Contract debates continue between APSCUF and SSHE

by Brian Ploskina
Eagle Eye News Reporter

In debates that have been going on since January, The Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculty (APSCUF), the faculty union, has still not reached an agreement with the State System of Higher Education (SSHE). The reason for these debates is because the faculty has been working under a contract that ended on June 30.

The main points in the dispute stem from the disagreement about what goes on in the classroom.

There is an ongoing concern over the issue of graduate assistants (G.A.). In the past, these students would assist in the classroom and laboratory only if the faculty member was also present. The professors would still be getting paid the same, but the student would be teaching the class. These G.A.'s do not necessarily have education degrees. This is a much more popular practice at larger schools with graduate programs. The professors are the ones who are in disagreement over this issue.

The state now wants to make it easier for the G.A.'s by removing the provision which states that professors are required to be in the classroom at the time the G.A.'s are instructing.

According to APSCUF President Dr. Jeff Burnham, the state also wants, "The unlimited ability to hire temporary faculty." These part-time professors would receive no benefits, never move up in rank or pay scale, and would be subject to exploitation.

The state also requests the right to assign an overload of classes on professors whether they want it or not, instead of hiring new faculty.

According to Larry Flint, Student Cooperative Council (SCC) president, the teachers are, "concerned about the quality of our education."

According to a letter sent from the Office of the Chancellor to the Presidents of the 14 SSHE schools, the state wants to cut 30 percent of the employee benefits to the incoming faculty in the Fall of 1997. They also want to introduce new, more "cost-effective" health care plans.

Burnham reported that the state wants the teachers to start having co-pays with their insurance. No one else in the State System has co-pays, including janitors, and secretaries.

A very controversial demand by the state is the ability to send any professor in the SSHE system to any institution in the system, with no additional salary. Burnham pointed out that professors have tenure so they can have "academic freedom." If the state had this power, they could use it to discriminate against the faculty. The faculty feel strongly that these demands are "bogus and unacceptable."

Many students on campus are concerned that there will be a strike, but Flint explained, "I don't think our professors would be willing to sacrifice our education."

Scott Shewell, press secretary for SSHE said, "We've had no information that a strike will occur," and that, "It is premature to speculate on a strike happening."

Flint stated, "The state feels teachers get paid too much, and do too little." In fact, out of the 205 public colleges and universities in the country, only Rutgers University and the University of Baltimore rank higher in salary than the State System. That statistic puts the State System in the 98th percentile of this country's public institutions.

Another important fact is that 59 percent of student fees go to paying faculty salaries. Flint also pointed out that APSCUF is not requesting more. Instead, they wish the contract to remain basically the same.

Since 1984, student enrollment in the SSHE schools has increased 14.4 percent, but faculty has only increased 12.2 percent.

Talks are scheduled for November and into December but no one has pointed out an end in sight.

APSCUF has not discussed a strike yet and no deadline has been set. Shewell reported that the state will only take a position on a strike when one occurs. He was also adamant to point out the state's goal to "provide a high quality education at the lowest possible cost."

Governor Tom Ridge was not available for comment but Shewell explained that the Governor "does not have a direct role" in the negotiations, although he does have a vote and a seat on the Board of Education,

Sociological Society Conference to be held

by Cynthia Graham
Eagle Eye News Reporter

The University will host the 46th annual conference of the Pennsylvania Sociological Society (PSS) with the theme, "Sociology in a Divided Society," and will hold various sessions on topics such as race and family relations, and a wide variety of other issues.

This year's conference will be held on Friday, Nov. 8 and 9, in the Parsons Union Building (PUB).

According to Dr. William Smith-Hinds, professor of Sociology and president of the organization, the conference is an effort to bring together sociologists, both teaching and practicing, from all over the state of Pennsylvania to discuss issues that are of particular interest to them at the time.

According to Dr. Zakir Hossain, professor of Anthropology and Sociology and vice president of the PSS, although the society is a professional organization, there are also student members. Students were given a chance to submit a paper on any area of sociological concern, and the student with the best paper will be given a prize of a $50 US savings bond and a letter of accommodation.

Smith-Hinds said this year's conference will differ from others in years past. On Friday evening, Nov. 8, a film on the late sociologist, W. E. B. DuBois will be shown in the PUB Meeting Room #1 at 7 p.m. The student body and the general public are invited to be a part of the assembly.

In previous years, workshops and sessions were held on the first evening of the conference.

Each year, the conference is held at different universities or colleges throughout the state. Last year's conference was held at La Salle University in Philadelphia, Pa., and in 1994 it was held at a hotel in the Penn State area of State College, Pa.

The conference begins at 4 p.m. and ends at 9 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 8 and will resume at 8 a.m. and end at 7 p.m., on Saturday, Nov. 9.

Special Note to Students

Students may fill out the Eagle Eye Presidential Survey in the bookstore, as well as taking the ballots to the Eagle Eye office, which is located on the ground floor of the PUB. A box and ballots will be available in the bookstore until Thursday, Nov. 7.

APSCUF from page 1 _____ and he appointed the chief negotiator for the state.

