

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer

Shafer to Spend Tomorrow with Students

Friday will be a day for students to meet Gov. Raymond P. Shafer and, more important, for the Pennsylvania governor to meet the students of Lock Haven State College, according to LHS President Richard T. Parsons.

Dr. Parsons pointed out yesterday that the primary purpose of Shafer's LHS visit and tour tomorrow is not to hold a confab with the administration.

The governor wants "to get a good idea of what this campus is like," the president said.

President Parsons went on to point out that he feels the governor will be impressed by Lock Haven State campus. He cited the new building program, the lack of old and unsafe structures, and the general design of the campus as reasons for this statement. The governor's visit to Lock Haven State will be part of an on-going series of tours of each of the Pennsylvania state colleges and several other institutions of higher education throughout the commonwealth.

Shafer has already visited with students at six other schools - Edinboro, California, Shippensburg, Kutztown, and East Stroudsburg State Colleges, and Indiana State University of Pennsylvania.

The exact details of the governor's visit are not yet known. Jay Haskell, Shafer's chief itinerary secretary, was on campus Tuesday conferring with Mike McLaughlin, SCC president, on the governor's visit.

However, Haskell had to check several details of the visit with the governor, according to reports yesterday.

The governor will spend most of his brief campus visit with college students. After his airport reception by McLaughlin and the SCC recording secretary, Michelle Taddeo, the governor will meet briefly with area members of the college board of trustees. Dr. Parsons pointed out that the governor requested this meeting.

The chief executive of the commonwealth will dine in Bentley Hall, Shafer will eat in the regular dining room with LHS students, possibly those on the executive board of the student council.

Haskell, the governor's secretary, told McLaughlin that Gov. Shafer made it clear he did not wish to eat in the private dining room.

Also on the agenda for the day is an open assembly, scheduled to begin at 1:45 pm, in Bentley Hall Lounge. The governor will address the students and will then participate in a question-answer session, according to page 2

Interfaith Council Will Hold Drug Dialogue

The interfaith council has announced plans to hold a campus discussion - dialogue on narcotics. The program will be presented to all interested faculty and students on Thursday, Oct. 23, 1969 at 7:30 pm in Smith Hall Lounge.

There will be a panel of qualified men who are acquainted with the field.

Jim Daives, chairman of the council, has announced the panel members. They are trooper Richard Hunter of the narcotics division of the Pennsylvania State Police, Attorney Allan Lugg of Lock Haven, Doctor Laury Lytle of Lock Haven, Mike Martin first vice president of the SCC and Chaplain Robert Walsh of the Richview Correctional Institute.

Each of these men will give different and relevant opinions on this important and crucial topic of drugs.

The interfaith council, which meets every 3rd Tuesday of the month, is in the stage of planning other activities for the college community. Some future activities may very well be a contemporary church service off campus, campus lectures on topics in religion, a dramatic presentation, and a visiting group of seminarians. Dates and more specific information on them will be available later.

Whatever advice you give, be short.

Russell Hall Area Has Rats! - Numerous Sightings Made

by Rich Bobb

Due to some recent construction, the Russell Hall area has been the attraction of some hairy creatures - RATS.

Ever since a pipeline was uncovered and left open, numerous sightings of rats have been made around the girls dorm. With all the footsteps of college traffic, these disease infested characters still scurry around the dorm across the sidewalks and into their holes. They seem to fit right in with the hustle and bustle of campus life. The rats themselves come in all different sizes, ranging from small or average size up to ones which are a foot and a half in length.

The rats haven't attacked anyone yet, but just seem to nose around and mind their own business. It's not unlikely to see one anytime of the day or night. One morning, as a fellow sat on the steps waiting for his girl, he happened to glance down at his feet and there jumping across his toes was a big flea-bitten, licy rat. As the boy jumped up, the rat scampered on his merry way, not ever stopping to observe the obstacles he had just encountered.

A few days ago as I approached the dorm, I noticed a fellow standing on the wall at the front of Russell Hall. In his hand he had a huge board. When asked what he was doing, he replied patiently, "I'm waiting to club this rat when he comes running out."

Unreal as it may seem, the situation does exist. Perhaps when the work is completed these hairy creatures may not be seen as much. But if you're familiar with Lock Haven construction, you know we'll be seeing a lot of these sewer

Six Chosen From LHSC

Four seniors and two juniors from Lock Haven State were selected for undergraduate traineeships in mental retardation.

The seniors chosen were Miss Donna Caldwell, Miss Betsy Cameron, Miss Linda Montague and Ralph Todd.

The senior year traineeship awards are designed to give financial support to a limited number of students in special education who are working to become teachers of the mentally retarded. They receive a stipend of $800.

Recipients of the junior awards of $300 were Miss Ellen Sellers and Mrs. Joan Worcester. These traineeships were designed to recruit outstanding students into the field of education of the mentally retarded.

These trainees were selected by a committee consisting of Dr. John Bone, dean of personnel; Dr. Irene Russell, dean of teacher education and Dr. Mary Alice Smith, director of special education.

This Federal grant of $11,800 was authorized by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

varmints for a good while. Maybe the girls at Russell would be better off if they chipped in and got a pied piper.

