STATE COLLEGE
BLOOMSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Hon. C. William Kreisher

(Address delivered at the Testimonial Dinner, March 15, 1963, celebrating the Twentieth Anniversary of Dr. Harvey A. Andruss as President of the Bloomsburg State (Teachers) College.)

MR. CHAIRMAN, DISTINGUISHED GUESTS AND FRIENDS:

I am honored and proud to have been selected by the Faculty Association who initiated the movement unfolding here tonight, to accept on behalf of our college the portrait of our college president, Dr. Andruss.

We are here to pay tribute to a great college president who has devoted twenty years of his life to the outstanding development of the college on the hill.

My knowledge of our guest tonight dates back to my law school days when his college fraternity brother from Oklahoma, John A. Hervey, became Dean of Temple Law School. This early acquaintance became solidly forged upon my becoming a trustee of the college more than ten years ago.

It is embarrassing to a good man to be praised and such a man does not need praise. One of my favorite quotations from Emerson is: "Don't tell me what you are, because what you are speaks so loud, I cannot hear you."

In September of 1959, a series of articles appeared in The Morning Press of Bloomsburg dealing with the first twenty years of the administration of our guest as President of the college.

In January of this year, a booklet containing these articles was published with the frontpiece containing a picture and an exhaustive biographical and achievement sketch of our guest of honor.

Believing I am justified in giving everyone present here tonight credit the ability to read, deters me from reviewing the contents of this revealing report.

When a lawyer stands up in argument court and proceeds to read to the Court his brief of the case, it comes as sort of an affront because we assume the lawyer is taking the position that either the judge is so unlearned that he cannot read, or that the brief is the work of somebody else and the lawyer is taking the Court's time to inform himself about the case.

Therefore, I leave the record as it is written, as it is a proud record which requires no embellishment and ask your indulgence but for a moment of some more personal observations of our guest of honor which I have come to know after more than 150 lengthy and sometimes heated deliberations by the Board of Trustees in session regularly convened.

My admiration and respect for our guest of honor tonight flows not from one source, but like a great river which becomes great by reason of the many tributaries which flow into it.

A profound commentator on Washington said, "He was great not because of his talents, but because he possessed the character which made his talents trusted."

It was a favorite saying of mine whenever I ran for office: "No man is big enough for any office unless he is big enough to get along without that office." I meant that a man who can exist happily without the office he is seeking will, if he attains the office, be likely to discharge the duties of that office with courage, fidelity and efficiency. Sometimes an office or position gives a man an opportunity to prove his greatness, but his real greatness is in himself and not in the office or position he occupies.

Our guest tonight could worthily fill any position and I know that he appraises more highly than the position he holds, the respect and esteem of his fellowmen which he possesses in such full measure.

Harvey Andruss is and has been an educator and administrator, but he has been much more. His vigor, hopes and vision have been centered on this institution and to bring about the reality of his dreams, he has been an accountant, an architect, a landscape gardener, a painter, a lawyer, a banker, a public relations director, a real politician, and above all, a most devoted worker for his institution.

Never once in all these years has he failed to have his agenda ready for the board, with prompt and courteous explanations of his plans and dreams and then the courage and ability to carry them through even though it required many trips to our state capitol and protracted arguments with the powers that be, but he somehow got the job done.

There is no substitute for hard work and when one believes in his cause like our guest has always believed, there is no room to pussyfoot. We respect a person who studies his plan thoroughly and who, when he comes to a conclusion, states and fights for that conclusion unhesitating. The general who equivocates and hesitates is generally lost. I have read in a military book that, "A general who makes a wrong decision, but who carries it out with vigor and energy, is far superior to a general who hesitates."

My experience with Dr. Andruss has been that after he thoroughly studies his plan of attack and comes to a conclusion he maintains it with vigor and persuasiveness, however always retaining his gentlemanly conduct and fairness.

In honoring Dr. Andruss tonight, we might feel that we are honoring ourselves, because we might say we all helped in one way or another even though to a much less degree, but our real purpose tonight is to pay tribute to and say "thank you" to the one who deserves the real praise, without forgetting, however, that tonight we honor Mrs. Andruss also. She has contributed greatly to her husband's success. Probably the only regret Dr. Andruss has for the many laborious days and nights he has given to his institution is that these hours deprived him of just that many hours of Mrs. Andruss' companionship. I am sure that the honors he receives he gladly shares with his wife because she helped him earn them.

Dr. Andruss is a candid man, ever true to himself and never false to anyone. He does not tread the dark and winding ways of intrigue; one also knows where to find him. Being a man of genuine ability himself, the ability of others never excites in him either envy or enmity. He would never attempt to raise his own mental or moral stature by belittling others.

No matter how absurd or how obvious the answer to a board member's question may be, he always says, "Now, that's a good question" and at once proceeds with a willing and plausible explanation.

It must have been this kind of man Emerson had in mind when he wrote, "Oh, the comfort, the inexpressible comfort of feeling safe with a person—having neither to weigh thought nor measure words, but pouring them all right out just as they are chaff and grain together, certain that a faithful hand will take and sift them, keep what is worth keeping and with the breath of kindness blow the rest away."

In the presence of Dr. Andruss, one feels that he can "think out loud with safety." Confidence reposed in him is never betrayed. His accurate sense of life's values is a blessed virtue and the honor given him tonight is truly justly deserved.

There are many other things I would like to mention if time permitted, such as the artist, portrait, and other fine attributes and traits of character of our guest which I have left unmentioned, but I feel it is now time for me to join with all those present in saying, "Thank you, Dr. Andruss, and our very best wishes in the years to come."

'EVER TRUE'

The Bloomsburg State College has ten thousand living graduates. The addresses of 2,500 are unknown. The active membership of the General Alumni Association is about 1,250 or one-eighth of the total number of Alumni. These figures present a tremendous challenge.

The purpose of an Alumni Association is twofold; First, it exists to preserve our ties to the College and to our classmates; second, it provides a channel through which, in an organized way, the Alumni express their loyalty to the institution in which they pursued their undergraduate studies and prepared themselves for the various professions in which they are now engaged.

The Alumni Association of the Bloomsburg State College is a corporation chartered under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. All official business is transacted by a Board of Directors, two or three of whom are elected annually, at the general meeting of the Association on Alumni Day. The Board elects its officers from its own number.

The charter provides that active membership in the Association shall consist of those who pay the annual dues, now set at three dollars per year. Active members have the right to vote at the general meeting, and receive the Alumni Quarterly.

This issue of the Quarterly is being sent to all B.S.C. graduates for whom we have correct addresses. The purpose is to acquaint as many as possible of the Alumni with some of the projects through which all graduates can show that

"Years to come will find us ever True to Bloomsburg still."

The Board of Directors has set three goals for the coming year:

1. One thousand additional members.

The following are the dues:

One year	-----	$ 3.00
Three years	-----	7.50
Five years	-----	10.00
Life	-----	35.00

2. $1400 to cover Bloomsburg's share in the Council of Alumni Associations of the Pennsylvania State Colleges.

This is an organization of the fourteen state-owned teacher-training institutions in Pennsylvania. It has an office in Harrisburg, and through as many avenues of publicity as possible, is working for more favorable legislation by the State Legislature. The organization has been in existence for a little over a year, and its influence is beginning to be felt.

3. $3500 for books for the college library.

B.S.C. will soon be available as a center for graduate study, leading to the degree of Master of Science in Education. The donation of money by the Alumni Association will make funds available immediately for the purchase of books that will provide a library adequate to meet the needs of graduate study.

It is hoped that the day will come when these and other worthy projects can be supported wholly by annual contributions from the Alumni. All issues of the Quarterly could then be sent to all B.S.C. graduates, and the annual payment of dues could be abolished.

It should be realized that there are many worth-while activities for which no State money is available. If we as Alumni contribute to the

DR. ANDRUSS HONORED FOR LEADERSHIP IN TWO DECADES

Two hundred guests were present Tuesday evening, March 15, at a testimonial dinner held in the College Commons to honor President Harvey A. Andruss, who has completed twenty years of service as head of the Bloomsburg State College.

Among the guests present at the dinner were State College Presidents, State Senators and officials of the Department of Public Instruction, present and former members of the faculty, and present and former members of the Board of Trustees. The affair was sponsored by the College Faculty Association. Details of the evening's program were handled by Mrs. Margaret McCern, president of the Association, assisted by a committee of the faculty.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of a portrait of Dr. Andruss painted by Niccolo Cortiglia, of Wilkes-Barre. Dr. Kimber C. Kuster, Chairman of the Department of Science and Mathematics, presented the portrait to Judge C. W. Kreisher, President of the Board of Trustees. Judge Kreisher, in his response, spoke of the achievements of Dr. Andruss during his tenure of the Board of Trustees. He stated that Dr. Andruss has always been an educator and an administrator whose hopes and vigor have always centered in this institution. "The honor we pay him tonight," he said, "is an honor justly deserved."

Dr. Donald F. Maietta, Director of Special Education, presented a written testimonial of the Faculty Association which attested Dr. Andruss' dedication to education.

Dr. Francis B. Haas, former president of the College and twice Superintendent of Public Instruction, said in his remarks: "Bloomsburg State College has that intangible something called spirit and has evidenced it through the twenty years of leadership and service under Dr. Andruss."

Representing Governor David L. Lawrence, Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Superintendent of Public Instruction, congratulated Dr. Andruss for providing leadership to both community and college. "In this period of transition and the extension of educational services," he said, "there is no time for complacency. Much will be expected of college leadership and in this great adventure, President and Mrs. Andruss will share."

In his response, Dr. Andruss said: "This is an emotional high point in my life. If I had a wish tonight, I would wish for a continuance of the things we have had at Bloomsburg for the past twenty years."

Guests included members of the Board of Presidents of State Colleges, Dr. and Mrs. I. L. DeFrancesco, Kutztown; Dr. and Mrs. Richard T. Parsons, Lock Haven; Dr. and Mrs. H. LaRue FRAIN, West Chester; Dr. and Mrs. Leroy Koehler, East Stroudsburg; Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Heiges, Shippensburg.

Also present were Senator and Mrs. Zehnder H. Confair; Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff; Miss Lois Bryner, Danville, president of the Montour County Alumni; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hilday, Columbia County Alumni.

Among those introduced were members of the board of trustees, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Berninger, Mifflinville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thornton, Shamokin; Mr. and Mrs. John Shuman, Bloomsburg; Carl Fleckenstine, Orangeville, and former members, Mr. and Mrs. W. Clair Hilday, Bloomsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl V. Wise, Berwick.

The invocation was given by Boyd F. Buckingham and the welcome was by Mrs. Margaret E. McCern, president of the Faculty Association, and dinner music was provided by a college musical group, the D-5's.

Howard Fenstermaker, master of ceremonies, read congratulatory messages from Mrs. Lucille Baker, Whittier, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Andruss, Jr., Judge Bernard J. Kelley, Philadelphia; Henry Klonower, retired official of the State Department of Public Instruction; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hausknecht, Vero Beach, Fla.; Edward Reams, Whittier, Calif.; Mrs. Pearl Mason Keller, Boston, and Alice Johnston, Albuquerque, N. M.

The Slater Food Service contributed to the success of the affair. Tables were beautifully decorated in red and white with red, white and peppermint carnations in milk glass. Floral centerpieces were provided by Dillons in red, white and gold.

support of these activities year after year, we can help to make our Alma Mater B.S.C. the outstanding teacher-training institution in Pennsylvania.

If 7500 B.S.C. graduates become members of the Alumni Association, we shall have the strongest Alumni group in the State. We shall also have available an annual budget of $22,500 which will be enough to finance all of these projects of the Association, and provide funds for many more.

You will find an envelope attached to the middle pages of this issue of the Quarterly. The least we can do is to become an active member of the Association. Any contributions over and above the amount of the annual dues will be greatly appreciated, and will enable us to say, even more proudly than ever before:

"I AM A GRADUATE OF BLOOMSBURG!"

Ask your Alumni friends if they have received this issue of the Quarterly. If they have not, tell them to send their correct address to the Bloomsburg State College, Office of the President, Bloomsburg, Pa.

MID-YEAR COMMENCEMENT

Dr. Howard E. Row, assistant superintendent, State Department of Public Instruction, Delaware, delivered the commencement address on Thursday, January 28, at the Bloomsburg State College.

A native of Millersburg, Pa., Dr. Row earned degrees at the Shippensburg State Teachers College, the Pennsylvania State University, and Teachers College, Columbia University. Following military service during World War II, he taught for nearly half a decade in the public secondary schools of Pennsylvania, served for three years as field consultant in citizenship education for the Citizenship Education Project of Columbia University, was executive secretary of the Delaware State Education Association from 1953-55, and has held his present position since 1955.

During his work at Columbia University, Dr. Row worked with teachers, administrators, and public school secondary students in nearly half the states in our nation. A major portion of his work as executive secretary of the D. S. E. A., included legislative liaison and leadership for the kind of citizen activities which teachers become involved through their professional associations.

In the course of his professional activities, Dr. Row has had extensive experience in the organization and conduct of workshops in which teachers and administrators prepared actual teaching materials. He headed a recently completed two-year study in Delaware which resulted in the publication of a new document "The Handbook for Secondary Schools." The study also produced a system for the evaluation of junior and senior high schools, and Dr. Row is the chief director and coordinator for this activity.

In October, 1959, Dr. Row joined a group of 30 American school administrators who toured four North European countries, and spent an additional day in Russia. The latter tour included visits to more than twenty educational institutions where the group sat in classrooms to observe actual teaching procedures, methods, and materials. Dr. Row returned to the U.S.A. with many notes, references, a library of Soviet textbooks, and many valuable experiences.

Since his return, he has published an article in the Delaware School Journal, "We Were There—A Look at Soviet Schools." His article and recent speeches have not been filled with praise for the teaching methods and procedures of the Soviet Schools nor of the materials they use. He does indicate, however, there is a commitment to education in the Soviet Union that might well be carefully observed and imitated by parents, teachers, and students in the American schools.

Dr. Row is a member of numerous professional and honorary education organizations at both the state and national levels. He also serves as a member of the Delaware Advisory Committee of the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and as a member of the Commission on Secondary Schools of the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

"Life in the Soviet Union today is a choiceless Society, but a dedicated and determined one," said Dr. Howard E. Row at the commencement exercises. A capacity audience in Carver Hall saw seventy-nine receive degrees, a record number for mid-winter commencement.

Dr. Row told the graduating seniors that the Soviet system is geared to producing loyal Socialists or Communist members.

He emphasized that that type of education is not what we want in the United States to perpetuate our Democratic form of government. He challenged the graduates to dedicate themselves to teach and live within the framework of our Society. He pointed out that in the Soviet program of education, it is the teacher, not the pupil, who is charged with failing.

The teacher's responsibility is to help each child to adapt within the range of the child's ability.

The problem of choice extends also to the lack of electives in the Soviet program of education and to the lack of choice of individuals after they have completed their education.

The program opened with a Scripture reading by James Peck, Boyertown, President of the Class of 1960.

Dr. Andruss welcomed the group, and reminded them that this would be the last commencement and the last degrees granted to graduates of a State Teachers College in Pennsylvania. Following Dr. Row's address, President Andruss presented certificates to Carol Greene, Williamsport; Lorraine Morlock, Cornwell Heights; Lorraine Yeager, Easton, and Dolores Panizita, Pittston. These students had been previously honored by being named in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." He also presented a key to Miss Morlock for outstanding service during the past four years to the college community. Norman L. Hilgar, faculty advisor to the class, participated in the presentation of the awards.

Members of the class who completed their requirements for graduation this semester were presented by Dean Hoch for degrees conferred by President Andruss.

President Andruss reminded the graduates and members of the audience that they should be careful when they evaluate or compare our society. He said we must remember, "people, who are living doing, and teaching things today, were trained thirty years ago."

Looking to the future he said that the change of name of the college will probably be attended by other changes. "In this respect, we (the college) must remember that we are creatures of our creator—the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." He commended the class and challenged them to measure up to the potential which they had

VINCENT PRICE AT COLLEGE

Vincent Price, celebrated star of stage, screen, radio and television, was featured in a dramatic presentation at the Bloomsburg State College on Friday, March 11, 1960. Mr. Price was the first outstanding and nationally known artist to be presented at the college under the auspices of the Endowed Artist and Lecture Fund which was created nearly a year ago.

The program, "Three American Voices," included a rich and varied dramatic entertainment from the works of three great American artists whose unique artistic vision electrified the world. They were: Walt Whitman, America's first truly universal poet whose verse launched a new era in poetic art; James A. McNeill Whistler, the great American painter whose artistic example and satirical writings stirred Europe and did much to cause a revolution in the art of painting; Tennessee Williams, our internationally admired playwright whose "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" have been performed all over the globe, and who has opened up new realms of feeling and expression in the dramatic arts.

The Endowed Artist and Lecture Fund was established originally by a $1500 gift from Mrs. Verna E. Jones, of Millville, New Jersey, in memory of her late husband, Daniel J. Jones. Both Mrs. Jones and her husband were alumni of Bloomsburg. Since the original gift, others have been added by Kappa Delta Pi fraternity, the Class of 1959, the Day Men's Association, and the Community Activities Fund. At the present time, there is more than $7000 in the fund. It is hoped that future contributions from organizations, friends, and alumni of Bloomsburg will make possible the presentation of such outstanding programs each year.

PRESIDENT ANDRUSS SIGNS LAST STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE DIPLOMA

With the January, 1960, graduating class, the issuance of diplomas under the State Teachers College Seal was terminated.

President Harvey A. Andruss signed seventy-nine of these diplomas, bringing the total number of State Teachers College graduates to more than 6,000.

During the past thirty-two years, the total number of graduates from the State Normal School and the State Teachers College is in excess of 12,000.

Doctor Andruss became President in 1939, and began signing diplomas for the first time in 1940; during the past twenty years, the college has granted 3,331 Bachelor of Science in Education Degrees in the fields of Business Education, Elementary Education, Secondary Education, and Special Education for the Mentally Retarded or for Speech Correction.

This includes a five-year war period when civilian enrollments were at a very low point, and while the average of twenty years is something in excess of 150 per year, recent graduating classes are more nearly 300 than 200.

It is estimated that there are at least 10,000 living Alumni of the Bloomsburg State Normal School and the Bloomsburg State Teachers College; however, at the present time less than 7,500 active addresses are listed.

An attempt has been made during the past year to reach all graduates—some 1,200 to 1,300 in number—of the Department of Business Education of the last thirty years, and attempts will be made to bring the present 7,500 addresses more nearly up to date to the total of 10,000 living Alumni.

Maynard Ferguson, brilliant young trumpet artist, presented a two-hour jazz concert at the Bloomsburg State College on Wednesday, March 23, 1960. The concert, featuring Ferguson and his 12-piece orchestra in Bloomsburg's Centennial Gymnasium, was sponsored by the Community Government Association of the College.

BUSY YEAR

Under a brand new name, "Bloomsburg State College" rolls into the decade of the "Fabulous Sixties" in the midst of already underway physical changes to the economic benefit of Bloomsburg.

Over two and a half millions will be expended in projects scheduled at the College this biennium, while the college brings a regular, yearly income to the community of nearly two millions.

In addition, the college contributions to the educational and cultural growth of the area, are items hard to measure in dollars and cents.

Looking ahead in 1960 one can expect another increase in the number of students, faculty members, and non-instructional employees; the construction of more buildings on the campus; approval to offer programs of study leading to graduate degrees; the completion of a land purchase to enlarge the campus—re-accreditation by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education; curriculum revision and changes in certification to provide more breadth and depth in curriculum offerings and requirements.

With an enrollment of 1600 students in September, 1959, (an increase of 222 over the previous year), the college will bring nearly $2,000,000 into Bloomsburg in 1960, exclusive of current and future payrolls for construction and renovation of the college plant. The enrollment will increase to 1750 in September, 1960, with an increase in faculty from 82 to 100.

Nearly 400 men and 100 women students, who could not be housed in campus dormitories, have found living accommodations in the town of Bloomsburg. This number seems likely to remain stable for several years or more, for even though new dormitories are built on the campus, increases in total enrollment will continue the demand for housing in the town.

The College looks forward to continuing its support of some and beginning its support of other organizations and projects in the community, including the Columbia County Historical Society, the Municipal Authority (for sewage disposal), the Bloomsburg Hospital, the Civic Music Association, and the Bloomsburg Public Library.

One of the very bright spots will be the completion of William Boyd Sutliff Hall, which will provide six modern science laboratories and eight modern class rooms and machine rooms for Business Education. Expanded and centralized offices, clinics, and other areas for Special Education may also be completed.

The laboratories will enhance the current programs in science and also provide facilities to offer a program in Earth and Space Science.

Bloomsburg State College will continue to serve as a cultural center for the area. This year, the amount of $1500 was given to the Civic Music Association, which exceed the amount paid for memberships by residents of the town. The annual Education Conference, Sales Rally, Business Education Contest, Fashion Show, and May Day will continue—bigger and better than ever before.

With increases in enrollment, the College has added two varsity sports to the calendar—swimming and golf.

In terms of building projects, the following are nearing completion or will be completed in the 1969-61 biennium: Sutliff Hall, $571,063; New North Hall, $729,090; extension of utility lines, $70,186; Special Education facilities, $84,755; architects fees and equipment for buildings, $218,264; land purchases, $125,000; parking lot, $20,504; total, $1,818,862. Governor Lawrence's budget also included the following items for 1959-61; addition to heating plant and utilities, $540,000; replacement of water mains, $80,000; architects fees, $62,000; minor repairs, $50,000, total, $732,000. The Governor's budget for this biennium included, therefore, a total of $2,550,862 for projects at Bloomsburg State College.

NAVY HALL

A ground floor area in Navy Hall will soon be converted into facilities for special education at Bloomsburg State College. There will be acoustical plaster ceilings, painted masonry block partitions, and tile floors.

The project includes construction of two large classrooms separated by a folding wood partition, six clinics, and two offices.

These facilities will be used in demonstration teaching of speech therapy and audiology. They also will serve the community for speech and hearing problems of children two years of age and over. The design permits flexibility and adaptability to meet changes of program and techniques.

Provisions will be made for future installation of an audiometric testing room and equipment. One way vision glass will permit interchangeable observations between classrooms and clinics.

The estimated cost of this program in the state, which includes projects at the Pennsylvania State University and at 11 state colleges is $1,128,000 for construction. The allocation for Bloomsburg is $60,000.

The program of construction has been undertaken by the General State Authority for the Department of Public Instruction to provide the 12 state institutions with special facilities for the education of students specializing in the instruction of blind, deaf, crippled and mentally retarded children, numbering about 170,000 in Pennsylvania.

COLLEGE BUDGET OF SIX OR SEVEN MILLIONS FOR 1959-1960

According to legislation recently signed by Governor David Lawrence, the General State Authority will construct dormitories on the campuses of the fourteen State Colleges of Pennsylvania to cost a total amount of $35,000,000.

The plan is to increase student room rent by not more than $3 a week and to use this increase in rental to pay for a part of the total cost of the dormitory. It is estimated that $19,000,000 will come from these increased rentals over a period of thirty years.

If each dormitory is supposed to cost, when equipped, approximately $1,000,000, this will provide for thirty-five dormitories for the fourteen institutions, and will mean that seven of the colleges will have three dormitories and the other seven will have two dormitories.

Although no specific allocation for dormitories has been made to Bloomsburg as yet, there is a provision of $50,000 for extension of parking lots, renewal of water lines and general alterations. Since the parking lots have already been constructed, while the legislature was in session, and the water lines have been covered under an additional appropriation by the General State Authority, it is estimated that the $50,000 is for General Alterations at the College.

In addition to these appropriations, $540,000 has been allocated to the General State Authority to construct an addition to the heating plant and to replace utilities on the college campus at Bloomsburg, and another amount of $80,000 has been designated to replace water mains.

If Bloomsburg gets only two new dormitories, the total amount of appropriations made to the college for plant expansion will amount to $2,670,000. However, if Bloomsburg is granted three dormitories, this amount will be increased by $1,000,000, and will mean that in the next two years $3,670,000 will be used for the building of dormitories and the increase in the heating plant to take care of this expansion.

In the meantime, another sixty

NEW DISPLAY RACK

Miss Elinor R. Keefer, Bloomsburg State College Librarian, announced that the college has received from two Bloomsburg business men, a new display rack, plastic covers, and two-year subscriptions to fourteen different periodicals. The new rack was selected to match the general decor of library furnishings, and has been placed in a location which makes the magazines easily accessible to students, for reading in the Library. The number of variety of magazines will provide college students with a wide assortment of reading materials on interests and hobbies and will supplement those already subscribed to by the library.

The donors, Clifford H. Schnering and Ray E. Lehr, offered this gift to the Library in appreciation of the good relationships and cooperation which exist between the college and the community.

The gift included subscriptions to the following magazines: Look, Life, True, Glamour, Vogue, Time, Esquire, Hi Fi, U. S. Camcra, Mademoiselle, Motion Picture, Coronet, Sports Afield and Gourmet.

thousand dollars will be used to revamp the basement of Navy Hall for Special Education Clinics, and there remains over $100,00 for land purchases.

This is the largest total amount ever allocated to the Bloomsburg State College in addition to the regular operating budget. In fact, it is twice any previous amounts contemplated.

When the operating budget of $3,113,560 is added to the amounts previously listed for construction, the amount totals $5,943,560 for $6,943,560 for 1959-1961, depending upon the number of dormitories to be constructed.

The future of the Bloomsburg State College, so far as its function is concerned, has not yet been determined, but these changes will mean that there will be facilities for a larger number of students than are now enrolled. It is expected that the enrollment will reach 2,000 by 1962.

3-DAY EVALUATION STUDY AT COLLEGE

An eleven-member committee of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools came to Bloomsburg Sunday, February 21, to begin a three-day study and evaluation of the instructional program and the operation of the campus plant at the Bloomsburg State College.

The committee, headed by Dr. Harry W. Porter, president of the State University College of Education, Fredonia, New York, had a three-fold purpose: evaluation of the present undergraduate program for continuing accreditation; evaluation of a request, made by the College, seeking approval for offering graduate work and granting the Master's degree at Bloomsburg; evaluation to establish reciprocity arrangements with colleges, in other states, approved by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education. Visits by the committee occur every ten years. The committee last visited the Bloomsburg campus in 1950.

In addition to Dr. Porter, the committee included: Dr. Phyllis Bartlett, Professor of English, Queens College, Flushing, N. Y.; Dr. Kenneth A. Browne, Dean of Instruction and Acting President, State Teachers College, Towson, Md.; Dr. Catherine Coleman, director, Bureau of Teacher Education, Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg; Dr. Francis M. Crowley, Dean Emeritus, School of Education, Fordham University, New York; Dr. Stanton B. Langworthy, Professor of Education, chairman of the Education Department, Glassboro State College, Glassboro, N. J.; Dr. Edwin L. Martin, president, Trenton State College, Trenton, N. J.; Dr. Margaret Neuber, associate professor of special education, Pennsylvania State University, University Park; Dr. Helmer Webb, librarian, Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.; Dr. Sidney Wertimer, associate dean and associate professor of economics, Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y.; Dr. Elizabeth Vanderveer, professor of business education, Montclair State College, Upper Montclair, N. J.

AGREEMENT WITH LIBRARY

The Bloomsburg State College has recently entered into an agreement with the Bloomsburg Public Library whereby the College agrees to pay the Library at a rate of $1.00 per student per annum, based on its enrollment as of October 15 of the preceding year for the services that the Library is continuing to provide to an increasing number of College students.

This cooperative agreement has been under consideration for many years, but it was not until recently that the Department of Justice and the Department of Public Instruction have authorized the College to set up this type of cooperation with the Library.

This is only one of a series of events of this type beginning with the payment of a pro rata share of the cost of the Sewage Disposal Plant to the amount of $35,000, and the yearly rentals that are paid, based on the change in population of the College.

This year the contribution made by the Community Government Association to the Bloomsburg Civic Music Association was increased to $1,500 which is 57% of the total budget, and the contribution of $1,000 for the purchase of the Ambulance has been supplemented by a yearly payment of $300.

The Hospital Room sponsored by the Board of Trustees, faculty and students of the Bloomsburg Normal School, continued to be redecorated and refurnished by the students, faculty, and Board of Trustees of the Bloomsburg State College.

The plans for additional dormitories for the local College, according to President Harvey A. Andruss, will not be sufficient to accommodate the expanding enrollment. It is estimated that there will always be a need for four or five hundred students to live in the Town of Bloomsburg. At the present time there are almost 400 men and 90 women living in rooms and apartments in the Town. This number will need to be further increased in the school year beginning September, 1960, and will continue until new dormitories, provided by recent Legislation, have been completed.

It is estimated that the College brings $2,000,000 to the Community of Bloomsburg each year.

Populationwise, it should be remembered that in 1960 as it was tabulated for the first time in the census of 1950, students of the college living in dormitories on the campus and in homes in Bloomsburg will be counted as citizens of Bloomsburg for census purposes.

GRADUATE DEGREE

More than five hundred college graduates have expressed interest in enrolling for courses leading to a graduate degree at the Bloomsburg State College. This report was given to President Harvey A. Andruss by a faculty committee, headed by Professor Clayton Hinkel. The committee is conducting a survey to determine the number of people who are interested in enrolling for graduate courses at Bloomsburg when the proposed program is approved by the State Council of Education.

Since mid-September, nearly 825 teachers-in-service have reported to the college that they are interested in working for graduate degrees in Elementary, Special, Business, and Secondary Education. In the latter division, inquiries have been received concerning available graduate courses in Mathematics, Science, Languages, Social Studies and English.

Subsequent reports from Mr. Hinkel's committee will be announced at future dates, indicating additional numbers of individuals who are interested in the program. In the meantime, the committee prepared this and other data for the February, 1960, visit of a committee of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

TEACHERS' CONFERENCE AT B.S.C. ON OCTOBER 24

The Thirteenth Annual Conference for Teachers and Administrators in Business, Elementary, Secondary, and Special Education was held on the campus of the College on Saturday, October 24.

Dr. Dorothy M. Simon, technical assistant to the president of Avco Manufacturing Corporation, research and advanced development section, was the featured speaker during the general session in Carver Auditorium. Dr. Simon discussed "Space and the Citizen of Tomorrow."

The daughter of two teachers, Missouri-born Dr. Simon earned a Bachelor of Arts degree at Southwest Missouri State College in 1940 with an all "A" record. In 1957, she became the first woman, in the history of her Alma Mater, to be awarded the "Outstanding Alumnus Award." She earned the Doctor of Philosophy degree at the University of Illinois, majoring in chemistry and physics, and spent a year with internationally famous scientists at Cambridge University, doing work related to physical chemistry and the theory of turbulence.

She has made research contributions in the areas of aerothermochemistry, chemical kinetics, thermodynamics, and radiochemistry. She has worked in DuPont's pioneering research division at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory (Tennessee), at the Argonne National Laboratory (Chicago), at the Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory (Cleveland), and the Magnolia Petroleum Company (Texas). Since 1956, she has been with the Avco Corporation, which has pioneered re-entry research for the Titan and Minuteman missiles.

Registration in each curriculum division began at 9:00 a. m. Demonstration lessons and discussions were presented from 9:30-10:45 a. m.

Following the general session in Carver Auditorium, a luncheon was held in the College Commons.

The increasing interest in the conference and its objectives has been highlighted by increases in attendance each year.

PROGRAM OF EXPANSION

Looking into the program of expansion, especially if the State Colleges will have their curriculum broadened to include courses other than those that prepare for teaching, the trustees of the local institution have reported that the present campus of sixty acres will accommodate approximately 3,000 students.

If the broader program is established, then consideration will be given to the purchase of the real estate of the Bloomsburg Country Club.

The present campus plan provides for a student body of 2,000 in 1970. Since this figure will be approximated in 1960, as an enrollment of 1,750 is expected next year, the setting of a higher enrollment figure must be given attention.

In relation to this the Board of Trustees must consider the planned area on the present campus, possible additions to this area and the possibility of purchase of other areas in or near the Main and Penn Streets location.

Although the state has announced a new policy of building dormitories and classrooms of a height that will make passenger elevators unnecessary, the present campus will accommodate around 3,000.

It may be necessary to use the two grass plots on the south side of Second Street, across from Waller Hall, for two women's dormitories.

This would allow one additional men's dormitory to be constructed between the dormitory now being completed and the College Commons, or dining hall, and another to be in the area of Science Hall and to include the site of that building.

With regard to land expansion in the likelihood that the curriculum will be broadened, it was reported there is approximately $100,000 available at this time for land purchase.

It has been reported for some time that the local institution has been giving consideration to purchase of the Country Club property and it is understood some consideration will be given by the directors of the club for sale of the

FERRIS INSTITUTE NAMES "DORM" FOR DR. HALLISY

Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, Michigan, now has in use a modern dormitory which accommodates 264 students and is named in memory of Dr. Richard R. Hallisy, a former member of the faculty at the College here, where for five years he was director of the Department of Business Education.

Dr. Hallisy left Bloomsburg to become head of the department of business at Ferris and while his time on that campus was brief because of his untimely death, he played such a prominent role in the life of the institution that the new dormitory was named as a memorial to him.

The late educator and his family made a number of friends during their stay in Bloomsburg from which they moved in the early part of this decade.

Mrs. Hallisy is now the director of scholarships and placement at Ferris Institute. Her son Tom is married and is attending Ferris. The daughter Jean is a junior at Central Michigan and the youngest child, Kathy, is now in the sixth grade.

Dr. Hallisy in the years he was at Bloomsburg served several seasons as assistant football coach as well as directing the Department of Business Education.

At the present time, with an enrollment of approximately 1,600, there are 500 students housed on campus, an equal number with living quarters in the town and 600 commuting from their homes to the campus each school day.

AWARDED DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF EDUCATION

Bruce E. Adams, Associate Professor of Geography at the Bloomsburg State College, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Education during commencement exercises at the Pennsylvania State University on Sunday, January 31, 1960. The degree was conferred on Mr. Adams by Dr. Eric A. Walker, President of Penn State.

Dr. Adams completed his degree work with a major area of study in geography and minor areas in education and public school administration. His thesis included data describing "Geographic Education in the Public and Parochial Schools of a Four-County Sampling of Pennsylvania."

In 1941, he was appointed to the faculty of Canton High School to teach geography and social studies. A year later, he entered the United States Army Air Force, and served as a Photo Intelligence Officer with the Eighth Air Force in the European Theater of Operations in the British Isles, Belgium, France, Luxembourg, and Germany until December, 1945.

Following the completion of his military service, he returned to the Canton High School faculty, leaving in 1949 to accept a position at the Roosevelt Junior High School, Williamsport, as a teacher of geography. He has been on the faculty of the Bloomsburg State College since September, 1956.

ANNUAL FASHION SHOW

The Fourteenth Annual Fashion Show was presented on Thursday, March 31, 1960, at the Bloomsburg State College, and the planning committee brought forth one of best productions since the annual series began. A carefully planned arrangement of costumes and stage-setting provided a colorful and pleasant evening for the audience.

A modeling staff of twenty college women and a similar number of children and pre-teen youngsters from the Town of Bloomsburg and the Benjamin Franklin Campus Laboratory School modeled costumes and accessories provided by eight Bloomsburg merchants: The Dianne Shop, Arcus', Deisroth's Department Store, Harry Logan, Snyder's Millinery, Ruth's Corset Shop, W. T. Grant Company, and Racusin's.

Mr. Robert Ulmer, Head of the College Art Department, headed the joint student-faculty committee which designed and built the stage set used for the production.

Two veteran members of the college staff of models acted as student coordinators, Sally Reifenthal, a senior Business Education student from Forty Fort served as head coordinator, and Elaine Reifsnnyder, a junior Business Education student from Manatowny served as her assistant. Both aided in the selection of costumes, the preparation of the script, and did the narrating while the show was in progress. Barbara Sherts, a sophomore Business Education student from Millersville, acted as children's coordinator. These three also headed the group of 20 college models which included: Lois Carpenter, Bloomsburg; Sandra Clarke, Bloomsburg; Virginia Hardy, Kingston; Nikki Scheno, Berwick; Jacquelin Schwatt, Springfield; Marjorie Ginnick, South Williamsport; Judith Goss, Glenside; Barrie Iveson, Kingston; Carol Mazza, Indiana; Shelby Buhrman, Haddon Heights; Nancy Engel, Philadelphia; Mary Ferner, Lavelle; Carol Jones, Plymouth; Carol Bowman, Millville; Christine Harnish, Wernersville; Nancy McFerran, Willow Grove; Marty Moyer, Pottsville.

E. H. NELSON '11

It is with real pleasure that this timely article by Doctor Francis B. Haas, former President of the College and later Superintendent of Public Instruction, is made available for our Alumni Body.

It has always seemed to me that in our form of government it is helpful to think of the College as a Community organized for learning. By organized for learning, I am thinking of the College as an institution that has as its ideals, making available developmental opportunity for all our citizens to the limits of their capacities, spiritual—moral—intellectual—physical. However, a College such as Bloomsburg represents a special kind of community. It is special in the sense that it must assume the responsibility for preparing teachers for the schools of our democracy. This means that when the faculty and the students are selected their leadership potentials must be evaluated. In other words, faculty leadership must offer leadership opportunities for our future teachers. In final analysis the extent to which the college meets its obligations is directly related to the character of its graduates of the past, and to its future graduates as represented by the present student body.

This thought contemplates a continuity of that intangible, but real entity, that we call the spirit of the institution. Bloomsburg is the happy possessor of this quality as demonstrated by its faculties and its graduates of the past and by its present faculty and student body. For me this continuity of spirit is best represented by my good friend Dean Sutliff.

I remind the Alumni that as a tribute to him it published his "Alma Mater and Other Poems" and this made available in permanent form our finest picture of "The Spirit that is Bloomsburg." This spirit is revealed in the closing lines of "Alma Mater"—

"Here at 'Old Bloomsburg' dear to all
Where pleasant lot was cast
Amidst her friendly halls, recall
The days of youth, the happy past
And feel the thrill of present days
For here the friendly spirit stays."

I like the line "For here the friendly spirit stays" and I predict that recent legislation will offer even greater opportunities than have been available in the past. I congratulate President Andruss and the Faculty upon another great opportunity to demonstrate leadership service for our State and for our Nation. With no thought of minimizing our faults it is my firm conviction that our nation is great because of our educational system and not in spite of it as some of our critics appear to believe.

STATE COLLEGE
BLOOMSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA

Governor's Committee on Education

HARVEY A. ANDRUSS

Representing the fourteen State Colleges before the Governor's Committee on Education in Harrisburg, President Harvey A. Andruss of Bloomsburg State College spoke to Task Force 4, Teacher Education.

Doctor Andruss made certain proposals: first, those that would require legislation; and second, those that would require certain administrative changes under present legislation.

Dr. Andruss pointed out that higher education has now become a matter of concern in the nation, since many of the technological, economic and administrative advantages are dependent upon the best brains in the country, which are now being educated in our colleges.

Turning to teacher education and noting that Pennsylvania has a larger proportion of its total number of colleges engaged in this field than any other state in the union, Dr. Andruss noted that out of the total of eighty odd colleges, seventy have the authority to train teachers; however, ten colleges and universities train less than ten teachers each year, which means that they have the authority but do not carry out the function. Furthermore, eight of this group are not accredited by a Regional Association, and only eighteen of the seventy are accredited by the National Association for Accreditation of Teacher Education. These institutions are the fourteen State Colleges and the four large universities.

If higher education is a part of National policy and defense, then institutions educating teachers should meet the requirements for national accreditation and the Pennsylvania State Council of Education should require every institution, training teachers in Pennsylvania, to meet the requirements within ten years.

Among the other suggestions made by Dr. Andruss were the following:

1. The present State Council of Education should have its membership increased from nine to twenty - one members; two Councils within this body should be constituted, one with seven members for the Council on Elementary and Secondary Education, and another with seven members for the Council on Higher Education.

2. Legislation should be passed to instruct the Governor to fill within thirty or sixty days all vacancies which occur on the boards of trustees of State (Teachers) Colleges.

3. The Presidents of State Colleges, on nominations of boards of trustees, should receive their final appointment from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

4. The present boundary lines of the service areas, set up years ago to provide for examinations for Normal School Certificates, should be wiped out through passage of a law to repeal this section.

Speaking about the relations of State Colleges to certain Departments of State Government, with the exception of the Department of Public Instruction but dealing more particularly with the Department of Property and Supplies, there should be introduced again, a bill that passed the Senate but failed to pass the House last year. This bill provided that one-half of any funds, lapsed at the end of a biennium, should be credited to the next biennium. Dr. Andruss urged passage of this legislation, since one-half of the budgets of the State Colleges are paid by students for instruction and housing, and the amounts the students pay for these specific purposes should not be thrown into the general treasury to balance off shortages in other areas of State Government.

Another piece of Legislation was to have permitted State Colleges to purchase goods and services up to $500 and to have taken bids and awarded contracts for repairs and renovations not to exceed $12,000.

COLLEGE APPROVED FOR GRADUATE STUDIES

The Bloomsburg State College has been given approval by the Pennsylvania State Council of Education to grant the degree of Master of Education in the Elementary and Business fields, beginning in the summer of 1961.

Pursuant to this new expansion, a reference librarian will be added to the present four-member library staff when the fall semester begins in September, 1960, and additional expenditures will be made to increase the library holdings. Recently, the first payment on a contract, existing between Bloomsburg State College and the Bloomsburg Public Library, was made to compensate in part for the service rendered by the Bloomsburg Library to college students.

This approval comes to an institution which, for more than 90 years, has trained teachers for the elementary schools. Normal school graduates, as long ago as 1870, signed a document indicating their intention to teach in the public schools of Pennsylvania, and the state then paid fifty cents a week to defray the expenses of tuition and boarding. Business teachers have been educated at Bloomsburg for thirty years, since the department of commerce was begun by President Harvey A. Andruss in 1930. Bloomsburg is the first and only State College in Pennsylvania to have graduate work in business education.

Dr. Thomas B. Martin has been appointed Director of Graduate Studies and Business Education for the college year beginning on June 1, 1960, and will be responsible for developing policies, plans, curriculums, schedules, and instructional personnel for this new phase of college education.

As of the previous college year, 1959-1960, thirty-seven faculty members with the rank of professor or associate professor were available for assignments to teach graduate courses. Of this number, 19 held the Doctor's Degree and 16 held the Master's Degree. With the expansion of the faculty from 83 to 105, it is expected that the number of advanced degree holders will be greatly increased. At the time the college was re-accredited by the Middle States Association in February, 1960, there were 23 holders of the doctorate out of a total staff of 81; a graduate staff of 38 was then available, of which 22 held the Doctor's Degree.

Bloomsburg begins a new phase of the education of those who are entering the teaching profession. Five years of pre-service education were recognized in part by the new certification regulations which 12 semester hours of work for making a college certificate permanent and by the mandatory salary schedule which recognizes the holder of a Master's Degree by requiring salary increments of $400 in excess of those who hold the Bachelor's Degree.

During the past two and a half years, a faculty committee, headed by Clayton Hinkel, has made a continuing study to determine the number of people who are interested in taking courses leading to the granting of a Master's Degree at Bloomsburg. Replies were received from 1,420 of the total number contacted, and 1,020 persons indicated a desire to take graduate courses. There were 243 requests for graduate study in Elementary Education, 309 in Business Education, 374 in Secondary Education, and 98 in Special Education. The approval, given Bloomsburg by the State Council of Education, means that a graduate program may now

THE 1960 COMMENCEMENT

More than 2000 parents and friends of the Class of 1960 were present in Centennial Gymnasium on Sunday, May 29 to hear Dr. George Z. F. Bereday's Commencement address, "Education for Creative Action." Immediately following the address of the featured speaker, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State College, conferred the Bachelor of Science degree on the 236 Seniors who completed their requirements in May or will complete them during the summer sessions.

Dr. Bereday, Professor of Comparative Education at the Teachers College, Columbia University, was born in Poland in 1920 and joined the Polish Cavalry at the age of eighteen. As a member of the British Parachute Regiment, he commanded a Polish Battalion at the Battle of Arnhem, Holland in 1944 and was decorated with the Virtuti Militaria, Poland's highest military decoration. His education includes Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees in history from the University of Oxford, England, a Bachelor of Science degree in Sociology from the University of London, and a Doctor of Philosophy degree in Education from Harvard University. He became an American citizen in 1955, and he married Mary Hale Gillam of Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Dr. Bereday joined the faculty of the Teachers College in 1955, specializing in the study of foreign educational systems, particularly European education with major attention devoted to England and the Soviet Union. He is the editor of the "Comparative Education Review" and is joint editor of the "Yearbook of Education." Other works published under his co-editorship, include: "Liberal Traditions in Education," Harvard, 1958; "Public Education in America," Harper, 1958; "The Politics of Soviet Education," Praeger, 1960; "The Changing Soviet School," Houghton-Mifflin, 1960.

Dr. Bereday's previous positions included an executive post at the British Ministry of Education, a research post at the Russian Research Center at Harvard, and a teaching post at Boston College.

"Man asked God for the book and went on to rule the world because back of the book there is the teacher," Dr. Bereday told the members of the class.

"On one side we as teachers have been chastised for not teaching Americans about organized knowledge. On the other hand the stories of the ingenuity and the energy of the people of this nation are abundant."

The speaker listed a variety of incidents in which Americans have changed the drab into something colorful and attractive.

The educator said there is ingenuity in our school buildings, and in the experimental program in education in those buildings.

He urged the graduates to balance themselves, to be aware of the critics and to be able to say to every one, "Here is one country of the world where change is normal and lack of change is abnormal."

The speaker said he came to this country ten years ago as an immigrant from Poland and for five years have been an American citizen. He told the graduates "I feel that the United States is great as a nation because of our type of school system in which we have chosen to put our faith in every man. We do not allow ourselves to be so regulated and so systematized that there is no opportunity for change and growth. This is our strength.

"Most American parents and family members want the best for their children and this desire is not limited by the race, color, creed or wealth of the parent."

In answer to critics, he said he wanted to point out that too many people who want to run the schools do not have the knowledge and the background to suggest what is really good and worthwhile.

"Unfortunately, however, in addition to their ignorance many of these critics hold teachers in contempt. They are too apt, also, to suggest glib answers for the problems of education. Teachers as human beings suffer from the terrible temptations of trying to remold the world into the shape they like and think is best.

"We need teachers who are alive and stimulating," he asserted and reminded the graduates that what they see at eye level is never good enough. "Your actions are just as important in private life as they are in public life."

He decried the American who sits back and points to achievement rather than looking ahead to the many other things which can be done.

"Our aim as teachers is to use our talents to mold and to create."

The candidates for degrees were recognized at the commencement as the degrees were conferred by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president.

After the ceremonies the graduates in the various divisions went to designated places on the campus where the certificates were presented by the department heads.

This feature, new this year, gave a personal touch. It also allowed for the taking of photographs by parents and friends. Those in business education got their awards from Dr. Thomas B. Martin at Sutliff Hall; those in elementary education from Royce O. Johnson at Ben Franklin School, and those in secondary education from George Fike and in special education from Donald F. Maietta at the gymnasium.

Candidates for the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Education:

Gary Fisher Anderson, Jeanette Gail Andrews, Ilene M. Armitage, Boyd Eugene Arnold, Donald L. Bachman, Richard DeMott Ball, Maureen Jean Barber, Linda A. BACCALAUREATE SERMON

The Reverend Paul C. Empie, Executive Director of the National Lutheran Council, New York City, was the featured speaker during the Baccalaureate services at the Bloomsburg State College on Sunday, May 29 in Centennial Gymnasium.

Dr. Empie holds a number of key positions in Lutheran Cooperative Agencies on the National as well as International level. Since 1948, he has served in his present position directing the cooperative agency for eight Lutheran Church bodies and administering the far-flung program of relief, reconstruction, and inter-church aid for the U. S. A. committee for the Lutheran World Federation. For more than a decade, Dr. Empie has led Lutheran World Action, the National Lutheran Council's annual fund appeal which provides most of the financial support for Lutheran relief and rehabilitation activities throughout the world. He is also chairman of Lutheran Church Productions, Inc. and Lutheran Film Association which serves in arranging for suitable film productions.

In the interdenominational field, Dr. Empie serves on the Board of Trustees of Church World Service and as a member of the Executive Committee of the Division of Christian Life and Work of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America. He holds the office of Vice President of the American Immigration Conference and is a member of the Board of Directors of the U. S. Committee on Refugees.

In order to fulfill his responsibilities, Dr. Empie has traveled widely in the United States, Asia, Europe and South America. He is considered one of the best informed men in America today on the current world situation and the challenge at present to the reconciling ministry of the Christian Church. Since 1946, he has regularly made at least one extended trip abroad each year to inspect relief work and to attend numerous international conferences.

A graduate of Muhlenberg College and the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, he has been honored with the Doctor of Divinity degree from Muhlenberg College, a Doctor of Laws degree from Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, a Doctor of Theology degree from University of Goettingen, Germany, and a Doctor of Humanities degree from Hartwick College, Oneonta, New York.

Following his ordination in 1932, he organized and served as pastor for a Mission Church in Philadelphia, the Lutheran Church of the Prince of Peace. He then became Superintendent of the Lutheran Home in Germantown, Pennsylvania, served as Secretary of Benevolence of the Pennsylvania Ministerium from 1941 to 1944, after which he became Assistant Director of the National Lutheran Council.

A native of St. Johnsville, New York, he is the son of the late Dr. C. G. Empie, former pastor of the Luther Memorial Church, Baltimore, Maryland.

"Every Christian is odd; each is different for that for which he stands seems not to make any sense of all and even within organized Christianity much of our effort is involved in trying to make human sense out of Christian nonsense," Dr. Empie told the graduating class.

His theme was "Divine Nonsense For Victorious Living." The minister referred to Christ's advice to several people when He said, "Deny yourself. Take up your cross and follow me." The speaker observed, he, as a number of other people, believed that "deny yourself" meant going without something but actually it means giving up all right to yourself.

Dr. Empie said the philosophy of some people is that if you follow the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule you are practicing Christianity. This, he continued, is not so.

There are some people who think that when they pay their weekly contributions to the church it is like paying a premium on a long term, non-fire policy for hell.

"We go to a spiritual drug store, pay money and think we get power for victorious living." However, he pointed out, God cannot be manipulated like some kind of remote insurance agent.

Dr. Empie said the claims of Christianity to a uniqueness and superiority over other religions is being challenged in recent years. People of other religions point out that with the sword went the cross and that as the Christians became strong in a military and economic way they also spread Christianity.

Some underprivileged nations and people accept Christianity in the hope they can enjoy the standard of living we have, but now, as some of these nations are growing and prospering they no longer see or feel the need for Christianity.

"People of other nations are questioning whether Christians are peaceful and peace loving. These people emphasize that in recent years most wars have been started in the Christian world. Also, Christian nations dropped the first atomic bomb. Orientals and other peoples raise the question, 'Under these circumstances how can people of other religions accept Christ as the Prince of Peace?'"