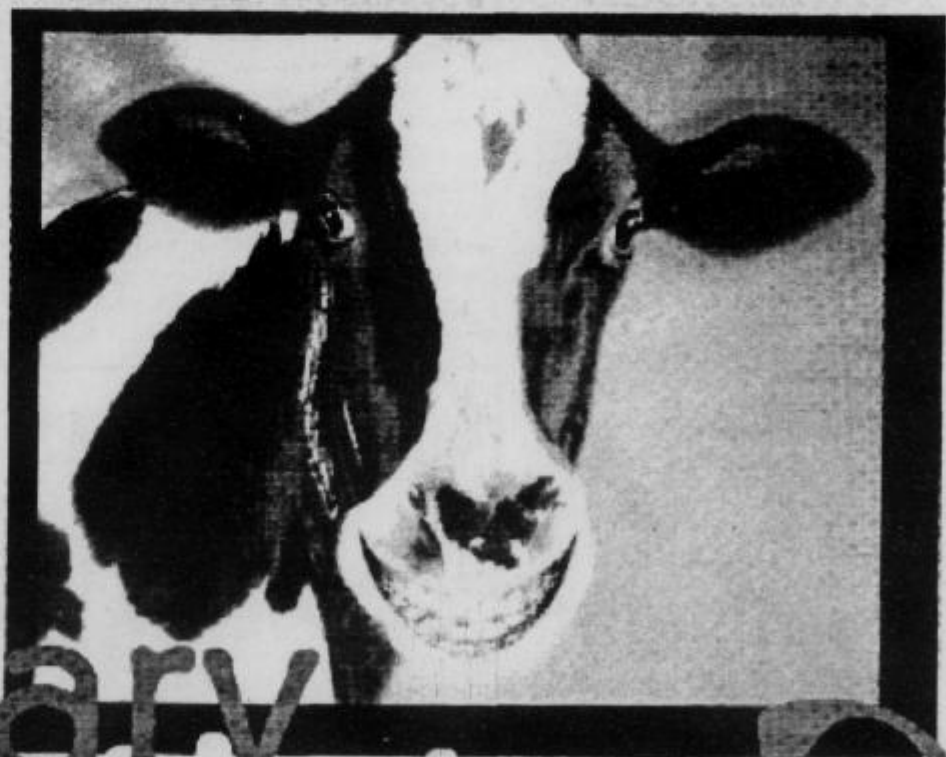

Burnham pointed out that the Governor's office has been applying pressure on the system to be unyielding in negotiations. The State has been receiving reduced funds, and they looked to education when they needed "concessions" because Governor Ridge holds the SSHE system in "low regard."

However, according to Flint, the situation is grim. These are the first contract negotiations in six years and they usually do not last this long. Also, there are usually not this many points of conflict. There have been no settlements made and now the faculty has requested a state mediator.

Shewell said, "(The State) welcomes the addition of a mediator, and we think it will help the process."

It is also important to note that the discussions have remained at the table and are not public record, although certain records may be attained by accessing the SSHE's World Wide Web page.

Dear Editor....

Reader defends efforts of Homecoming committee

I feel the need to respond to the article last week about Homecoming. My name is Susan Fink, a super senior here at the University. I was a Homecoming committee member for the second time and the Semi-formal Chair this year.

As for the Homecoming Parade, I am truly sorry for the miscommunication. I would like to mention that it was known to everyone that the decision for the parade was not going to be made until 8 a.m. and why you felt the need to go hunt the committee down before 8 a.m. is beyond me. Why couldn't you have waited like the rest? If you had a representative at the meetings you would have known this. This is why it is important for groups who are participating to come to the meetings. This is said each year yet the only people who show up are very few and the majority of them are Greeks. If you did have a representative there, then either he or she just forgot to let you know or they were not listening during the meetings.

This year's Homecoming chair had never done this before and should be commended for the fact that he only had a committee of about 10 members and he had to make sure that everyone else was doing their jobs.

It was mentioned by a columnist that some students were asked about Homecoming weekend. How many students is that to make publicity bad? When I hear some I think of only a handful of five to 10 students. I must say for working on the newspaper staff that you should have noticed all the times and events placed in the Eagle Eye, which by the way were misprinted. Also, when these corrections were made in the next paper, they were only printed in a small corner of the paper, so that if you blinked, you missed the whole thing. For something so big as the University's Homecoming, don't you think that we should have had a bigger article than that small box? Instead, many students now know more about the advertisements than about what is happening at the University, since the ads get priority over the school's events. No wonder people were confused. Plus, we had plenty of Homecoming signs up, but they were soon taken down by other unknown people.

Lastly, I would like to comment on the young lady's letter regarding student apathy. We have this on campus because no one will get involved, but instead will criticize something that is only half-staffed. Remember it is always easy to complain about something, but to help can be a burden for most people. No wonder Alumni were disappointed; I would be too. I feel before you are first to complain about something, you should first try and help that committee become a success. This is coming from someone who would like to help this University become a better place. I am involved in Zeta Tau Alpha; Panhellenic; Phi Sigma Pi Honors Fraternity; Army ROTC; Haven Activities Council, Lecture Chair; Student Cooperative Council, (SCC) Senator; Sexual Harassment Gender Discrimination Advisory Board for the University, student representative; and the Clearfield Committee. I am doing this all my ninth semester here. How about you; why don't you get involved in something this semester and help improve the University?

Reader informs students where to direct Bentley complaints

This is a free country. Therefore, everyone has a right to their own opinion. However, I would like to inform the whole campus that there is a Food Service Committee.

If anyone has any problems and would like to have them brought directly before the people in charge at Bentley or the Eagle Wing Snack Bar, then I suggest that you contact myself, the Food Service Committee Chair.

