Tutorial services restricted

By Julie Gabrielli
Staff Reporter

The tutorial center, located in room G-11 in the bottom of Smith Hall, may not be able to provide services for as many students this semester.

Student tutorial services have been restricted due to a drop in funding of the Campus Employment program.

According to Don Pearman, co-ordinator of the tutorial services for the Act-101 EOP Program, there is currently not enough money to pay as many student tutors, therefore a cut back had to be made not only on tutors but also on those that are eligible to receive services.

The "ACT" Program is a special academic developmental program that provides tutorial assistance to students. These "program" students must receive top priority when tutors are assigned. Currently, all of these students have been accommodated with tutors and additional professor referred students are now eligible to receive help.

The funds that have dropped back is the money that goes toward Campus Employment which comes from the state and money allotted for Work/Study which comes from federal grants.

Pearman says he has had to cut his staff of tutors and office assistants and limit the number of "non-program" students who may receive services. Last semester's staff of 37 has dropped to less than half that.

According to Pearman, the tutorial services are much used by students on this campus.

In the first semester it was implemented, the program attracted 225 students. In its second semester, 229 students took advantage of the extra help, and last semester the number of people being tutored jumped to 349.

The services provided cover over 55 different subject areas.

Pearman is hopeful that the lack of funds situation is only temporary and is assured that everything possible is being done to make more monies available to the tutorial program in the very near future.

Masters Degree coming?

A Masters of Liberal Arts and International Studies Degree is one step closer to reality as the University Board of Trustees voted in favor of continued planning of the program here at Lock Haven University.

Lock Haven is the only university in the State System of Higher Education that does not currently have a graduate degree curriculum. If all goes well, that will change as the target date for implementation will be the summer of 1987.

Present proposal

Under the present proposal, the Master of Liberal Arts in International Studies will enable a student to complete degree requirements in three summer terms, one of which will involve study and research at an appropriate university location outside of the United States.

The graduate curriculum will be offered as not to interfere with the university's mission toward undergraduate education.

The initial summer session will familiarize students with a subject area. During the second, students will study and conduct research at an international establishment. The final summer session will involve returning to LRU for an advanced international seminar and completion of a thesis.

Presently, only six universities or colleges in Pennsylvania offer a masters program in International Relations or International Business.

In other academic areas it has been moved upon to adjust the present grading policy. In the near future semester grades will be no longer listed entirely as A, B, C, etc., but as A, A+, B, B+, C, etc. The policy is expected to give a more reasonable evaluation of student performance.

Cheyney University will receive aid from the other 13 state-owned institutions to help put the school back on its feet. Cheyney has been the victim of several far-reaching financial woes. Assistance will be proportional from around the state. Lock Haven University is expected to give Cheyney approximately $800,000.

Summer school sessions

Summer school sessions will be scheduled differently beginning 1986. Terms will consist of two five week sessions, but there is a three week session within the first five weeks.

Sessions were previously three and five weeks. Students who attend summer programs and take 12 credit hours will be eligible for financial aid.

Administrative officials have begun to disburse some of the $145,000 state been earmarked for library use. This university has received approximately half of the original grant total.

EDITORIAL

More to college?

First off, let's set something straight from last weeks editorial. I never wanted to insinuate that this school was poorer in quality than Harvard. If I ever have a son I'm going to encourage him to go here, I wouldn't send a daughter here cause the way it looks some of the guys I know will still be here.

My sole purpose was to make sure that some overly motivated students don't waste their whole college careers studying.

Studying is an extremely critical part of going to college--but that's all it is--one part of the whole spectrum of the college experience.

Pity the poor slob who labors over his sliderule and Advanced Chem text all day and all night in endless pursuit of that lofty goal, the 4.0 cume. Pity him not because he will probably reach that much sought-after goal, but because he is probably missing out on some other important factors of college life.

