Heated debate over policy and constitution amendments erupts at SCC meeting

Nick Malawskey
Staff Reporter

Rick Harvey, Nate McMichael, and Eddie Dove, were inaugurated at this semester's final SCC meeting on Wednesday.

Following their inaugurations, the SCC further confirmed the candidates who had been chosen by Harvey and his running mates for the remaining open positions on the executive board.

However, several senators raised questions regarding the manner in which the other members of his board were chosen.

Said Senator Del Sellers "We should have a process where you nominate them and we go through them. We're rubber stamping things and that's not how we should do things."

Harvey defended his choices saying "I'll prove it to you and to everybody else in this room that my executive board is going to make a difference this year. I believe 150 percent that the people that have been appointed will go above and beyond their job."

SCC President Ron Strickler backed up Harvey when he said that it was "absolutely ridiculous to question Rick's ability to choose members of his executive board."

However, Senator Nick Trumbauer stated his opinion saying "part of your job as a senator is to question what comes before you... he (Sellers) is saying I don't know this person and I can't say yes because of this."

Treasurer Eddie Dove said "It will be a tight ship, mediocrity will not be allowed," and that the "arbitrary arguments are a bit immature."

The SCC also approved the 2003-04 SCC budget, which was carried with only one opposed vote.

However, SCC President Ron Strickler's proposed constitution amendment met with more resistance.

Strickler only needed 18 votes to pass his proposed amendments to the SCC's Constitution. "I think these are accurate to what needs to be done to the constitution at this time," said Strickler when he introduced his amendments to the senate.

One of the issues that were included in the amendments was the inclusion of the Executive Board's Food Services Chairman, the Information Task Force Chairman and the Public Relations Chairmen as paid positions and the rights of these individuals to vote on Executive Board matters.

Associated with that was a general increase in pay for all Executive Board members.

Several Senate members raised objections to the, with senator Dan Pratt saying, "most peoples tuition is going to go up, but some of yours is going to go down."

Treasurer Bryan Detweiler defended the amendment, citing a proposed increased office hours and responsibilities as validation for the added pay. Detweiler said "With increased pay comes increased responsibilities... there will be justification."

President Rick Harvey said, "I'm behind this 100 percent" and said that while he agrees that more should be changed "there is only so much we can do at one time."

However, when the votes had been cast, only fifteen people voted in agreement with the amendments. There were two votes opposed and three abstentions.

Ten clubs also presented their yearly reports to the Senate. The Panhellenic

Council, Geoscience Club, Black Student Union, Sophisticated Ladies, Safe Haven, JSPASS, Men's Lacrosse, Women's Rugby,

Men's Rugby, and the Ranger Club all informed the SCC as to recent events and future plans for each club. The Sophisticated Ladies revised constitution was also passed. The revision now allows all students at LHU to join the club. Formerly, the club was only for women.

Graduate P.A. program ranks 41st in the U.S.

LOCK HAVEN--U.S. News and World Report ranked The Physician Assistant program at Lock Haven University of Pennsylvania 41st best graduate program in the nation for 2004.

The results were based on a graduate level health programs assessment undertaken by the magazine. Results were based on two types of data: expert opinion about program quality and statistical indicators that measure the quality of the school's faculty, research and students.

The ranking places the University Physician Assistant graduate program in the top third of the 136 accredited Physician Assistant programs in the United States.

The first and only one of its kind in the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education, the Physician Assistant program was specifically designed to meet the critical need in the Commonwealth for rural health-care practitioners. Since its inception in 1996, the program has had a dramatic and positive impact on the Commonwealth by providing valuable health promotion and disease prevention services to communities located all throughout rural Pennsylvania.

Accredited by the Accreditation Review Commission for the Physician Assistant (ARC-PA) since its inception, the two-year graduate program leads to a Master in Health Science degree as a Physician Assistant. Students can choose from two concentrations within the program: Rural Primary Care or Corrections Medicine.

The nationally-recognized program provides students with a state-of-the-art learning environment, an innovative "body systems format" curriculum, and strong clinical experiences early in training.

"The Physician Assistant program provides an invaluable service to the patients and healthcare practitioners in Clinton County," said Dr. Michael R. Greenberg, medical director of the Physician Assistant program.

