'Homecoming-74' available in booklet

By MIKE HOLTER
Contributing Editor

Want a way to remember all those eventful happenings of "Homecoming-74"? There is a better way than placing clippings from the newspaper in your scrapbook. A special Homecoming Booklet has been prepared to commemorate this three day flurry of extraordinary activities.

According to Mr. Joseph Nagy, director of the student union, 5,000 copies of the booklet will be available for students, parents, guests and returning alumni. Contents of the publication will include greetings from President Francis N. Hamblin and Student Government President Rich DeBernardo, as well as data on the marching bands participating in the band competition and information about all the major groups appearing in concert this week-end.

Mr. Nagy stated that advertising obtained from local industry and businesses will off set the cost of the booklet. But even though no price has been set for those desiring a copy, a donation for the United Way fund will be gratefully accepted by those distributing the booklets.

Since the Student Cooperative Council hasn't made a pledge to the United Way Campaign this year, contributions from this special booklet will be considered as part of our donation to the local chapter. Remember, supporting your memorabilia fetish this homecoming week-end will also help others through the United Way.

SLIPPERY ROCK: About three hundred students and area residents of Slippery Rock attended a forum to discuss the upcoming November election. Appearing at the forum were representatives of various candidates for election to statewide positions. The representatives urged students to actively take interest in the election and vote.

College Players propose Sloan Theatre be named as Manahan Memorial

A proposal for naming the new theatre in the Sloan building and re-emphasis of safety hazards were in the spotlight at the College Players' October 21 meeting.

The players unanimously recommended to name the new theatre in John Sloan Fine Arts Center in honor of Mark Manahan. Students, faculty, and administrators are asked for support naming the facility for Manahan, a theatre major and member of the College Players killed last fall in a plane accident.

A decision to once again bring the safety hazards of Price Auditorium to the administration's attention was made by the group. According to the players, broken or faulty equipment will soon cause severe accidents if repairs are not made.

A recent College Players' press release stated that little equipment in Price complies with safety standards, and although theatre faculty have informed campus administrators of dangers, no action has yet been taken. Jan Foster, College Players vice president, expressed the hope that it would not take a fatal accident to bring the seriousness of the matter to light.

The College Players will submit a list of needed repairs to Dr. Russell Milliken, and urge him to take immediate action. They also wish to inform state legislators of the problems, as well as contacting Harrisburg to urge approval of the Sloan theatrical facilities so that they do not continue to sit in their semi-useless state.

Tonight the players will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Sloan 321 to discuss progress on these matters.

Parade will be big

"We just didn't know the parade was going to be this big!" exclaimed Dave Arseneault, coordinator for this year's homecoming parade.

The parade promises to be the largest ever. Of the 53 entries, ten will be bands. The bands alone will supply 1236 participants to the parade, which will begin at 10:30 Saturday morning.

The participants will begin assembling at 9:30 on the road behind Smith Hall. The parade will march a two and one-half mile route through the city of Lock Haven, passing the college at one point in the route.

The parade will feature a variety of participants

besides the 10 bands, including several floats and horse units. The homecoming queen candidates, chauffeured by the Williamsport Corvette Club will add color to the parade along with the clown and the flower girls. The Grand Marshal will be Dr. Francis Hamblin, President of LHSC. The Honorary Grand Marshalls will be the 23 foreign students.

The SCC and the Law Enforcement will also ride in the parade, each in their respective new vans. There will be several dignitaries present, riding in chauffeured cars. It has also been rumored that a Kazoo band composed of LHSC students will end the parade.

Homecoming can only work if you make it.

Give Rogers a smile

A welcome back bash for Alumni, a "coming home" game for the gridders, feeling vibrations from performing groups while sitting on the fieldhouse floor (ears blasting), parties and more parties — whatever your conception of what homecoming should be, it's here. It's happening now.

As old friends reunite in amazement of more hair lost, longer beards grown, and weight added or subtracted, one "old friend" will be able to say he's going to be around a little longer. He may change jobs, and hopefully get a face lift, but won't be put in "permanent retirement" as had been previously feared.

With last spring's unveiling of the campus master plan, the remaining remnant of Lock Haven State's earlier days was threatened with extinction. An amphitheater was proposed to take its place, focal point for the campus green development plan which would also include a fountain and walkways. Out with the old to make way for the new, and so on.

No worry, though, for what was once an architect's dream of new buildings has been stuffed back in the files as an SHPO steps in to save the day. State Historic Preservation Officer Mr. William J. Wewer made it all possible when he declared Rogers gymnasium eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

A listing in this register is more than a ribbon and handshake, more than an honorary pin. Rogers is entitled to protection by public law and Federal grant in aids for restoration. In short, any money Lock Haven State puts forth for restoration purposes will be matched by federal funds.

Whatever makes an individual homecoming celebration special — the sports, the concerts, the new friends and old, "homecoming" as such will still be real to the older alums to whom Rogers may be the only recognizable place on campus. Admire the Sloan building's architecture, retaste the meals in Bentley Hall, once again feel the hard Stadium Seat against your bottom. Stroll over to the "Antiques and Collectables" show in Rogers gym. And when no one's looking, give him a pat or a smile as you go by. He'll always be here to come home to.

