Overspending results in less jobs for students

Workers such as Equipment Room Manager, Buck Calhoun have been pressed into extra duties because of the lack of the student work force.

Though the deletion of work study and Campus employment jobs are not being termed "Cutbacks", Dr. William Irwin, director of Financial Aid explains the dilemma facing many students.

By Shawn Bingman

Due to overspending of the budgets, some students in the athletic department and Stevenson Library were let go, according to George Marshall, vice-president for the administration.

Rumors circulated around campus of cutbacks but according to Dr. William Irwin, director of financial aid, "There were no cutbacks. Cutbacks imply that for some apparent reason money was not given. This is not the case. In this case, they just overspent the money that was allotted to them."

Irwin said that, at the beginning of last semester, he told everyone that they should not spend over 4% of the allocations in a given pay period. Anymore than that and they would be spending too much.

Bruce Thomas, Head Readers Services Library, who is responsible for the hiring and scheduling of student employment at Stevenson Library, said that they did not hold back enough of the funds they had last semester. Thomas said, "Twenty-five students were let go because they graduated or for one reason or another." He added that an additional 20 workers (10 campus employment and 10 work-study) will be dropped.

Dr. Charles Eberle, director of athletics, said that none of the students employed by the athletic department were actually dropped. According to Eberle, "We told the students that if they kept working, they might not get paid. They were free to do what they liked." He also said that the administration was reviewing the situation.

At the present time, according to Eberle, those students that remained are not being paid. Eberle said that the overspending occurred partially due to additional expenses such as the opening of the weight room. Also people are needed to work at athletic events.

Eberle said that the overspending of the budget has occurred before at the end of the year but never at mid-year.

"The amount of money that we get is really not adequate. I kept asking for more money when the money is first allocated. Sometimes they were able to get more money but not enough that was adequate.

We're trying to run a pretty big operation on a shoestring," Eberle said.

Irwin said that the money allocated for 1983-84 school year was as follows: Stevenson Library-$30,900 for work-study and $40,800 for campus employment; Athletic Department-$2,900 for work-study and $6,000 for campus employment. (The work-study program is federally subsidized and campus employment is state funded.)

Both Eberle and Thomas said that hiring back students would depend on the administration's ability to allot more money.

Last year when the Tutorial Services ran into financial difficulty, the administration was able to fund additional funds due to the saving of fuel bills during the mild winter. According to Marshall, the boiler room was using $250 a day for gas over break due to the severe cold. He said that they are looking into other possibilities.

According to Marshall, plans are being made for next year to try to prevent this from happening again. He said that they might allocate money by semester and change the way payrolls are approved.

Black Cultural Society sponsoring February events

Kim Wilkinson
News Editor

Lock Haven University (LHU) will host a variety of distinguished guests in celebration of February - National Black History Month, sponsored by the Black Cultural Society (BCS).

According to Paris Hyman, president of the BCS, the activities have been expanded throughout the month in order to be more visible to students.

"We would like to see more students participate in these activities and not shy away because it says 'Black' Arts Festival," Hyman said.

"We'd like them to come and see the talents of a different culture."

According to Robert Lynch, an advisor to the BCS, "The month's activities are for everybody to enjoy...it's just one part of American society." Lynch said the main thrust will be the black contribution to society.

Oliver Lagrone's sculpture will be displayed in the Sloan Fine Arts Building throughout February. Lagrone will be given a reception next Wednesday.

Don Pearman, director of the Upward Bound Program, will be presenting a lecture/discussion entitled "A Formula for Success" on Wednesday in Price Auditorium at 7 p.m.

"The Pursuit of Excellence in Education" will be the topic discussed on Sunday, the 19th by Dr. Rev. Emmit C. Burns, regional director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). Burns has lectured at many universities and has worked with Dr. Martin Luther King and Medgor Evers, a civil rights leader.

Other activities will include a Talent Show, featuring various displays of students' talents, Friday in Sloan.

A "Greek Show Down" will be held on Saturday at 6 p.m. in Rogers Gym. Hyman said, "Predominately black, Greek organizations will be competing in various dances and songs that represent their organizations."

Greek organizations from Bloomsburg, Millersville, Shippensburg Universities and University of Pittsburgh will be participating.

"We'd like to see the other Greek organizations on campus come to our Greek Show Down," said Hyman.