Computer-driven technology replaces books for students and ensures instant access to the curriculum, lectures and medical references via the web. Students are able to attain course outlines, program policies, objectives, readings, and lecture notes all from the University Intranet. Students also subscribe to an online textbook service that provides more than 35 full text medical textbooks and more than 120 full text journals. In addition, students participate in a distance education environment delivered via interactive television connecting the Clearfield to the Lock Haven campus.

Recognized by ARC-PA for its innovative design, the curriculum features a modular "body systems format" where, for example, cardiology is taught over a three-week period of time as a block of instruction, incorporating anatomy, physiology, pathophysiology, pharmacology and physical diagnosis.

"The advantage of the modular approach to teaching medicine is that students receive a congruous concentrated block of instruction within a specialty or body system area rather than having it spread over one or multiple semesters. We have had a significant amount of positive feedback regarding this system from both students and faculty," said Walter Eisenhauer, director of the Physician Assistant program.

Approximately 140 students have graduated from the program, with a greater than 90% first time pass rate on the NCCPA Examination. Ninety-five percent of those graduates were placed in jobs within six months of graduation. One-third to one-half of those graduates are currently serving in rural Pennsylvania communities.

"The quality of the faculty and curriculum combined with the excellent mentoring students receive from physicians and physician assistants throughout the region during clinical training make this program truly exceptional," said Dr. Craig

Dean Willis, University president.

In November, Eisenhauer was elected director-at-large by the membership of the Association of Physician Assistant Programs (APAP) for a two-year term. APAP is the professional organization that represents the 136 accredited PA programs throughout the nation.

Sports marketing forum held

Nick Malawalakouskey
RARG!!!!!!!

If you love sports, are able to communicate well with people, and are not afraid to work long grueling hours, then perhaps you should consider a job in sports marketing, said a panel of sports marketing professionals at this week's sports media

The forum, held in the PUB's multipurpose room, was a chance for interested students to ask questions and interact with three professionals, each from a different organization.

"Honesty is a big part of it," said Danielle Barney, Sports Information Director for Lock Haven Athletics.

"You have to have the passion and desire.. You have to love it," said Angelo Sciafa III, General Sales Manager of Penn State Sports Marketing.

Gabe Sinicropi Jr, Director of Marketing and Public Relations for the Williamsport Crosscutters Baseball Club, echoed Sciafa when he said "the hours and long and grueling... but its what we worked for.

"Both Sinicropi and Sciafa said that they can easily spend 12 -14 hour days during the season, especially on home game days.

Alternative Education program receives $1.7 million in funding

LOCK HAVEN--Tom Bowman, aide to U.S. Senator Arlen Specter, presented the Lock Haven University of Pennsylvania with $1.7 million in funding for teacher training. The funding is a direct result of the University's alternative education program and its work with the Keystone Central School District's alternative education program. The funding will be used in partnership with Philadelphia schools.

"We are going to utilize the information and knowledge gained from the development and implementation of the alternative education project and apply it to our collaborative work in the Philadelphia school district," said Nathaniel Hosley, coordinator of the Alternative Education program.

The partnership between the University Alternative Education program and the Philadelphia schools should reduce teacher turnover while raising the standards of achievement in the Philadelphia school district, which has about 210,000 students.

Student wins national 2003 Graduate Fellowship

LOCK HAVEN--Sean Kimball, a top graduating senior majoring in Political Science, has been named the winner of a Phi Kappa Phi Graduate Fellowship, one of 52 awarded by the national honor society to help finance up to $8,000 of the first year of graduate study. Kimball is the University's second national winner in the past seven years.

"Sean's exemplary academic performance and his enthusiastic participation in campus events have earned him the respect of faculty and students alike," said Dr. Craig Dean Willis, University president.

As a member of Lock Haven University's chapter of The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, which chooses members from academically high-ranking juniors and seniors, Kimball was selected to represent the local chapter in the national competition.

"Sean ranks as the strongest student that I have worked with in my career," said University instructor Daniel Roberts.

Competing in Phi Kappa Phi's Northeast Region, Kimball is joined by 11 other national winners from the region, including students from Lycoming College, Villanova University, Carnegie Mellon University, the United States Naval Academy, and the University of Maryland.