Weekly meetings alternating between Bentley and the Eagle Wing Snack Bar are held on Tuesday's at 1 p.m. If anyone has any concerns, comments or complaints, they can contact me, the food service chair, at office extension 2314. Anyone who wishes to attend any of the food committee meetings can contact me at the above extension.

It is recommended that all complaints, comments or concerns be submitted in writing to the Food Service mailbox located in the Student Cooperative Council (SCC) office in the Parsons Union Building (PUB). Remember, if you want your voice to be heard, go directly to the source.

Lorraine Seilhamer
Food Service Committee Chair

Remember, you can submit your letters to the editor at, hlongo@falcon.lhup.edu. In order for your letter to be printed, it must include your name, phone number and address. Letters can also be sent to the Eagle Eye office in the PUB.

Reader objects to arming Law Enforcement

On Thursday, Nov. 7, a resolution will be brought before the Student Cooperative Council (SCC) to recommend to University President Dr. Craig Dean Willis that the school arm Law Enforcement officials with guns. Although there have been various discussions on the issue, this particular resolution is being introduced in light of a recent incident which appeared in Police Beat in the Oct. 4 issue of the Eagle Eye. The said incident, which occurred on Sept. 26, entailed a student who reported to Law Enforcement that a male was seen outside of McEntire Hall with a gun. Law Enforcement officials are not armed, therefore city police stopped the individual. There was no weapon found on the person, or in his car, so he was released.

No matter what your views are about guns, no one could argue that putting them in the hands of Law Enforcement officers is a major decision. In the two years I have been here, there has never been a publicly reported situation in which guns would be needed to resolve it. The individual in this recent situation did not even have a gun.

Picture this: The same scenario, only Law Enforcement does carry fire arms. An officer gets an itchy-finger, or maybe he sees the individual reach for something, and he opens fire and the male gets killed. I tell you now that the officer will not be the one who gets sued. Lock Haven University will be responsible for its employees' actions. Therefore a good portion of your tuition will be paid to the individual's family for the rest of their lives. Not to mention, an innocent student is killed because we, as a represented student body, put guns in the hands of Law Enforcement officials. And for what reason did we do this? Have there been shootings on campus? Has there been extreme violence on campus that Law Enforcement has needed guns to resolve? The answer to that question should be the same answer that goes on each Senator's vote at the resolution.

The last time I checked, there were still city police in Lock Haven, and I believe we are in their jurisdiction. Putting guns in the holsters of Law Enforcement officials serves no purpose but to intimidate the student body and impose an added danger on campus that was not there before.

I urge all students to contact their Senators or, simply stop by the SCC office in the Parsons Union Building (PUB). The recent turnout for the Rec Center Referendum leads me to believe that the students here really do care what happens on this campus. This may be your only chance to halt what could become a deadly situation.

Sincerely,

Brian P. Ploskina, SCC Off-Campus Senator

In my opinion...

Eagle Eye columnists speak their minds

Liberal and Conservative agree about voting

by Mike Murphy and Dan Barrile

Believe it or not, we actually agree on something. That one topic is the importance of voting. The United States has an embarrassingly low voter turnout. College age registered voters have the lowest turnout rate of any age group. All this in a country that formed under the principle of democracy. One would hope that the citizens of the United States, would take voting seriously, instead of taking it for granted like we have done historically.

You may wonder why Clinton and Dole both mentioned Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid almost 20 times each in the debates. You are also probably wondering why they mentioned college student loans only about two times during the debates. The reason for this is actually quite simple.

Voter turnout among senior citizens is almost 90 percent. The candidates realize this and spend more time discussing topics that will get them large amounts of votes. Voter turnout among people ages 18 through 25 is a mere nine percent. The candidates also realize this and that is why college student loans were only mentioned twice during the debates.

Apparently the freedom we won some two hundred years ago is now taken for granted. Our founding fathers probably never realized that people would not exercise their right to vote. In the past, the United States has made great strides in allowing people to vote. Two amendments have been added to the constitution to increase the amount of people who are eligible to vote. Now, any American citizen who is of the age of 18 has the right and the privilege to vote for the leaders of our country.

The United States is alone in its poor voter turnout. In 1994 there was finally a free election in South Africa. Do you think that in 200 years the people of South Africa will still vote? When they finally had the chance to vote in 1994, the turnout was almost 98 percent. Who knows when the last time was that the United States had a turnout like that. In Romania, when they had their first election in decades, the streets resembled a New Orleans Mardi Gras celebration. You cannot even go to the bar on Nov. 5, so you may as well go and vote.

Not many realize the impact that this election will have on the Supreme Court. As many as four seats could open up on the Court during the next four years. Whoever is elected as President gets to appoint these Justices and this will have a lasting impact on the laws that will be passed for the next several years.

On Nov. 5, you have the chance to make your voice be heard and the opportunity to try to make a change in the United States. So, get out there and vote.

The opinions expressed here are those of the writers. Address comments to Dan and Mike.

Taking notice of smoke, globs and gen ed classes

It happened again. I sat down to write this week's column and realized I had many great ideas floating around in my brain, but not enough to write an entire piece on. Therefore, I must once again clean out my mental closet and throw all these thoughts out to you. Any input or answers to my ponderings are very welcome. Without further adieu, I give you my string of wonder.

To begin with, I would like to briefly address a concern of a friend of mine, who like myself and many of you, loathes cigarettes. As we become more aware of the dangers of smoking and as many businesses have opted to maintain a smoke-free environment, how is it that there seems to be an increasing number of people lighting up on campus? I have not taken a survey or anything, but it seems to me that smoking seems to be "in" again as I see more people lighting up or bumming a cigarette from a friend than I did when I was a freshman.