Bookstore Giving Free Sample Kits

They're back again this year! Student sample gift packs are being distributed beginning this morning in the student coop bookstore, according to Monroe Hurwitz, bookstore manager. Hurwitz said that the gift packs, being given free of charge, will be distributed until they are gone. There are only 700 packs available, he pointed out.

The bookstore manager said that each packet contains samples of useful items.

Research Reveals Attitudes on Drugs, Sex, and Religion

(ACP) - The great majority of college students say they have never used marijuana or LSD - and don't intend to. Most also disapprove of sexual promiscuity and adhere to traditional religious beliefs.

These are some of the major findings of a nationwide survey of student attitudes toward American institutions, and of their values and beliefs. It was made at colleges and universities, large and small, public, private and religious.

Commissioned by SOC

The survey was commissioned by Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) and was made by Roper Research Associates. Although focused on male seniors in accredited four-year colleges and universities, it included, for comparative purposes, smaller but similar surveys of freshmen and alumni of the Class of 1964. In general, the three groups - freshmen, seniors and alumni - held similar views.

Students' actual experiences and attitudes toward such matters as drugs, sex and religion differ sharply from some popular impressions. On these subjects students were asked to fill out a confidential special form. This was returned to the interviewer in a sealed envelope to avoid possible embarrassment and to ensure frankness. Less sensitive subjects were surveyed by verbal interviews.

Only 24 percent of all seniors, for example, have ever tried marijuana. A majority of these have used the drug two or three times at the most. Only nine percent of the students described themselves as occasional or frequent users. LSD has been used experimentally by a very small number of seniors - 3 percent.

Activists More Inclined

Students who are highly critical of American society and those active in student political movement are more inclined to use drugs than others, Jersey Standard's study shows. But, even in this group, occasional or habitual users are a comparatively small minority.

Although most students have not used drugs and show no interest in them, there is considerable feeling that marijuana laws should be liberalized. Almost half the seniors think the sale of marijuana should be made legal but under controls such as with liquor. The same does not apply to LSD; only 7 percent would legalize its sale.

Freshmen agree with seniors in their attitudes toward both drugs. Alumni, however, take a harder line. Proposed legalized sale of marijuana is opposed by 66 percent of graduates; of LSD, by 94 percent.

Supposed "Sexual Rev."

If the supposed "sexual revolution" is really occurring on the college campus, Roper Research Associates found little evidence of it. Far from being promiscuous, most freshmen and nearly half of the seniors say that they are either opposed to pre-marital sexual relations or believe they should be limited to women they expect to marry.

Concepts of religion vary, of course, with the individual, but a majority of the of the students and alumni might be called religious. Most expressed a belief in God as either a Supreme Being or a governing force that guides the universe. God was defined in four different ways in the study. Students were asked to select the description that best expressed their views. The largest number of seniors - 33 percent - chose the most orthodox definition, "the Supreme Being who rewards and punishes."

Only 8 percent of the seniors said they belonged to no religion. Freshmen are stronger in their beliefs than seniors; alumni, less so. This would seem to indicate some lessening of faith with the passage of years.

Organized Religion Criticized

Organized religion, as distinguished from personal religious beliefs, comes in for considerable criticism from students and alumni alike. Only a minority consider it "a constructive movement responsive to the needs and mood of the times." A large majority think organized religion has only recently begun to "get with" the times or is still badly out of touch with society's current needs.

There is some indication that students' moral opposition to the Vietnam war may not be as widespread as generally supposed. This showed up when the seniors were asked to give their views on military service and the draft. Although about a third of the students expected to go into military service right after graduation, almost the same number will try to avoid it - 25 percent by legal means, 2 percent by any means, including going to jail if it comes down to that.

"Better Things to Do"

Of the anti-draft group, only 29 percent specifically cited the "immoral war in Vietnam" as the reason for their aversion to military service. A majority's reason: "I have better things to do." By "better things," they presumably referred to graduate studies or the pursuit of a chosen career. The others said frankly that they didn't want to get killed.

The survey also tends to deflate another popular impression - the prevalence of the so-called "generation gap." Fully two-thirds of the freshmen and seniors reported that they and their parents agree on most things.

The Roper study, which sampled attitudes of 1,000 seniors, 500 freshmen and 673 alumni from 96 colleges and universities in all parts of the country, was initiated in the spring of 1968 when campus unrest was attracting increasing attention.

A great deal was being written and said about students' attitudes, beliefs and grievances, but little was really known. from The Review, Washburn University, Topeka, Kansas

Sports Scene

by Larry Green

With the growing nationwide interest in professional football, I feel it is time to give the sport some mention on campus. Therefore, the Great Prognosticator will attempt to pick the winners for the remaining weeks of the professional season. Here are my picks for next Sunday in the American and National Football Leagues:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Buffalo at Miami — The Buffalo Bills, third in the Eastern Division, were beaten last week by the Oakland Raiders in a free scoring 50-21 game. The Bills need this win to stay in contention for the championship. The battling Dolphins will be trying for their first win of the season. Last week they put a scare into the strong Kansas City Chiefs before losing 17-10. I feel this game will be decided by defense and Miami has the better one. My pick — MIAMI — in an upset.