Before starting undergraduate studies in the United States, Kimball lived in Finland for 11 years, attending Finnish-language schools from grade 2-12. In addition to his regular course work at the University, Kimball maintained the Honors Program website and moderated a series of campus and community forums on topics such as racism, alcoholism, criminal justice, and terrorism.

After completing a summer 2002 internship on Comparative Political and Economic Systems at Georgetown University, Kimball began a fall internship at the Governor's Policy Office in Harrisburg. While working at the Office of the Governor, Kimball wrote a strategy paper explaining the content of the 2002 Farm Bill and how the legislation could be adapted to conditions in Pennsylvania.

"As a sign of the Office's trust and confidence in Mr. Kimball, the Office assigned him to present their draft to the State Conservation Commission," said Dr. Lawrence Farley, University instructor.

In his application for the Phi Kappa Phi Graduate Fellowship, Kimball wrote that his experience working for state government "validated my belief that individuals are in the galley of the ship controlling the forward momentum of society, while government is at the helm. My career goal is to create a more responsive government, where individuals are readily empowered to take action and change the norms guiding government, a possibility which is often lost in a turbulent sea of ideologies, propaganda and factions."

During his internships, Kimball served as a volunteer in the Urban Oasis program in Washington, DC, and the Harrisburg Capitol Area Greenbelt Association.

Kimball's Phi Kappa Phi Graduate Fellowship, caps a list of numerous scholarship earned in his career at the University, including a Presidential Honors Scholarship, Academic Honors Scholarship, and the Charles and Margaret Vonada Lock Haven University Foundation Scholarship for performance in Political Science, Economics and History. He also received a Phi Kappa Phi Honor Award and the College of Arts and Sciences Scholarly and Professional Excellence in the Major Field Award.

After graduating from the University in May, Kimball has been selected to participate in the Fund for American Studies summer 2003 program in Crete, where students from the United States and Middle East take classes and discuss regional conflicts.

"He is without peer in his preparation and capacity for graduate study in international relations and related fields," said Dr. Stanley Berard, assistant professor of History, Political Science and Economics.

Upon completion of graduate school, Kimball plans to join the Peace Corps, working as a conflict resolution consultant or government advisor on environmental problems. When he returns to the United States, he anticipates either joining the Foreign Service, working for Pennsylvania state government, or working for an intergovernmental organization, such as the United Nations.

"In my career and my academic and community activities, I want to show that behind every government decision is an individual or group of people responsive to public opinion and alternative proposals. Once the majority of our citizens begin to view government as an interactive arena and most importantly, eagerly participate in it, the path of progress will be clear," Kimball said.

ROTC Brief

By Eric Hatch

The Lock Haven University Soaring Eagles Battalion held their annual Spring Social Friday evening at the Clinton County Country Club. The evening began with the posting of the colors by Cadets Joseph Hill, William Jones, Joseph Pazcoguin, Colin Urie, and led by Cadet Keith Guiswite. Cadet Daniel Gustke gave the invocation, followed by greetings from Lieutenant Colonel Allan St. Andre. The traditional military toasts were then presented, and dinner was served. Following dinner, the battalion public relations committee held a slide show presentation, highlighting the events of this past year in particular, as well as events from the past four years, as a tribute to LTC St. Andre's departure at the end of this semester. University President Craig Dean Willis honored the cadets and cadre with his presence, and praised the progress that the ROTC program has made over the past few years. The Guest Speaker was LTC Walter Piatt, a 1987 graduate of LHU, the ROTC program, and a native of Somerset, Pa. LTC Piatt is currently the Executive Officer of 1st Brigade, 10th Mountain Division at Fort Drum, N.Y., and is about to take command of an infantry battalion in the 25th Infantry Division in Hawaii next month. LTC Piatt spent a few moments speaking on the status of the United States Military, and stressing the importance of family support throughout these trying times. He also thanked his wife Cynthia who was in attendance, for her support over the years. Mrs. Piatt is also an alumnus of LHU, and a graduate of the university's ROTC program. Following LTC Piatt's speech, LTC St. Andre made a few closing remarks as he prepares to leave his post as the Soaring Eagles Battalion Commander, and move on to his next duty assignment. Cadet Hill of the junior year ROTC class, presented LTC St. Andre with a copy of the painting Reflections, on behalf of all the junior year cadets. Cadet Gustke then gave the Benediction, and the color guard retired the colors, closing the evening's festivities. This year's ROTC Spring Social was a special one, because it was not only to honor the senior level cadets who will be graduating, and receiving their commissions later this month, but also to honor LTC St. Andre for his past four years of service to the Battalion. The cadets who will be receiving their commissions are Carrie Witherel, Peter Sulewski, and Adrienne (Dodd) Maxwell. The commissioning ceremony will be held on Saturday, May 17th at 8 AM in Sloan Auditorium, prior to graduation.

