First governor to visit in 19 years...

Casey presents grant to city

By John P Elder
and Emilee Groce
Staff Reporters

Wednesday marked the first time in 19 years the campus has been visited by a governor as Robert P. Casey was on campus to make a presentation of $200,000 to Lock Haven mayor Diane Stuempfle.

To welcome Casey, LHU President Craig Dean Willis presented the Governor with a bald eagle neck tie.

The grant to the city was part of the Business Infrastructure Development (BID) program created by Casey to help businesses to create more jobs. It will be used to rebuild the access road to the new Champion Parts Inc. plant on East Bald Eagle Street.

"Business is so good that the street isn't big enough for all of the truck traffic," said Casey during a speech in the Hall of Flags auditorium.

Casey said he would like to see new businesses move into the surrounding communities as well as see the existing businesses stay and prosper.

"We want to help all of our industries and do all that we can to help our companies create jobs," said Casey.

In addition to voicing an effort to create jobs, Casey noted that the kind of jobs Pennsylvania needs are of the manufacturing type rather than the current expansion of the service sector.

"Pennsylvania has always been a leader in manufacturing, and it must continue to be a manufacturing state," noted Casey.

"Government must provide the basis for the economic expansion of the future."

-Gov. Robert P. Casey

Casey termed his idea of the government promoting business as an "Economic Development Partnership."

Under this partnership, Casey claimed that government would not play a dominant role in attracting business, but would "be a strong partner in giving the private sector what it needs to do business."

Following his speech, Casey toured the computer lab on the first floor of Robinson Learning Center.

Who are you Learning abilities linked to personalit,

By Dana J. Christine
Staff Reporter

Diane Gibson, director of Student Development, recently concluded a program on self identity.

The program entitled "Who am I?" allowed students as well as faculty members, to evaluate their learning abilities in relationship to their personalities.

Gibson explained that people fall into two groups, the extrovert and the introvert. The extrovert dislikes complicated procedures, often acts spontaneously and without thinking, and tends to put things in logical order, said

Gibson.

The introvert, according to Gibson, is one who likes quiet and concentration, dislikes interruptions, and often is influenced by others to make decisions.

These two categories have different styles of learning. These include thinking, perceiving, judging, feeling, sensing, and intuitive types; includes Gibson.

Each of these characteristics has an effect on how we approach learning, says Gibson. This may not explain why particular people achieve higher grades than others, but it does account for the reason why some adapt to certain situations quicker than others.

What type of learner are you?

Thinking - approaches learning analytically and is firm-minded
Perceptive - adapts well to changing situations.
Judging - works best when following a step-by-step schedule, likes to get done quickly.
Intuitive - likes solving new problems but frequently makes mistakes.

Japanese professors investigate promotion of lifetime sports

By Robert T. Mackes
Staff Reporter

Aided by a three-year grant from the Ministry of Education in Japan, four professors from the Nara University of Education (NUE) in Nara, Japan, visited Lock Haven University recently, said Dr. Lucienne De Wette.

"They are investigating the promotion of lifetime sports in Lock Haven and Nara, Japan," said De Wette.

De Wette said that Lock Haven and Clinton County has a lot to offer its residents in lifetime sports. Some of these include sports such as hunting, fishing, swimming, golf, and tennis.

Nara has very few public recreation facilities due to lack of space, De Wette said.

"For instance, they have driving ranges on top of buildings, with huge nets to catch balls," she commented.

The four guests included Masayuki Nakamuta, Shigeo Okamoto, Yoshinori Okazawa, and Naoki Yonekawa.

NUE is one of LHU's partner institutions.

SCC votes on PUB architect

By Suzanne Bryla

The Student Cooperative Council announced the acceptance of Nu Tech's request for purchase for a study on the Parsons Union Building expansion at Wednesday's meeting.

Nu Tech is an architectural firm from Williamsport.

"They proposed a more defined portfolio and proposed prices better than the other competing firm," explained Heather Miller, a senator on the PUB Expansion Committee.

Miller continued that the decision was also partly based on the interest Nu Tech has in receiving student input.

According to Miller, Nu Tech has requested to conduct interviews with students. They then plan to take into account the student's comments, giving them a better idea for the building design.

Also, SCC discussed the tuition increase.