"And After I Swallowed the 97 Gold Fish, Junior, I sat on that bench right there and spit them out for 93 days."

Letter to the editor

To The Editor:

In response to the letter in the October 21 Eagle Eye. This letter was directed towards the theatre department concerning the lack of women in the first fall production: "In the Matter of J. Robert Oppenheimer". Miss Rawles: since you intend to pursue the subject then I feel I must also make my views public.

First of all you direct your attack to the theatre department in general. The theatre department in general did not select the play. The choice of the play is the responsibility of the director in Lock Haven's department. Therefore your complaint should be registered with the director — not by a public attempt at discrediting the department. Please, in the future, acquaint yourself with the methods and procedures of the people you condemn. And even though it was chosen by the director, it was not done as a conscious attempt to slight women. It was chosen as a valid work of art. But I suppose you have never made a poor choice

Second. This complaint was registered by the members of the department and the members of College Players, in particular, the women that were so neglected. If you were so concerned with your women's rights in the theatre department (a department you are not involved in, why weren't you there almost two months ago when this was being discussed? Why beat a dead horse? It was agreed by all persons involved that a show which included women should have been selected, but again, you don't seem to have any knowledge of how theatres run. When there is a large amount of money involved in a show which must go on by a specific date, you just don't scrap the weeks of preparatory work by the director, the set and costume designers. It takes a lot of work even to get to the point where a show can go into rehearsal. To change at this point delays the beginning of rehearsal another week or even two and when you are in an educational situation where others need to use the facilities, you have deadlines to meet. You cannot waste that precious time. This is a college — not an Equity Theatre where the actors can work six to eight hours daily. Therefore a longer time is needed. You just can't turn in midstream when so much work is already done — poorly chosen or not. Or didn't you stop to

This weekend will be one of the best for movies this year. Friday night and Saturday night, "Godspell," the fantastic film version of the smash stage musical, will be shown. There will only be one showing of the film each night, with showtime set for 11:00 p.m. The late hour showing is due to the concert Friday night and fireworks Saturday night.

A passion play of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, the film updated to modern New York times. The word of the New Testament is told all over New York by the disciples and their clown-like leader. Skillful use of pantomime and superb acting make this "a miracle of a movie musical." Be sure not to miss this.

Sunday night, "The Ballad of Cable Hogue" will be shown. There will be two showings, 7 and 9:30 p.m.

The film takes place at the time in American history when the "horseless carriage" was ready to replace the stage coach. A major American Western, this film is a human interest story that looks at those individuals for whom life is a constant battle for survival. Starring Jason Robards and Stella Stevens, the film is filmed with funny and sad, as well as dramatic moments.

Both films will be shown in Price Auditorium.

The game of college football has undergone tremendous changes from 50 years ago. Various backfield sets and hundreds of different plans of attack have long since replaced the old "three yards and a cloud of dust" offenses of the past.

The forward pass, a brainchild of Amos Alonzo Stagg in the early 1900's, has developed from a seldom used weapon to an exhaustive and integral part of every school's offense. Following this, the defenses have been forced to change. The new lightning of the modern offense has paved the way for the smaller and quicker brand of player to fill the shadow left by the huge, hardnosed animal of the past. It seems that the ancient style of football is forgotten forever.

However, on this past Saturday, three universities around the nation honored what was once their great past in football. Illinois, Notre Dame and Pittsburgh summoned legendary heroes out of the yellowed pages of record books to enchant the modern crowds with a little nostalgia.

At Champaign, Illinois, the immortal Red Grange revisited his old kingdom, speaking at halftime of the Illinois and Michigan State game. The sell out crowd rained a standing ovation on Grange, just as he had known in the 1920's at Illinois. Terrorizing the nation's best football teams under the alias of the "Gallop Ghost", Grange returned to the stadium that 50 years previous he had helped to open. On that long forgotten day, the Ghost romped for five touchdowns, passed for another, and gained a total of 420 yards in a 42-0 rout of rival Michigan.

In South Bend, Indiana, the people looked upon two of the surviving members of the greatest backfield in the history of Notre Dame football. Tears came to the old timer's eyes with the reappearance of one half of the devastating "Four Horseman." The two members, Jimmy Crowley and Don Miller, were once part of the unstoppable backfield that put Notre Dame on the map. It was exactly 50 years ago to the day when the famous four led the "Fighting Irish" to a 13-7 victory over unbeaten Army.

Further east, the Pittsburgh Panther fans paid tribute to the greatest running back in that school's history, Marshall Goldberg. Goldberg was a member of the legendary "Dream Backfield" of coaching great Jock Sutherland. Goldberg was the previous holder of the school's rushing mark before it was recently shattered by Tony Dorsett.

It was good to see that these schools took special moments to honor the people that once made them great.

Here is just a little note for all the followers of LHSC intramurals. Kappa Delta Rho fraternity defeated the First Floor Gross team 14-12 to take the football championship. KDR, who completed the season with a 7-0 slate, had to come from behind a 12-0 deficit to sweep the crown.