The minister declared "In the Cross we find God's supreme revelation because the Cross makes sense in God's nonsensical way. The Cross means paying the price. Where people have paid the price they have realized the full significance of what God intended they should understand when Christ was crucified upon the Cross. God's nonsense, the way of the Cross, is the way of reconciliation and victorious livings."

be offered to the 552 prospective graduate students interested in Elementary and Business Education.

Additional surveys will now be made and careful planning will precede the offering of courses leading to the degree of Master of Education at the Bloomsburg State College.

IVY DAY CEREMONY

Jack Eberhart, son of the Rev. and Mrs. F. Leroy Eberhart, Williamstown, delivered the annual Ivy Day oration Wednesday, May 25, following the Senior Honor Assembly at the Bloomsburg State College. Mr. Eberhart has completed the requirements for certification in speech and hearing therapy in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. He has received the Bachelor of Science degree, and has accepted a teaching position as speech therapist for Montgomery County, Norristown.

A 1956 graduate of Williamstown High School, Mr. Eberhart began his studies in September of the same year at Bloomsburg. He has been a member of the Maroon and Gold Band for three years, a member of Sigma Alpha Eta fraternity three years, serving as president this year, and a member of Phi Sigma Pi fraternity for two years, serving as vice president this year. During his junior year he served as treasurer of the College Council and the Community Government Association and recently completed his duties as advertising manager of the 1960 Obit, the college yearbook.

In the fall of 1959 in recognition of his academic achievement, his service to the college, and his leadership in college activities, he was selected for inclusion in the national publication "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

"With emphasis being placed on Science and Mathematics, with people everywhere requesting a rebirth of culture, and with great demands for religion, teachers have an almost impossible task before them. To fulfill these demands successfully, there are certain ingredients that a teacher needs . . . a moderate size wishbone that we may use in setting a goal, a hard backbone that will give us the determination to achieve our goal, and a large funnybone to give us the resiliency to deal with setbacks and defeats which may cross our path. With these qualities we can all become successful teachers." Following these words directed to the 236 members of the Class of 1960 at the Bloomsburg State College, Mr. Eberhart completed his Ivy Day Oration with an invitation to his classmates to join him in the quest for a very happy and successful year of service to God, to mankind, and to our nation. Mr. Eberhart, chosen by his classmates to deliver the annual oration, reminded the Class of 1960 that their "new life" is beginning at a crucial time. "We have just started a new decade, one that will perhaps decide the world's future. Whether the coming years are spent in war or in peace, and we pray for the latter, there is a great task for the educators."

Speaking of one of the highlights of his life, Mr. Eberhart said, "I remember an instance in which one of my high school coaches told us, that if we play until we think we can't take another step, and then, if we take that step, we have just begun to produce to our full ability. We as teachers must be willing to take that extra step."

James Peck, Boyertown, Class President, presided at the traditional exercises. He presented the spade, used to plant the Ivy, to Edwin Kuser, Bechtelville, President of the Class of 1961.

Special music was presented by the Hill-Tones, a college octet. The program was concluded with the singing of the Alma Mater under the direction of Nelson Miller, Chairman of the Department of Music.

Edward D. Blackburn, Dubois-town, has been elected teacher of general science and mathematics by the Milton Area Joint School Board.

cation and college training in the United States from its rather narrow and early purpose to the extension of this opportunity to a much larger number of people today. He said that some people make unfair comparisons when they try to liken one system of national education (Russia) to one in which there are fifty different systems (U.S.A.). He stressed, however, that "we must learn to coordinate those fifty systems on a national basis through some means not yet decided on." In the future, he pointed out, there will be other nations like Russia and we will always need people who will serve us as good leaders.

Mr. Howard Fenstermaker was at the console during the procession, Alma Mater, and recessional. Nelson Miller was director of music. Walter S. Rygiel, also of the faculty, was in charge of organizing the processional and recessional of the faculty and seniors.

INCREASE IN HOUSING RATE

The Board of Trustees of the Bloomsburg State College, acting in compliance with Act No. 730 passed by the 1959 Legislature requesting that dormitory room rental fees be increased not to exceed $3 per week, has approved an increase in the Housing rate from $504 ($324 food, $180 room and laundry) to $540 ($324 food, $216 room only) effective September, 1960. This means that personal laundry service will no longer be offered by the College to students.

Effective June 1, 1961, the Housing rate will be raised to $576 ($324 food, $252 room). This action relates only to the future policy relating to room rentals, and makes no prediction regarding future food costs.

These increases are subject to change if the cost of food service is increased.

This action by the Bloomsburg Board of Trustees follows a recommendation made recently by the Board of Presidents of Pennsylvania's fourteen State Colleges and approved by Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

MAY DAY QUEEN

Miss Nikki Scheno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Scheno, 217 Iron Street, Berwick, was selected by students and faculty of the Bloomsburg State College to reign as queen during the annual May Day festival held on the campus Thursday, May 19.

The theme of this year's program was "The Ballet." The Maroon and Gold Concert Band presented a half-hour concert immediately preceding the opening exercises. Included in the processional were flower girls and a crown bearer from the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School, an Honor Court of Junior women students, and eight senior girls chosen to serve in the May Queen's Court. The Senior Court included Sandra Clarke, Bloomsburg; Kathy Durkin, Ashland; Mary Ellen Dushanko, Hazleton; Lydia Gobbi, Easton; Joanne Moyer, Pottsville; Raydel Radzai, Mt. Carmel; Sally Rifensahl, Forty Fort; Henrietta Smith, Hazleton.

Joseph Zapach, Freeland, President of the College Community Government Association, presided at the coronation ceremony.

"The Ballet" featured college coeds and elementary students from the campus school in excerpts from the "Nutteracker Suite" and "Swan Lake" by Tschaikowski. Among these were: "Dance of the Little Swans," "Overturc," "Humoreske," "Danse Russe," "Danse Arabe," "Tarantella" and "Waltz of the Flowers."

The program was highlighted by the colorful winding of nearly a score of Maypoles.

Mr. Russell F. Schleicher of Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania, is the author of a meditation accepted for publication by The Upper Room world-wide devotional guide. The daily devotional guide with a circulation of over 3,250,000 copies is printed in 37 editions and 31 languages. It is distributed in more than 100 countries.

Ronald B. Behers, Lewisburg, has been elected teacher of Social Studies by the Milton Area Joint School Board.

BSC COED NAMED ONE OF TEN BEST-DRESSED COLLEGE GIRLS IN U. S.

Two exciting weeks in New York in June was the prize awarded to Miss Carol Housenick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Housenick, Bloomsburg, who was selected by Glamour magazine as one of the ten best dressed college girls in America.

Carol, a member of the BSC junior class majoring in business education, was selected as the best-dressed coed on the Bloomsburg campus by a five-member committee sponsored by the Maroon and Gold.

Three photographs were taken of her in a campus outfit, an off-campus daytime outfit, and a cocktail dress, and were submitted to Glamour with an explanation of why the committee chose Carol.

Carol was flown to New York on May 30 via American Airlines and stayed at the Biltmore Hotel until June 10 as a guest of Glamour. The highlight of the first week was Glamour's Annual College Fashion Show at the Biltmore in which the girls modeled. Ten young New York bachelors escorted the girls to luncheons, dances and glamorous dinners held in famous New York restaurants and night spots.

Photographic assignments, magazine and newspaper interviews, theatre-going and guest appearances on television shows concluded with a Champagne Cotillion at the Waldorf Astoria. During her stay in New York, Carol also modeled for the August, 1960, issue of Glamour.

The local winner is a transfer student at BSC from Wilson College where she was active in student government, a member of the choir and Silver Key sorority and a member of the newspaper staff. At BSC she is a member of the Day Women's Association, the Student Christian Association and the SEAP. She is interested in art and spends much of her leisure time in painting in oils. Last year, while at Wilson, she did college modeling for Mademoiselle magazine.

COLLEGE ACCREDITED

The Commission on Institutions of Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has reaffirmed the accreditation of the Bloomsburg State College.

This means that the undergraduate curriculums may be accepted by other members of this Accrediting Association as the basis for further graduate study, not only in the Middle Atlantic States of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and the District of Columbia, but also in the other sections of the United States where colleges are accredited on a regional basis.

Bloomsburg State College will continue to improve and increase ties educational effectiveness, and special attention will be given to:

1. An Improvement Organization which will promote academic leadership.
 2. Departmental and individual faculty interest in Library development and use.
 3. Substantial growth in Library holdings.
 4. A thoughtfully designed program of General Education through joint planning by faculty and administrators.
 5. A reduction of the present faculty overloads.

PRESENT PLAY

"The Players" of the Bloomsburg State College presented their second major theatrical production of the year, "The Heiress," on April 7 and 8 in Carver Auditorium. The play, written by Ruth and Augustus Goetz, is a serious drama in two acts; it was produced in Victorian style and setting, and costumes reflected the styles of this particular period. The play follows closely the novel upon which it was based, "Washington Square," by Henry James.

"The Heiress" has been described by some as a love story of necessity. Catherine, a rather plain-looking girl and daughter of Dr. Sloper, a widower, falls in love with Morris Townsend, a social climber and gold digger. Dr. Sloper resents the match and also resents his daughter, who does not, in his opinion, live up to the standards of his late wife, who died when Catherine was born.

The cast, directed by Miss Mary Homrighous of the college faculty, and Robert Steinruck, Bloomsburg, student director, included: Dr. Sloper, Elmer Mowery, Dover, Del.; Morris Townsend, Bruce VanHousen, New Milford; Catherine Sloper, Ann Tooley, Havertown; Mrs. Penniman, Carol Mazza, Indiana, Pa.; Mrs. Montgomery, Judy Beaumont, Rockledge; Mrs. Almond, Linda Witmer, Lancaster; Arthur Townsend, Robert Carson, Bloomsburg; Marian Almond, Elizabeth MacDonald, Ashland; Maria, Lovey Kopetz, Wikes-Barre.

Stage construction, costumes, make-up, and lighting were supervised by Mr. William Cope of the college faculty, with the assistance of the following students: Judy Beaumont, Jean Valentiner, Laura Nichoff, Roger Sharpe and Carol Mazza.

THE BAKELESS GATEWAY

A distinguished father and son were honored recently by the Bloomsburg State College, when two wrought iron gates, bearing the family name, were installed at the entrances to the Fountain Court.

The inscription on the gates reads "Bakeless Gateway - 1960."

Professor Oscar Hugh Bakeless served with distinction for thirty years as a member of the faculty at Bloomsburg. The new gateway is especially appropriate as a memorial to him since he was intensely interested in adding "objets d'art" to the school. He was largely instrumental in securing and installing the stained glass windows in Noetling Hall. It has been said that Professor Bakeless raised the money in one way or another, never quite using a gun to get it. He was also responsible for the bronze plaques honoring Dr. Waller and Professor Noetling.

Professor Bakeless began his teaching career at Bloomsburg in 1890, leaving in 1892 to accept the position of principal of academic education at the Carlisle Indian School. He remained there for a decade and both his son and daughter were born in Carlisle. In 1902, Professor Bakeless returned to Bloomsburg as head of the department of Pedagogy. He taught psychology and method of recitation and supervised a "Model School" operated by four critic teachers with two grades each.

From 1902 until his retirement in 1928, Professor Bakeless was offered positions by a number of other institutions, but his love was with the Normal School, where he worked with Dr. Waller. He asked nothing more of life. He continued teaching psychology at the Bloomsburg Hospital after he retired from the college faculty.

His service as a teacher covered a span of more than 60 years. He was admired by the college students, who affectionately called him "Daddy Bakeless." For many years there was an organization at the college known as the Oscar Hugh Bakeless Chapter of the Future Teachers of America. It has recently become a local Chapter of the Student Pennsylvania State Education Association.

Dr. John Bakeless, son of the professor, is nationally known as an author, journalist, scholar, educator, lecturer, and soldier. In the autumn of 1959 he visited Bloomsburg, and during a lecture at the college, discussed some of the historical material which he has collected for a book which has since been published.

Several years ago, following the death of Professor Bakeless, his daughter, Mrs. Alex Nason, Cleveland, presented Bloomsburg State College with a $2,500 gift in memory of her father. This money was used as the nucleus of the present Bakeless Loan Fund for students.

The gates will serve as a constant reminder to students and faculty of the devotion and service of two of its eminent alumni and will also add to the scenic beauty of the Fountain Court immediately adjacent to the college library.

BERWICK NATIVE IS CO-AUTHOR OF BOOK

Dr. William Selden, business education consultant in the Department of Public Instruction, is co-author of Business Dictionary, published recently by Prentice-Hall Company.

A native of Berwick, Mr. Selden did his undergraduate work at the Bloomsburg State College and his graduate work at the Pennsylvania State University. Before joining the Department of Public Instruction, he had taught in Berwick and was bookkeeping and accounting editor of The Business Education Forum. He is presently business-education editor of the American Vocational Journal.

Business Dictionary alphabetically lists and defines the most common up-to-date business and economics terms. Dr. Louis C. Nanassy, of Montclair State College, New Jersey, is the collaborator. Dr. Selden has also written another book, "Choosing A Business Career," published two years ago.

BSC GRADUATE HONORED AS 'TEACHER OF YEAR'

Charles L. Edwards, head of the Business Administration Department at New Oxford High School, has been honored as "Teacher of the Year" by the New York Chapter, National Office Managers Association.

Born in Shamokin, Mr. Edwards is a graduate of BSC and is married to the former JoAnn Fornwald, daughter of Mrs. Stella Keller, Bloomsburg, and the late Reber E. Fornwald. They have two children, David and Robin Lee.

Before going to New Oxford in January, 1955, he taught at Montgomery-Clinton High School. He is faculty manager of athletics, advisor of the student business club, Future Teachers of America, school newspaper and yearbook staffs and student council.

He is group chairman of the Adams County Career Conference and is a teacher in the Gettysburg adult education program. He is also supervisor of the Summer Recreation Program in Hanover borough.

RUTH HUTTON ANCKER HAS EXHIBIT IN PARIS GALLERY

A joint exhibit of the sculpture of Ruth Hutton Ancker, Montclair, N. J., former Bloomsburg resident, and Bernice E. Carmichael, Detroit, Michigan, was held at Raymond Duncan Gallery, 31 Rue De Seine, Paris, France, from May 7 to 20.

"The Revue Moderne," an international art magazine published in Paris, has the following to say concerning Mrs. Ancker's work: "This artist must, by the quality of her style as well as by the character of her work, hold a place in the forefront of present American sculpture. She possesses a sense of volume and movement which makes her essential classicism a modernism very richly cultivated and often very bold."

Mrs. Ancker has studied at the Art Museum School of Philadelphia, at Columbia University, at the Cincinnati Art Academy and with Oronzio Maldarelli, New York, and Serene Varga, Detroit.

THIRTY YEARS OF BUSINESS EDUCATION AT BLOOMSBURG

The Thirtieth Anniversary Celebration of the founding of the Division of Business Education at the Bloomsburg State College was culminated in a full day of activities on April 30, 1960.

During the day, Bloomsburg's Business Education division served as hosts to nearly four hundred teachers attending the Eastern Division Conference of the Pennsylvania Business Educators Association. A general session and sectional meetings were scheduled for the morning, followed by a noon luncheon in the College Commons. An anniversary banquet was held in the Commons at 6:30 P. M.

The Commercial Teacher Training Curriculum, now the Division of Business Education, was inaugurated at Bloomsburg in 1930 by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, who was brought to Bloomsburg by President Francis B. Haas. Since that time, and up to August, 1959, the Division has graduated 1275 Business Education Teachers. The two largest classes of Business Education graduates were those of 1949 and 1959, with 104 and 101 members, respectively.

Significant dates in the growth and development of the Division are:

1930—Junior Chamber of Commerce, forerunner of the Business Education Club, originated.

1931—Annual Business Education Contest inaugurated. Has continued through the years.

1933—First students—six in number — completed Commercial Teacher Training Curriculum and received degrees.

1934—First graduating class — thirty-one in number — following regular four-year Commercial Teacher Training Curriculum received degrees.

1935—Alpha Delta Chapter, Pi Omega Pi (honorary professional fraternity in business education) received charter.

1937—Founder of Division, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, appointed Dean of Instruction.

1939—Founder of Division, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, named President of College.

1939—Junior Chamber of Commerce became Business Education Club.

1945—Business Education Department moved to Navy Hall.

1947—Annual Sales Rally and Annual Fashion Show inaugurated.

1955—Department of Business Education celebrated Silver Anniversary by serving as hosts to Conference of Pennsylvania Business Educators Association at which time Dr. Harvey A. Andruss was honored by the association for his contributions to business education.

1958—Student teaching facilities expanded to include ten high schools.

1959—Department of Business Education became Division of Business Education.

1960—Division of Business Education occupied new quarters—Sutliff Hall.

Speaking to nearly 350 guests at the Thirtieth Anniversary Banquet of the Division of Business Education held in the College Commons, its founder, President Harvey A. Andruss, of Bloomsburg State College, used the subject of "Thirty Years After."

In sketching the thirty years after 1930, Doctor Andruss also took a peek into the future in terms of thirty years after 1960 in the field of Business Education, pointing out that the Division of Business Education changed its housing on the campus about every fifteen years.

A tribute was paid to Dean Emeritus William Boyd Sutliff for whom he building, in which the Division of Business Education is now housed, was named. Mention was also made of other Directors of Business Education. The late Dr. Richard G. Hallisy who, before his untimely death, was Dean of the School of Business at Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, Michigan, where one of the college buildings was named in his honor, and Dr. Frank Dame, who has for some years been Head of the Department of Business Education in Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida.

Sketching a background for the graduate program in Business Education, mention was made of the number of books, written by faculty members, and published by such companies as Prentice Hall, Inc., New York City; Lyons & Carnahan, Chicago, Illinois; South-Western Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio; and Rowe Publishing Company, Baltimore, Maryland; in addition, numerous magazine articles, written by faculty members of the Department of Business Education, have appeared in the Balance Sheet, Cincinnati, Ohio; Business Education World, New York City; Pennsylvania State Education Association Journal, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; Journal of Business Education, New York City; Kiwanis Magazine, Chicago, Illinois; Education, Administration and Supervision, Baltimore, Maryland; and United Business Education Forum, Washington, D. C.

This represents in part the contributions made in the last three decades by faculty members of the Division of Business Education, and emphasizes the continued experimentation and research upon which future graduate programs in Business Education will be based.

While declining to pose as a prophet, Doctor Andruss indicated that the present status of Business Education in secondary schools will change rapidly in the next three decades. As the high schools become larger and there are more vocational curriculums of the type of Business, Home Economics, Agriculture, Trade and Industrial Education, the proportionate number of students in Business is declining.

Another factor, since Sputnik, is the emphasis of the need for more people to enter the field of Science and Mathematics and go on to college rather than to prepare for business positions.

Business Education has passed through the vocational stage when skills in Typewriting, Shorthand and beginning Bookkeeping were stressed by the private business college and later by the high school so that graduates could earn a salary or wage as employees.

The second stage attempted to train persons to manage their own businesses and become employers, rather than employees, through the introduction and emphasis of Advanced Bookkeeping, Business Law, Salesmanship, Commercial Geography, and Business Mathematics. However, since World War II, enrollments in these Business background subjects have declined, and at the present time, the third stage, offering certain Business subject matter courses to more high school students, is diminishing in importance.

A recent project, sponsored by the Carnegie Foundation through the National Education Association, is to develop certain Business Subject Matter for academically talented students in American high schools. Most of these students are college bound. Therefore, they are not as interested in the skills of Typewriting, Shorthand, and Machine Computation except for personal use. A projected course in the American Free Enterprise System, representing a new approach to Economics has been suggested and outlined by a committee of twenty-five nationally known educators which met in Washington in January. Doctor Andruss was a member of the original committee and indicates that one of the difficulties lies in the problem of school officials in staffing such positions. If teachers of History attempt to teach Economics, they frequently do not know enough about practical business affairs to make it effective for the individual point of view. Certainly automation will make the skills of typewriting and shorthand unnecessary, and, in time, the present day typewriter will be a museum piece. Machines have already been developed into which you dictate and the machine does the transcription.

Since most of the enrollment in the Business Education courses at the present time is in the fields of typewriting and shorthand, and there has been a relative decrease in the enrollments in bookkeeping, law, and related subjects, there is some question whether a skeleton of skilled subjects will support a curriculum in the secondary school.

Closing the survey of what to expect in Business Education in the thirty years after 1960, Doctor Andruss mentioned that a research study, originally made by William C. Forney, formerly Director of the Department of Business Education in 1931, was repeated in 1941 and again in 1951 by Clayton H. Hinkel. The study indicates that the heads or directors of business departments in Pennsylvania have less and less time for supervision, have less and less responsibility for the adoption of textbooks, have fewer opportunities to operate employment services, and sometimes would have a work-experience program if they did not have full teaching programs.

The challenge to Business Education, in order to maintain its present position in the secondary school, is that of developing heads of business departments who are able to explain the values in Business Education to academically-trained high school principals.

Unless we have more supervision and more leadership, Business Education will become a less and less important segment of secondary education.

INVITED PRESIDENTS

The Committee on Education, appointed by Governor Lawrence, has invited the Presidents of the State Colleges to appear before the task forces on Teacher Education and Higher Education.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President, Bloomsburg State College, was the spokesman for the 14 Pennsylvania State Colleges on Teacher Education on June 3, 1960, in Harrisburg.

A two-day meeting of the Planning Committee was held on May 12 and 13, preceding the presentation to the task forces on Teacher Education and Higher Education. Dr. Catherine Coleman, Director of Teacher Education, Department of Public Instruction, is Chief of Staff of Task Force 4 on Teacher Education.

SPEAKS AT INDIANA

Speaking on "Intangibles in Business Education," President Harvey A. Andruss of the Bloomsburg State College pointed out that "while skills and knowledges are important, attitudes are paramount." Dr. Andruss discussed various aspects of this theme in his address to the annual conference of the Western Division of the Pennsylvania Business Educators Association at Indiana State College, Saturday afternoon, April 23, 1960.

No matter how fast a student can type or read shorthand or take a trial balance, if he is not honest, prompt, and trustworthy, he is not an employee who will continue in a business office or store and be prompted to higher and higher positions.

Knowing what is right and doing what is right are not always the same. The Business Curriculum of today stresses skills, finger movements, muscular agility, direction following, and other routine procedures rather than giving consideration to knowledges and their application. Even work experience programs sometimes develop only skills and knowledges, and stunt the development of attitudes.

Attitudes are the intangibles of Business Education, while skills are tangible, and knowledges are capable of measurement to a greater extent than personality traits.

As an example of the combination of skills and knowledges which are wrecked by improper attitudes, Dr. Andruss told of a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology who invented a silencer for a sawed-off shotgun. Numerous holdups followed in which one or more persons were killed. The inventor had been able to combine his knowledge with his skill and turn out a gun, but his attitude toward law breaking was one of anti-social selfishness.

Until punctuality, honesty, exactness, and other traits are stressed to a greater extent in Business Education, the intangibles will need to be developed so as to form a solid basis of good character.

PERU EDUCATOR HERE

Dr. Carlos Carraseo, director of the Normal School for Men in Traena, Peru, has completed a week of observation and study of the administration and curriculum methods employed for the training of teachers at the Bloomsburg State College. Dr. Carraseo is a member of the Latin American project group, whose members are visiting colleges and high schools in Pennsylvania.

For a week he lived on the college campus and ate most of his meals with the students in the College Commons. He spent much of his time visiting and interviewing the directors of the four curricular divisions and other administrative heads at the college, visited the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School, the Bloomsburg Memorial Elementary School, and the High School. He commented favorably on the courtesy and alertness of the students in grades 1-12 and was much impressed with the foreign language program which is being offered in the elementary schools of both the town and the college. He was also much impressed with the beauty of the campus, the friendliness of the students and faculty, and the efficient administration of the college.

Since he has a special personal interest in training the mentally retarded, he spent considerable time observing the program and activities of Department of Special Education. Part of his experience was a visit to the Geisinger Hospital at Danville after which Dr. Carraseo expressed his surprise and pleasure at the learning opportunities offered college students through cooperation with the hospital.

Florence Crow Hebel reports that she and her husband are living on their farm near Liverpool, Pa. They have three married children, all college graduates.

ATHLETICS

ATHLETES HONORED

The value of football in building mental alertness was stressed by Ray Elliot, now athletic director after eighteen years as head football coach at the University of Illinois, at the College Commons on Thursday evening, April 21, as Bloomsburg State College paid honor to its girl and men athletes at the third annual all-sports dinner.

Speaking of football as the greatest sport in the development of young men, he said it develops courage, resourcefulness and the willingness to win.

He sees the sport as an educational agency of great worth but cautioned that it must save in its rightful place in the scheme of things. He does not believe the sport has overstepped its bounds and is confident this will not be the case if the institutions of learning can set up a central and proper program for recruiting.

Numerous awards were presented to the various teams. Last year the wrestling squad received blazers as a result of winning the state title. This year the men who a year earlier had received blazers and won senior letters this year, received fine watches. Others got blazers. This year's team retained the state title and won the NAIA, first national title in the institution's history.

No awards were made in track and field, golf and baseball as these seasons were not completed.

Members of the B Club, girl's organization, band, majorettes, cheer leaders and many of the coaches of area high schools were included in the guests.

BSC AT PENN RELAYS

Terry Engelman, Bloomsburg State College's top distance runner, in April ran the race of his life. Trailing by 50 yards in the last lap of the 3-mile event at the Penn Relays, Philadelphia, Engelman poured on the juice to spurt past the leaders and win going away in a driving finish that broke a record set in 1929 by Paavo Nurmi, the immortal "Flying Finn." Engelman's time was 14:26.5, almost 3 seconds under the 14:29.2 turned in by Nurmi thirty-one years ago. It was the first time Engelman ever ran a 3-mile race.

The BSC junior did not get off to a good start. With 40 runners crowding the track, the Husky runner was caught in the jam-up and was far back as seventeenth with one-quarter of the race gone. Then the runners began to spread out in three separate groups. Engelman was fourteenth.

Far ahead the Navy entry set the pace, with only one runner threatening. Coming into the last lap, Engelman seemed to be battling for a third place at best.

This with less than 200 yards to go, Engelman made his move. When the pack was fading, Engelman was putting on speed. He had timed it perfectly. With yards to go, he passed the second runner. With less than two steps to go he kicked past the Navy man to take the lead, the race, and the record.

The driving finish by the Bloomsburg runner brought the crowd to its feet for a standing ovation. Competing against the best runners in colleges from as far as California, Engelman, who had never worked as a runner until brought under the tutelage of BSC mentor Harold Shelly, turned in the outstanding performance of the meet.

When asked about his performance, Engelman said, "It was a tough race."

Athletic director Russ Houk had a slightly different comment. "He ran a beautiful race," he said. "He was the smallest runner in it, which meant he had to take more strides to cover the same distance. That he could do it, and still have the stuff to make that tremendous kick at the end shows his perfect conditioning."

Track coach Harold Shelly, who is undoubtedly responsible for much of Engelman's training, explained this. "He trains," he said simply. "He just runs. Winter, summer, spring and fall. It gave him what he needed at the end. Except for the two leaders, the others didn't have anything left when he made his move and the leaders didn't have enough. And he wasn't even exhausted when it ended."

Shelly had even more to say. "With an average size field, where he wouldn't have to waste valuable seconds fighting his way out of jams, Engelman could do even better. But that's for the future. Setting a record like this is a greater performance than any of us even dreamed of. We're happy."

Engelman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Engelman, Highland Avenue, West Milton, resides at North Hall on the campus. He is a junior in secondary education at the institution and is in good scholastic standing. Age twenty, he is a 1957 graduate of Milton High School.

Engelman's relays' record time of 14:26.5 is about 1:16 under the world record for three miles. A. G. Thomas, Australia, ran this distance in 13:10.8 on July 9, 1958, in Dublin, Ireland. The American record is 13:35.7 set by Max Truex.

The Olympic Games do not have a 3-mile race. The nearest equivalent is the 5,000 meter run. In 1924, Paavo Nurmi, Finland, took this event in 14:31.2. Vladimir Kuts, USSR, won it in 1956 in 13:39.6, the first time the 14-minute mark was bettered in Olympic competition. At present a time of 14:10 is needed to qualify for the Olympics.

HIGHEST HONOR

Russell E. Houk, head wrestling coach and director of athletics at Bloomsburg State College, is one of five coaches in the nation who have been nominated for the title of "American College Wrestling Coach of the Year for 1960."

Mr. Houk's selection came as a result of his charges winning the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics wrestling team title, winning, for the second consecutive year, the team championship of the Pennsylvania State College Conference, and having an undefeated meet season.

ESTABLISHES RECORD

Norman Shutovich, 6'3" center from Hazleton, established a new record in grabbing rebounds at the Bloomsburg State College this year. A junior, Shutovich has in three seasons broke the former 4-year rebound record set by Leonard Kozick of Dallas, Pa. In his four years at Bloomsburg, Kozick had 594 rebounds, while Shutovich already has 773 in three years.

In addition, he was second in individual high scoring honors for the Bloomsburg team, and will probably break the four year record for individual scoring at the College.

Off the basketball court, he does well in the classroom, is a member of Phi Sigma Pi (honorary men's professional education fraternity), the Varsity Club, and helps to earn his way through college by work ing at the College Snack Bar.

TEACHER TO INSTITUTE

Eugene Morrison, Old Berwick Road, Bloomsburg, is one of thirty-six teachers selected to attend an eight-week summer institute in astronomy and geology at Wittenberg University.

An instructor at the Bloomsburg Area Joint High School, Mr. Morrison is one of 306 teachers from 42 states who filed applications to attend the institute.

The institute will be held at Wittenberg from June 20 through August 13 under the sponsorship of a $44,100 grant from the National Science Foundation. Teachers selected to attend receive a maximum stipend of $600 plus travel allowance and $120 for each dependent, up to four. No tuition is charged.

Special emphasis is placed on the areas of astronomy and geology, with supplemental instruction planned in related fields of physics, mathematics and meteorology.

Doctor Andruss Speaks To Alumni

Speaking before the Annual Alumni Meeting of Bloomsburg State College, President Harvey A. Andruss predicted that these institutions are on the verge of the greatest expansion in their histories.

Quoting a recent study made by a special features writer for the Harrisburg Patriot, Doctor Andruss pointed out that in the last decade the colleges of Pennsylvania had increased their enrollment about 25 percent whereas Pennsylvania State University had increased its enrollment 43 percent, and the State Colleges had increased their enrollment 62 percent.

This is evidenced by the fact that the State will have to provide more opportunities for the oncoming generation of American youth to attend colleges and universities.

Since the expansion of private institutions is limited by gifts from Alumni and Foundations, and income from endowments, it can be expected that these high cost institutions will be able to expand only at one-third to one-half the rate that it will be necessary for the public institutions to expand in order to meet even a part of the need. In fact, the Harrisburg Special Features Writer titled his articles "Educational Stalemate."

There are many cross currents in our operation. For instance, a prediction of the Department of Public Instruction, that the demand for public school teachers will fall off in 1965, 1966, 1967 and thereafter, on account of a lessening school enrollment, is accompanied by the same figures showing that college enrollments will increase from 15,000 to 25,000. It must be recognized that in State Colleges, whose primary objective is that of educating teachers, public school experience is a requisite or requirement for employment, and that at a time when enrollments are increased at the rate of 15,000 to 25,000 a year in college, undoubtedly college administrations will dip down into the public schools for teaching personnel. This in itself will mean that more public school teachers will have to be trained, and that the figures, which show that the demand for the State falls below average of 6,000, will undoubtedly be increased if colleges dip down into the public schools for their instructional staff. In fact, if we count fifteen or twenty college students to one college teacher, there will be an accelerated need for college teachers after 1964 ranging from 1,000 to 1,200 new additional college teachers each year.

Another problem is a comparison of the salaries paid in colleges with those paid in public schools. Just recently, in fact in a May, 1960, issue of the NEA Research Bulletin, the leading article is titled "Does It Pay to Teach in College?" and this is a direct quotation from the National Study.

"Elementary and Secondary School Teachers caught between rising living costs and diminishing tax resources to support the public schools are being joined in a similar band by a growing number of teachers in universities, colleges and junior colleges."

"A report released by the NEA Research Bulletin last June showed that most institutions of higher education are being forced year by year to employ a growing percent of their new teachers with inadequate preparation."

"Now a nation-wide NEA Research Divisional Study presents a comprehensive picture of the salary structure of higher education. Despite numerous encouraging spots, the general overview casts doubt on whether the present quality of instruction can be maintained."

This means in effect, and it is true even here at Bloomsburg, that we are hiring new faculty members with less experience than we have done in all the years that the institution has been a college; in

ALUMNI MEETING

The unveiling of a portrait of Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff, a gift of the graduates, and the presentation of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association Meritorious Service Awards to two of its members highlighted the alumni festivities at the College.

The service awards went to Miss Dorothy Schmidt, class of 1934, a missionary to Japan, and to Mrs. Verna Jones, Berwyn, class of 1936, whose gift of $2,500 in memory of her husband, Daniel, also a Bloomsburg graduate, launched the college's endowed lecture program.

Dr. Edward T. DeVoe, of the College faculty and active alumnus, made the presentation of the portrait of Dean Sutliff and it was accepted on behalf of the institution by Dr. Andruss.

Dr. DeVoe in his presentation quoted from a brochure issued in connection with this feature of the day. It set forth that it was a project launched by the Columbia County Branch of the alumni under the leadership of Harold H. Hidlay, class of 1930.

The portrait, a fine piece of work by Mrs. Eleanor Herre, is to be placed in the first floor corridor of the new William Boyd Sutliff Hall. Contributions to the fund were made by 481 alumni who graduated between 1885 and 1940. After the portrait and plaque are cared for it is estimated there will be $1,400 remaining "for any worthy project which may perpetuate the name of the man who symbolizes 'the spirit that is Bloomsburg'." Additional contributions are anticipated "that this fund may be added to or replenished each year in order that we may ever be mindful of Dean Sutliff's contributions to education."

Dr. Andruss accepted the portrait as a testimonial to "Bloomsburg's most beloved and one of its most distinguished graduates."

The remarkable educator, ninety-three, given several standing ovations during the Carver Hall some cases they do not have public school experience.

Our salaries, while they still enable us to attract some people, are not up to the national average. Pennsylvania faces many problems which are being reviewed now by the Governor's Committee on Education before which I have the opportunity to appear on Teacher Education. This opportunity will be afforded me on June 3, 1960, when a brief or paper will be presented to Task Force No. 4 on Teacher Education.

Actually, the problem in higher education, very simply stated, is this: Colleges have passed through or are passing through certain stages. First, colleges were founded by churches to train young people to go into the ministry. At a later date it was found that what was good for the shepherd was good for the flock and that some people have sold themselves on the idea that a college education pays off in increased earning power. This idea has continued, particularly with the development of professional schools, other than ministry, such as law, medicine, etc. But we have now arrived at a situation where we realize that higher education is a part of national policy, a part of national defense, a part of the national effort. The comparisons that people try to make between Russian and American Education are rather futile. Russia has a national system of education, whereas America has fifty State systems. These State systems are not coordinated. Some are better than others. Some have teachers who have four or more years of preparation, or at least 90 percent of them have. Pennsylvania has 30 percent of its teachers with less than four years of preparation. Some pay most of their way, others depend on the Federal Government.

The crying need at this time is to recognize that schools must be equated on a national basis. If this means Federal support and a degree of Federal control, we are going to have it, whether we like it or not.

There are many foolish, wasteful things done in the name of local control, and we will never be able to compete with Russia or any other Imperialistic Nation, either now or in the future, unless we bring our schools under some form of National control. This doesn't mean of course that the State would give up all its rights nor the local districts, but we are living in an age when we must have unity, and I hope we can have it without uniformity. For instance, there are eighty colleges in Pennsylvania who grant degrees, Bachelor's and above. Of those, about seventy-two are authorized to train teachers. This is the highest percentage of the total number of colleges in the Union who are authorized to train teachers. Now, ten or more of them graduate ten or less teachers a year. Therefore, they are not all using their authority. Eight of these colleges, that are authorized to grant degrees and to train teachers for the State Council of Education, are not members of the regional accrediting association, and only eighteen of the seventy odd are recognized by the National Council on Accreditation of Teacher Education. They are the fourteen State Colleges and the four large universities — Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania State, and Temple.

It is time that our Department of Public Instruction and State Council of Education requires all colleges in Pennsylvania, who educate teachers, to become members of a National Accrediting Association within a stated period of years. Unless we do this, American education can never be coordinated and can never be brought up to a general level or at least a minimum level, which is so necessary to the national life, the national safety, the national defense, and in fact the national existence.

ceremonies, expressed his thanks to the alumni and said that when an individual reaches mature years "his greatest assets are his immediate family and then his many friends." He said there were three things associated with the year of 1867. These were mentioned as the year of "Seward's folly," the purchase of Alaska, which has proved an American blessing; the establishment of the local institution as the Bloomsburg Literary Institute and "the year I was born."

Present for the ceremony were the Dean's two daughters, Mrs. Harold H. Herr, Palmyra, and Miss Helen Sutliff, Harrisburg; his granddaughter, Miss Marcia Herr, and his son-in-law, Harold H. Herr.

Miss Edna Hazen, retired member of the faculty, presented Miss Schmidt for her award, and referred to the latter's outstanding work in the mission field, an experience which included several years as prisoner of the Japanese during World War II. She spoke of Miss Schmidt as one who has "always been a worthy witness of the Christian faith" and "an ambassador of good will." Miss Schmidt said that the work she has been doing as a missionary "is due to the faith of Christ in me and to the influence of my friends." She paid a glowing tribute to Miss Hazen. The citation noted that it was made to "a devoted and dedicated Christian missionary."

Mrs. Jones was presented by Dr. Andruss. He spoke of the accomplishments of her and her late husband, Daniel Jones, both graduates of the school, and of her request for a suggestion of a memorial to her husband. The educator said he had suggested that perhaps it would start an endowed lecture fund. Since the contribution that fund has been tripled and he expressed the belief it will be quadrupled by the end of the year. Her citation noted it was made to "a fine teacher, wife, volunteer civic worker, loyal alumna and pioneer in the establishment of the endowed lecture fund at the institution." In her response she spoke of the personal influence of the institution "upon the lives of the Jones" and expressed the hope that the lecture program "will continue to enrich the lives of all students on College hill."

Dr. E. H. Nelson, efficient head of the graduate body, spoke of the $125,000 bequest of Miss Mary McNinch, class of 1893, to the alumni loan fund. Also mentioned were two recent scholarship gifts, one of $1,000 by Mrs. Anna Lowrie Welles, Watsonstown, and the other a gift of almost $2,000 by the B Club as a testimonial to Miss Lucy McCammon.

He stressed the loan fund of the graduate body is adequate but that scholarships are greatly needed and urged all the support possible for this program.

Since the list of the contributors to the Association of State College and to the College Library Fund is still incomplete, the list will be published in the next issue of the Quarterly.

James Peck, president of the class of 1960, presented a check for $315 for dues of the graduates in the association. Earl A. Gehrig, treasurer, reported $29,393 in the various loan funds with $13,681 out in loans. Howard F. Fenstermaker, editor of the Quarterly, said some 3,000 addresses of the 10,000 living alumni are needed. Re-elected for three year terms in the board of directors were Fred W. Diehl, Danville; Mrs. C. C. Housenick and Edward F. Schuyler, Bloomsburg. The board organized later at a luncheon session at which Dr. Nelson was re-named president. Others chosen, all re-elections, were Mrs. Ruth Speary Griffith, Wilkes-Barre, vice president; Mrs. C. C. Housenick, secretary, and Earl J. Gehrig, treasurer.

The session opened with the invocation by Jesse Y. Shambach, Camp Hill, class of 1905. The class of 1910, honor class of the reunion, was seated on the platform. Reports of reunion classes showed many had started their festivities Friday evening and continued through Saturday night.

SUPPORT THE ALUMNI GOALS

CLASS REUNIONS

Special programs by the classes in reunion were, as usual, the main features of the College Alumni weekend. A number had special dinners, luncheons or breakfast although the program was so arranged most of the time was spent on campus and a good share was given over to tours to view the expansion through the years and especially that recently completed or now underway.

Among those in attendance were Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff, 1891; Miss Minnie Penman, 1893; Mrs. J. S. John, 1895; Charles Boyer, Selinsgrove, 1896; Miss Mary Good, 1897; Miss Elsie Hicks, Espy; Mrs. Laura A. Shaffer, Bloomsburg, 1898; Ruth Shaffer, Danville; Eugene K. Richard, Elysburg, 1899.

Two of the most active and loyal of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni were unable to be in attendance at the festivities but were remembered by corsages sent by the graduate body. They are Miss Harriet Carpenter, Center Street, long treasurer of the general body, and Mrs. Annie S. Nuss, a member of the class of 1888 and now a guest in the Dent nursing home.

Class of 1900

Mrs. Mary F. A. Yetter, widow of Clyde C. Yetter, Bloomsburg attorney, was among those in attendance at the reunion of the class of 1900. On campus, too, observing their thirtieth reunion, were her twin daughters, Mrs. Joseph E. Jennings, Ekins Park, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Jacob Leisenring, Elysburg R. D. 1. Mrs. Yetter is a former teacher in the local schools and those of Phillipsburg, New Jersey.

Also in attendance from 1900 were William Watkins, Ardmore; Michael Costello, Shamokin; Mrs. Ralph Hassler, Allentown; Minnie Ent Marley, Bloomsfield, N. J.; Frank C. Harris, Orangeville; Anna Solomon Rubrecht, Philadelphia; Mrs. Lottie Burgess Mause, Hazleton; Phoebe Whitman John, Mt. Carmel; Bertha Holderman, Shenandoah; Edna Bontz Hossler, Pittsburgh.

Most of the group were among these entertained Friday evening at the general body at dinner in College Commons.

The Class of 1905, in reunion of their 55th year, were invited to attend a dinner in the College Commons on Friday evening, May 27, as guests of the Alumni Association.

Class members attending were: Blanche Miller Grimes, Harrisburg; Anna T. Thomas, Edwardsville; Emma Cortright Shelly, Washington, D. C.; Mary Kirkendall Hagenbuch, Pottstown; Maude Williams Hughes, Belvedere, N. J.; Claire E. Sholvin, Northumberland; Mary E. Kerrigan Burke, Philadelphia; Katherine Krumm Two-good, Turbotville; Edna Crouse Harrison, Orangeville; Anna Conlin, Wilkes-Barre; Elizabeth Mertz Leser, Northumberland; Dr. Charles L. Mowrer, Hagerstown, Md.; J. Y. Shambach, Camp Hill; Irma Myers Chamberlin, Dallas; Grace Miller Roberts, Bloomsburg; Vera Hemingway Housenick, Bloomsburg.

On Saturday at the Alumni Meeting four members joined the group: Myrtle Robbins Wood, Benton; Lettie Heacock Davis, Bloomsburg; Agnes M. Marsden Gechey, Centralia; Ezra B. Gruver, Milton.

At our class meeting after the alumni luncheon, letters were read from members who could not attend, reminiscing of former years, and news of present day occupations were enjoyed.

Mrs. Grace Roberts Miller was elected president and Vera Hemingway Housenick secretary for the coming five years.

We parted with a salute to 1965.

Class of 1910

With great anticipation the Class of 1910 looked forward to Friday evening, May 27. The general alumni body was host to 36 members of our class together with some wives and some husbands and other guests, at a dinner in College Commons. Before dinner was served we posed for our picture for the paper then journeyed to the beautiful dining room. Our very special guests were: Dr. and Mrs. Andruss, Dr. and Mrs. Nelson, Dean Sutliff and Miss Mary Good.

After a most delicious dinner we adjourned to Faculty Lounge, where we had a wonderful session of renewing old acquaintances. We were tagged with name cards, so it was somewhat easier to identify those that we had not seen for many years.

Robert Metz, president of the class, conducted a short business meeting. Thanks were expressed to both Dr. Andruss and Dr. Nelson of the Alumni for the dinner and the many other courtesies extended to us. Many letters were read from classmates who could not be with us. A note of sadness crept in when we learned of a member who had gone on before. Many of those present told of their activities over the years. Indeed, it was a gala occasion and I am sure every one of us was happy to meet with old friends and certainly each did a good share of talking. Then we parted to meet again on Saturday at 10 A. M.

At that time we had the place of honor on the platform of the auditorium. Five more of our class had joined the group bringing our total to 41. We were so happy to be present on the occasion of the portrait of Dean Sutliff and to hear his fine response. When our turn arrived, President Metz spoke for the class of 1910. We received "new diplomas" which will be treasured by each one.

After a delicious luncheon we again assembled in Faculty Lounge where we continued our "talk-fest." We agreed that it had all been most delightful and very worth our while.

There were 28 girls and 13 boys present. They were:

Margaret Oliver Walton, Bertha M. Brobst, Agnes Freas Keiser, Blanche Mertz Bergen, Anna Sachs Allen, S. Tracy Roberts, Maurice E. Houck, Nora E. Geise, Mary Lowry Shambach, Helen H. Thompson, Anna Kleintob Edwards, Florence Heitsman Hughes, Zora Low Gemmill, Enola Snyder Evans, Bertha Polley Oakes, Luella Burdick Siquett, Julia Gregg Brill, Lester Burlingame, Theo. D. Krum, Ralph Wertman, Frank R. Adams, Ida Smith Conrey, Effie Edwards Potter, Charles N. Potter, Anna McBride Gilton, Grace Gilner Zane, Irene Murray O'Brien, Olive Kresge Montayne, Grace Krumm

Savidge, Lila Anwyl Davis, Florence Huebner Buckalew, Blanche Brown Teats, LaRue E. Brown, Ray Milnes, Burton Shuman, Harold Box, Sarah Lewis, Marian Williams, Earl Laubach.

The committee composed of Robert Metz, Ida Conrey, Bertha Brobst, Margaret Walton, Florence Buckalew, Maurice Hock, Howard Fetterolf and Lester Burlingame will continue to function for our next reunion in 1965. We accepted, with much pleasure, Dr. Nelson's invitation to meet with the class of 1911 next year at their 50th reunion. The class of 1912 will also be guests.

Respectfully submitted,

Margaret O. Walton, Secretary.

Following the presentation of the Class of 1910 to the Alumni, Robert Metz made the following response:

Mr. Chairman, Dr. Andruss, Dean Sultiff, our beloved teacher and friend, fellow Alumni.

There is at least a little spark of sentiment in the heart of each one of us today for our Alma Mater, else we would not be here. Without the bonds of friendship, and the sentiment of memories of days gone by, there would be no golden golden reunion for the class of 1910, nor would the rest of you be attending your reunion. I hope this day will be all you have looked forward to in anticipation of these events.

These magnificent buildings — the advanced courses of study — the increased opportunities offered to the students of today—make us realize that the Bloomsburg State Normal School of yesterday has really become a great educational institution, now called Bloomsburg State College. It is a vast monument to man's intelligence and constructive genius. But to really see a college, one must look inside. So looking inside—we see Dr. Andruss and his corps of able assistants who are doing a magnificent job.

They are sending out well equipped young men and women to all parts of the country to contribute their share to the stability and welfare of society.

The point I wish to make clear is—that a college is not confined to the buildings and campus that mark the seat of learning. The real college exists in the minds—the hearts—the ambitions—the shortcomings—and even the failures of its alumni. All the true worth of any college is tied up in the sentiment it creates in its graduates for its traditions and its ideals. I feel sure we have these sentiments and ideals ingrained within us. We love this college which gave us our training, and stamped its approval upon our progress by granting us a diploma which confers on us the honor of being numbered among its graduates, and gives us membership in its body of alumni.

I venture to say that these thoughts are uppermost in our minds today as we recall our schooldays here, and meet our classmates of former years. Greying hair and wrinkled brow cannot drive away the memories of the carefree days we spent here.

Perhaps we haven't all become the great men and women we once thought we would—perhaps the sun of success has not shown too brightly upon us—perhaps we have fallen somewhat short of the realization of our inflated dreams of our schooldays. But what does that matter today? We are thrilled with the memories of the things we did in the past—which have become traditions of the college. We have left our footprints in the sands of time so to speak.

We of the golden age have come to the retired part of our lives, but we are not retiring. Let us have ideals and ideas that will keep our interests alert, and still give us zest for life. There is great satisfaction in achievement, so let us not go to seed—let us carry on with enthusiasm, even though we belong to the golden age of 50 year alumni.

So to all of the class of 1910 who have gathered here for our reunion let us relive good memories of the happy days spent here. Let us renew the old associations with our friends and classmates, and let the warm glow of friendship remain with us for many years to come.

To you who have joined the ranks of the alumni after us, we hope you catch the spirit of loyalty from us. May Bloomsburg State College always have reason to be proud of you. And may our alumni association continue to be a guiding and inspirational influence to students—teachers and communities.

The festivities began on Friday evening, with an open house buffet luncheon at the home of President and Mrs. Elmer J. McKechnie in Berwick. Thirty-four were present for this affair.

Class of 1945

A small but very lively reunion of the class of 1945 was held in Science Hall on the afternoon of Alumni Day. The suggestion was made that an attempt should be made to hold a joint reunion with the classes of 1944 and 1946, if agreeable, in 1965. There were many class members not heard from, and if you have any information concerning them, please send it to Mary Lou Fenstermaker John, 425 Iron Street, Bloomsburg, Pa. Class of 1950

The class of 1950 met in Room 31, Science Hall, with Mr. Boyd Buckingham presiding. Since only twelve of the class were present, Mr. Buckingham stressed ways and means of spurring interest and laying foundations for future reunions of the class.

Bill Swales was asked to act as temporary chairman and under his leadership the following business was transacted:

It was the consensus of opinion that new officers should be elected. Harold Kamm, treasurer, was the only officer present and he consented to retain the post. Bill Swales was elected president and Jane Kenvin Widger secretary. It was reported that our treasury stands at $403.00.

Dr. Donald Maietta asked the class to go on record as being in favor of holding Alumni Day earlier in May as that those members of the class who are teaching might find it easier to attend. The secretary was instructed to convey this resolution to Dr. Nelson.

In the discussion which followed, it was decided to hold a bang-up whing-ding 11th reunion possibly in conjunction with the class of '51. This reunion will be held as a dinner in the College Commons, 7 P. M., Alumni Day, 1961. Janice Jones Castner was appointed program chairman with Betty Ridall Wagner, Donald Hoar, Harold Kamm and Dick Grimes as her committee. Don Maietta is in charge of arrangements and will act as liaison man at the college to assemble information and materials necessary to the success of the affair. Mr. Buckingham pledged full cooperation from the college in contacting all class members. The list of class members was read in its entirety with necessary changes being made.

Those present decided that several letters should be sent to class members over the course of the year in an effort to engender interest for the '61 reunion. Watch your mail for these reminders. Those present at this meeting expressed willingness to get the ball rolling but your help is essential. We want no money — we want you!

Philip L. Drum, '93

Funeral services for Attorney Philip L. Drumm, former Bloomsburg State College instructor, who died Thursday, April 28, were held in Kingston.