SCC president Troy Weaver explained that there is still a $98 increase in tuition from last year.

Since the students already paid a $150 original increase for this semester, the spring semester will be decreased $52. Thus, the tuition increased a total of $98 for this year.

The SCC decided not to take action with the proposed tuition boycott. The SCC encourages students to write their local legislator concerning next year's increased tuition.

The SCC would like to remind everyone that the Blood Mobile will be in Woolridge Hall on November 2nd and 3rd from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

On the issue of security, the bookstore now sells mace for protection of the students.

SCC would also ask that everyone try to "get out and vote" on November 8th.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I do not claim to be speaking on behalf of all independants nor on behalf of Stephanie Egelston and Dan Potts when I say there is animosity among certain members of the Greek organizations toward GDI's. I have experienced such animosity several times and I feel it is born of ignorance of what GDI actually is.

Being a GDI simply means choosing not to become a member of a sorority or fraternity. GDI is not an organization with rules and stipulations, but only friends expressing a "free choice."

In last Friday's edition of the EAGLE EYE, Thomas Seelig wrote in his letter to the Editor, "It is the goal of each Greek organization to be as popular as possible with GDI's," "...You are the people we draw from." I don't know Mr. Seelig personally. As a matter of fact, the first time I saw him was at the Homecoming ceremony two weeks ago when he so proudly pronounced himself as a brother of "The Lambda Chi Alpha" as if it were an organization blessed by God himself.

To Mr. Seelig: I as well as others took offense to your forementioned statement of drawing your members from GDI's.

Whether meant intentionally or not, your comment led us to assume that you feel GDI's are a lesser social class, leading meaningless lives waiting for a Greek organization to "save" us by choosing a select few to become members in your organizations.

As for Kristina E. Straley's off-handed comments in the same EAGLE EYE, I feel her derogatory remarks about Steph and Dan were uncalled for. They showed, not her pride in her Greek organization, but only immaturity. (Did you represent..."the entire free world?")

To Kristina: I believe you gravely misunderstand Steph's remarks about working harder than most of the other candidates. If you had bothered to ask Steph privately, what she meant by her comment, your letter would not have been necessary.

I think what Steph meant by her comment was because of the request that a GDI couple not be able to run for Homecoming. Steph and Dan had to argue their position with Tim Susick and members of the SCC as well as several other candidates. They were required to submit a signed petition of 100 names to enable them to run. It seems to me that Steph and Dan did work harder in that respect than the other candidates because they had to "fight" for a "free (non-Greek) choice."

To Steph and Dan go my congratulations and best wishes as you reign as Lock Haven's 1988 Homecoming King and Queen. Good luck to next year's GDI couple.

Nancy Zito

Dear Editor:

This is a response to Miss Donlick's letter in the Tuesday, October 25 edition of the EAGLE EYE. First of all, it appears that the independants don't understand anything about fraternities/sororities or about what our letters stand for. Are you telling me that being Greek means that I can't associate with who I want to? Nobody tells me who I can or can't run around with. You obviously got a wrong impression somewhere. I don't "feel the need" to fit in my fraternity and I am very much of an individual.

Second of all, I worked hard for the right to wear my letters and you didn't. My letters give me a sense of accomplishment and my fraternity a sense of pride an responsibility. Do yours? I am accepted for who I am and my college years have been outstanding through my fraternity.

Why don't you come down to our house sometime, and I'll show you what it is all about.

American Association of Women sponsors presentation

By Daniel B. Adams
Staff Reporter

The Lock Haven Branch of the American Association of Women will be sponsoring a presentation by Dr. Sabrina Chapman of Penn State University (PSU).

The presentation will be Thursday, November 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the Coffee House on the lower level of the Parsons Union Building.

Chapman is the Director of the Center for Women Students at PSU.

The purpose of the American Association of Women is "to promote education, society change, and equity for women."

-Betty Nelson
Vice-President in charge of promotions for the Lock Haven branch of the A.A.U.W.

Chapman will be speaking on the status of women in the United States during a presentation entitled, "Problems, Prospects, and Possibilities."

The event is open to the public and will begin with a half hour socializing period at 7 p.m., when coffee and snacks will be provided.