I know from experience that no matter how many statistics I present about those lungs of yours that are getting blacker and clacker with each puff, you will not stop until you are not only ready, but have actual willpower to do so. Overcoming any addiction is stressful; especially when the addiction you are attempting to overcome is one you started to help cope with stress in the first place. It is logical that trying to stop smoking now that you are a slave to the nicotine which is destroying your body is stressful, so you will most likely resort to coping with that stress by, you guessed it, smoking. But for those of you smoking novices out there, do yourselves a favor and ease out of this phase you are in before you get addicted.

Memo to the Bentley staff: No, I am not about to bash the cuisine choices we as Bentley patrons are offered. You have heard all that before. What I would like to bring to your attention is something that has been bothering my friends and I since the Fall of 1994. We are talking about when the high school class of 1994 (who are now juniors) entered the University. In case you have not noticed all this time, on the side closest to Sloan in the upstairs dining room, on the ceiling towards the North Fairview side, but not close to the windows, is a brown glob that is either fossilized mashed potatoes, some aged peanut butter topping, or a spoonful of some kind of tan dough-like substance that has not been removed since its appearance on the ceiling in the Fall of 1994.

Most likely, a bored or disgruntled diner, who by now has probably graduated, hoisted that splotch up there figuring eventually it would fall down (preferably onto a tray of food or a head) and surprise another Bentley diner.

The mysterious, "eternally stuck" brown glob is not alone, by the way. He has a friend. Somewhere in that same semester, the original brown glob hoister, or perhaps a copycat inspired by the original brown glob hoister, decided to be cool and stick a strand of cooked spaghetti covered in sauce on the lower window pane on the same side, facing North Fairview. I do not know what this spaghetti is composed of, but like its pal the mysterious brown glob, it has seen us through two falls, two springs and most of this fall. If you do not believe me and are reading this right now, go see for yourself.

My advice to Bentley's staff: Invest in some Windex and brillo, borrow a ladder and kindly remove these decaying eyesores. I find it hard to believe that not one staff member has looked at that window or glanced at the ceiling in the last two years. It is not like the blinds are always closed.

I am almost through with my general education courses, so I feel that I have the experience to make a couple suggestions concerning these classes. The first one is to the students who have to take them, but never show up because of laziness, lack of interest, or feeling that the material taught is too challenging, but then complain when they get a bad grade in the course.

News flash: As much as a class may be boring, hard or too early in the morning, if you do not pass the general education classes, you will not get the credit and they will not be handing you your degree. Forget that you never missed and aced every class required to be taken as a core part of your major. It simply does not count if you do not have all the other stuff. No one is saying that you have to feign interest in the material to please the professors - professors teaching general education courses are well aware that not all students will thoroughly enjoy or grasp every aspect of what is being taught and that it is not personal reflection on them.

Just get your credits and if you do decide to go the route of cutting every class and hoping that the teacher will take pity on you or confuse you with someone else who showed up a lot and give you that person's grade, do not complain when that does not happen; the rest of us who made at least a semi-effort really do not want to hear it.

My idea for general education teachers to make things a wee bit more interesting: Bring back field trips and classroom guests. The memories of field trips and classroom guests - by far the highlights of our fundamental school years. Did you ever notice how even the kids that acted up all the time and the ones who never tried to learn always came away with a clearer picture of whatever we were studying, say Ancient

Local theatre company to present "The Uninvited"

by Kim Justice
Eagle Eye Features Reporter

At the beginning of this year, a group of individuals from this and surrounding communities got together with an idea. They wanted to create a community theatre in the Lock Haven area that would give residents a chance to see and participate in shows year-round.

This group, headed by University alumnus Thomas Arthur Yost, created a board of directors for the newly formed West Branch Theatre Company and chose William Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" as its first production.

In late March, auditions were held. The cast of approximately 40 was assembled, bringing together actors from Lock Haven, Williamsport and State College. Rehearsals continued until the end of June, when the play was performed over the space of one week at the Bald Eagle Factory Outlets. There was no admission price, but donations were collected to help prepare the company for its second show.

The plan was to do a Halloween production. In keeping with the theme of Halloween, Tim Kelly's play "The Uninvited" was picked. Again, auditions were held in the middle of August, and 10 people were chosen for the five male and five female roles.

The story concerns brother and sister Roddy and Pam Fitzgerald after they buy Cliff End, a run-down mansion situated on a cliff overlooking the ocean. The two feel they may have gotten more than they bargained for with their purchase.

Why is Lizzie Flynn, their housekeeper, so upset, and why did the previous tenants move out? Why is the previous owner, Stella Meredith, strangely drawn to Cliff End, where her mother lived before? What is the clear duty imposed on Commander Brooke, Stella's grandfather? Why are the members of the town so interested in what goes on at the house, and who is the mysterious Carmel?

With the help of an actress, an artist, and a nurse who runs a center of healing, through harmony, all of these questions and more are answered.

This play will be performed at the Lock Haven High School Auditorium tonight and tomorrow. For all three performances, the doors open at 7 p.m., and the show begins at 8 p.m. Adult tickets cost $5, and children under 12 and senior citizens over 62 can get in for only $3.50.

