APSCUF president resigns

By Debra Pinkerton
Staff Reporter

The pressures of holding two prominent positions at Lock Haven University has led to a faculty member's resignation from one of his other responsibilities.

President of the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculty (APSCUF), Dr. Douglas Campbell, has decided to resign after one year of holding this position.

Campbell's main achievement over his one year term was leading Lock Haven University through the possible state teacher's strike.

In addition, Campbell also has the responsibility of maintaining the position as Chairman of the English, Journalism and Philosophy Department.

Realizing that he was not able to devote enough time to his teaching assignments and hold two positions successfully, he submitted his resignation.

"I want to devote some time to my classes and my department and perhaps my family as well," said Campbell.

Campbell's replacement will be the president elect, Dr. Edward Clawson.

Clawson's term officially begins in 1987 and will expire after two years.

Reflecting back over the previous president's term, Clawson plans to place more emphasis on student scholarships.

"We need to do more with the scholarships and fundraising programs. These aspects of the union were touched lightly last semester," said Clawson.

11 years of LHU/Polish exchange continues

By Lynn Howard
Staff Reporter

This semester marks the 11th year that Lock Haven University and Marie Curie Sklodowska University in Lublin, Poland are participating in an exchange of students and scholars. There are currently nine Polish scholars in Lock Haven. On Saturday, February 8, 14 LHU students and one professor departed for Poland.

This exchange program offers students and professors a unique opportunity to live, study and travel in an Eastern Bloc country. The students and scholars will experience the Polish university system and Polish culture and hospitality.

At the university the exchange students will study Polish language, culture, history and current issues. They will also receive a tutorial in their major field of interest.

The LHU students on the exchange are: Jill Brady, a Political Science major from Breiningsville, PA; Clair Curtis, a Government/Russian major from Rochester, NY; Phillip Evans, a Psychology major from Sewickley, PA.

Melissa Gardner, an International Relations major from Mahopac, NY; Angela Hansen, an International Studies major from West Germany; Michael Kelley, a Political Science major from Renovo, PA.

Keith Krause, a Political Science major from Wilkes Barre, PA; Tracy Lambert, a Latin American Studies major from Collegeville, PA; Kristine Lindsay, a History major from Gwynedd Valley, PA.

John Murphy, a History major from Lake Ariel, PA; Mitouru Saito, an International Studies major from Tokyo, Japan; Nobuko Sato, an International Studies major from Tokyo, Japan.

Leopold Wetula, an International Studies/Math major from Lakewood, OH; and Lisa Wisniewski, a Biology major from Lock Haven, PA.

Accompanying the students is Dr. James Dayananda, a professor of English Literature at LHU along with his wife, Vanitha.

The University of Marie Curie Sklodowska has sent nine scholars to Lock Haven. They will be conducting research in their respective fields and presenting lectures while they are here.

The senior scholars of the group are Professor Docant Doctor Mieczyslaw Subotowicz, whose field is physics and Docant Doctor Andrzej Leonowicz, whose field is biochemistry.

Subotowicz will be researching the physics of solids, nuclear and experimental physics and astronautics. He will be presenting a lecture entitled the "Social and Political Consequences of the Development of Science" on Tuesday, February 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Ulmer Planetarium.

Leonowicz is researching the literature of the biochemistry of plants during his stay.

The other visiting scholars are: Dr. Adam Goral, an economist who will be researching the most recent achievements in statistics and informational science; Dr. Leszek Rouppert, a scholar of international and public law who will be collecting legal materials concerning American rivers.

Dr. Marian Zajac, a biologist researching the assimilation of food and water in animals; Dr. Marian Zdyb, a lawyer and scholar of Administrative Law who will be collecting materials concerning trends in the science of organization and management.

Magestar Julita Rybczynska, a scholar of political legal doctrines who will be researching American political thought; Magestar Roman Tomkiewicz, an English philologist working on a handbook to use in learning English; and Magestar Josef Wawrzyczek, an English philologist who will be conducting research to learn about new methods of teaching English.

The nine Polish scholars are housed in Russell and McEntire Halls. During their stay they will also have opportunities to travel to points of interest on the East Coast to learn about the culture, lifestyles and traditions of Americans.