Mrs. Betty Nelson, Vice-President in charge of promotions for the Lock Haven Branch of the American Association of University Women, is the organizer of the event.

Nelson said the purpose of the A.A.U.W. is "to promote education, society change, and equity for women."

The A.A.U.W. attempts to accomplish these goals by sponsoring speaking events on the status of women, encouraging qualified women to become involved in such areas as politics, and by granting scholarships to women in Clinton County, according to Nelson.

The Lock Haven Chapter of the A.A.U.W. has been active since April 1969, and currently has 70 members.

The A.A.U.W. is a national organization that currently has approximately 100,000 members in the United States.

Officers investigating theft; hit and run

By Scott David Bloom
Staff Reporter

Richard Hepner, director of campus Law Enforcement, reported another slow week as far as incidents on campus are concerned.

Hepner told the Eagle Eye that Law Enforcement officers were working on a case involving the theft of two packages from the High Hall mail room.

"The student was notified on Thursday, Oct. 20th that packages had arrived for him," Hepner said. "When he (the student) went to collect them they were not there."

One of the packages contained clothing but value was not given. The contents of the other parcel were not reported.

"The student was notified on Thursday, Oct. 20th that packages had arrived for him. When he went to collect them they were not there."

-Richard Hepner
Director of campus Law Enforcement

Also on Thursday, a hit and run incident was reported to Law Enforcement. The car was parked in the lot next Glennon Infirmary.

The rear passenger side door and the right rear quarter panel sustained some damage. The estimated cost of repair is $350. The incident is currently under investigation. According to Hepner, 50% of hit and run cases on campus are eventually solved.

On Friday, Oct. 21, Law Enforcement officers investigated a call concerning a theft at High Hall. A student reported a pair of Reebok sneakers, an electric razor, another pair of shoes and several library books stolen. The total value of the items is $155.

The student said the theft occurred between 6-11 p.m. According to the student, the door was locked.

Last week, enforcement officers investigated a call regarding an unidentified odor coming from the heat ducts in Russell Hall. The officers were unable to detect what the problem was.

Hepner said it could possibly have been caused by the new pipes that were recently installed. The officers made periodic checks throughout the remainder of the night. By 6 a.m. the following day, there was no trace of the odor.

Knappenberger makes PUB run smoothly

By Amy Allen
Staff Reporter

Paul Knappenberger, a junior originally from Allentown, PA, has been appointed to the position of PUB Administrator just this fall. Paul has been very involved in the Student Cooperative Council (SCC) for all of the three years he has attended Lock Haven.

In his freshman year, he began his SCC career by becoming a senator. As a sophomore, he increased his involvement by becoming the SCC's public relations officer. He feels quite strongly that the SCC "works very well together."

As PUB Administrator, Knappenberger is responsible for making the Parsons Union Building run smoothly. He takes care of the game room facilities, as well as various aspects of the PUB.

Knappenberger also is an elected member of the executive council. He says to watch for a games tournament in the future which could lead to a regional, as well as a national tournament.

According to Knappenberger, plans for the PUB are running pretty smoothly. As the PUB expansion committee chairman, he is expecting a proposal from their architect firm in the upcoming month.

The expansion committee is looking for better recreation facilities, along with bigger offices for student organizations and a bigger bookstore.

"We need a place that students can hang out and socialize. This PUB is too small for our University. We must have a bigger one," said Knappenberger.

Knappenberger is a sociology major who feels that his position will help with his major because he gets to deal with people.

"This job keeps me busy and I am learning to deal with people, a good job for personnel," Knappenberger added.

The fraternity beat...

What you need to know about AXP

By Biff Miller
Co-features editor

In the 'spirit' of Halloween, this week's featured fraternity, Alpha Chi Rho, gathered some spooky information to share with students on their new house.

Alpha Chi Rho purchased the house last May and since then, have put a lot of time and hard work into fixing it. Built in 1879, the newly named 'Crow's Nest' is one of the oldest and most beautiful homes in Lock Haven. The house has served as an apartment, a synagogue, and a funeral parlor.

A few frightening incidents have occurred in the house throughout the years. Legend has it that the third floor is haunted by the ghost of 'Old Doc Brown'. Old Doc was, at one time, the funeral director when the house was used as a funeral parlor. One night, he fell down the third floor steps and broke his neck and died.