Mr. Drum, eighty-nine, one of the oldest practicing lawyers in Luzerne County, died at his home, 415 Warren Avenue, Kingston. He had been ill for some time.

As a youth, Mr. Drum clerked in his father's store and worked on a farm at Drums. He attended Wyoming Seminary and taught school for two years at Upper Lehigh. He then attended Bloomsburg Normal School, graduating in 1893. Mr. Drum subsequently taught at Carlisle Indian School and while there organized the Indian football team which later gained wide fame.

In addition to serving on the Bloomsburg faculty, he also taught at Lafayette College.

He received his law degree from Pennsylvania Law School and was admitted to Luzerne County bar in October, 1900. He served in 1901-02 in the state Legislature and was a member of the Luzerne County board of viewers more than twenty-five years. From the latter experiences, he wrote a 1,200-page volume, "Procedure of the Law of Viewers in Pennsylvania" to furnish a guide for more efficient service.

Born at Drums, he was the son of the late Nathan and Elizabeth Hess Drum. Surviving are his wife, the former Vida Bowman; a daughter, Mrs. John B. Moore, Wilmington, Del.; a granddaughter, Barbara Lee Moore, Wilmington.

In the death of Rev. J. Edward Klingerman the class of 1900 lost a faithful representative at our alumni meetings and his church a faithful pastor.

His Alma Mater, the Bloomsburg State College, will miss his cooperation in graduation exercises held in May each year.

In token of the respect we hold for our deceased classmate, which mere words cannot express, we bow our heads in silent meditation for Rev. J. Edward Klingerman and all deceased classmates who have been called to their Eternal Reward since their graduation.

Dr. Herman E. Wiant, '17

Dr. Herman E. Wiant, 60, Hadonfield, N. J., physician and a graduate of the Bloomsburg Normal School in 1917, killed his wife, Grace, 55, and then killed himself in their $50,000 home in that community.

Several of Dr. Wiant's classmates reside in Bloomsburg and vicinity and they were greatly shocked when hearing of the tragedy. The physician was last at the College in 1947 when he attended the 30th year reunion of his class.

There were four members of the Wiant family who attended the Bloomsburg school, classmates of the doctor said. They were Emerson, who was the oldest; Dr. Wiant and his brother, Stuart, now deceased, who were in the same class, and a sister. Their father was principal of Huntington Mills High School for many years.

The yearbook for his class noted that he took the normal course; was president of "Callie," then one of the active literary societies on the campus; was in the class play his junior year; on the school track team three years; the class track team four years, and the class basketball team for four years, being captain of the latter team.

The book made this commitment about him relative to his career at "Old Normal": "Herman has been with us since our baby year, helping to develop our class morally, physically and mentally; morally because he is one of the best Christian fellows in the school; physically because of his basketball inclinations; mentally because he can tell you more about "trig" and cases than any one else in the class, for you see he has had a tremendous amount of experience."

He taught for six years after his graduation here and then entered the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, from which he was graduated. He had been a physician at Haddonfield since 1935.

Dr. Wiant was affiliated with Cooper Hospital, Camden. He specialized in internal medicine but at the same time conducted a general practice.

John E. Riley

John E. Riley, 43, 117 Ardmore Avenue, Danville, died in Geisinger Hospital recently.

Mr. Riley was a graduate of the Bloomsburg State College and had taught the fifth grade of the Madison Township School at Jerseytown for eight years.

Ora White Campbell

Mrs. Ora W. Campbell, 74, Ho-Ho-Kus, N. J., former resident of Almedia, died May 12 in the Valley Hospital, Ridgwood, N. J. Death was due to a heart attack.

Mrs. Campbell was born in Almedia, a daughter of the late Newton and Florence White. She graduated from Bloomsburg Normal School and taught school in Almedia and Lime Ridge. She was a member of the Ho-Ho-Kus Methodist Church. Her death breaks a marital relationship of 53 years.

Survivors include her husband, Edwin; daughter, Mrs. Frank Hagenbuch, and grandson, Frank E. Hagenbuch, Ho-Ho-Kus, N. J., and one sister, Mrs. Dan McIntyre, of Bloomsburg.

Robert B. Redman

Robert B. Redman, 51, coach of football at Bloomsburg State College from 1947 through 1951 and last May 18 named superintendent of the East Orange, N. J., schools where he had been serving as high school principal, died Thursday, June 9, in the Orange Memorial Hospital, East Orange.

Death was due to a massive coronary occlusion. He condition had been critical since he was stricken suddenly on Thursday, May 26.

There was little hope entertained for his recovery at the time he was stricken as he continued to make a valiant fight his legion of friends in Bloomsburg and elsewhere joined with the family in taking hope that he would come through.

Surviving are his wife, Frances; his mother, Mrs. Harriet Redman, Sayre; two sisters, Mrs. Carret Stephens, Sayre, and Mrs. Leon Lincoln, Waverly, N. Y.; a brother, uncles, aunts, nieces and nephews.

Mr. Redman had many friends in this area as a result of his fine service at the local College where his football teams had a five-year mark of 38 wins and 4 losses, with two teams undefeated, and where he also had an undefeated baseball team.

He came to Bloomsburg in the fall of 1947 and left in the spring of 1952 to become football and baseball coach at East Orange.

There he had as much success as a coach as he had in Bloomsburg.

He was named principal of the high school there in 1956 and then unanimously chosen superintendent, a position which he had not sought but which was given him after a two-year search that included interviews with educators throughout the nation.

At the time of his death, he was a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at New York University, having completed the required courses of study. He had planned to take his examination this fall.

Mr. Redman in addition to being a coach was an excellent teacher.

He was a native of Sayre and a four letter athlete in the high School there before going to Swarthmore where he earned his letter in three varsity sports and an A.B. degree. In college he was on the football, baseball and basketball teams. He secured his M.A. degree at Duke University in 1941.

He started his coaching-teaching career in Sayre in 1931 and later started football at a new Binghamton, N. Y., High School, coming from there to Bloomsburg. His coaching career was interrupted by World War II during which time he served in the Navy and was separated from the service in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant commander.

The body was taken to Sayre, where funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Howard St. Cyr, pastor of Grace Episcopal Church, Waverly, New York.

Henry F. Broadbent

Henry F. Broadbent, former Washington hardware retailer, died recently at his home, 1427 Hemlock Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

He was an active member of the Washington Commandery of the Knights Templar, the Masons, the Almas Temple of the Shrine and the Western Presbyterian Church.

His wife, Sarah E. Harrison, died in 1952. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Francis Doherty, of Olney, Md.; a son, Henry F. Broadbent, Jr., of Washington, and a brother, William J. Broadbent, of Alexandria.

GOVERNOR'S COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION

At the present time, this must have prior approval by the Department of Property and Supplies. The present procedure is not only time consuming, but in some cases it means that the purchase can't be completed by the time the goods or services are needed.

Speaking of appropriations for State Colleges, Dr. Andruss suggested that consideration be given to a study, made by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, indicating that the average cost of educating a student was $823 per student for instruction. This was made two years ago. It is estimated, that if the study were made now, the figure would reach $900. Pennsylvania has from all sources, both State and student, about $700. It was felt that the student fees should not exceed twenty-five percent of the instructional costs. The State should assume seventy-five percent of the instructional cost and also maintenance and operation of all buildings except dormitories, which should be self-liquidating and self-supporting.

If per capita enrollment were used as the basis for budgeting, then an optimum or top enrollment for appropriation purposes should be fixed for each college. If the college reached the enrollment, the college would be paid a fixed figure. If the institution went beyond the fixed figure, it would not be subsidized on a per capita basis.

Some comments were made about the present Teachers' Salary Bill, the minimums of which Dr. Andruss felt were too low. He suggested that the present minimum salaries in the four ranks of Professor, Associate Professor, Assistant Professor, and Instructor, be raised from $500 to $1,000 and that ten increments be attached to each rank above the rank of Instructor. The disparity between college salaries and public school salaries is a matter of some concern, since teacher education institutions require public school experience before employing college faculty members.

The most far reaching proposal had to do with the future development of State Colleges. The next step to be taken is to authorize the State Colleges to offer two years of Junior College work to Freshmen and Sophomores, who would pay twenty-five percent of the cost of their instruction. At the end of two years, one group would receive the Degree of Associate in Arts, or Associate in Science, another group would transfer to other colleges or universities and there pursue Journalism, Business Administration, Pre-Medical, Pre-Law, Pre-Ministerial, or other Pre-Professional courses, while a third group would remain at the State Colleges to become teachers.

Juniors and Seniors, enrolled in State Colleges to become teachers, would pay only a nominal fee of $50 per year to cover health services, academic record keeping, and student welfare. This would be in keeping with the present law, which requires the State to pay the tuition of all students who promise to teach in Pennsylvania. At the present time students are paying an average of $212 per year, which is, in fact, a partial tuition fee. Therefore, it was thought the State had broken its pledge, and had no right to cavil about graduates not teaching in Pennsylvania.

At the end of four years, graduates of State Colleges would receive a continuing but not permanent certificate, which would permit them to teach for a period of seven or ten years. During this period, they would be expected to complete a fifth year of college work leading to the Master's Degree.

If the State assumes a portion of the burden of instructional costs for this fifth year of work, then students, graduating from State Colleges, should be required to complete the fifth year, or Masters degree, over a seven year period. However, if the State continues to follow the policy of causing a student to pay for the cost of his instruction, the period for completing the Master's degree should be ten years.

This means that Teachers Colleges should develop in two directions: horizontally, in that they would offer 2 years to general college students and Teachers College students and vertically, in that it would be necessary to have a graduate school of education within fifty miles of every teacher in Pennsylvania.

The development of State Colleges in the direction of offering Bachelor's degrees on a four-year basis, to student in Arts, Sciences, Business Administration, Journalism and other fields, should be launched only after a State-wide study has been made to determine the needs of youth and the demands for college preparation which are not now being met by existing institutions. After these demands are determined, State Colleges may undertake these responsibilities but this is a second and subsequent step and should not be attempted at this time, according to the best judgment of the speaker.

At the present time, the students of State Colleges are paying a larger proportion of the cost of their instruction than is paid in the nation as a whole. On the average in the nation, students have been paying about eighteen percent whereas those in Pennsylvania have been paying twenty-four percent. To the extent that students have to pay a large proportion of the instructional costs, fewer and fewer students will be able to go to college.

Pennsylvania cannot continue to deprive its youth of the opportunity for higher education in a time when a college education is considered as the key to many opportunities. It is felt that State-wide coordination of planning and a general cooperative effort on the part of all existing institutions are necessary to meet this gigantic challenge.

EARLY DAYS OF BLOOMSBURG STATE COLLEGE

W. B. SUTLIFF, '91

THE CAMPUS

The original plot for the Literary Institute was a plot of 3 acres, now occupied by Carver Hall and Waller Hall.

The east boundary was a line beginning at what is now Second Street and running on a line which started at about midway between the east end of the Commons and the present Training School, and extended North to Light Street Road.

Above this line Dillon Greenhouses were located. The present grove was purchased at a later date.

THE BUILDINGS

Waller Hall was built when the Institution became a Normal School. It ended at a point near the present P. O. for the College.

Carver Hall and Noetling Hall were connected by a covered bridge. The Auditorium had no Gallery. No long porch and no Gymnasium existed. The present Library was the Dining Room for Teachers and Boarding Students. Long tables, with a member of the Faculty at the head of each table, seated twelve students.

The Kitchen was to the left as you entered the Dining Room.

The Heating Plant was under the Auditorium, with a tall brick chimney at the S. E. corner. The Gym was built about 1891.

STUDENT LIFE

Coming from a Coeducational College Prep. School, I was surprised to find many rules in force to regulate the Student Body.

No student could loiter in the Halls or Grounds to "intercommunicate" with each other. Passing from classroom to the Auditorium or to another class must be in single file.

Teachers stood at class room doors to note any infraction of Rules. Demerits were recorded by the Faculty for getting out of line. A certain number was punishable by confining the Student to the campus, or, if the number reached a certain size, the student was sent home for an enforced vacation.

Two Literary Societies, each having its own room located on the first floor of Waller Hall. Committees were allowed to meet to arrange Programs for Saturday evening meetings. Needless to say many meetings were held by Committees. If you were on good terms with the President of the Society, proper selections of the Committee made it possible to select students known to be admirers of each other and proper selections were made.

D. J. Waller was appointed State Superintendent of Education in 1890 and J. P. Welsh became Principal of the Normal School.

A new era in the life of Students began. Students were allowed to mingle together. It took some time to feel at ease if you walked to class with one of the opposite sex. The student body gradually began to mingle and life no longer became a clandestine existence to outwit the Faculty.

Day students were not as large a percentage as now. The automobile has made it possible to live at home.

THE CURRICULUM

The catalogue show that all preparing to teach had a definite program for all grades. Later changes were made to prepare students for special grades.

The official name of the Institution was Bloomsburg Normal School and Literary Institute. This made it possible to secure Training for H. S. Teaching by electing certain courses from both fields. It was not until 1920 that permission was granted to offer courses to certify Students to teach in High Schools.

PRESIDENT'S PAGE

In planning for the future development of Bloomsburg State College, along with its thirteen sister institutions, the Department of Public Instruction realizes that a longer look must be taken.

Enrollments, projected for 1970, will be reached on or before 1963. Bloomsburg expects 1,750 students in September, 1960, whereas the present campus plan estimated an enrollment of 2,000 students in 1970.

It state colleges become general colleges, in fact as well as in name, by offering curriculums in general education, it is evident that plans, made in 1957 for their growth in terms of teacher education, will need to be reviewed.

Bloomsburg is unique, in that a second or satellite campus may be developed, using the Country Club site just across Light Street Road from the present campus location, which was selected in 1867. A century afterward, their new campus for a junior college, offering Freshman and Sophomore courses in general education, is being planned.

A revised campus plan has been authorized to accommodate a total enrollment of 4,000 students at Bloomsburg. These two campuses may be used for 2,000 teacher education students on the present campus and an equal number on a new campus to accommodate a junior college. If a four-year college is projected, 3,000 students may be accommodated on the present campus and 1,000 on the Country Club Campus by 1980; thereafter, the latter will increase to 2,000, bringing the total enrollment to 5,000.

These suggestions for development of Bloomsburg State College will be considered by Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Superintendent of Public Instruction, who will make recommendations to the Office of Administration, the Budget Secretary and the General State Authority.

While plans for the future are being considered, steps are being taken to designate colleges who are to have buildings begun within the next two years.

Bloomsburg has been allocated two dormitories, costing $1,785,000, will make possible the razing of Waller Hall and Waller Hall Annex. Studies are being made of the land area now in grass plot below Second Street, intersected by Wood Street, to determine the height these new dormitories will have to be to house 500 women. Requests will be made of the Town Council of Bloomsburg for the closing of Wood Street and of public utilities (water, electricity, and sewage) to increase their capacities as a result of additional needs created by this new construction.

Funds are being allocated for the replacement of out-worn, unsafe and expensively maintained dormitories.

When these needs are met, if funds are available, other dormitories to accommodate presently enrolled students will be authorized. On this basis, Bloomsburg is requesting a second new dormitory for 250 men to be constructed between the College Commons and the newly completed men's dormitory which will be occupied for the first time in September, 1960.

An extension to the present heating plant, extending along Penn Street toward Light Street Road and costing $540,000, will be built in the next two years to accommodate the increased load of recently constructed dining, men's dormitory, and classroom buildings. Electric power is being tripled to provide for present increased needs and future projected loads. Utility extensions will cost $80,000.

Thus Bloomsburg State College expects to have from $2,450,000 to $3,405,000 worth of construction in the next two years, depending on whether $1,000,000 for the second men's dormitory is authorized from funds already appropriated to the General State Authority.

These dormitories are self-liquidating since students in state colleges in Pennsylvania, beginning in September, 1960, will pay $36 a semester or $72 a year more for rooms than was paid last year. This money will be deposited in a fund, expected in thirty years to pay 19/35 or 54.3% of the costs of construction. All students in all dormitories, both old and new, will pay these increased fees for dormitory room occupancy. These fees have not been increased in more than twenty years.

It is not expected that the offering of graduate courses leading to the Master of Education degree in Business Education and Elementary Education, beginning in June, 1961, will require additional buildings.

Classes for graduate students will be scheduled in the later afternoon, early evening, and on Saturdays to use buildings after the regular daily schedule for undergraduates has been completed. A full program of graduate studies will be offered during the twelve-week summer sessions, beginning June, 1961, under the direction of Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies, who will shortly supervise the publication of a preliminary bulletin outlining the general plan of graduate education at the Bloomsburg State College.

Increased enrollment requires increased plant and personnel, both for instruction and maintenance. Two-thirds of the thirty-five new faculty represent additions, bringing the total faculty to 105 to teach 1,750 students.

He has done additional graduate study at Longwood College, Muhlenberg College, and Temple University.

In addition to his college teaching experience, Mr. Solenberger served as District Anthropologist at Saipan for the U. S. Department of the Interior, did field and documentary research on legal and governmental problems of the New York State Iroquois Reservations for the Association on American Indian Affairs, Inc., and spent five years in the public schools of Botetourt and Charlotte Counties, Virginia, and Quakertown, Pennsylvania, as a Home and School Visiting Teacher.

David A. Superdock

David A. Superdock has accepted a position as assistant professor of physics at the Bloomsburg State College, Freeland school district has announced. He taught chemistry, physics and mathematics in the Freeland High School.

Mr. Superdock received his degree of Master of Education in the field of physics at the Pennsylvania State University August 12. A major portion of his study at that institution was made possible by two fellowships and a grant from the National Science Foundation.

He began his teaching career at Freeland in 1954. He is a graduate of the Bloomsburg State College, where he majored in science and mathematics, and also of the Foster Township High School. His teaching career was interrupted in July, 1955, when he entered the U. S. Army for two years.

A graduate of the public elementary and secondary schools of Saugus, Massachusetts, Mr. Woods holds the Bachelor of Science degree from Ball State Teachers College, Muncie, Indiana, and the Master of Arts degree in History from the University of Maryland; with the exception of a dissertation, he has completed all the requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy degree, in history, at the American University, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Woods taught for two years in Berrier Springs High School, Michigan, served a similar period as a counselor for the American National Red Cross on military bases, and was a researcher in experimentation for another two years for the Psychological Research Association in Arlington, Virginia. He also did graduate work in Educational Psychology at the University of Kansas. Prior to beginning his undergraduate studies at Ball State, he served with the United States Army.

In September, 1955, Mr. Zeigler enrolled at West Chester and completed, in three years, the requirements for the Bachelor of Science degree in Physical Education. While an undergraduate at West Chester, he served as football trainer for Coach Glenn Killinger, was student director of intramural activities, played baseball for two years, also president of the physical education group, and was honored by being named to the publication "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." Mr. Zeigler is a member of: American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation; the Pennsylvania State Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation; Phi Epsilon Kappa (honorary physical education fraternity).

He and his wife, the former Lenore Dunean of Selinsgrove, and their two sons, Daniel, 5, and Ronald, 2, reside at 373 Light Street Road.

DR. RABB GETS SCHOLARSHIPS

Dr. Donald D. Rabb, Benton, associate professor of biology at the Bloomsburg State College, was been awarded a scholarship to the Institute in Radiation Biology for Columbia Teachers at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y.

The institute was presented for six weeks this summer and is was sponsored by the United States Atomic Energy Commission, the National Science Foundation, and Syracuse University. Enrollment in the institute was limited to twenty college and junior college teachers who are primarily concerned with teaching in the biological sciences. Dr. Rabb is one of the twenty selected from a large number of applicants throughout the nation.

AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP

Tobias F. Scarpino, Assistant Professor of Science at the Bloomsburg State College, was awarded a scholarship to attend concurrent six weeks Summer Institutes in chemistry, mathematics, and physics at Princeton University. Mr. Scarpino was one of 120 outstanding teachers, from secondary schools and colleges in 31 states, Canada, and Japan, to receive the award.

V-12 GROUP HOLD REUNION

Veterans of the Navy V-12 program, at Bloomsburg State College during World War II, held their first reunion at BSC over the weekend of July 30 and 31. The program was packed with fun, reminiscing and renewing old acquaintances and closed shortly after midnight Sunday morning with a strictly "nautical" activity—a swim in the pool at Centennial Gym.

More than 60 veterans and their wives decided in favor of a "plunge" after an evening of square dancing at the Magee ballroom on Market Square.

Prior to leaving the ballroom, the veterans conducted a brief business meeting, heartily endorsed a proposal to hold a twentieth year reunion at Bloomsburg in 1963, and took steps to organize so that a reunion could be held every tenth year. Until a formal organization can be affected, the group appointed Michael Holesh and the former Chiefs "Cotton" Franklin and Jack Llewellyn to coordinate the plans and activities of the group.

In attendance and registered at the reunion were 110 people, including the V-12 veterans, their wives and children, former commanding officers of the V-12 unit at Bloomsburg, college instructors who taught the veterans, and members and guests of the college staff.

Despite inclement weather, the visitors toured the campus, participated in badminton, swimming, and volley ball, and in the Husky Lounge to reminisce with "shipmates" and their wives.

The group received a warm welcome from President Harvey A. Andruss and Dean George Stradtman at a luncheon Saturday noon in the College Commons. Dr. Andruss recalled the Navy training programs provided nearly all the male students who attended the college during most of 1943-1944-1945. He said that a rather new building, originally constructed as a campus laboratory school for junior high pupils but never used for that purpose, was utilized for the Navy program, and since it had never been given any other name, it was called Navy Hall, a more or less official designation which still remains.

Donald Graham, Allison Park, Pa., was toastmaster at the luncheon, and called on former officers, veterans, and instructors for remarks. Responses were given by former Commander W. D. Gruelich, Wynnewood, Pa.; Chief Jack Llewellyn, Bay Village, Ohio; Chief "Cotton" Franklin, Dallas, Texas, and instructors in the wartime program, Dr. E. H. Nelson, Howard F. Fenstermaker, Walter S. Rygiel, S. Irvin Shortess, John A. Schell, and Dr. Kimber C. Kus-ter.

During the dinner, other participants were introduced, and the group expressed its appreciation for the opportunity to renew old acquaintances and to contrast the College as the men remembered it with the greatly expanded facilities of the present.

Michael Holesh, who organized and promoted the reunion, read letters from twenty-five veterans who were unable to attend.

A survey of the wives present indicated that the war program has provided some time for romance.

Four of the wives, attending the reunion, were former Bloomsburg girls. Dean George Stradtman, who served as college coordinator for two-day event, announced that 75 veterans, their wives and children were housed in the new men's dormitory Friday and Saturday nights.

Veterans and guests came from the following states to attend the reunion: Texas, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Connecticut, New York, Washington, D. C., and Illinois.

ROBERT REDMAN

(From the "Fanning" Column, The Bloomsburg Morning Press)

Life changes course with dramatic suddenness. Almost before we had a chance to rejoice over the naming of Bob Redman as head of the East Orange, N. J., schools word came that he had been stricken with a severe heart attack. Two weeks later he was dead.

It is still almost impossible to believe this sudden shift in life. The last time most of us saw or talked by phone to the popular former football coach at the College he was full of pep and apparently set to continue for years at a brisk pace. Now he is gone.

Behind him he left many fine contributions and many happy memories. Word is that had he been spared he would have been invalided and that certainly would have been difficult to take for one who had been so active.

In his fifty-one years he accomplished much and included in those attainments was the developing of the Bloomsburg State College football team into a power in its class.

If you were privileged to know Bob you have your own happy recollections of that association. Here are a few that we have:

Football at Bloomsburg State College had been at rock bottom in the days before the conflict and about the time we got into that titanic scrap it was taken off the program on the hill. The reasoning in that regard was good. There weren't many men on the campus and only a handful of those had any interest in playing the game. And in that handful there was considerably more desire than ability.

During the Navy program of war years we did get some boys here who played the sport and from the service personnel we had a few teams that did fairly well considering the time the boys had to drill and the numerous personnel changes from week to week.

It was during that period the administration announced that after the war it would reinstate football as a varsity sport and planned to do it in such a way that the team would be truly representative of the College.

The first step in fulfillment of the announced plan was to get A. J. (Lefty) Danks and John A. Hoch, the latter now dean of instruction, from Milton where they had turned out some mighty fine high school teams.

"Lefty" was a talented chap and he and Hoch recruited some top veteran grid material for the '46 season. Everything was in order for a big start and then, just on the eve of the opening, Danks died suddenly, victim of a heart attack.

Hoch, at the request of the squad, took over. The team tied Mansfield in a bruising scoreless battle at Athletic Park in the opener, lost the next three and then finished out with 4 wins in a row to give the Huskies the first 10 consecutive seasons of winning football.

Hoch had no aspirations for the head coaching job and filled it with the understanding relief would be forthcoming the following fall. Redman was that relief.

No one around here knew Bob. He had had success at Sayre High, his alma mater, and later in starting football at a new school in Binghamton, N. Y.

But it didn't take long for the folks to know Bob after he arrived here. He was a mingler, a friendly chap who soon knew more folks in the town than some who had resided here for five, ten years or even longer.

He lost his first game, against Mansfield, and played as a service club benefit at Kingston, 7-6, largely — at least in our belief — because Matt Maley, a Pottsville boy and a good football player did not ask for a measurement after fourth down early in the second half. Mansfield went to the winning score.

After that the Huskies didn't lose during the season and didn't lose at all in 1948. That '48 season was one of two undefeated ones which Redman directed. The second, however, didn't compare with the first.

We hadn't had an undefeated season in football on the hill in a long time. In fact it was the first in our memory.

To add spice to the climax California, out in the western part of the state, also was undefeated. There was some agitation to pit the two. Bloomsburg didn't look on that with any favor because Penn State had most of its freshman talent at California. It was at that point Dean Hoch, a Penn State alumnus, gave out his famous interview about California being the "Penn State football farm." We wonder if the dean remembers.

The College and the community were all pepped up over that club. There was bowl talk and for a time the Huskies were considered for the Tangerine Bowl. But finally, after a few weeks of delightful speculation and numerous feeds for the gridlers, things settled down.

Redman was a top handler of men. He was coaching at a time when the athletes were older than normally. Most of them were resuming their education after one to four years in the armed services. Many of them were combat veterans.

They had been in the big game and they weren't going to fall for that locker room oratory of another age during which the late T. A. D. Jones told the Yale squad before taking field against Harvard, "Young men, not in your lifetime will you ever do anything so important as you are called upon to do this afternoon."

A disciple of the single wing, power football, Bob employed his talents in whipping the squad into shape and then keeping it up. And the latter was a task which required considerable genius.

Football was really a game under him. It seemed every one had a good time. Actual work on some afternoons was brief. It usually followed a period of fun. But when the boys got down to business it was all business.

We remember one afternoon when a handful of the war vets were a little lax in their warmups and Bob told them to take a lap and stir their stumps in so doing. They went around in strictly low gear. That could have been a crisis. It wasn't. Bob grinned at them, told them if that was the best they could do, maybe they had better two laps. Everyone had a good laugh and the laggards went around the second lap at a pretty good pace. The little incident seemed to put every one in a good frame of mind. The practice that followed was spirited. Bob was one of those fellows who knew what to do in a given situation.

AWARDED DEGREE

Royce O. Johnson, Director of the Division of Elementary Education at Bloomsburg State College since September, 1958, was awarded the Doctor of Education degree at the Pennsylvania State University during the summer commencement exercises on Saturday, August 12. Dr. Johnson recently completed the requirements for the degree with a dissertation involving "An Historical Study of the Pennsylvania School Journal with Reference to the Enactment of Educational Legislation, 1852 to 1952."

A graduate of Port Allegany High School, Dr. Johnson earned the Bachelor of Science degree at Lock Haven State College and the Master of Education degree at the University of Pittsburgh. For the past 29 years, he has served in teaching and administrative positions in the public schools of Pennsylvania. He completed four years as Director of Elementary Education for the Cumberland Valley Joint School System in Mechanicsburg before coming to Bloomsburg in 1958. He taught in Annin Township, served as teacher and principal at the M. J. Ryan Consolidated School in Lafayette Township, and was supervising principal of the Lawrence Township Schools in Clearfield County from 1950-1954.

Dr. and Mrs. Johnson and two of their children, a daughter, Julie, and a son, Royce O., Jr., reside at 587 East Fifth Street, Bloomsburg. Another daughter, Mrs. Christen Burkhart, lives in Camp Hill, Pa.

ENROLLMENT REPORT

The comprehensive yearly enrollment report of Bloomsburg State College for the period beginning June 1, 1959, and ending May 31, 1960, has been filed with the Department of Public Instruction, and shows a total yearly enrollment of almost 1,700 students.

Of this total, full-time students number 1,675 from forty-six counties in Pennsylvania. The larger part of the enrollment comes from the counties adjacent to Columbia, formerly known as the service area of Bloomsburg. Luzerne and Columbia Counties contribute over 300 students, while Northumberland has 240. Along with Montour, these counties produced enrollments of 950 of the total 1,694 students, which includes 19 part-time students. An additional twelve counties sent 20 or more students to Bloomsburg last year, as follows: Lackawanna, 57; Montgomery, 43; Bucks, 35; Dauphin, 34; Carbon, 27; Philadelphia, 27; Berks, 26; Delaware, 6; Bradford, 24; Northampton, 24; Snyder, 24; Susquehanna, 22.

An examination of the enrollment in the various divisions shows that the largest division is that of secondary education, which numbers more than 700 students, while business has 442 students and elementary education 487. There are 44 in the field of special education which of course is one of the newer curriculums offered at Bloomsburg State College.

The previous preponderance of male students is gradually being whittled away, and although after World War II, when the G.I.'s were on campus, there were 600 men and 300 women at a time when the total enrollment was 900, there are now 912 men; this is hardly 55 percent of the total. In fact, this year, there were only 49 more men than women, but this number may increase proportionately when the new men's dormitory for 200 students is used in September, 1960; it will mean also that the total enrollment will probably be 130 more than last year, and since there is no dormitory space and men are housed in the Town of Bloomsburg, the increase will probably be in that vicinity.

NINETIETH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Phillip L. Drum, Warren Avenue, Kingston, celebrated her ninetieth birthday anniversary Sunday, September 11, at the family home at Orangeville where she had been spending some time.

A former teacher in public and private schools and at Bloomsburg State Normal School. Mrs. Drum participated in the campaign which resulted in woman suffrage 40 years ago. While her activities in recent years have been limited primarily to her church, First Presbyterian in Wilkes-Barre, and to the New Century Club, Mrs. Drum at one time devoted herself to political, welfare and community endeavors.

She taught a number of classes in citizenship to prepare women for a better understanding of politics, was a leader in the Republican organization, was an active worker in Luzerne County Sunday School Association, her church and Lackawanna Presbyterian Society and was an officer of Luzerne County Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Mrs. Drum, the former Vida Bowman, is a native of Mifflinville, and in 1900 was married to Attorney Philip L. Drum, long active in BSC alumni, whose death in April ended a career first as a teacher and later as a member of the State Legislature and lawyer for close to 60 years.

She has a daughter, Mrs. John Bassett Moore, of Wilmington, Del., and a granddaughter, Barbara Moore.

Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, former Dean of Women of the Bloomsburg State College, and W. Horace Williams, both of Bloomsburg, were married Thursday, June 23, in St. Matthew Lutheran Church by the Rev. James M. Singer.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left Bloomsburg for New York shortly after the wedding and embarked on the S. S. Santa Paula for a two-week cruise to the Caribbean area and South America.

Mr. Williams has served for several years as manager of the College Book Store and the Husky Lounge.

HARTLINE CO-AUTHOR ON GERM PERIL SPACE FLIGHT

Space experts were cautioned at Washington that returning space ships might bring back microbes of other planets that would become "pervasive nuisances" on earth, in a report prepared by Dr. Joshua Lederberg, a Nobel Prize winner and head of the department of genetics at the Stanford University School of Medicine, and by Dr. H. Keffer Hartline, Rockefeller Institute.

Dr. Hartline, son of the late Prof. and Mrs. D. S. Hartline, is a native of Bloomsburg and a graduate of the local College. Within the past year he was one of the men honored by Lafayette College of which he is also an alumnus.

With regard to the microbes from other planets, the scientists said that once on earth these micro-organisms could proliferate rapidly and pose a danger to agriculture and perhaps humans.

The view was given by the space science board of the National Academy of Science. As a matter of "precautionary wisdom," it said, great care should be taken in establishing direct contact with planets and a "stringent embargo" should be placed against the "premature return" of samples from planets.

Dr. Lederberg and Dr. Hartline issued the warning in a report entitled "The Biological Sciences and Space Research." It is a part of a series being made by the board to outline new frontiers in space research.

It emphasized that the exploration of planets, including the search for forms of life, could be expected "to give us new insights into the origin and evolution of the physical universe and of the chemical phenomena that constitute life."

For example, it said, "exobiology," the scientific term for biological research in space, offers an unusually fresh approach to the problem of the origin of life and may well prove that life need not be so improbable an evolutionary development as was one thought.

There are "significant opportunities" for biological research within the present space capability of orbiting satellites, it said, such as in studying the physiological and psychological effects of weightlessness, verifying the biological effects of radiation and determining the biological rhythms in an environment disconnected from the rotation of the earth.

However, the report went on, biological research in space should aim ultimately at exploration for life on planets and the moon, first, with unmanned instruments, and later by the retrieving of samples.

While such samples "would definitely be the most informative means for the advancement of planetary science," the report said, they would "also introduce the risk of back-contamination" by extra-terrestrial micro-organisms.

The risk "cannot be decisively evaluated within the framework of our present knowledge of planetary biology," it stressed, but it is of "particular concern" because of "the unique capability of living organisms, especially micro-organisms, to proliferate rapidly and occupy new habitats."

For the same reason, the report said, steps should be taken to sterilize space ships so they would not contaminate planets or the moon with terrestrial forms of life.

It added, however, that this risk was far less potent than the risk of "bringing trouble home" and the difficulties of sterilizing a returning space craft.

From what is known of the biology of infection, Dr. Lederberg said, it is "an extremely doubtful possibility" that the micro-organisms of other planets would introduce a new disease on earth.

A son, weighing seven pounds and seven ounces was born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tribula, 95 Washington Stret, Norristown, N. J. Mrs. Tribula is the former Patricia O'Brien, Bloomsburg. Mr. Tribula is employed at Radio Station WMTR.

CREASY & WELLS BUILDING MATERIALS

Martha Creasy, '04, Vice President
Bloomsburg STerling 4-1771

RESIGNS POSITION

Harold S. Shelly, coach of the Bloomsburg State College basketball team for the past eleven years and head track and field and assistant football coach for the Huskies during the most of that period, has resigned his position to accept one on the faculty of the Milford, Ohio, High School in suburban Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Shelly and their five children, have many friends in this area. They have taken prominent roles in community affairs and have been especially active in the Methodist Church.

Mr. Shelly came here from Milford where he has been a faculty member for six years, during which time he was basketball coach and turned out three teams with undefeated seasons.

At Milford he will be head track coach and assist in football. He will teach general science.

Milford is one of the fastest growing communities in the country. Last year between the time the schools closed in the spring and opened in the fall there was an enrollment increase of 325 pupils.

About fifteen miles from Cincinnati, it has one new school under construction that will be ready in the fall of 1961 and another that will be completed a year later.

During his local tenure as Husky basketball coach his teams won 112 and lost 74 games. In track his outstanding pupil has been Terry Engleman, the West Milton lad and the only Husky ever to reach the Olympic semi-final trials, competing in the 5,000 meter event at Bakersfield, Calif, in June.

Captain and Mrs. L. R. German are in Ankara, Turkey, where Captain German is serving with the U. S. Army. He is a son of Mrs. George German, formerly of Berwick, now of Long Island, N. Y. His wife, the former Beverly Cole, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Cole, Bloomsburg.

Accompanying the Germans on their tour of duty in the Mediterranean area is their two and one-half year old son, Cole.

$1,600 GRANTS AT COLLEGE

Sixteen scholarships and grants were made to students at the Bloomsburg State College at a special assembly in May. All of the 1,600 students and faculty members attended.

Dr. Donald Rabb, chairman of the faculty committee on scholarships, explained the profits from the College Store were no longer used for grants-in-aid but were being used instead to provide the funds which the college had to make available in order to receive money from the National Government for Federal Education Defense Loans. In previous years, more than $2,000 had been distributed annually to students in the form of grants-in-aid. Dr. Rabb presided at the meeting and presented representatives of the various organizations who made the sixteen scholarships available.

Dr. Cecil C. Seronsy, who had been advisor of the Class of 1937, presented the class scholarship to Rose Fatzinger, Bethlehem. She is secretary of the College Community Government Association and received the scholarship for having the highest average in the junior class. Since the award is made for academic achievement, the recipient must have at least a 3.5 average.

Dr. E. H. Nelson, president of the General Alumni Association, presented scholarships to the following: from the general body — Paul Bingham, Northumberland; Marol Bendinsky, Mildred; from the Philadelphia Alumni group — Craig Hottman, Berwick; from the Class of 1950 — Harvey Baney, Mechanicsburg, and Janis Bingham, Northumberland; R. Bruce Albert scholarship — Steven Stedman, Connetquot, who has maintained a perfect "A" average during his first years at Bloomsburg.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, presented the President's scholarships to two students in the Division of Business Education, Shirley Smeltz, Gratz, and Emily Schultz, Drexel Hill.

Joyce Welker, Sunbury, received the Faculty Association scholarship from Mrs. Margaret McCern, president of the association. Dean Elizabeth Miller, representing the American Association of University Women, made the presentation to Kay Gaglione, Sunbury.

Both the Day Men's Association and the Men's Resident Council awarded scholarships to members of their groups. Edward Glennon, Shamokin, president of the Day Men's Association, made the awards to Donald Pedrow, Shamokin, and Richard Domalavage, Shenandoah. Thomas Regan, Forty Fort, president of the Resident Men's Association, made the awards to Rollin Cunningham, Lewistown, and Thomas Jones, Ridgway.

The Sigma Alpha Eta merit was presented by Miss Marjorie Ginnick, vice president of the fraternity, to Jack Eberhart, Williams-town.

During the spring and summer of 1959 and during the first and second semesters of the present college year, more than $69,000 in Federal Defense Education Loan Funds was loaned to 331 Bloomsburg students. In addition, students have borrowed in excess of $4,000 from the General Alumni Association Loan Fund since September of 1959.

WRESTLING CLINIC AT BSC

Many wrestling coaches in high school and preparatory schools in Pennsylvania attended the First College Wrestling and Coaching Clinic which was held at the Bloomsburg State College from Monday, August 1, to Friday, August 5, 1960. The invitation to the coaches carried with it an invitation to any wrestler who has remaining eligibility time for high school competition.

The clinic was directed by Russell Houk, head wrestling coach and athletic director, and Michael Flanagan, head track coach and assistant wrestling coach, at Bloomsburg State College.

The purpose of the clinic was to provide instruction which will enable high school coaches and wrestling to learn some of the finer techniques of the sport as presented and demonstrated by a staff of outstanding high school and college coaches.

DOING RESEARCH WORK

Dr. Eugene Thoenen, Professor of History at Bloomsburg State College, was selected to do committee and research work necessary to complete arrangements being made by the State of West Virginia to celebrate, in 1963, the one hundredth anniversary of its admission to the Union. His appointment, as a member of the Oil and Natural Gas Industries Centennial Committee, was made by the West Virginia Centennial Commission. Each of the major industries of the state has named committees to plan for their part in the celebration.

Among the several responsibilities of the Oil and Natural Gas Committees is that of preparing a documented history of the Oil and Natural Gas Industry, to be written and published. The committee selected Dr. Thoenen's doctoral dissertation, entitled "The Petroleum Industry in West Virginia, 1860-1900," as the basis for the history to be published under the title, "A History of the Oil and Natural Gas Industry in West Virginia." The Education Foundation, Inc., of Charleston, West Virginia, a non-profit education foundation for the publication of works dealing with West Virginia history, has been authorized by the committee to finance and publish the work when completed.

Dr. Thoenen plans to work during the summers of the next two years to complete the research and writing, necessary to bring the history up to date, in time for the centennial celebration year.

Three graduates of Bloomsburg State College are among the five new teachers hired by the Milton Joint Board. They are: Miss Patricia E. Glatts, Chester, BSC 1960, to teach junior high school special education; Mrs. Harriet G. Wagner, Lewisburg, BSC 1959, elementary teacher, and Mrs. Mary W. Hoffman, Washingtonville, BSC 1945, elementary teacher.

INCREASES GRANTED

Incentive increments, in the form of two increases of the annual mandated amounts, have been granted to certain members of the faculty at the Bloomsburg State College during the past three years. Mandated increments according to Act 409, passed by the 1957 Legislature, provide for increases of $300, $250, and $200 annually in the ranks of Professor, Associate Professor and Assistant Professor, respectively, in Pennsylvania State Colleges.

On the basis of nominations made by three different committees, composed of student, faculty, and administrative staff, President Harvey A. Andruss has recommended twenty faculty members to the Board of Trustees who have signified their approval.

The first year, 1958-59, only four faculty members received incentive increments; last year there were six, and ten have been approved by the Board of Trustees for the third year, 1960-61, beginning September, 1960.

Committees select not more than 10 percent of the faculty, who have completed a probationary period of three years, using one or more of the following criteria. These are (1) Effectiveness of classroom teaching; (2) Faculty contributions to student life outside the classroom; (3) Professional standing in their respective fields; (4) Relations to other faculty members and administrative officers; (5) Length of service. No faculty member may receive an incentive increment in two successive years.

At the end of the three year period, names of faculty members are being announced and the policy re-stated for faculty consideration. This year, the Faculty Association will review the policy, the choices, and the effects on college instruction and faculty morale, and will make a report to the President of the College who will in turn make recommendations to the Board of Trustees.

Cadet Thomas F. Eynon 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Eynon, Jr., and grandson of Mrs. William G. Lentz, Sr., Bloomsburg, was graduated June 8 from the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. His mother is the former Sarah E. Lentz. 1936

Classmates of Verna and Dan Jones will be proud to note the following remarks made by President Andruss last Alumni Day, when Mrs. Jones received the Distinguished Service Award from the BSC Alumni Association.

Verna Jones graduated with her husband — Dan Jones — from Bloomsburg State College in 1936.

Verna Jones taught at Jerseytown, Pennsylvania, until 1940, and then later substituted in Nescopeck, Pennsylvania, where her husband, Dan, taught from 1936 to 1942. In 1939 he received the MA degree from New York University, and from 1942 to 1944 taught in Millville, New Jersey, and coached soccer, baseball, football and basketball.

From 1944 to 1958 the husband was employed by the New Jersey Silica Sand Company as a Service Engineer, and at the time was a Foundry Sand Consultant and Manager of Sales and Service for his company.

During these years his wife was employed by the Armstrong Cork Company in Millville, New Jersey, where she served as Secretary of the American Red Cross, Staff Aide Chairman, and Registrar of Blood Bank. She also helped to establish a Library for patients and worked in the medical library of Ancora State Hospital, Ancora, New Jersey.

At present she is a publication editor in the technical manuals department of Burroughs Corporation, Radnor, Pennsylvania.

It was the wish of Dan Jones that his surviving wife make a gift to the College in the amount of $2,500. When the possibility of founding an Endowment Fund to support an Artists and Lecture Course, which would bring to the campus famous figures of the Educational, Artistic and Literary Worlds, Verna Jones recalled the visit of Edwin Markham, author of the famous poem, "The Man With the Hoe," to the Bloomsburg campus while they were students here and how the students enjoyed Markham's coming into the old dining room following the auditorium program.

This original gift has been trebled and will be quadrupled before the end of the year. The first personage to visit the campus was Vincent Price, nationally known actor and art critic.

In time, it is expected that other gifts will add to this fund to bring it to the $50,000 level. The Community Activities Budget, approved by the College Council on September 28, 1959, provides under item 11 of the Budgetary Policy, as follows: "All balances of the Community Activities Fund at the end of the college year revert one-half to the Reserve Fund, while the other half of such balances is to be placed in the Endowed Lecture Fund." This should bring the total amount in this fund to $10,000 at the end of the college year 1959-1960.

Certainly the thought of Dan

Jones in terms of the gift to the College and the making of the actual gift by Verna Jones has given rise to an Endowment Fund which is without parallel among the State Teachers Colleges of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

In colleges we light many candles. Some shine back to cheer us. Would that all could see our hearts today.

The spirit that is Bloomsburg is exemplified by the Jones, Dan and Verna. May we be worthy of their trust and be encouraged to realize that nothing good is ever lost.

From the time he took up residence in Bloomsburg he was prominently identified with the church and many civic agencies and became increasingly active in banking.

His interests became increasingly numerous through the years but to each assigned task he gave all of his energies and ability.

In his youth he was active in sports and there were any in that period of the opinion that he could have gone far in professional baseball had that been his desire.

Throughout his life he was active in the Methodist Church and had been recognized nationally for his efforts in this regard.

At the time of his death he was serving as lay leader of the Methodist Church, Bloomsburg, and as lay leader of the Sunbury district. He was lay member of the church to the annual Central Pennsylvania Conference and a member of the boards of trustees of the local church and of the area conference.

For twenty years he was superintendent of the Sunday School and as lay leader of the congregation an ex officio member of all of the church commissions. He was a member of the commissions on finance and chairman of the pastoral relations commission of his home church. Twice he was named delegate to the general conference.

Despite his busy schedule he was a regular attendant at services and at most of the meetings and activities of the congregation.

His fields of community service were many. In Boy Scout work he started as a member of the troop committee of his church and his increasing efforts and interest led to his being named president of the Columbia and Montour Council and to his recognition in 1954 for his interest in boyhood by the award of the Silver Beaver. He headed many important committees in the youth movement both before and after his successful administration and at the time of his death was serving as a member of the board of Region 3, and was also representative on the national body.

He served for six years on the Bloomsburg school board, was a member and past president of Rotary, a member and officer of both the Pool and Parking Authorities, long treasurer of both the Bloomsburg Chapter of the Red Cross and Bloomsburg Library.

Saucered and Blowed

E. H. NELSON, '11

Just recently there has come to our desk the original copy of the regulations covering the donation of $144.39 to a fund to be used "to help defray the expenses of needy students." It is a rather detailed statement drawn up by a committee from the class of 1893. According to available records, this money represents the start of the student loan fund. The Fund's operation therefore has covered a 67-year period, during which time hundreds of students have benefited from its existence.

An interesting thing about the original document is to the effect that it is drawn up on a sheet of paper with the following heading:

U. S INDIAN SCHOOL
CARLISLE, PA.

This leads one to believe that perhaps Professor O. H. Bakeless had something to do with the promotion of this class bequest, as for a number of years he was connected with the Carlisle School. Is it any wonder then that in later years over $10,000 would be set aside as the O. H. and S. H. Bakeless Loan Fund!

The class of 1893 appointed a committee of seven members to be in charge of the fund. At the 45th Reunion of the Class of 1938 but four members of the original committee survived and three others were appointed to fill the vacancies. In 1948 at the 55th Reunion three members of the committee were present, two were absent, and two had died. Two others were appointed to bring the committee to full strength.

Few of the committee still remain. Last week there came to this office a $50.00 check in memory of one of its members, from a friend. And hear this: Through various class meetings and Reunion get togethers there was one 1893 Class member whose name does not appear in any of the proceedings. She evidently sat and listened. Recently she passed on. Her will makes provision that over $100,000 be made available for the student loan fund. Her name in the class list is given as Lizzie McNinch. The signature on the will, Mary Elizabeth McNinch. Through years to come thousands of students will have reason to revere her memory. And what a mighty force for good has been the pioneer effort of the 117 members of the class of 1893 to establish a student loan fund.

STATE COLLEGE

To All Alumni:

STATE COLLEGES AT THE CROSSROADS

Academy, Literary Institute, Literary Institute and State Normal School, State Normal School, State Teachers College, and now State College — such has been the development of Bloomsburg.

The dropping of the word "TEACHERS" from the name of the college, to form its present title "Bloomsburg State College," did not change its purpose of educating teachers for the schools of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Inquiries are received daily regarding graduate courses leading to the Master of Science Degree in Education in either the Elementary or Business Fields; these programs will begin in the summer of 1961. However, there are an equal number of people applying for admission who think they can enroll in Liberal Arts or other General college courses.

The function of State Colleges in Pennsylvania will be determined in a large measure by the Reports of the Governor's Committee on Education; only three of these reports have been released to date. The three deal with high school graduates, teachers, and curriculums. Among those which will follow are two reports which will affect our State Colleges — one on higher education, including all colleges, universities, and institutions requiring high school graduation as one of the qualifications for admission, and the other on Teacher Education, which involves some seventy-six of the eighty-three colleges and universities whose graduates are eligible for certification by the Department of Public Instruction.

Alumni may be assured that the primary function of their Alma Mater will continue to be that of teacher education, even though other functions of education may be undertaken. More than half the teachers certified each year for Pennsylvania schools have been graduated by our State Colleges.

Newspaper reports, radio and television discussions, critical evaluations and proposals will be made in the next few months.

As soon as any of the proposals appear likely to be considered or adopted, announcements will be made, either through the President's News Letter to all Alumni or the President's page in the Alumni Quarterly, so that they may keep abreast of the developments contemplated.

If you have any suggestions, comments, or questions to raise about the future of Bloomsburg, they will be welcomed by

Harvey A. Andrus

President.

RECORD CROWD TURNS OUT FOR HOMECOMING

The largest crowd in the history of Bloomsburg State College Homecomings enjoyed the Fall festivity on Homecoming Day. The estimate of the crowd was given by both College officials and graduates who have been attending these functions since they started.

While the festivities got under-way on Thursday evening with a homecoming parade, pep rally and dance and concluded Saturday afternoon when the Husky lounge was packed for a program by the "Original Jones Boys", Allentown. Saturday was the big day and the campus was alive with activity from mid-morning until late at night.

First feature of Saturday, marked by exceptionally fine weather, was a splendid concert given by the fine Bloomsburg State College Band, Nelson Miller directing, in the Carver Hall auditorium during the morning.

One of the features especially popular with returning graduates were the guided tours of the new buildings, New North Hall, the men's dormitory, and William Boyd Sutliff Hall, a classroom and laboratory building.

A large number arrived on campus in time to lunch on College Commons. Attendance was largest at the football game, a thriller won by Bloomsburg with a touchdown 10 seconds before the game was over. Mansfield was the opponent. The score was 27-21.

At the alumni get-together in the Husky Lounge and in the Waller Hall corridors adjoining there was an overflow attendance after the game, the grads renewing acquaintance and talking over college days.

The concluding event for Saturday was the dancing in Centennial Gymnasium in the evening with 1,200 in attendance.

The program Sunday afternoon was a presentation of the social recreation committee of the College Council.

As always the administration, faculty and student body went all out to make the returning alumni and friends welcome.

Much of the color of the program was associated with the football game which attracted as large a crowd as ever saw a gridiron battle on Mount Olympus. And it is difficult to believe that a more thrilling contest was ever staged on this occasion although there have been some standout battles through the years.