A film entitled "I Remember Harlem" will be presented February 16 and 23 in Price Auditorium. The film will cover Harlem from the 1600's to the 1980's.

Other highlights include the Bloomsburg University Gospel Choir and a soul food dinner in Bentley Dining Hall.

The Black Arts Festival will culminate with a fashion show, dinner and awards ceremony on February 25.

Hyman stressed, "The festival won't be a total success without support from the entire student body."

Concert plans fall through Band heading for Jersey

By Mike Finnagan

Plans for a concert at Lock Haven University, featuring the rock group Huey Lewis and the News, have fallen through.

According to Student Cooperative Council (SCC) social committee chairman-designate Mike Moyer, the SCC put in a bid for Huey Lewis after one of their concerts was cancelled. Moyer says that Lock Haven was the only school that put a bid in for the group until a college in New Jersey outbid the SCC. The bidding deadline, according to Moyer, was 7 p.m. last Friday and the New Jersey school put their bid in just before the deadline. The SCC's bid was $8500.

Willing to accept

"They were going to accept our bid," Moyer said, "But we couldn't go any higher with only $9000 to work with."

Moyer believes that past concerts have given Lock Haven a bad reputation. "The Utopia concert gave us a bad name (because a lot of money was lost) and when a bid comes along that equals or passes our bid, a group won't think twice about taking the other school's bid," Moyer said.

SCC President Gary Interdonato was not happy about losing the concert but hopes something will come up later and a concert eventually staged. "I'm disappointed," Interdonato said. "We lost out by a few hours but right now we're going to sit back and see what happens."

Romantics possible

Moyer says that the Romantics are a distant possibility for sometime in March. "There's no doubt that we will probably have a show," he said, "We are going to wait until something opens up." Moyer also said that Rock Series will not happen this year because the administration will not permit it.

Interdonato said that bids were sent out earlier to two other rock groups but both were rejected. The rock group Heart wanted more money than the SCC bidded and The Romantics could not fit the Lock Haven stop into their early tour, but there is a small hope for a later stop.

The recognizing of Moyer as Social Committee Chairman will be one of the topics on the agenda at the semester's first SCC senate meeting, Wednesday at 6 p.m. The meeting will be held at the lower level of the Parsons Union Building (PUB).

College changes tuition policy

By Kim Wilkinson

As of December 31, all Lock Haven University students' tuition bills were paid in full, according to memos sent from the revenue office.

George Marshall, vice-president for administration said the change in the university's policy is due to the fact that the Pennsylvania State Appropriation fund is no longer accessible to the 14 state-owned institutions.

The state now gives the university 12 installments, of unequal monetary value, to meet its payroll.

He said that the university's cash flow could not meet payrolls on time, because a majority of students were paying small portions of their bills.

"We have made some exceptions for students," said Marshall. "I think we were more liberal than the other schools." He added that the school is being as flexible as it can.

Marshall anticipates the Chancellor of the State System of Higher Education to produce an overall policy concerning tuition payments.

No students seem to have been deterred from returning to school because of the new policy, according to Marshall.

For any student who has not paid his bill in full, he will not be able to obtain a copy of his transcript. The school will send several letters reminding the student of payment due, before turning the delinquent account to the Department of Justice for collection.

Month-long delay in receiving grades

Holiday best wishes from Lock Haven University were sent out to students last year in the form of billing information for the 1984 spring semester. I would rather have received my grades. Instead, the administration held off sending our grade reports until mid-January - an act I find inconsiderate and unfair.

Faculty grade sheets were due December 22, the day after classes concluded. The rest of the work is left up to a computer. So why the month-long delay in receiving our grades? Is there more involved?

In contrast, spring semester payments were due December 30, just nine days after the close of the fall semester. If you failed to meet the deadline you were denied an admit ticket to registration, an aggravating delay for anyone who has gone through it. For some students coming up with the cash is as easy as asking mom and pop to write a check. For students working their way through college money is harder to come by. "It's like being forced to pay cash for a house or the deal is off," one student remarked.

According to a student who sent in a portion of her payment, she was asked to sign a paper stating where she expected to obtain the balance of her payment or her admit ticket, which she had already received through the mail, would be revoked. In the words of the student, "I was asked to reveal my sources of income in order that they be assured of receiving payment. I was asked to request several months payment in advance from the federal government in the form of social security benefits. That's an impossible request if I've ever heard one."