EDITORIAL

Let's hear one for Frivolity

Lately I've been accused of writing frivolous editorials, so I decided that when I came into the Eagle Eye office yesterday evening I was going to write up a serious discourse on some controversial issue.

I toyed with abortion (Should I come out for or against? My personal view is that the decision should be made according on a given couple's situation), drugs (obviously, the only official position can you take on drugs is against; and the obvious makes for boring editorials), the Vienna Summit (big deal; Nancy managed to exchange a few recipies with Mrs. Gorbachev), rock and roll lyrics (I find it hard to believe that the devil would speak to teenagers via Cyndi Lauper), and several other issues, before I finally decided that I like the frivolous much more than the serious, and quite frankly, am not afraid to say so.

I like Dynasty better than Hill St. Blues. I like Kathleen Turner better than Meryl Streep. I like Andy Rooney better than Sam Donaldson. I like People Magazine better than (dare I say it) The New York Times. I even like Entertainment Tonight better than Face the Nation.

Don't get me wrong, I consider myself a pretty well-informed person. I do read the news and watch Dan Rather and 60 Minutes, but it's just not as much fun as reading People or watching E.T.

And believe me, there are a hell of a lot more people out there who would rather hear about what Clint Eastwood is up to than see a news clip featuring Muammar Khadafy.

So if I do occasionally write about seat-belts instead of world hunger, or if I write about an increase in cigarette smoking instead of civil rights, it's not because I have no views on the more serious issues, but because to tell the truth I really like to write on the topics that I write about.

Take that Mike Wallace.

The Manhattan Marimba Quartet gives audiences a truly unique musical experience. Using four matched marimbas of Honduras rosewood, they perform music of all kinds, from all periods in a way that spotlights the beauty, individuality and versatility of the instrument.

They have opened up new worlds of music for the marimba, from Bach's Art of the Fugue, through Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Villa-Lobos, Barber, jazz tunes and popular music, to an ambitious program of commissioning new works.

The growing list of composers who have written for the Quartet includes Steve Reich, Nancy Laird Chance, Meyer Kupferman, Ludmila Ulehla, A. Leroy, Larry Lockwood, Norman Grossman and Paul McKibbins.

In settings as diverse as the Sevenars Festival in Massachusetts, the Dance Theatre Workshop in New York, the Festival of 20th Century Music at the Manhattan School of Music, and Carnegie Recital Hall, the Manhattan Marimba Quartet generates enthusiasm,

Police Beat New crimes investigated

By Sue Berger
Law Enforcement Columnist

With winter weather setting in, Law Enforcement is investigating a new variety of crimes. The latest crimes have been acts of mischief in and around the dorms.

Campus police discovered students taking their mattresses from their rooms and using them as sleds on the snow covered hills. Officers told the students to return the mattresses and said they could be charged with criminal mischief if they damaged them.

Officers also responded when a former student came on campus and harassed a hall director. Officers told the former student that he could be arrested for criminal trespassing and then escorted him off campus.

Law Enforcement is currently investigating four cases. Officers are looking for the owner of a car that has been hit in area nine parking lot.

Campus police are also searching for the person who damaged a fire alarm system in a residence hall. The damage amounted to $50.

Law Enforcement received a number of reports of obscene phone calls. They are investigating the reports to see if the calls were made from campus.

In another case, officers are investigating a student's report of being harassed by other students in a dorm.

Students experience segregation at MU

Millersville Segregation may soon become a major problem for students living in specific residence halls at MU.

The problem is not racial, though such conflicts are not completely resolved on campus.

The administration is considering converting a co-ed dorm, Hull Hall, into a residence for students in MU's honors program.

Presently, foreign language majors and music majors are housed in specific dorms due to the relative proximity of these halls to the foreign language resource library and the practice rooms.

The administration seems to be concluding that students of like IQ will make good roommates.

Most of the students, including those who would be eligible, are opposed to the move. Another group, those who would be forced to move from Hull, are unhappy about it also.