The Spartans, one of the men's dormitory organizations, had a mounted rider moving up and down the sidelines before the game and between the halves.

Miss Connie Terzapolos, Shenandoah, the Phi Sigma Pi homecoming queen, rode around the field between halves, members of the sponsoring fraternity following.

The fellows in charge of the bombs sent them up for just about any reason and exhausted the supply when the Huskies won the game. However, that was wasted ammunition for the crowd was in such an uproar the bombs could scarcely be heard.

Among those back for the day and warmly greeted by many friends were Mrs. Robert Redman, East Orange, wife of the late football coach who built the Huskies into a post War II power, and Dr. Marguerite Kehr, Washington, D. C., long dean of women and whose appearance on the campus is needed to make homecoming an alumni day enjoyed occasions.

STUDENTS AND PARENTS MEET AT THE COLLEGE

An overflow audience of students, parents, and faculty met in Carver Auditorium, Sunday, October 9, for the general convocation of the Seventh Annual Parents Day Program at Bloomsburg State College. The purpose of the session — to discuss problems of mutual interest and improve communications — was given an enthusiastic response by those in attendance, and pointed up the continuing need for a close working relationship among the various groups represented.

John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, welcomed the parents to the campus, and introduced C. Stuart Edwards, director of admission, and J. Alfred McCauslin, dean of students. The latter presented Miss Ellen Lane, dean of women, and George G. Stradtman, dean of men, along with other members of the staff concerned with social living. Dean Hoch also introduced Paul G. Martin, business manager, and Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College.

Dr. Andruss explained the function of the College as a State institution, and the relationship of the college, its personnel, students, and parents to the State. In answer to questions which he raised, "What may you expect of this College?" and "What may you expect of teaching?", Dr. Andruss stressed the need and opportunity for experiences which will enable young people to think, to manage their own affairs efficiently, and to contribute constructively to the culture of their society.

Mr. Martin described sources of funds used in the operation of the College. He noted that some comes directly from the State and some comes from fees paid by students. He explained that a new system was being initiated to notify parents and students of approaching dates when payments of certain fees would fall due. He mentioned the availability of the College trust fund as a safe and convenient device to be used by students for the safe handling of small sums of money, and he presented statistics, showing the large number of Bloomsburg students who had subscribed for voluntary insurance policies for accident and sickness. He said there was a possibility the insurance may become compulsory or that policies may be secured for all students and financed from Community Activities Fees.

Nearly 185 students were employed on a part-time basis by the College during the month of September, according to Dean McCauslin, who said students benefit from an annual payroll of approximately $30,000 and can borrow from loan funds which have assets of nearly $200,000. The Kehr-Ward Emergency Loan Fund makes available, almost immediately, up to $25.00 when a student is unable to cope with unexpected difficulties.

In answer to a question from the audience concerning the amount a student may borrow from funds allocated to the College by the national government, Dean Hoch stated that, at present, Congressional appropriations make it possible for Bloomsburg to lend a maximum of $500.00 per year to a student.

Facilities of the college infirmary speech and hearing clinic, reading clinic, and testing service are available to students in order that they may do satisfactory academic work and make the best adjustment to college life. Individual counseling, involving social living, is a service rendered by the Dean of Students and the Deans of Men and Women. Dean McCauslin and Dr. Andruss asked parents not to encourage their youngsters to come home too many weekends, since this time is needed for study and social growth.

More than 1,260 men and women applied for admission to the College for the term which began in September. Mr. Edwards said he had approved and offered admission to nearly 700 of this group, with the expectation that about 575 would be on hand when the semester began. Of the more than 550 freshmen who did enroll on September 13, Mr. Edwards stated,

"We assume that, when a student is able to meet our qualifications for admissions, he is able to do college work successfully if he chooses."

A new method of notifying parents and students of grades earned during each nine week period was described by Dean Hoch. It was noted that both parents and students are notified at any time of the year when a student's grades in a particular class need to be raised if he expects to complete the course with a passing grade. These and other measures were explained by Dean Hoch as part of the College program to help students resolve or prevent academic difficulties.

Dr. Andruss reminded the parents that the College is a State institution, and that students currently pay about half the cost of their education. If costs to students increase much more, it is likely that the College can not go on as strictly public institution. He referred to the possibility of admitting a much larger Freshman class in the future. These larger classes would, after the first two years, be divided into three groups. One group would be awarded an Associate of Arts or Science degree; another group would transfer to private schools to complete certain kinds of professional education, and, those who possess certain desirable traits would be encouraged to finish the two years need to prepare them for work in the teaching profession.

Following the convocation, most of the 900 parents and students spent the remainder of the afternoon on the campus inspecting classroom buildings, men's and women's dormitory rooms, and concluded their visit at an informal tea in the College Commons.

SUMMER BAND CAMP

Forty-one Bloomsburg State College students completed this fall the first Summer Band Camp in the history of the institution. The more than two score students were joined on September 12 by another twenty-five members, bringing the 1960 Maroon and Gold Marching Band to about sixty-five members. Reactions from students attending the camp have been highly favorable and a great deal of enthusiasm was in existence during the rigorous morning, afternoon, and evening rehearsals and field drills. According to Nelson A. Miller, Band Director and head of the Department of Music at the College, the work sessions progressed so well that the band was able to prepare for participation in several activities planned for the first week of school beginning September 12. Mr. Miller reflected the same enthusiasm as the students and said that he hoped the Summer Band Camp could become an annual event.

In a ceremony during half time Gary Reddig, present head of the College Community Government Association, presented a gavel to Joseph Zapach, Freeland, a graduate of 1960 and head of the student government during the 1959-60 term.

Mansfield State, which always has a splendid band, has one this year which Director Nelson Miller of the Huskies rates the best to represent the Mountaineers and then put on a splendid half time show.

The Husky Band, rated by the local College and community as one of the institution's finest and certainly the best in recent years, also provided a half time feature in which the various periods of music were emphasized. Miss Donna Lore, Berwick, was soloist for one of the numbers.

"Roongo," the College mascot, took it all in stride but, too, seemed to be cognizant of the fact that Homecoming Day, 1960, had established a new high for excellence and attendance.

TOOK PART IN EDUCATION SEMINAR

President Harvey A. Andruss recently flew to San Francisco, California, to participate in the Fourth National Aerospace Education Seminar.

The seminar has been developed by the Space Education Foundation and the United States Air Force. The National Convention of the Air Force Association and the Aerospace Panorama is the year's most important event of its kind, and it places at the disposal of state education leaders all the resources planned for the Convention and the Panorama; these resources will portray the most advanced thinking in today's and tomorrow's developments in air and space.

A team from the Air University discussed "Space Technology in Perspective" during the Aerospace Education meeting, an address describing the "Peacetime Uses of Space" was given by Dr. Simon Ramo, and was followed by discussions of "Statewide Programs of Aerospace Education" and "Proposals for Strengthening the Aerospace Education Movement Throughout the Nation."

Two of the nation's top defense leaders, General Thomas D. White, Chief of Staff of the United States Air Force, and the Honorable Dudley C. Sharp, Secretary of the Air Force, were featured speakers.

Bloomsburg State College helped lay the groundwork for Aviation Education in Pennsylvania. During the past two years, the faculty and administrative staff have studied and revised the curriculum so that Bloomsburg graduates can serve as specialists and consultants while teaching in the elementary grades and draw upon larger background of general education in their work in other levels of the public schools.

John Long, Watontown, sixth grade teacher in Lewisburg and a graduate of the Bloomsburg State College, resigned his position to become elementary principal with the Lemoyne school district, effective in September.

Requests For Buildings For 14 State Colleges

When the Legislature of Pennsylvania convenes in January, 1961, requests will be considered for new buildings to be constructed on campuses of the fourteen state colleges.

During the last decade, the private arts colleges have increased 25 percent in enrollment, Pennsylvania State University 53 percent, while the State (Teachers) Colleges have 63 percent more students than in 1950. It is evident that continued increases in the enrollment of college students will be met largely, in the future, by state-owned and state-supported institutions of higher education.

Constant planning for future construction must continue. The Department of Public Instruction, represented by Dr. Harold Alderfer, is bringing together members of a committee, designated by the Governor's Office of Administration, State Planning Board, and Budget Secretary to meet with the President and representatives of each State College.

Such a meeting was held in Harrisburg on June 24 with President Harvey A. Andruss, Mr. Paul Martin, Business Manager, and Mr. Thomas Gorrey, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, representing the Bloomsburg State College. Requests for new construction, land purchases, and extension of campus utilities were made for the next three bienniums (1961-1967). Agreement was reached on the name, number, and estimated costs of new buildings to replace outworn structures and to expand the size of the present college, and also the order in which constructions is to proceed.

A two-year period for construction would make the first of these buildings available for use not earlier than September, 1963. Meantime, the present campus plan must be re-studied and revised in terms of either 3,000 students on one campus, 3,000 and 1,000 on two campuses, or 3,000 and 2,000 on two campuses. These alternatives must be considered if a four-year teachers college and graduate school for teachers continues on the present campus and either a two or four-year general college is located on the proposed Country Club site.

During the 1961-63 biennium, the first building on the list is an auditorium to seat 2,000. Authorized by the legislature five years ago, the capacity was fixed at 1,200. However, funds were not available after the construction of the Sutliff Classroom Building and (New) North Hall — a dormitory for 200 men. Classroom buildings may be built in greater numbers as well as dormitories, but library expansion through construction of wings is difficult. Increasing the size of an auditorium is impossible because of fixed location of the stage, acoustics, and other factors such as visibility, ventilation, and heating.

To have built an auditorium, at a time when enrollment was doubled and is now on its way to being tripled, would be to have an auditorium of limited capacity which would have been outgrown before it was completed.

The 1961-63 list of requests for new buildings, headed by the auditorium as number one on the priority list, follows:

(1) Auditorium — two stories (to provide first floor and balcony), (2,000 seats), to be 200 ft. x 100 ft., located at the end of Spruce Street, costing $1,631,000.

(2) Athletic Field — to be developed in area between Chestnut Street Extension and Light Street Road including the farm land around the President's house, and consisting of football and baseball fields, track, tennis courts and playing fields, costing $320,000.

(3) Field House — 200,000 square feet two stories high, to be located on Chestnut Street Extension to provide facilities similar to those now provided in the Centennial Gymnasium except swimming pool, costing $1,400,000.

(4) Classroom Building No. 2 — to cost $800,000, matching Sutliff Hall, being located between Spruce Street and the Centennial Gymnasium. Additional land may need to be purchased in the areas of Spruce Street across from the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School and along Second Street.

(5) Dormitory No. 2 — for 250 men, which is also being requested from funds already appropriated, to be located between present New North Hall and the College Commons, to occupy the site of present Old North Hall and to be known as South Hall, to cost $1,000,000.

(6) Maintenance Building — to be constructed in line with the laundry and present maintenance building, to cost $160,000.

These buildings are necessary if enrollment increases are projected as follows: 1960-61—1,700 students; 1961-62—1,800 students with present dormitories; 2,450 expected in 1962-63 if two women's dormitories (500) and one men's dormitory (250) are constructed and ready for occupancy in September, 1962.

For the two-year period, 1963-65, buildings are arranged in a preferential order as follows:

(7) Men's Dormitory No. 3 — for 250 men to cost $1,000,000 and be located on present site of Science Hall.

(8) Library (with possible future expansion by adding wings) — costing $1,000,000, to seat 500 student readers (future capacity 750 students), and shelve 100,000 volumes (with expansion of two wings to accommodate 200,000 volumes), located on present athletic field facing on Spruce Street toward the Town of Bloomsburg.

(9) Dining Hall and Kitchen — to cost $600,000, to be located on present site of Waller Hall.

(10) Classroom Building No. 3 — to be located on Second Street or on present athletic field parallel to Light Street Road, costing $800,000.

These four buildings if ready for occupancy by September, 1965, will provide for an enrollment of 3,000 students on the present campus. Of this number, five hundred men will continue to live in town, seven hundred in college dorms on campus, and twelve hundred women on campus, if a portion of Waller Hall continues to be used.

AIR FORCE REUNION

For the fourth time, President Harvey A. Andruss was a member of the group representing the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at the Air Force Association Reunion in San Francisco held from September 20 to 25, 1960.

Doctor Andruss previously attended similar meetings at Dallas, Texas; Las Vegas, Nevada; and Miami, Florida, as the guest of the Air Force. Other members of the Pennsylvania party were the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Charles H. Boehm, who heads the delegation, Dean Paul Mason of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dr. O. H. English, Superintendent of the Abington Township Schools, Abington, Pa.

Bloomsburg State College is one of the pioneers in the field of aviation, having begun to train people to fly more than twenty years ago. During the period of the war, the College cooperated with the Army, the Navy, and the Department of Commerce in offering various types of aviation programs, including the Flight Instructors Programs. Out of this activity the Town of Bloomsburg was encouraged to purchase the Airport, which now has become an important part of the industrial and economic life of the community.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Teacher's salaries and working conditions have improved considerably in recent years. A 1923 teacher's contract in Idaho shows what was expected in those days:

Be home from 8 p. m. to 6 a. m. Don't loiter in ice cream parlors. Don't smoke cigarettes, and don't drink beer, wine, or whiskey. Don't leave town without permission. Don't ride in a carriage or auto with any man except your father or brother.

Don't dress in bright colors, dye your hair or use face powder, mascara or lipstick, and wear at least two petticoats.

Sweep the classroom at least once daily; start the fire at 7 a. m.; and scrub the floor at least once each week.

A third women's dormitory is deferred until the 1965-67 biennium.

However, it is apparent that an enrollment of 3,000 teacher education students divided into 1,600 men and 1,400 women will, if present ratios prevail, consist of 2,400 dormitory students (of which 500 may live in the Town of Bloomsburg) and 600 day students, driving daily to the campus from their homes.

Dormitory requirements are about equal — 1,200 for men and 1,200 for women. This means: four dormitories for men (950 capacity), two near the College Commons and two on the Science Hall site; four dormitories for women — (1000 capacity), two on the Wood Street site and two on the present site of Waller Hall; at least two dining rooms as separate buildings, and possibly a third in a dormitory, will be needed.

This leaves 250 men and 200 women to be housed off campus, either in towns where they are doing student teaching or in Bloomsburg if they are undergraduate men.

These are the plans presented by President Harvey A. Andruss for the Bloomsburg State College for the six-year period beginning in 1961 and ending in 1967 with the approval of the Department of Public Instruction for the consideration of the Governor of the Commonwealth. The Capitol Outlay Budget will be recommended by Governor Lawrence to the Legislature when it convenes in January, 1961, so that the General State Authority may issue bonds for the construction of buildings. These proposals will amount to $10,000,000; $3,000,000 of this amount will be used to build dormitories which will be self-liquidating out of fees paid by students.

Development of the Country Club Campus awaits the purchase of 47 acres of land including two buildings and the development of a plan for a second campus for a junior college to enroll 1,000 students or a four-year college to accommodate twice that number.

It is evident that any plans for the future development of the

PRESENTED CONCERT

The Four Freshmen, who have been named "Best Vocal Group" for several years by United Press International, Down Beat, The Billboard, Metronome, and Playboy presented a concert at Bloomsburg State College on Friday, October 21, 1960, from 8:30-11:30 p. m.

The talented quartet is the third top-notch nationally-known musical aggregation to be brought to the Bloomsburg campus, in less than two years, through the efforts of a student committee of the College Community Government Association. Last fall, Louis Armstrong's concert drew an overflow crowd and, this spring, Maynard Ferguson's Orchestra played to a capacity audience.

S. Frederick Worman, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Worman, Danville, has accepted an appointment in the Latin Department as instructor in the North Hagerstown High School, Hagerstown, Md. He assumed the duties of his new post September 7. Mr. Worman is a graduate of the Bloomsburg State College and completed work for certification in music education at Florida State University. He enters Hagerstown after teaching nine years at Milton, Florida, and four years at Ulby, Michigan.

Bloomsburg State College must be reviewed every five years and revisions made in terms of legislative actions every two years. A plan cannot be carried out if the tax income of the Commonwealth will not sustain these expenditures. All depends on the value Pennsylvania citizens place on college and university education in the future decade.

CONGRESS MAY RECOGNIZE ORIGINAL 'UNCLE SAM' SOON

Professor J. Almus Russell, Bloomsburg State College, long recognized as a national authority on Samuel Wilson and "Uncle Sam" has received word that Congress may soon declare Samuel Wilson of Arlington, Mass., Mason, N. H.; and Troy, N. Y., to be the "original Uncle Sam" from whom our country received its sobriquet shortly after the War of 1812 — thus making his grave at Troy, N. Y., a national shrine.

Dr. Russell appeared before a Congressional Committee hearing, Washington, D. C., May 7, 1959, where he presented testimony to confirm the evidence that Samuel Wilson gave his nickname of "Uncle Sam" to the United States of America.

The House of Representatives approved such a bill in May, 1959. The Senate Public Lands Subcommittee passed the measure on February 27, 1960. The Senate Interior Committee and the full Senate are now expected to vote favorably on this bill, preliminary to its passage into a law.

Samuel Wilson, who is said to have had the tall, slender build and gaunt face of the "Uncle Sam" pictured in thousands of cartoons, was born in Arlington, Mass., September 13, 1766. In young manhood he settled in Troy, N. Y., where he was engaged in the meat packing business. During the War of 1812 his Troy packing house supplied meat to the American Army. Each barrel of meat bore the initials "E A.—U. S." The "E. A." stood for Elbert Anderson, a contractor; and the "U. S." signified United States.

But the story circulated through army camps that "U. S." stood for "Uncle Sam" Wilson. As a result, the initials on the barrels and Wilson's name became prominently associated together during the War of 1812.

Sketches of Samuel Wilson in his traditionally patriotic red, white and blue costume have appeared as a national symbol of the United States from 1812 to the present time. However, Mr. Wilson himself was nearly forgotten until legislation was introduced to recog-

APPLICATIONS FOR LOANS

During the year from July 1, 1959, to June 30, 1960, there were 344 applications from students at Bloomsburg State College who wished to borrow money, in the amount of almost $100,000. This is a part of the National Defense Loan Program. Male students requested about $75,000 and women students about $25,000.

Since this amount was not available, a committee, headed by Dr. Donald D. Rabb, approved loans for 280 students in the amount of approximately $60,000, of which $45,000 was loaned to men and $15,000 to women.

For each $10.00 made available for loans, the Federal Government furnishes $9.00, and the Husky Lounge, operated under policies developed by the Community Government Association of the Bloomsburg State College, contributes $1.00.

Most of the loans ranged from $100 to $400. There were 112 loans ranging from $100 to $199, 76 loans from $200 to $299, and 77 loans from $300 to $399.

As would be expected, Seniors borrowed the most money and Freshmen the least amount of money. The loans averaged $209.80 for the 280 students who were aided by this means.

Students must have been enrolled for at least nine weeks to become eligible and must have a C or 2.0 quality point average.

Up to the present time loans have not been granted to Freshmen before they matriculate. It is felt that the student should demonstrate his ability to do college work before money is advanced, since one-half of the loan is forgiven to teacher education students if they teach as much as five years. This would mean that students not completing the curriculum would probably not be able to pay immediately, but it means also that the 10 percent contribution nize him as the original "Uncle Sam."

made by the college student-body would not be forthcoming.

It is difficult to determine the impact of the National Defense Loan Program on the use of existing loan funds. The Alumni Loan Fund now has approximately $150,000, either in loans or in money to be loaned; it is available to both Junior and Senior students, without interest, to the amount of $500. It is interesting to note that some students have used the Federal funds to repay their borrowings from the Alumni Loan Fund. This means that they are willing to pay 3 percent interest for the use of Federal Loan Funds, if half the debt is forgiven, in order to repay a limited amount of money to the Alumni Loan Fund.

The Alumni Board of Directors recently increased the maximum loan from that source to $500, and extended it to Juniors as well as Seniors. A junior can now borrow up to $200, and a Senior may secure up to $300.

The Committee in charge of the administration of the National Defense Loan Program has carried out its responsibility in an efficient manner. Dr. Donald D. Rabb will continue as Chairman, and the handling of the business affairs, such as the writing and the collecting of the loans, is still to continue in the hands of W. Horace Williams, Manager of the Husky Lounge.

Clayton H. Hinkel, Associate Professor of Business Education at Bloomsburg State College, served recently as a Consultant for the Business Education section at the Parkland High School Teachers Workshop.

Bloomsburg graduates who are teaching at Parkland High School at the present time are Frank Reed, a 1959 graduate, and Ralph Seltzer, a 1948 graduate.

Russell F. Schleicher, member of the BSC faculty, was the author of a page in "The Upper Room," widely read religious periodical. Mr. Schleicher's page appeared under the date of June 19.

SALES RALLY AT COLLEGE

The Fifteen Annual Sales Rally at the Bloomsburg State College featured two different approaches this year in terms of selling techniques, markets, and the psychology involved in the salesman's personal life as it is related to his success in customer-salesman relationships. The annual event was held on the campus on Thursday, November 3, 1960. Sharing the spotlight were Mr. Charles K. Piercy, Manager of Domestic Sales, Lederle Laboratories and Mr. Oliver K. Whiting, Journalist, Broadcaster, member of the faculty of the faculty of the Carnegie Institute, and sponsor of the Dale Carnegie Courses in the British Isles. Mr. Piercy emphasized "Communication in Selling"; Mr. Whiting's comments were developed from the theme "There's Gold in Your Own Back Yard."

For fifteen years, since the Rally became an annual event, the college has spared no effort to secure the nation's best salesmen and speakers. Last year's program was completed with a rousing ovation for Dr. Herbert G. True and Ralph D. Myrick. The successful techniques described by the speakers and the oft-times witty and dynamic manner in which they are demonstrated has drawn capacity audiences to the college campus each year.

In his twenty-three years with Lederle, Mr. Piercy has been a salesman in Toledo, Ohio, and a district sales manager in Chicago and New Jersey. He operated the regional sales office in Chicago, came to New York in 1953 as assistant sales manager, and assumed his present position the following year. He is responsible for the Sales and Sales Personnel for Lederle Laboratories in the fifty states of the Nation.

As a journalist, Mr. Whiting writes for the New York Times, the Herald Tribune, the Ladies' Home Journal, and other publications. He has been a consistent contributor for the British Broadcasting Company. A member of the faculty of the Carnegie Institute for 14 years, he specializes in Human Relations and Effective Speech.

DR. ALPENFELS FEATURED SPEAKER AT CONFERENCE

Dr. Ethel J. Alpenfels, Professor of Anthropology, New York University, and a nationally-recognized authority on anthropology and social behavior, was the featured speaker at the Fourteenth Annual Conference for Teachers and Administrators at Bloomsburg State College. Dr. Alpenfels spoke to an audience of more than five hundred educators during the general session in Carver Auditorium; her theme was "American Values and Education."

Author of "Sense and Nonsense About Race" (1957), "Brothers All" (1953), and numerous articles for anthropological journals, her monograph on "The Human Hand" has received world-wide circulation. She edited the one million words on anthropology in the Encyclopedia Britannica (1944-45) and, in 1957, wrote the articles on anthropology for the Junior Britannica. Her Brumbaugh Lecture for the University of Pennsylvania is included in "The Emergence of the Modern Mind."

Dr. Alpenfels was named "Teacher of the Year" by the National Association of Negro Women in 1955. Two years ago, the Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations honored her as the "Outstanding Woman in Anthropology." The Panhellenic Society of the United States awarded her its "Medal of Eminence" for teaching in 1954.

Dr. Alpenfels earned the Bachelor's degree at the University of Washington and the Doctor's degree at the Colorado State College of Education; she has also studied at the Universities of Denver, California, and Chicago.

Her research includes studies of the Modoc Indians and the Haida Indians of Queen Charlotte Island. Under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, she conducted a three-year research project on "Will Facts Change Attitudes?" Recently, she served as director of the anthropology team for the New York University School of Engineering's solar stove project, which was sponsored by the Ford Foundation. During the summer of 1955,

BSC FOURTH WITH 1,756

With a total of 1,756 students enrolled as of September, 1960, Bloomsburg State College ranks fourth among Pennsylvania's fourteen State Colleges.

Registration figures show that 964 men and 792 women represent forty-seven of the sixty-seven counties in the state. The larger number of men is part of a trend that began after World War II, and has continued to the present.

Four counties — Luzerne, Columbia, Northumberland, and Schuylkill — lead the other 4 counties with a total of 1,023 students and an individual representation of 342, 318, 252, and 111, respectively. The number of students from Philadelphia and other southeastern counties continues to show an increase over other years.

Other counties with a sizeable delegation of students include: Lycoming 67, Lackawanna 57, Montgomery 55, Montour 54, Delaware 42, Dauphin 40, Bucks 36, Berks 26, Snyder 24, Carbon 22, Bradford, Lehigh, Mifflin, and Wyoming only 21, Northampton 20, and Philadelphia 19.

Joseph R. Barkley has recently been appointed as Consultant in Business Education in the Florida State Department of Education. Mr. Barkley has taught for the past five years in the business education department of the Edgewater High School, Orlando, Florida, and served last year as the chairman of the department. He is the immediate past president of the Orange County Classroom Teachers' Association and is chairman of the Florida Business Education Association. In addition to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education which he received at BSC, Mr. Barkley holds the degree of Master of Education from the University of Florida.

GRADUATE COUNCIL APPOINTED AT COLLEGE

The appointment of a Graduate Council, to develop and supervise a Program of Graduate Studies at Bloomsburg State College, has been announced by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College.

Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of the Division of Business Education has been appointed Chairman of the Graduate Council and Director of Graduate Studies. Other members of the Council include: John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction; Dr. Royce O. Johnson, Director of the Division of Elementary Education; Dr. Cecil C. Seronsy, Chairman, Department of Communications; Dr. Ernest H. Engelhardt, Chairman, Department of Education and Psychology; Dr. John J. Serff, Chairman, Department of Social Studies.

The Graduate Council will have the responsibility of: establishing regulations governing the program; developing curriculum that will be available; developing and approving new policies and revising existing policies as the program of graduate studies progresses.

The State Council of Education of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has authorized Bloomsburg to inaugurate a program of graduate studies in Business Education and in Elementary Education at the beginning of the summer term in June, 1961. Students, completing the requirements established by the Graduate Council, will be awarded the Master of Education degree by the College.

One of the first official acts of the Graduate Council was the approval of a preliminary announcement describing the new Program of Graduate Studies. The announcement will be ready for mailing soon, and includes information regarding the scheduling of classes, semester hour load, qualifications for admission, and a schedule of fees. In response to many inquiries, Dr. Martin said that the graduate tuition fee will be twenty dollars per semester hour.

Application forms for admission to graduate courses are now available. A Graduate Studies Bulletin, containing information concerning curriculums and course of-Advancement in rank for two members of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, has been approved by the Board of Trustees, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president, reports.

Dr. Bruce E. Adams, associate professor of geography since September, 1956, has been advanced to the rank of professor.

Dr. Royce O. Johnson, who joined the faculty in September, 1958, as associate professor and Director of the Division of Elementary Education, has also been promoted to professor.

Dr. Adams is a graduate of Lock Haven High School. He earned his Bachelor of Science degree at Lock Haven State College and the Master of Education and the Doctor of Education degrees at Pennsylvania State University. While completing the requirements for the latter two degrees at Penn State, he majored in geography, and his doctoral dissertation described "Geographical Education in the Public and Parochial Schools of a Four-County Sampling of Pennsylvania."

A veteran of nearly four years with the United States Air Force as a photo intelligence officer during World War II, Dr. Adams began his eighteenth year in the teaching profession in September. He had served previously as a member of the faculties of Canton High School and the Roosevelt Junior High School, Williamsport.

At the final business meeting of the College Faculty Association last spring, he was selected by his colleagues to serve as president during the 1960-61 college year.

Dr. Johnson was graduated from the Port Allegany High School, degree at Boston College in 1947, studied arena theatre techniques and voice therapy at Tufts University during the summer of 1959, and was enrolled in Shakespeare and Slavic Drama at Harvard University this past summer.

In addition to teaching, Miss Kelly has served as children's librarian in the Public Library of Cambridge; she has also been a member of the casts of professional summer stock companies in both New Hampshire and Vermont. Her professional affiliations include membership in the American Educational Theatre Association and the Speech Associations of America. Her hobbies include the theatre, acting and writing.

Thaddeus Piotrowski, Audio-Visual Education Director at Bloomsburg State College, attended a three-day conference on Newer Educational Media held at the Pennsylvania State University in October. The purpose of the conference was to disseminate information about research on instructional media and to stimulate further research. The conference was sponsored by Penn State in cooperation with the United States Office of Education.

MANY CHANGES AT COLLEGE RECENTLY

The growth and development of Bloomsburg State College during the past year included a number of significant changes and some re-fashioning of the outline of plans for the future. The alumni and friends who return to the campus should have no difficulty in noting that two buildings, a new men's dormitory and a new classroom building, have been completed and placed in use since their last visit to the campus. They will find, also that the auditorium of Navy Hall has been completely remodelled to be used as the new headquarters of the Division of Special Education. Old North Hall, a campus landmark for generations of students, is being used to provide office space for faculty members.

While new buildings have made possible an increase in enrollment from 1600 to 1750 this year, and have provided areas for improving and extending the program of instruction, the past year has marked important developments that are not readily apparent on the surface. Accompanying the growth in enrollment was an increase in the number of faculty from 83 to 105. The position of Dean of Students was added to the administrative staff to coordinate the details of social living and student personal.

Curriculum revision, graduate studies, and accreditation were given special attention. As a result, the College has been granted continuing accreditation as a four-year, degree-granting institution, and a program of graduate studies leading to the Master of Education degree in either business or elementary education, will get underway in June, 1961. The College has made its first annual contribution to the Bloomsburg Public Library in recognition of services rendered to college students. This amount will increase each year as the number of students increase. The Alumni Loan Fund has been boosted to more than $150,000 by a recent grant in excess of $125,000, and the College has continued to secure and match funds for National Defense Loans to worthy students.

The College continues to serve as a cultural center for the area. Its economic impact on the community is indicated by the fact that from June 1, 1959, to May 31, 1960, the total payroll for faculty and non-instructional employees reached nearly one million dollars. With the addition of new buildings, the non-instructional staff will have to be increased, and a similar growth has already been noted in the number of faculty members.

If the future belongs to those who plan for it, the college should have a great deal to offer to present and prospective students. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, and the board of trustees have developed a campus plan projecting the growth of Bloomsburg in 1970.

This plan of growth indicates the erection of additional buildings with an anticipated demand on the part of more young men and women to attend college.

As the year 1960 began, the word "Teachers" was eliminated from the fourteen State-owned institutions of higher education, and Bloomsburg State College became the official designation of "The friendly College on the hill."

In March, tribute was paid to Dr. Andruss in recognition of his 20 years as president and the leadership he has given to the College during his 30 years as department head, dean, and president. Later in the spring, the Division of Business Education celebrated its thirtieth anniversary.

A gift from two alumni, Mrs. Verna Jones and her late husband, Daniel, helped establish the Endowed Lecture Fund. In March of this year, through the auspices of the Fund, the College presented the distinguished dramatist, lecturer, and art connoisseur, Vincent Price, in an outstanding program of "Three American Voices." In the years ahead, outstanding poets, scientists, musicians, artists, and authors will be brought to the campus in a series designed to highlight the cultural opportunities offered by the College.

In recent years, there has been much discussion regarding community and junior colleges in the Commonwealth. Aware of the need for providing for more young men and women, Dr. Andruss and the trustees suggested the purchase of the Bloomsburg Country Club as the site for a junior or community college. Negotiators are now in the hands of the General State Authority. In the meantime, enrollment figures, building needs, and curriculum have been proposed to help establish such an institution.

Bloomsburg alumni can be proud of the history of their Alma Mater; with the help of all — alumni, students, faculty, administration, trustees — it can truly be said "Ever upward, striving, climbing — onward Bloomsburg goes!"

On Tuesday, October 11, 1960, the Alpha Chapter of the Council for Exceptional Children held its first meeting of the college school year. Dr. Charles F. Lyle, Associate Professor of Special Education, spoke on "The Pros and Cons of Institutional and Public School teaching."

This organization, conceived and developed by the students in the Special Education curriculum, was begun last year. They have due reason to be proud in as much as they are the only National Student Organization of its type in the state. With their own group well organized and running smoothly, the Bloomsburg students went on to advise and initiate the chapter at Pennsylvania State University. Much of the success of the club is the result of the capable leadership of Dr. Donald Maietta, Director of the Division of Special Education.

RESEARCH PROJECT

A research project, surveying the water supplies of milk producers and others in the immediate area, was completed recently in the State-approved laboratory of the Bloomsburg Water Company under the direction of William McK. Reber, Jr., supervisor of the laboratory, and Dr. Carl Kendall, Assistant Professor of Biology at Bloomsburg State College. The cooperation of the College Administration and several college students, who assisted Dr. Kendall and Mr. Reber, contributed to the ultimate success of the venture.

The project was sponsored by several dairies in Northeastern Pennsylvania, who have recognized the vital importance of a safe water supply for human needs as well as for the maintenance of milking apparatus. Drinking water standards, set by the United States Public Health Department, have been generally accepted as the standards for water supplies. These standards apply to bacteriological as well as chemical requirements.

The survey area covered five counties in Pennsylvania and one in New York. Samples of water from springs, dug wells, and drilled wells were tested, but the tests were not confined to water supplies in rural areas; the survey was extended to include several small communities which did not have municipal water companies.

There were 1468 samples examined, primarily for bacterial results. A total of 53 percent showed contamination making the water unfit for human consumption or for the washing of utensils. Isolation of organisms, using different media, was accomplished; a great many of the organisms were pathogenic. In many instances, Dr. Kendall pointed out, illness in the family can be attributed directly to the water supply.

Bacteriological results are considered in the light of available information concerning the sanitary conditions surrounding the source of any particular sample. Precise evaluation of the quality of a water supply can be made only when the results of laboratory examinations of the water are interpreted in the light of this sanitary survey data.

NORTHUMBERLAND ALUMNI

Miss Caroline Petruccio, Northumberland, was elected president of the Sunbury chapter of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni at a dinner meeting held in November at the Blue Hill Restaurant. She succeeds Thomas E. Sanders, Sunbury. Mrs. Gladys Rohrbach was elected secretary-treasurer to succeed Mrs. Louis Evans, both of Sunbury. Thirty members of the alumni association and their guests attended the dinner. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the college, told the group of the future educational opportunities at Bloomsburg.

Robert St. John, roving correspondent for NBC "Monitor" and internationally-acclaimed author, was the featured speaker at Bloomsburg State College Thursday evening, November 10, during a dinner given by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College, for faculty and trustees. Nearly 200 people attended the dinner in College Commons and heard Mr. St. John present a first-hand account of conditions and events in "Explosive Africa."

When individuals requested consultation, the survey team outlined corrective measures. This aid was asked by 71 percent of the cases which showed need for such measures. In each of these cases, corrective action was taken, re-tests were made, and the water was then approved as being fit for consumption. In many instances, the addition of chlorinating devices was found to be unnecessary.

The importance of this research has been such that the Water Company Laboratory, Mr. Reber and Dr. Kendall have received commendations from the Pennsylvania Department of Public Health and from the participating dairies. Results of the survey have magnified the interest in the need for securing and maintaining safe supplies of water.

ATHLETICS

The summary of the results of the 1960 season shows that BSC was, in most cases, "a come-up from behind" team. Most of the scores were close. After building a record of five straight victories, BSC lost to East Stroudsburg by one point, came back to defeat Cheyney, 39-0, and brought the season to an anti-climax by losing to West Chester to the tune of 12 to 43. The records for the season follows:

Moses Scott, a leggy sophomore from down Philadelphia way, who runs like a colt after it first discovers the wonder of locomotion, set up the touchdown that enabled the Bloomsburg Huskies to defeat Shippensburg State on the gridiron of the Cumberland Valley Red Raiders 13-6.

Early in the second period the Huskies sent the hard running John Johnson eight yards off right tackle for a score and seemed on their way to a decisive victory.

Shippensburg tied the score in the last quarter as a result of a 51-yard run.

In the last minutes Scott took a pass over his shoulder from Rohrer and hustled to the Raiders' 2 in a 47-yard maneuver that had a Parents' Day crowd of over 3,000 on its feet. Rohrer went over on the next play on a sneak to break the tie and put the Huskies in front, 12-6, with 1:37 remaining. Moses then placed kicked the extra point.

Two aerial maneuvers within seconds in the closing minutes of the first half started Bloomsburg State College on the way to a 14-7 victory over King's College in Kingston High Stadium. A crowd of around 3,000 watched the Monarchs completely bottle up the Husky attack through much of the first half during which they marched 60 yards for a touchdown.

Kings retained the advantage until the closing minutes of the first half when the entire complexion of the game turned so quickly some of the chilled spectators were unable to comprehend immediately what had taken place.

A pass from Rohrer to Hugo gave BSC its first touchdown.

The second score for BSC was recorded in the third period. A 27-yard pass from Rohrer to Hugo put the ball on the six yard line, and Coeco went over the line for a touchdown.

Bloomsburg College gridiron forces recorded their third triumph of the season by defeating the air minded hard running and heavier Red Dragons of Cortland, N. Y., State, 20-14, in a wide open thrill-packed skirmish.

Considering the fine record of the Huskies and the excellent weather of the day the turn out was small, but those who were on hand saw a game in which the tide of battle surged back and forth with considerable dramatic impact and was not decided until the final minutes.

Cortland scoring: Touchdowns — Tucci (1, run); Hill (10, pass from Tucci); PAT — Tesori 2 (placements). Bloomsburg scoring: Touchdowns — Scott (54, pass from Rohrer, run); Johnson (5, run); Rohrer (1, run); PAT — Scott, (run).

A fumble recovered on Lock Haven's 18-yard line in the first period started Bloomsburg State College on the way to a 13-7 football victory Friday evening, October 14, over previously unbeaten Lock Haven State College before a crowd of approximately 4,000 at Bloomsburg Athletic Park.

On the second play after the recovery by Bloomsburg Gary Barnaba, Johnnie Johnson went off tackle for a 17-yard dash into the end zone, and Moses Scott's placement kick split the uprights to put the Huskies out in front 7-0.

Lock Haven had possession at the start of the second quarter for three plays but was forced to punt from their 40-yard marker. The Huskies took over on their own 24 to start a long hard drive up the middle of the field. The hard running Husky backs ground out yardage to put the ball on the Bald Eagles 35.

Dick Rohrer then fired a pass into the end zone to find Scott there waiting for it. Scott's placement attempt went wide.

An enraged Bald Eagle team came onto the field to start the last stanza and returned the Bloomsburg kickoff to their own 37. Duttrey raced 31 yards for the score to put his team back in the game. Bumgardner's placement added the extra point to make it 13-7.

Bloomsburg State College preserved its unmarred record by a margin of 10 seconds, defeating a stubborn Mansfield State foe, 27-21, before a Homecoming Day crowd of 3,500 on a pass engineered by a couple of sophomores — Dick Rohrer, Mechanicsburg, and Moses Scott, Upper Merion.

Some of the old grads must have been as exhausted as the players after that dramatic battle which saw the underdog Mansfield team push the Huskies all over the gridiron in the first half to take a 14-0, richly deserved lead.

The score that decided came just one play before the game was over and followed two brilliant goalline stands by Mansfield. The second time the Huskies were stopped less than six inches from pay dirt.

East Stroudsburg State College Warriors put on a brilliant 2-touchdown last period rally before a capacity homecoming crowd on their town campus to turn into dramatic victory what for much of the game seemed a lost cause and tumbled Bloomsburg State Huskies from the ranks of the undefeated in a thriller, 21-20.

Off to a fast start that featured a touchdown on a pass from Walt Snyder to Maurice Barber, and a placement by Russ Rogers, the highest scoring unit in the history of the Warrior institution was bottled up for the next 40 minutes and its vaunted defense torn apart by the Bloomsburg Huskies who three times went over the double strip for scores, once in the second period to tie and twice in the third quarter to seemingly put the game out of the reach of their hosts. But in that offensive Moses Scott, the climatic halfback from Upper Merion, missed the placement after the second touchdown although an East Stroudsburg infraction gave him a second chance (both boots ing slightly to the right) an that was a fatal blow to the Husky cause.

As group supply staff officer, Major Linn will formulate, coordinate, monitor and direct all supply activities within the recently activated recovery group which is designed to provide emergency capability for Air Force operations at pre-designated non-military air fields in the event of an attack on the United States. The new recovery group is an operational unit with an accent on supply support required by U. S. Aircraft.

Major Linn, a native of Catawissa, was educated in the public schools of Catawissa and received his high school diploma from Catawissa High School in 1936. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Bloomsburg State College and a Master of Science degree from Bucknell University.

Major Linn enlisted as an Air Force cadet in April, 1942, and became a commissioned officer upon graduation from the Air Force Navigation School at Monroe, Louisiana, in March, 1943. honorably separated from active military service in 1945 and placed in the active Air Force Reserve. As a reservist he has played a dominant role in the Air Force reserve training program and its mission of ready mobilization in the event of war. He is currently enrolled in the Air Force Extension Course Institute from which he recently received credit for the successful completion of the Air Force installations engineering course. He was promoted to the rank of major in July, 1955.

Lt. Col. Neil N. Richie, Bloomsburg R. D. 2, has been appointed Air Operations Staff Officer of the 8369th Air Reserve Recovery Group, Wyoming.

In his new position he will be advisor to the commander and will formulate and direct operations policies and programs. He will also supervise and coordinate air operations with related training activities.

Lt. Col. Richie enlisted as an Aviation Cadet September 3, 1911. He was commissioned 2nd Lieutenant April 29, 1942, and was assigned to the 92nd Bomb Group located at MacDill Field, Florida.

His first overseas assignment as a pilot was with the 92nd Bomb Group in Bovington, England, where he participated in numerous combat missions.

When the 92nd Bomb Group was transferred to Alconberry he remained at Bovington with a small segment of the group who had been chosen to set up a combat crew school with Lt. Col. Richie as its director of training. The major mission of the school was to process all new B-17 and B-24 crews assigned to the European Theater, training them in combat operations peculiar to that area.

In June, 1944, he was transferred to Chetlington, England, and assigned commander of the 10th Air Disarmament Group whose function was to follow closely the 3rd Army of France as they advanced, and to locate and disarm any German Air Force equipment including jets and rockets.

He returned to the States in March, 1946, and was released from active military service. He immediately joined the Air Force Reserve where he has been utilized at various intervals as instructor, flight commander and educational guidance staff member of the 2605th Air Reserve Center, Wyoming, Pa.

Lt. Col. Richie has been active in local civic organizations. He is chairman and executive board member of the Fishing Creek District of Columbia-Montour Council of Boy Scouts of America, and vice president of the Central Boosters Association, Central Columbia County Joint Schools. He is a member of BPOE 436, and Legion Post 273.

He is a present the assistant plant superintendent of the Columbia Silk Throwing Company, of Bloomsburg.

The following letter from Dr. Ben C. Duke, was received recently by Dr. Marguerite Kehr, former Dean of Women at Bloomsburg:

After graduation in 1953, I went to Alaska for work (really for the experience of the trip) by driving over the Alcan Highway. In late 1953 I was drafted and spent most of my time in Texas. During January, 1954, we were married and June joined me in Texarkana, Texas. In 1955, upon discharge, we moved to Hershey, Pa., where I taught until 1957. During those two years I went to Penn State summers and evenings in Harrisburg and received the Master's degree in the summer of 1957. That year I left Hershey to become a full-time graduate student on a scholarship. During the year 1958-59 I joined the faculty of education and taught while completing the dissertation. On August 10, 1959, I received the Ph.D. in Education, majoring in audio-visual education.

I wanted to go abroad very much so I spread a good number of letters around the world. Someone knew about this opening and told them about me. I received an application letter, knowing nothing about this place, and they accepted. Here I am.

We are quite pleased with this University and Japan as well. You can tell by that letter that we are having an extremely enjoyable time. Never have we done so many interesting things in such a short time. In addition to that, we are paid on Western standards and live on a Japanese economy.

I spent part of the beginning of this summer in Korea, which was interesting but sad under the poverty stricken condition there. The Army sent me there for part of my Reserve duties. I was happy for the opportunity. Then we spent a month in northern Japan on an absolutely luxurious beach. It was a dream vacation luxuriously enjoyed, since it was our first vacation in four years. I had been a full time summer student for the entire summer for four years in order to get the Ph.D. in the shortest possible time. We played tennis and swam every morning and afternoon in rich beautiful surroundings near Sendai. At the present time we have no idea when we are going back to the States.

ICU is a most unique university. We have about 800 students, of which 15 percent are from abroad, representing 12 countries. Twenty percent of the faculty come from nine countries, and the rest are Japanese. All students, after their first year, must speak English and Japanese. We struggle with the Japanese language, which is certainly one of the most difficult in the world. We live in a very pleasant apartment with a Japanese, a British, a New Zealander, and an American as our neighbors. Our backgrounds are so different, which makes things interesting. The University attempts to maintain close Christian relations with the students, who are mostly non-Christian, which is unusual in Japan, where the professor-student relation is most formal. The University is located at the edge of Tokyo on a 360 acre wooded tract, which is ideal for by bicycle riding and walking through the lovely lanes and woods. It is really quite unbelievable to have this right in Tokyo. Our buildings are outstanding and also are unbelievably impressive. For example, we have just opened a three-story library which will match any university library in the States. John D. Rockefeller III, whose son has been a student here for the past two years, gave a personal gift of $250,000 for the building. Other gifts made a total of $500,000, which can buy twice as much building in Japan as in the States. Last week when we opened it for the semester, I was astounded by it. In addition to that building, we have recently opened our new church which is quite large, seating 1,000, and quite magnificent. I never expected anything like this when we came here. Then there is the student union building, which is quite modern. So it goes. The surroundings could not be much nicer, and we surely appreciate it, particularly after a day in Tokyo.

Japan is feverishly learning English as its second language. There, native speakers are in demand to teach conversational English. We have been deluged by requests. June and I have both accepted several groups which we have been using a source of information about Japan. Our classes have been most interesting. She enjoys a class of housewives at a local YWCA, and I have a fine group of ten company executives, presidents down to executive directors. I am the only one that comes to class on the train. They all have private cars and private drivers. We learn much about Japan through these classes, and wouldn't give them up. In addition, they pay quite well.

Well, that's the situation here in Japan. Hope this gives some idea of what has happened since Bloomsburg. I must say I would be happy to hear of your experiences since walking these hills of Bloomsburg. If you have a few minutes, jot them down.

George J. Keller

A nationally known animal trainer, George Jacob Keller, 62, dropped dead while performing at the Shrine Circus in Corpus Christi, Texas, Friday, October 14.

Mr. Keller was performing in a cage of lions, panthers and tigers when he was stricken. He dropped to the floor of the cage just as he had forced the lions back on a shelf. The audience apparently thought it was a part of the performance.

Attendants realized Keller was stricken, quickly entered the cage and whipped the animals out of the enclosure.

A doctor in the audience and firemen rushed to Keller. Cause of death was not immediately determined.

The show went on before an audience of 3,000 persons without a break. Few seemed to realize what had happened.

Mr. Keller had been an animal trainer for years. He was the subject of a feature Saturday Evening Post article and had recently written a book. His home was at Cornell, California. Mrs. Keller, his third wife, was in the audience when her husband died.

Mr. Keller had been a member of the faculty of Bloomsburg State (then Teachers) College for a number of years and was head of its art department. He developed a show, "Keller's Wild Animals" which he took on the road in the summers. This proved so popular that he finally left teaching to devote full time to the wild animal act.

His appearances were numerous and in high circles in the entertainment field. His engagements included TV's "Big Top," the Palace Theater, N. Y., and Disneyland.

As a youth, Mr. Keller had always been interested in animal acts and he and a companion were constantly staging neighborhood circuses.

He never really entered the field as a professional, however, until early in his career in Bloomsburg, a college classmate sent him a lion cub from the Rocky Mountain area. On the box was a tag that said, "Here, Keller, train this." That started his career.

Prof. Keller was a graduate of Columbia University. Survivors include two daughters, Kathy and Jane, both now married and residing in New Jersey; his father and a brother, the latter a physician at Rochester, N. Y.

Alfred N. Keller

Alfred N. Keller, 81, husband of the late Mrs. Etta H. Keller, former member of the Training School faculty, died Wednesday, October 19, at the Bloomsburg Hospital.

Mr. Keller was injured in an automobile accident in Greenwood township on last May 19 and was hospitalized for five weeks. He resided with a niece, Mrs. Ivah Downing, Red Rock, for some time returning to the hospital two weeks before his death.

He was born in Orangeville, December 16, 1878, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Keller. He and Miss Etta Hirlinger were married on April 12, 1906. Mrs. Keller died in an automobile accident in 1954.

Together, they founded the Orangeville Water Company which was recently acquired by Orangeville borough.

He was a veteran of four years service in the Marines during the Spanish-American War and the insurrection.

He was employed as a woodworker at the Orangeville Agricultural Works from 1905-08, and worked in the cabinet shops of the U. S. Treasury, Washington, D. C., from 1909-14. He served as steward and game warden at the North Mountain Club at Red Rock for some time. He taught woodworking at Shickshinny High School for fifteen years, retiring in 1942.

He was a member of Orangeville United Church of Christ, Benton Lodge No. 667, F. and A. M. Caldwell Consistory, Irem Temple of Wilkes-Barre, and Mountain Lodge No. 264, IOOF, Orangeville.

A "Paul Thomas Endowment Fund" is to be established by the Student Loan Fund Committee of the Alumni Association of Bloomsburg State College, according to the will of Mr. Keller.

'Saucered and Blowed'

E. H. NELSON, '11

The athletic extravaganza known as the Modern Olympic Games was conceived, paradoxically enough, in a university classroom. It was in a lecture hall at the Sorbonne that Baron Pierre de Coubertin delivered his eloquent plea for the revival of the contests first held in Greece some twenty-seven centuries earlier.

Growing professionalism in the athletics of the 1890's was making the true amateur a dying species, and this, argued Baron de Coubertin, was a sign of moral decline. The Frenchman's inner fire succeeded in kindling the Olympic torch. In 1894, again at the Sorbonne, an international congress laid the groundwork for the realization of the Baron's dream. The time would be April, 1896; the place, appropriately enough, Athens, Greece.

The Greeks responded enthusiastically to the honor tendered them. Their architects scrupulously studied the ruins of the Panathenaic stadium, restoring it with Daedalian precision. Thousands of years earlier, no less a figure than Hercules had decided that the length of the straightway sprint should be 200 yards (one STADION). Faithful to these specifications, the Greeks constructed a standard quarter-mile cinder track which circled ancient turning posts placed one STADION apart. Although the result would produce hairpin turns, it seemed a price worth paying to give homage to Classical Antiquity. Doubtless the Olympian deities would smile favorably upon this high-minded international enterprise.

