days prior to the election.

Annual parade to be held this Saturday

By KEITH VERNON

This year's annual Homecoming Parade, to begin at 11 am, Saturday October 16, will have a total of thirteen floats and three marching bands. The theme of the parade will be "Decades Past."

Linda Kibbe, coordinator of the 1976 parade, expressed confidence about its success. "I think it will be a very nice parade. I'm very happy about the number of floats", stated Kibbe.

The parade will start from the Keystone Vocational School in downtown Lock Haven at 11 am. From there it will proceed down Water Street to Jay Steet, come back up Main Street to Bellefonte, and then up Bellefonte to Spring Street. According to Kibbe, the parade should come through the Lock Haven State College campus at

OCA plans additional student services

By KEITH VERNON
Staff Reporter

The Off Campus Association (OCA), now in its second semester of existence, is attempting to assist and give a voice to Lock Haven State College students living off campus.

The OCA, an SCC standing committee, assists off-campus students with problems unique to those not living in the dorms. The chairperson of the OCA, Jayne Bolduc, listed renters' rights, apartment pitfalls and the reputability of landlords as three of the most important issues that off-campus students should be informed about. All three of these issues are covered in the already completed housing booklet which the OCA plans to publish in the near future.

"Too many students," said Bolduc, "are ignorant of their rights as renters. Also, most students have no way of knowing in advance which landlords they should try to avoid. The OCA will hopefully be able to educate current and future off-campus students in these and other areas."

The OCA also hopes to assist non-dormers in the areas of nutrition and legal advice. "Not everybody knows how to plan their menu in order to get the nutrition they need," stated Bolduc. "There have been cases in the past where people became sick because they weren't eating properly. Some people might say that eating properly just means staying out of the cafeteria. Nevertheless we plan to bring in speakers to educate off-campus students on what kind of things they should be eating."

Other services that the OCA will try to provide are: public transportation to take students to Penn State and other places in the area, day care centers for students with children, a moving committee to assist students in moving heavy furniture, assistance in evacuation during floods, local business discounts and help-approximately five minutes after 11.

The floats are going to be judged from the Bentley Hall patio by a panel of several judges who have yet to be chosen. The four best floats will win trophies contributed by the SCC. "We have had prizes donated by the president of the college, the Alumni Association, the County Commissioner, the Inter-Fraternity and Panhellenic councils," said Kibbe.

"All clubs and organizations that are listed on Dave Arsenault's activities list were invited to enter a float," stated Kibbe. Each organization and club that makes a float will be reimbursed up to $25 by the SCC.

Dr. Harold C. Wiser will be this year's parade marshal. The three bands that will be marching in the parade are: The Jersey Shore High School Marching Band, the Montoursville High School Marching Band and the Lock Haven State College Marching Band.

election discrepancies the duties of the election committee would be expanded by the revisions. The election committee would be responsible for checking every candidate to ensure that he is in good academic standing as determined by the Vice President of Academic Affairs and that he has paid his activity fee to become a general member of the SCC. Both of these requirements are strictly mandated by the present constitution but no mechanism presently exists for enforcement.

The duties of the three of the seven officers in the SCC executive committee will also be changed if the referendum passes.

The revisions would also require a 2/3 majority approval by the senate before the annual budget could be passed. Presently only a simple majority is required.

Finally the revisions would change all uses of "his" or "chairman" to "his/her" and "chairperson" to remove all sexist stigmas and neuterize the constitution.

An important footnote about these proposals is that they are only recommendations. Any student who wishes to further revise the present constitution may submit ideas by attending an open SCC meeting to night at 7 pm in the PUB south lounge. All proposals submitted at that time will be debated and voted on by the SCC Senate.

The final approved revisions will be offered to the student body for ratification on Tuesday, October 19.

ing the off-campus students to have a voice in local government.

Bolduc is urging all current and prospective off-campus students to get involved in the OCA. "It would be nice to see a lot of active members," said Bolduc, "those who would be involved in committees and would regularly attend OCA meetings. At the same time we'd also like to encourage those people who have a particular complaint, to come to the meetings without fearing any sort of obligation."