Cincinnati at Kansas City — The rookie-studded Cincinnati Bengals have lost their last three games after a fast start. The Paul Brown coached team will have to play well over their heads to beat the powerful Chiefs. However, this team has shown it has the ability to do just that. Kansas City, second in the West, is scoring off a shaky 17-10 over Miami. I look for the Chief offense to be too strong for the young Bengals; also, Kansas City has the best defense in the American League. My pick — KANSAS CITY.

Boston at New York — This game pits the winless Boston Patriots against the World Champion New York Jets. The Jets, after a slow start, took over first place with a victory over Houston Monday night. Broadway Joe had another excellent night and the Jets are on their way. Even though I would like to see the Jets beat — by anyone — I'll go with NEW YORK in a big win.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Atlanta at Green Bay — The Atlanta Falcons defeated winless San Francisco last week 21-7 for their second win of the year. The Falcons are weak on both offense and defense and it promises to be a long afternoon for them. Green Bay was beaten 34-21 at the hands of the undefeated Los Angeles Rams in a battle at L.A. However, "the Pack is Back," and I look for Bart Starr and company to have a field day on Sunday. My pick — GREEN BAY.

Detroit at Minnesota — The Detroit Lions won 13-7 over the weak Chicago Bears last week. The Lions have a weak offense but have the second ranked defense in the National League. I look for the offense to be the deciding factor as they will have to score more than their 19 point per game average to even stay on the field with Minnesota. The Vikings took over first place in the Central Division last week and hope to stay right there. The passing of Joe Kapp and the best defense in the league should lead Minnesota to a victory over the Lions. My pick — MINNESOTA.

Los Angeles at Chicago — The winless Chicago Bears lost again last week to Detroit. The Bears have both a weak offense and defense. In fact, this game might as well not be played. The powerful, undefeated Rams are on their way to the Super Bowl and it will take a miracle to stop them — not the Chicago Bears. My pick — LOS ANGELES.

New Orleans at Philadelphia — The winless New Orleans Saints will be trying to get into the win column this week. They were smashed by Baltimore last week 30-10. The Saints have a fair offense to combine with the worst defense in the league. Philadelphia has looked good at times but mostly bad. The Eagles must come up with some defense before they can become a contender. However, I feel that this will be a happy weekend in the "City of Brotherly Love." My pick — PHILADELPHIA — in a close one.

San Francisco at Baltimore — The winless San Francisco 49er's were defeated 21-7 last week. The 49er's have offensive troubles and are having problems getting started. I don't look for them to begin this week. Baltimore, after a poor start, seems to be playing better ball lately. John Unitus has regained form and is throwing better than ever. He completed his first 16 passes in a row on Sunday to set a new N.F.L. record. I look for the Colts to keep rolling. My pick — BALTIMORE.

Washington at Pittsburgh — The Washington Redskins won in a big 20-14 victory over New York on Sunday. The Vince Lombardi coached team has come on to be a contender this season. Lombardi has done a fine job in molding a team out of last year's farce. The Redskins should keep on moving this week. Pittsburgh, in the cellar of the Central Division, has not been able to put the offense and defense together this season. The Steelers will have to play way over their heads to stay on the field with the Redskins. My pick — WASHINGTON.

ROBIN HOODS? These LHS students are the targets. Instructor Gray Simons watches far from being classified as 20th century closely in hopes of helping the students Robin Hoods as was indicated by looking at improve their marksmanship.

Harriers Capture Seventh Straight Match, 19-38

The Lock Haven State cross country team won its seventh straight meet, Tuesday, defeating St. Francis of Loretto, 19 to 38. The Eagles have won 27 of their last 28 meets.

Dave Mosebrook and Steve Podgajny once again led all the way and finished in a tie for first place. Nibs Gordon and Mike Borowski finished 4th and 5th respectively, while Harry Smeltz continued to show improvement by placing 7th.

Following this, Gov. Shafer will meet with about 35 students and several faculty members in a closed seminar. Dr. Werner Barth, chairman of the college social science division, is moderating this activity.

McLaughlin will host the governor on a campus tour, including Dr. Parsons; SCC board members Mike Martin, Sue Sullivan, and Michelle Taddeo; and Eagle Eye editorial board members Al Smith and Ron Smith.

Steve Harnish and George Bower beat the fifth scorer on the St. Francis team to the tape, thereby widened the score. The pair finished in the 10th and 11th spots.

The Bald Eagles regular number six man, freshman Carl Klingaman, missed the meet because of illness.

After the meet, Coach Jim Dolan had this to say: "I was very satisfied with the performance of our boys. They were still excited about the NAIA victory and had run a hard 12 miles yesterday as a workout. With these two factors, some of the boys were partly subdued before the race. However, after the gun went off, they seemed to get back into the swing of things and come through brilliantly over the hilly St. Francis course. I was especially pleased with the performance of Steve Harnish who ran his first meet in three weeks."

The harriers next encounter will be at Millersville on Saturday for a dual meet.
