Scott Presses Flesh at Flaming Foliage Festival

by David C. Heverley

Sunday, October 14, United States Senator Hugh Scott spoke in Renovo at the 25th anniversary of the Flaming Foliage Festival.

The speech was the usual bland and noncommittal speech that politicians are famous for. The only statement that elicited any strong reaction was when he made a snipe at the media by saying that, "the initials of this country were not C.B.S. - - but U.S.A." The crowd responded with the profuse banging together of hands.

The Senator's appearance really provided the local Republicans with someone to gravitate toward when the cameras started clicking. The real news was to be had at a press conference that the Senator held. The following is a distillation of that question and answer period.

The first questions at the press conference concerned, predictably, the recent nomination of Gerald Ford as Spiro Agnew's replacement as Vice-President. "I think," said the Senator, "that we should finish the process of investigation in about three weeks. I don't expect the confirmation hearing itself to take more than two days."

"Gerald Ford already has the support of most of the Congress," said Scott. So far, only one Congressman, a rather goofy type from Massachusetts, has said that he won't support the nomination. I think that's a pretty cheap way to get a headline, but then, you're bound to have a few oddballs in any game."

Scott said that in a two hour Senate Rules Committee meeting on Saturday, the confirmation hearings should be televised. "It will give the country the chance to see that we will have a Vice-President that will be received with high acclaim - not only in the Congress, but in the nation generally," continued the Senator.

Scott also said that the investigation of Ford will be the, "most carefull ever made by the Congress." Not because Ford warrants such an investigation but because the job demands it.

"I don't think he thinks he's a candidate," said Scott in reply to the question concerning Ford's plans for 1976. "I think that by next month he'll be a little less sure. His being a candidate depends on whether or not a movement springs up around him - and there's no way of telling that yet."

Concerning last weeks speculation over his chances of becoming the nominee, Scott said that he had, "the best job in the world. I have the job I wanted - to be one of the 100 men who turn the wheel of government."

The Senator said that the Agnew resignation took him by surprise. "I was certain that he was going to fight it out. I was there in Los Angeles when he said that he wasn't going to resign."

When asked about Watergate, Scott said, "I think we're on our way out of the woods now." Continuing, he said that only one man, John Dean, has involved the President while 40 other witnesses have not. He went on to call Dean a "confessed felon, a perjurer and a general turncoat."

In answer to questions concerning the recent developments in the Middle - East, Scott said that, "the US is likely to arrange some resupply of lost equipment to Israel." He also stated that, while he was not free to give any details, the US and the Soviet Union were in contact with one another several times a day and were probably well aware of each other's actions. Every action that can be taken without involving the United States in a war is being taken.

Scott continued by saying that he felt "this war, in a rather dreadfull way, will have a permanent effect. Maybe its outcome will be so decisive that the intermediaries will have better luck in bringing Israel and the Arab world together."

In reference to a related question, the energy crisis, the Senator said, "We are dependent upon the Middle - East for only about ten percent of our oil supplies. Some people are going to be cold this winter, but we can survive a ten percent reduction."

"Oil is sold for money," continued Scott, "and if it stays in the ground, it doesn't increase the wealth of the people who own it. They're going to have to sell it to someone, somewhere, somehow. I don't believe that this type of bargining of theirs is going to work."

Stitch in Time

By Marlene Davy

So many times, in so many places, one might see a name attached to a painting, a newspaper article, or numerous other things and never know exactly who that person was or why he did the particular piece that was there. So as a word to any LHS student who has seen the stitchery designs by Dr. Nik Krevitsky read on.

Dr. Krevitsky is known the world over as an artist and educator. He is director in the art department of the Tucson Schools and has written many books on stitchery and batiking for school use. He is well known for his stitchery and has won many awards for enameling on steel.

Dr. Krevitsky's work has been shown in many museums and art shows across the United States. He has been a representative at the UNESCO INSTITUTE for Education in Hamburg, Germany and supervised the United States pavilion at the International Trade Fair in Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

As an educator, Dr. Krevitsky has been a leader in American art. He has participated in the following professional art organizations in various capacities: the National Committee on Art Education, the Pacific Arts Association, the Arizona Art Education Association, and the Arizona Designer-Craftsman.