Another example of segregation currently in effect, is the housing of foreign exchange students in a separate hall. This move has cut off much of the interaction between the foreign students and Americans.

Most of the students are opposed to this situation also.

The benefits of the foreign exchange program, which enables students to sample life in the United States, seem to be lessened. The opportunity doesn't exist for these students to interact with an American roommate on a more familiar level.

Apparently, these trends are moving toward keeping like with like. Separating people by race, religion and social standing has been a chronic problem spanning the globe for centuries.

Indiana A Doctorate of Philosophy in the criminology department is now being offered, following the passage of a bill at a University Senate meeting held recently.

The criminology department found that there is a need for this doctorate program in Pennsylvania.

IUP received prime consideration because it already has a qualified criminology department.

Several new courses were added to the undergraduate curriculum.

One of the goals of the new bill is to make doctorate level education available to people who have done previous graduate work, and are currently working in the criminal justice field.

Some of these students may be admitted on a part-time basis, to enable them to keep their full time jobs.

Edinboro February 19th, EU will be part of a network of university and cable systems in the U.S. and Canada tapping into the Super Satellite Broadcast, "The Great Directors."

This is the first time a satellite broadcast will be transmitted to so many campuses around the country.

National Projects Manager Rick Murray said that Writer/Director Lawrence Kasdan will be part of the broadcast.

Kasdan wrote "Continental Divide" and co-wrote "The Empire Strikes Back" in 1980.

In 1981 he wrote "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and in 1982 he wrote and directed "Body Heat." "The Big Chill" was one of Kasdan's productions in 1983.

Other well-known directors will be featured during the broadcast to be held in EU's Memorial Auditorium.

Opening Night
The Great Gatsby

By Matt Connor
Co-Editor

Paramount Pictures must really love F. Scott Fitzgerald's, The Great Gatsby. The studio filmed versions of the book three times--in 1926, starring Warner Baxter; in 1949 starring Alan Ladd; and finally in 1974 starring Robert Redford as the "great" Jay Gatsby.

The Great Gatsby tells the story of the wealthy, sophisticated society of the Jazz Age, centering on Gatsby himself and his unrequited love for Daisy Buchanan (who, by the way, is rich, spoiled, married, and played by Mia Farrow).

Shot in Newport, Rhode Island, where the great mansions of the area could be used to double for lavish estates of the period, The Great Gatsby has an opulent look which helped the film cop three British Oscars in the categories of Cinematography, Art Direction, and Costume Design.

Along with these honors, the film won an American Academy Award for best Original Song Score/Adaptation (written by Nelson Riddle) and a Golden Globe for Best Supporting Actress (Karen Black) and for Robert Redford who was presented the "World Film Favorite--Male" award.

Despite these "honors," the critics were sharply split as to the overall quality of the film. Film reviewers said everything from, "The story and characters lack compelling interest....

Robert Redford and Mia Farrow as Jay Gatsby and Daisy Buchanan in the film, The Great Gatsby.

Redford's performance is forgettable." to "An exquisite screen version of Fitzgerald's novel...a magnificent film."

Directed by Jack Clayton and co-starring Bruce Dern and Sam Waterston, The Great Gatsby was a major box-office hit, raking in over $14 million and placing number eight in the top ten box-office draws of the year.

Sponsored by the SCC, The Great Gatsby will be shown in Price Auditorium this Saturday and Sunday at 8PM.

Greek Life

Campana becomes All-Greek President

By Michelle Moody
Greek Life Columnist

The All-Greek Council has recently gone through some changes in its executive board.

The new officers are: President Chris Campana,  $\Sigma\Xi$ ; Vice-President Rob Tice,  $\K\Delta\Phi$ ; Secretary Lisa Knappenberger,  $\Lambda\Xi\Gamma$ ; and Treasurer Pamela Bronner,  $Z\Gamma\Lambda$ .

When asked why he resigned, former All-Greek Council President Paul Pasqualini ( $\phi\text{M}\Delta$ ) said, "I really regret having to resign my position. There are a lot of quality people from the Greek organizations on the council with whom I enjoyed working. But due to a disappointing conflict of ideas between myself and my own organization, I had to go inactive, forfeiting my council position."