All three panelists stressed the need for an education. Sinicropi, who of the three panelists was the least, educated with only a two-year degree, said, "I would highly recommend a four year degree... I'm very lucky... it would be hard for me to find another good job."

But all three agreed that the most important thing for any interested student to do is to get "their foot in the door" by taking an internship within the field. However, Sinicropi cautioned students, saying, "It's a tough business... You have to have a time line... to decide when it's time to move on."

Police force or collection agency?

Everyone can admit that now and again they break a minor law. When it comes to parking tickets and Lock Haven University, if you have a car on campus you most likely have received a parking ticket at some time or another.

In the mere year I have had my car on campus, I have already received three parking tickets. Every break, students become excited to go home and usually bring a lot with them. A problem I have noticed (especially in Smith Hall) is that you cannot park on North Fairview Street or behind it by the PUB to load your car. Do they think that the average student will walk to the pit parking, or even worse, all the way up to Jack Stadium with four or five heavy loads to bring home?

The purpose of the average police force is to provide safety to the community. I personally know members of the police force and they are great and caring individuals. However, we are paying thousands of dollars for their salary, seemingly so that we can be billed further for parking "violations".

all university buildings, something that a typical janitor would do. The police care for intoxicated students who are arrested for on-campus drinking. In reality, they have a hired EMT on the weekends who watches the students and when the students are heavily intoxicated, they are simply sent to the hospital. The police are here to aid the students in medical emergencies when in reality the large number of health science students on campus are much more qualified and usually take care of the emergencies until an ambulance arrives.

Finally, the campus police are here to enforce parking violations. If you think about it, they are mostly concerned with the latter. If they have nothing better to do than fine students for violations that they create, we need to rethink their purpose. Something definitely has to be changed on campus.

As students of this university, WE run the school, we fund the programs, and we definitely don't have to be used by the system.

The police open and lock

He said ♂

Sean Dooley
Editor in Chief

I've known what I was going to say for the final He said/She Said for quite some time now. I just didn't know how to word it without getting in trouble, so I'll give it my best shot.

My favorite memory of Jess is kind of blurred. I came home one evening after a long night of fun and was just hanging out, minding my own business with some friends when the phone rang. Little did I know, it was Jess on the other line and she was about to take advantage of me. Now for all you perverts out there, don't get your hopes up about some kind of late night rendezvous because you'll be thoroughly disappointed with what really happened. As I was slightly out of it; not knowing what in the world I was doing, Jess thought it would be a good time to give me this line, "Dooley, I have an idea for He said/She said."

"OK, lay it on me," I told her. She proceeded to say that she wanted to write about the television series on VH1, "Music Behind Bars" and argue about whether or not it should be aired. I had never heard of it, so I needed her to familiarize me. She explained that it was a show where people in prison form musical bands have their happenings taped and aired on VH1. I never did watch the show when we wrote the article, and I still haven't seen it (for all I know, it's not on anymore), but not knowing fully what I was doing, I said, "Whatever you say, I'll say the opposite."

So she told me that she wanted to say it shouldn't be aired. Now I didn't have too strong of an opinion on the issue either way, but I did lean more on the side of not airing it. But a deal's a deal, so I had to do my best in saying let "Music Behind Bars" go on the airwaves. When I walked into the Eagle Eye office on Tuesday, October 25, 2002, I was still a bit hazy on what the topic was for the upcoming week. Jess reminded me and my reaction was something along the lines of, "Oh crap. How the hell am I going to write 500 words about that?"

