

SOMETHING IS ROTTEN PART TWO

To the editor:

Something Is Rotten #2--or--I Am Curious (Red).

In Parson's encyclical of September 15--you remember, the "incipient riot" message--he asserts that when he was presented with a final copy of the study he "found that the name of Harry I. Miller had been omitted." It is rather remarkable that he did not also discover that the name of Werner Barth was omitted.

When Lock Haven State College applied for the federal grant to conduct a study of the government of Lock Haven it stipulated that "Lock Haven State College will sponsor and provide direction for the project through the services of four faculty members who will serve as the principal researchers." The four faculty members specifically named for this were, of course, Yaun, Vonada, Miller and Barth.

The fact that Barth, despite the terms of the contract, conducted no research has been well established as has the fact that he was paid $1000 for being a 'principal researcher.' An attempt has been made, however, to make this palatable by claiming that Barth was the project "coordinator" rather than a researcher. Only the most obsequious have been able to swallow that one.

But let us assume for a moment that this change of title was not an attempt to conceal nonfeasance. Isn't it logical to wonder why it was necessary to conceal the fact that Barth was not expected to conduct research from the federal government? The subject, in case you had forgotten, is immorality. Isn't it also logical to wonder what it was that the coordinator coordinated?

As a matter of fact, isn't it logical to wonder just what it was that Barth did to earn his pay?

I am told that one picture is worth a thousand words. Is it also true that one letter is worth a thousand dollars?

SCC Raps on Money, Interest

The Student Cooperative Council has got its troubles.

Problems concerning the financial situation of the student government and the lack of student interest in student concerns were two topics facing the SCC board of directors at last evening's 2½-hour meeting.

Members of the executive board implied that the student government at Lock Haven State is in serious financial difficulties. The board said that a report of the SCC fiscal condition will be made available at the next board meeting Dec. 3.

Several requests for monetary allocations were deferred from the board meeting until next month. Jim Crampton announced that a special meeting to review SCC finances will be held prior to the Thanksgiving vacation. Crampton, SCC first vice president, acted in President Mike McLaughlin's absence.

Crampton pointed out that the meeting will include the executive board; Monroe Hurwitz, the council's business manager; and Walt McCallum, chairman of the business operations committee.

Some Funds Allocated at Meeting

In spite of the decaying financial picture of SCC, the board members did pass motions allocating a total of $1,388 to council-chartered groups.

A $1,000 grant was given to the women's field hockey team to attend a national tournament next weekend, Nov. 27 and 28. Smaller amounts were voted for other groups -- $288 was allocated to feed the men's basketball team so they can remain on campus for intensive practice during the Thanksgiving vacation; a $100 emergency allocation was given to the Student Organization for Peace (STOP!) to allow the newly-chartered group to operate while its formal budget is being processed by the SCC.

Council Fighting Lack of Interest

Attempting to combat the lack of student interest in the student government, the council's board of directors passed a motion requiring each board member to bring two, other students to the next directors' meeting.

The motion, presented by Jan Pearson, grew out of several indications by committee chairmen that the student council work was being left to a small few students, while the majority of the LHS students remain indifferent to the government's functions and enterprises.

The majority of the SCC standing committees failed to present reports.

SCC Should 'Involve More Students...'

Early in the meeting, Crampton presented a statement to the directors from the executive board.

He said that SCC should "involve more and more students in campus activities including their government, their union, and their scholastic activities. It is important that committees are made up of more students outside the SCC board.

"The following policies concerning the board of directors should therefore be part of the campaign and should have the full support of the SCC board of directors:

1/ SCC board of directors meetings should be attended by a greater number of students, and the invitation should be constantly extended and emphasized through every media possible;

2/ Committee chairmen are to select their committee outside of the board of directors if at all possible;

3/ The representatives should report activities to the board in detail and accurately, and gather response from their organization.

"These steps are important...to general improvement of LHSC. It is the job of the board to provide leadership and channeling devices necessary to involve the greatest number of students in campus rules and regulations. It is the job of the administration to not only support, but to allow the students to improve the campus; that is, their home and future. It is the job of the faculty to support and assist the students in a side-by-side relationship, not teacher above student. It is the student's job to get up and work for his rights, privileges, and responsibilities."

THE CHAIRS

The college players, Lock Haven State's drama club, will present two contemporary works from the theatre of the absurd in Price Auditorium Nov. 20, 21 and 22 at 8:15 pm. The Lesson and The Chairs were both written by the French-Roumanian playwright, Eugene Ionesco.

The first drama, The Lesson, deals with a professor and a student in a tutoring session. Dennis Gallagher will play the professor, Debra Brownlee will be the student, and Nelle Fastman will be the maid. This play may perhaps give some insight into the processes and methods of education to students and prospective teachers.

In the second one-act play, The Chairs, an elderly couple offer their reminiscences of life to be examined by an array of prominent guests. The old man will be enacted by Mike Packer and the old woman by Pat Swarr. The orator will be played by Bill Anastasia. There will also be a surprise guest featured in The Chairs.

Both plays are directed by Dr. Robert Kidder with Lynn Miner acting as stage manager.

Scene design is by Miss Maizie Weil and costume design is by Mrs. Hazel Ferguson.

Pledges of Alpha Psi Omega will sell coffee and cookies in the lobby during intermission.

Free tickets for students, staff and faculty can be obtained at the reception desk in the PUB.