The administration shouldn't concern itself with the source of an individual's income. It's none of their business. Their only concern should be that they are paid.

The administration surely has the right to demand tuition and room and board payment be paid as soon as possible. According to the administration, if payment continues to be, delinquent cases will be turned over to the Department of Justice. However, let's allow those less financially sound people more time to solidify their position.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Professor clarifies scheduling methods

Dear Editor,

The December 16 edition of the Eagle Eye contained a letter by Mr. Michael Hagey critical of my department colleague, Professor Arif Azeem, for his alleged negligence in the scheduling procedure of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science. A few words of explanation might help to clarify this situation.

The scheduling procedure developed by the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science has been in operation for the past three semesters. In each of these semesters there has occurred incidents similar to the one involving Mr. Hagey. Last semester, for example, students of faculty advisors, other than Mr. Azeem, were also skipped in the final phase of the scheduling process. Apparently Mr. Hagey is not aware that these difficulties resulted from confusion over deadlines. They were not caused by the faculty advisors.

It is not the purpose of this letter to lay blame for such failures on anyone's shoulders. Problems are bound to occur with new programs that involve many students and faculty. Last semester about 550 computer science, management science and mathematics majors were scheduled into computer science, mathematics and accounting courses through my department's scheduling procedure. This effort has been voluntarily assumed by my department and those faculty of the Department of History, Political Science and Economics who also advise management science majors. This effort is not part of the university-wide registration process.

It is not difficult to understand Mr. Hagey's frustration. Over the past seven or eight years, I have met many students who have been assigned inappropriate courses or who have been forced or cajoled into registering for courses they neither needed nor wanted. The members of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science are doing all we can to correct such registration problems, at least for the courses that we teach. Mr. Hagey can be assured that efforts will be made to correct the problem he encountered last semester.

Sincerely,

Bernard C. Dornisch
Associate Professor of Mathematics

Pa. wrestling war tonight

By Dave Prusak

Wrestling fever will once again hit Lock Haven when the sixteenth ranked Bald Eagle grapplers host thirteenth rated Bloomsburg in a key PSAC contest tonight at Thomas Fieldhouse. The match, which should emerge as nothing less than a full scale war, will play a big role in determining rankings in NCAA Division I wrestling.

Lock Haven University (LHU) will be looking to topple the Huskies after placing second, a quarter point off the winning pace, to this same Bloomsburg team in the PSAC championships at Lock Haven back on January 27 and 28. Bloomsburg will want the win badly, because it was the Bald Eagles who handed them a rare defeat, 23-19, on the first day of December.

At 118 lbs. LHU's Ken Whitsel, 25-9 with 10 pins, will have to wrestle his best to beat Bloomsburg's Rick Bonomo, 28-2. Bonomo pinned Whitsel to capture the PSAC 118 lb. title.

Stellar performance

LHU's Matt Avery, 17-13-1, will also have to turn in a stellar performance at 126 lbs. to defeat Rick Bonomo's twin brother Rock, who sports a fine 25-4 record this year after also taking a PSAC crown.

The 134 lb. bout will pit LHU's Don Parsley, 22-6-1 with six pins, against the Huskie's Phil Conner who is 7-9. Parsley is making his move to the top of the 134 lb. weight class after defeating and drawing with Clarion's top rated Mark Ciccarello who is 27-3-1.

LHU's 142 lb. grappler Tom Kreamer, 14-7, will try to knock off Bloomsburg's tough Dan Comfort, 21-10. In the PSAC's Kreamer knocked off Comfort enroute to the 142 lb. title.

At 150 lbs. LHU's Bryon Benner, 7-6-1, will look for a big win over the Huskies' Tom Fiorvanti, 23-6-1. Benner is replacing Wade Potter, who will no longer be wrestling for LHU due to academic reasons.

Bald Eagle freshman Jody Karam, 17-10, will try to upend Dan Klingerman, 21-8. Klingerman beat Karam 15-5 in their dual meet in December.

LHU win leader

The 167 lb. contest has LHU's phenomenal Doug Buckwalter, 31-3 with four pins, encountering Bloomsburg headlock specialist Darrin Evans 21-7. Buckwalter, who took the 167 lb. PSAC crown, passed Jerry Swope (100-13-2) to become the all time LHU win leader (115-35).