Tickets can be reserved by calling 748-6994, but they will also be available at the door. October 31 was costume night. Any audience member who came to the show in costume was entered into a drawing for a pair of season tickets for the 1997-98 season. However, a costume was not a requirement for attendance.

There will also be drawings tonight and tomorrow night, but no costume is necessary. Winners will be announced at the end of the show and must be present to win.

Join the University Players at Millbrook Playhouse...

by Brian Ploskina
Eagle Eye Features Reporter

The Millbrook Playhouse in Mill Hall will be holding a "Haunted Halloween Barn" tonight and Saturday. The University Players, along with six other local, non-profit organizations, will be helping out with the festivities.

The University Players will be performing a 15-minute play entitled, "A Jolly Holly Halloween." The play was written by University alumna Trish Cantolina.

The story begins with a werewolf named Jack, double cast by Sunny Kalsi and Dave Mulle, who kidnaps Santa Claus, played by Jason Moyle, because he thinks Santa is a vampire. The werewolf must turn Santa into a vampire in the next 15 minutes, or else there will be no Halloween. "This play is for everybody," said University Players member Jennifer Carter. She added, "It entertains all audiences!"

Other cast members include: Sean Heffron as Frankenstein, Aaron Ross as Max the Vampire and Amy Santoriello as Mrs. Claus. Cantolina and Jodi Nesta are doublecast as Mel the Pumpkin, and M. Lamanna plays Elvira.

"A Jolly Holly Halloween" is directed by Carter, with the help of Jeneane Howe, new artistic director at Millbrook, and Gordon Phetteplace, assistant professor of speech and theatre. Matt Runquist designed the lights, and Carter and Erik Kenerup will be running them. Lamanna will be designing makeup.

The play will be performed at the beginning of each tour of the barn. The performances start at 6:30 p.m., 7:30 p.m., 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for students ages 6-18 and senior citizens, and $1 for children age five and under. Refreshments will be sold all night. For more information, call the Millbrook Playhouse at 748-8083.

All of the proceeds go to the non-profit organizations who helped out with the Haunted Barn. Besides the University Players, there is the Tri-County Martial Arts, Lock Haven Jaycees, Dunnstown Fire Company, Beech Creek/Blochard Volunteer Fire Company and the Lock Haven United Lutheran Church.

Phetteplace was happy about the way the proceeds will be handled. He said, "The proceeds are going to help a number of good, non-profit organizations, and that's great!"

Sloan celebration commemorates life of Lock Haven artist

Sloan Fine Arts Center was the scene of a gathering of the University and Lock Haven communities late last week to celebrate the life and works of artist John Sloan, a Lock Haven native. The first of a series of events took place at Sloan's birthplace and former residence in Lock Haven.

On Wednesday, Oct. 23, a dedication ceremony took place at the residence at 206 North Grove Street in Lock Haven. University President Dr. Craig Dean Willis unveiled a plaque in Sloan's honor and the celebration committee asked Dr. Mohinder Gill, associate professor of art, to speak about the artist. Denise Warner, assistant professor of speech and theatre, chaired the celebration.

Gill stated that, "John Sloan was an artist that was true to the American experience rather than jumping on the band wagon of European abstractionism." He also said, "Any society that honors its creative sons and daughters excels and never falters."

Events in the Sloan Fine Arts Center, presented by the art, music, and speech/theatre departments, began last Friday evening.

The exhibit was opened by guest speaker Alvin Snowiss. Snowiss commented on Sloan as a Lock Haven native and an exceptional artist.

Willis provided opening remarks and a dedication of Sloan's Self-Portrait was presented. This painting shall remain on display in the Sloan Gallery.

John Loughery, author of John Sloan: Painter and Rebel, provided a slide presentation and commentary on the life history of the artist.

A premiere viewing of a video interview by Lynn Lytle, University director of development, with Mrs. Helen Farr Sloan completed the program. The art department did an excellent job of celebrating John Sloan.

The significance of Sloan's work can most clearly be realized within the context of his biography and the period of his creativity. Born in Lock Haven in 1871, Sloan's humble origins contributed to his development as a "pivotal American painter."

As an artist, Sloan felt it was imperative to be true to his own character and artistic perspective. He did not idealize his images; rather, he made them realistic.

In contrast to his contemporaries, he challenged the artistic standards of his day by painting images that were symbolic of everyday life. His etchings and paintings illustrate that even in the harsh reality of life, there can be beauty found in each moment.

The content of Sloan's artwork depicted the inequalities between social classes, the struggles of everyday life in a changing urban America and the diverse roles of women in society. To Sloan, life was full of choices, and moral judgments were left to the assessment of the viewer.

The artist indulged his talents in many forms. His illustrations and etchings had a gritty quality, but his landscapes captured the beauty of nature both in his choice of color and texture.

An analysis of the artist's repertoire reveals a collection of portraits, rich in color, texture and detail; however, they lack an accurate depiction of human anatomy in reference to proportion. The significance of Sloan's work, however, can be found more in his content than in his form.

Despite the aesthetic beauty of his pieces and his humanistic-realistic style, Sloan's artwork never became significant to the art world until his death in 1951. It was at this time that his second wife, Helen Farr Sloan, returned his ashes to Lock Haven.

Sloan is celebrated for his artwork, but his words, "Though a living cannot be made at art, art makes life worth living. It makes worry, it makes trouble, it makes a life that would be barren of everything - living. It brings life to life," reveal his passion for his craft.

Sloan left Lock Haven a legacy and it is in celebrating his contributions that we preserve that legacy.