Now, sixty-four years later, I am sure Professor J. F. Dennis would have been thrilled to know that the spirit of the Olympic games had reached the field he named "Mt. Olympus," and that one of the student body would be deemed worthy of crossing the Continent to try out for the American team, after having achieved first place honors at the Penn Relays in Philadelphia. We, of the Alumni, are proud to have had an active interest in the opportunity given Terry Engleman to compete with the best in the United States for a berth on the 1960 team. The Olympic torch has now reached Bloomsburg. It will burn brighter with the passing years.

BLOOMSBURG STATE COLLEGE

WHAT CAN I DO TO HELP BLOOMSBURG?

This question is asked many times. Now we have a definite answer.

Pennsylvania must put more of its income into taxes if Education on the Elementary, Secondary, and more particularly on the Higher Education levels is to be developed to meet the needs of increased enrollments of youth.

We have heard many times in the last few months that the 1960's are the decade of decision.

If the amount of State revenue is limited, the subsidy of the State to Colleges and universities will have to be made on the basis of the services rendered by the colleges and universities to the youth of the Commonwealth whose parents are voters and taxpayers.

The business slide from recession to what may be depression, the international situation, the proposals for Health, Education and Welfare on the National level, the anticipation of the reports of the Governor's Commission on Education, and the present sessions of both the National Congress and the State Legislature indicate that decisions will have to be made early in this decade if we are to meet some of the problems that now face us.

These problems may be understood more clearly if we consider certain aspects concerning financial support of Education in Pennsylvania.

First, an understanding must be reached as to the relative claims of colleges and universities for State aid in the form of annual appropriations. There are three kinds of institutions of higher education receiving State subsidy at the present time: (1) State institutions owned, operated, and controlled by the State; (2) State-supported institutions which are not owned and operated by the State; (3) State-aided institutions who receive tax funds in the form of lump sum appropriations and use them as they see fit, without subsequent review on the part of the State to determine the uses to which these funds have been put.

The only institutions which are owned, operated and controlled by the State are the fourteen State Colleges, formerly State Teachers Colleges, and before that State Normal Schools.

The State-supported institution receiving a large proportion of State money is Pennsylvania State University, formerly Pennsylvania State College, and before that the Farmer's High School. This is the land grant college receiving federal monies, chiefly in the fields of Agriculture and Engineering, and also State monies for its other educational activities.

The State-aided colleges and universities have no legal claim for appropriations, but over a period of time it has become a custom for the State to make appropriations to an ever lengthening list of institutions, among which are the University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh, and Temple University. In the last session of the Legislature, the Dickinson Law School and Drexel Institute of Technology were added to this list.

MID-YEAR COMMENCEMENT

"What is needed today is a rededication of faith in two of our most basic attitudes — 'business-like' and 'statesmanlike'," declared Dr. Charles Stewart Sheppard, Dean of the Graduate School of Business and Public Administration, Cornell University, in an address to seniors at the mid-year commencement exercises Thursday, January 26, at Bloomsburg State College. "These are two of the most impressive words in our language," Dr. Sheppard continued. "They connote attributes such as integrity, reliability, efficiency and a sense of values."

In his discussion of "The Economic Challenge of the Sixties," the speaker pointed out that "Economic growth is the result of the concerted efforts of individuals, business concerns, and government. In a free society, the prime movement of this growth must come from the private sector of the economy. Only when the private sector cannot provide the people with the necessary goods and services should the government step in."

Dr. Sheppard posed three questions and followed each with certain suggestions.

"What do we need to maintain a dynamic private enterprise system? What are the economic challenges of the sixties? And what are the major factors making for continued growth?"

"The first factor is the rise in the number of people at work — which in turn is related to the problem of an exploding population growth. The high birth rate of the later 1940's makes it obvious that during the 1960's the labor force will advance more rapidly. From an annual average of about 80,000 during the 1950's, annual additions to the labor force are expected to almost double by the end of the 1960's.

"These additional people in the labor force will have to find jobs. We must avoid severe recession and high unemployment. The government must help to create a climate of stability, through its fiscal and monetary policies, in which business can provide the jobs for the rapidly growing labor force.

"The quality of the increased labor force must be improved. Here, education is the key to the problem. In the last decade, we have made considerable progress in improving our educational system. In 1950, we were spending $9.3 billion annually on education. Today this has increased to nearly $23 billion. If business can share in providing more and better educational opportunities by expanding its job training programs, an upgrading of our labor force should result."

The program in Carver Auditorium began with a scripture reading by Edwin Kuser, president, Class of 1961. Following Dr. Sheppard's address, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, named Marian Huttenstine, Wapwallopen, and Mary Todorowski, Mount Carmel, as recipients of the coveted Service Key and certificate for being named to "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges," respectively. Miss Huttenstine won the key for outstanding service and contribution to the

COMPLETES ASSIGNMENT

Dr. Bruce E. Adams, Professor of Geography at Bloomsburg State College, has completed an assignment with the Luzerne County and Wilkes-Barre city schools as part of their program of In-Service Education for teachers under Title III of the National Defense Education Act.

Professor Adams received his assignment through the Office of Dr. Lee Boyer, Coordinator of NDFA, Bureau of Curriculum Development, Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg.

Dr. Adams delivered four one-hour lectures in Physical Geography to the elementary teachers and science teachers of Luzerne County and Wilkes-Barre in connection with a nine-weeks program for these instructors. Other lectures were given in physical science, biological science and mathematics.

At a recent meeting of the Pennsylvania Council for Geography Education, Dr. Adams was elected a director of that state organization for a two-year period. In this capacity, he attended the Annual Spring Conference of the Council held in Erie, Pennsylvania, April 28-29.

The annual conference of the state geography organization for 1962 will be held at Bloomsburg State College.

KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Two of the 126 persons who perished in the crash of two airliners over New York were close kin of a Pennsylvania couple, graduates of BSC.

Garry C. Myers, Jr., and his wife, Mary, of Columbus, Ohio, were the son and daughter-in-law of Dr. and Mrs. Garry C. Myers, Sr., who live near Honesdale. They were aboard the Trans-World plane.

The elder Myers is the editor and his wife the co-editor of "Highlights for Children," an internationally distributed magazine with editorial offices in Honesdale. The son was president of the publishing company, which has executive offices in Columbus.

19 SENIORS SELECTED

Nineteen seniors from Bloomsburg State College have been selected for inclusion in 1959-1960 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." PLACEMENT RECORD GOOD FOR CLASS OF 1960

Statistics, reported by C. Stuart Edwards, Director of Placement, show that 91 percent of the members of the Class of 1960, who are available, are teaching. This percentage shows an increase over that of the last two years.

Of a total of 305 students, 289 are available for teaching. Of those students who are not teaching, 18 are in other fields, seven are in graduate school, ten are in the Armed Services, and five women are married and not available for teaching.

The average salary range is $3600-$5400, with the average beginning salary being $4173. The beginning salary for teachers accepting positions out-of-state is $352 more than in Pennsylvania.

The Admissions Office reports that they have received more than 1,325 applications from students who wish to enter Bloomsburg in September, 1961. It is likely that the college will accept 600 or more new students for the September term, depending on the number of upperclassmen returning at that time.

RATHBONE AT COLLEGE

Basil Rathbone one of the foremost actors of his time was featured in an evening program at the Bloomsburg State College on Friday, February 10, 1961. Mr. Rathbone, who has been acclaimed for his consistently high level of performance in his many stage and screen assignments, brought a new program, "An Evening With Basil Rathbone," to Carver Auditorium. He offered local theatre-goers a dramatic presentation of works from the pens of such literary greats as Edgar Allen Poe, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Shakespeare, Browning, Housman and others.

Special Education and Speech Correction—Carolyn Cribbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Cribbs, Riverview Road, Verona; Marjorie Ginnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ginnick, 701 Fairmount Avenue, South Williamsport; Carol Mazza, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mazza, 1123 Maple Street, Indiana; and Sandra Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moore, 62 Franklin Street, Hazleton.

UNVEILING OIL PORTRAIT

Miss Lucy Valero, Assistant Executive Secretary of the Pennsylvania State Education Association since 1957, was the featured speaker at the Annual Dinner Meeting of the Columbia County Branch, Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association, on Tuesday, February 28, 1961, in the College Commons.

One of the highlights of the evening was the unveiling of an oil portrait of Professor Howard F. Fenstermaker. The portrait, executed by Mrs. Ralph Herre, is a testimonial given Professor Fenstermaker by his colleagues in the college Faculty Association. In May, 1961, he will have served as a member of the college faculty for thirty-five years.

Prior to joining the permanent headquarters staff of the PSEA, Miss Valero served the organization for one term as its elected President. She had previously served the organization as President of the Department of Classroom Teachers, as President of the State Elementary Teachers and as a member of the Commission of Teachers Education and Professional standards. She has held various PSEA offices on the local level.

Miss Valero attended the White House Conference on Education in 1955, was a delegate to the World Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession in Manila in 1965, and attended the Governor's Conference on Education in Pennsylvania in 1958. She is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, AAUW, a life member of the National Education Association and was elected to appear in the first edition of "Who's Who of American Women." She is also a member of Pi Lambda Theta and appears in "Who's Who in the East."

Miss Valero formerly held the position of directing teacher of the fifth grade at Noss Laboratory School State College, California. She also taught in the Salem Township and State College public schools.

CLASS SCHEDULES

In response to numerous inquiries regarding the scheduling of classes in the graduate school at Bloomsburg State College, Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies, announced that all graduate classes will be scheduled during late afternoons, evening, and/or Saturdays during the regular academic year. The calendar and daily time schedule for graduate courses offered during the summer term will be similar to the calendar and daily time schedule for undergraduate courses. Graduate students will be able to pursue a full-time graduate study program during the summer. This arrangement makes it possible for in-service teachers to complete the requirements for the Master of Education degree without interference with normal professional duties. Bloomsburg will begin its graduate program during the summer sessions in June, 1961.

Curriculums in Business Education and in Elementary Education will be available for students desiring to earn the Master of Education degree at Bloomsburg. A minimum of thirty semester hours of graduate credit must be completed to fulfill requirements for receiving the degree.

During the regular nine-month academic year, a graduate student, who is teaching full time, will be permitted to enroll in a maximum of four semester hours of graduate courses each semester. A student may enroll during the summer term for a maximum of ten semester hours of courses restricted to graduate students.

Each student admitted to candidacy for the Master of Education degree will be assigned to an advisory committee consisting of two members of the graduate faculty and the Director of Graduate Studies.

The program of Graduate Studies at Bloomsburg will have as its primary purpose the increasing of the competency of elementary school teachers and of teachers of business subjects in Pennsylvania.

Application forms for admission to graduate courses are now available. A Graduate Studies Bulletin, containing information concerning

$5,000 GIFT TO COLLEGE

A $5,000 gift has been presented to Bloomsburg State College by Mrs. Clyde S. Shuman in honor of her late husband, Clyde S. Shuman. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College, announced that the contribution would be used to establish a fund for an annual Sportsmanship Award, according to the wishes of the donor. A faculty committee, headed by J. Alfred McCauslin, Dean of Students, has been appointed to develop a policy to be followed in making the annual award.

A member of the graduating Class of 1906, Mr. Shuman continued his interest in athletics at the College until his death in June, 1956, shortly after his class had celebrated its fiftieth reunion.

Following his graduation from Bloomsburg, Mr. Shuman taught school for one year, was a deputy in the Register and Recorder's Office, and was then elected to serve as Register and Recorder of Columbia County. In 1928, he began his work in finance, and later organized the Consumer Credit Company.

Mr. Shuman's son, John A., and his daughter, Josephine, attended the Benjamin Franklin Elementary Laboratory School on the Campus. His grandson, John A. Shuman, III, is a senior at the College.

Alumni contributions for scholarships, loans, library books, cultural programs, and other projects are becoming increasingly more important to the present and future welfare of students at Bloomsburg. In forthcoming messages in the Alumni Quarterly and the President's Letter to Graduates, Dr. Andruss has outlined a number of suggestions for Alumni to consider in answering the question, "What Can I Do to Help Bloomsburg?"

curriculum and course offerings, will be available for distribution before the program is inaugurated. Requests for application forms and additional information should be addressed to Dr. Thomas E. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania.

APPOINTED CHAIRMAN

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State College, has been appointed State Chairman, International Relations Committee, Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers, Inc., by Mrs. Harold G. Moore, President of the state organization. Dr. Andruss will also serve as a member of the State Legislation Committee and the Board of Managers. A meeting of the latter group was called by Mrs. Moore for January 13 and 14, 1961.

For nearly thirty-five years, Dr. Andruss has been a leader in education in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. He began his career in the Keystone State as a member of the faculty of Indiana State College. In 1930, he came to Bloomsburg to organize and head the Department of Business Education, assuming the duties of Dean of Instruction in 1937 and President in 1939.

In his twenty-one years as President of Bloomsburg, Dr. Andruss has directed the development of the institution through war and peace and through periods of economic, social, and cultural change. On behalf of education, he has appeared before Congressional Committees and their counterparts in State Governments.

During World War II, under his leadership, Bloomsburg became one of the pioneers in Aerospace Education, and as a result of his continued interest, was one of four prominent educators to be invited by Dr. Charles Boehm, Pennsylvania State Superintendent of Public Instruction, to attend each of the annual meetings of the World Congress of Flight during the past four years.

In June, 1960, he served as spokesman for the Board of State College Presidents before a meeting at the Governor's Committee on Education, Task Force No. 4 - Teacher Education.

Hobby Creates Wide Interest

Miss Ethel Ranson, long a valued teacher at BSC, has found in retirement a hobby which has become a profession creating interest and clients throughout the world.

Miss Ranson is now a resident of Florida, where she moved following her retirement from teaching six years ago. She is president of the Haviland Club of America and as busy as she has ever been.

Recently there was a feature article, with photographs, on Miss Ranson in the All Florida weekly magazine of the Sarasota Herald-Tribune. It was kindly sent to us by Mrs. Charles H. Dillon. She had received the article from her daughter, Mrs. William Lonsdale, the former Marjory Dillon, who resides in Sarasota.

The article on Miss Ranson is one of a series under the general caption of "Florida Personalities." It was written by Eve Bason and follows:

The wag who likes to invent variations on that hackneyed motto of a Western TV star would probably suggest this one for Miss Ethel Ranson of Orlando:

Have Haviland, will match.

Miss Ranson's hobby and occupation is filling in those broken pieces you've lost from your French Limoges Haviland china set — the pieces you can't get on the market today. More than 500 of the over 60,000 Haviland patterns are represented in her treasure house collection, which overflows from crowded interior rooms into a storehouse that she made from her garage.

She mends broken pieces with such delicacy the flaws are almost imperceptible. And she gets orders for everything from teacups to platters and pitchers from all over the world. A recent one from Saudi Arabia came in the same mail with one from the Virgin Islands.

To match a piece of a set, Miss Ranson likes to have a sizeable piece of the broken china. On a small piece the pattern may be indistinct, she explains, and many of the old patterns are very similar.

Miss Ranson does all of her own packing in a "shipping department" — an area between her garage and home. Each piece is individually wrapped in tissue, padded and boxed, then placed in a larger box with layers and layers of wadded newspapers placed in between for safe delivery. She had a record of never losing a piece of china that she has packed and shipped! Off the package goes to make some Haviland collector happy, and leaving a warm glow with the sender for being able to fill the order.

The exquisite patterns of old Haviland china had always fascinated Miss Ranson, and as a teacher in Pennsylvania she began collecting pieces for her own enjoyment. After retirement, the hobby became an occupation. When she decided to move to Florida, she was overwhelmed to find that her china and glass collection took 14 barrels and 37 boxes. She became an official representative of the Haviland firm when Theodore Haviland, III, heard about her when he was visiting in Florida.

Orders for broken cups are most frequent. To meet this demand she has formed a unique method of substitution for the regular cup that is almost fool-proof. If the cup handle is intact, she can cement it to a bullion cup of the same pattern, and presto — there's a new cup. Since there is little call for the bullion cups today, the supply takes up the slack for the hard-to-find teacups.

Where does she get all her china? At auctions, private sales, antique stores, through the grapevine with other collectors, magazine advertisements and individuals who just walk in the front door.

During World War II, operations at the Haviland factory in France closed, which made Haviland china owners possessors of heirlooms. After the war, two of the Haviland brothers, Frederick and Theodore, began manufacturing china in this country, which has become known as the American Haviland.

But it is the old French Havi-

ARTISTS' EXHIBITION

The Mid-States Artists' First Invitational Exhibition was held at Bucknell University. As one of the participating artists, Mrs. Myrrl Krieger, a member of the Art Department faculty at Bloomsburg State College, exhibited an oil-collage portrait of Miss Patricia Houtz, a former member of the Bloomsburg Business Education instructional staff, now on the faculty of Pennsylvania State University.

The Mid-State Exhibitors is a loose federation of artists dedicated to good craftsmanship with a sense of responsibility for furthering the traditions of various artistic disciplines. This first annual exhibit is made up of invited works, representing, in the judgment of the organization, the authoritative artistic accomplishments of Central Pennsylvania.

The exhibit will be seen at many colleges, universities, and municipal centers of this area, and is expected to come to Bloomsburg in April.

Another collage by Mrs. Krieger, entitled "Susquehanna," was bought by Pennsylvania State University through a special purchase fund, and was presented to the University for its permanent collection.

land patterns from Limoges that Miss Ranson carries and matches for her customers.

Sharing the crowded rooms at the modest Ranson home are Twinkles, a blonde cocker spaniel; Peter Joe, a shaded silver Persian cat, and Chieng, a beautiful Siamese cat. They are as careful where they jump and play as if they had as deep an interest in the beautiful old china and glass as their interesting mistress!

And of course they take their meals in a Haviland bowl.

Johnson, Director, Division of Elementary Education; Miss Edna Barnes, Supervisor, Practice Teachers; Mrs. Iva Mae Beckley, Laboratory School, Grade 2; Miss Beatrice Englehart, Laboratory School, Kindergarten; Mrs. Deborah Griffith, Laboratory School, Grade 4; Kenneth Roberts, Laboratory School, Grade 5; Miss Mary Kramer, Laboratory School, Special Education.

Dr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss, Bloomsburg State College, sailed from New York at noon on December 19, 1960, for a twenty-four day Mediterranean cruise. Sailing aboard the S. S. Independence, Dr. and Mrs. Andruss visited Santa Cruz, Algeciras, Naples, Genoa, Rome, Cannes, Barcelona, Palma, Gibraltar, Casablanca and Madeira. They returned to New York on Thursday, January 12, 1961.

OPERA OUTSTANDING

In one of its most ambitious dramatic and musical programs, Bloomsburg State College scored an outstanding success December 19, 1960, in a moving and sympathetic interpretation of Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Nearly 400 enjoyed the presentation in Carver Hall auditorium of the musical story which has been made familiar to millions in the Christmas season through the medium of television. The collegiate presentation measured well in comparison with the professional.

The presentation was repeated Sunday afternoon. There was no charge. The opera was a Christmas gift of the college to the community.

Roderick Schleicher, a Ben Franklin sixth grader and son of Prof. and Mrs. Russell Schleicher, mastered the lead role of Amahl, the little crippled boy who in his imagination played host to the Three Wise Men. The difficult assignment was outstanding.

Donna Lore, Berwick, soprano, in the role of the mother, performed well above the standard for college students. Capable presentations were given by the Three Kings: Kasper, James R. C. Leitzel, tenor, member of the faculty; Melchior, bass, Ernest Shuba, Glen Lyon; Balhazar, baritone, John Sills, Burlington, N. J. Bloomsburg sophomore Eugene Steinruck, baritone, sang the role of the page.

The presentation was made against a musical background of a chorus of villagers and shepherds by members of the College Choralists who staged the production along with the Bloomsburg Players. Musical director was Miss Mildred Bisgrove and William F. Cope was stage director and designer. Miss Helen Kelly was in charge of costumes and make-up.

DR. ANDRUSS PROPOSES CHANGES IN THE STATE COUNCIL

"A single policy making Council of Education for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is a necessity," Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of Bloomsburg State College, declared recently at a legislative conference of Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers held at the Governor's Hotel, Harrisburg.

Dr. Andruss is chairman of the personnel committee of the Board of Presidents of Pennsylvania 14 State Colleges, and also a member of the legislative committee of the Congress of Parents and Teachers. He serves the latter unit as chairman of the committee on international relations.

The local educator spoke out against a bill to set up a separate or second council dealing with higher education which has been introduced at the present session of the Legislature.

"If passed," he commented, "this legislation would create a situation in which college and universities are separated by a wide gulf from a secondary schools whose graduates must be evaluated for admission to college without regard to previous preparation. To require a certain pattern for admission to college may force curriculums to conform to a pattern set by colleges for colleges.

"The existence of two Councils of Education would make it necessary for education to be coordinated by the Legislature and/or the Governor. Therefore, education at all levels would be forced into the political arena where politicians are neither fitted for nor interested in making wise and valid policy decisions.

"No one educational group should be allowed to use legislation to enact its area of educational influences into law.

"Education must be responsibly located in one body with authority to act in matters dealing with education; this body must also be charged with corresponding responsibility without regard to political party affiliations, economic interests, or educational philosophy biased in favor of one kind of school, college or university.

"A State Council of Education must not become the tool of any one group of educators, or kind of colleges, to further their narrow, vested self-interest. If this should happen the youth of Pennsylvania will continue to be educated only if 'papa's pocketbook' permits.

"In this time of continuing international crisis, the minds of gifted children must be developed if Pennsylvania and our great nation are to continue to be the bulwark of democracy and the hope of the world for peace."

Dr. Andruss pointed out that state Council of Education considers all level of instruction; this includes the instructional programs of elementary schools, secondary schools and colleges and universities.

He suggests a body of twenty-one members in which not more than fourteen or two-thirds of the total membership would be members of one political party. This body may include within itself a council of elementary and secondary schools and a council of higher education. Each of these two groups would be composed of seven members nominated by the council, appointed by the Governor, and approved by the Senate.

Members of the single council proposed by Dr. Andruss would be appointed in three classes of seven each: one to serve two seconds, another four and a third six. Then seven would be named to full terms each six years. He pointed out these terms will overlap and provide for continuity of policy.

Fourteen of the members, according to the local educator, should be laymen; not more than seven identified with schools or colleges as instructors, administrators in education or members of school boards, trustees of colleges and such.

This, he said, means fourteen members of the council will be laymen who are not connected with any elementary or secondary school, college, university or other educational institution.

EDUCATOR GIVES TALK

"We were strongly convinced that Soviet dedication to education is our greatest challenge," Dr. O. H. English, superintendent of Abington Township School, told members of the Bloomsburg State College Faculty Association recently in an illustrated talk at the College Commons.

Dr. English, who visited the USSR in 1959, said the great threat is not the Russian attainments but rather their aspirations. What we have to learn from Soviet education, he said, is not a philosophy or a system. The lesson we must learn from the communists stems from their attitude toward education.

The educator said "we left the Soviet Union feeling that the clouds which separate the U. S. and the USSR, might not be so dense as we sometimes imagine."

Dr. English told of over 700,000 Russian children who are taken to the schools at seven o'clock each Monday and remain there until the following Saturday afternoon. During their work in the classroom they are under heavy pressure to work hard and produce up to their capacity. He said if they fail to do this, pressure is put on parents to the extent the parent may lose his job and that means the family does not eat.

He frequently emphasized the high esteem in which teachers are held and pointed out their salaries are among the highest in Russia; as good or better than other professional people such as engineers.

Dr. English said secondary school teachers work only about eighteen hours a week and have ten minutes completely free from any contact with students between each period. Principals and teachers seemed to be competent and well prepared and, on the average, he would say principals had the equivalent of five years of college education.

Dr. English commented on the fine staffing of the schools and to bear that out he told of one elementary school of eighty-eight students with fourteen members on the teaching staff. Stressed was the amount of regimentation, with type of work. In his opinion the all assigned to a particular task or Russians are now more afraid of the Red Chinese than of Americans.

In this country we feature popcorn and candy in theatres and other places where people congregate. In Russia such centers are devoted to the sale of books.

The faculty members were shown slides which the party made of five of the largest cities in Russia and Poland. In all of these cities, especially those in which there had been great destruction in World War II, they are building miles and miles of big apartment buildings.

He was told in Moscow the objective is to replace all old apartments in the next six to seven years. At the time he visited there all about 20,000 were residing in apartments.

The Abington educator pointed out that in Russia students are paid to go to college. In his description of the University of Moscow he said about $200 million dollars had been spent on the physical plant thus far and added there were more books in the libraries in this university than we would find in the combined libraries of Penn State University, University of Pittsburgh, University of Pennsylvania and Temple.

Speaking briefly of the subway system, he described it as being 150 to 200 feet under ground with beautiful lobbies and corridors, well lighted and attractively decorated with wall paintings. He was told the Russians hope to have 167 miles of subway in Moscow completed by 1966.

You do not find litter in the streets and the city is exceptionally clean.

He showed a picture of an American flag at half mast on a Russian building. It was at the time of a steel strike here and was being used in connection with propaganda which was designed to present the story American workers were being enslaved by Industrialists.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

The legislature has received a capital funds budget totaling $241,653,991 from Governor Lawrance.

Recommended for Bloomsburg State College was $2,804,238 for the construction of a men's dormitory, library and auditorium.

Of this amount approximately $800,000 is planned for a four-story dormitory, to be erected on the present site of Old North Hall. It will house between 200 and 250 students and provisions have been made to use the basement of the structure as a dining hall in which family-style evening meals can be served. Present kitchen facilities will be used to prepare the food which will be eaten to the dining area.

The cost of the library has been estimated at $750,000. It will be a three-story building and will have shelf space for over 100,000 books. It is planned to be built on Mt. Olympus, on the site now occupied by the baseball diamond. Administrative offices will be located on the main floor.

A new baseball diamond will be built on farm property of the college east of Chestnut street and adjoining the campus. It will be part of a planned area to care for all phases of athletics at the school.

The balance of the state funds will go into construction of the auditorium. It is planned for an area near Navy Hall, facing Spruce street with the back at Light Street Road.

It will have a seating capacity of 2,000, with 1,200 on the main floor and balcony accommodations for 800.

All of the buildings will be of brick construction with stone trim and are planned as part of an expansion program in which administrators foresee an increase in student population from a present 2,000 to approximately 3,000 during the 1960s.

SPRING STYLE SHOW

"Mouse" may not have the springtime zing of hot pink, lavender, paprika, mustard and azalea, but it was one of the more talked-about new colors featured at the fifteenth annual fashion show, "Overtures of Fashion," staged recently at Carver Hall, BSC.

The new gray-rown shade was presented in an attractive sportswear ensemble. The other new springtime hues were featured in flower-filled chapeau, bright sportswear, colorful print bathing suits and rain coats and in the simple but flattering coat and dress designs for the new season.

For the first time in several years, the weather man smiled on the fashion show and there was standing room only for the performances, both afternoon and evening. Many schools in the region sent busloads of home economics students to the afternoon presentation.

"Color" is the catchword this spring. Even the children's fashions modeled by youngsters of the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School reflected the bright trend. Those who took part, under the supervision of coordinator, Patricia Wadsworth, were Amy Levan, Mark Naar, Gwen Salada, Bobbie Rashkin, Debbie Hughes, Betsy Fritz, Ricky Martin, Justine Blair, Ken Kocher, Linda Hobe, Jim Patterson, Donna Kline, John Hoch, Cheryl Kuziak, Ronald Zeigler and Barry Satz.

The attractive stage setting by Robert Ulmer was a simple balcony and stairway with white wrought iron garden furniture and a beautiful floral arrangement in shades of lavender reflecting the popularity of that shade in the spring fashion picture. Organ music was provided by Ann Kindig.

Judy Gross was the capable fashion coordinator assisted by Shelby Burhman. Serving as models were Donna Brown, Mary Lou Buck, Shelby Burhman, Joan Dahlhausen, Nancy Engel, Mary Ferner, Barbara Flanagan, Elizabeth Galatha, Barrie Jane Iveson, Carol Lee Jones, Patti Lello, Carol Ann Mazza, Marty Moyer, Elaine Reifsnnyder, Mary Shuman, Margie Snook, Patricia Wadsworth.

High points of the presentation were a group of attractive mix and match casuals, the colorful bathing suits in stripes and prints, a dainty "Jacqueline" coat and hat, a striking black spring coat with flaring hemline and the dramatic presentation of the new spring chapeau.

Mrs. Margaret E. McCern was director; Mrs. Evelyn Sachs, in charge of program; Roger and David Sharp, lighting; Sylvia Knauer was the head store coordinator assisted by Connie Allegrucci, Joni Alper, Elaine Anderson, Kathy Bannon, Myrna Bassett, Pat Biehl, Sally Chambers, Jeanie Fischer, Carrie Harris, Bonnie Hoffman, Nancy Lagunas, Pat Lagunas, Lanis Miller, Jesse Reppy, Marilyn Rhinehimer, Kathy Sinkler and Pat Whittaker.

The attractive fashions were provided by Arcus', Deisroth's, The Diane Shop, W. T. Grant Company, Harry Logan Jeweler, Snyder's Millinery and Maree's.

Two of the nation's outstanding musical groups, the Brothers Four and Buddy Morrow and his Orchestra, were featured in a week-end of big-name entertainment at the Bloomsburg State College on Friday, March 10, and Saturday, March 11, 1961. For the fourth time in a two-year period, a student committee from the College Community Government Association made arrangements for what proved to be the most spectacular of the four occasions. Previous attractions included: Louis Armstrong and his All Stars, Maynard Ferguson and the Four Freshmen.

Miss Honora M. Noyes, former member of the BSC faculty, and since 1957, member of the faculty of the College of Commerce, West Virginia University, received the degree of Doctor of Education at the University of Maryland. The subject of her doctor's dissertation was "The Role of the Executive Secretary as a Member of Management."

(The following is quoted from the Oklahoma City Times March 10, 1960:

The top Methodist executive in this 8-state area resigned his post here Thursday. The area consists of Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

Dr. Paul Womeldorf, south central jurisdiction executive secretary since 1944, surprised the jurisdictional council meeting, in session in the Skirvin Hotel, by offering his resignation. He indicated he wishes to retire from the active ministry.

The council voted to accept his resignation, and set termination date at January 1, 1961.

Bishop William C. Martin, Dallas, paid tribute to Dr. Womeldorf, who headquarters here, and expressed the jurisdiction council's gratitude for his work.

The council was told that a special service will be held in Dr. Womeldorf's honor during the jurisdictional conference, scheduled June 22-26 in San Antonio.

Dr. Womeldorf's resignation came within minutes after he began his report to the annual council meeting. He reportedly had made his action known Wednesday evening to the council's executive committee, which met in a preliminary session.

"Now, coming to the close of 16 years of service as executive secretary, and before the calendar and physical limitations say 'you must,' I am requesting the council to accept my resignation as executive secretary in order that I may take the 'retired relations' in my ministerial classification," Dr.

Womeldorf told the group.

Reading from a prepared statement, he said he was convinced "I was divinely guided when I consented to accept the position . . . 16 years ago.

"Knowing that the expanding program of the jurisdiction, and that increased demands will be made upon the time and the leadership of the executive secretary, I feel this is the wise step to make."

He pointed out most of his ministerial years have been given to administrative work. He paid tribute to Methodists "in the episcopacy, among the personnel of the staffs of our general boards, the members of the general, the jurisdictional and annual conference boards, in the pulpits and among the laity."

Dr. Womeldorf represents Oklahoma and Methodism on the general board of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. He is one of two Oklahomans on the general board.

Mrs. Womeldorf was formerly Eudora Walton, of the Class of 1911. Dr. and Mrs. Womeldorf are now living at 5112 Monrovia Street, Shawnee, Kansas.

Plans for the Joint Reunion of the Classes of 1950 and 1951 are progressing well. Reminder cards are going out to be followed by reservation letters. The reunion will be held at the College Commons on Alumni Day, May 27, 1961, at 7:00 P. M. If you are one of the Fabulous

'50'ers how about helping? Drop a line to at least one or two or six of your old Bloomsburg classmates and make plans to meet them at the Commons on May 27.

Too many of our class do not receive the Quarterly, so your personal contact may be just the push needed to get a crowd out to the reunion. Do your part — see you there!

What Can I Do To Help Bloomsburg?

Second, it would seem that this Commonwealth would have to arrange the relative claims of these three classes of institutions in some preferential order.

Third, a general survey discloses that the relative amount of appropriations has been changing in the past decade.

Formerly, the per capita appropriation to State Teachers Colleges amounted to twice as much per student as it did to what was then Pennsylvania State College. In more recent years, this two-to-one relationship has been reversed, and in the last Session of the Legislature, Pennsylvania State University received twice as much per student as did the Pennsylvania State Colleges.

Fourth, if the length of the list of private institutions receiving public monies continues to grow with the addition of one or two colleges, universities, or professional schools at each Session of the Legislature, in time, the amounts of appropriations for private institutions will exceed the amounts allocated to Pennsylvania State University and Pennsylvania State Colleges.

It would seem reasonable that there should be an accountability on the part of the institution and a report to the State as to the uses to which appropriations are put.

Fifth, the relative costs to students, whose parents have incomes in the middle economic brackets, should receive consideration, since the State's chief concern is to provide higher education opportunity for those of its youth whose parents are not able to pay their way.

Sixth, the present budget being considered by the Legislature provides $530 per student per year; the student pays an additional $212 per year, providing a total of $742 to cover the cost of instruction for each student enrolled in September, 1960, in the fourteen Pennsylvania State Colleges.

This amount is not adequate. In 1957-1958, a survey was made of the instructional costs for one year in 268 public colleges and universities in the United States; of these, 96 were Teachers Colleges. The average amount expended was $823 per student. Certainly, with inflation at work in a four year period, this amount would be expected to reach or exceed $900. Forty-one of the 96 Teachers Colleges, which were used as a basis for the computation resulting in $823 per year, were located in the Middle Atlantic and New England States.

Seventh, if provision is not made for increased enrollments in September, 1961, and most State Colleges will increase by at least 10% over September, 1960, then the amount of dollars available per student will be even less than $530, which is not adequate to maintain a program of higher education for intending teachers. Therefore, the findings of the Governor's Commission on Higher Education and Teacher Education are anticipated with keen interest by all those in higher education, and should be a subject of some thought by graduates who are Alumni of Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges.

Eighth, if we are to have additional appropriations for colleges and universities in Pennsylvania, it follows that we shall have to have new taxes; otherwise, the only people who will be able to go to college in the future will be those whose parents come from the higher economic brackets. A democracy cannot continue if it depends on leaders whose basis of selection is their "papa's pocketbooks." Unless we keep the ladder of education open for all worthy youth to climb as high as their abilities will permit, we shall have closed the possibilities of growth to the future leaders of this great democracy. Without an educated leadership, America cannot continue long to be the bastion of Democracy and the Hope of the Western World.

President

P. S. (1) Write, telephone or talk personally with your State Representative or Senator about increasing State appropriations from $530 to $750 per student in State Colleges. Pennsylvania State University is requesting $833 per student or $1,000.00 for 1200 students.

MISS EDNA J. BARNES WILL RETIRE AT END OF TERM

Miss Edna J. Barnes, Supervisor of Elementary Education at Bloomsburg State College for the past nine years and a member of the college faculty for 29 years, will retire at the end of the present semester in May, 1961. A native of Illinois, Miss Barnes earned the Bachelor of Science degree at Western University, Macomb, Illinois, and the Master of Arts degree at Columbia University. She did additional graduate work in teacher education at the University of Colorado and Columbia University.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg in February, 1929, Miss Barnes had taught for seven years in the elementary schools of Illinois, was Associate Supervisor of Elementary Education at Winona State College, Minnesota, for two and a half years, and completed a year of graduate study at Columbia University. She has also taught during summer sessions at Bloomsburg, Clarion State Colleges, and Bucknell University.

Of the many hobbies she enjoys, traveling during the summer, is probably her favorite. She has made three trips to Mexico, two to Central America, and has traveled extensively in the United States and Canada. Her lectures and films have delighted thousands in the past 25 years.

NOTE FROM THE BUSINESS MANAGER

This is about the first time in the 35 years that Howard Fowler Fenstermaker, '12, has been Editor of the "Alumni Quarterly," that I have issued a positive directive concerning the make-up of the paper.

At my insistence, this month's cover carries a copy of the portrait so well executed by Mrs. Herre, wife of a present faculty member. On Alumni Day this painting will be presented officially to the College. We hope many friends of the Editor will be on hand when the presentation is made.

Miss Barnes was honored by the Faculty Association of the College at the annual dinner meeting on April 12 in the College Commons.

Her plans for the future include a trip to Australia in September, continuing her teaching career in other states, and studying anthropology.

Trinity Episcopal Church, Williamsport, was the setting for the marriage on Wednesday, December 28, of Miss Marjorie Ann Ginnick to Thomas Eugene Stover.

The Rev. Albert H. Head performed the ceremony.

The bride, a graduate of South Williamsport Area Junior - Senior High School, is a senior at Bloomsburg State College.

Mr. Stover, a graduate of BSC, is a teacher and basketball coach in the Bainbridge N. Y., School District.

QUARTERLY PLAN BEING STUDIED

The fourteen State Colleges in Pennsylvania have received permission to operate on a year-round, four term basis beginning in 1961.

The proposal, submitted by Dr. Ralph Heiges, President of Shippensburg State College, was approved November 2 at a meeting of the 14-member state board of presidents at Franklin and Marshall College.

Under the quarter system, the terms would last about twelve weeks each. With college opening in September, the quarters would end in November, February, May, and August. Short vacations would separate each term. Attendance is not required at the summer term, but those who follow each quarter consecutively will be able to complete the standard four-year curriculum in three calendar years.

Instead of enrolling for the usual five courses a semester, students would enroll for three or four courses a term. Class periods would be lengthened from an hour to 75 minutes. More time would be devoted to each subject; however, the number of class meetings per week would remain the same.

Fees would remain approximately the same, but would cover only three of the four quarters. The fourth quarter, probably the summer term, would be an additional cost.

Dr. Charles Boehm, Superintendent of Public Instruction, encouraged this accelerated plan and said that it would make room for more students to attend college when demands for admission are increasing.

The decision to change from the present system is left to the discretion of the individual schools. Dean Hoch reported that "BSC administrative officers and faculty are studying the plan, but no action is anticipated until the legislature grants additional appropriations to implement the plan."

CLASS PROPHET OF '71 FORESEES SPACE AGE

The following is an extract from the class prophecy given at the Graduation of the Class of 1871. The writer was Miss Annie Hendershott, mother of Mrs. Harry S. Keller, Sr., and grandmother of Mrs. Courtney Bright, Sr., of Bloomsburg.

The quotation is of particular interest in these days of the Space Age.

"Our worthy President will go to one of the first colleges in the land, graduate with the highest honors of his class, go to California, marry well, and in twenty-five years, by the unanimous vote of the people, will be made Governor of the state — proving a rare anomaly, a politician brave and without reproach, whom the office seeks — not he the office. Mr. A. will astound the whole world with his wonderful discoveries and inventions. He will immortalize himself by finding a more rapid system of locomotion. Whether this will be by electricity or something else I dare not predict. Twenty years hence the continent will be crossed and the earth circumnavigated in a day. A journey will be undertaken to the Moon or Jupiter with less hazard, and in the same time as now to Europe. He will be the inventor of a hydrogen light and heat. A brilliant time that will be when a few pails full of water will make light and heat enough to last a day. At the Reunion in '86 we shall see by the aid of his hydrogen light, and in '91 we shall all go on a pleasure excursion to the world's fair in Jupiter. Every child in the land will be familiar with the name of this great inventor. There has never been but a single Newton and Morse, but there will be but one Aikman."

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Ann Tarr, Bloomsburg, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Tarr, Bloomsburg, and Thomas Tarr, Shamokin, to John Edward Demby, son of Carl Demby, Medford, N. J., was solemnized Saturday, April 1, in First Methodist Church, Bloomsburg.

Dr. Kuster made these remarks at the unveiling of the Fenstermaker portrait. I am sure they will be of interest to you.

"It is a great honor to represent the faculty of Bloomsburg State College on this very special occasion.

"Howard and I date our friendship back to our student days at Old Normal. There were times when we enjoyed the hospitality as weekend guests, each in the other's home. Later we were stamped with the traditions of the same University. When I came to Bloomsburg to live we shared family hospitality, joys and sorrows, and the rare experience of instructing each other's children. Howard Junior and Mary Lou reflecting the sterling traits of their parents' intellect, character, temperament and philosophy of life.

"Howard and I have never quarreled, differed in politics or in the intrinsic value of his puns. We have never loaned each other significant sums of money, for very good reasons. However, I would not hesitate to give him a key to my home.

"Speaking for all of you, it's a great pleasure to tell Howard Fowler Fenstermaker, B.A., M.A., Assistant Professor of Foreign Languages, how highly we esteem him for his warm friendship, sterling character, impeccable integrity, sly humor, spontaneous punning, high scholarship and charitable tolerance of the opinions and conduct of all of us; to express our admiration of his great versatility as a teacher of Languages, Mathematics, Psychology, History, Music, and Philosophy; for his unusual talent as a composer and transposer of music; for his contributions to civic organizations as officer or pianist, and, as organist, deacon, choir director and teacher in his Church; for his tireless devotion in service for the College Alumni Association; for the selfless spirit that allowed him to happily accompany well paid artists with the compensation of only a handshake and 'thank you'; for never grumbling about his salary, but saying 'If the Lord could trust me with more money, I believe He will see that I get more: and for his genuine affection for all of us.

"Howard, as you reach out to us in your quiet manner, we, your colleagues, are happy to join with you and Mary, in the joy of this evening."

DR. ELNA HARRISON NELSON

Dr. Elna Harrison Nelson, one of the area's best known and most active men, died at 11:00 o'clock Wednesday morning, June 7, in the Bloomsburg Hospital. He had been a patient in the institution since April 30. Death was due to complications.

Dr. Nelson, recognized as one of the outstanding authorities in the nation in the field of health education, was a teacher and department head most of his life, but since 1947 had been secretary of Caldwell Consistory and was widely known throughout much of the nation for his Masonic activities.

One of his principal interests was the Bloomsburg State College, where he was a faculty member for twenty-one years, and president of the Alumni Association for fifteen years, holding the latter office at the time of his death.

A recognized leader in all fields of civic endeavor, one of his last projects was arranging the fiftieth anniversary of his class of 1911 at the College. Although he was a patient in the hospital for some weeks prior to that event, he directed the planning and also that for the general alumni meeting.

An excellent speaker and master of ceremonies he gave the featured address at many dinners and meetings throughout the area and presided at an even larger number of such functions.

He was a fan of all sports, and in his years at the Bloomsburg State College much was accomplished in the athletic program. His favorite was baseball, a sport in which he excelled as a young man and in which he directed some splendid College teams including the undefeated one of 1934.

Danny Litwhiler, a major leaguer for ten years and now coach at the University of Florida, was one of his proteges and a firm friend.

Much of his life was devoted to helping others and he was especially happy when he could do a good turn for young people. His friends were legion and from all walks of life. The entire area was saddened by word of his death although it had been known for some time that his condition was critical.

Surviving are his wife, the former Caroline L. Brown; a daughter, Mrs. Paul G. Jacobs, Stamford, Conn.; a grandson, Eric W. Jacobs; a sister, Mrs. Lillian Yerkes, Honesdale and a brother, State Police Detective Sergeant Victor L. Nelson, Wyoming.

Funeral services were in charge of the Rev. Robert C. Angus, pastor of First Presbyterian Church. Interment was private in Dyberry cemetery, Wayne County.

It was Dr. Nelson's wish that, in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Memorial Endowment Fund of Caldwell Consistory and to the Alumni Scholarship Funds of the Bloomsburg State College, Earl A. Gehrig, treasurer.

The son of the late Lafayette Wellington Nelson and Rosa Baker Nelson, he was born in Dyberry, Wayne County, November 5, 1888.

He graduated from the Bloomsburg State Normal School, now the State College, in 1911, received his A. B. Degree from the University of Michigan in 1917, his Master of Education Degree at Harvard in 1924 and his Ph. D. from New York University in 1932.

He started his teaching career in the rural schools of Wayne County, where he taught from 1906 to 1909, and was a member of the faculty at Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, now Lycoming College, from 1911 to 1914.

Dr. Nelson was head of the department of physical education of Highland Park, Michigan, High School and Junior College from 1917 to 1922 and director of physical education and recreation of the Bethlehem, Pa., public schools from 1922 to 1924.

He returned to Bloomsburg State College in 1924 as director of health education where he remained until 1945 when he was named chief of health and physical education, Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction, serving to 1947.

That year he was named secretary of Caldwell Consistory, a position he held at the time of his death.

He was a member of Williamsport Lodge No. 106, F. & A. M.; Caldwell Consistory, and Irem Temple Shrine, Wilkes-Barre. He was crowned a Thirty-third Degree Mason in 1944.

He was a director of the First National Bank, Bloomsburg, chairman of the Columbia County Red Cross Chapter, 1934-35, a member of the executive committee of the Columbia and Montour Boy Scout Council and for several years chairman of the camping committee of the Columbia County Girl Scout Council.

He was a trustee and chairman of the scholarship committee of the Jacques Weber Foundation, established by the president of Bloomsburg Mills and under which numerous scholarships for four years in college have been awarded to young men of the area.

He was a veteran of World War I, being in the Officers Training School, Camp Lee, Va., in 1918. He was director of physical and military training of Navy units at the Teachers College during World War II and a member of the Army Advisory Commission, District 2.

Dr. Nelson was also a member of the American Academy of Social and Political Science and the Society of State Directors of Physical Education.

He took over the leadership of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association following the death of R. Bruce Albert in the mid-forties and served in that office until his death, building the Association to its strongest position and giving it its most active pro-

TRIBUTES TO DR. NELSON

(From "Fanning" Column,

To pick out one field of activity and say Dr. E. H. Nelson enjoyed that most would be stating something that would be difficult to prove. The doctor enjoyed life and inasmuch as there are many facets in the complex of living, there were many things in which he was engaged and he entered into each with the same enthusiasm.

One field which got his attention from boyhood was athletics. One of the foremost men in the field of health education of his time, he realized the value of athletics and worked constantly to see that all who wanted to participate in the wholesome field of sports had an opportunity to do so.

It was this interest that led him into the field of directing health programs—first at Highland Park, Mich., later at Bethlehem, Pa., then at his local alma mater and finally as director of the public school program of the commonwealth.

You could find the doctor at all types of sports events and constantly working to get any phase of the program over the rough spots, but his favorite was baseball.

He played it as a youngster and young man and was a capable catcher who broke into the Wayne county lineup as a mere slip of a boy. One of the occasions he seldom missed was the annual baseball dinner at Honesdale for all of the Wayne county nines. He always had a wonderful time in his native community. We were with him at a couple of those festivities and we know how he enjoyed himself and how much he added to the gram in the history of the school.

Dr. Nelson was a member of Phi Delta Kappa at Harvard and Phi Kappa Sigma at Dickinson. He was a member and former trustee of First Presbyterian Church, long a member of the Bloomsburg Kiwanis Club of which he was a past president and also past district governor and a member of the Bloomsburg Lodge of Elks.

joy of the home folks on those occasions.

One of the things which paid off so well for the doctor was his enthusiasm. He handled baseball in a period when it wasn't the crowd pleaser on most campuses as was football and basketball. But he brought to the sport an intensity which won the loyalty and best from his squad and the interest of the student body.

He was always injecting something special into the setup. Once in the thirties he lined up an Eastern vacation baseball trip. It may not have been the only one for a Huskie nine but it is the only one we know of.

The trip had its highlight at the outset. The team went to Philadelphia to play the University of Penn and Danny Litwhiler, later to become a fine performer in professional baseball, hit a grand slam home run in the ninth and Bloomsburg defeated the Quakers.

"Doc" got a lot of letters from Bloomsburg grads from all over the land on that triumph.

One of the marks of a successful coach is that the boys keep in contact. The doctor got A plus in that department. He could talk about "his boys" most anytime you met him. They were always writing to tell how things were going with them and to inquire how things were with the coach.

Litwhiler was one who kept in closest contact. Early in the spring the doctor got a letter from Danny, now baseball coach at the University of Florida, telling how one of his boys had made it with the Kansas City A's. We recall a line in that letter. It read: "I know now the feeling you experienced a number of years ago. It certainly is a fine feeling when one of your boys makes the grade. I'll always remember the many fine things you did for me."

Danny also wrote, more recently, to tell that he had been offered the coaching job at the University of Michigan, the doctor's alma mater. We know he would have been thrilled if Danny had taken that job but he understood when it was turned down. He told us: "The family has been moving about and now they are settled. I think he was wise in turning it down." The doctor could always see and consider the other fellow's viewpoint.

He sold the gospel that sports are fun. He was usually associated with winning teams, but whether his clubs were winning or losing, he had things so arranged that everyone had a good time. He had that rare talent of keeping things in their proper perspective.

They always got a great deal of work accomplished at practice sessions, but at the same time each one was relaxed and enjoying himself. They went all out to win but there was seldom a "do or die" tension. The relaxed squad often won the close ones for the simple reason that they were treating the contest as a game.

The doctor in his life span of three score and twelve years had a good time because he liked people and enjoyed being with them and because he always added a little sunshine, a little something extra to any gathering or any job.

We were pretty closely associated with him since he came to Bloomsburg in 1924 and we know that he was happiest when he had the opportunity to make the load a little lighter and the pathway a little brighter for someone else.

No one can build a more substantial memorial.

I rejoice with you in having for so many years the friendship and guidance of Elna Harrison Nelson, a great and distinguished son of Bloomsburg. His many interests touched, vitalized and strengthened every phase of our American life through his interest and work in religion, in education, in civic and family life, in fraternal activities, in physical welfare, and in the progress and success of his students.

It was my privilege to collaborate in writing the college song "Maroon and Gold", the last stanza of which ends with the lines

"A pledge to the faith of old,

To the Men, to the Team, to the Spirit of Old Bloomsburg."

This, I believe is the challenge that our friend has left us, and in his memory it is for us to hold the torch high and to keep the flame burning brightly.

CLASSMATE PAYS TRIBUTE

A. K. Naugle, '11

In the death of Dr. Elna H. Nelson, better known to close friends and classmates as "EH" or Jack, the community, his friends and classmates have suffered a severe loss.

He was a man of sterling character, a loyal and true friend with but one thought in mind—to help his fellowmen.

His work was his life, whether for the family he loved so much, his church, the "College on the Hill" of which he was a part, or his class of 1911 to which he gave a large measure of his time and energy for more than half a century. Thru his untiring efforts he was determined to make the class of 1911 one of the outstanding classes of the college.

On the death of our class president Dennis D. Wright, several years ago, Jack Nelson became our devoted leader. He worked hard to make 1911 college conscious and to make its members active in the Alumni Association as an active arm of the College.

His honesty and philosophy of life have left their effects on his students and classmates alike thru the years.

His many and varied activities and accomplishments were a part of a busy life. He labored, not for self, but for others. His unselfish devotion to duty, his ability to analyze character, and eagerness to serve others made him an outstanding educator, especially in the field of health education.

