Willis and Johnston travel to European universities

Kate Kinney
Staff Reporter

Recently LHU President Willis and Dean of International Studies, Jack Johnston toured European Universities with the intention of affirming the university's exchange programs.

Keeping the "international flavor" here at LHU was a concern kept in mind during the various talks, said Willis.

Willis was invited to participate in the celebration of the anniversary of Poland's Marie Sklodowska University exchange program with LHU.

This trip was described by Johnston as "a ceremonial counter-visit", as the President and Vice President of the Sklodowska School paid a visit to LHU last year, so the Lock Haven representatives were customarily returning the favor.

Willis and Johnston were on hand to be recognized at the inauguration of the academic school year for our Polish counterparts.

From Poland the mission continued to Yugoslavia where Willis met with a Croatia Nationalist society, which is interested in "promoting contacts with Croatia-Americans," according to Johnston.

The object of these talks, said Johnston, was to "take another step on the road to establishing an exchange program between Lock Haven University and the University of Sagrev."

Germany was next on the schedule of their trip.

An invitation was extended by the president of the University of Patterborn. Personal contacts were exchanged between the two college presidents, as well as customary courtesies.

The last stop of the trip was to the University of Bulmursh, England. From here, Willis returned home to attend to personal business.

Johnston continued on to see the students at the University of Glasgow who will be attending LHU next semester.

Nottingham's Trent Poly-tech was the next college visited on the review of England.

Discussions were then held at Oxford, to see to the possibility of establishing an exchange there.

A meeting was also held with Alfred Boom, to bring up the issue of founding an exchange with foreign handicapped students with Bulmursh College.

When asked if LHU is an established international school, Willis said, "We are and have been established for some time... we got into the business of International Education early...our early start helped us".

Willis added to these comments by also saying, "The longer you're in it, the more lead you get."

Both Johnston and Willis stressed the importance of the exchanges.

Willis said, "People come back changed, usually for the better."

John Johnston, dean of International Studies, and Dr. Craig Dean Willis, president of Lock Haven University, recently traveled to Europe to visit universities where Lock Haven has exchange programs.

Bookstore receives bomb threat

By Tammy Rekito
Staff Reporter

A bomb threat on the campus of Lock Haven University occurred December 1.

Mrs. Marge Bangson, Manager of the campus bookstore, received a call at 10:35 a.m. from an unidentified male caller.

The caller said, "There's a bomb in the building." He then hung up.

Law Enforcement then evacuated the building. A complete search of the building was done and signs stating "There has been a bomb threat in this building. Enter at your own risk" were posted.

The building was then opened again for use.

Lieutenant Dennis Grenniger, a Law Enforcement officer, stated that usually if there's a bomb threat, it's called into a classroom building so classes are canceled.

He said, "In this case, we don't understand why anyone would threaten the PUB for any other reason than as a prank."

"I was surprised and scared," said Bangson. She also said that it was a frightening experience for herself and all of the employees of the bookstore.

Law Enforcement does not have any suspects at this time. Further investigation of the case is pending.

LHU's PUB was the scene of a bomb threat last week. Law Enforcement searched the building, and no bomb was found.

LHU students named to Who's Who

By Bill Hunter
Staff Reporter

The 1987 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities will include the names of 28 students from Lock Haven University.

The students included in the book are Dawn Banes, Curtis Beck, Christina Campana, David S. DeGarmo, Donald C. Fischer, Laurie Forney, Karen Fry, Chantal Gendron, Amy Greczyn, and Amy Harpster.

Brian Jackson, Sandra Jeffries, Atsuko Kitagawa, Debra Kreidler, Kay Kuryloski, Amy Ludewig, Michael Major, Richard Mohn, Walter Piatt, and Debra Pinkerton are also included in the directory.

Also named as outstanding students are Jill Pivrotto, Robert Rote, Bradley Seth, Scott Smith, Alan Statham, Elizabeth Swift, Lisa Washco, and Taiji Watanabe.

According to Carol Rinaldi, Assistant Dean of Students, "These results are an increase of two over last year. We are all very pleased."