Lisa Kushell has been a professional actress since the age of 16 and has been training with Suzi Landolphi, the creator of Hot, Sexy and Safer, to carry her message across the nation. According to Landolphi, a four-time nominee of the "Lecturer of the Year" award by the National Association of Campus Activities, "Kushell has what it takes to present the message, and I'm proud to

The event is free to LHU students and faculty with valid ID. Tickets are available to the public in the SCC business office for $5. For more information, contact the SCC at x2125.

Local artist to display "Dirty Laundry"

The works of Lynn Estomin, a videographer, photographer and computer artist, will be opened at the Gallery of the Sloan Fine Arts Center on Nov. 4 at 8 p.m., in a series called Landscapes of the Spirit and Dirty Laundry and Other Gossip.

Estomin, an assistant professor of art at Lycoming College, began her career by taking pictures of the Civil Rights Movement in the late 1960s. Today, she explores the issues of equality, gender, rights, and censorship through computer painted and manipulated black and white photographs.

Landscapes of the Spirit is a series of photographs and computer-manipulated images from Greece and New Mexico that demonstrates the beauty of nature and the relationship between the environment, humanity and spirituality. Estomin's other exhibit, Dirty Laundry and Other Gossip, includes two sets of photographs and computer-manipulated images. The Clothesline Project, is a collection of eight pictures of a clothesline covered with t-shirts made by survivors of domestic violence and by the family and friends of those who did not survive. The other collection, Voices from the Laundromat, is a series of six images and text taken from women in a laundromat, getting their opinion on life, love and laundry.

The exhibition is free and open to the public. For more information, call Dr. Mohinder Gill at x2151.

Football team captures first win of the season...

Eagles prevail over Vulcans

By Chris Nagy
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

FOOTBALL

It was only a matter of time until it happened. With the new offensive and defensive systems clicking, the Bald Eagles captured their first victory in dramatic fashion on Saturday at California University of Pa., 21-14.

Lock Haven took their first lead of the season on a ten-play, 86-yard drive. On a fourth down and five from the Cal 34, Carlos Cleckley found Bryan McGinty for a touch down. This was McGinty's third touchdown of the season; all have been scored on fourth downs.

Jon McFarland set up the next Eagle scoring attempt by intercepting a Vulcan pass at the Cal 45 and returning it 16 yards. The Haven offense took over at the California 29 and it took only five plays before A.J. Anderson punched it in from the two-yard line. Lock Haven then took a 14-7 lead.

The Vulcans came right back with a three-play, 78-yard drive when Cal's Mike Yurcich found Brain Harteis on a 59-yard touchdown pass.

California missed two field goals in the first half, one with 52 seconds left in the half, leaving the halftime score at 14-0.

"We felt good going into halftime with a seven point lead, especially with the way both the offense and the defense were playing," said fullback Willie Kitt.

The Vulcans carried the second half kickoff down the field and scored on a Yurcich to Harteis 22-yard touchdown; the drive took ten plays and covered 71 yards. This was the fourth straight week the Eagles gave up a touchdown at the beginning of the second half.

The Vulcans had a chance to take the lead after they blocked a Charlie Traber punt at the Lock Haven 35. Cal drove down to the the Haven's nine yard line when the defense came up big once again. This time it was Brad Caldwell who intercepted a Yurcich pass at the three and returned the ball to the Cal 23.

The Eagles then took the ball after a 15-yard penalty on Caldwell's return, and took only seven plays to drive 62 yards. Cleckley hooked up with Jeremey Burkett for a 15-yard touchdown, bringing the lead to 21-14.

Cal had one last chance after stopping the Eagles at their 39 and forcing them to punt. Traber stepped in and booted a 41-yard punt, pinning Cal back to their own 21.

"I knew I needed to hit a big punt. I just went out there and did my job and pinned them back," said Traber on his last punt of the game.

Cal then drove down to the Lock Haven three but ran out of time as the Eagle defense stood tall yet again.

The Haven offense had a big day, as did quarterback Cleckley who went 17 for 33 for 201 yards and two touchdowns. A.J. Anderson had a career day with 14 carries for 60 yards and one touchdown and six catches for 47 yards. McGinty had three catches for 65 yards and one touchdown. Art Harris had three catches for 38 yards.

Cleckley was named ECAC/Budget Division II South Offensive Player of the Week and was also named to the PSAC Weekly honor roll.

"The offensive line played better this week, and it showed in what we did offensively. We spread the ball around and the receivers made the big plays when they had to," said head coach Nick Polk.

The LHU defense once again came up big when their effort counted most. Matt Hendricks caused a Cal fumble at the one in the first quarter that Ben Steinbacher recovered in the endzone. The Eagles turned the ball over two plays later, but linebacker Corey Jacobs picked off the Cal pass once again.

"The defense came up big. We had nine pass deflections, four sacks by four different people and four interceptions by four different people, including three by linebackers," commented Coach Polk. The other interception was by Angelo Moultair in the shadow of the LHU endzone with only 3:48 to play in the game.

Rashid Rogers had six tackles, two tackles for loss and four pass break-ups. Rogers was named to the PSAC Weekly honor roll and the ECAC/Budget Honor roll as well.

Bill Hetler had 11 tackles, three tackles for loss. Jeremey Crills had 10 tackles, one tackle for loss. Steinbacher had three pass break-ups and a fumble recovery.