"I still believe strongly in the Greek system, and I know the new officers will do a good job," he said.

The main focus of the All-Greek Council this semester is Greek Week, which is concluded by the Greek Olympics.

The Council hopes to get as many Greeks as possible together to support Greek Olympics.

New All-Greek Council President Campana said, "I am anxious to get the semester going, and I'd like to welcome the new reps. and the executive board."

Look for the banners from each of the Greek organizations at the home men's basketball game on February 22. The Greeks will be there cheering on the LHU team to another victory.

Fashion Line
Madonna look survives

By Patricia Imhof
Fashion Columnist

What's coming in and what's going out at Lock Haven University?

For you Madonna-crazed ladies, hang on to some of your accessories.

Knit headbands and jersey turbans are now being worn high on the forehead, with all the hair brushed behind the band.

Pearls are in, but strands of three are what designers are adorning their models with.

Earrings are as crazy as ever but you won't find any with the words "BOY TOY" on them. What you will see are miniature shoes and purses, and if you're into fads, go for it and buy a pair but don't invest too much. That craze won't be around for more than a season.

For a subtle look in earrings you will find paisley, polka dots, and oversized abstract designs. Though the long, dangling style will always be around, the posts seem to be showing up more frequently for spring.

If the sun ever does shine in Lock Haven, protect those baby blues with a snazzy pair of shades.

The mirrored sunglasses are still around, but this year look for shades with photosensitive lenses and wear them inside and out. Pierre Cardin and Ray Ban have some terrific colors and designs to go with anything you wear.

As with last spring's clothing, many accessories need only a few minor alterations to keep you on top of the list this spring.

Haven Health*Chewing snuff is worse than smoking

By Alan Goldstein and
Lou Cesarone
HPER Columnists

Turn on your TV and you're as likely as not to see one of your favorite professional athletes sporting a wad of snuff under their lower lip.

Nationally-aired advertisements featuring a variety of sports stars make smokeless tobaccos seem glamorous.

There are obvious dangers to using smokeless tobaccos though, and public awareness of the problems caused by chewing tobaccos is growing.

Several states have already passed legislature prohibiting the sale of snuff to minors. This may lead to warning labels (much like the ones on cigarette packs) to be placed on smokeless tobacco cans.

In a recent issue of Reader's Digest, scientists stated that the connection between snuff and oral cancer, the nation's seventh leading cause of cancer death, cannot be questioned.

The article was about a high school athlete who died from cancer.

He was a dedicated athlete who didn't drink, smoke, or do drugs. All he did was train hard and chew snuff.

Here at L.H.U. snuff is plentiful. You see it on the athletic playing fields, in the weight rooms, and in Bentley.

The question is why?

Why would young healthy adults put tobacco in their mouths?

Maybe they think it's not as bad as smoking. Wrong! Snuff delivers the same amount of nicotine and roughly ten times the cancer-causing agents into your system as cigarettes do.

So you say you can quit anytime you want? Maybe not, chewing tobacco is as physically and mentally addictive as cigarette smoking.

Take Lefty Lovelace, the pitching coach for the baseball team here. He's been chewing for no less than 46 years.

"I'm not physically addicted," he said, "I can quit anytime I want."

ROTC cadets go airborne

Question: What falls out of the sky?

Answer: Bird droppings and paratroopers.

This old Army joke about paratroopers did not deter the "Airborne Legion" of the LHU Army ROTC Corps of Cadets from journeying to Fort Lee, Virginia, over the semester break in quest of additional opportunities to jump out of "perfectly good airplanes".

Annually, the Department of Military Science receives six slots for cadets to attend Army Airborne (Parachute) training at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and Fort Benning, Georgia.

In the past, these cadets had no further opportunity to parachute after completing the school until they were commissioned Second Lieutenants. However, due to the efforts of Master Sergeant Hannigan, an agreement was reached with Fort Lee for LHU to conduct periodic airborne operations.

Eight cadets, along with Major Nye and Staff Sergeant Zuicens, departed for Fort Lee on Thursday, January 16.