Ben Franklin Would Have Been Proud

By JoAnn Morse

A play with a great deal of meaning, presented with moments of humor, tenderness and seriousness. The play is "Philadelphia, Here I Come!" which opened Monday night at 8:00 in Price Auditorium.

The cast, who performed to about 100 people, were required to use many different acting techniques and play some very difficult roles. The part of Madge, played by Miss Deborah Klens was extremely well done. She delivered her lines very well and it was unfortunate that so many of her sarcastic remarks weren't picked up. Deb kept the role of Madge at all times and was great with facial expression and body gestures. Charles Charette and Brian Stoppe were the main characters, and portrayed public and private Gareth O'Donnell. Both actors were too fast at the beginning and this hurt certain scenes because many lines were unclear. As the play developed so did the two characters. Charles Charette was very good with gestures and they seemed to come naturally to him. Many of the dramatic scenes done by both men were brilliantly executed.

Mordecai Lipshultz had the part of S.B. O'Donnell, Gareth's father. He played the role well but at times his thick Irish accent made lines hard to understand. For the most part Mordecai moved about the stage freely and in complete control of his role.

Though all cast members have had stage experience before, three members of the cast had large parts for the first time. Kale Doogan, played by Helayne MacArthur was a nice job but Helayne seemed a little unsure of what she could actually do. Senator

Doogan, played by Ben Aptaker delivered lines quite well but was very stiff with his body gestures. Cindy Probst had the role of Lizzy Sweeney, which was a very emotional role and to me required an actress with more stage experience. Cindy came across with her role of Lizzy at times but at other moments didn't maintain her character.

Supporting Lizzy Sweeney were the two roles of Con Sweeney and Ben Burton, played by Gary Mazzu and Don Keefer respectively. Both actors did their job well, as it could have been very difficult.

I must praise the three actors who played Gareth's friends. Gary Robinson was particularly good and the part was a difficult one to portray. Kim Coon and Jim Shannon helped a great deal in their support. All three used body gestures and facial expressions extremely well especially when their roles called for no words.

Stephen Culp played the role of Master Boyle while Bernie Gillott played Conon Mick O'Bryne. Both actors did well but Steve often lost his Irish accent.

Set for the production was nicely designed. Everything on stage served a special purpose. For the little space the set crew had to work with, a very fine job was done. A dark stage effect used by prop and set members added effectively to the play but props occasionally moved around noisily and this took some of the effect away.

Costumes in the production were appropriate. They played a major factor in emphasizing the role of a character. The technical aspects of the play could be better. Precision was of particular importance in some scenes and it didn't always come through. At one point in the second act all aspects of the play clicked together and created a scene with tremendous impact.

The play was good. Some made comments that the story of the play dragged on. To this reporter it was hard to believe the difference in the two acts. It may have been due to opening night jitters but things seemed to come alive in the second act. Dr. Dany's Gary should be proud of the show as the second act displayed the actual talent that was on stage.

Quicksilver Comes Choir Goes

By Bill McComas

As the rest of the students body was preparing for homecoming, 10 members of the LHS concert choir rehearsed for the Pennsylvania Collegiate Choral Festival to be held this year at Slippery Rock State College. According to Lock Haven's choir director Gary Renzelman, this activity provides an opportunity for selected students in vocal music to participate in a demanding musical performance of high quality. The music ranges from the contemporary "Antiphona DeMorte," to Brahms' "Der Abend." The featured work of the evening will be "Come, Jesus, Come" by J.S. Bach to be sung in the original German.

Lock Haven's representatives will leave Thursday morning for several days of rehearsal with the entire group before the concert on Saturday, October 20, in Miller Auditorium at Slippery Rock. This concert will be free of charge and open to the public, and will begin at 8:00 p.m.

