Tri Sigma refutes Hell Week

Dear Editor

I would like to express my disappointment about a recent article that was published about fraternities and sororities Hell Week by Miss McIntyre. I feel that it was unfair that the article grouped all fraternities and sororities as having Hell Week.

Sigma Sigma Sigma does not have a so called Hell Week. Our pledges go through a pledge program which prepares them for sisterhood. They learn about the sorority, the rituals, and its a time for the sisters and the pledges to get to know one another and learn how to function as a group.

The pledges of Tri Sigma do nothing that would embarrass them or degrade them in front of anyone. The pledges do what every sister of Tri Sigma would do and if a sister wouldn't do it the pledges certainly do not have to do it.

The last week of our pledge program can by no means be called Hell Week. Tri Sigma has an Inspirational Week.

It is a very special time for the pledges and sisters. It signifies the end of pledging and that they are ready to become sisters. It's a special week where we have a few special ceremonies, but there are no tests of ability or proving that they are worthy of becoming a sister. The last week is a wonderful time that is very special to each of us.

I just felt that it wasn't fair to mislead people about the Greek organizations on campus. Each sorority and fraternity is a separate organization and is run differently by the choice of that sorority or fraternity.

So please, if you're going to use generalization, check into each group before you put us all into one category.

Math Center is doing well

Dear Editor

Your article about the Math Center in the December 9 edition of the Eagle Eye includes remarks credited to me which are not accurate or were taken out of context.

The Mathematics Services Division provides a variety of needed and USED services to all students at Lock Haven University. During this semester, in addition to testing approximately 600 freshman and transfer students during the orientation period, the MSD has provided the following services: Tutoring for 142 students as often as they wish (some students come several times each week), diagnostic tests and evaluations for seventy-six students, and extensive mathematics advisement for thirty-five other students. Also, the MSD has provided many of the 600 tested freshmen and transfer students and/or their advisors with test results along with course recommendations either in person or by phone.

The fall '83 semester has been an extremely successful one for MSD. I'm quite pleased with the rate of student use. Of course, I would like to see every student who needs help with math take advantage of our services.

The MSD is funded primarily by a Special Services grant from the U.S. Department of Education. The University has applied for a renewal of that grant for next year. We are very hopeful that this important program will continue to be available on our campus.

Sincerely
Carol Rehn

Advisor's actions questioned

Dear Editor,

This is to consul the other students who have Professor Arif Azeem for an advisor.

As is common practice in the computer science department, students' classes for their major are reserved ahead to ensure graduating on time. This is accomplished when the advisor turns in the students' schedules. A program is then run to give students their courses according to number of credits and pre-requisite courses completed.

Unfortunately, those of us who are advised by Professor Azeem were not given the same treatment as other computer science majors, due to the fact that Professor Azeem did not turn our schedules in on time. Therefore the program was run without our names.

The Department Chairperson, Dr. Brady has offered us only the left-over courses.

I do not think this is fair. We should not be discriminated against simply because one professor lacked the responsibility to do his job. I think the program should be run again with ALL of the names.

Argentianians ready to head home

By Steve Coffman

For most students at the end of the semester means going home. This is also true for a group of eight Argentinians who have spent the last month at Lock Haven University (LHU).

The members of the group are participants in the Educational and Cultural Exchange Program between Buenos Aires, Argentina and LHU in cooperation with the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

The program was started in 1977 and this is the tenth group to come to the United States. The members are highly qualified in their respective fields of interest which range from teaching, to administration, to research.

As of now, 300 Argentinians have participated in this program. This semester's group of eight is the smallest group to come to the U.S. One semester a group of 43 arrived in Lock Haven.

Candidates for the program are chosen in Argentina by the administrator of education and the administrator of public health.

Some 70 Americans have participated in the counterpart of this program by traveling to and studying in Argentina.

The whole exchange program is based at LHU. Dr. George Mottet, director of international education at LHU, serves as the general administrator for the program in the United States.

The exchange members use LHU as headquarters while they participate in research and other activities at different locations. The Argentinians are involved in research and programs at Penn State, in New York, and in Washington D.C..

This semester's visitors could not spend a whole semester since they were delayed in leaving Argentina. This limited their ability to relate and participate in activities at LHU as past groups have done.

The entire program represents an investment of more than two million Argentinian dollars. The government of Argentina pays for all expenses of the groups while they are here. Also, Argentina gives extra compensation above and beyond expenses that is a source of revenue for LHU.