His wit, dry humor and humble philosophy made him a speaker who was much in demand and widely known throughout Pennsylvania.

He conceived the idea of renewing old friendships by inviting members of the class of 1910 and class of 1912 to be the guests of our class of 1911 at our 50th anniversary.

He worked and planned for many weeks to make this an outstanding event in the history of 1911. He began by organizing a loyal and able committee which with the help of his loyal wife Caroline, worked with him to plan the program, detail by detail, with such clarity that when he was stricken down and unable to carry on, they carried out his plans and wishes to the letter and made the 50th reunion of 1911 one of the most successful ever held at Bloomsburg.

These are but a few of the things for which we are to remember "EH" or Jack Nelson.

I believe our greatest tribute to him is to try to carry on and complete, if possible, some of the things he stood for and believed in. First, a stronger and more active Alumni Association to work with the College Administration to build up Bloomsburg State College to a position second to none among the State Colleges.

Second, build up a strong student scholarship or loan fund to enable worthy boys and girls to come to Bloomsburg for an education that they may become better teachers and citizens. If through his memory and spirit, we can accomplish some small part of this, I am sure it would be what he would want.

His friendly smile and spirit will linger with us until the class of 1911 is no more. We shall always remember him as a sincere friend and classmate, and a Christian gentleman.

DANNY LITWHILER PAYS TRIBUTE

Danny Litwhiler, baseball coach at Florida State University, for a decade a major leaguer and one of the best known men in baseball, has forwarded a tribute he paid to the memory of his college coach and long time close friend, Dr. E. H. Nelson.

In the letter which accompanied the tribute, Danny stated:

"Both of us lost a very dear friend in Dr. Nelson. We know he has left something with us that is very rich. The only way I can express it is in the enclosed. I know of nothing I can do for him or his family, except try to honor him in this way. Ever since I can remember 'Doc' I wanted to be like him. I will always be shooting for his record of 27 consecutive wins and an undefeated season. His goals were high. So are mine."

The tribute follows:

"In the course of one's life he meets, knows, or has someone he wishes to emulate. In my life, such was Dr. E. H. Nelson, familiarly known as "Jack" or "Doc". Throughout my adult life, unknown to him, he set a pattern for living, for me and my family. Directly or indirectly, he was connected with every major decision in my career as a student, an athlete, a teacher, and a coach.

"I admired him as a man and a teacher, respected him as a coach, and absorbed his sage advice for living with one's neighbors. His love for his fellow-man cannot be equalled. His keen sense of humor was very infectious, and perhaps, was the key to his success.

"I am only one of many, many students, athletes, and friends, helped by him. I am certain that his fine character must have rubbed off and will be constantly carried on by those people fortunate to have known him. My career has been set, and in my small way, as one of his student-athletes I am thankful for an opportunity to help perpetuate his teachings forever."

ELNA HARRISON NELSON 33°

Fred W. Diehl

The officers and members of the Scottish Rite bodies in the Valley of Bloomsburg, express their sorrow for the loss they have sustained in the death of their beloved co-worker Mrs. Elna Harrison Nelson 33°, Secretary of their bodies since 1947.

An outstanding educator and authority on Health and Physical Education, Brother Nelson had held prominent positions in this field in Public Schools, at the Bloomsburg State College, and as Chief of the Health and Physical Education Division of the Pennsylvania State Department of Public Instruction from which he retired in 1947 to assume the position of Secretary of Caldwell Consistory.

Brother Nelson held degrees from Bloomsburg; the University of Michigan; Harvard University and in 1932 the earned degree of Ph.D. from New York University. He was a veteran of World War I; a Past Governor of Kiwanis; a member of the Society of Political Science and also of the Association of State Directors of Physical Education.

As the head of the Department of Health and Physical Education of the Bloomsburg State College for twenty-one years, Brother Nelson endeared himself to hundreds of students. This acquaintanceship and influence widened as he performed the duties of his State office. His position for the past fifteen years as President of the Bloomsburg College Alumni Association broadened and enlarged his wide circle of friends. He was a Trustee of the First Presbyterian Church of Bloomsburg and through the years had given service to many community organizations and projects. An excellent public speaker, he was much in demand as an entertainer and toastmaster. Much of his life was devoted to helping others, and he was especially happy when he could render service to young people.

Mrs. Charlotte H. McKechnie, 35, of Berwick, is the new member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association. Mrs. McKechnie has served for several years as a teacher of English at BSC. Her husband Elmer J. McKechnie, president of the class of 1935, is Superintendent of the Berwick Area Schools.

... COMMENCEMENT ...

The enemy we face today is an idea and that idea is the dehumanizing of man, Dr. Richard Hill Byrne, professor of education, University of Maryland, told members of the graduating class of the Bloomsburg State College in Centennial Gymnasium.

There were more than 2,100 in the gymnasium for the exercises at which 253 received degrees of Bachelor of Science in Education.

Dr. Byrne spoke on "The Enemy, Nothingness and You" and he urged that each stand up to the challenge of the day and make certain human dignity is preserved.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College, in a brief comment to the class observed "You had an unusual challenge from Dr. Laubach this morning. He asked you some questions about what you are going to do with your lives. The commencement speech also challenges you to do something as individuals. If I were going to give you any parting advice I would say 'Find a job that you like to do, do it well and forget about success.'"

The honor students in each department accepted a degree as symbolic of that division. The others received their degrees at the close of the service.

Those who received their degrees at the commencement were: Miss Rose M. Fatzinger, Bethlehem, magna cum laude, business education; Mrs. Eileen Sudock, West Hazleton, cum laude, elementary education; Miss Judy Goss, Glenside, magna cum laude, secondary education, and Raymond Karlovich, Trevorton, magna cum laude, special education. Two other members of the class who graduated cum laude, Miss Barbara E. Shaefer, Milnesville, and Irma Williams Springman, wife of the Rev. Thomas Springman, were presented.

Dr. Byrne said, "the enemy of our culture with which we are involved in cold war today, is an idea, the nothingness of man. The Soviets and mainland China are not our antagonists primarily for military, economic or political reasons but because these two powerful cultures represent the potential means for forcing us to live according to the Marxist value of human nothingness.

The enemy is an idea and the cause to which he referred is what the totalitarian states are trying to do to man in dehumanizing him.

"In short months you will be in schools which will be of every size and by the circumstances under which they operate you may contribute to the ultimate victory of the idea which is our enemy."

The speaker expressed the hope that each will get a position in a school where the principal will challenge him with questions such as: What are you doing to make certain that human dignity is preserved? What are you doing to cultivate idiosyncrasies and maintain individuality? Are you behaving in your day by day work in such a way as to strengthen the sense of existence in each pupil?

"My charge to you now is apparent. If your principal and other school leaders do not ask you these questions, I charge you to ask them of yourself regularly. Tie them in with some regular activity. Challenge yourself to give clear evidence that your daily behavior has reinforced the value of human worth and has not contributed to the spreading value of the nothingness of human beings.

"If it has to be that we must face our powerful adversaries in hot war let it be because we have once again made paramount in this country the value of individual human work. It can be done if each of us does as he must. For this vital responsibility I hope you have enduring strength and that your days may be marked with success and happiness."

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

Members of the graduating class of the Bloomsburg State College were told by Dr. Frank C. Laubach, member of the class of 1901 and world famous missionary educator, that "we need a new cause. This is to lift the world out of its poverty, ignorance and oppression to the level which God means every man to achieve. This is the cause of causes. It is greater than saving your own soul for it is saving the soul of mankind."

Dr. Laubach spoke at the baccalaureate services before almost 2,000 in the Centennial Gymnasium. Dr. Laubach pointed out Russia and Red China have increased the literacy rate in a comparatively short period of time.

He said Russia is as literate as any country in the world. After China became communistic the government adopted the same policy the Russians have used. Every illiterate must study a half hour at night, following a hard day's work. In both countries perfect alphabets were adopted. Russians can learn to read in a month, he said, and the Chinese can learn to read in three weeks.

On our side of the Iron Curtain in Asia, Africa and Latin America, our efforts are feeble. In those areas we are not keeping up with the rising population and we are miles and miles behind the communists.

"Here is a cause—the finest in the world—for as many people in the class as possible to go out and teach other people to read so they overcome poverty and ignorance and not succumb to communist propaganda.

"America once had a cause, that was to make us the greatest example of Christian democracy. We achieved that goal. Now we need a new cause. This is to lift the world out of its poverty, ignorance, and oppression to the level which God means every man to achieve. This is the cause of causes. It is greater than saving your own soul for it is saving the soul of mankind.

"Many of you will be teaching this fall. Your students will catch more from what you are than from your books. You are what you dream and what you believe in. You can live your religion and radiate it.

"As a doctor studies his materia medica, so you need to study at the feet of the Great Physician. I believe that in 1961 America is changing over from faith in guns to faith in compassion. I believe America is growing from self centeredness to world consciousness. You are going to help this happen in your community. If you have the world vision you will be the most important member of your community."

He urged all the graduates to take the advice that Paul gave to the Christians in Phillipi: "Whatever is true; whatever is honorable; whatever is just; whatever is pure; whatever is lovely and whatever is gracious."

Dr. Laubach said: "Do not sit back waiting for doors to open. Try the door knobs and if the door opens look inside. All things come to those who wait and hustle while they wait. 'Seek and you shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you. And the spirit of Christ will be with you to the end of the world for Christ still says, 'I choose you that you should go forth and bear fruit.'"

Thanks are due to Mrs. Ruth Speary Griffiths, '18, who has served for a long time as Vice-President of the Alumni Association. At Mrs. Griffiths' request, she was not renominated this year as a member of the Board of Directors.

...ALUMNI MEETING...

An internationally famous educator missionary and a dedicated teacher took merited bows during the annual meeting of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association.

Dr. Frank C. Laubach, Benton native and member of the class of 1901, received the association's Meritorious Service Award for his great contribution to mankind. He is the man responsible for teaching a hundred million in a hundred nations to read and write in their own language.

Prof. Howard F. Fenstermaker, completing thirty-five years of teaching at the BSC from which he was graduated in 1912, was honored by his faculty colleagues, who presented his portrait to the College, and by faculty and alumni who thus far have contributed around $1,000 in a campaign to raise $2,500 for the College library as further testimonial to his splendid influence upon those with whom he works and whom he has taught.

The session which lasted more than an hour and a half without a dull moment, was presided over by Fred W. Diehl, Danville, a former president for some twenty-seven years, a trustee of the College and for a longer period a member of the board of directors on which he is now serving as vice president. He guided the session in the absence of the late Dr. E. H. Nelson, who at that time was hospitalized.

The presiding officer told the alumni, "you will see from the report of the treasurer that we are now in big business." Earl A. Gehrig, in his report as treasurer reported there is in the alumni's student loan fund $18,000 raised during the centennial, $10,000 in the memorial fund for Prof. and Mrs. O. H. Bakeless, $2,000 in the Earl N. Rhodes memorial fund from which a grant has been made, $1,000 in the Watkins fund and $1,536 in the Miss Lucy McCammon testimonial fund from which a grant has been made.

This plus some other bequests totals over $30,000. There is $13,- 337 in student loans and $17,400 at hand.

During the past year the alumni received from the estate of Miss Mary McNinch, alumna, $107,052 principal and $2,393 earnings on this prior to distribution of the estate. It is anticipated that an additional $15,000 to $20,000, will be received by the alumni organization under the will. All of the McNinch fund, earnings and principal must be used only in student loans.

Gehrig explained that during the past year there was $20,850 distributed in new loans and about $5,000 received in payments on loans so that the total now out in loans is $28,635. Mr. Diehl reported that the record for repayment of loans is splendid.

At the outset of the meeting, with the honor class of 1911 seated on the platform the invocation was given by Jesse Y. Shanbaugh, 1905, Edwin Kuser, president of the class of 1961, presented a check to cover dues for the 313 members of this class.

Elected to the board of directors for three year terms were Howard F. Fenstermaker and Earl A. Gehrig, renamed, and Mrs. Eliner J. McKechnie, Berwick. The report of the nominating committee was made by Dr. Kimber C. Kuster.

Dr. Bruce E. Adams, president of the Faculty Association, presented the portrait of Prof. Fenstermaker. The portrait, earlier unveiled at a meeting of the Columbia County Branch of the graduate body, was the work of Mrs. Eleanor Herre and won much commendation from the assembled graduates.

In accepting on behalf of the College, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president, spoke of the honored man as "a great teacher, great soul, scholar and humanitarian, who preserves a sense of humor. I have never had an opportunity or occasion I welcome as much as this one."

Prof. Fenstermaker observed that "I'm not sure whether when there was a vote to have me 'done in oil' there was not a minority vote to have me 'boiled in oil.' In a more serious vein he said "I accept this as a challenge and you all know that challenge is something to be faced, not to run away from." He expressed thanks to all who had a part in the project.

Dr. Laubach was presented by Martin Appleman, Benton, a long time friend of the world figure who did an exceptionally fine job in telling of the great work of this distinguished American. Appleman spoke of Dr. Laubach as being recognized "as one of the outstanding men of this century" and told of the honored graduate's lifetime of effort "to drive greed, self satisfaction and lack of concern for the less fortunate from the temple. He is America's greatest weapon for peace in the world."

In his response Dr. Laubach spoke of the occasion as "one of the proudest and happiest moments of my life." Two of his classmates of '01 were in the auditorium and stood at his request. As he spoke he said there came to him "echoes of the past." He mentioned many of the faculty members of his day and observed that "I have attended some great institutions of learning but I never obtained as much in four years at any of them as I received here in a year and a half. I hope this institution has done as much for those now graduating and for the underclassmen and will do as much for those who will attend in the future as it has done for me."

Speaking of the perfection in pupils sought by Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff (ninety-four and not on the campus for the general festivities although a guest at the luncheon of the class of 1921), Prof. Albert, Prof. Wilbur, Prof. Batholomew, Prof. Detweiler and others, he said "I do not think we are demanding enough of our students today. We must see that they are always giving their best."

The roll call of classes followed and the meeting then adjourned for the alumni luncheon in the College Commons.

GREAT PLANS FOR FUTURE

There are letters now in the hands of the Bloomsburg water company and sewage authority inquiring whether facilities in these phases of the community can be provided to care for a Bloomsburg State College student body of 4,800, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president, told members of the alumni.

It is estimated that of a student body of this size 3,600 would be resident and 1,200 commuters. Some colleges in the group, he said, are planning to go to 5,400 students. This expansion all depends, he emphasized, on what is going to happen in college education in Pennsylvania and in this the legislature has a leading role.

The College president expressed the hope that "as we grow in size we will also enhance the quality of our education."

He spoke of the State report which suggests that the Commonwealth should provide college facilities for 300,000. In this total it is estimated the state college group would have to take care of 60,000. Their total enrollment is now 21,000. Provided this group does take care of the 60,000 and other institutions expand according to estimate, there are still 79,000 yet to be accommodated and they are to be cared for in community colleges which will provide classrooms but no dormitory facilities.

Dr. Andruss spoke of the process of change at the local school. At the present time there is a third of the enrollment cared for on the campus, an equal percentage residing in the town, and the other third commuting.

He spoke of the dormitory program as being self liquidating, the money from rentals going back to the state to care for the cost of construction.

Speaking of the faculty salary scale he said that the last one adopted has been outrun by inflation but he said there is a bill now in the legislature which, if passed, will remedy the situation.

"We in Pennsylvania," he continued, "must determine if we want education. The American people, it is true, want more of most everything but want other people to pay for it. If we want education we must pay for it and whether we are willing to do this depends on whether we really value the things we say we value. The future of the nation depends on the education of our youth more than any one thing. If we are threatened from without while we are in a state of decay from within our civilization is doomed."

He said in most phases of education Pennsylvania is not near the top. The only two parts of the program in which it is among the leaders is in the amount the state provides toward public education and in the length of the school term.

Speaking of the growth of the College, he said that every plan that has been made thus far has proven to be too small long before it has been executed. The first, developed in 1941, called for a maximum enrollment of 1,200 and use of only two thirds of a sixty acre campus.

The first detailed plan came out in 1957 calling for accommodations for 2,000 by 1970. The College had 1,750 last year and it is certain there will be 1,900 next year. The figure set for 1970 will be reached in 1962 and it is now estimated there will be 3,000 students by 1970.

Blanford B. Jones, 9507 Rex Road, Pico-Revera, California, has been elected President of the Teachers Association of the Los Nietos School District. He attended the NEA convention at Atlantic City in June.

Three of his children are Bloomsburg graduates and three sons served with distinction in World War II, one making the Supreme Sacrifice. NEW MEMBERS OF FACULTY AT COLLEGE

Eli McLaughlin, a member of the faculty of Penncrest High School for the past four years, will join the faculty of the Bloomsburg State College in September, 1961, as Instructor in Health and Physical Education. In addition to his teaching duties he will serve as line coach for the Husky football team.

Mr. McLaughlin is one of twelve new members to be employed by the college before the next college year begins.

The growth in the number of faculty members from 108 at present to an anticipated 120 in September, is necessary to keep pace with the increasing enrollment at the institution, according to Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College.

A native of Chester County, McLaughlin attended the elementary schools of Strafford, Pennsylvania, and was graduated from the Tredyffrin-Eastown Junior-Senior high school at Berwyn. He was awarded the Bachelor of Science degree at West Chester State College in 1957, and is currently enrolled in the graduate school at West Chester.

A veteran of military service, McLaughlin served as a sergeant in the United States Air Force. As Director of Special Services at Edwards Air Force Base in California, he organized, directed, and participated in the sports program.

While teaching at Penncrest High School, he continued his participation in athletics serving four years as football line coach, three years as golf coach and two years as assistant wrestling coach. For more than eight years, he has worked as a swimming coach for private clubs, and has been a qualified college swimming official for the same period of time.

His memberships in professional affiliations include the following: the Delaware County Coaches Association; the Delaware County Highway Safety Council; the Pennsylvania Association for Safety Education; the Philadelphia Suburban High School Athletic Association; the Pennsylvania State Education Association; the National Education Association.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin are the parents of a two-year-old daughter Beth. Mrs. McLaughlin is a former elementary school teacher.

The appointment of Dr. Burnett H. Gardner as Associate Professor of English at the Bloomsburg State College was approved recently by the Board of Trustees. He will join the Bloomsburg faculty in September, 1961, following a summer trip to Europe to gather materials for a research project.

Dr. Gardner is a native of Ashland, Maine, and a graduate of the public schools of Farmington, Maine. He was named valedictorian of his high school class, was given the Lawreston A. Smith prize for earning the highest average during his senior year, and was awarded a scholarship to Colby College. He attended Colby College and Louisiana State University prior to completing the requirements for the Bachelor of Arts degree at Boston University in 1940. He entered Harvard University on a Graduate Fellowship in English Literature in 1941, but, with the coming of the attack on Pearl Harbor, dropped his English studies to concentrate on Japanese under the tutelage of Dr. Edwin O. Reischauer, now our Ambassador to Japan. Dr. Gardner was one of a small nucleus of students who accompanied Dr. Reischauer when the latter left Harvard to set up a Japanese school for the Signal Intelligence Service in Arlington, Virginia. Gardner worked as a translator of Japanese codes throughout the war, and received a Special War Department commendation.

Following World War II, Dr. Gardner returned to Harvard, earned the Master of Arts degree, and began teaching. He served on the faculties of the University of Minnesota, the University of Idaho, Florida State University and Georgia Tech.

In 1952, Dr. Gardner began two years of research and writing to complete a 600 page psychological and critical study of "Vernon Lee." Harvard University granted him the Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1954.

Later that year, he joined the faculty of Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio, spent the next year as a full-time "Visiting Lecturer" at Harvard University, and went to Elmira College in 1956 as assistant professor and Resident Director of the Junior Year Abroad program. In the latter capacity, he was responsible for establishing contacts with universities in England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, France, Germany, Italy and Spain; he also supervised course scheduling, living arrangements and evaluation of learning experiences.

He holds membership in the Modern Language Association and the American Association of University Professors. Mrs. Gardner is currently teacher of German language courses at Southside High School, Elmira.

The appointment of Miss Lola Maxwell to the library staff at the Bloomsburg State College has increased to four the number of full-time professional librarians at the College. Miss Maxwell joined the faculty recently with the rank of assistant professor, according to President Harvey A. Andruss.

Immediately prior to the time she began her studies at Bloomsburg, she had served for nearly five years as assistant librarian, Aluminum Company of American Research Laboratories, New Kensington, Pa.

Miss Maxwell was born in New Kensington and attended the Stewart Elementary School and the New Kensington High School. She earned the Bachelor of Science degree in Library Science at Clarion State College, the Master of Education degree in Library Science at Clarion State College and the Master of Education degree at the University of Pittsburgh. During 1960 she enrolled for additional graduate study at Rutgers University. For three years after completing her professional preparation.

SAFETY CONFERENCE

In his keynote address to high school delegates attending the Governor's Youth Conference for Traffic Safety at Bloomsburg State College, Wednesday, April 12, Judge C. William Kreisher said that, "Co-operation of the teenagers would be a good solution for the mutual profit and common benefit for all. The paramount cause of trouble seems to be a lack of respect for authority."

Sergeant John Kistler, Pennsylvania State Police, spoke to the delegates as a representative of Governor David Lawrence. Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College, welcomed the delegates to Bloomsburg.

Judge Kreisher also pointed out that "Condemnation and severe punitive measures have not provided a satisfactory solution to the present-day problem, and the problem confronting the Conference should be to try and devise other means. Students are here to try and solve the problem of instilling in the operator of a car the penalty hanging over his head."

"Many reckless driving problems are the same, but the reason and causes are always different so that no one cause can be determined for this lack of respect for law enforcement authorities."

"If the qualifications that are set up for test drivers are imposed on all drivers of both sexes, this problem of lack of respect would soon be alleviated."

Judge Kreisher believed this Conference will bring some good to those attending and to those with whom these people surround themselves. It will also give administrators a better solution in ways of handling these cases both for the benefit of society at large and for the individuals with whom they are dealing."

Sergeant Kistler represented the Governor at the Conference and spoke of the work of the State Police in their effort to decrease highway accidents and fatalities. He also congratulated the young people attending the Conference and felt urging them to interest others in improving highway safety will preserve human life.

At the final afternoon session.

THREE-ACT COMEDY

"The Skin of our Teeth", a three-act comedy describing the foibles of the human race, was presented by the Bloomsburg Players on Thursday and Friday, April 20-21 in Carver Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

Written by Thornton Wilder, three-time Pulitzer Prize winner, the play dramatizes the seduction of the human race by materialism. Wilder will also be remembered as the author of "Our Town" and "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

The characters in the play represent members of the community whom we see every day, but, on stage, we see them in situations in which we would not expect to see them every day.

The play was directed by Mr. J. Gerald Goodwin of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, assisted by Mr. William Cope and Miss Helen Kelly of the college faculty. Mr. Cope was in charge of designing and building the stage set and Miss Kelly was responsible for costumes, properties and makeup.

Featured in the cast are the following Bloomsburg State College students: Gary Reddig, Ephrata; Ernest Shuba, Kingston; Dolores Keen, Sunbury; Jean Valentiner, Tunkhannock; Molly Clugston, Northumberland; Pat Whittaker, Dallas; George Strine, Milton; Bruce Van Housen, New Milford; Carol Mazza, Indiana; Harry Cole, Bloomsburg; Steve Stedman, Connetton; Andy Harnichar, Wilkes-Barre; David Allspaugh, Factoryville; Bonnie Lyshan, Bethlehem; Dottie Born, Williamsport; JoAnn Kelb, Ambler; Mary Miskevich, Freeland; Elizabeth McDonald, Ashland; Judith Nicholson, Wilkes-Barre; Sterling Smith, Mt. Carmel; Marlon Zelones, Shamokin; Linda Witmer, Willow Street and Robert Hensley, Wilkes-Barre.

Dr. Marguerite Kehr, former Dean of Women has informed us that her address has been changed to 1613 Harvard St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

the delegates chose Roy Bower, Millville High School, Millville, Pa., to be their delegate to the Governor's Traffic Conference in Harrisburg on May 3, 1961. As an alternate delegate, they selected Dave Goran, Espy Pa., a student at Central Columbia County Joint High School.

ROMULO AT BSC

General Carlos P. Romulo, internationally-famous diplomat, soldier, author, and lecturer, spoke at the Bloomsburg State College on Friday, April 28, 1961, under the auspices of the Endowed Artist and Lecture Series of the College. (Due to a severe snow storm, his address originally scheduled for Friday, February 3, was postponed to the date listed above.) General Romulo discussed "The New Strategy of Communism."

Dr. Laubach was spoken of by Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, soldier, diplomat, and lecturer, as "one of the great men of the world."

Dr. Romulo was emphatic as he asserted the local college should be most honored to have Dr. Laubach on its roll of graduates. The General is a member of the board of directors of the Laubach Foundation and has held that post five years.

Gen. Romulo said Dr. Laubach is doing an outstanding job in his literacy campaign and expressed the hope the American people support him. "What he is doing is another weapon against communism. If you remove illiteracy the people of the world can face the issue with understanding." He spoke of some other persons who have done outstanding work in the field of aid to mankind but characterized that of Dr. Laubach as "more effective." The Benton native, he declared is "projecting the true image of America." He spoke of him as "tireless" and as being a "dedicated man."

FACULTY NOTES

Mrs. Iva Mae V. Beckley, Supervisor Grade II, and Mrs. Deborah Griffith, Supervisor Grade IV, Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School, attended the Harvard-Carnegie Reading Conference held in April at New York University.

The conference was an outgrowth of the recently completed book "The Torch Lighters: Tomorrow's Teachers of Reading", in which the authors examined current practices related to the preparation of prospective elementary school teachers, including college admission policies, practice teaching programs and total program requirements, in addition to the content and conduct of courses in the teaching of elementary school reading.

Mrs. Beckley and Mrs. Griffith were guests of the Harvard-Carnegie Study Staff at a luncheon on Saturday, April 29. The principal speaker of the conference was Mary C. Austin, Director, Harvard-Carnegie Reading Study, and President, International Reading Association.

Miss Mary E. Kramer, special class teacher in the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School and member of the faculty of BSC, was presented the Elizabeth Stadlander Memorial Scholarship of $500 at the annual convention of Delta Kappa Gamma held at Hershey.

This was the first award presented in memory of Dr. Stadlander and is presented to a teacher experienced in elementary education to be used for study beyond the master's degree. Miss Kramer will continue at Syracuse University this summer for the Certificate of Advanced Study.

Professor Walter S. Rygiel, a member of the Business Education faculty at the Bloomsburg State College, has been informed by the Gregg Publishing Company that his shorthand class team won third place for the second time in the International Order of Gregg Artists Shorthand Contest Collegiate Division.

There were approximately 22,000 contestants competing throughout the world. In order to compete as a team, it was necessary to have at least ten members in the unit. About 2,000 teams participated in the event. The British Isles, Asia, many of the islands, and North and South America are only a few of the many areas represented in the International Contest.

The Third Prize is an engraved gold wall-plaque which will be awarded to Mr. Rygiel as teacher of the team. He will also receive a personal gift—a fountain pen desk set. Gold pins will be presented to the students of the College for superior merit shorthand penmanship. For three years in succession—1956, 1957 and 1958, Professor Rygiel and his shorthand students took first prize in the National Shorthand Contests.

Tribute was paid to Miss Edna J. Barnes by the Bloomsburg State College Faculty Association at its annual dinner held Wednesday, May 12 in the College Commons.

Miss Barnes is retiring at the close of the present College year. Howard F. Fenstemaker presented a gift to her on behalf of the association and spoke of her splendid contribution to education.

He referred to her long period of service which totals forty and a half years, twenty-nine of those at the local college where she has been supervisor of elementary student teachers for the past thirteen years.

Miss Barnes joined the local faculty in February, 1929; the Benjamin Franklin school opened the following September.

Joseph Godwin, of the speech department, presided at the dinner and Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, College president, and Dr. Bruce Adams, president of the faculty association, spoke briefly.

Guests at the dinner were Miss Grace Woolworth, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hausknecht and Edwin M. Barton.

Fine entertainment was provided by three students, Miss Donna

Lore, Berwick, soprano; Miss Marv Somerset, Glenside, pianist, and Gordon Reed, Allentown, who gave a humorous piano selection.

Two members of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, Dr. Donald Rabb and Mr. James R. C. Leitzel, have been invited to participate in Summer Institutes for College Teachers, sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

Mr. Leitzel, instructor in mathematics at the College, will attend the Institute at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, from June 26 to August 5, 1961. About 45 college teachers of mathematics have been invited to participate.

The program of the Institute has been designed to emphasize various topics in modern mathematics. Particular attention will be given to the topics and outlines which various Commissions and Committees have recommended for high school mathematics.

Dr. Rabb will participate in the Summer Institute of genetics for college teachers at North Carolina State College, Raleigh, North Carolina, from June 12 to July 20, 1961. The program will be directed toward strengthening the teacher's mastery of science and mathematics. The objectives are to provide for college teachers formal basic training in genetics and a background of information concerning recent developments in the field of genetics.

The Evening Entertainment Committee of Bloomsburg State College presented Players, Incorporated in "The Merchant of Venice" by William Shakespeare in Carver Auditorium on Saturday, April 8, 1961 at 8:00 p. m.

Currently touring for its 12th consecutive year, the company of Players, Incorporated has become the longest-running national classic repertory theatre in the United States in the 20th Century. They have recently completed an off-Broadway engagement at the Carnegie Hall Playhouse in New York City. During their first 11 years of touring in this country, they also made seven trips abroad under the auspices of the Department of Defense to entertain troops.

GRADUATE PROGRAM BEGINS

Another milestone was added to the history of Bloomsburg State College on Thursday morning, June 15, 1961, when the Division of Graduate Studies opened its doors to the first students to enroll in the program of graduate studies at the College.

Those beginning their graduate work will ultimately receive a Master of Education degree in either Business Education or Elementary Education following the completion of all requirements developed by the Graduate Council and approved by the State Council of Education.

The application authorizing Bloomsburg State College to grant the Master of Education degree, was filed with the State Council of Education in October, 1959, by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College, with the approval of the Board of Trustees. The application was filed after several years of intensive study of both faculty and facilities to determine whether Bloomsburg was in a position to offer a program leading to the Masters degree.

An evaluation survey was made by the committee of the Middle States Association of secondary schools and colleges in February, 1960, to determine if the College was qualified for the graduate program. On June 6, 1960, the State Council of Education authorized the college to offer a Masters degree program to be inaugurated during the Summer of 1961.

The need for this program at Bloomsburg was realized some years ago by President Andruss who in turn has given his leadership and experience in helping organize and develop the Division of Graduate Studies. Dr. Andruss announced recently that efforts were also being made to expand the graduate program to other fields, including Special Education and Secondary Education.

Excellent classroom and laboratory facilities are available for both Business and Elementary students. With the completion of William Boyd Sutliff Hall, early in 1960, the Division of Business Education was able to move into new and modern headquarters designed for instruction in Business Education. The College has long pointed with pride to the classrooms and laboratories of the Benjamin Franklin Elementary School on the campus. Within the past year, the holdings of the library have been increased substantially in preparation for the inauguration of the graduate program.

A program of courses will be available on Saturday morning during the 1961-62 academic year for teacher-in-service. Certification in business education or elementary education is a requirement for admission to graduate courses. Curriculums and policies for the new program were developed by the Graduate Council, which includes: John A. Hoeh, Dean of Instruction; Dr. Royce O. Johnson, Director of Elementary Education; Dr. Cecil C. Seronsy, Chairman, Department of Communications; Dr. John J. Serff, Chairman, Department of Social Studies; Dr. Ernest T. Engelhardt, Chairman, Department of Education; Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Chairman of the Graduate Council.

Course offerings this summer include: Pre-Session: Foundations of Business Education; Social Foundations of the Elementary School. Main Session: Improvement of Instruction in Basic Business Subjects; Current Practices in Elementary School Science; Major Philosophies of Education; Methods and Materials of Educational Research; Federal Tax Accounting; Principles of Insurance; Human Growth and Development. Post-Session: The Epic Tradition in Modern Literature; Cultures of the Non-Western World.

They were Gail Hunter, Pottstown; Jane Reinaker, Sunbury; Rose Fatzinger, Bethlehem; Mary Lou Webb, Danville; Judy Goss, Glenside; Connie Aumiller, McClure.

Queen Kay was crowned by Gary Reddig, president of College Council, in a ceremony which preceded the program and followed a half-hour concert by the Maroon and Gold Band directed by Nelson Miller.

In the procession, pupils of grade one at Benjamin Franklin school served as junior attendants and Becky Martin was crown bearer. Fenstermaker Library Fund open until December 31. Help make the BSC Library an outstanding one.

ATHLETICS

COLLEGE HONORS ATHLETES

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the Bloomsburg State College, told an audience of several hundred at the College Commons that he expected to meet with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the architect in Harrisburg to go over revised expansion plans that will include a million and a half dollar field house.

The announcement was made during the fourth annual athletic awards dinner at which the main address was given by William McPeak, new head coach of the Washington Redskins.

Dr. Andruss said that the revised campus plan calls for accommodations for a student body of 3,000, all within the present area of the College and on sixty acres now owned or which the College plans to acquire.

The revised plans call for the field house to be closer to the Centennial Gym than did the earlier plans which had placed it in fields east of Chestnut street. Now it will be partially in the terraced area near the gymnasium and in a quadrangle with the new library to be at the other end of this group of buildings.

The educator said the college is always striving to produce graduates who are both mentally and physically fit, for it maintains that these two characteristics go hand in hand.

Reference was made to the present athletic and health setup on the campus with Russell E. Houk the director of athletics and Walter R. Blair head of the health education department. There are six in the department with one to be added, and with others in coaching the total is now eleven.

Dr. Andruss spoke of the first athletic dinner being held under Dr. Francis B. Haas 30 years earlier. It was eliminated during the curtailments of World War II and revised four years ago.

John C. Hoch, Dean of Instruction was master of ceremonies at the enjoyed event. McPeak, in the address, gave an insight into the operations of a professional football team and pointed out that the financial arrangements in the AFL allow for a better balance of power among the member teams than marks professional baseball. A result of this, he pointed out, is increased attendance at football games.

He said that the team convinced that the way it does things is the best way and has faith in execution of plays is a winning combination. Regardless of what class of football it is—scholastic, collegiate, sandlot or professional—there must be team spirit and a belief in oneself if the results are to be favorable.

Touching for a moment on the recent basketball scandals, he said those guilty must be condemned for their acts but it is his belief that wrong practices in recruiting must take much of the blame for what has happened.

COACH FLANAGAN HAS GOOD SEASON

In his first year as Head Track Coach at Bloomsburg State College, Mike Flanagan directed his charges to an undefeated season in dual meets and copped the track and field team championship of the Pennsylvania State College Conference. This was the first time since 1940 that a Bloomsburg team won the State Championship. Flanagan joined the Bloomsburg faculty in January, 1960, and had served since then as Assistant Wrestling Coach and Assistant Football Coach.

A graduate of Clearfield High School, Coach Flanagan served three years as a paratrooper in World War II, received the Bachelor of Science degree from Lock Haven State College and the Master of Education degree from Pennsylvania State University. He had done additional graduate work in Springfield College, Mass.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, he had completed ten years of experience as a teacher, athletic coach and recreational supervisor. During his tenure at DuBois High School, he was Assistant Football Coach, Assistant Wrestling Coach, and Head Track Coach. In the latter capacity, he coached one of his squads to the Big Three Track Championship and several of the squad members went on to earn other honors at Pennsylvania State University, Lock Haven State College and Grove City College. While at Bellefonte High School as head wrestling coach, Flanagan's mat squads piled up a 42-19-1 record. Two of his high school grapplers went on the win State Championships in their respective weight divisions and two others were runners up in their divisions.

WRESTLING CLINIC

Ten of the most outstanding high school and college wrestling coaches in the eastern part of the United States will make up the coaching staff at the second annual wrestling and coaching clinic at Bloomsburg State College.

Due to the unprecedented number of applications both last year and this year, Russell Houk, director, has announced that there will be two separate sessions this summer of five days each. The first session will be held from Monday, July 31 to Friday, August 4; the second Monday, August 7 to Friday, August 11.

The clinic is being directed by Houk, head wrestling coach and athletic director, and Mike Flanagan, head track coach and assistant wrestling coach. Both are members of the BSC faculty.

The purpose of the clinic is to provide instruction which will enable high school coaches and wrestlers to learn some of the finer techniques of the sport as presented and demonstrated by a staff of outstanding high school and college coaches.

Mr. Boyd Buckingham, Director of Public Relations, has taken over the business responsibilities of this issue of the Quarterly.

DR. ANDRUSS WITH REDMAN TROPHY

The Class of 1950 of Bloomsburg State College has established the Robert B. Redman Memorial Trophy and Award to be given each year, beginning in 1962, to the outstanding senior athlete at Bloomsburg State College. The trophy will be retained by the College and each year will have the name of the recipient inscribed on the brass plate at the base of the trophy. The winner of the award will receive a miniature replica appropriately engraved.

Redman was head football coach, head baseball coach and Assistant Dean of Men at Bloomsburg from 1947 to 1952. During those five years, his gridiron teams won 38 victories and suffered only four defeats. His 1948 and 1951 teams were undefeated.

A native of Sayre, Redman earned the Bachelor of Arts degree at Swarthmore College and the Master of Arts degree at Duke University. He had also done additional graduate work at the University of Wisconsin and New York University.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, he had taught and coached for six years at Sayre High School, and for five years at Binghamton, N. Y. High School, had served four years in the United States Navy during World War II, and had taught for one semester at Triple Cities College, Endicott, N. Y. He

Mae B. Wilson, '88

The death of Miss Mae B. Wilson, 93, Wilkes-Barre, was reported April 5, 1961. Neighbors became alarmed by her absence about the area and notified police who broke into the home and found the body. She was a retired school teacher and a graduate of the Bloomsburg State College. A lifelong resident of Wilkes-Barre, she taught at various schools prior to her retirement about a quarter century ago.

Dorothea Tobias Salem, '94

Mrs. Dorothea Augusta Salem, 87, Selinsgrove, died Wednesday, May 3, at Jacob's Nursing Home, Selinsgrove R. D. 1. She was born July 2, 1873, in Danville, a daughter of the late John and Johanna Weitzel Tobias. Her husband, Rev. H. C. Salem, died in 1912.

She was a graduate of Bloomsburg Normal School and a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, Selinsgrove.

Harry S. Barton, '96

Harry S. Barton, former member of the Board of Trustees, and a life-long and prominent resident of Bloomsburg, died Thursday, May 25, at the Bloomsburg Hospital. Death resulted from complications following a fracture of the hip sustained in a fall several months ago.

Mr. Barton organized the real estate and insurance business which bore his name in 1910 and was active in its operation until the time of his death. He suffered a fractured hip last December 30 but recovered sufficiently to return to his home and early this left Bloomsburg in the fall of 1952 to become head football coach and later principal at East Orange, N. J. He was chosen superintendent there shortly before his death.

In the presentation of the trophy to the College, the Class of 1950 praised Redman as a great teacher and a great coach, one whose example is worthy of emulation.

year visited his office upon several occasions.

He was the son of the late Thomas Jefferson Barton and Henrietta Guild Barton. Educated in the town schools, he was a graduate of the Bloomsburg High School in 1894 and of the old Bloomsburg Normal in 1896. He retained his interest in both institutions and was one of those in attendance at the last function of the high school alumni. He also served on the school board. He was active at the State College and served for a period on the board of trustees.

Early in the century he was one of the organizers of Company I of the Pennsylvania National Guard and was in command when that unit served on the Mexican border in 1915 and 1916. Shortly after their return they went into Federal service for World War I and were assigned to Camp Hancock, Ga., where he served as camp adjutant during the conflict, being separated with the rank of major.

He never lost interest in the military and especially in the men who served with him. Many made periodic calls to Bloomsburg to visit him, one man coming from Boston less than two years ago to spend some time with the local man.

Major Barton was a member of the Bloomsburg American Legion and for years he gave the address on Memorial Day at the rites held at Lime Ridge. One of "his boys" of World War I was on the committee which originally invited him and the invitation was extended each year so long as he was able to participate.

He became secretary of the Bloomsburg Industrial Building and Loan Association in 1914 and continued in that office until he resigned at the end of December, 1929. During his period at the helm he was the guiding hand in this organization which has been instrumental in making it possible for hundreds of dwellings to be erected in the community.

He was the last charter member of the Bloomsburg Rotary Club which was organized in 1920 and remained active in the service unit until his death. He was a past president and long the song leader.

He was an active member of the Bloomsburg Methodist Church and was serving as president of the board of trustees at the time of his death. Through the years he held most of the lay posts in the congregation and during his presidency of the Men's Bible Class that organization attained a record enrollment.

One of his prime interests in the church in later years was the children's choirs. He seldom missed services in which the youth groups participated and annually was host to the Cherubim Choir and its leaders.

Early in his active life he taught school. He started his career in the Fernville school in Hemlock Township and then served for four years as principal of the Fifth Street School.

He then became affiliated with the American Electric Light Company and left that employment to become auditor of the Columbia Power, Light and Railway Company. He resigned that post in 1910 to establish his real estate and insurance business.

Major Barton served as librarian of the Columbia County Fair Association. He was active in the Republican party, being at one time treasurer of the GOP county committee and he served several years in the forties as chief county assessor.

He was president of the Columbia County Historical Society for many years and his untiring energy kept the society moving. He was largely instrumental, when the court addition was completed in the thirties, in securing a room in which to place valuable documents. His resignation as president was accepted with regret some years ago.

Through his life he built thousands of bird houses. He was always interested in birds and his interest was transmitted to many children. An expert woodworker, he made a hobby of building bird houses. He conducted contests in this field to get youngsters interested. One of his projects for the town park was the building of more than fifty of the houses which were placed in the recreation area.

He was a member and past officer of all of the Masonic Bodies and was crowned with the Thirty-third Degree in September, 1927. He was a past commander-in-chief of Caldwell Consistory, and also a member of Irem Temple Shrine, Wilkes-Barre.

He was affiliated with the Elks and Moose, the Sons of the American Revolution and several organizations.

Another of his interests was music. He was long a member of the Methodist Choir and he and his late wife, the former Mabel Peacock, who died in 1942, were often featured in duets at special presentations of the choir. For many years he sang in a quartet of town men.

Among his activities in the church was the establishment of its endowment fund.

Harold N. Cool, 4115 Irving Place, Culver City, California, was among those present during Alumni Day activities. Mr. and Mrs. Cool made their visit to Bloomsburg a part of a trip which included Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, New Jersey and New England.

1912

Edith Hodgson (Mrs. Walter B. McDongall) lives at 430 Bellevue Avenue, Hammonton, New Jersey. She is still teaching as a permanent substitute.

1912

George M. Barrow lives at 1550 Levern Street, Clearwater, Florida. He has been living in Florida since 1959.

1916

Mary Siegel Tyson has for the past five years been serving at Wagner College, Staten Island, where she had charge of a dormitory in which 140 girls were living. She is retiring from the position this year.

1940

A pioneer in "Atomic-age teaching techniques," James DeRose, head of the science department at Marple-Newtown High School, Delaware county, has been named to the 1961 National Teacher of the Year Honor Roll.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin DeRose, Bloomsburg R. D. 3.

The honor is shared by only eight other teachers in the nation and is the result of a competition sponsored by the U. S. Office of Education, Council of Chief State School Officers and Look magazine. The Teacher of the Year is a kindergarten teacher from Cumberland, Wis.

Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Pennsylvania State Superintendent of Public Instruction, nominated DeRose for the honor.

DeRose, 238 Kent Road, Springfield, was one of the developers of the experimental "Chemical bond approach" to science program teaching, now in its second year, and is one of the authors of the text used in the project. He is also author of a high school physics text, "Principles of Measurement," published last year, and is teaching an experimental physics course.

DeRose became science department head at Marple-Newtown last year, going there from Chester High School where he headed the science department for sixteen years. He was supervisor of science teachers at Temple University Summer School from 1950 to 1960 and recently was appointed to committees studying science and chemistry teaching in the state as part of a three-year curriculum evaluation program.

DeRose, forty-three, was born in Jessup, graduated from Bloomsburg State College and has taught twenty-one years. He has a master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania where he is studying for his doctorate. He is married and has three children.

In commenting on the science teaching methods he has developed, DeRose said, "The new approach to the teaching of science tries to teach students how to think scientifically, to stimulate them to think independently and honestly and to use their minds creatively.

"We are not interested primarily with the facts of science but in developing high school students who can think and who will be ready to attack college level science."

Mrs. Mary Lou John, Bloomsburg, instructor in history at the Bloomsburg State College, is the recipient of one of the partial tuition scholarships to Bucknell University's Fourth Summer Institute for Asian studies, Dr. David J. Lu, assistant professor of non-western studies at the university, has announced.

The institute, held June 16-August 4, will center on a study of the political, social and economic problems of India, Pakistan and Southeast Asia. In addition, the special significances of these civilizations as well as their contributions to art, philosophy and religion will be emphasized.

Associated with Dr. Lu will be Dr. Richard Koziaki, associate professor of political science at Mansfield State College. Dr. Koziak is the author of several studies on India and Southeast Asia and recently spent a year in India, Burma and Malaya under a fellowship from the Ford Foundation.

Among the distinguished scholars who will address the institute are Dr. Norman Palmer, chairman of International Relations Graduate Program at the University of Pennsylvania, and Daw Myra Sein, noted Burmese author and diplomat, who currently serves as a Burmese delegate to the U.N.

Captain and Mrs. Robert Leonard German were recently featured in the Stars and Stripes, an Armed Forces overseas publication. Mrs. German is the former Beverly Ann Cole, an alumna of Bloomsburg State College. Captain German graduated from Pennsylvania State University.

Excerpts from the Stars and Stripes article follow:

"There's an American officer here whose job is to talk Turkey. And in pursuing the goal, Captain Robert L. German, attached to the Joint U. S. Mission for Military Aid to Turkey, gets a good deal of help from his wife.

"For German, the job is clear. Every American attached to JUSMMAT is going to learn to speak Turkish.

"German's wife, Beverly, is helping him with his program which will reach into every remote area where JUSMMAT personnel are stationed. When German began his nine-month study of Turkish at the Navy Language School in Washington, D. C., Beverly joined him voluntarily.

"Every American with JUSMMAT will be expected to take at least 25 hours of language study.

"German and his wife continue to study the language with private tutoring, and Beverly expects to become one of the instructors at the Ankara headquarters soon.

"After the program begins running smoothly in Ankara, the couple will move into the outlying areas to give 15-day concentrated courses in Turkish to JUSMMAT personnel in the field."

1947

Dr. J. Richard Zerby, supervisor of the Warwick Union Elementary School, will become director of the Millersville State College Training School.

Dr. Zerby has been teaching at Millersville the past two summers and also has been conducting evening courses. He has been elementary supervisor at Warwick the past four years.

A native of Herndon, Northumberland County, he is a graduate of Bloomsburg State College (1947), received his master's degree from Bucknell (1949), and his doctorate from Pennsylvania State University (1960).

Prior to joining the Warwick system he was supervisor of Mahanoy Joint Elementary Schools, Dalmatia, for three years.

Married to the former Lois L. Smith, he resides with his wife and four children at 501 Kissel Hill Road, Lititz, Pa.

The appointment of William C. Shellenberger as assistant professor of science at Lock Haven State College has been announced by acting president, Dr. Allen D. Patterson.

Mr. Shellenberger, aged 30, is a native of Bloomsburg, where he graduated from high school in 1948. He attended Bloomsburg State College from 1954-1958 and received his B.S. in Education. His graduate study was performed at Bucknell and Syracuse Universities. He received his M.S. degree at Syracuse this year.

The new faculty member served as a substitute teacher in Bloomsburg, Danville and Millville, and from 1958 to 1960 was on the faculty of the Berwick Area High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Shellenberger have three children and now reside at 137 Swalley Road, Syracuse.

1958

A delegation of seniors from Truxton Central School, Truxton, N. Y., contributed to the Gettysburg Battlefield Preservation Association a check for $150, representing the proceeds from a Civil War Pageant presented by the students.

The pageant, written and directed by Isaiah L. McCloskey, Jr., faculty member of Truxton Central School, was presented in commemoration of the centennial of the American Civil War under the title, "The American Iliad."

A letter to Mr. McCloskey from Bruce Catton, noted Civil War authority and author, and senior editor of American Heritage, said in part: "I hope you will extend my congratulations to all the students of Truxton Central School who have a part in the pageant. Observances of this sort are of lasting value to all of us; by helping us to understand the Civil War they help us to see the real meaning in one of the most momentous chapters in our entire national history. The fact that the proceeds from this undertaking will help to preserve the hallowed battlefield at Gettysburg simply lends extra significance to the undertaking."

The seniors toured the battlefield and then journeyed on to Washington, D. C., to continue their annual senior trip.

The following appeared in the Courier-Post, Camden, New Jersey, in the issue of March 25, 1961:

Brown fields still surround the modern, brick elementary school at a country crossroads in Mount Laurel Township, Burlington County. Across the way sits historic Mount Laurel Friend's Meetinghouse. Nearby is the white from township building.

The sleepy, rural setting is deceiving.

An experiment that is the latest word in educational sophistication goes on inside of Hillside School. The project is a tryout of the new concept of team-teaching. Although team-teaching is attracting widespread attention among educators across the country, Hillside School appears to be South Jersey's pioneer in the new method.

Concurring is Paul Manko, one year out of Bloomsburg State College, who brought to his first teaching position some new ideas from his alma mater.

Science is Manko's forte and he has served as head teacher for a time-block unit on electricity. While he presides over demonstrations his two teammates assist as helping teachers. They have helped Manko plan the unit. They observe his performance and the response of the pupils and later make constructive suggestions.

What can be accomplished by three teachers in a room with 90 pupils that couldn't be done as well with groups of 30 in separate classrooms?

For one thing, the large room contains a variety of teaching aids set up and ready to use. Equipping each classroom with these devices would be too expensive. Trundling them from room to room is a nuisance, a factor which sometimes curtails fullest use of available equipment.

During team-teaching periods there are projectors, a delineascope, portable laboratories, maps and other materials at the fingertips of the teachers and the pupils.

The most striking value of team-teaching appears in its effect on the people involved, the Hillside teachers say.

"We're getting a terrific response from the children," says Manko. "They seem to be challenged by the greater competition in the large group. Besides that, they are learning to break up the little cliques and status groups that develop within the separate classrooms."

ELNA HARRISON NELSON

With the passing of Elna Harrison Nelson, '11, an epoch in the history of the Alumni Association of the Bloomsburg State College comes to a sudden and unexpected close. Others must now assume control of the activities of the Association. These are destined to become more and more important in the future of the College. This task will not be an easy one. With the greatly increased funds at the disposal of the Association, and the growing demand for financial assistance, the role of the Association will become greater and greater. Under these circumstances, the leadership of Dr. Nelson will be greatly missed.