This intercollegiate festival has been taking place at various colleges for the past few years. Directors are chosen from among the finest choral leaders in the country. This year, Capt. Allen Crowell will be the guest director for the festival. Capt. Crowell has been involved with vocal music since earning his Masters degree from The Catholic University. In 1964 he received a commission to direct the United States Army Chorus, and in that capacity has appeared before both president Nixon and Johnson. In 1973 his choral group performed in the Rotunda of the Capitol for the services honoring former president Johnson.

List of Lock Haven's reps. to the Choral Festival. Carolyn Blair, Ken Bowley, Jane Fehrenback, Julie Gambo, Pauline Keener, David Kelly, William McComas, Farnest Naylor, Joy Shaffer, Eric Sundberg.

Educational Alternative, Try Sweden

Scandinavian Seminar is now accepting applications for its study abroad program in Denmark, Finland, Norway, or Sweden for the academic year 1974-1975. This living-and-learning experience is designed for college students, graduates and other adults who want to become part of another culture while acquiring a second language.

An initial 3 weeks language course, followed by a family stay, will give the student opportunity to practice the language on a daily basis and to share in the life of the community. For the major part of the year he is separated from his fellow American students, living and studying among Scandinavians at a "People's College" (residential school for continuing adult education) or some other specialized institution.

All Seminar participants meet at the Introductory, Midyear and Final Sessions, during which the American and Scandinavian Program Directors work closely with each student on matters related to his studies, experiences and progress. The focus of the Seminar program is the student's Independent Study Project in his special field of interest. An increasing number of American colleges and universities are giving full or partial credit for the Seminar year.

The fee, covering tuition, room, board, one-way group transportation from New York and all course-connected travels in Scandinavia is $3,000. A limited number of scholarship loans are available.

Sister Joan, A Woman Of Many Habits

by Renny Miller

While most women worry about using Miss, Mrs., or Ms., Joan Gallagher has no such problem. The reason—her other name is Sister Joan. Sister Joan, who is residing at the Immaculate Conception convent said, "Students usually do a double-take when they find out."

Energetic Sister Joan, formerly from New York, is the new Periodicals Librarian at Lock Haven. She attended St. John's University for her undergraduate work, and Rosary College for her graduate work in Library Science.

Her previous position was in a Brooklyn High School. The school, in a riot district, was closed. "I went to Chicago to visit friends," Sister Joan recalled, "and I went to a placement office." Told of an opening at Lock Haven, she applied and was accepted.

When asked how Lock Haven compared with her last job, Sister Joan explained that her previous position was not what she really liked. "I like working on the college level because the students want to learn." She went on to say, "It's not like in high school where the education is compulsory."

"I like my job, and the people are most agreeable." Her job includes renewing subscriptions and arranging periodicals, as well as helping students find what they want. "Students should not

The prizes to be awarded for the best floats are: $125- first prize, $75- second prize, $50- third prize, $25- fourth prize.

There has been a change in the parade route this year. The parade will begin at McGee Elementary School, proceeding to the college, finishing at the football stadium. The parade is expected to begin at 11 p.m. The judges will view the parade on the lawn of Bentley Hall.

Lock Haven will witness what is expected to be one of the best parades ever on Homecoming weekend. More floats, more bands, and more entries will be seen this year than ever before.

Fifteen floats will join ranks to usher in this year's Homecoming festivities. These floats, constructed by campus organizations, will depict the theme, Pioneer Days. In addition, Bell Telephone Company has entered a 50 foot float for the occasion. A special float, made by Alpha Phi Omega, will honor LHS's undefeated football team of 1957.

Such dignitaries as State Representatives Russell Letterman and Joseph Greco will be on hand for the parade. Trustees John Marshall and Joseph Whittaker are also in the event and Grand Marshall of the parade is Dr. Francis N. Hamblin.

Four bands will participate in this year's line of march. They are: Lock Haven State, Lock Haven High School, Jersey Shore High School, and Edinboro State College.

ATTENTION STUDENTS

On Thursday, October 18 there will be an election to determine the Homecoming Queen. Ballot boxes will be set up in Bentley and the PUB and will be open from 9 to 7. All students with validated ID's are eligible to vote.