LHU's Greg Wykoff, 13-12, will have to wrestle well to knock off Bloomsburg's Tom Gibble, 20-3. Gibble recorded three pins enroute to capturing the 177 lb. PSAC crown.

LHU's Ty Hall, 12-10 at 190 lbs., will face a tough customer in Bloomsburg's John McFadden, 21-5-1. McFadden placed second at PSAC's.

The heavyweight match will feature LHU's standout Rick Petersen, 24-5 with 15 falls, against the Huskie's Chris Tamborra, 10-8. Petersen pinned Tamborra quickly in their first dual meet and then at PSAC's on his way to a heavyweight title. Petersen records win

On Saturday night, Petersen recorded a quick six point fall over Kirk Butryn to give LHU a hard fought 21-21 tie at seventeenth ranked Clarion.

LHU also received wins from Avery, Kreamer, and Buckwalter. Parsley gave LHU a boost by coming back late to draw with top rated Ciccarello 4-4.

Over the winter break LHU defeated Michigan (27-12), Rider (29-13), Millersville (43-6), Slippery Rock (32-9), and IUP (52-3). The Bald Eagles dropped decisions to Wisconsin (32-12) and Cleveland St. (22-15).

On Friday, LHU will host Pitt. On Saturday West Virginia comes to town. An away match against Shippensburg and a big home dual with Penn St. will precede the Eastern and NCAA championships.

Lady Eagles looking good despite loss

By Christa Landas

Prior to Christmas break, the Lock Haven women's basketball team had lost two straight and their record stood at 2-2. Since then the Lady Eagles have upped their standing to 9-4. The women had a six game winning streak on the line as they traveled to Indiana University of Pa. for a big game Saturday but their string of victories was broken as IUP crushed the Bald Eagles, 107-61.

Over the break, the Lock Haven team first saw action against Immaculata and had no trouble in handing them a 78-63 defeat. Then came the only loss up until the recent Indiana match-up. Philadelphia Textile, in a close contest, defeated the Eagles 74-70.

At home, the women beat Mansfield 74-67 and went on to upset IUP, 90-84. Then the LHU axe fell on Slippery Rock as the Eagles grabbed a 69-64 victory. Tina Martin scored 26 points against Mansfield, 30 in the IUP game, and an additional 30 markers against Slippery Rock for a total of 86 in just three games.

The winning continued as the Lady Eagles triumphed over California, 83-70. In this contest, Martin again attained the scoring honors with 26 points. Sonia Pez had 20 and Lori Young chipped in an additional 16 markers. Donna Sergi led the rebounding for LHU with nine.

Clarion Univ. proved to be no trouble for the Lady Eagles as they downed the Golden Eagles, 69-60. Pez scored her college career high of 22 points, and Martin compiled an additional 21. Sergi had 11 and also grabbed her collegiate high of 11 rebounds.

Lock Haven took a 40-25 half-time lead over the Fighting Scots of Edinboro and then coasted to a 76-61 victory. Young shot for 17 points, but again it was Martin who led the Eagle scoring attack with 19 points and six rebounds. Sergi put in another 15 markers and picked-up 10 loose balls.

Then it was time for Indiana. But there was a sign that perhaps a seven game win streak was not to be. The Lady Bald Eagles left their Haven and a routine two and a half or three hour trip turned into a seven hour delay due to a bus breakdown.

The streak was not meant to be, because IUP had different ideas about the game. Coach Fred Riley commented, "IUP did everything right, and we did everything wrong. They just did everything well." He, also, felt that his team was not in the game mentally which perhaps could be attributed to the bus breakdown and the long hours of waiting that accompanied it.

The six game string of victories, though, cannot be taken away from the Eagles. "We worked hard, and I think our conditioning and work on fundamentals has paid off," explained Coach Riley.

The LHU women's basketball team carries a 5-1 record in Pennsylvania Conference Western Division play and has a 9-4 mark overall. According to Coach Fred Riley, Slippery Rock and Edinboro will be the toughest teams that remain on the second half schedule, so these two contests will be important keys for the women's bid for a spot in the Final Four play-offs. "It's hard to say now, but if we are mentally prepared and work hard then we have a chance."