Different individuals that have lived at the house claim to have seen Old Doc's ghost lurking around the third floor steps.

Another terrifying tale exists that one of the past inhabitants hung himself in the back room, also on the third floor.

When Kappa Delta Rho used to live in the house before Alpha Chi Rho, two of the KDR brothers allegedly saw two beds in the back room move about mysteriously.

Obviously, these ghostly legends don't seem to concern the 21 brothers of Alpha Chi Rho, for they take pride in their new home.

The fraternity has lived separately in different apartments over the years and feel that having a single house with 17 of their brothers has definitely strengthened their organization.

Aside from having two AXP brothers involved in ROTC, two student teachers, and three of the five executive members of the IFC, the fraternity stresses community involvement.

"We don't need to encourage campus and community activity," states Jay Hallam, eldest member of AXP, "it just happens."

The fraternity raised six thousand dollars for a rehabilitation program for a local girl suffering from cerebral palsy. They set up numerous stationary bicycles and had people make donations in proportion to how long they rode the bikes.

The brothers also serve as crossing guards for the Catholic grade school.

Their dedication to the community has earned them Local Community Service awards from the Jaycees and also National Service awards.

When asked why he chose AXP, Christian Holland, spiritual leader of the fraternity replied, "At Alpha Chi Rho, I found the niche that was best for me. There's room for everybody. It provided me with a family."

New pledges are a very important asset to the organization.

"We're not looking for any 'type' of individual. We don't mold the person. They make us more than we make them.

Anyone is eligible," stated Steve Bell, Alpha Chi Rho president.

Alpha Chi Rho emphasizes the fact that there is no hazing stage during pledging.

Emphasis is placed instead on the history of the fraternity, proper studying techniques, and the understanding of brotherhood. It is crucial that pledges are "academically capable of handling pledging" as well.

"We learn our letters, not earn them," said Hallam.

As other Greek organizations, AXP feels that a fraternity does not stifle individuality.

Steve Bell would like to point out to students that, "We are individuals. We are no better because we are in a fraternity. Everyone on campus is equal. We welcome anyone to come down."

All those interested in taking a look at Alpha Chi Rho, should watch for a possible open house on November 12th.

Kix are no longer just for kids

By Edward J. Connor
Music Columnist

Blow My Fuse--Kix

They keep churning out great music, but almost nobody seems to be aware of this metal band from Baltimore. Perhaps Blow My Fuse will finally provide the break Kix has been looking for.

Since 1983's cult favorite Cool Kids broke the band somewhat into the mainstream, Kix has basically stayed underground, getting little help from MTV and radio play, or promotion from its record company, Atlantic.

Granted, the business is saturated with heavy metal and pop-metal, with mainstays like Aerosmith and Ozzy Osbourne and swiftly-rising newcomers like Britny Fox and Guns 'N Roses all but cornering the market. And radio has been none-too-eager to grant airplay to a hard rock band with no great track record.

However, Kix has two big factors working in their favor. First, the band has developed a small but loyal following over the years.

Second, and more importantly, Kix has been putting out music that has been a notch better than most of the metal that is currently doing better.

Arguably the best metal album out now is Def Leppard's Hysteria. Certainly, the record's being at or near the top of the charts well over a year after its release will attest to that claim.

Blow My Fuse is remarkably similar to Hysteria in several ways. First off, Kix, like Def Leppard, rely on their music for their success rather than image and looks, the way the members of the mousse club like Bon Jovi and Poison often do.

Also, the music has more substance to it than the standard three-chord riffs of most metal, although lyrically they don't go far beyond the hard rock cliches like "Get It While It's Hot" and "Dirty Boys." But then, nobody expects poetry from a heavy metal band.

"Cold Blood," "Piece of the Pie," and "Red Lite, Green Lite, TNT," are great crunchers and "No Ring Around Rosie" is probably the best on the album. And "Don't Close Your Eyes" may be the best hard rock ballad since Motley Crue's "Home Sweet Home."

If there were a metal scale, with Bon Jovi on one end and Metallica on the other, Kix would fall smack in the middle, holding hands with Aerosmith. With hard rock dominating the scene, the time is right for radio to look in Kix' direction.

And if hard rock is what you're into and you want a change, try getting your kicks from Kix.