As a result, I did not write 500 words; not even close to it. "He said" totaled only 395 words that week while "She said" was 534, making it the most lopsided word count in the history of our little column. As much as I felt Jess taking advantage of me was a low blow, I have to give her props on suckering me into writing about something I didn't know about, making her look smart, and me look like a complete moron. In our special Halloween issue six days later, we said what the other person should be for Halloween. For the record, Jess only came up with the reasoning for me to be Bill Gates AFTER she read my portion on why she should be a munchkin. I've always wanted to tell our readers that she cheated, so now you know. I'm not sure what her favorite memory of me is going to be, but I have a pretty good idea. If it is what I'm thinking, I tell you now, don't believe everything you read. So I say hasta la vista, and the squeaky-voiced Jess now has her one last moment to shine.

The most memorable He Said/She Said moments

Well, this is it. Our last He Said She Said ever. We chose a long time ago to write about our favorite memory of each other in the last issue, so I've been thinking all semester about what I was going to write about Dooley.

I don't think there is just one thing I can say about him. I mean, he's a really great guy and he's become one of my good friends here at LHU. Whenever I'm feeling down, I can always count on Dooley to cheer me up. He's just a funny type of guy.

I honestly can't think of my favorite memory of Dooley, so I'm gonna throw out my top five.

5. One day last semester, I was, I guess you could say, in an especially sunshine type of mood for my sorority. For those of you who saw me, congratulations, you caught me as I ran to and from classes trying to be undetected (which was almost impossible in my neon-colored gear.) For those who have no clue what I'm talking about, it's probably better that way. Just don't ask. But anyway, as I stood outside after one class as people walked by me and smirked, laughed and pointed, Dooley was one of the only people who would actually stand by me and act like my friend. Of course, I'm sure he was probably cracking up on the inside, but hey, he put in an honest effort.

4. The night that I thought Dooley got arrested for talking to trees on Main Street. I still think that's the real story!

3. Dooley knew I was going to throw this in somewhere, so I guess this is as good a place as any. Let's just say Dooley threw a little party one night, called my house, and was a little, uh, anxious for me to attend. That's all I have to say about that.

2. Anyone who will subject themselves not only to sitting through a 2 1/2 hour Aerosmith concert with me, but also driving me to and from the concert in State College as I sing along to all my favorite Aerosmith songs definitely has a special place in my heart. Thank s Dooley! And yes, Steven Tyler was pointing at me!

1. And my number one favorite memory of Sean Dooley is...when he begged me for weeks to write a He Said She Said about contraception, and actually ate a cricket to get me to agree to do it. What a sicko! I hope it was worth it!

Well Dooley, it's been real, it's been fun, but I can't say it's been real fun. (Just kidding!) Good luck in your future. I hope you follow the yellow brick road to wherever your dreams may take you.

It's finals film fest

Next week, escape stress with a good

Edward Savoy
Staff Reporter

Finals week poses every college student a very difficult question; study or slack?

For those out there who choose the former option, kudos to you; you are most certainly among the noblest of mankind and surely have flocks of angels surrounding you at all times and stations along with having a shiny halo of your own to match.

For the rest of you who choose the latter option, at least you should take care to slack in an entertaining and enlightening way. In that like spirit, I provide a list of cinema that I humbly call "The greatest movies ever to ignore life by".

Rat Race: Granted, I never will and never can make a place in the Oscarific canon for this film. However, if the goal is pure belly laughs in the quickest fashion known, I haven't been able to beat this film. Watch out for the Barbie museum.

The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring: I've always been of the opinion that some classes are composed more of fantasy than reality to begin with. If you're going to skip studying, might as well do it to a fantasy that's actually entertaining (not to mention epic, beautiful, and intelligent)

The Wall: Simple surrealism done un-simply. Still can't figure out a plot, but it's always interesting to look at.

Mulholland Drive: See The Wall.

Shrek: How they slipped so much adult oriented material into a kids film I'll never figure out, even if I live to see peace in the Middle East.

The Godfather: Parts I and II: The Great American Movies. For engrossing scope, characters, and acting, you will never ever be able to do any better even if you were to live to see peace and prosperity in the Middle East (I may have a prejudice on this film being half Neapolitan, but ignore that if you will).

I can think of few better ways to escape from reality than to escape from reality inside fantasy of whatever type or stripe. In the cinema, the old children's song is entirely correct; "Merrily, merrily, merrily, life is but a dream."