After this semester, the Argentinians will take a videotape back to Argentina with them. It will visualize some of their work and activities in America and it will be shown to the new government officials in Argentina.

Moten said the exchange program is "absolutely unique." There is no other program like it. Mottet is very happy with the program and pleased that it has survived the recent political changes in Argentina. He said, "The program has been termed the real ambassador to the U.S. It reaches places ambassadors cannot, the best place being education and students."

Hockey players receive post season honors

Ann Grim, shown here during a game earlier this season, is the only Division II All-American in the country this year. She is also one of seven All-Conference team members from the Lady Eagles.

Lady hoopers scalped by ESU

By Christa Landas

The Lock Haven women's basketball team took an early eight point lead Monday night and looked as if they would make an easy game of it against East Stroudsburg. But the Warriors had other plans, and the momentum began to change hands late in the first half as ESU grabbed a ten point lead at the 1:16 mark. The Lady Bald Eagles came to within six in the second half but were unable to come back, losing the contest 71-54.

At the 13:28 point in the second half, LHU coach Fred Riley was given a technical foul after he voiced his disgust with the officiating. Riley was slapped with another technical about 30 seconds later as he continued to protest the calls.

When asked about the two technicals, Coach Riley replied that he was in the game, too. He, also, felt the officiating could not be blamed for the loss and said the Warriors just played well and capitalized on Eagle mistakes.

The game continued, but the Eagles never regained their composure as they ended the game with a total of 30 fouls - 20 of those occurring in the second half. Lisa Maneval, Tina Martin, and Lori Young fouled out late in the second period, all within 2:30 of each other. The Lady Warriors only had 17 fouls, and none of their team members had to leave the game. Youorski made 12 of 15 free throws for ESU including the two technical freebies.

With 5:28 left in the game, LHU appeared to be coming back, scoring two quick baskets and pulling to within 12. ESU then called time out to try and stop the Eagles' momentum. The Warriors strategy worked as LHU lost the fire they had had before the time out and were unable to come any closer than twelve the rest of the way.

"I guess we just weren't prepared to play ESU. We were dead. The team was not mentally prepared to play," commented Coach Fred Riley, "We missed a lot of easy shots that could have changed the momentum."

Seven Lock Haven University (LHU) field hockey players have been selected to the sixteen member 1983 Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference (PSAC) All-Conference team. Five of the seven LHU players have also been chosen to the sixteen member All-Division II team.

Representing LHU on the 1983 PSAC All-Conference team, as picked by PSAC field hockey coaches, are forwards Tracy Coates and Sherry Derr, midfielder Ginny Neiss, backs Patti Gillespie and Ann Grim, sweeper Bonnie Lassen, and goalkeeper Kate Murphy.

Coates, a senior from Tonawanda (N.Y.), scored eight goals as an important offensive performer for LHU's team this year. Coates, the team's penalty stroker for most of the year, scored three goals and added an assist in LHU's 1983 season opening game rout of Mansfield.

Of Coates, LHU field hockey coach Sharon Taylor said, "Tracy has been a very versatile player for us during her four years here. She played as a halfback in her sophomore and junior years and then made the smooth switch to attack in her senior year. Tracy always gave 110%."

Derr, a junior from Maytown, was LHU's leader this year with 23 goals. Derr, who has scored 57 goals in only three years for LHU tallied all four goals in LHU's 4-0 shutout victory over Slippery Rock earlier this year.

Concerning Derr, LHU coach Taylor said, "Sherry has been our top or second highest scorer during each of her three years here. She came off the bench as a frustrated freshman but she still managed to be the team's second leading scorer that year. Sherry is our primary scoring weapon, and I'm looking for her to have a productive senior year for us."

Neiss, a sophomore from Lancaster, had eight goals and five assists as another key offensive player for LHU's team this year. Neiss, the team player who set up the penalty corner shots all year, scored the only goal of the game versus Cortland earlier this year to give LHU a big 1-0 triumph.

Referring to Neiss, LHU coach Taylor said, "Ginny was very versatile as a freshman varsity player. It's hard to find that quality in a first year performer. This year as a right side link, Ginny had many good hits to set up our offense."

Gillespie, a senior from Lancaster, was a steady performer all year for LHU's stubborn defense. Gillespie, who probably played her strongest defensive game in LHU's 2-1 PSAC consolation game win against West Chester, played sparingly as a junior but earned her starting role with impressive play this year.