Local apparitions on campus

By Mike Walton
Features Reporter

Lock Haven, a city founded in 1833, has a rich cultural heritage that is firmly founded in our nation's past, but sometimes the past refuses to die. The past can spring forth to the present and make itself seen and felt. What am I talking about? Ghosts, my friends, ghosts.

Do I hear a few snickers and chuckles, perhaps? Well, it is approaching Halloween so suspend your disbelief for a few moments and let me take you on a spiritual tour.

Our first trip takes us into the past. We have all heard the passing trains on the nearby railroad tracks, but trains are not the only things that pass by there. The legend of "The Conductor's Ghost" began in the late 19th century. In the span of tracks between Renovo and Lock Haven, a lantern-wielding spirit walks. This victim of a long-ago railroad accident is in search of something: a head!

The details of the accident are much too gruesome to report, but be warned, the few people who have seen a swinging light in the distance have not waited around to greet this headless spirit. No man who has seen the frightening stalker has escaped with his sanity intact.

We will now walk up the hill and pay a visit to McEntire Hall, the most haunted residence on campus. Should you be in Mac and hear slow, shuffling footsteps pass by your door in the middle of the night, go straight to bed and save yourself from a sleepless night.

Curious residents of the hall who have gotten up to have a look, have seen only an empty corridor.

If this restless spirit is the only resident spirit of McEntire, it certainly gets around.

Joy R., a Junior, has had two strange experiences in her floor's restroom.

"On two different nights, I was in the ladies room and heard the shower come on. As I passed by the shower stalls on the way out, I saw that the middle stall was empty, but the water was blasting out."

Mike R., another resident, told me that he no longer uses the study room on his floor.

"Every time I try to work in there late at night, the lights flicker and I keep hearing the sound of someone coughing."

Our last stop in haunted Haven should prove to be an elevating experience.

An unusual story has been heard around campus concerning the "elevator people" of Raub Hall, stone-faced, silent passengers that ride the elevator, but are not seen to leave it.

Most observances of these mysterious figures occur to solitary passengers, late in the evening.

A typical case involves Helen B., a sophomore Ed. major, who chose to ride the elevator one evening in order to lessen the long trek to North Hall. Hearing the elevator door open as she approached, she ran to catch it. Already inside was a male passenger.

"He didn't look at me, just up at the numbers, so I pressed the button for the roof. When it reached the top, I walked out. I heard the door close behind me, so I looked back, but [the other passenger] wasn't there. It was strange."

I hope this trip helped put you in the Halloween spirit. If the tales haunt you too much, perhaps you're taking them a shade too seriously. When you tuck yourself into bed tonight, Rest In Peace.

Halloween flicks

By Alan Gardiner
Movie Reviewer

Showing at the PUB this weekend are two very different horror movies. "The Believers" (R) stars Martin Sheen and is about voodoo magic, while "Fright Night" (R) takes a tongue-in-cheek look at the vampire legend.

"The Believers", directed by John Schlesinger, has Sheen as a recently widowed psychiatrist. He and his son move to New York where they become involved in a religion called Santeria and its black magic counterpart.

Schlesinger lacks the boldness of style and pace which are required for a film of this genre. His direction is so fussy that the film seems to drag on forever. Even a semblance of visual style might have saved this film, but it is drab and dull.

There is almost an inkling of life towards the end, especially when the heroine, Helen Shaver, suffers every adolescent's nightmare, the world's biggest zit. Unfortunately it's a case of too little too late, to save the film. If you want to see a film about voodoo, see "Angel Heart".

"Fright Night", directed by Tom Holland, transports the vampire legend to present day America.

Charley (William Ragsdale) discovers that his new neighbour, Jerry Dandrige (Chris Sarandon) is actually one of the living, and therefore must be destroyed.

Charley tries desperately convince, and thus gain the help of his girlfriend Amy (Amanda Bease), his peculiar friend Evil Ed (Stephen Geoffrays), and the host of the T.V. horror show "Fright Night" Peter Vincent (Roddy McDowall). Not surprisingly, they are all reluctant to believe that the suave Dandrige could possibly be a vampire.

"Fright Night" brings us the first truly modern vampire. Sarandon is magnificent as the smooth, disco-dancing Dandrige, sporting a leather coat instead of a cloak.