Campus Craze celebrates Mardi Gras style

Jessica Leshin
The Eagle Eye

No more pencils, no more books and certainly no more teachers' dirty looks! The end of the semester is here and summer is fast approaching, the weather has turned from snowstorms to swimsuit weather.

To celebrate the coming of the end of the school year as well as to relieve some pent up semester stress, the Student Cooperative Council (SCC) with the help of Haven Activities Council (HAC) held its annual Campus Craze this past Friday May 25th. The theme this year was Mardi Gras and the student recreation center was transformed into a New Orleans Mardi Gras celebration, complete with bead tossing and blaring music.

"This year I really tried to get toys and games that people would want to play on several times, not just something that they would want to do just once, but something that they would want to continue doing and would have fun every time they did it," Rachel Strohecker of the SCC said.

Students enjoyed several activities such as car smashing, a giant moon bounce obstacle course, Say

What karaoke, a bungee trampoline, boxing with oversized boxing gloves, and the chance to test their skills on a mechanical bull. Dan Weaver, a freshman said, "This was my first year going to Campus Craze, I had a lot of fun, especially riding the mechanical bull, I think I am ready for the rodeo now!"

Students could also pose for a picture with their friends or their special someone in front of a painted mural of the infamous Bourbon Street in New Orleans. "We really wanted to give students something to remember the night by, so we decided to paint this gorgeous mural and get a couple of Polaroid cameras, we (SCC) just wanted to give students a great way to remember the night by," Strohecker said.

The SCC designed all of the scenery, going along with they theme of Mardi Gras and were able to obtain many door prizes with the help of Pepsi, the Lock Haven bookstore and Domino's. "I was really excited about this year's Campus Craze," Strohecker said, "I thought that it went really well and that it was a great success, I hope that everyone had a great time and is looking forward to next year's Campus Craze."

Intramural dodgeball goes undefeated, 16-0

LOCK HAVEN - The intramural dodgeball season has officially ended by naming Team Donkey Puchers intramural dodgeball champion.

The Donkey Puchers started out the season with high expectations. Team captain Jason Kline said "I knew we had what it took with the guys on the team, but the three girls really made the difference for us. We never thought they would be as good as they were."

The season started a few months ago. The league consisted of seven teams, each desperately fighting to be crowned intramural dodgeball champions.

Team Donkey Puchers went through the regular season with little trouble. No one seemed to pose a threat to them. "We went into every game knowing we were the best. We just had to play like it," said Bob Mazzola.

Winning all 14 regular season games, Team Donkey Puchers went into the play-offs with a first round bye and a load of confidence. "We had already played everyone before and beat them, we had no reason to think any team would beat us," said Katie Taylor.

Awaiting the winner of round one, Team Donkey Puchers had a feeling they would be playing Sigma Pi. "We just had a feeling that they would win," said Kline.

Kline was right. Sigma Pi defeated Pump Jiggie to move on and face the Donkey Puchers in the semi-finals. Sigma Pi posed no threat to the Donkey Puchers, by winning the best out of five match-up.

Team Donkey Puchers had to wait one week after their semi-final game to find out who they would face for the championship title.

On Monday night Team Donkey Puchers sat back and watched Ramrod take on the Thundering T-bags. The championship was scheduled to take place immediately following the semi-final. Ramrod ended up coming from a two games to one deficit to win three games to two.

Now it was championship time. "We thought Ramrod was going to get T-baged in the quarter-finals, but in the end they got donkey puched," said captain Kline.

It's great that we went undefeated. Every team was out to get us. We held strong throughout the season. Even though people think it's just intramurals, we take it as a varsity sport," said Kathleen Custer.

Team Donkey Puchers made history by being the first LHU intramural team to go undefeated. "Our coaches led us to an undefeated season. Thank God for great coaching," said Melissa Hibbert

Lanzendorfer, Shaffer earn Bradley Award

LOCK HAVEN - Adam Lanzendorfer and Ken Shaffer were announced as the football team's Harry Bradley Offensive and Defensive Most Improved Players, as awarded Sunday at halftime of the annual Football Spring Game.