Sacks for the Eagles were tallied by John Gerst, Mark Williams, Demetrius Shelley, and Albert Jones, who also had one of LHU's nine pass break-ups. The Haven held the conference's 6th leading rusher, Terrian Ash, to -4 yards and the Cal team to only 62 yards on the ground.

Traber punted ten times for 329 yards with his longest being a 45-yard boot.

"We were never behind in the game and we stayed focused. We have to build towards a peak performance and keep getting better week to week," Coach Polk stated. "Our seniors stepped up and we got leadership from them this week. Charlie Traber had a big punt at the end, Rashid Rogers had the four pass break-ups. We played great football."

Next up for the Eagles (1-7, 1-2) is Slippery Rock (4-4, 1-2).

"We had a good week of practice before the Cal game and played hard. We are looking forward to the opportunity to play Slippery Rock and show them that we are for real," said offensive tackle Josh Mull.

LHU hopes to carry the momentum of Coach Polk's first win as LHU head coach into a victory against the Rock.

Lady Eagles soar above competition

by Brian Ploskina
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

After winning four out of five at the Shippensburg tournament this past weekend and a conference win over California, the Lady Eagles are in control of their own destiny going into the last week of the regular season. Lock Haven could possibly host the PSAC championships.

The Haven tore through the competition at Shippensburg, defeating West Chester and High Point in four sets apiece and crushing Salem-Teikyo, and Millersville University in straight sets until finally losing to Dowling University in the semi-finals.

At the tournament, Sarah Curtis had 62 kills and 45 digs. Fadime contributed 62 kills, 29 digs, seven aces and eight blocks. Megan Best had 59 kills and 29 digs, and Jamie Entenmann had 25 kills and seven blocks. Becky Peters had 202 assists.

The Lady Eagles continued their hot streak by ripping conference-rival California University 3-1(14-16, 15-4, 15-8, 15-13) on Tuesday night.

According to head coach Tom Justice, Sarah Curtis and Tara Newcomer were

"unstoppable."

They combined for 27 kills, 18 digs and shared a 48% attack percentage. Megan Best contributed with 18 kills and 12 digs. Ms. Automatic, Becky Peters, supplied 49 of the team's 55 assists to thrust the Lady Eagles to a 6-2 mark in the PSAC West Conference and 23-10 overall. That is good enough to keep them tied with Slippery Rock for second place.

The PSAC schedule makers might be considered esteemed geniuses this year because LHU will face both Slippery Rock and first place Edinboro at home next week in what are sure to be the most exciting match-ups the Atlantic Region has had to offer all season.

Edinboro, Slippery Rock, and LHU account for three of the top five teams in the Atlantic Region; a region that is arguably the most competitive east of the Mississippi.

Slippery Rock helped LHU's chances of hosting the championships when they defeated Edinboro earlier this week.

Curtis stated, "Now we have a shot at winning it all."

The Lady Eagle volleyball team has made it known that the fans are a big part of their success. Coach Justice said he is looking forward to seeing a packed crowd at both games next week. The Lady Eagles will first face Slippery Rock on Tuesday at 7 p.m., and then go on to face Edinboro on Friday at 6 p.m.

Justice admitted being a little nervous but he stated, "That's what it's all about!" He added, "This is what makes it exciting."

Women's soccer team faces tough non-conference opposition

by Doug Henry
Eagle Eye Sports Reporter

The Lady Eagles finished up their regular season with three non-conference games this week against C.W. Post, Adelphi University, and Mercyhurst University.

On Saturday, the Haven made the long journey to C.W. Post. The girls had just clinched home field advantage in the conference playoffs, but they would have to go on the road to close out the regular season.

The game started out with both teams playing dead even, but C.W. Post managed to get on the board first near the end of the first half. The ladies are used to coming from behind in recent weeks, but could they do it again?

Heather Orman answered that question when she tied the score four minutes into the second half. However, C.W. Post jumped back a mere two minutes later with their second goal of the day to take their second lead of the game. It was only the second time all season that the Haven defense had only given up more than one goal in a game.

The score remained 2-1 for another 20 minutes until the Haven could put up another score. Freshman Heidi Hegreberg, coming off a stress fracture injury, was able to take a Lisa Levine throw and score. This was a big goal that helped turn the tide of the game.

As they have done in so many recent games, the Lady Eagles waited until late in the game to get the winning score. With five minutes left, the Haven did what they had done all afternoon: they scored off of a long throw-in. Rachel Clemens received the ball from Levine and flicked it over to Georgina Adams. Adams was able to bury her shot at the back of the net winning the game, 3-2.

The next day, the Haven traveled to Northeast Region powerhouse Adelphi.

Going into the game, Adelphi held the number five ranking in the country. Lock Haven was at the 15th spot.

The Haven came out playing aggressive and dominating the first 20 minutes of the game, but could not score. After the first twenty minutes, Adelphi took over the game and went on to score two goals. The Lady Eagles could not answer back and were shutout.

"Fatigue had to do a lot with the loss," says coach Trevor Warren. "We had four big games in five days, and we were worn out after that first twenty minutes."

In every loss this season, the Haven has been shutout. This was the case also as the Haven traveled to Mercyhurst on Wednesday.

The game was played in hurricane like conditions. It was raining throughout the contest, and it was very cold. The Haven could not get going at all, and they were handed a 2-0 loss for the second straight game.

"We really struggled in those playing conditions," said coach Warren.

Haven prepares for the PSAC tournament. The semi-final game will be here between Bloomsburg and East Stroudsburg on Saturday. The Lady Eagles will face the winner on Sunday at 1:00.