The directory includes students from more than 1,400 institutions of higher learning in the U.S. and several foreign countries.

"These students are an asset to the college and we hope to see even more next year," said Rinaldi.

"I feel honored to to be one of only 28 people to be selected in the university. It's nice to see the university spending time to recognize the students," said Mohn.

These students were selected as national outstanding campus leaders by a campus nominating committee and the editors of the annual directory.

The selection committee and the editors base their selections on academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

All students considered must have achieved at least junior class status.

Fischer said, "I was really glad when I received notification of my selection into "Who's Who." I feel it is a great honor to receive this recognition."

Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

GUEST COLUMNIST

I am writing in response to a minor incident that happened on the third floor of McEntire Hall last Friday night. No real damage was done, but the incident upset me.

The hall council of McEntire Hall held a "wing-decorating" contest last week. The judging was on Friday, December 5. It was nice to see the students in the building decorate the wings. The Christmas spirit seemed to be alive and well in McEntire Hall. The holiday atmosphere brightened my spirits considerably.

The wings were judged and my wing did not win, but it didn't matter because I loved the way our wing looked. The people on my wing worked very hard to create the Christmas atmosphere.

My holiday spirits were soon dampened as I walked out of my room on Saturday morning. My roommate had sprayed our mirror with "snow" spray the week before and wrote "Deck the Halls" on it. It was a nice touch. Well, that morning it had been almost erased. The winning wing, obscenities, and the word "losers" had been scrawled in the "snow". Merry Christmas.

Yes, no terrible vandalism occurred, but the individual(s) involved certainly, in my opinion, stained the true spirit of Christmas. To me, that is worse than any type of vandalism.

Sincerely,
Maureen Campbell

LHU boxers take 5 of 8 bouts at Invitational

One thousand one hundred and fifty people packed Thomas Field House Saturday night as boxers from five Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association (ECBA) North clubs took part in the ninth annual Lock Haven University Invitational Boxing Show.

Lock Haven's 1986 All-American Rob Archie (125) was given the "Outstanding Boxer Award" by a panel of three referees and five judges. Archie won a 5-0 decision over Robert Coleman of Lafayette.

In one of two bouts at 139, the referee stopped the bout (rsc) in the second round giving Penn State's Bill Jiminez a victory over Haven's Jackie Smith. The defeat was Smith's first.

In the other 139 bout, Lock Haven's Brad Klein earned a 5-0 victory over Joe Murry of Central Connecticut.

At 156, freshman Frank McClary won a 4-1 decision over John Mundt of Central Connecticut. In the other bout at 156, Chris Pettinelli of Central Connecticut handed LHU's Don Gallucci his first loss as he earned a RSC in the third round.

Lock Haven's Joe Salluzzo earned a unanimous decision (5-0) over Dickinson's Tony Dale at 180 and at 190 Haven's Renny Dowell was given the victory over Frank Colavecchia of Penn State when the referee disqualified Colavecchia with :30 to go in the bout.

In the feature bout of the night, Central Connecticut's two-time "All-American" Billy Seeman scored an 8-2 victory over LHU's Joe Ferrari. Ferrari appeared to have the upper hand in the bout, but Seeman won on three of the five judges scorecards.

The next match for the Bald Eagles is on January 31 at the U. S. Naval Academy.

Brad Klein gets his hand raised in victory after his bout on Saturday.

Swimmers sunk by York 139-93

By Joselle Melito
Sports Reporter

The Lady Eagles suffered their second defeat of the season as York College brought them to their fall, 139-93.

"We may have lost, but considering the long trip we traveled, I felt we swam real well," said Head Coach Jeff Lewis. "Some of the girls swam their best ever, which is surprising for an away trip."

Elizabeth Miller captured a first in the 100 and 200 backstroke. She was also a member of the 200 medley relay team that took a second for the Haven.

Also taking a first for the Lady Eagles were Joanne Eghigian in the 200 I.M., and Sarah Bagot and Paula Kinsinger in the 400 free relay.