Most importantly however, Holland has managed to incorporate the erotic element of vampirism into the film. He contrasts Charley's sexual inexperience and clumsiness with Dandrige's overpowering sensuality and control over women.

The sensual aura of the film makes it all the more menacing and frightening, however the director also displays an excellent comic touch.

"Fright Night" is a superb mixture of horror, humor and sensuality with some gore and excellent special effects thrown in for good measure.

For the week of 10/28-11/04

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Even though a lot of stress may be upon you due to midterm madness, remember to be the master of your emotions. This season is yours according to the stars; it's your time to shine. Love begins with a sensitive friendship. Be careful this weekend not to get caught in a Halloween trick!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 22)

Stay loyal to whom you are attached. Directness is the best approach to your problems this week, however stay tactful. Dress up in a wild costume for this Halloween-be impulsive!

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19)

As usual, your Halloween week will be filled with excitement! You seem to be at the very center of all the action, just slip back into the crowd on "mischief night" or you could find too much attention on you. Stay energetic, you'll need it!

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Although you make friends slowly, don't let your shyness get in the way of meeting that special person this Halloween weekend. Wear a conversational piece for a costume!

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20)

Although this past week has been a difficult one for you because of a hectic work schedule, things should lighten up later on in the week. Your ambition is a real plus when it comes to getting ahead.

Aries (Mar. 21-April 21)

Once again, you've let your heart get in the way of your usual down-to-earth nature. Don't sacrifice priorities for someone new. Your new interest will be keeping you company quite a bit this week, remember that you come first.

Taurus (April 21-May 21)

This is a good week to catch up on some reading or just doing a particular hobby you enjoy. Look for a long distance phone call later on in the week bringing good news.

Gemini (May 21-June 21)

Kick up your heels this week! It's a great time to go to parties or even have one of your own. Your outgoing personality draws others to you. You'll run into an old acquaintance later on in the week.

Cancer (June 21-July 23)

Why don't you put away your stubbornness for a while and go with your emotions. This weekend is a perfect time to straighten out a conflict between you and your mate. Go with the feelings in your heart.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23)

Don't lower yourself to anything petty, this week, you've got mid-term grades to think about. You have enough people who truly support you to even recognize others' jealousies of you. Concentrate on giving happiness to others, it will return great pleasure for you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

This week assert yourself and meet some new people social setting- (like a Halloween party?) -it'll be worth it! Take small disappointments lightly otherwise you will feel overwhelmed and burdened.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Don't wait so long before making a decision. Your instincts are good and your judgement is excellent. Avoid super-sensitiveness this week, especially on "mischief night".

Head Coach Lenny Long...

Meet the man behind the soccer team

By Merritt La Porta
Co-Sports Editor

If you're ever walking through Thomas Field House with nothing to do, make sure you stop in and say hello to soccer Head Coach Lenny Long.

Long hails from Levittown, Pa and is a graduate of LHU.

His interest in soccer began at the age of 15 when a friend's uncle got him interested.

"I was a quarterback on my junior high school team up until the summer of my sophomore year," said Long.

"That summer my friend's uncle from Paris came to Levittown and he had a soccer ball with him. We started kicking it around and that's when I got interested in the sport," he said.

Long is an LHU graduate and played the sport he now coaches.

"I came here for the physical education program, but I also knew they had a good soccer program and I knew I'd be able to play at a good level," said Long.

Long said he was an "average" player skill-wise, but feels he's "above average" in his knowledge of the game of soccer.

"I'm not as skillfull as most of the guys on our team now," he commented. "Back then I was what you might call a dog but I got by because I had a good working knowledge of the game."

Long is in his fifth year of coaching soccer at LHU, but this is not the first time he's coached here. He began his coaching career at Trenton State where he was the assistant coach for a year.

After that he came to LHU where he was the assistant soccer coach under former Head Coach Mike Parker.

A year later Long took the jobs of head soccer coach and head tennis coach at Virginia Wesleyan where he remained for six years before returning to LHU to take the head coaching job here.

"I knew this was a good job and I like the people here and I really truly believe in Lock Haven as a school academically which is important for recruiting," said Long.

"I thought I could really enjoy working here so I applied for a job and things worked out," he said.