Concerning Gillespie, LHU coach Taylor said, "Patti was the player who probably took our championship loss this year the hardest. Patti earned her starting role by playing hard this year. Patti made a very positive impression on other coaches this year."

Grim, the senior All-American captain from Arendtsville, was the team leader who formed the offense and defense into one. Grim, the keystone player of the Keystone state, scored four goals and led the team in assists with eight.

Of Grim, LHU coach Taylor said, "Ann is one of the best players we've ever had here at LHU. Ann is one of the finest young women I've ever worked with in coaching. I've never worked with a player who was so supportive, positive, team oriented, and yet very humble about her accomplishments. I've never seen a player that teammates liked or respected more."

Lassen, a junior from Harleysville, was another consistent player all year for LHU's stingy defense. Lassen, who played the very difficult sweeper position, saved a few goals by diving to knock away shots that LHU goalie Kate Murphy couldn't get to.

Referring to Lassen, LHU coach Taylor said, "Bonnie has been a very steady performer for us as a sweeper, which is a very tough position. Bonnie plays her crucial position well. Her strong powerful hits started our attacks."

Murphy, a senior goalie from Warminster with another year's eligibility left, allowed only nine goals in nineteen games this year for LHU while recording ten shutouts. Murphy, who has never allowed more than two goals in one game in her career, holds the NCAA Division II Championship record for fewest goals per game allowed (0.50 for two games in 1982).

Of Murphy, LHU coach Taylor said, "Kate has been a very consistent goalkeeper for us. Kate has had an outstanding three years here. There were only a couple of times when two goals were scored upon her in one game."

During the last four years LHU coach Taylor has led her team's into three national championship games in which the Lady Eagles have taken two. Taylor's coaching record over those four years has been 63-9-6.

Football awards presented

The Lock Haven University football team held their annual awards banquet on Tuesday night at the Lock Haven Elks Club.

Senior tailback Mike Kresovich was named the most valuable offensive player while senior defensive tackle Mike Flanagan received the Russ Carmen Defensive Award. Kresovich and Flanagan were also voted the team captains by their teammates.

Mark Semmel, a senior defensive end, won the Ed McGill Outstanding Senior Award and junior middle guard Chris Kustanbauer received the Herb Jack Most Improved Player Award. The Ross Nevel Unsung Hero Award went to senior wide receiver Charley Molnar and defensive back Jeff Swanson was given the Outstanding Freshman Award.

Academic Awards were also presented by team academic advisors Bob and Carolyn Perry. Receiving those awards were senior wide receiver Blake Waterman, sophomore tailback Jay Zech, and freshman defensive tackle Brian Smith.

The evening was highlighted by a slide presentation of the Bald Eagle football team. Bill Baker presented the outstanding show depicting the Bald Eagles in action during the season.

Alpha Sigma Tau projects sited

By Diane Byrne

During this past semester the sisters of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority have worked on several projects to benefit the community as well as the sorority itself.

On October 6th and 7th, Alpha Sigma Tau held a 24 hour rock-a-thon in Triangle Park and at the University Bell. Approximately $336 in proceeds went to the Lock Haven Day Care Center.

After noticing the sorority's help with the Day Care Center, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bunch, of the Advertising Bunch advertising company, called on the sorority for help on a project the Bunch's were working on. The money raised by Alpha Sigma Tau helped with expenses for a Christmas banquet held for the sisters and their dates.

During the homecoming festivities the sorority was awarded a plaque for achieving the highest cumulative average of all the sororities on campus for the Spring semester 1983.

Alpha Sigma Tau also sponsored a program on Tuesday, December 13, on, "The Responsibilities of an Organization Within an Institution," in Smith Hall recreation lounge. Guest speakers included Carol Rinaldi, Director of Campus Alcohol Misuse Prevention Service (C.A.M.P.S.), Tom Porrazzo, of the All-Campus Judicial Board, and Marcia Butland of the All-Greek Judicial Board.

For the Thanksgiving holiday, the sisters provided for the needy by donating canned goods and old clothes to needy families in the area. In addition, several sisters are becoming involved with the Newman Community Center and have pitched in their time to help clean up the Newman Center, located at 445 West Main Street.

The sisters are in the process of planning several community projects for the Spring 1984 semester.