"Sunday's game will be very important. The winner will go to the NCAA tournament," remarks coach Warren.

The top two spots of each region go to the NCAA playoffs. Right now, Adelphi holds the number one spot and Lock Haven is tied with Bloomsburg for the second spot. If Bloomsburg wins Saturday, the matchup between Lock Haven and Bloomsburg will be very important. The Haven has beaten both teams this season with a score of 4-3 over East Stroudsburg and a score of 2-1 over Bloomsburg.

Eagles regular season champs

This past week has been a busy one for the Bald Eagle men's soccer team. With two wins and only one loss, the Haven Boys are clawing their way to the championships.

On Saturday the Eagles could not get it going at C.W. Post, where they were delivered their first loss in seven games, 3-2.

Team co-captain Sean Flanagan assisted both Tim Foster and Steve Slack to put the Eagles on the board with a lead of 2-0 by the end of the first half, placing them in an excellent position to win.

In the beginning of the second half the Eagles played well, but due to bad defense, C.W. Post scored two goals, tying the game at 2-2. In the last minute Cam Uhlig hit the crossbar instead of the net.

The tie took the teams into overtime. Both teams had good chances to score, but with only forty-five seconds left C.W. Post scored due to an Eagles' defensive error.

"The team played a scrappy game and they could have won, but bad defense gave the game away," stated assistant coach Rob Thompson.

On Monday, the team clinched an important win over California University of Pa., 2-1. The two teams played an exciting first half with all the goal-scoring action taking place in the first seventeen minutes.

In the first five minutes, veteran midfielder Danny Bacon put the Eagles on the board off an assist by Rich Poole. Not to be outdone, Slack scored off an assist by Foster scored to put LHU on top.

In the second half, things went downhill when sophomore midfielder Poole was ejected from the game due to two yellow cards.

After Poole's removal, Cal took the initiative and did not let up on the Eagles for the rest of the game. Even though the Vulcans had many chances to score, the Eagles' defense and goalie Dave Hartlaub kept California at bay.

The Eagles did not play well overall, but they managed to win, securing their position as regular season PSAC champions.

"We give the team credit for the work they have done through the season, even though they didn't play well against California. It's not easy for the Eagles to play teams like Slippery Rock and Shippensburg and come away with good results when they play top region opponents," agreed both coaches Long and Thompson.

Last Wednesday the Bald Eagles played a great game against long-time rival East Stroudsburg University. The Warriors, who have beaten the Eagles in the last four PSAC championship games, met their match when the Haven Boys took the victory 2-1.

"It was an excellent team performance. Everybody worked really hard, and we were confident about the game," proudly remarked assistant coach Thompson.

At the end of the first half the scoreboard favored ESU 1-0.

After halftime the Bald Eagles came out ready to play and determined to win. At 49 minutes Uhlig scored unassisted, paving the path for the rest of the game. Five minutes later Slack put the Eagles over the top off an assist by Flanagan.

Not ready to quit, East Stroudsburg put the pressure on the Eagles. They did not succeed thanks to the many key saves made by goalie Dave Hartlaub.

Junior back Ryan Czop was given the task of marking Mike Feniger, who is a two-time All-American forward for ESU. Feniger was able to score the Warriors' only goal but could not do anything else due to Czop's defense.

"Ryan did a superb job marking Feniger out of the game," remarked coach Thompson.

Not to be forgotten are key defenders Kevin Davy, Ric Petrosky, and Kevin Floss who were "utterly superior" on defense. Uhlig put on another excellent performance.

"The guys who came off the bench to play against East Stroudsburg did very well. The substitutes stepped up!" remarked coach Thompson.

This is the first time in several years the men's soccer team has gone 8-0 in regular season PSAC games, which gives them a chance to appear in the NCAA playoffs.

The team will play Gannon on Saturday at 1 p.m.

Six Lock Haven athletes earn honors

Six University athletes earned PSAC and/or Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) awards last week.

Senior field hockey forward Melanie Helm earned her second PSAC Player of the Week award within three weeks. Last week she was named co-player of the week with Bloomsburg's Jessica Kircher. Helm scored two goals in the field hockey team's PSAC playoff-clinching 4-0 win over IUP. This week she scored the lone goal over William Smith and added another goal in the 6-0 win over Rochester.

In the light of their first season victory, two football players were honored also (see story page 10). Junior quarterback Carlos Cleckley was named the ECAC/Budget Division II South Offensive Player of the Week and named to the PSAC Weekly Honor Roll for his performance. Junior Rashid Rogers was named to the PSAC Weekly Honor Roll as well.

Freshman forward Rachel Clemens was named PSAC Player of the Week for the second straight time. She tallied a goal and three assists in the women's soccer team's 3-1 week. She scored the tying goal and assisted the winning goal in LHU's 2-1 victory over Bloomsburg. Clemens also added an assist in victories over California

University of Pa. and C. W. Post.

The men's soccer team boasted a PSAC Player of the Week as well. Junior forward Steve Slack earned the honor for his two-goal contribution in the team's 1-1 week. Against Bloomsburg, Slack scored the deciding goal in the 1-0 win. Slack added another goal in the 3-2 overtime loss at C. W. Post.

Senior Amy Yarger was named PSAC Co-Runner of the Week. She won a tri-meet with Bloomsburg and Mansfield on Friday, finishing the 2.5 mile course in 15:37.