According to Lewis, Miller, Kinsinger and Amy Nailor all had a very good meet. Miller had her best time ever, 1:09.6, in the 100 back stroke.

Kinsinger is still not eligible because of transferring, but she had her best time in the 500 free, 5:59.

Amy Nailor placed second in the 1000 free, bringing her down to her best time, 12:34.9.

The Lady Swimmer's next meet will be held at Susquehanna University on December 10 at 6 p.m.

Gymnasts earn first win of season

By Paul Knappenberger
Sports Reporter

The Lock Haven gymnastics team improved their record to 1-1 with a big win over Swarthmore at home on Saturday.

Lock Haven won all four events and finished with the final score of 125.85 to 81.05.

The team first won the vault, 40.05 to 31.05. Lock Haven's Kim Gillespie led the event with an 8.35. Inger Larsen led Swarthmore with a 7.95 mark.

The uneven parallel bars were to be the second of the Haven's victories. Beth Bartolowits led all scores with 6.25. Swarthmore finished the event with a score of 4.90 by Larsen.

Karen O'Mahen won the blance beam

Wrestlers place fourth at Sheridan

By Scott Crispell
Sports Reporter

Jody Karam was Lock Haven's sole champion as the Bald Eagles finished in fourth place in the Sheridan Invitational at Lehigh University on Saturday.

Karam and Dicky Howell both reached the finals as Lock Haven piled up 78.75 points to finish behind Bloomsburg, North Carolina State and Lehigh.

Head Coach Neil Turner was disappointed with his team's fourth place finish. He said, "We didn't finish quite as well as we expected. We had three critical first-round losses with Willy Metzger, Joe Pecaitis and Mike Pacholik all losing. This hurt our chances of keeping up with the leaders."

Karam decisioned Roger Leitzel of Bloomsburg, pinned Rusty Amato of East Stroudsburg, and won by forfeit over Bloom's Paul Keysaw to win the 167-pound title.

Howell advanced to the finals at 118 pounds with two decisions, before dropping a 14-8 decision to sixth-ranked Jack Cuvo of East Stroudsburg.

At 142, Mike Lingenfelter dropped a 14-7 decision to Marty King of Bloomsburg in the consolation finals, and finished fourth.

John Barrett lost to second-ranked Scott Turner of North Carolina State, in the semi-finals, and wound up third at 158 pounds.

Although disappointed, Turner was also proud of the team's performance. "This was our third tough tournament in a row. All of that wrestling has taken its toll on some of our guys. We hope to be ready for this Friday," said Turner.

Friday night, the Bald Eagles will host seventh-ranked Bloomsburg in the Susquehanna Donnybrook dual meet.

Lady cagers shot down by Mountaineers 97-56 on Sat.

By Bill Hunter
Co-Sports Editor

Outclassed and outscored seem to be the appropriate words to describe the Lady Eagle hoops loss to the Lady Mountaineers of Mount St. Mary's on Saturday.

The match, which ended in a 97-56 loss, was the first fall after winning four straight for the Haven.

"They're (Mt. St. Mary's) an outstanding basketball team," said Head Coach Frank Scarfo. "When the Division II rankings come out, I'll be surprised if they aren't ranked number 1 or number 2. They've been in the national tournament every year since 1979."

Against the strong Lady Mountaineers, now 6-0, the Haven women fell behind by a 19 point margin at the half and then were outscored 55-33 in the second 20 minutes.

The Lady Eagles were led in scoring by senior co-captain Donna Sergi's 15 pts. She added ten rebounds and three assists. Sophomore Mel Frohnheiser was the only other player in double figures for LHU as she contributed 14 points and pulled in six rebounds.

Sophomore Joy Redmon tallied six points and hauled down five rebounds, while co-captain Lori Young showed four points and, five rebounds and four assists.

Mount St. Mary's had six players in double figures. Tracy Bradson led the attack with 17 points, followed by Kim Rhock with 16, Lisa Green 15, Zena Edwards 12, Julie Hofferbest 11 and Jenny Brown with ten.