A four-hour Airborne Refresher course Friday morning was to be followed by two parachute jumps per cadet in the afternoon from a UH-1H (Huey) helicopter.

All training and operations were supervised by jumpmasters from the Airborne Department of the US Army Quartermaster School, which trains military riggers (those soldiers who pack parachutes and prepare equipment for parachute drops).

Friday morning emerged as a beautiful day, but windy. Cadets Walter Piatt, David Scalsky, Mark Smith, Maureen Fry, Alan Statham, Dawn Preston, Curtis Beck, and Lori Schrum joined Nye and eight jumpers from Temple University in Airborne Refresher training, which consisted of a safety briefing, jumpmaster briefing, exits from the 34-foot tower, and practice of Parachute Landing Falls (PLFs) from a Swing Landing Trainer.

At 1300 hours (1 PM), operations moved to the drop zone (DZ), where the jumpers chuted up in anticipation of a jump.

By this time, however, the wind had gotten considerably stronger. Army safety regulations require that winds cannot exceed 13 mph on the DZ; the safety officer was recording gusts up to 22 mph.

Rather than risk serious injuries, the drop had to be cancelled. However, the disappointed LHU paratroopers did get to go aloft in the Huey to view the DZ from the air.

Despite the disappointment of not jumping, the trip was deemed a success. Said Preston, "Unfortunately, there was nothing we could do about the weather. The refresher training was a lot of fun and made the trip worthwhile. I definitely want to try again."

Tentative plans are being made for a return trip this spring.

Cadets repel in Fieldhouse

By Sandra Kozden
ROTC Reporter

Most students think of the "House of Noise" as a place to watch or participate in a sporting event, but not the students enrolled in ROTC.

Tuesday afternoon the students in ROTC made use of the height of Thomas Fieldhouse, by repelling from the ceiling to the floor.

First, the cadets learned how to tie a swiss seat, which secures the repeller to the rope during a descent.

Then the cadets practiced on a smaller slope to eliminate any major problems or difficulties that they were having.

Once the cadets felt confident with their techniques, they ventured up to the top of the "House of Noise" and repelled down.

* Anyone that passed by the repelling site was amazed at the adventurous spirit and determination that the cadets had when they repelled from the ceiling in the "House of Noise."

Greber sets sights on nationals

By Joe Krause
Sports Columnist

In a hot, cramped, little hell-hole of a room, located in historical Rogers Gymnasium, All American Boxer, Steve Greber sponges the sweat dribbling off his brow.

"I have a goal, and that is to win the National Championship," he says, gasping for a breath of air. "I'm dedicated because I've been there."

Yes, Steve Greber has been there, twice, in fact. Both times he walked away carrying the title of National Collegiate Runner-up.

Nothing to be ashamed of, unless of course, your Steve Greber, whose only satisfaction will come should he remain standing tall, when the final bell rings for the last time in his collegiate career.

"He elected to come back and finish in the Spring, we don't encourage that, but he is motivated and wants to win," said Faculty Advisor/Assistant Coach, Dr. Ken Cox, "He wants to leave college a National Champion."

If he does, Greber will become only the second LHU Boxer to attain the gold.

If he doesn't, there's always that overall career record, currently 16-5, to savor in his post-graduate years.

For some reason, however, I don't see Greber finishing any worse than first at this year's National Boxing Championships, which will be held at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado on April 4-5.

He controls his own destiny and only a sudden lapse of memory about what he is trying to achieve, will cost him his chance.

Granted, the road to the top will be a difficult one. He must first gain a victory in the Eastern Collegiate Boxing Association (ECBA) Qualifying Championships, which will be held March 21-22 at Thomas Field House.

It is for that reason that Coach Cox preaches, "Beware, there's always someone out there, whether it be from the Air Force Academy or Reno, waiting to take your title."

If you find that hard to believe, just ask Tim Frymyer, a three-time National Collegiate Runner-up, about the stiff competition.

It is not a dream, but rather a necessity that he comes away victorious. "I lost last year to a former teammate of mine," he says, "this year will be different."

That former teammate was Rocco lanetta, who now boxes for West Chester University. You can bet he will not relinquish the title without one hell of a fight.