I wish to lay aside the editorial "we", in order that I may pay due tribute to a friend. Our friendship dates back to the summer of 1915, when Jack and I met in Ann Arbor, Michigan. I had known him casually at Bloomsburg during the school year of 1910-11, but our acquaintance was not intimate. I had gone to Ann Arbor to attend the summer session and to remain in attendance at the University until graduation. Jack had just completed a year at Dickinson College, and had decided to transfer to the University of Michigan. We lived in the same house until 1917, when Jack received his Bachelor of Arts degree. I still had one semester to go. These Ann Arbor days were pleasant ones, and Jack and I have often talked about them. These common experiences were the first of many bonds that drew us together.

Jack went to Highland Park, Michigan, for an interview regarding a teaching position at the Highland Park High School. He made a favorable impression, and was hired for the following year. The Superintendent asked if he knew of any one whom he could recommend as a teacher of foreign languages. Jack mentioned my name, and as a result I was invited to come to Highland Park for an interview. This resulted in my being offered a position, to begin with the second semester of the following year. This was the second link in the chain of our friendship.

When I reported for duty in January, 1918, I took up my residence with Jack and Caroline, who had been married during the summer of 1917. I lived with them for most of the semester, and the friendship grew stronger.

In the summer of 1918, Jack and I were both inducted into the Army, and both of us were sent to Camp Lee, Virginia. He was later accepted for Officers' Training, and I was drawn for special duty and was sent overseas.

The war came to an end in time for Jack to return to Highland Park. I did not return to the States until the middle of the summer of 1919. After my return I was married and took my bride to Highland Park to get established for the coming school year. We took over the Nelsons' apartment while they came East on their vacation. We then lived for several months in downtown Detroit, and when the apartment across the hall from the Nelsons became vacant we moved in, and the two families spent several happy years together.

Then Jack decided to go to Harvard to begin his graduate work. After receiving his Master's degree, he accepted a new position in the Liberty High School at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. The two families were then separated.

After several years at Bethlehem, Jack came to Bloomsburg. Two years later, Dr. G. C. L. Riemer, principal at Bloomsburg, asked Jack to recommend someone who could teach foreign languages. Again Jack mentioned my name, and as a result, I moved my family back to Bloomsburg, and our paths came together again.

In 1926, I became Editor of the Quarterly when publication was resumed after a silence of several years. In 1937, Jack became Business Manager of the Quarterly, and from that date, he and I worked together on this project.

When R. Bruce Albert passed away in 1945, Jack took on the additional duties of President of the Alumni Association. From then until the time of his death, I have sat with him at many meetings of the Board of Directors, been present with him at many branch meetings of the Alumni, and conferred with him many times on Alumni matters.

All of these contacts with Dr. Nelson have resulted in a close relationship in personal, family, and business affairs. I therefore wish at this time to express my deep sense of personal loss. Those of us who have worked with him will remember him with affection, gratitude, and admiration as an inspiring teacher and coach, a loyal colleague, and a great alumni leader. With this as our inspiration, the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association will strive to carry on in "the spirit that is Bloomsburg," of which he was such a shining example.

STATE COLLEGE

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE OF BLOOMSBURG

Sometime in October, 1961, the Superintendent of Public Instruction is presenting to the State Planning Board, the Bureau of the Budget, and the General State Authority, a proposal that the over-all enrollment of the fourteen State Colleges be estimated at 60,000 students for the year 1970.

As part of this plan, Bloomsburg is to have an enrollment of 4,800; of this number 3,600 shall be resident students, and 1,200 day students.

As early as 1941 a campus plan was developed for 1,200, using about two-thirds of the present campus of sixty acres. No date was set for reaching this goal, but it was evident shortly after World War II that additional enrollment would have to be accommodated.

The first post-war plan provided for 2,000 students by 1970, within the present campus area; before two years had passed, it was evident that the 2,000 figure would be approached ten years ahead of the planned date. Thereupon, another or third plan was developed providing for 3,000 students, using the full sixty acres, and requiring the purchase of various residential properties lying within the bounds of or adjacent to the campus.

The change in the name to Bloomsburg State College by one Session of the Legislature and the change in the function by the following Session, so as to offer curriculums in Arts and Sciences as well as in Teacher Education, made it rather evident that, if Bloomsburg were to grow, additional campus sites would have to be sought.

If Bloomsburg is to accommodate 4,800 students by 1970, or as soon as classroom buildings, dormitories, and dining halls can be built and enough faculty employed to instruct this number, it is evident that the campus cannot be less than 100 acres. The present campus can only accommodate 3,000; even then some of the dormitories are four or five stories high.

The Legislature, just adjourned, approved the borrowing of money through the General State Authority to construct an Auditorium to seat 2,000 and a Men's Dormitory to accommodate 250. This dormitory will have to have some seating arrangements for serving at least the evening meal if all the presently housed students are to be fed on campus. At the present time, 860 boarding students are being accommodated in a space that will seat only 720. A sum in excess of $50,000 was also appropriated to plan the new library building.

The growth in the curricular offerings in the field of Teacher Education continues; a group from the Department of Public Instruction, representing the State Council of Education, will visit us October 17, 1961, to see if we have the faculty and facilities for offering courses leading to the Master's Degree in the field of Special Education for the Mentally Retarded and Speech Correction. We expect to continue to develop those factors that are necessary for the approval of offering the Master of Education Degree in the fields of English, Social Studies and, possibly, Geography.

Meetings are beginning to be scheduled to consider the steps to be taken so that the State Colleges can offer curriculums in the Arts and Sciences, presumably to lead to the Degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science. Bloomsburg is interested in Arts and Sciences, related Pre-Professional Programs, and the field of Business Administration. Your Alma Mater will pursue plans in this direction.

Details of the policy as it develops will be found in the future issues of Letters to Graduates from

PRESIDENT ANDRUSS ADDRESSES CONVOCATION

"Every generation has faced periods of confusion. To them the particular time in which they live seems to be unique and unusual and unfortunate."

With these words Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State College, prefaced his address to nearly 2,000 students and faculty at the first college convocation Tuesday, September 19.

In his discussion of "Understanding What We Stand For," Dr. Andruss said, "today, we find the world divided into two camps, Communism versus Democracy. One is a planned life; the other is based on individual choice. All the 'have not' races and nations are standing on the sideline with their hands out for economic aid, with the hope that they may attain the standard of living which is now current in the United States of America, or the standard of living which is described to them by the Communist diplomats."

"In Chicago, not too long ago, Arnold Toynbee, world-famous British historian, said that the question of the survival of the West will turn on which economic ideology gathers in those more than a billion black, brown and yellow men."

"The outcome of this struggle will be determined by the degree of dedication which the Americans have to a free enterprise controlled capitalistic system as compared with the Russian dedication to a Communistic system which on the surface seems to be based on the teachings of Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels."

"From the time of Lenin and Trotsky, the Russian people have been indoctrinated in the communistic system. During this period, what has America been doing to explain to its citizens, consumers, producers, its labor unions, its capitalists, the nature of the free enterprise system which we enjoy?"

"Does the average worker or employee understand that he cannot receive a wage or salary unless the business as a whole earns a profit? Does the manager of a business or the chairman of a board of directors understand that his particular economic unit must compete with other economic units in the same industry? Do industries understand that they cannot continue to compete for public support in the form of consumer dollars unless they add something to the sum total of human welfare?"

"We usually think of literacy as the ability to read and write. Are we able to read the newspaper with regard to economic problems intelligently, and understand and

Since the death of Dr. Nelson, President of the Association, Mr. Diehl has taken over the duties of that office. A President will be chosen at the meeting to be held next Alumni Day, Saturday, May 26, 1962.

weigh, and evaluate, and finally reach a conclusion as to what we see in these forms of daily communication?"

"How can the average citizen, who probably looks at the sports page or the editorial page, or the black headlines, be caused to read the articles on the financial page or other parts of the paper which really affect him more vitally than do the sections that he reads for amusement or for information?"

"We need to find new answers to old questions. Unless we find new answers it is quite probably that this world is doomed to another period comparable to what historians know as the 'Dark Ages.'

"Economic illiteracy must first be attacked in the public schools. At the present time, most public schools have three years of history required and only one year of social science, which means that we are spending three-fourths of the time of our younger generation in studying the events of the past without having them face the problems of the present and the future."

"Our public schools, particularly the high schools, should require a course in Economics, taught both from the institutional and the individual point of view by well-trained teachers for all students before they get a diploma.

"Another avenue which could be used and is used to a limited extent is the newspaper column. We need a column in our daily newspaper that has the zip, the interest, the snappy comeback, and the zest of the columns usually called 'Advice to the Lovelorn.' I would like to see somebody develop a column answering economic questions that has the life, the vitality, the interest, of the columns edited by 'Dear Abby,' Abigail Van Buren, or Ann Landers.

"This struggle for survival will be won by sacrifice based on economic understanding. I believe we have the talent to help put the task of making America greater, and I challenge you to attempt it."

ESTIMATE INCREASED

An increase, from $620,000 to $950,000, for the estimate construction cost of the addition to the heating plant for the replacing of utility and water mains at Bloomsburg State College has been approved by the Board of the General Authority, according to word received by President Harvey A. Andruss from Vincent P. Connelly, Assistant Director of Engineering of the General State Authority. The Board of the Authority also approved a revision to the scope of the project so that under Phase III all utilities will be additionally extended, expanded, and in certain areas, relocated in order to provide adequate service to the new dormitories currently under design, for those buildings planned for future construction, and for existing buildings on the campus. Service facilities which will be extended, expanded, or relocated with the appropriation of funds include steam lines, water lines, sanitary sewer lines, and storm sewers.

With the addition to the heating plant and the extension of public utilities, covered by the $950,000 amount, the college will be able to add new buildings, according to the campus plan developed by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss with the approval of the Board of Trustees and the Department of Public Instruction. The campus plan provides for buildings to accommodate at least 3,000 students on the present campus.

The architectural firm of Eshbach, Pullinger, Stevens and Bruder of Philadelphia is in the process of completing designs for two women's dormitories to be constructed on the campus near Penn Street and Light Street Road. The two dormitories will house a total of 484 resident women and will cost $1,790,000. With the $950,000 approved for the extension of public utilities, this brings to $2,740,000 the amount approved for new construction at Bloomsburg State College.

The latter amount does not include the cost of movable equipment which has been estimated in excess of $100,000.

ADMINISTRATIVE CHANGES

The increase in the number of students at Bloomsburg State College, particularly in the Division of Secondary Education which comprises almost one-third of the total enrollment of 1,937 students, has made necessary certain administrative changes.

Mr. C. Stuart Edwards, Director of Admissions and Placements, has been appointed Director of Secondary Education and will continue as a member of the Administrative Council, according to Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President. As the Director of a Curricular Division, he will be responsible for the scheduling of students and the coordination of subject matter offerings of the eight subject matter departments of the Division. He will also retain his responsibilities as Director of Admissions for at least the college year 1961-1962.

The change from the previous arrangement in the Division of Secondary Education is that the Acting Director will not be responsible for immediate supervision of student teachers. The Director of Supervision of Secondary Student Teachers is Dr. Robert C. Miller, who will be assisted by Mr. Lee F. Aumiller and Mr. Martin M. Keller. The latter has been assigned in the Bucks County area, and will have immediate supervisory contact with student teachers in the high schools of Bristol Township and Neshaminy.

From time to time the Acting Director of Secondary Education, in company with the Director of Student Teaching, will visit the new student teaching centers located in and around the Levittown District in Bucks County, and will also visit student teaching centers in the schools of Bloomsburg, Berwick, Danville, Milton and Central Columbia County.

Secondary student teaching seniors will have an opportunity to spend nine weeks in the Bucks County Area and an equal amount of time in the area located within commuting distance of Bloomsburg. This will give them an opportunity to observe and, to a limited extent, to participate in a teaching process in two different junior and senior high schools, and also to note those differences which normally exist between any units of the same type located in different geographic and economic areas.

This experience will broaden and be most beneficial to Bloomsburg graduates when they begin their first regular teaching position. Graduates, many times, expect the position which they first secure to be exactly like or similar to the high school which they attended, or to the high school in which they did their student teaching.

As a matter of general policy, no senior in Secondary Education will teach in the high school from which he was graduated. Many students will live in private homes in the community in which they are doing their student teaching.

A native of Edwardsville, Mr. Edwards earned the Bachelor of Science degree at Bloomsburg State College, the Master of Education degree at Pennsylvania State University and has continued his graduate studies at Northwestern University and Penn State. He taught for several years in private schools in Florida and Maryland before joining the faculty of Kane High School. A former varsity player at Bloomsburg, he developed outstanding basketball teams in Kane, winning the State Championships in 1949. He left Kane after seven years to become Assistant High School Principal at Coatesville, and served as High School Principal at Ridgway for five years prior to accepting the position at Bloomsburg in June, 1958.

Mr. Edwards is a member of the American Association of College Registrars and Admissions Officers, the Committee on High School-College Relations of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities, the National Secondary School Principals Association, the National Education Association and the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

He is married to the former Eda Bessie Beilhartz of Muncy. Mrs. Edwards is also a graduate of Bloomsburg State College, and is training teacher in the second grade

BSC, SELINGSGROVE JOIN FOR SPECIAL EDUCATION

One of the highlights of the 1961 summer sessions program of study at Bloomsburg State College was the co-operative special education program between the College and the Selingsgrove State School. The summer program is an additional development to the co-operative program which exists between the two institutions during the regular college year.

Student teaching opportunity was made available for the first time this summer to eligible special class teachers who were enrolled in the BSC workshop in special education under the direction of Dr. Donald Maietta.

The plan, originating at the College, was approved by President Harvey A. Andruss, and developed through the co-operative efforts of John A. Hoch, dean of instruction, and Dr. Maietta, director of the Division of Special Education. The program also had the approval of Dr. Daniel Kirk, superintendent of the Selingsgrove State School. Aiding the development and coordination of the venture was Donald P. Austin, director of education at Selingsgrove.

Bloomsburg students, participating in the program, received supervised teaching experiences at Selingsgrove for nine weeks. Special class methods were integrated into the student-teaching schedule and the college students were able to earn credits toward fulfilling state certification requirements in area of special class teaching for the mentally retarded.

Three groups of students at the Selingsgrove School attended the summer school classes taught by Bloomsburg student teachers and members of the regular faculty at Selingsgrove. In primary group I, Mrs. Pamie Shipe, Middletown, was the student teacher, and Mrs. Helen Ranck, co-ordinating teacher. In intermediate group II, Albert Klinger, Sunbury was the student teacher and Ronald Bittle, a graduate of Bloomsburg, the co-operating teacher. In the junior high group, Mrs. Joseph Forsman, Hughesville, was the student teacher and Mrs. Lillian Cole was the cooperating teacher. Coordinating

His topic was "The Foreseeable World of Tomorrow." Approximately 1,000 teachers and administrators from schools in Pennsylvania were in attendance.

As America's foremost spokesman for science as a powerful social force and a prophet of the changes to come, Dr. Wendt brings the news from the laboratories, the "birthplace of the future," on the exploration of outer space, atomic power, advances in industry and agriculture, in medicine and psychology, and forecasts the consequences on our way of life, on business and economics, politics and international relations, on education and even on religion. As a humanist as well as a scientist; he has been described as wise, witty, authoritative, and optimistic too provided as he says, that we face up to science and use our heads to make the most of it.

FIRST TO COMPETE

Linda Lee Kline, Benton, BSC junior this fall and first area girl ever to compete in the Women's Collegiate Golf Tournament held at Ann Arbor, Mich., lost out in a semi-final match in the second flight to an opponent who was listed No. 1 in that flight. The score was 6 and 5.

Miss Kline, who plays at the Bloomsburg Country Club and at Eagles Mere, made a fine showing and hopes to compete next year at Albuquerque, N. M., and in 1963 at University Park.

In light of her limited experience her showing was outstanding. Her opponent, a Miami, Fla., University co-ed, has had much more experience and took the championship in three tourneys in the past two years.

Derrs Christian Church was the setting Saturday September 9, for the marriage of Miss Beverly Susie Heath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Heath, Benton R. D. 3, to William Robert Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Johnson, Benton R. D. 1.

The double-ring ceremony was solemnized by Dr. Harry K. Franks, pastor.

The bride graduated from Benton High School in 1958 and attended Millersville State College. She is a senior at Bloomsburg State College.

MODERN LANGUAGE CONFERENCE

Bloomsburg State College served as host for a Conference of Modern Foreign Language Teachers on September 27. Approximately 60 high school teachers attended. The group assembled in the lobby outside the College Library at 4:00 p. m., prior to the general session held in Room 2, Navy Hall. Following the session, dinner was served in the College Commons.

Sectional meetings began at 7 p. m. in the new Language Laboratory in Navy Hall.

One of the main functions of the conference was to enlist the cooperation of language teachers in using and evaluating the new audio-lingual materials. The results of these efforts will be incorporated into the plans for curriculum revision of Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The theme of the general session was "Status and Trends of Modern Foreign Language in Pennsylvania." The session was in charge of Dr. Carl D. Bauer and Miss Elizabeth Newton of the Department of Public Instruction, Division of Modern Foreign Languages. The sectional meetings were held to demonstrate any materials and techniques in Modern Foreign Language Instruction.

During the past Summer, Bloomsburg completed the installation of a modern language laboratory in Navy Hall; the unit includes 25 individual listening posts and a central control console. These facilities were available for the conference.

Mr. Howard Fenstermaker, Chairman of the Department of Modern Languages at the college, served as local coordinator for the event.

COURSES FOR GRADUATES

For the first time in its 122 years as a center of culture and learning, Bloomsburg State College is offering during the regular fall semester, a program of courses for graduate students. Courses, designed especially for graduate students in Business Education and Elementary Education, are offered each Saturday, beginning September 16, and ending January 20.

In June, 1960, Bloomsburg received approval from the State Council of Education to grant the Master of Education degree in both Business Education and Elementary Education, beginning June 1, 1961.

On June 15, 1961, the college launched the graduate program with an enrollment of 40 students in the three week Pre-session. Other graduate courses were offered during the six week Main Session and the present three week Post-session. A total of 57 different students enrolled in graduate courses during the 12 weeks of summer school.

The graduate program at Bloomsburg has been carefully planned to: permit teachers-in service to secure permanent certification and earn the Master of Education degree without interference with normal professional duties; provide courses and curriculums specifically designed for the elementary school teacher and the teacher of business subjects; provide the elementary teacher with facilities for observation, study, and experimentation which can be found only at a college with a campus laboratory school; afford the business teacher an opportunity to pursue graduate study in a newly constructed classroom building equipped with the most modern business machines.

Requests for the Graduate Bulletin and for information concerning the graduate program should be addressed in writing to Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa.

Paul H. Andrews recently received the degree of Master of Science in Education at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill.

Who Are Bloomsburg Freshmen, 1961?

Bloomsburg freshman for 1961 are almost 700 young men and women from 130 different high schools located in four states and forty of Pennsylvania's 67 counties. There are about forty more men than women. While consciously avoiding purely statistical information, and yet attempting to keep Alumni up to date on the type of student joining the College Community, the following brief summary and class profile is provided.

As is the case in colleges across the country, the total number of applications increases from year to year, and likewise, the number of well-qualified candidates increases proportionately. For example, our Admissions Office this year had 2750 requests for application materials. Of this number, about 1300 completed all preliminary requirements for action on their applications — high school transcript, physical examination, application, interview, and qualifying examination. In over 80 percent of the cases, this latter requirement was fulfilled by the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board. Approximately 125 were offered admission for January, 1961, and 725 were offered admission for September, 1961. The actual number enrolled was 75 in January and 600 in September.

While the College realizes that test scores and high school rank alone, or even in combination, do not tell the whole story of a prospective teacher, it is interesting to note that, of those students who have accepted admission to Bloomsburg during 1961, the average class rank is well in the upper two-fifths of their respective high school classes. Their average College Board scores are:

Men
Verbal -----	439
Math -----	471
Women
Verbal -----	482
Math -----	480
Total
Verbal -----	460
Math -----	475

Since this is the first year the College has used the results of the College Board Tests as part of the admission process, no concrete comparison with previous entering classes is available. But, it has been noted that almost 10 percent more of the present group finished high school in the top two-fifths of their classes, and a cursory comparison with previous tests indicates better aptitude.

In addition to these objective measures of probable success in college and in teaching later, the admissions staff depends heavily upon such subjective criteria as personal interviews, participation in school activities, and recommendations from high school principals and counselors. Oftentimes, motivation and singular personal characteristics make up for apparent shortcomings revealed by high school grades and test scores.

Loyal and satisfied alumni continue to be a prime source in the recruiting of increasing numbers of superior teacher-education candidates. Time after time, a top applicant will credit an alumnus with the impetus for approaching our Admissions Office. And, conversely, few obviously unqualified candidates find their way to us through our graduates. For this we are grateful, because the task of meeting the challenge of educational excellence in the sixties can only be accomplished at your Alma Mater by graduating superior teachers after working with outstanding teacher-education students.

PICTURES PUBLISHED

Dr. Barbara J. L. Shockley, a member of the faculty of the Department of Social Studies at the Bloomsburg State College, has been notified that a number of pictures she has taken, featuring Pennsylvania schools, will be published in the October, 1961 issue of OVERVIEW, a monthly periodical for Educational Executives.

The current item is called "Yesterday's Schoolhouses" and the featured schools are (1) the little white clapboard type set out in Pennsylvania farm land amidst the tall grasses that grow thereabouts and (2) the Little Octagonal school on Highway 45 which was built of native limestone and whose eight-sided plan was designed among other reasons, to ward off Indians.

In the October, 1960, issue, Dr. Shockley's pictures featured students from Bloomsburg State College in "The Bloomsburg Experiment."

Dr. Shockley is a regular contributing writer and photographer for OVERVIEW magazine. She is particularly interested in calling attention to the Little Octagonal School, for it is one of the only two surviving schools of this type in Pennsylvania. The other school is being preserved as a historical item of much interest; the Junior Historians of Northumberland are trying to raise funds to put the Little Octagonal School into a fine state of repair—perhaps even equip it with items that would be the kind used in that day. Dr. Shockley has written a history of this schoolhouse, and hopes to have it published also.

Miss Mary Kramer, special class teacher in the Benjamin Franklin Laboratory School and a member of the faculty of BSC, was presented the Elizabeth Stadlander Memorial Scholarship of $500 at the annual convention of Delta Kappa Gamma held during the summer at Hershey.

There are times when most of us get the thought that no one is interested in anyone but himself. That's a pretty depressing viewpoint and it is fortunate most of us don't get it too often or hold it too long.

Just the same it is morale bolstering to learn of the many kindnesses which are practiced in the world. The Philadelphia Inquirer magazine recently carried a story on Dr. Alfred Vandling, a Mifflinville native and BSC graduate.

He is suffering from multiple sclerosis and in the hope that he can continue his teaching at Abington High for two more years, so as to qualify for retirement, the whole high school—pupils and teachers—are extending a helping hand.

You may have read it when it was first published but it is worth reading again. The folks at Abington are giving more than Dr. Vandling a lift. They're helping many who have read or will read the story. Here it is:

This is the story of a struggle for time . . . the story of a whole

high school, staff and teen-agers alike . . . all pulling for a mild, middle-aged professor in his fight to survive.

It's the story of Alfred Vandling, Ph.D., a teacher of biology who lives and works in Abington.

Here's the way Alfred Vandling's day begins—on school days, that is:

Up at 5 a. m. Wash. Rest. Shave. Rest. Dress. Rest. Breakfast. Rest. Move on crutches out to the street where a pool car is waiting. Sink gratefully into a seat. Arrive at Abington High School. Sink into a wheel chair. Begin the day's work.

"Doc" Vandling, once an athlete at Bloomsburg State College has multiple sclerosis. If he can last out two more years he will be eligible for his pension. And everyone at Abington High is co-operatively working to see that he does.

For instance: The car that picks him up in the mornings is owned and driven by one of the 20 men teachers on a mimeographed roster maintained by Glenn Snodgrass, a stocky ex-footballer who teaches "phys. ed." In the afternoon it's another man's turn.

In the mornings, Vandling feels "strong," and can get about under his own steam. But a day's teaching can take it out of you, as any teacher knows, and the man who has the homebound trip in the afternoon has to carry "Van" back into the house. He's too exhausted to use his crutches.

Back home at 1147 Jerico Rd., Vandling will get into bed in the den, there to recover what strength he can for the next day's struggle.

And it is a struggle to fight against a disease which strikes young adults and progressively cripples them. For example, spring braces are fitted below both knees to help Vandling raise his toes enough for crutch-walking. Breathing is getting difficult. He no longer can write.

But "Doc" Vandling is "lucky"—as luck goes in MC cases. His eyes, usually the first target of multiple sclerosis, have not been affected. As for writing—including personal letters and entering grades in the grade books—all that is done by his students.

Then, too, when he finds that he has to repair to the model living-room setup to rest in an easy chair, one of the student teachers from Penn State University takes over. And when lunch time arrives, a tray comes to his classroom from the cafeteria. The metal shop even has fitted the men's wash room with hand braces for his use.

Finally, Mrs. Elmer Carroll, the school nurse, is helpful at all times. In fact, everyone in the school—pupils, teachers, administrative staff and all—are on Doc Vandling's side. It's such an ideal setup that Doc is teaching six weeks of summer school (until 12:30 each day) rather than stay home and "look at three walls."

Dr. Vandling was born 48 years ago "in the village of Mifflinville, Pa." He taught in public schools, then was made an assistant professor of biology at Beaver College. He was at Beaver when he first noticed that something, physically, was going wrong. At first he wondered if he had leukemia. Finally, his ailment was diagnosed as multiple sclerosis.

When he realized the full implications of that diagnosis he "headed back" for public high school work and the State pension that will be his if he can hold out two more years. At the same time his wife, Delphine, a former teacher, went back to the classroom at Upper Darby High School, where she now is head of the English department.

Vandling's world is the school and the ground-floor den on Jericho rd. There he lives exclusively, eating from a tray, washing up in the powder room. "I've only been upstairs twice in the two years we've been in the house," he says. "I've learned how to pace myself and not try to do too much in a hurry. You can't rush with MS.

"But at school I've got it made. Everybody's so wonderful! It used to be that I did 90 percent of the work and my students did the other 10 percent. Now it's the other way around.

"I'm a lucky guy, and I know it. Maybe my troubles are leveling off . . ."

Glen A. Oman, Bloomsburg native and a son of Mrs. E. M. CARRY ON

"ONWARD BLOOMSBURG GOES"

(Mr. Fred W. Diehl has consented to write this page, formerly written by the late Dr. Nelson and entitled "Saucered and Blowed.")

With an active membership of over 1300, and a potential group of some 5700 additional Bloomsburg graduates, it seems fitting that from time to time you should be told what goes on in your Association between reunions.

For most of our Alumni "between reunions" cover a five year period. It is gratifying to note that an increasing number of Alumni are each year returning to the Campus for Class Reunion activities.

Since the 1961 Reunion—May 27, your Association's Board of Directors has held two meetings. We are much aware of the loss of the leadership given to us by Elna H. Nelson. Of the many groups in which he was associated, there is none where his loss is more keenly felt than in our Alumni Association.

At a Board meeting held on June 12th, we reviewed the financial position of the Association—Investments, Operating and Student Loan Funds, and arranged for carrying on. Board member Charles Henrie, '38, was appointed to serve as Loan Officer, with authority to approve student loan applications. As of this date the outstanding loans total $29,635.

At this meeting action was also taken resulting in College co-operation and assistance in printing and mailing the July, 1961, Nelson Memorial issue of the Quarterly to all our 7000 alumni. We are indebted to Editor Howard F. Fenstermaker for this splendid edition, and to President Harvey A. Andruss, and Public Relations Director, Mr. Boyd F. Buckingham, for their helpful co-operation.

Our second Board meeting was held on September 30th. Dr. Andruss and Mr. Buckingham met with us and offered the help of the College in sending another issue of the Quarterly to all Alumni, sometime during this College year.

The Board authorized the appointment of two committees. The Finance Committee is to have the duty of handling Investments, Loan payments and all other matters dealing with the financial affairs of the Association. The members of this committee are Charles Henrie, Earl A. Gehrig and Mrs. Charlotte McKechnie.

A second committee will be known as the Alumni Branch Committee. It will be responsible for the promotion of alumni branch organizations, and assisting all such groups in their meetings and activities. The members of this committee are Prof. Howard F. Fenstermaker, Miss Elizabeth Hubler and Mrs. Vera Housenick. We trust that our Branch officers will use this committee for any help that it may give to the work and meetings of their Branch. We especially invite Alumni living in an area where there is no active Alumni group, to solicit the help of this committee in forming a Branch organization.

Another important action taken at this Board meeting was the selection of Mr. Buckingham to serve as the Business Manager of the Quarterly, and the employment of his clerical staff to give assistance in its preparation and mailing.

The December, 1961, Quarterly will carry news of another very important decision of your Board.

In closing may I remind the officers and members of the Class of 1912, that they will observe their 50th GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY Reunion next May. It is not too early for them to start planning for this important event. The leaders of all other Five-Year Reunion Classes are also reminded of this date.

Yours for a strong and active Alumni Association,

Sincerely,

Fred W. Diehl.

FRED W. DIEHL, Vice-President

STATE COLLEGE

ARTS AND SCIENCES AT BLOOMSBURG

For many years the history of your Alma Mater began with "Academy, Literary Institute, State Normal School, and State Teachers College. This marks the metamorphosis of Bloomsburg."

With the change of the name to BLOOMSBURG STATE COLLEGE, it was assumed that, in time, other curriculums would be offered and other degrees granted than those for teachers leading to the Bachelor of Science in Education.

Is Bloomsburg going to become a Liberal Arts College? This question has been asked many times, and it now seems necessary for it to be answered.

The general use of the term "Liberal Arts" in the Standard Medieval Curriculum, was divided into two parts, the Trivium or elementary group of three studies (Grammar, Rhetoric and Logic—a study of languages), and the Quadrivium, or the higher group of studies (Arithmetic, Astronomy, and Music). It is evident that no modern college has limited itself to the original medieval meaning of liberal arts.

Those who wish to distinguish the original meaning of Liberal Arts from its modern application now use the term "Arts and Sciences" to distinguish one of the major divisions of a University comprising the various departments offering general or non-professional subjects.

No, Bloomsburg is not going to become a Liberal Arts College. It will continue to be a State College whose primary purpose is the education and training of teachers, and as such will be a part of the Public School System of Pennsylvania. However, curriculums in the Arts and Sciences, comprised of English Composition and Literature, Foreign Languages (French, Spanish and German), the Sciences (Biology, Chemistry and Physics), History and Social Sciences (Economics, Government and Sociology), and Mathematics, will form the basis of the offerings leading to a Bachelor of Arts or a Bachelor of Science Degree.

Surveys are being made of the education and experience of the present faculty in terms of the offering of a proposed curriculum, and the demand for teachers in relation to the number of students who should be admitted each year, available funds from both state and student sources and other important considerations before these new programs are begun.

You may recall that this is not a new venture for Bloomsburg, since we had a number of Freshmen sections in Arts and Sciences, who transferred to Pennsylvania State College at the end of the first year. This cooperative program continued for three years from 1947 to 1949.

Announcements will be made well in advance of the admission of students, and the increase in the number of Freshmen admitted in Arts and Science curriculums will depend upon available faculty, funds and plant facilities.

NEW ROLE FOR STATE COLLEGES

Pennsylvania's fourteen state-owned colleges are being groomed for a new role.

State officials are planning to move the colleges away from their specialized function of training teachers and into the main-stream of higher education.

The first step into the transition is planned for next year and at that time Bloomsburg State College will begin training a limited number of students for arts and sciences degrees.

Commenting on the changeover, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the college, said a great deal depends on completion of proposed construction to enlarge the campus.

"We are still somewhat in the dark concerning the building of a junior college on the country club site adjoining the college," Dr. Andruss said. "A good many things are contingent on finances," he added.

It is the desire of the BSC president to increase enrollment from the present 2,000 students to approximately 3,000 in the next two or three years and extend the student population to 5,000 by 1970.

Dr. Andruss is of the opinion that the state will eventually have to supply more financial aid to students seeking higher education. He feels that there are many high school graduates unable to attend college because of the money burden it would place on their families.

"A student at a state supported school should not be charged more than one-fourth of the total cost," he said, adding that at present it is more than one-third.

He stated that the General State Authority has earmarked some of the money needed to take over the country club grounds. The purchase has been approved by the authority and if the balance of funds is allotted in the next year it will not be too strenuous a task to build up the enrollment to 5,000 students by 1970.

"Of this number we will be able to accommodate approximately 3,400 on campus, with an off-campus population of 1,600 completing the enrollment," Dr. Andruss said.

Following the lines of a study made in 1949 by Dr. Andruss, some educators feel that the first step in the changeover would have students following a general education for their first two years.

They would then transfer to liberal arts colleges to obtain their degrees, or remain at state colleges for their final two years to become teachers.

This would give added time to the institutions to complete required construction; arrange housing facilities and increase faculties in order to fulfill their expanded roles.

In an Associated Press dispatch by Fred Walters from Harrisburg it was noted that the rising cost of education is perhaps the most important factor behind state plans.

To put a young man or woman through college today would cost an average of $925 a year for tuition.

But at a state college the tuition (called a "basic fee" because the state cannot legally charge tuition at its colleges) is $200. If the state is going to see to it that more get a chance to go to college, then the state-owned colleges are the logical place for it to start.

The governor's committee on education proposed that the colleges prepare to enroll 60,000 students by 1970.

An estimated 27 per cent—190,000 students—now are attending college, including part-times. By 1970, it is estimated that about 300,000 young men and women will be entering college.

The state colleges' assignment will be to provide a quality education for the masses who cannot—and will not be able to by 1970—afford private institutions tuitions.

There are, of course, loan and scholarship programs to help cases of acute financial need. And these programs probably will increase over the years.

However, most of their assistance will be, presumably, for the intellectual elite.

That would leave out the qualified youngster whose I.Q. is not as high and whose family has limited financial means.

This is the point where the state colleges enter the picture in an expanded role as liberal arts institutions.

Dr. Charles H. Boehm, state superintendent of public instruction who also serves as chairman of the board of presidents of the state colleges, has cautioned the institutions that much must be done to accomplish the transformation.

The curriculum needs to be strengthened, especially in the third and fourth years. For some time now, the state colleges have been offering liberal arts courses in the first two years to their teacher-students. This was the result of a movement begun in 1953 to give more emphasis to the general education of the future teacher and less on methods of teaching.

In addition to filling out general education courses for the last two years, the colleges also appreciate the fact their present offerings need more breadth.

Representatives from the 14 colleges already have been scheduled for a two-day meeting—to discuss with other experts in the field what can be done to strengthen their science and mathematics courses.

Improvements also are needs for the faculties.

The average salary for the 1,251 professional (teaching and administrative) employees is $6,708.35; each teaching member of the faculty is responsible for an average of 17-18 students.

Although exact figures for the other colleges and universities were not available, the state feels, and sources at private institutions concede, that salary and work loads are not comparable with the average.

For these reasons, state officials say the, at best, the initiation of the new role for the institutions at Bloomsburg, California, Cheyney, Clarion, East Stroudsburg, Edinboro, Indiana, Kutztown, Lock Haven, Mansfield, Millersville, Shippensburg, Slippery Rock and West Chester will be, at best, "modest" next fall.

Increases in student enrollment, an extension of curricular offerings to include a program of graduate studies, and for the beginning of construction for new buildings and additions to existing structures, totaling approximately three million dollars, are among the highlights of the developments during the past year.

The College, established as an academy in 1839, continues to serve its primary function as a center of culture in the area. Along with this important role, the increase in the number of students, faculty, and non-instructional personnel has led the college to figure prominently in the economic well-being of the town and surrounding communities.

Alumni, returning to the campus for homecoming activities, will find visible evidence of changes that have occurred since their last visit to the "Friendly College." However, much of what might be termed change and growth are not readily apparent to the casual observer.

Increases in enrollment hit a new high in September, 1961, when 1,935 students and 117 faculty members began classes on the campus.

In the past decade, enrollment and number of faculty members, has nearly tripled.

A new dining room, a new college classroom building, a new men's dormitory, new headquarters for the Department of Special Education, and the re-location of the library are visible symbols of this steady expansion.

During the coming winter, ground will be broken in the vicinity of Science Hall for two dormitories for resident women and an addition to the heating plant, which will double its capacity. Service facilities which will be extended, expanded or re-located include steam lines, water lines, sanitary sewer lines and storm sewers.

Rehabilitation work on building exteriors, sidewalks, curbs and steps was completed this summer at a cost of nearly $6,000, and the Navy Hall playground was surfaced with amesite to provide additional parking space and an improved recreational area for the students of the Benjamin Franklin Campus Laboratory School.

Several "firsts" occurred during the summer months. The Division of Graduate Studies opened its doors to the first of 62 students who began a program of studies leading to the Master of Education degree. The first full time summer residential program in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, designed for adult trainees recommended by the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, was inaugurated at the college early in June, and is continuing during the present college year. Summer School enrollment hit an all-time high, giving employment to a greater number of faculty members.

The cultural impact of the college within Pennsylvania has been extended to fifty of the sixty-seven counties in the Commonwealth. Each year, more and more students have come from the Philadelphia and Harrisburg areas along with an increasing number from Columbia, Luzerne, Northumberland and Schuylkill counties. Conferences and other events at the college also indicate that the influence of the college is being felt in ever-widening circles.

New student teaching centers have been established in Allentown and the Bucks County Area to accommodate the growth in enrollment and to provide a greater diversity of professional experiences.

A group of outstanding speakers and artists, headed by General Carlos Romulo and Dr. Frank Laubach, have come to the campus to share their knowledge and experiences with faculty and students.

Gifts from alumni and friends have increased the Alumni Loan Fund to approximately $140,000. An annual sportsmanship award of $300 was established recently from a $5,000 gift by the faculty of a Bloomsburg graduate.

In terms of its economic influence, statistics indicate an annual payroll of nearly $1,125,000 for college employees. Each year, for some time, the number of students, living in private homes in the town

MEMORIAL TO PROF. HARTLINE UNVEILED

A splendid tribute to the memories of Prof. and Mrs. Daniel S. Hartline, educators, was paid at Lime Ridge Sunday, October 8, when a glacier boulder was unveiled at the Lime Ridge community grounds.

Dr. Keffer Hartline, their only child, came from Baltimore, Md., with his wife and youngest son, Fred, for the impressive ceremony attended by many of his students at the Bloomsburg State College.

Dr. Hartline gave the response and spoke of his appreciation to Miss Elizabeth Low, Lime Ridge, who was responsible for the tribute. The boulder, suitably inscribed, was unveiled by the grandson of the educators, Fred Hartline. It was placed at the spot where students of Prof. and Mrs. Hartline would leave and board the trolley cars when they went into the Lime Ridge area on field trips in the days of old "Bloomsburg Normal."

Dr. Kimber C. Kuster of the College faculty, and a student of Prof. and Mrs. Hartline, spoke of the fine experiences of those geology trips.

He recalled Prof. Hartline's favorite Scripture passage, taken from Psalm 24, and which he frequently mentioned to his classes: "Lift up your head oh ye gates and be ye of Bloomsburg, has increased. This fall, approximately 600 students reside in the town, and it is estimated they spend $15,000 each week for rooms, food, laundry and related expenses. This amount, added to purchases made by dormitory students, totals about $700,000 during the regular two-semester term.

Bloomsburg State College takes pride in its efforts to provide the best education for the future teachers of this state and nation. This will continue as enrollment reaches projected estimates of 3,000 before the end of the present decade. At the same time, the College realizes and accepts responsibilities to its alumni and to those who live in the area embraced by its cultural and economic sphere of influence.

lifted up, ye everlasting doors and the King of Glory will come in."

Dr. Kuster said Prof. Hartline "read in stratified rock, in the heavens above and the great out of doors the glory of God."

Earl Hornberger, Lime Ridge, BSC student who works at the Low home, capably presided. The Rev. Virgil Wallace, Berwick, offered prayer and spoke of the important contributions made by those of ability, courage and integrity such as Prof. and Mrs. Hartline. The minister said he had not known them personally but had been told by many of the splendid contributions they made. Mrs. J. S. Helt, Berwick, a former pupil, told of the fine influence the educators had upon their students.

Flowers were planted at the memorial by Mrs. Duncan of Elan Memorial Park. Through the years she will care for the flowers and see that there are always at the site native plants of the area which Prof. and Mrs. Hartline loved. The Lime Ridge Band provided a much enjoyed program of music.

Edward F. Schuyler '24, Editor of The Morning Press, had the following comment in his column, "The Passing Throng":

The recent unveiling of a glacier boulder as a memorial to Prof. and Mrs. D. S. Hartline has revived a number of memories of residents of the area who were privileged to know these splendid educators and outstanding citizens.

One of the trips associated with Prof. Hartline was brought further into focus when we read a column by Hal Boyle, AP columnist, who mentioned that "You can pep up your meals with a portion of rattlesnake steak, only 200 calories."

This turned thoughts back to the mid-twenties. Prof. Hartline took one of his biology classes on a trip to North Mountain. The group made the trip in a bus of Leslie Miller.

During the exploration by the students, of an area of the mountain they came across a rattlesnake and prepared the meat as a choice item on the evenings menu. We don't know how many actually enjoyed that meal but every one in the party had at least a small portion. That is everyone did except Les. He emphatically declared he wasn't that hungry.

We recall the incident best because it was put on the wire and made the Philadelphia press. In fact it made the first page. We know that wouldn't be the case now when we eat all kinds of things, such as chocolate covered ants and baked grasshoppers. Anyway they are available.

Other experiences most of "Daddy's" former pupils recall were those early morning bird hunts. The uninitiated always complained about getting up at five, or even earlier, but after one of the trips they were always ready for an encore.

We recall on one of those trips, we did the cooking for some of the group. Not being expert in the art we allowed the fat to catch fire. The eggs came out looking about as black as anthracite. Elias P. Morgan, Hazleton, who was in the party didn't like eggs that shade. Neither did the others in the group. At 7 a.m. they tasted fine. We didn't mind the color at all.

Every once in a while one will have an experience in which he is made to "feel like a king." That always was the way one felt if he went to the Hartline home. It didn't make any difference as to one's station in life; the red carpet was out. It was something you always remember.

We don't know of any one who played a more active role, albeit behind the scenes, in getting the Boy Scout program rolling here than "Daddy."

He and Mrs. Hartline loved youth and did their best to see that all had an opportunity to enjoy nature. In the early days of Camp Lavigne and for some years thereafter Prof. Hartline would spend as many weekends at the Scout camp as possible. If youngsters wanted to know about nature "Daddy" had the time to teach and he was outstanding teacher.

How many remember the tree house that was at Lavigne? Maybe it's still there—for we haven't been in the camp in some time and haven't been around the grounds for years—but we haven't heard much about it recently.

"Daddy" was the inspiration for the tree house. There were some who felt it was rather dangerous for the youngsters but if they happened to talk it over with the educator they were soon convinced that youth must have some adventure.

We always marveled at the many sides of the Hartlines. Of course that is a characteristic of the well educated, but they were able to enter enthusiastically into anything which was wholesome and to immediately become one of the group.

The Darwin theory is pretty well accepted nowadays and has been for some time. There are unquestionably some who still don't go along with the proposition but presenting it nowadays doesn't bring out the storm of protest which created the Tennessee monkey trial early in the twenties. Prof. Hartline gave his theories clearly to all interested. When a town clergyman scheduled a sermon to present the other side the Prof. and Mrs. Hartline were in attendance and right up front. They had the courage of their convictions but were willing to listen to the other side. It was one of life's rich experiences to have been privileged to know the Hartlines and a rare opportunity to attend classes they conducted.

SUCCESSFUL PARENTS' DAY

One of the most successful efforts planned for direct communication between parents of freshmen and administrative personnel at Bloomsburg State College was repeated on Sunday, October 8, for the eighth successive year. The 580 members of the freshman class were invited, with their parents, to attend the Eighth Annual Parents Day which began at 2 p. m. in Carver Auditorium.

Since seating space in Carver Auditorium is limited, and the present freshman class is the largest to be enrolled in the history of the College, invitations for the occasion were extended only to the freshmen and their parents.

The meeting of parents, freshmen students, faculty and administrative personnel was originated to improve communications and general understandings among the various groups.

A panel of five administrative officers of the College discussed these phases of college life: Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College, Problems of Growth, Implications of change in name and possible functions, Building program, Increase in number of faculty; John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction, Principles and practices related to instruction; J. Alfred McCauslin, Dean of Students, Social Program, Church Attendance, Student employment, counseling services; Paul G. Martin, Business Manager, Fees, Insurance, Services rendered by the college trust fund, Emergency Loans; C. Stuart Edwards, Director of Admissions and Placement, Admissions policy and procedures, Use of the College Entrance Examination Board tests, Placement services. President Andruss presented a summarizing statement at the conclusion of the panel discussion.

Directors of Curriculum Divisions, Deans of Men and Women, and members of the faculty were available for informal conferences with parents and students following the discussion period. A reception for students, parents and faculty, was held in the College Commons after the program in Carver Auditorium.

DR. RUSSELL HELPS TO HONOR "UNCLE SAM"

Dr. J. Almus Russell, Professor of English at the Bloomsburg State College, joined a group of five historians who testified on Tuesday, July 11, at a Senate Hearing in Washington, D. C., in support of a measure to have the grave of "Uncle Sam" Wilson located in Oakwood Cemetery, Troy, N. Y., declared a national shrine. According to Dr. Russell, Samuel Wilson was the progenitor of the nation's symbol and sobriquet of "Uncle Sam."

The afternoon hearing was held before members of the Subcommittee on Federal Charters, Holidays and Celebrations of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary. Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen (R. Illinois), Senate Minority Leader, was chairman of the committee.

The concurrent House Resolution 157, introduced by Representative Leo W. O'Brien (D. New York) reads in part:

"Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate Concurring) that the Congress salutes 'Uncle Sam' Wilson, of Troy, N. Y., as the progenitor of America's national symbol of 'Uncle Sam,' and also recognizes Arlington, Massachusetts, famed in the history of America's six dawning years, as the birthplace of the said Samuel Wilson."

Senator Kenneth B. Keating (R. New York) and Senator Jacob K. Javits (R. New York) introduced the "Uncle Sam" Bill into the Senate. Senator John L. McClellan (R. Arkansas) is another member of the Senate Committee.

Other historians besides Dr. Russell, who testified at the Senate Committee Hearing were:

Thomas I. Gerson (Troy Times-Record, Legislative Chairman, of Troy, N. Y., Area Committee for "Uncle Sam.")

Colonel Edgar T. Noyes, USAF, Ret, Samuel Wilson Archivist, San Antonio, Texas.

Dr. Albert B. Corcy, Historian for the State of New York.

Alton Ketchum, author of "Uncle Sam: The Man and the Legend," International Vice President of McCann-Erickson, New York City.

The United States derived its nickname of "Uncle Sam" from Samuel Wilson (1766-1854) in this way. Mr. Wilson was a contractor for supplying the Army in the War of 1812 with large amounts of beef and pork. He had long been familiarly known by the name of "Uncle Sam." The brand upon his barrels of meat for the Army was of course "U. S." Consequently, the transition from the United States to Uncle Sam was so easy that it was at once made; and hence the name of the packer of the United States' provisions was immediately transferred to our national government, and because known not only through the Army but through the whole country as well.

It is recorded that one day when a British soldier scoffingly asked just what this "U. S." stood for, a meatpacker replied to him—"Oh, that just stands for 'Uncle Sam.'"

Professor Russell, who is the author of more than 250 published articles in the fields of American literature, history and education, is considered an authority on the life of Samuel Wilson.

As one of the five historians, he testified before the Senate Committee to the historic authenticity of the claim that Samuel Wilson is the prototype of "Uncle Sam." Dr. Russell was born, and spent his pre-college years in the town of Mason, New Hampshire. This village was also Samuel Wilson's residence in his youth from 1780-1789 before he settled in Troy, N. Y. Consequently, Professor Russell has had an unsurpassed opportunity to collect unpublished and little-known source materials, based upon old manuscripts, letters, news articles and interviews with old town residents.

A large delegation, representing a cross-section of civic, veterans, industrial and fraternal life in Troy, N. Y. attended the Senate hearings. Only five historians, however, were scheduled to testify.

Two years ago a similar bill passed the House of Representatives unanimously, was approved by the Senate Subcommittee on Public Lands, but died when Rep. Ross Adair (R. Indiana) claimed that the true Samuel Wilson was buried in Merriam, Indiana.

STUDENTS HOLD PTA SCHOLARSHIPS

Five students, attending Bloomsburg State College, are holders of four-year scholarships awarded annually by the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The state organization of parents and teachers has been awarding scholarships to two freshmen at each of Pennsylvania's fourteen State Colleges. The scholarship provides $150 each of the four years the student is attending a state college to prepare for a career in teaching.

Scholarships, awarded to two students at Bloomsburg during the past three years, include the following: Peggy Stiles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Stiles, Broomall, Pa. STUDENTS OF 50 COUNTIES ENROLLED AT COLLEGE

An analysis of the enrollment of the students of Bloomsburg State College for its first semester, made by President Harvey A. Andruss, shows that fifty counties of the total of sixty-seven in Pennsylvania are represented.

Columbia County leads with 358 students, followed by Luzerne 342, Northumberland with 302 and Schuylkill with 133. This marks a new relationship in that Luzerne County usually sent more students to Bloomsburg than any other county in the past.

Lycoming, Montgomery (near Philadelphia) and Montour Counties each send from 75 to 80 students.

There are 187 students from the Philadelphia, Delaware and Bucks Counties, fifty from the Harrisburg area embracing Dauphin, Cumberland and Franklin Counties, seventeen from Lancaster and York Counties, and fifty-three from the northern tier counties.

Thirty-seven of the students currently enrolled are from states other than Pennsylvania.

The geographic diversification of the enrollment indicates that Bloomsburg is becoming an institution that draws students from nearly all parts of Pennsylvania.

The great increase in enrollment from Columbia, Luzerne, and Northumberland Counties, is accounted for by the fact that the college is within communicating distance of students located in these counties, and the dormitory accommodations are limited to about 660. There has been little increase in the dormitory accommodations for women in the last seventy-five years, and accommodations for men have been increased by only 130 students. The accommodations for 400 men and 100 women in Bloomsburg accounts for the over-all total of about 1,200 who are resident students, either in the dormitory or in the town, whereas almost 800 students drive back and forth to the college each day.

SALES RALLY

Businessmen, retail salesmen, college students, high school teachers, and high school students, from 76 communities in 10 counties of Pennsylvania, provided a capacity audience for the Sixteenth Annual Sales Rally at the Bloomsburg State College on Thursday, October 26. Dr. R. C. S. Young, writer, lecturer, independent researcher and educational consultant for the General Motors Corporation, and Dr. Charles E. Irvin, lecturer and consultant in sales management and business-industrial communications, were selected to present the program which was held in Carver Hall Auditorium. Both men are skilled teachers, speakers, and salesmen and followed in the outstanding tradition of past speakers who have made Bloomsburg's Annual Sales Rally one of the best in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Delegations of Rotarians from Berwick, Bloomsburg and Danville attended a dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. in the College Commons prior to the Sales Rally.

