

Education Association Awards Plaque to LHS

Lock Haven State College received its plaque of charter membership in the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges for Teacher Education at the association's first annual meeting, held at the Pennsylvania State University on November 16-17.

Dr. Francis N. Hamblin, president of LHS, was the principal speaker at one of the two general sessions. He spoke on international teacher education.

Dr. Francis Colabrese, director of field experiences for the School of Education at Lock Haven State, chaired a group session on environmental teacher education. He helped plan the association's constitution and is serving on the board of directors.

The association was organized in 1971 to stimulate improvement in the education of professional school personnel in Pennsylvania. Membership presently includes 58 of the 82 institutions which prepare teachers in the state. These 58 account for 90 percent of the students in teacher education in Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania association is affiliated with the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

Reminder to Students:
The doors will open for the Lehigh Wrestling Match at 5 p.m. on Sat. Dec. 2. Students are asked not to sit in the reserved sections, the North and South bleachers. Students may sit anywhere in the East and West bleachers and on the floor surrounding the mat.

'The House of Noise' really earned its name Wednesday night as a crowd of students from Penn State and LHS grooved to the vibes and volume of Spirit.

CONSIDER...

Advisors Should Be Known!

'Advisors' names should be printed on the students' schedules at the beginning of a semester. This would give the student time to make an appointment with his advisor and talk to him early in the term.

The way it is set up now, a student must go to Dr. Bone's office where he can find out who his advisor is. The Daily Bulletin carried this information but not all students read the paper when that particular news was printed.

A student can also learn of his advisor by finding a list on which his name and advisor are printed. These lists are made up for each major and posted in various buildings. A student could spend all day looking for this building.

Everyone should see his advisor if he has any doubt in his mind about what courses he would like to take. There are freshmen who still don't know who their advisor is and it is past mid-term. A few advisors send letters to their students, which is a great help, but not all of them follow this procedure.

Printing advisor's names on schedules would not take much time and it would eliminate making and posting worthless lists. Hopefully, some action can be taken before next year's fall term.

Are Open Dorm Privileges Being Abused?

Something needs to be done about unescorted males in the girls' dorms! Every weekend the halls are full of them. There is absolutely no respect for anyone's privacy. The doors to the rooms must be kept locked at all times, for a male head may peep in at anytime.

Let me cite an example concerning a girl on the first floor of Woolridge Hall. On a Friday night she went to bed and didn't lock the door because her roommate didn't take her key when she went out to a party. The first girl found the next day that a counselor from another wing had come by just in time to throw a couple of drunk guys out of the room. She hadn't heard the guys coming in. Who knows what could have happened if the counselor hadn't come along?

I can also cite an example about the bathrooms. It was another typical weekend night. A girl went walking into the bathroom and there were two drunk guys using the toilets. No one yet knows how they got in. Is this the way open dorms were intended to be? Open dorms are a good idea, but there is still the idea of the other girls' privacy to be considered.

Why even bother to have an attendant on duty? Guys sneak in the back doors at all hours of the night. Some even

Judicial Code To Become Reality

After two years at the committee level, the student judicial code for Lock Haven State College is finally ready for implementation.

The student committee which constructed the document was originally formed under the SCC administration of Jack Infield. Committee members Nick Francalancia, Gary Gadson and Steve Podgajny who have graduated, and present undergraduates Tim Mahoney and Doug Dows organized the code utilizing existing judicial systems on other state college campuses. Basically, the committee extracted portions of many documents and in most cases adapted them to relate to Lock Haven State's existing systems. Realizing that the Women's Dorm Council already had an efficient judicial process, the committee attempted to parallel the men's program to this, without limiting either system on any specific points.

Furthermore, the committee had two objectives in mind in constructing the codes: first, to insure trial by one's peers and second; to provide a method of appeal. In the Residence Hall system the code provides for judicial proceedings in accordance with and by the residents of that dormitory. For instance, a Smith Hall resident committing a violation in Smith Hall would be tried by the Smith Hall Hearing Board. If a Smith Hall resident commits a violation in North Hall, his case is handled by the Men's Residence Hall Judicial Council. This Council is a representative body for all men's residence halls. The Women's Judicial System parallels this system with corresponding boards for each of the Women's dormitories.

Above the residence hall systems are three appellate boards for residents, or original jurisdiction in cases of commuting students.

The Lower Board consisting of two commuting students, one male resident, one female resident and one faculty member, has original jurisdiction involving off-campus students. It is also an appeal board for cases involving residents.

The Middle Board, consisting of three students and two faculty, has original jurisdiction in all cases involving academic dishonesty. This board will handle such violations as plagiarism, cheating on tests, etc.

Any appeal of this type of case goes to the Final Board. This Board is chaired by the Vice-President of Academic Affairs.

In addition to the organizational structure of the judicial system, the code also specifies the procedure which must be followed to bring a student to trial.