And you can bet too, that Greber will be right there giving it to him. Why? He's got guts and determination, the two characteristics that exemplify those who reside at the bottom of Rogers Gymnasium.

Ice hockey squad even record

By Doug Rutter
Sports Reporter

The Lock Haven University Ice Hockey Club evened its record at 2-2 in the Nittany Hockey League last weekend with a pair of victories at the Penn State Ice Pavillion.

In Saturday's contest against the Geohabs, centerman John Gridley led the Bald Eagles to a 6-4 win with two goals and two assists.

Gridley opened up the scoring only five minutes into the game, after taking a pass from club president Lenny Brockman.

Lock Haven gave up two quick goals before Brockman tied the game at 2-2 on an unassisted score.

The Bald Eagles fell behind 3-2 before ripping off four consecutive goals to take a 6-3 lead.

Senior Doug Kiss started the rally with his first goal of the season with the assist going to Gridley.

Gridley then picked up his second goal of the game as Bob McGettigan hit him a picture-perfect pass.

McGettigan and Gridley then picked up assists as they fed freshman Tom Hynes for his first goal of the year, which turned out to be the game winner.

McGettigan worked his way into the scoring column once again as he took a pass from Brockman and scored Lock Haven's sixth and final goal.

In Sunday's game, 15 LHU fans were on hand to witness the Bald Eagles 6-0 drubbing of the Raiders.

Lenny Brockman led the team with the game winning goal as well as three assists.

After a tight checking first half, the Eagles opened up their offense with Brockman getting the first goal from Gridley and Kiss.

Brockman then assisted on the next three goals scored by Kiss, Gridley, and McGettigan.

LHU's fifth goal came from the stick of Dave Warnick as linemate Scott Saunter and defenseman Matt Stash assisted.

Hynes picked up the final score while McGettigan and Chad Pisorchic were credited with assists.

Penn State student Dave Boyer was in the net for LHU and held off several Raider attacks to preserve the shut out.

The Bald Eagles return to the Penn State Ice Pavillion next Sunday night to face the Wizzards at 7:45 p.m. The club appreciates the support it is getting and hopes to see more in the games to come.

PSU to bring excitement to TFH

By Dave Walters
Sports Editor

Outstanding individual bouts will be the main attraction at Thomas Field House this Saturday at 8 p.m. when the Nittany Lions of Penn State come to town to wrestle.

Head coach Neil Turner's wrestlers are coming off a big 23-16 win over the Mountaineers of West Virginia.

Both teams will wrap up their Eastern Wrestling League seasons tomorrow. The Bald Eagles are currently 1-3 in the EWL, while Penn State is 3-0-1.

So far this season, Penn State has out scored their EWL opponents 117-41, while the Bald Eagles have been outscored 90-78.

Individual respect and seedings will be at stake with the EWL tournament coming up March 1 at Bloomsburg.

This dual meet will feature four bouts with match ups of wrestlers who are unbeaten in the EWL.

The first battle of the EWL unbeatens will be at 118 when junior Dicky Howell (4-0) squares off against second ranked freshman Jim Martin (4-0).

Another clash of undefeated wrestlers will be at 126. Junior Matt Avery (2-0), who is ranked ninth nationally, will tangle with Tim Flynn (3-0).

The 167 pound bout will feature LHU sophomore Brad Lloyd (4-0) and Nittany Lion Eric Brugel (4-0). Currently, Lloyd is the EWL scoring leader with 24 points (which means he has scored six team points every time he has participated in an EWL bout). Brugel red shirted last season, but had a fine year in 1984.

The final clash of unbeatens will be in the 177 pound bout. PSU's eighth ranked Dan Mayo (3-0) will face LHU senior Greg Wykoff (2-0-2). Wykoff is ranked 20th and only lost to Mayo 3-2 in the Mat Town tournament.