Tina Martin, LHU's hot shooting 5-8 sophomore, is ranked number four nationally among Division II scorers. She is averaging 23.0 points per game.

Sonia Pez is the only other Bald Eagle in double figures with a 10.7 average. But five other players on the team have an average between 9.3 and 6.2. This gives Lock Haven a reliable scoring attack and a lot of strength off the bench. Donna Sergi is the leading rebounder with 7.9 per game, and there are four other team members who grab 4.8 rebounds or better a game. At home, the Lady Eagles are 5-1 and carry an away record of 4-3.

Next action for the women will be tomorrow, when they host the Rockets for Slippery Rock at 6:00 p.m.

Men cagers fall at IUP

By Rocco Pallotto

Whoever said that if things can get any worse, they will, must have had the Bald Eagle basketball team in mind when they said it.

Not only do the Eagles have trouble on the courts, as evidenced by their 1-18 record, they have trouble getting to the courts.

On the way to Indiana (Pa) for a PSAC contest, the LHU bus suffered a flat tire and delayed the game by 2½ hours.

Things started to look up for LHU as they held a one-point lead, 25-24, at the half against the IUP cagers.

The game stayed close until the Bald Eagles made some costly fouls against a strong foulshooting Indiana squad late in the game to put the game out of reach, and win by a final of 60-53.

IUP had a balanced scoring attack, with four players reaching double figures. Brad Yoder paced the Eagles with 14 points, while Sam June chipped in with 12.

Steve Santor did a good job in filling in for the injured Jeff Jackman. Jackman may be out for the season, suffering a hairline fracture in his ankle during the Clarion game.

The big difference came at the foul line, as IUP sunk 18 of 23, while the Eagles hit just 5 of 9 from the charity stripe.

The bigger Indian team also outrebounded the Eagles by 15.

Third ranked LHU boxers prep for Invitationals

Four of the nation's third ranked Bald Eagle boxers are scheduled to compete at West Chester University Thursday (Feb. 9) and three boxers are scheduled to compete in the Dickinson College Invitational on Saturday, Feb. 11. Boxing at Dickinson will be All-Americans Tim Frymyer, 112, and Kenny Cooper, 132, along with Mike Courton, 156. Frymyer is currently the number one ranked 112 pounder in the nation. Boxers from Lock Haven, VMI, Shippensburg, Central Connecticut and the host school will compete. Frymyer is the defending champion.

Scheduled to box at the Ram Invitational at West Chester are Dave Washington, 119; Rocco Iannetta, 147; Steve Greber, 156; and John Morrin, 165. Boxers from Lock Haven, Villanova, Delaware and the host school will battle for honors. The "Haven" is also scheduled to box at the Penn State Invitational on Feb. 24 and at Central Connecticut State University on March 3 according to Dr. Ken Cox, the faculty advisor for the team. The boxers looked impressive in their scrimmage at Rockview last Wednesday concluded Dr. Cox.

Housing penalty is strict

By Jean Newcomer

To stop students from going back on their housing agreement Lock Haven University (LHU) installed a new penalty system last fall.

Ronald Bossert, associate dean of students, said the university needs some type of regulation for housing. In past years, students were required to pay a $50.00 deposit which would not be returned if students did not notify the university by a certain date that they were moving off campus.

This system was not strict enough because too many students were willing to give up the $50.00 deposit to move off campus. This left the housing department in a difficult situation at the beginning of the semester. Many freshmen students who planned to move off campus in the fall failed to notify housing up to two weeks prior to the opening of the halls.

All students staying in the residence halls must now sign a housing agreement which states that students will stay in the residence hall for one academic year or pay the financial penalties listed in the housing agreement.

The new system requires students to fill out the proper application form to move off campus and to pay four weeks room and board fees, which comes to $212.76. If students do not fill out the proper application form they must pay eight weeks room and board fees, $425.52.

Bossert feels the new system is fair to both the students and the university; however, some students feel the system is too rigid. Jill Campbell and Leslie Radcliffe, sisters of the Sigma Kappa sorority, feel that their situation should have been considered as an extraordinary circumstance. The sorority would have lost the house if they did not find two sisters to move in.

Bossert is open to suggestions from students to improve the new system, and he hopes students will contact him. Bossert's office is located in Sullivan Hall.
