

Eagle Eye

New election is slated for 29th

"On Wednesday night Lorin Mock, SCC President called a special meeting of the Senate. The meeting was held to discuss the complications of a decision by the SCC's Parliamentarian, to invalidate Jayne Bolduc's write-in victory for the position of SCC President.

The first order of business was to vote upon a set of recommendations proposed by Jeff Caulkins, Chairperson of the Election Committee. The Senate approved his recommendations automatically establishing guidelines for the next election. No longer will campaign signs be allowed within vision of the ballot box, all campaigning must be done fifty feet from the ballot box and all voters must have validated I.D.'s.

A major part of the discussion of the motion on the floor was to determine whether a person who wins a write-in campaign is considered as a nominee or a candidate. The motion stated that Bolduc was considered a candidate; therefore, she did not have to meet the qualifications stated in the SCC Constitution regarding nominees for and she could be President. If the motion was rejected, then Bolduc must be considered a nominee and she could not be President.

In the longest debate of the Senate this semester, the decision was made by the Senate 16-9, to reject the motion. Bolduc was ineligible to be SCC President.

David Heverly, a general member of the SCC, was the most active supporter of Bolduc's position at the meeting. Heverly centered his argument primarily on the definition of the word nominee. He argued that a candidate and a nominee are not the same.

The opposing argument stated that since Bolduc placed a letter in the Eagle Eye and campaigned actively for the position she, in effect, placed her name in nomination.

After the roll call vote which determined that Bolduc did not meet the qualifications to be president the Senate had to

Lecture covered impact of TV ads

As part of the Faculty Lecture Series Dr. Ed Kelleher, of the Sociology Department presented a lecture entitled "The Sociology of TV Commercials Thursday, November 4 in Raub Hall. Being an avid viewer of television Dr. Kelleher expressed his feelings about commercials and how they are intended to influence the average viewer.

The presentation began with mock-contest of some popular television commercials. Dr. Kelleher served as commentator of this contest and with the help of Leo Ritter, it was videotaped and presented on two televisions in the lecture room. It was pointed out that LHS has the third most sophisticated audiovisual equipment in the state, with only Penn State and Pittsburgh exceeding it.

In opening his lecture Dr. Kelleher stated that "Sociology is the science of the obvious. People don't view television objectively. They take it for granted that commercials have the right to intrude on us without thinking about the dimensions of the medium." It was brought out that communication must capture attention. Man feels he must be a consumer, that he must buy newer, bigger and better products.

Sociologists make use of emographics since it is the size and type of audience which can be delivered to that is the primary concern of the companies. According to statistics the largest percentage of the buyer market during prime time includes 18 to 49 year old, male city dwellers, and commercials must be made in answer to their needs and desires. Accordingly, daytime commercials cater to women. As Kelleher stated, "An audience is part of the performance, someone must respond to what the TV offers."

Sunday, November 14 at 2 pm Sigma Pi and Hiya (a group of students who were originally from High Hall) will be sponsoring a Frisbee Football game at Lawrence Field. The game is for the benefit of Bobby James Jr., a 6 year old from Jersey Shore who is suffering from nearly a dozen congenital heart diseases.

The money collected will be used to send Bobby and his family to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. There, the clinic personnel will perform the needed tests and surgery if they feel it will be beneficial. All of these services will be provided without concern for the parents ability to pay.

In closing, Dr. Kelleher opened the floor for questions and discussion. Despite the small sized audience, Kelleher expressed that he was grateful to all who attended.

The next lecture will be held Thursday, December 2. It will be presented by Dr. Darlene Thomas and is entitled Ancient Cities of West Africa.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

This is a response to Wednesday's editorial, "CPA isn't everything."

Sure the SCC's Constitutional clause mandates that a student must be in good academic standing in order to become a member, and with good reason. How else can a college or student government make a name for itself if the students can't even come up with a minimal 2.0 average? If the administration should revise or re-evaluate its procedure for determining good academic standing based upon the "individual," how would that be done? Would the basis of an "individual" be one who is clean, makes his bed every morning, attends all classes, and is a "pet" be sufficient? That is definitely absurd, right? Then so is basing CPA on individuality.

Let's jump ahead for a moment. As usual with any college, grades are important. I have recently learned that within the next two years the system of being placed on academic probation will be put back into affect with serious consequences for perpetual offenders. Albeit it has never been totally discarded, the probation has lost some of its affectiveness.

Getting back to the topic at hand, I would like to clarify some remaining points which I feel are valid. I am in no way saying that because Jim B. and Lew W. did not have a sufficient CPA that they should not be commended for their support and involvement with the SCC. And I am also not denying the fact that being involved with the SCC is a rewarding experience. But one must also remember that the reason for being here is

God symposium is announced

To the Editor:

The Bi-Centennial Committee at LHSC has chose to present a symposium on religion in America. Speakers are limited to representatives of the Jewish and Christian religions with emphasis upon Evangelical Protestants. This might suggest to the casual observer or international student that religions in America are either Jewish or Christian or that liberal, non-Christian religions are of no consequence in America. Both conclusions would be in error. There is void in the programing of this symposium: except for the Jewish religion, no liberal, non-Christian religion is represented.