Long credits his high school coach and Karl Herrmann (his coach at LHU) for influencing him.

"Both of them were very strong on the aspect of a quality person," said Long. "Not just being a good soccer player, but what you do off the field and in the classroom."

"They also taught me the ethic of working hard and the rewards will come to you," he said.

Hard work is what Long attributes the Bald Eagle soccer team's successful season to.

"We run camps during the summer and recruit heavily and basically try to provide a good program for the players," Long pointed out.

"We can also base our success on our history because we've been successful over the past fifteen years," he added.

"Our history has been very strong and I think that has a tendency to help you build on what you have, and we've been able to do that."

Winning the state championship three out of four times have been the biggest highlights for Long during his coaching career at LHU.

"Beating Cheyney on penalty kicks and beating East Stroudsburg in consecutive years really helped our program," said Long.

"I try to consider myself a pretty optimistic person and even when things are down I try to say 'Well, some good came out of that,'" he said.

When it's time for Long to hang up his whistle for the last time, he would like his players to remember him as a guy who cared both on and off the field.

"I like to think that the guys think my office is a comfortable place for them to come in and talk to me about anything," said Long.

"I like to think that when the guys go home for Christmas break that they can't wait to come back because Lock Haven is in their blood, and maybe the soccer program and (assistant coach) Mike Corey and myself had something to do with that."

Drop to 7-11-1...

Lady Eagles lose to Villanova and Ball State

By Terry Day
Co-Sports Editor

Villanova's Ann Dickey's three second half goals led to the defeat of the Lady Eagles, 3-1, Tuesday afternoon.

At 11:37 of the first half, freshman Gia Sgrignoli scored LHU's only goal beating Lady Wildcat goalie Mary Monahan.

The Lady Eagles played well in the first half, according to Head Coach Sharon Taylor.

"Stacey Giorgio had some outstanding saves and a great first half," Taylor said.

Giorgio had nine of her 13 saves in the first half.

In the second half, the game became "The Sharon Seiz to Dickey Show" as the two Lady Wildcats connected three times.

The first two goals were off corner shots and the third score came from the front of the cage.

"I don't know who was wearing our uniforms in the second half," said Taylor. "They weren't the same ones in the first half."

"They were different and you saw it in the first minute of the second half," Taylor added.

According to Taylor Michelle Smith, who replaced the injured Jill LaPoint, played well.

The Lady Widcats shot 40 times in the second half and had 65 shots for the game compared to LHU's 15.

Villanova also had 21 penalty corners to the Lady Eagles two.

"If we could play 70 minutes without a half, I would do it. We could not pick up the momentum in the second," Taylor said.

Last Friday, Ball State's Heather McNamara's game-winning goal in the second half gave the Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Lady Eagles field hockey team.

The Lady Eagles struck first with two quick goals in the middle of the first half.

At 9:10, Missy Carman scored off the assist of teammate Jill LaPoint.

Three minutes later, Kelly Charles' unassisted goal was Lock Haven's last.

The Lady Eagles went into halftime with a 2-0 lead.

Just as the Lady Eagles did in the first, Ball State scored two quick goals in the beginning of the second half.

The Cardinals Casandra Hudock scored an unassisted goal at 1:09.

Three minutes later, the Cardinals scored again as Ange Pendleton put the ball past LHU goalie Stacie Giorgio.

The Cardinals (9-2-1) clinched the game when McNamara scored after receiving the ball from teammate Sarah Todd in the middle of the second half.

"We had plenty of chances to score. It just goes to show when you let down how things completely change," Coach Taylor said.

"We didn't react well to the wet conditions," added Taylor.

All the goals were scored out on the poor end of the field, according to Taylor.

The Cardinals outshot the Lady Eagles by three, 18-15.

Giorgio saved 12 shots compared to Ball State goalie Kellie Rowker with nine.

The team takes their 7-11-1 record on the road to Syracuse for their final game of the season on Sunday.

Booters deadlocks New York Tech, 2-2

By Kevin Dickie
Sports Reporter

What was to have been one of LHUs toughest games of the season against New York Tech, turned into a farce, as the referee Glen Fogel lost control of the game and went mad with the distribution of red cards.