A 5'11", 255-pound offensive lineman, Lanzendorfer will look to play a large role on the line as the 2003 season rolls around.

Shaffer, a second-year player, earned the Defensive Most Improved Player award.

Shaffer is a 6'1", 230-pound linebacker who returns to help solidify a strong defensive unit.

The 2002 Lock Haven football squad went 4-7 and 1-5 in the PSAC West.

The men's and women's relay team both had an impressive weekend at the Penn Reals. Three relay teams placed in the top ten; including two women's teams and one men's team.

Joining the 4x100 was freshman, Justina Hollenbach who helped the relay team clock at a time of 49.75.

Baseball drops Clarion, 11-1

LOCK HAVEN - The baseball team (15-22, 6-12 PSAC West) rebounded from a 12-3 loss in the opener against Clarion University (13-27, 7-11) to take a commanding 11-1 decision in the nightcap.

The Bald Eagles committed four errors and gave up 11 hits in game one's 12-3 loss versus the Golden Eagles.

LHU started the game in the lead, scoring three runs in the top of the first inning. John Hanna netted a single.

Matt Brown brought Hanna around and home on a deep single.

Brown, who had advanced to second on the throw to home, was able to score after Mike Vogt connected for a long single base hit.

Two big innings by Clarion stopped the momentum in its tracks, however, as the Golden Eagles plated five runs in the first and another seven in the bottom of the sixth frame to hand the Bald Eagles the 12-3 loss.

Mike Frederick took the loss, falling to 0-3 on the season.

Lock Haven made up for things in the second game, out-hitting Clarion 15-5 for the 11-1 victory.

Heath Repard (5-5) recorded the win, going five innings with seven strikeouts.

Mike Vogt paced LHU at the plate, going 3-for-4 with a home run, a triple and three RBI.

Aaron Neideigh was 2-for-4 with an RBI and Matt Brown matched his first-game output, going 2-for-3.

The Bald Eagle baseball team has one conference doubleheader remaining and will travel out to Slippery Rock University on Sat., May 3, for a 5 p.m. twinbill.

Lacrosse beats No. 10, Mercyhurst

LHU finishes it's 2003 campaign at 7-7; the team's first .500 season since '96

Jenelle Ayers
The Eagle Eye

The lacrosse team (8-7, 3-3 PSAC) fought back from a half time deficit to outscore No. 10 ranked Mercyhurst College (7-7) in the second half and grab the 9-7 victory.

Senior attacker Megan Dwyer got three goals and an assist while the Haven keeper Amy Reechberg posted eight saves in the second half to help limit Mercyhurst to just two goals in the final period.

Lock Haven had fallen behind by three goals, 5-2 after the first thirty minutes of play.

The Lady Eagles offense would then answer by kicking into a higher gear along with the help of their defense.

However as LHU scored seven goals while allowing just two over that stretch.

Dwyer paced LHU with three goals and an assist, while Katie Stewart and Amy Richter both registered pairs of goals.

Anne Marie Ritzell notched a goal and a set of assists, and Laura Luchetto also pocketed one goal.

Laura Carr played the first half making one stop. Amy Rechenberg entered for the second half, picking up eight saves in the winning effort.

Following information provided by Sports Information

LOCK HAVEN -

The lacrosse team (8-8, 3-3 PSAC) concluded its season on the road at Philadelphia University (9-6), falling 11-9 in the non-conference contest.

This is the first Lady Eagle lacrosse season at or above .500 since going 7-7 in the 1996 campaign. During the 1996 season, LHU second-year head coach Kristen Geissler was a student-athlete on the lacrosse team.

The Lady Eagles had a three-goal deficit to fight entering into the second half after Philadelphia scored four unanswered goals to close out the first half.

LHU had cut the lead to just one with a goal by Richter in the 44th minute, but the Rams went on a three-goal run in the next ten minutes to stretch out the lead once again.

Richter scored again with five minutes to go, and Strizki tacked on another goal in the final minute but could not bridge the gap and ended on the low end of the 11-9 score.

Richter paced LHU with four goals and an assist and Strizki added a pair of goals.

Dwyer, Anne Marie Ritzell and Katie Stewart all added goals in the Haven's effort.

In goal, the Lady Eagles' Rechenberg went the distance with a total of 15 saves.