Finally, the code provides for the appointment of a committee to facilitate the implementation of the code.

Dr. S. Wisniewski Exhibits Work

Dr. Stanislaus Wisniewski, associate professor of art at Lock Haven State College, is currently exhibiting his work at the Lehigh University Art Center, Long Island. The display will continue until December 9.

The exhibit will consist of oil paintings, drawings, and prints of male and female figure studies. Several of the studies are cut-out figures painted on masonite, with a strong suggestion of foreshortening.

Dr. Wisniewski explains that his object is to involve the viewer in the paradox of a human figure which appears rounded but is actually on a flat surface. His figure studies also pose the question of the difference between what is naked and what is nude.

Dr. Wisniewski traveled to Long Island for the opening day reception held in his honor.

Replacing R.F.O. Speedwagon. Joshua and Company proved to be the surprise of the evening as they performed in concert.

Say So Long To Sloan

The extended exhibition of John Sloan paintings at Lock Haven State's Stevenson Library will close on December 11, according to Mr. Andrew King, Grugan, director of the Lycoming County Historical Museum. The collection is being returned to the Kraushaar Gallery in New York City.

Grugan made the arrangements with Mrs. Helen Farr Sloan to bring the exhibit to LHS in January 1970 as part of the college's 1970-71 centennial observance and the centennial of Sloan's birth in Lock Haven in August 1871.

The 42 paintings on exhibit at LHS for over two years constituted the largest display of Sloan oil paintings to be shown in 20 years.

Five of the paintings will remain on exhibit in the library reserve room until the end of the academic year. They are the portraits of Sloan's father and of his mother, "Cliff Dweiser's Country," "Grotesques, Santo Domingo," and "Two Sisters."

John Sloan was best known for his paintings of city street scenes in the early 20th century. He died in 1951.

There will be a meeting of the Student Judicial Committee on Tues. Dec. 5th at 1 p.m. in the SCC office.

What are now called flower children... used to be called blooming idiots.

Eagles Try to Engineer Upset

The east's biggest mat war will take place Saturday evening at 8 p.m. when Lehigh University invades Thomas Field House.

The annual battle has been the "kick-off" of eastern wrestling the past several years, and this year's match should be closer than many experts are predicting. A J.V. match between the two powers will precede the Varsity event at 6 p.m. Students are encouraged to get their seats prior to 5:30 p.m. The Lehigh-Lock Haven match is an annual sell-out.

The last time Lehigh visited the "Haven" they won a hotly contested 10-17 match. Last year Lehigh won handily 28-7 in Lehigh's famed "Snake-Pit." The Bald Eagles were impressive in their exhibition against the Alumni and their annual scrimmage against Penn State last week.

Mannettes Combine With Temple for Dual Exhibition

The Mannettes Girls Gym Club, U.S. Gymnastic Federation Junior National Champions for both 1971 and 1972, will appear at LHS Thomas Fieldhouse on Tuesday, December 12 at 7:30 p.m. in a dual exhibition with members of the Temple University men gym team.

The Mannettes, one of the most outstanding girls' gymnastic teams in the nation, will feature Miss Ann Carr finalist at 1972 Olympic trials, 1972 second National Champion in vault, and 1972 Junior National Floor Exercise Champion.

Also appearing for the Mannettes will be Dawn Shogren, 1972 Senior National 4th All-Around Champion, and Shelly Bier and Barbie Cantwell, who are 1972 AAU Junior Olympic 7-State Regional Champions.

The Mannettes had the largest number of qualifiers for Olympic trials of any women's team in the country last year.

The Temple team includes a number of exciting gymnasts, among them NCAA All-American vaulter Mel Hill. He also was 1972 AAU National Champion in vault.

The outstanding exhibition, which is expected to attract a large crowd to the fieldhouse, is being sponsored by the LHS School of Health and Physical Education.

Tickets for the fine event are available in Zimmerli Gymnasium lobby and the physical education office on second floor of the gym or contact LH women gymnastic coach Miss Lu deWette, telephone 748-5351 (Ext. 263 or 272). Tickets also will be sold at the door the night of the exhibition.

Greek Grounds

Mrs. Ann Halbert, National Assistant Secretary of Sigma Sigma Sigma, will be spending this week at Lock Haven while visiting the Alpha Rho chapter. During her stay, Mrs. Halbert will become acquainted with both collegiate and alumnae members of the local chapter and will help with any problems related to sorority life. She will be meeting with administrative members also to encourage efficient chapter operation and continued leadership in rush, membership and communications.

Sigma Sigma Sigma, a national sorority, is a member of the National Panhellenic Conference and has chapters located at 75 colleges and more than 150 cities in the United States. Locally, the Alpha Rho chapter of Tri-Sigma was installed in 1935.

Sigma Sigma Sigma was founded at Farmville Virginia in 1898, since then its membership has grown to over 30,000. Sigmas all over the United States will celebrate 75 years of progress and growth in 1973.