By the end of 110 minutes of soccer, LHU was reduced to ten men and the Tech was down to seven.

It was apparent early in the game that both teams merited their rankings in the top twenty in the nation, as they both pushed forward with purpose and skill.

After 12 minutes of play, LHU who drew first blood.

Moving from the defense, Shawn Hawkey played a long ball from inside the LHU half which could only be headed on by the Tech defense.

Tibi Kobolak ran in from behind the defense to lob the ball over the keeper from 18 yards.

Within two minutes, New York had equalized and silenced the LHU fans.

From a free kick 22 yards out on the left wing, Tech's Angelko Bogdanov somehow managed to strike the ball off the underside of the bar and score to make it 1-1.

LHU made most of the play for the rest of the second half and were unfortunate to still be on level terms at half time.

After 12 minutes of the second half, Tech was awarded a dubious penalty kick for an alleged Steve Eagleton foul inside the box.

Tech's Carlos Goncalves made no mistake to make the score 2-1.

With 20 minutes left, LHU was given an ideal opportunity to level the score, when they were awarded a penalty after Gary Ross had been chopped down in the box.

To the disappointment of the home crowd, Tibi Kobolak fired his attempt wide of the left post.

LHU did not let the missed penalty effort get them down and within six minutes they had evened the score from a well executed set piece.

Shawn Hawkey floated across a free kick to the far post, which was headed back across the face of the goal by Craig Shale to be finished off by Stevie Eagleton from 5 yards out.

It was at this point that the game became absurd, as the referee seemed to go temporarily insane. For what amounted to no more than dissent, both Bogdanov and Massaglia for the Tech were red carded.

As was only a natural reaction, the Tech bench strongly protested the decision and resulted their coach was added to the referees list of casualties.

With a two man advantage LHU pushed forward in numbers, and saw chances from Kevin Mathews and Tibi Kobolak narrowly miss the goal. The score remained at 2-2, and moved into 20 minutes of overtime.

By now, the game had well and truly slipped out of the control of referee Fogel and in an attempt to give his performance some consistency he continued to produce red cards.

Tech's Kostas Kononis was sent off with six minutes left on the clock for disputing a decision with one of the linesmen

Fogel at this point would have been as well keeping the red card in his hand.

Within the last five minutes of the game, he sent off Andrew Monteith for a deliberate foul and Tech's Andreas Koshis for kicking the ball away.

Although LHU put the New York goal under pressure in the closing stages, they couldn't take advantage of the extra men and the Tech were in a sense satisfied with their 2-2 draw.

There is no doubt that LHU should have capitalized on the depleted Tech side, but as often happens in these types of situations both teams seemed to have their rhythm upset by the erratic refereeing of Fogel.

Coach Long summed it up, "It wasn't pretty."

Lady harriers end season with loss

By Terry Day
Co-Sports Editor

Last Saturday, the Lady Eagles cross country team suffered their first loss of the season to Allegheny College, 31-47, but were victorious against host, Slippery Rock, 47-51.

Slippery Rock's Lorraine Sharkey finished ahead of the rest with her time of 19:55.

Sharkey was followed by Lock Haven's Lori Lingenfelter with her time of 20:08.

Allegheny's Alyse Holden finished third with her time of 20:25.

Other Lady Eagles scorers were Stacie Hebert, 20:55, 7th; Jill Baumgartner, 21:31, 11th; Julie Grasser, 21:39, 12th; and Julie Pautz, 22:01, 16th.

Pam Sheppard crossed the line in 24:28.

As a result of Saturday loss, the Lady Eagles finished the season with a 6-1-1 record.

Also last Saturday, Slippery Rock defeated the men's cross country team 15-50.

The Rock swept the first five places as Shane Orr finished first with a time of 27:50.

Kevin Wheeler led the the Eagles as he crossed the line in 30:01.

"Kevin ran an outstanding race," Head Coach Kurt Smith said.

Other LHU finishers were Tim Haring, 31:14, 11th; Marc Phillips, 31:23, 12th; Brad Reese, 32:42, 16th; Jamie Shea, 33:42, 17th; and Jemery Trout, 37:14, 20th.

According to Smith, Haring and Phillips had a good performance.

"We had the best meet time-wise," Smith added.

The Eagles' team ended the season with a 1-6 record.