The Lady Mounties made 25 of 32 foul shots, while LHU sunk ten of 13.

"We knew we were going to be facing a great team and a great challenge. It was just too much of a task at this point," said Scarfo.

LHU will have only one more game, at Gannon on Thursday at 6 p.m., prior to the holidays. They will resume their schedule on Saturday, January 3, with a home game against Bloomsburg.

Culture shock in America ?

By Barbara Ruetschl
Exchange Columnist

Hey Americans! Could you imagine that "your" America might be a culture shock for some people who come from other countries?

I lived in Europe for 17 years, and am just now experiencing the excitement of living abroad. Culture shock might be described as the impact of a totally new environment upon a newcomer.

The main feature of this culture shock, which I think many international students have at the beginning of their studies here in the States, is the dissimilar values, perceptions, and behaviors of different people.

For you as an American, it might be interesting to know how strange your society seems to foreigners.

First of all, the world does not consist only of the American way of doing things, the American reality. Everybody does not understand in exactly the same manner, and the American way is not the best in many circumstances, (nor is the African, Asian, European, and so on.)

I find U.S. college students abysmally ignorant about my home country of Switzerland and, for the most part, uninterested in other peoples.

Only a small fraction of American students have any serious informal contact with foreign students. There are formal contacts in class, in the cafeteria, or elsewhere, but little effort is made to penetrate the veneer brought about by the differences between foreigners and Americans.

There is almost no way to change peoples' behaviors, values, or their perceptions, but perhaps more serious effort to relate would help bridge the communication gap.

There is an American who helped me by making the effort to understand a different point of view. This person is an American I can communicate with. There are those moments when I can perceive human warmth.

Communication enables you to appreciate viewpoints other than your own, to better understand attitudes and your life.

Before I came to America I had some images about it. Yet, those impressions did not cause my culture shock. They were: fast-food, big cars, and endless opportunities.

I was shocked by peoples' interests, such as parties, alcohol, fun, fun, fun all the time. What's fun? Fun for me is (parties sometimes of course) becoming involved in the development of a personal relationship or getting closer to what someone wants to express. To know what a person wants to say is very important.

One additional point which is part of my culture shock is how different the human relationships are here. To me, many seem superficial compared to what I am accustomed to.

I do not want to change anything or anyone, but to make people aware of the exciting sense that human beings can be really different. I would describe my experience by the statement, "Nothing is worse, but everything is different."

Record Line

Hold the line for "GTR"

By Lisa Falzetta
Record Columnist

GTR-- "GTR" 1986, Arista Records

Super-group GTR arrived this past summer with their first big album, and a hit single off it to boot ("When The Heart Rules The Mind"). When I asked people what they thought of GTR, all I got was "GTR?" "GT Who?"

If you haven't heard of GTR, or seen them nearly rule MTV for the summer of 1986, let's change that! The band and the album may not be well known, but GTR has brought rock music the type of style that it has predominantly thrived on. This LP is good, basic rock, and it is the type of music that in about ten years may be considered "classic rock."

This band of experienced musicians consists of guitar greats Steve Howe and Steve Hackett, and introduces the public to the vocals of Max Bacon. Their melodies aren't a new style, but their lyrics are positive and fresh.

Songs such as "Reach Out (Never Say No)" give us the impression that GTR pushes a positive self image for their audience. With other lyrics such as "...take a chance, forget the past," ("When The Heart Rules The Mind,") and "...always winning in the end," ("The Hunter,") GTR lets this image shine through.

There are also two guitar solos on this LP. "Sketches In the Sun" is a beautiful acoustic number showing off the masterwork of Steve Howe. The other guitar solo is the electric "Hackett To Bits." This cut is a very rough, hard driving piece of work, yet it's long, and gets to be a bit tedious. Of course, the album also includes the Top 40 hits, "When The Heart Rules The Mind" and "The Hunter."

It takes quality music and an experienced group to turn an album into a classic. I think GTR is well on their way there.

Cuts from "GTR" can be heard on WLHC, 90.3 FM, LHU's Ticket To Rock and Roll.