College is basically the beginning of your independence from your parents. Time to spend weeks on end with no more than a dollar in your pocket. Time to experience new and exciting things. Time to do some incredibly stupid things. Basically a course of hard knocks, with no tests, but a lot of learning.

One of the things that I believe enhances the classroom experiences of LHU is the accessibility of the professors. I'm not S.S.#170-55-2214. I'm Jay, the so-and-so in the back row.

I know at least half a dozen profs on a first-name basis. Hell, I've drank a beer or two with some of my profs, as I'm sure a number of the Eagle Eye readers have done.

Knowing your professors as friends or acquaintances outside the classroom is one thing I admire a great deal about going to school here, and something I might miss out on if all I was concerned with was pulling a 4.0 cume.

I consider the friendships that I've built with professors to be much more valuable and long-lasting than my grade-point average.

If you don't know your professors, believe me, you're missing out on a great deal of what makes college an enjoyable learning experience.

Men and Women cagers sweep "The Rock"

By Karen Merlie
 Sports Reporter

The Lady Eagles came alive Saturday afternoon in the "The House of Noise" as they knocked off the undefeated division leaders Slippery Rock 86-73.

"We finally played as a team," stated guard Lori Young. "We're starting to play the type of ball we were playing last year at this time."

Lock Haven was sizzling from the floor, hitting almost everything they put up. They were up by as much as 20 in the first half.

Lock Haven was sizzling from the floor, hitting almost everything they put up. They were up by as much as 20 in the first half.

Tina Martin and Helen Woltman each had 12 points at the half to give the Lady Eagles a 43-29 lead.

"Coach Riley told us not to be too confident or we might get knocked off in the second half," said freshman Joy Redmon.

Redmon said that they came out psyched at the beginning of the game and continued as they performed to the best of their ability.

Woltman and Martin combined for 44 points and 29 rebounds with 24,15 and 20,14, respectively.

Donna Sergi, Young, Redmon, and Kelly Myers had fine offensive performances with 14, 11, nine, and eight points.

"This was my best performance on offense this season," said Redmon. "Everyone contributed to this big victory."

"The Rock's" Diane Walker had a big game scoring a game-high 28 points and pulling down 11 rebounds.

Tina Moynihan and Tawanda Moore hit double figures with 16 and 11.

"The Rock" was shocked. "We expected a tough game but we didn't expect to get blown away the whole game," stated Moynihan.

The loss drops Slippery to 6-1 in the Western Division and 16-5 overall. They are still in first by one game.

Lock Haven is in second place at 5-2 and 13-6 overall.

This was the last home game until Monday, February 24, when East Stroudsburg plays here. Lock Haven has away games Wednesday at Edinboro, Saturday at Clarion and Tuesday Feb.18 at Indiana, all PSAC Western Division showdowns.

Swimmers win pair

By Mike Yaroma
Sports Reporter

Lock Haven's swimming team, coached by Jeff Lewis, traveled to Edinboro Saturday to compete in a tri-meet against Mercyhurst and Edinboro.

The lady swimmers downed Edinboro 67-59 and floated by Mercyhurst 77-50.

The Lady Eagles had three triple winners with Lynne Custer, Jan Pechart, and Jackie Thomas.

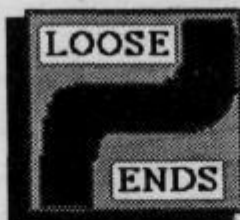

Custer was the dominant freestyler as she swam to the 1000, 500, and 200 meter events.

Thomas captured the 100 and 200 meter backstroke and the individual medley.

Pechart raced to victories in the 100 and 200 meter butterfly and the 100 meter freestyle.

Springing off the one-meter diving board, Beth McDonald plunged for a score of 125.95 and a first place.

The Lady Eagles had a meet last night at Zimmerli pool against Lycoming College, but at press time the results were not available. This ends the swimmers season except for those who will compete Feb. 20-22 at Clarion University at the PSAC championships.