Other good match ups will be:

134- Willy Metzger (LHU), 2-2 vs. Joe Hadge (PSU), 2-1

142- Mike Lingenfelter (LHU), 1-3 vs. Rob Meloy (PSU), 1-2

150- Thane Turner (LHU), 0-1 vs. Gary Kaschak (PSU), 1-1

158- John Barrett (LHU), 0-1 vs. Greg Elinsky (PSU), 3-0 *Elinsky is ranked first in the nation

LHU may not have an entry at 190 due to a broken thumb suffered by Joe Pecaitis in the Bloomsburg match. Mike Mazza is a possible replacement to face PSU's Jan Johnson. Lock Haven will probably forfeit at heavyweight.

The Bald Eagles will be back in action Wednesday to face Bucknell here at 8 p.m.

Major disadvantages are growing too fast too soon, and Lady Eagle senior center Helen Woltman is sole proof of that.

Woltman suffers from a malady called Osgood Schlatters, which is an inflammation around the knee.

So, why does Helen Woltman play such a gruelling game? Maybe it's because she is good at what she does.

Woltman is currently 4th in the nation in rebounding with a 13.1 average and 8th in scoring with 15.7 points a game. She surpassed the 1,000 point mark earlier this season and is inching closer to the 1,000 rebound mark.

For Woltman, a standout at Lower Dauphin High School before she enrolled at Lock Haven as a Physical Education major, knees have been her problem throughout her up and down career.

Coming out of a record holding career in high school, Woltman had an outstanding freshman year before the knees started to ail.

"I never had knee problems until my second year here," stated Woltman.

Helen Woltman

As a result, Woltman sat out her junior year.

Last year was her finest accomplishment winning the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Championship.

This is Woltman's fifth season of eligibility and after a successful knee surgery last spring and her goals are yet to come.

"One more time," quotes Woltman. "I want to go back to states and get that winning feeling back."

Woltman said if she could write her final chapter it would have to be a repeat of the 1985 season.

Throughout her career here at Lock Haven, she has been helped and encouraged by everyone from coaches, teammates, and family.

"Helen is a good captain because she sets her sight on something and goes for it," commented freshman Mel Frohnheiser. "She takes the game seriously and we'd be hurting without her."

Freshman Sandy Hess looks up to Woltman for the experience and encouragement. "She's been around awhile and know's the game."

As Woltman's career comes to a climax, she is looking ahead to a profession in teaching and coaching.

When Woltman looks back at her up and down basketball career and she can be happy with her performances. She'll be leaving Lock Haven with a great career behind her.

The Bald Eagles lost a tough Western Conference game against Division leader Edinboro (15-8, 7-1), by the score of 75-69 at Edinboro Wednesday night.

"We out hustled them throughout the whole game, we just didn't shoot that great (27-65-39%)," said head coach Kurt Kanaskie about the Bald Eagles performance.

Lock Haven was only down by three at halftime 33-30, they were also out scored by three in the second half.

Junior Price led the Bald Eagles with 18 points. Kevin Charney added 14 and Cory Hand contributed 10 points to go along with 11 rebounds.

Lock Haven is now 13-11 overall and 4-4 in the conference. The Bald Eagles are still in playoff contention. They are currently in third place in the conference behind Edinboro and IUP.

Kanaskie's team's next game is this Saturday at Clarion at 8:00 p.m. The Bald Eagles then travel to IUP Tuesday, February 18 for a Western conference clash with the "Big Indians".

Tina Martin scored her 2,000 career point in a losing effort as the Lady Eagles went down to defeat Wednesday night to Edinboro 78-74.

Lock Haven took an early 11 point lead at the 11:00 mark and kept that lead until Edinboro got on track with 3:21 remaining before the half.

Edinboro took a 36-31 lead into the intermission behind the 16 points of Michelle McCumber.

The offense of Edinboro was led by McCumber's 20 points, followed by Donna Esposito and Robin Boyd's 16 and 15, respectively.

Boyd, McCumber, and Donna Greco combined for 41 rebounds.

Martin had a game-high 30 points, hitting her 2,000 mark at the 16:12 point of the second half.

Donna Sergi, Helen Woltman and Lori Young combined for 39 points for the Lady Eagle offense.

Woltman moved closer to the 1,000 rebound mark with 10. She needs 29 to go over the mark.

Lock Haven is 13-7 and 5-3 in the division.