Here is how the state locals should stack up this weekend.
PENN STATE AT WEST VIRGINIA - Joe Paterno's Lions are at 5-1, and ninth in the nation. WVU is on another down year, and will go down further on Saturday.
MANSFIELD AT LOCK HAVEN - The Eagles are 0-6, but team attitude couldn't be better, if you can believe that. Coach Robert Weller has a new-look offense. Lock Haven will please him and the homecoming crowd by chalking up one in the left hand column.
PITT AT NAVY - The Panthers put it all together against Boston College last week. T. D. Dorsett is on the rampage again. Look for the Cats to sink the Midshipman.

Field hockey team shoots down Ithaca

By MARY FUESNER
Womens Sports Editor

On Tuesday, the women's field hockey teams journeyed to Ithaca and returned with two more victories to add to their records. Both the varsity and junior varsity squads went on a scoring rampage, as the "Haven" collectively tallied 15 goals to Ithaca's 5.

Pat Rudy was the first player to score for the Haven in the varsity competition. Shortly after Rudy scored, Alger of Ithaca pushed the ball past Cathy Sherman to even up the game at 1-1 halftime.

Lock Haven's Pat Ogle started the scoring in the second period. Her goal came when only 7 minutes had elapsed. Pat Moser was the next Haven player to take advantage of Ithaca's goalie. Later Pat Rudy capitalized on an assist by Pat Ogle to bring the score to 4-1. The goals by Ogle, Moser and Rudy were all made with 4 minutes of playing time. Lock Haven continued on attack as Rudy scored her third goal of the day and senior Barb Collins scored her first goal of the season with only 8 minutes left to play. The score remained Lock Haven 6 Ithaca 1 until Ithaca's Scatton scored a goal in the closing minute of the game.

Gym team needs you

If you feel comfortable on a balance beam, then the Women's Gymnastics team has a place for you. Selection of new team members will be made by Miss Lucienne A. de Wette, coach of the Women's Gymnastics team, on October 28th and 29th between 4 & 6 o'clock in the Zimmerli Gymnasium.

Practices have been held three days a week all this month. Practice time will increase to five days a week after November 4th. The Women's Gymnastics team will consist of approximately 16 to 20 members. Seven women from last year's team will be trying out.

Women's competitive gymnastics deals with 4 events: balance beam, uneven parallel bars, floor exercises and vaulting.

The women will also present about 11 Co-ed Exhibitions for local high school and schools throughout the state.

The team will compete against: Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Frostburg State College, University of Pittsburgh, Edinboro State College, Slippery Rock State College, and State University of New York at Buffalo.

"Slippery Rock will probably be the hardest of these," Miss de Wette said. "But no meet is easy."

Individual standouts of the game according to their teammates were Gale Franck, Jo Ernest, Pat Ogle and Pat Rudy.

With the victory of the game, dedicated to Jo Lerew who was unable to play because of injury, the varsity's continued on page 4

Fans are perfect players

By BILL STERNER
Staff Reporter

Athletes will be first to admit that the worst people they face in their careers are the fans. These people seem to demand excellence in every performance they view.

However, Danny Murtaugh, current manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team, analyzed the situation. Asked what would be his perfect team, Murtaugh, known for his Irish wit, stated that he would like a hitter who would club a homerun everytime he came to the plate, and a pitcher who would strike out every batter he faced. "But," the old man of baseball quipped, "I can't get them to put down their beer and come out of the stands."

think about this? So as I said, we discussed all this and decided to push ahead. Where were you?

Third - how is it your right to complain? I've never seen you do any work in the theatre. Why didn't you come an audition for "The Real Inspector Hound" which has women? But you didn't. Or, if you don't want to act, why aren't you backstage doing work? The girls in the department who did complain back in the beginning of September about the choice of "Oppenheimer" (when it was sensible to do so), still came back and did exceptionally fine technical work - work done to it's fullest and done professionally - but you weren't there. In short Miss Rowles, you were not being slighted. You have chosen not to be involved in theatre here. You have therefore placed yourself in the detached role of the audience to be shown a work of art - and, if I may be permitted to say so, a good production was presented. So, sorry to say, you have no right to complain unless you intend to get your hands dirty in the department.

And in conclusion - the MOTHER of the hydrogen bomb? We of the theatre didn't write history my dear. Cut me a break

Sincerely,
John J. Peregrin

Another jersey missing

On October fourth, campus police were notified of the theft of 13 new football jerseys and 16 practice shirts valued at $420. At that time police began an investigation into the incident and sent the information out over the N.C.I.C. system.

To aide in the investigation, campus police signed a voucher for jersey number 15, an identical shirt as those stolen from the Student Cooperative Council.

Officer Strauss recently inquired to an SCC employee whether shirt number 15 had been taken back from the police. The reply was no, and now police are investigating the theft of shirt number 15 from campus security.

Never were the young men so bold nor the maidens so fair as at Harvest when they would celebrate with feasting and games that last glorious burst of benevolence before the cold despair of Winter. Many cups were overflowing and the boards did groan with plenty. And many were the youths who made themselves men on the fields of battle for pleasure who did thereafter shine in the eyes of maidens and the stories of old men.