This Bi-Centennial event does not recognize an important religious denomination - that of Unitarian Universalists - one whose philosophy was subscribed to by Jefferson, John Adams and Quincy Adams. The committee is interested (according to a spokesman) in the "mainstream religions," (mainstream denoting those with the greatest number of members.) This emphasis upon the majority ignores the influence of a minority philosophy upon public life. According to Marshall's Challenge of a Liberal Faith, Who's Who in America reveals that those holding Unitarian beliefs number twenty-eight times

Heart operation is vital to a Jersey Shore youth

To the Editor:

As a member of the Hiya frisbee team I'd like to make a plea to the student body of Lock Haven to attend the match between Sigma Pi fraternity and Hiya behind Smith Hall, Sunday at 2:00 pm. I'm making this plea to attend the match not on behalf of the teams involved, but on behalf of Bobby James a young boy from Jersey Shore who needs a heart operation. Have you ever tried to go through even one day without being able to run or walk at an accelerated pace? Well, Bobby has to, though it's not his choice to be exempt from a normal life. If he tries to pick up his pace his lungs will fill up with blood and eventually curtail his breathing.

A hospital out in the mid-west has graciously volunteered their services but that's not going to help Bobby if he can't get enough money for transportation. It would take very little time or money from each individual student to insure a normal life for Bobby James. This student body has come through in the past in helping out charities and people in need, please don't turn your backs on a young boy as unfortunate as Bobby. It would be a shame if Bobby couldn't get the money together for transportation, especially when everything else is taken care of by the hospital. Let's show Bobby that the students of Lock Haven State College care

LHS Eaglettes win PRO BALL spot in Nationals

By virtue of wins over Lehigh 6-1, and East Stroudsburg 2-1, on Thursday, the women's field hockey team moved into semifinal competition in the Regionals Tournament at Glassboro. They have automatically qualified for Nationals which will be played at the Valley Forge Military Academy on November 24-27.

Penn State, strongly favored to place, lost 1-0 to the University of Delaware making them ineligible for the National competition.

Two Lock Haven students will be competing in the Women's Cross Country Nationals at Madison, Wisconsin this weekend. They are sophomore Mary Kitzig and junior Carol Meyers. To qualify for Nationals competition, they had to run two three mile courses in under 19 minutes. Meyers, a veteran of Lock Haven cross country running, had a qualifying time of 17:55. Kitzig was clocked at 18:24, in her first year of cross country competition.

This year, Meyers and Kitzig gained experience by competing against the teams of Slippery Rock, California State and Bucknell. They attended regionals competition at Albany, New York on October 30. In this competition, Kitzig finished 28 and Miss Meyers finished 38 in a field of 150 runners. The Nationals Competition will feature runners from across the U.S.

Big games this week are in Pittsburgh and Baltimore as the season heads for the wire. Last week was my best (12-2, 74-37 overall) and the games get tougher now.

Pittsburgh 23 Miami 17

This is a "Wild-card" game. One more loss virtually assures the Dolphins of another year out of the playoffs. If the Steelers lose it's all over for them. Pittsburgh gets their first tough opponent to see if they really are back.

Baltimore 21 New England 20

Baltimore won the opener this year because the Patriots were sloppy. Game is in Baltimore where Colts are extra tough.

Cleveland 17 Philadelphia 10

The Eagles proved last week that no matter how much you try to give them a game, they won't accept. The Eagles will find a way to lose this game in the second half after leading at half-time.

San Diego 17 Denver 14

Close game out on the coast with Chargers taking game of "500" ball clubs.

New Orleans 28 Detroit 21

New Orleans catches the Lions napping in the Superdome and stages a mild upset.

Chicago 21 Green Bay 17

A case of a definite let-down after losing a game they could have won. Bears recuperate in second half to beat Packers.

Cincinnati 21 Houston 10

The Bengals should send a letter to Jimmy the Greek and ask "what happened". Last Monday "the Greek" guaranteed the Rams would beat the Bengals. The Bengals then proceeded to clobber the Rams 20-12, the game not being as close as the score decide upon the next course of action.

By mutual agreement, the Parliamentarian and the President decided to yield their power to the Senate and abide by any solution the Senate would recommend as a course of action.

The Senate voted on a motion that called for a new election. A yes vote meant a new election was mandatory, a no vote validated Monday's election which would make Paul Benkert the President-elect.

The Senate voted in favor of a new election with no nay votes cast.

The approved motion specified that the election will be held November 29, the day after Thanksgiving vacation.

is not all fun.

Now, the future of Uriah Heep is up in the air.

Ringo Starr was suing Polydor Records over the release of old Beatles tapes just as his new LP, Ringo's Rotogravure came out, and Polydor is releasing that LP also. Ringo's new LP features John Lennon, Paul McCartney, Eric Clapton, Peter Frampton, Sneaky Pete and others.

The move to stop the tapes came mainly from George Harrison and Ringo. It seems that the interviews on the tapes were embarrassing. The tapes took place with each of the Beatles at different times over the 1969 to 1973 period.

Judge Rubin of the London High Court found the Beatles objections ridiculous. He didn't think the general public would be misled by the album, nor would they get the impression that the Beatles had been involved in the production of Polydor's LP.

Nominations close this Monday, November 15.

All nominees for the Executive Committee must receive two hundred (200) signatures on a petition before Monday, must be in good academic standing as determined by the Vice President of Academic Affairs, and be a full-time student. The Constitution further stipulates that nominees running for the office of SCC President must be members of the incoming junior or senior class.

more than their proportion in the population. In the spirit of the Bi-Centennial, concern for minorities and for "inclusion" rather than "exclusion" would seem to be important.

This symposium is not planned as a forum for special religions to "spread the word." If liberal as well as orthodox church members and those who do not join organized religious groups participate by attending on November 16th, it will truly reflect the Bi-Centennial spirit. If it becomes a forum for selected groups to advertise their good deeds, then the Bi-Centennial monies will be misspent.