Dr. Young, a graduate of Mercer University has served as a youth counsellor, minister, college professor, writer and lecturer. For the past 17 years, he has lectured throughout the United States and Canada. Appearing before business, industrial, civic and religious groups, he directed his efforts to rebuilding the climate for the American way of life in world leadership.

Dr. Irvin taught speech and business communications for 20 years, and varied his background with industrial service in administration, personnel training, sales, and promotional activities. He is a regular staff speaker for General Motors, the National Management Association and the Anthracite Industry Council. His reputation has been built upon an ability to blend humor, information and inspiration plus a versatile skill in handling a variety of subjects before all types of groups.

DEAN McCauslin RECEIVES DOCTOR'S DEGREE

J. Alfred McCauslin, Dean of Students, Bloomsburg State College, was awarded, recently, the Doctor of Education degree with a major in College Personnel Administration and a minor in Higher Education from the University of Maryland. Dean McCauslin holds the Master of Science degree with a major in Guidance and a minor in Anthropology from the Pennsylvania State University, the Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in Economics and a minor in History from Rollins College, and was graduated, with honors, from the Mountverde Preparatory School, Mountverde, Florida.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg as the institution's first Dean of Students, he was Dean of Student Life at Wilmington College, Wilmington, Ohio, and served also as that institution's first Dean of Students. Previous to his work in Ohio, he was Dean of Students at the Presbyterian Junior College in North Carolina. In 1954, he was a visiting professor at the Inter-American University at Puerto Rico. While he was in the U. S. Army, he conducted night classes in Social Science.

For his dissertation, Dr. McCauslin conducted a study to investigate the differences between students motivated to seek help with their problems and those who are not. These students were compared on the basis of personality, age, academic averages, number of brothers and sisters, level of father's education, year in school, and responses to several tests.

It was found that personality seemingly has no relationship to seeking help with problems and that perception does. Furthermore, the chances are that if a student is interviewed by a professional counselor, the student will decide to meet with the counselor for the purpose of seeking and working through a solution to his problems.

Charles and Harriet Andrews are now located at 229 1-2 Maple, New Wilmington, Pa. Mr. Andrews is a member of the faculty of Westminster College.

AMBITIOUS TO TEACH? BEWARE!

Approximately 90% of Bloomsburg College graduates usually go into teaching. They will be interested in the following comments which some of them may not have seen in a New York City newspaper.

Hal Boyle's regular column syndicated from New York for that date carried the following:

"Remarks that teachers get tired of hearing—or over-hearing:

"Those that can, do; those that can't teach."

"What are you teachers always crabbing about? After all, you get the whole summer off."

"She looks like a teacher."

"I hear the reason she never got married was that she had an unhappy love affair."

"Surely you must be mistaken. My son wouldn't have said a thing like that to anyone—even a teacher."

"The job pays $2,500 and, of course, you'll coach the dramatics club, sponsor the school paper, chaperone the Friday night dances, take tickets at the football game, and . . ."

"What does she know about children? She doesn't have any of her own."

"Naturally, your private life is your own, Miss Blatz, but this is a small town and we've never had a woman teacher who smoked in public."

"Frankly, the opportunity for advancement is limited, but you'll have the satisfaction of molding young minds."

"Keep me after class if you want. But you better know one thing—my uncle's on the school board."

"Now what is all this nonsense my wife tells me about you thinking my son ought to spend another year in the first grade?"

"Oh, Miss Blatz wouldn't care for a cocktail. Get her a nice glass of fruit punch."

"I don't understand it. Herbert never had any trouble with any other teachers."

"Maybe you did say we were going to have a test today, but I row."

couldn't hear you in the back

"It's all the board can afford to pay you, Miss Blatz, but we don't feel it looks right for you to be working extra as a cashier in the dime store on Saturdays."

"It must be a real satisfaction to have a sense of dedication—and not be worrying all the time about material things."

"Ask her for a date if you want to, Joe, but if you don't behave she'll probably make you stand in the corner, like she does the kids."

"What in the world do you teachers do with all your spare time?"

HOMEcoming DAY—1961

Homecoming activities at the Bloomsburg State College included more than the events, regularly scheduled, for Homecoming Day in the past years. Invitations were mailed to nearly 7,500 alumni of the institution. Heading the agenda was a concert by Count Basie and his Orchestra on Friday, October 27, at 8 p. m. in Centennial Gymnasium.

Registration for all alumni and friends began Saturday morning, October 28, at 8:30 p. m. Open house was scheduled for visits by alumni, parents and friends at 10:30 a. m. Cafeteria luncheon was served in the College Commons at 11:30 a. m.; and a Homecoming parade including many colorful floats got underway at noon.

One of the big events of the afternoon was a gridiron contest on Mt. Olympus at 2 p. m. featuring Bloomsburg's Huskies and the Warriors of East Stroudsburg State College, one of the powers of the State College Conference.

The traditional get-together, following the game, was arranged to accommodate at least 3,000 people in the Husky and Waller Lounges and in the New North Hall Lounge. A cafeteria dinner was served at 5:30 p. m. in the College Commons and an informal dance, featuring Stan Fields and his Orchestra was held in Centennial Gymnasium.

Mr. John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction, Bloomsburg State College, was one of a panel of three featured speakers at the first public meeting of the Citizens' Committee for Better Schools of Dallas, Pa. Other members of the panel were Dr. Eugene S. Farley, President of Wilkes College; Dr. Robert G. Bernreiter, Special Assistant to the President, Pennsylvania State University. The discussion topic was "What Does It Take to be a Successful Applicant for College and to Remain in College?"

The meeting was held on Wednesday, October 18, in the new Dallas High School Auditorium. Each of the panel members discussed the topic for 15 minutes after which members of the audience participated in a question and answer period.

FOOTBALL--1961

The 1961 version of the B. S. C. football team ended the season with a record of four victories and four defeats.

The opening game with Shippensburg put B.S.C. in the winning column. This was followed by a victory over Kings. Then came two defeats, the first at Cortland and the second at Lock Haven.

The Huskies then moved to Mansfield where they again put themselves on the winning side of the ledger. Then came Homecoming Day. East Stroudsburg moved in and the Alumni were obliged to witness a 36-0 defeat.

A game with Cheyney ended in a victory for Bloomsburg. This filled the B.S.C. fans with a hope that the final game of the season with West Chester might result in an upset. Although West Chester won, as predicted, the score was not as bad as some had feared.

BSC—34 Shippensburg SC—6

Probably figuring that in time of world crisis it is good to emulate the offensive tactics of the military, the Bloomsburg College Huskies of Walt Blair introduced the Army version of the lonely end as it opened its 1961 gridiron season by walloping the Red Raiders of Shippensburg, 34-6, in baseball weather and before a crowd of around 1,500.

The hard running of Bloomsburg

State College's fleet of backs coupled with the sure hands of Moscs Scott proved too much for the Monarchs of King's College as the Huskies trampled the Kingsmen, 31-12, before a crowd of about 3,000 at Athletic Park. King's opened the scoring in the first quarter and the Huskies bounced back to tie it up at 6-6 in the same period. From that time on it was Bloomsburg's game.

BSC—7 Lock Haven—19

Bloomsburg Huskies came within 2 minutes and 1 second of winning a football game in the rain before a Bald Eagle homecoming crowd at Lock Haven and then lost, 19-7.

Those last 121 seconds were a nightmare for the Huskies who, for the second week in a row, were unable to get a sustained offensive rolling and except in the third quarter spent most of the time in their own territory.

The Bloomsburg State Huskies unleashed their finest running attack of the year at Mansfield to triumph, 21-7, against the best Mountaineer team since the late forties.

Still without Ed Cocco, but with Gary Sprout, Ken Dries and Don English ripping through roles provided by a hard charging forward wall, the Huskies rolled up almost 300 yards from rushing and implemented that with the most accurate passing attack Dick Rohrer and company displayed this fall.

BSC—0 East Stroudsburg—36

Most of the 3,500 assembled on Bloomsburg State's Mount Olympus hold allegiance to the Maroon and Gold but all they saw was the Red of East Stroudsburg.

Everytime they looked out on the gridiron during the sports feature of the homecoming festivities they saw an East Stroudsburg Warrior, attired in red on a white background, either going over the Bloomsburg goal line or making substantial progress in that direction.

The game ended with the visitors the victors, 36-0. The score, the statistics and anything connected with the contest told clearly how the boys from Monroe county dominated the game to inflict upon the Huskies the worst defeat they have suffered on their home field since the gridiron sport was put back on the Bloomsburg athletic calendar in 1946. Except for one or two reverses at West Chester it was the worst defeat suffered by BSC in that period, either at home or away.

SPEAKS BEFORE CLUB

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of Bloomsburg State College and founder of the Division of Business Education and the first Business Education Club at the College, recently addressed members of the Club on the topic, "Who Is Business Education Going to Educate?" President Andruss stated that, in the early days, Business Education was used to educate only employees. As this type of education developed it was used to educate those enrolled in the commercial departments of high schools. Now, the ultimate goal for business education is to teach all the students in high schools. A question and answer period followed his presentation.

Following the program, members of the Business Education Club discussed plans for a joint trip with members of Pi Omega Pi fraternity regarding a trip to the New York Stock Exchange.

Tentative plans for the next meeting include debate on the use of teaching machines in colleges and high schools.

INSTITUTIONS AND INDIVIDUALS

"ONWARD BLOOMSBURG GOES"

Recently, in a casual conversation with a Danville lady, I inquired concerning her grandson who I knew had graduated from the Danville High School this past June. "Oh," she said, "he is enrolled at Bloom Normal."

You who read this article will be graduates of "The Bloomsburg Normal School," or "The Bloomsburg State Teachers College," or "The State College at Bloomsburg," depending upon the time of your graduation.

Some one has said that a better society can be achieved by "Narrowing the gap between our ideals and our practices," and that this can be done by bringing about two improvements, namely, "Improved Human Behaviour" and "Improved Institutions."

As we think about this we confront the old "egg and chicken" question of priority, for improvement in human behaviour has come about largely through improved institutions, and institutions in turn have been improved, to the degree that the behaviour of good and wise individuals has extended its influence in bringing about this improvement.

As one who has been rather close to Bloomsburg for more than a half century, this change in name is viewed as an excellent example of the adage that "a rose by any other name smells just as sweet." During these years I have known many of "the good and wise individuals" who have asserted their influence in fulfilling the truth of the statement in our Alma Mater Song, that "Onward Bloomsburg Goes."

It has also been my privilege to work with the individual product of the Institution, and to have thus seen evidence of improved human behaviour as manifested in the classroom and in public relations.

Frequently at times of Reunion and Home Coming we hear, from those returning to the campus after a long interval, expressions of regret because of changes they see in campus and buildings. These lamentations are interesting, for with a little questioning we find that in most cases they are due to the memories that the individual has of association with certain individuals on "the long porch," or at "the fountain," or even perchance at old pump which stood in early "Normal" days at the foot of Normal Hill.

We are members of a group of more than 7000 living Alumni of Bloomsburg. Each of us has an individual answer to the question, "What has my association with Bloomsburg done for, or meant to me?" Has it helped to "narrow the gap between ideals and practice" as you have met the problems and opportunities of life through the years?"

In one of his "Saucered and Blowed" articles written for the Quarterly at the time of the 45th reunion of the Class of 1911, of which he was the president, the late E. H. Nelson wrote: "We continue to have a proud interest in our Alma Mater because it continues to contribute to society, through education and service, in a manner to justify our deepest pride. We hope that you are proud enough to want to share in the satisfaction of keeping Bloomsburg the fine school that it has been, and is."

On behalf of your Board of Directors, I extend to you and yours, our Best Wishes for a Happy Holiday Season.

Sincerely yours,

Fred W. Diehl.

STATE COLLEGE

PLANS FOR 1962-1963 COLLEGE YEAR

For the first time in history, Bloomsburg State College will have an annual budget beginning July 1, 1962, and ending June 30, 1963. The State appropriation exceeds $1,000,000 and the Local Income from student fees for instruction, board, room and laundry, will be more than $1,250,000, thus the total budget exceeds $2,250,000.

This means the faculty will be increased from 119 to at least 125, and with the addition of certain administrative positions and Library staff will approach 130 to provide for 2,150 students.

The accommodation of this number will depend upon the ability of homes in the Town of Bloomsburg to accommodate at least 200 more than are now being accommodated.

It is not expected that the commuting students that come to the college each day from their homes will exceed the present number, which is approximately 800.

A substation is under construction to treble the electric input for present and future buildings to be constructed on the college campus.

Contracts have been awarded for an extension of the heating plant and contracts for the other utility lines necessary for all future buildings on the present campus will be awarded shortly. It is estimated that these projects will cost slightly less than $1,000,000.

Two dormitories for women, to accommodate 500, will be constructed in the area between Carver and Science Halls, and ground will be broken during the summer of 1962 with the expectation of occupancy in September, 1962. These dormitories will cost in excess of $1,700,000.

Under Act No. 685, signed by Governor Lawrence on September 23, 1961, the following General State Authority projects are planned for Bloomsburg State College:

Construction of Auditorium	$1,743,674
Construction of Men's Dormitory	1,001,064
Planning and Design of Library	59,500

Applications for authorization to offer a Bachelor of Arts and/or a Bachelor of Science Degrees in the Humanities, Natural Sciences, and Social Sciences, and the Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration have been filed with the State Council of Education.

The Graduate offerings have been extended to the field of Special Education for the Mentally Retarded and Speech Correction and authorization to confer the Degree of Master of Education, with specialization in the fields of English and Social Studies (including Geography), is pending.

If the college enrollment is to exceed 3,000, an additional campus site will have to be purchased which should not be less than sixty acres.

All of these things and many more comprise the plans which are being made for the coming college year.

MID-YEAR COMMENCEMENT

"The world is constantly changing. When it isn't, decay sets in. But change, today, begets crises, and crises are a part of our lives. We cannot escape them; we cannot ignore them. We can, however, adopt a Chinese definition of the word crisis which means 'dangerous opportunity', stated William B. Arthur, managing editor of Look Magazine, in his address to the mid-year graduating class of sixty-four at Bloomsburg State College in Carver Auditorium.

"It is how we face these dangerous opportunities and how we handle them that determine our fate. We must get along with these dangers that beset us at every turn. We must battle the storm rather than attempt to ride it out on a raft of complacency.

"How can you make yourselves a constructive force in such a world? A man brings himself to each situation with his own unique frame of reference. I bring myself to this situation as a managing editor of a large national magazine. My job is reaching people. And, as I see it, that is the essential ingredient of your job, too, to reach the people you are about to instruct.

"When I was not much older than you are now, the essential ingredient of my job was to help in a war. You too, are engaged in a war—the war of the classroom.

"I remember a Sunday afternoon on December 7, 1941, when my wife and I first heard the news about Pearl Harbor. Those were exciting days: days of despair, of disillusionment, and finally of triumph. They were days when our school system was challenged, but to turn out young men and women who could take their places in the war effort.

"I remember a speech made by General Brehon Somervell, who headed our Army Service Forces.

"Wars are not won on battle fields alone," he said. "They are won in the classroom as well." It seems to me that just now we are being told the same thing. Sputnik launched another Pearl Harbor. Our classrooms are the battle ground. I would like to discuss for a moment this battle of the classroom. It is a sobering experience to look at the facts. In the United States, today, only 52 per cent of high school students with an IQ of 120 or better go on to college. Why do we lose a precious 47 per cent of our superior brains? In the death struggle with a determined enemy, we cannot afford this shocking mortality.

"Our goal in America is not to educate slaves, but to educate free men and women. Because of this, I firmly believe that the best students in Russia are not equal to the best students in the United States. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman said in a recent sermon, 'In calling for the much needed study of science, let us not launch on a crash program which would leave our education lopsided. The world will not be made safe by more science, but by stronger character.'

"What is the true aim of education, anyway? If that aim is not geared to the spiritual growth of the individual, then the whole system will foster nothing but gross materialism. We must realize that it takes struggle in life to make strength. It takes fight for principle to make fortitude. It takes crises to give courage; suffering to make sympathy; pain to make patience. It takes a single-mindedness of purpose to reach an objective.

"Most of you are going to teach young people. Never before in our nation's history have so many looked to so few for so much. In today's world, there is only one thing that will save us; an overwhelming majority of our populace must consist of truly educated men and women. By truly educated, I mean having broad understanding of our culture, a wide range of knowledge, and an ability to see relationships in all that is known. New challenges come up like thunder, and we must make lightning-fast responses—or else we will see our culture disappear down the drain pipe of history. For our nation to make these new responses, we will need education of a higher order than ever before imagined, education that gives us not only data, but the interrelation of data, a vision of the pattern of history, of the web of knowledge. All of us will need to be intellectuals in a sense. (It is clear that social skills will not be enough.)

"Never before has it been more important to keep alive the majesty of thinking. For you who are about to teach, I urge that you never cease to be taught. The hope of tomorrow is in your hands. Through you, and the exercise of your imaginations, we will find our way through change without panic. You must believe—must forever believe—that human values will triumph over despair. If you believe this, you have heightened immeasurably the possibility that those you teach will believe it too. It is our greatest hope in the battle against the tyranny besieging the minds of man."

Following the address, President Andruss presented a certificate to Marilyn Rinehimer, Wapwallopen, indicating that her name was listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, a special honor for outstanding academic achievement and service to the college community. Dr. Andruss presented service keys, the highest award made by the college to a student to Roger Sharpe, Royersford and Harry E. Colc, Bloomsburg. A lifetime pass to all college athletic events was presented to Glenn Gruber, Highspire, for earning four varsity awards in football.

The class of candidates was presented by John A. Hoeh, Dean of Instruction, and the degree of Bachelor of Science was conferred by President Andruss.

Nelson A. Miller, chairman of the Department of Music, served as director of music, and Howard F. Fenstermaker, chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages, was at the console.

BUILDING ACTIVITY

The addition to the heating plant and the construction of two women's dormitories at the Bloomsburg State College are back on the program.

Word from Harrisburg was that General State Authority Executive Director John J. Lynam had advised the Authority he had received word from the town with regard to providing adequate sewage disposal facilities and the Authority had decided to go ahead with the construction.

The Authority ordered bids on the projects a few weeks ago and then withdrew the request, noting that there were some things to be resolved between the town and the College before work would be started.

The "things" to be resolved had to do with the matter of sewage and surface water handling.

The Associated Press dispatch stated Mayor Joseph C. Conner expressed "tremendous shock" at the GSA action in a letter dated February 2 and advised Lynam that it was council's intention to place on the ballot in November a bond issue proposal to finance the facilities.

"On the basis of Conner's letter, the board voted to proceed without further delay with bidding on additions to the boiler plant and on construction of two women's dormitories."

There has been considerable discussion about a bond issue referendum to be placed before the voters at the November election.

It is expected that it will ask an issue of $250,000 to $300,000. Only a minor part of that would have to do with drainage at the college.

New Faculty Members

Two new members were appointed to the faculty of the Department of Mathematics and Science at the Bloomsburg State College at the beginning of the second semester, Mrs. Bernice Sterling, instructor in mathematics and Mordecai Treblow, instructor in physical science. Their appointment increased the number of full-time faculty to 119.

A native of Waterbury, Vt., and a graduate of the public schools of that community, Mrs. Sterling earned the Bachelor of Science degree at the University of Vermont and continued her graduate studies at Lehigh University and the University of Rochester, N.Y. She has served as a member of the faculties of Bethlehem, Pa., Junior High School; Haddon Heights, N. J., High School and Dunkirk, N. Y. High School and has done substitute teaching in public schools in the Bloomsburg area. She has also worked in the laboratories of the Adirondack Foundries and Steel Company, Watervliet, N. Y. She is a former member of the American Association of University Women, the Business and Professional Women's Club, the National Education Association and the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

She is the wife of W. Bradford Sterling, a member of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, now on sabbatical leave to complete graduate work at the Pennsylvania State University.

Mr. Treblow was born in Philadelphia and was graduated from Atlantic City N. J. High School. He was awarded the Bachelor of Arts degree by the University of Pennsylvania. His graduate studies include work at St. Joseph's College and the Pennsylvania State University. At the latter institution he has completed all courses and research requirements and will receive the Master of Science degree in chemistry following the completion of a thesis.

Treblow's professional experience includes nearly two years as a biochemistry technician at Temple University Medical School, more than two years as a junior chemist with Rohn and Haas Company and three years as a graduate assistant, Department of Chemistry, Pennsylvania State University.

Among his professional affiliations, Treblow lists the American Chemical Society, the United States Chess Federation, in which he serves as the Pennsylvania Director, and the Pennsylvania State Chess Foundation, which he serves as secretary-treasurer. He is married to the former Sibyl Sheer, a graduate of Pennsylvania State University and the University of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Treblow is now employed as a dietitian at the Geisinger Medical Center, Danville.

NEW SEATS IN CARVER

The installation of 900 new seats was completed between semesters in Carver Auditorium.

The attractive, nylon upholstered seats, manufactured by the Irwin Chair Company, were installed by the Allied Equipment Company, Harrisburg, at a cost of $24,000. The re-seating of the auditorium has increased the number of seats from 863 to 900. The wooden chairs which were removed were not upholstered and had been in use for more than 40 years.

The installation of new and additional seats in Carver Auditorium became a necessity this year due to the increased use of the auditorium for demonstration lectures to large class groups and the administering of tests to large numbers of students. During the past five years, both college and community organizations have increased their request for the auditorium as a meeting place or for the presentation of a variety of programs. The additional seats were also necessitated by the increase in student enrollment at the College.

COLLEGE WOULD OBTAIN $95,000 MORE SUBSIDY

If the proposed budget of Governor David L. Lawrence is adopted, and inasmuch as it calls for no increase in taxes it is generally believed that it will be without major change, Bloomsburg State College will receive about $95,000 more for the coming fiscal year than in the present one, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the local educational institution, said.

Under the budget Bloomsburg State will receive $2,052,660 for operating expenses during the twelve month fiscal period beginning next July 1 and ending June 30, 1963.

This amount does not include more than two and a half million dollars for the building of two new dormitories and an addition to the heating plant on the campus.

Dr. Andruss noted that Bloomsburg will receive for the next 12 months about $95,000 more than was received for the previous fiscal period of thirteen months, from June 1, 1961, to the coming June 30.

This increase was made possible by Governor Lawrence's announcement that his budget provides a $580 subsidy per year for each student enrolled at the College as of September, 1961. The previous subsidy was $530 per student.

Of the $2,052,660 amount designated for Bloomsburg, the Commonwealth will contribute $1,102,000 based on the $580 subsidy. The remaining $950,660 will be collected from students at the college as charges for basic fees and housing fees. The latter includes board, room and laundry.

Miss Barbara Ann Ash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ash, Orangeville R. D. 2, and Erle D. Birt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Birt, Berwick R. D. 1, were married recently in Asbury Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Amandus Hunsinger.

The couple now resides at 541 East Tenth street, Berwick. The bride graduated from Benton High School and is now a senior at BSC. Her husband graduated from Berwick High School and is now employed at ACF.

SUMMER SESSION

The 1962 Summer Sessions Bulletin of Bloomsburg State College, listing 61 undergraduate and 17 graduate course offerings during the 12-week summer period, is now available upon request from the office of Mr. John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction, BSC, or Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies.

The program of undergraduate courses is designed to provide an opportunity for full-time students to accelerate their programs, increase their fields of certification, and remove deficiencies. Teachers-in-service may complete work for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education, take courses for permanent certification, and take courses to extend their fields of certification. Public school nurses may take work toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in Public School Nursing. Public School Dental Hygienists may take credits toward the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education.

The 1962 Summer Session will offer a broad program of instruction—cultural, academic, and professional. A number of workshops and seminars are being featured in the undergraduate course offerings during the Main Session. These unusual learning opportunities are especially adapted to meet the needs of people interested in elementary education, mathematics, chemistry and physics, and modern foreign languages.

The Graduate program during the 1962 Summer Session is designed for persons who wish to: secure permanent certification by earning credit in graduate courses becoming eligible for additional salary increments in those school systems which have adopted salary schedules recognizing graduate credit earned by their faculty members; extend their present certification; earn the Master of Education degree in either Business Education, Elementary Education, or Special Education. The Summer Session schedule for undergraduate students is as follows:

Pre Session, June 11-June 29; Main Session, July 2-August 10; Post Session, August 13-August 31.

The Summer Session schedule for graduate student classes is as follows: Pre Session, June 14-June 29; Main Session, July 2-August 10; Post Session, August 13-August 28.

BSC GRADUATE PROGRAM IS APPROVED

The State Council of Education, has unanimously approved a request by Bloomsburg State College to offer a graduate program of studies in special education for the mentally retarded and in speech correction. Both programs lead to the Master of Education degree.

Since June, 1961, Bloomsburg has been offering a program of graduate studies leading to the Master's degree in either business or elementary education. Fifty-seven students attended graduate classes during the 1961 summer sessions.

The affirmative action taken by the State Council of Education was announced in a letter from Dr. Harold F. Alderfer, secretary, State Council of Education, to Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, and climaxes twenty-five years of development in this phase of teacher education.

The special education program had its roots established on a limited basis in 1937, shortly after Dr. Andruss became dean of instruction, when the State Council or Education designated Bloomsburg as a center for the training of teachers of special classes. At that time, Bloomsburg was authorized to offer courses meeting the standards developed by the State Council of Education. From 1937 to 1956, special education classes at the College were developed as variants to the elementary and secondary education curriculums with teachers of special classes certified to teach in either elementary or secondary schools.

In 1956, public interest in special education led to legislation and the passage of Act 429 which mandated special class programs and salaries for special education teachers.

In the year that followed, Dr. Andruss created the Division of Special Education, and appointed Dr. Donald F. Maietta as the first Director. The college curriculum was revised to strengthen student-teaching programs in speech and hearing therapy, as well as education for the mentally retarded.

A county plan of student teaching was developed in 1958 by Bloomsburg State College in conjunction with Lycoming and Schuylkill Counties. A cooperative program for student teachers was developed with the Selinsgrove State School and Hospital. These programs were the first of their type to be developed by any State College in Pennsylvania and were publicized in a Special Education Bulletin.

In 1959, Bloomsburg was the first college in Pennsylvania to inaugurate a student chapter affiliated with the National Council for Exceptional Children.

Individualized reading instruction was integrated as a feature of the special program on campus in 1960. One of the highlights of the year was the initiation, by the College, of new curriculum programs in special education leading to a single comprehensive certificate in each special field. Each of these certificates leads to a Bachelor of Science degree for teachers of the educable mentally retarded or for teachers of the speech and hearing handicapped. The College employed, for the first time in 1960, a supervisor of student teachers to coordinate special class student teaching programs.

The new special education center was officially opened in Navy Hall in June, 1961. During the summer sessions, Bloomsburg became the first State College in Pennsylvania to establish a full-time residential program for adult trainees who were selected by the College and the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation. The first cooperative Summer Sessions student teaching program with the Selinsgrove State School was also inaugurated by the College.

In October, 1961, a visiting committee evaluated the proposed program of graduate studies in special education, and submitted their recommendations to the State Council of Education. These steps led to the announcement of approval for the graduate program at Bloomsburg.

Teachers-in-service, who are interested in this newly-authorized graduate program, may begin their studies at Bloomsburg in June, 1962, by enrolling in general courses required for all Master of Education degree candidates, according to Dr. Thomas B. Martin, Director of Graduate Studies at Bloomsburg.

BATTLE OF THE CLASSES

An upperclass panel, consisting of two juniors and two seniors, topped an underclass panel of two freshmen and two sophomores at Bloomsburg State College in the Annual Battle of the Classes, sponsored by Phi Sigma Pi, honorary professional education fraternity for men, in cooperation with Time Magazine. The final score was 27-19. Questions were taken from issue of Time Magazine extending from December, 1961 to February, 1962.

The two members of the junior class, Steve Stedman, Conner-ton, and Beatrice Letterman, of Bloomsburg, earned the greatest number of points. Both were members of the sophomore panel last year which helped defeat the upperclassmen. Stedman earned the distinction of giving the most correct responses both last year and this year.

A one-year gift subscription to Time Magazine was awarded to the highest individual scorers, in the following order: Steve Stedman, Thomas Little, Betty Dush-anko, Robert Hensley and Doris Farenkopf (tied for fourth place.)

John A. Hock, Dean of Instruction, served as Quizmaster. Mike Flanagan, track coach, was the Timekeeper. Two faculty members, Francis Albert, Department of Foreign Languages and Richard Mease, Division of Special Education, served as judges.

The program was arranged by John Vincent, Presidnet of Iota Chapter of Phi Sigma Pi, and James Case, Program Chairman. Mr. Russell Schleicher is faculty adviser.

SPRING CONFERENCE

The ninth annual Spring Conference of the Pennsylvania Council for Geography Education will be held at the Bloomsburg State College on Friday and Saturday, April 27 and 28, according to Dr. Bruce E. Adams, who is serving as the local coordinating officer for the organization. The theme for this year's meeting is "Geography—A Key to World Understanding."

Two general sessions, one at 8 p. m., Friday and the other at 8:45 a.m. Saturday, will be addressed by Oswald Schmidt, University of Pittsburgh, and Richard A. Gibboney, Director of the Bureau of Curriculum Development, Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg.

Mr. Schmidt will present an illustrated lecture on "East Pakistan: A Rich Land of Poor People"; Mr. Gibboney will discuss "The Pennsylvania Public School Curricula."

Following the general session Saturday morning, a number of sectional meetings have been scheduled, starting at 10:30 a. m. They include: "Geography and World Understanding," "World Culture — A Geographic Approach," "Geographic Aids," "Weather and Climate," "Geographic Application," "Geographers in Scandinavia" and the "Keystone Geographical Society." Concluding the program will be a luncheon in the College Commons at 12 noon Saturday, during the luncheon meeting, Dr. E. Willard Miller, Professor of Geography at Pennsylvania University and President of the Council, will discuss "The Future of the Pennsylvania Council for Geography Education."

Dr. Adams announced that three field trips, designed especially to meet the interest of the State's geography instructors, have been scheduled in the town area Saturday afternoon. The tours will include Dillon's Flower Growers, the Magee Carpet Company, and the Physiography of the Bloomsburg Area. Dr. Adams also pointed out that the tours, addresses, and sectional meetings are

SATURDAY, MAY 26

PRESENTED PROGRAM

Vignettes in full costume, from the best known works of William S. Gilbert and Arthur S. Sullivan, were presented by the Gilbert and Sullivan Concert Hall at the Bloomsburg State College on Friday, March 16, in Carver Auditorium.

Originally, the Gilbert and Sullivan Concert Hall, which was conceived by Donald Johnston, performed as a Trio (tenor, soprano and baritone), and toured extensively throughout the Eastern area of the United States and Canada. However, due to recurrent requests from enthusiastic audiences, asking for additional favorite selections from the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, Johnston added a mezzo-soprano to the company and expanded the repertoire to include several ensemble quartet numbers as well as the amusing songs and dialogue of Buttercup, Ruth and Katisha. A midwesterner himself, Johnston has geared his show to American audiences—styling the humor and the "British accent" so that every word and action of the delicious fare can be thoroughly understood and enjoyed by all. The basic plots, though condensed, are cleverly set forth by song and dialogue in the essential Gilbert and Sullivan falor.

The cast includes: Donald Johnston, baritone; John Carter, tenor; Ruth Ray, mezzo-soprano; Sharlie Shull, soprano.

The program included:

1. Vignette from "H.M.S. Pinafore" in costume. Includes "Captain of the Pinafore", "I'm Calling Little Buttercup", "The Nightingale," Josephine's Aria, "Things Are Seldom What They Seem," etc. Full Ensemble.

2. Solo—"Poor Wandering One," "Pirates of Penzance"—Sharlie Shull Soprano.

3. "Cox and Box" (in costume) (abridged) Cox: Mr. Johnston. Mr. Box: Mr. Carter. Sgt. Bouncer: Miss Ray.

Intermission

4. Vignette from 'Mikado' (in costume.) Includes: "Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," "Wandering Minstrel", "The Sun Whose Rays," "Tit Willow", "Kissing Duet," "A More Humane Mikado," etc.

BSC AND BLOOMSBURG

For nearly a decade, increases in student enrollment, number of faculty, new buildings, and the broadening of curriculum offerings at the Bloomsburg State College have been accompanied by a steady growth in its economic impact on the community. For the third consecutive year, the College expects to bring more than $2,000,000 into the Bloomsburg Area in terms of salaries and wages, and money spent locally by students living in dormitories, students living in the Town of Bloomsburg, and students who commute to the campus each day from their homes.

Other items, including money spent by parents and other visitors, by the College Commons, by the Husky Lounge and Snack Bar, by student organizations and activities, and by contracts for supplies and repairs, will raise the total to nearly two and one-half million dollars ($2,500,000.)

The pattern of cultural and economic growth is expected to continue during the present decade.

Of primary importance to this continued growth is the construction of additional classroom buildings; dormitories, an auditorium to seat 2,000; a library, a field house and athletic fields, and a large heating plant. Plans for these buildings are included in a proposal prepared by an architectural firm with the cooperation of President Harvey A. Andruss and the Board of Trustees.

Progress in this direction is noted in that architects' plans for two new dormitories and a doubling of the capacity of the heating plant are about to be submitted for bids.

At the present time, with an enrollment of slightly more than 1,900 students, the College employs 118 full-time and 2 part-time faculty members, and 105 non-instructional employees. The Slater Corporation, which prepares and serves food at the college, employs 20 full time employees and 70 part-time student employees. The combined payrolls will reach nearly $1,400,000 this year.

When planned increases in enrollment are reached, the number of students will more than double—from the present figure of 1,937 to 4,800 or 5,000. The number of College employees will grow in proportion, reaching a total of 600 full-time personnel and an annual payroll of more than $4,000,000. If salaries and wages continue to rise as they have in the past decade, the annual payroll could be estimated between 6 and 7 million dollars.

Although this prospective growth should paint a bright picture for a number of years to come, it is interesting to note equally bright spots for 1962. The present number of students and faculty is nearly three times as great as it was less than ten years ago, and summer schools sessions now attract as many students as the total number enrolled, during the regular college year, in the early 1950s. And with the growth of the graduate program, summer employment opportunities will increase for both faculty and non-instructional employees.

Although the college has earned stature as an institution of culture and higher learning, its economic importance to residents of this area cannot go unnoticed. According to statistics compiled recently, the 1937 students, enrolled from September, 1961, to May 31, 1962, will spend $20.88 in the town each week. During the thirty-six weeks of the college year, this amounts to a total of $751,500. Of this amount, there are 565 students living in town which spend an average of $14.13 each week for room, food and incidentals. There are 600 students living in dormitories on campus who spend an average of 7.50 per week for items such as dry cleaning, medical service, gas and oil, incidentals, etc., amounting to $4,950 per week. Six hundred students drive to Bloomsburg each day from their homes within a 40-mile radius. Conservatively, these people spend an average of $3.00 per week during the time they are in Bloomsburg. Since the College cannot build dormitories fast enough to accommodate the increases in enrollment, it will be necessary for some years to come to house from 400 to 600 students in the Town of Bloomsburg each year.

The College will continue to sponsor annual events such as the Education Conference; the High School Business Education Conference; the Sales Rally; the Fashion Show; Parent's Day; the basketball tournament; the wrestling tournament and Homecoming and Alumni Days. Each of these events brings from 500 to 3,000 people to the community for a day or more. These visitors have a need for food and housing, as well as a need to shop for other items during those visits.

Following a practice of many years, the College Community will continue to contribute to organizations and institutions such as the Civic Music Association, the Bloomsburg Hospital, the Ambulance Association, and the Town Library. The annual contribution to the Civic Music Association is $1500, half or more of the total budget of the group. The Town Library receives from the College, each year, $1 for every student enrolled at the College the preceding Semester. These contributions have cultural as well as economic implications.

In 1951, approximately $25,000 was paid into the Community Activities Fund at the college by students and faculty to support cultural programs, recreation opportunities, and both intercollegiate and intramural athletic activity. The budget for this year and next will exceed $100,000. All sports and cultural programs at the college are open to the public. In all cases, admissions are either free or are offered at nominal cost.

BSC PLANNING TO OFFER LIBERAL ARTS PROGRAM

The transition of Teachers Colleges of Pennsylvania to State Colleges, through the addition of offerings in arts and sciences leading to the Bachelor's degree, is being studied by the State Council of Education whose presiding officers is the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Charles H. Boehm.

A general plan for higher education involving more than 120 institutions in Pennsylvania represents a complex situation. These institutions are called by various names, and all require high school graduation as one of their admission standards. The problem of constructing a general plan becomes complicated by the extent to which private institutions, whether sponsored by churches, school districts, or municipalities, will expand to meet the needs of Pennsylvania youth who wish more than twelve years of education in the next two decades.

The youth of Pennsylvania in the eighteen to twenty-one year age group, who attend colleges and universities, are less than the national average by at least five per cent.

The present average in the United States is approximately 40 per cent of the students in that age group; Pennsylvania is less than 35 per cent while some states, notably Utah, New York and California, have 50 per cent or more of their eighteen to twenty-one year old students attending colleges and universities.

In making the master plan for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the fourteen State Colleges will need to expand in the directions that have not previously been supplied by existing institutions. Since many students are now attending State Colleges, presumably to become teachers, because the State Colleges are the only low-cost institutions, either within the range of the pocket-book or their parents or are so geographically located that a student may attend without leaving home, the need for the expansion of the curriculum has been realized for some years.

The present legislature is considering the budget proposal of Governor Lawrence that the per capita appropriation for students at State Colleges be increased from $530 to $550, with the assumption that the colleges through their local boards of trustees, will vote an increase in student fees of a like amount.

The appropriation and the basic fee, paid by students for instruction, will then exceed by $100 the fees paid during the present year (1961-62). Thus the $580 State subsidy will be supplemented by students' fees to the extent of $260 a year, making a total cost for instruction, maintenance and operation of $840. This increased appropriation and the increase in fees will enable the State Colleges to begin the expansion of their curriculum in the fields of Arts and Sciences. The latter will be divided into three general areas—the humanities, the natural sciences and the social sciences—with the provision that some specialized curriculums in mathematics, physical sciences and economics and business administration.

The plan has not been definitized to the point where the colleges, who are to do the work in the specialized areas, have been named, but it is expected these will be the colleges which have demonstrated strengths in these areas over a period of more than three decades in the preparation of teachers in these fields for the public schools of the Commonwealth.

BSC WRESTLERS WIN NAIA CHAMPIONSHIP

Bloomburg State College students put on a rousing welcome for the returning Husky wrestlers, the 1962 NAIA Wrestling champs. Using two fire trucks and over 20 automobiles, they paraded Coach Russ Houk and his team through Main Street; amid wailing sirens, honking horns, fight songs played by a German band, and the cheers of several hundred students.

The celebration began in Winona, Minn., when the Huskies became the national champs of small college wrestling. Most of the student body didn't hear the news until Sunday, and some not until Monday. Once the news did circulate, the campus exploded in a fury of excitement, as it prepared to show their appreciation to the team.

The men's dorm set the stage for the welcome. The building was decorated with all types of signs, "Welcome home, champs," and "Flash, the Huskies are Champs," were just a few of the many seen.

Monday morning a parade was agreed as the best way the students could show their appreciation to the team. By noon the arrangements were all made.

The group formed at four on the Benjamin Franklin playground. The contingent was led by a group of students bearing the banner "Welcome Home Champ!" Next the two fire trucks loaded to capacity with students and the German band. Behind the trucks, was the procession of cars. The lead car carried Coach Houk, immediately followed by one bearing the NAIA individual champs, Bob Hall and Bill Carson. They were followed by the rest of team.

Coach Houk's first word as he entered the lead car summed up everyone's sentiments, "This is just wonderful!"

Around 200 students participated in a pep rally on the campus, where BSC president, Harvey A. Andruss, notified them there would be no classes the following day.

The following is the record attained by the BSC wrestling team during the season:

Dec. 11—BSC 24	C. W. Post 0
Dec. 13—BSC 25	Winona State (Minn.) 10
Jan. 6—BSC 30	Shippensburg 7

HIGH SCHOOL WRESTLERS AT BLOOMSBURG STATE

Four boys representing high schools of the immediate area took individual championships at the fourth annual Bloomburg State College wrestling tourney which wound up before a full house in Centennial Gymnasium on December 16, as Warrior Run took the title.

The champions, who had three boys take the honors in weight classes, just nosed out Hughesville the defending champions, 75-73. Berwick did best of the local schools with 27 to tie Williamsport for 8th. Central Columbia County had 25, Danville 23, Benton 21, Bloomburg 18 and South Area 12.

Following the leading clubs: Muncy 54, Montgomery 48, Lewisburg 42, Coal 38, Selinsgrove 28. Among the trailers were South Williamsport 20, Loyalsox 11, Montoursville 7, Northumberland 5 and Mount Carmel, champions in 1959, 2.

Bill Paule, a frosh from Hollidaysburg, got a third in the 147 pound class and Billy Hughes, Muncy, a fourth in the 155 as Bloomburg Huskies, competing in the celebrated Wilkes tourney at Wilkes-Barre collected 20 points and tenth place.

University of Pittsburgh won the thirtieth annual event in which 324 athletes from colleges and universities throughout the nation competed.

Bloomburg State College wrestling team showing that it has the balance power it was heralded to possess, came through with victory in the last three of the final matches at Lock Haven State in March and regained the Pennsylvania State College title it had earlier held in 1959 and 60 and lost to Lock Haven here a year ago.

The score was 96-91 in one of the most thrilling tourneys in the history of the event. It was generally rated as a meeting between Bloomburg and Lock Haven grapples and it early developed into just that.

Basketball

A record year of basketball was experienced by Bloomburg State College during the 1961-62 season, the college announces. The Huskies, coached by Bill Foster, ended their campaign with 16 wins and 3 losses in over-all play, and compiled a 12-2 log to claim second place in the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania State College Conference. Mansfield S. C. took the conference division title with 13-1.

A check of existing records at Bloomburg, going back more than 40 years, shows that the best previous record (12-4) was established in 1951-1952, during the tenure of Coach Harold Shelly. Foster's charges equalled that record last year. In his two years at Bloomburg, Foster now owns a record of 28 victories and 7 defeats.

A number of individual records at Bloomburg and in the State College Conference, were also established. Dick Lloyd, senior forward from Upper Darby, set a new conference record for the most points scored in four years (1144), the most points scored in one season (404), and the most field goals scored in one season (164).

Lloyd set new marks at Bloomsburg for the most number of minutes played in four years, the most points scored in one year, the greatest number of free throws scored in four years. Lloyd was recently awarded honorable mention, Little All-American.

The record for the '61-'62 season is as follows:

Dec. 11-BSC 84	Kings 61
Jan. 6-BSC 73	Kings 79
Jan. 10-BSC 61	Mansfield 60
Jan. 20-BSC 65	Mansfield 81
Jan. 27-BSC 99	E.Stroudsburg 87
Jan. 31-BSC 51	West Chester 62
Feb. 3-BSC 74	Shippensburg 56
Feb. 7-BSC 79	Millersville 64
Feb. 11-BSC 70	Lock Haven 59
Feb. 13-BSC 98	Cheyney 61
Feb. 20-BSC 71	Shippensburg 58
Feb. 17-BSC 87	West Chester 69
Feb. 24-BSC 80	Millersville 64
Feb. 27-BSC 98	Lock Haven 69
Mar. 1-BSC 74	Stroudsburg 71
Mar. 3-BSC 60	Kutztown 55

The following was taken from the "Fanning" Column of The Morning Press:

Bloomsburg State came out recently with all of the facts and figures of the highly successful basketball season just concluded by Bill Foster's talented troupe of roundballers.

The story noted that the 16-3 log compiled with the best record of a basketball team ever recorded percentage-wise, on the hill insofar as could be found from existing records.

On the calibre of the opposition we will go along that the percentage is the best. On the basis of games won and lost it was No. 2. Back in the 1924-24 season, when the local institution was a Normal School, the mark was 18-1.

No Comparison

On the basis of college competition this was the best. More important the boys not only won most of their games but they performed well. As one student of the game observed: "They knew what they were doing." There is nothing so agitating to fans who know something about the sport as grab and gun basketball, and most of the followers of the sport are pretty well versed on the fundamentals of the activity.

To compare Bloomsburg basketball to the present with that of some two score years ago is impossible.

For one thing it was then a Normal School and now it is a College. For another and more important thing, any similarity between the game in 1924-24 and that of 1961-62 is simply coincidental and not in any way intended.

There is a great deal to be gathered from statistics, although most of the value is obtained by the coach as he makes studies after each game. And statistics, the same as anything else, have their limitations.

We do think they carry more meaning than was once the case for there are more figures carried on more elements of the sport.

But you can't find attitude and willingness to put out in the statistics for you can't reduce these characteristics to figures. But without the proper attitude and the willingness to put out all the time no team is going to get anywhere regardless of potential.

Target 1963

On the basis of what has been accomplished by Foster coached units the past 2 years there is only one target that is worthy for the 1962-63 season and that is the state title.

It isn't going to be easy to achieve but it certainly is within our grasp. Mansfield held the crown the past 2 seasons, the first diadems to go to the school in the northern tier in quite some time. They enjoy the title experience and they are not going to be easy to dislodge.

However, nothing can remain static. We have been runnerup in the eastern division for the past 2 years. Unless we move up a notch we are going to slide. We've filled this "always a bridesmaid but never a bride role" long enough.

The boys who made up the car-sity this past winter were a fine group and except for Dick Lloyd, the personable lad from Upper Darby who made a collegiate career out of breaking records, they will all be back.

These fellows can shoot, pass the ball, handle the rebounds and defend. But it would be fine if we could come up with an extra tall lad. There is a large supply of these fellows than was the case not so long ago but the supply isn't up to the demand and we haven't been getting many. In fact it has been quite a time since we had one who loomed anywhere near as tall as the Plymouth lad who carried off honors in the scholastic tourney. Walt Narcum is 6-8 and, we understand, is headed for Princeton. We'd love to have him, but we'll settle for one of less height.

It would be nice, if in the grab bag of frosh to hit the campus next fall, there would be a tall boy who could move like Narcum and also a 6-foot or better T quarterback who could look over the defense as he calls the signals.

Going over some old records we noted that the old Bloomsburg teams that did the best always had one tall lad. And we may point out that "tall" in those periods didn't mean as much height as the term implies today.

The 1923-24 team had Joe Schwall, a product of Hanover Township High and now in charge of the guidance program for the public schools in the Detroit area. The others were Louis Lerda, now in charge of education for Standard Oil of New Jersey; Arch Turner, Joe Kozlusky and the late George Sack.

In those days they played high schools, clubs and preparatory schools. The arch rival of that season was the gone but well remembered Bellefonte Academy. That was the only team to stop them. The Academy and "Old Normal" divided. The main rival in all sports in that period was Kingston's Wyoming Seminary. We took Sem twice and with ease.

The normal schools were as numerous as today's State Colleges but not so closely knit in athletic

MUSICAL AT BSC PLEASES

An enthusiastic audience on February 15 and 16 greeted "Plain and Fancy," the first joint musical comedy effort of The Bloomsburg Players, the College Choraleers and fine orchestra group under the direction of Dr. Charles H. Carlson.

While Carver Hall's stage cramped the efforts of the dancers, it appeared to have little effect on the general staging. The performance moved smoothly sets were changed with as much rapidity and ease as on Broadway and if there were any fluffs they could not be detected.

The cast of more than thirty, including five faculty members, appeared to be having as much fun as was the audience as the story of a visit of a sophisticated New York couple to the Amish country of Pennsylvania unfolded.

The production showed the results of careful preparation and excellent coordination. The staging was well done, the chorus work outstanding and the orchestral accompaniment of professional calibre.

Mildred Bisgrove and William Cope, faculty members who took competition. We played only 2 of them, having home and home games with East Stroudsburg and Shippensburg.

One of the later teams that did right well was in the period when Thornley Booth was coaching. In that time we had a number of boys matriculating from Columbia and one was a giant sized basketball center, Gordon Wambaugh.

In the era of the center jump it was deemed imperative that we have a tall boy at the pivot. They got rid of the center jump for the expressed purpose of minimizing the value of height. But things didn't turn out that way. Height is emphasized more now than it ever was in the day of the center jump after each score.

Yet, we'd like to see a tall boy show up but we're pretty happy with the talent show assembled, including Bob Herzig who goes around the court as though he were bouncing on a pogo stick.

the roles of the visiting New Yorkers, added the professional touch which knit the whole production together. They also capably handled the musical and dramatic direction.

Theresa McHugh, Tresekow, and George Weigand, Northumberland, were appearing in the roles of the Amish sweethearts. Karen Hoffman, Quakertown, as the Amish girl with a yen for the worldly life, gave a fine performance in one of the more difficult roles.

Donna Lore, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lore, of Berwick, showed fine stage presence in the role of Emma and along with Andrew Harnichar, of Wilkes-Barre, the rejected bridegroom, displayed a flair for comedy.

Craig Himes, as Papa Yoder, and James Leitzel as Isaac Miller, were both excellent as Amish men.

The fine work of the choraleers was evidenced in such number as "It Wonders Me," "Plenty of Pennsylvania" and haunting "Plain We Live" and spirited opening of Act Two, "How Do You Raise a Barn" and "City Mouse, Country Mouse."

A large student production staff, headed by Marlon Zelones and Janice Hughes, added much to the success of the show.

Edna S. Fairchild '92

The Quarterly has been informed of the death of Edna S. Fairchild '92. Miss Fairchild passed away October 28, 1960.

Katherine S. Bowersox '93

(Reprinted from the St. Petersburg, Florida, Times)

Katherine S. Bowersox, who spent her life as an educator and who, at 81 years of age, was given an honorary degree of doctor of humanities, died Sunday, December 24, 1961, in a local rest home at the age of 92.

Her career in education began with her graduation from State Teachers College in Bloomsburg, Pa. Following this she attended Columbia University, Boston University and took special courses at the University of Chicago.

Her teaching began at Carlisle Indian School, Carlisle, Pa., in the early 1900s. She was principal of the Academic Department about the time the school produced the world famous halfback, Jim Thorpe, whose football prowess placed the little school on the collegiate football map.

Twelve years were spent at Carlisle and then Miss Bowersox went to Berea College, Berea, Ky. As dean of women her enthusiasm seemed boundless. She set to work and established picnic grounds, cabins for students and faculty women and introduced physical education for women. She stayed at the college for 32 years.

After retiring she moved to St. Petersburg where she lived at 780 20th Ave. N. Though retired she soon became active as an associate member of the Wellesley Club.

In 1951 she was presented an honorary doctorate in humanities by the president of Berea. An article in The Times quoted the college president as crediting Katherine Bowersox, with "... weaving into the life of this college" values the college sought to preserve. He said that to many Bereans "Katherine Bowersox and Berea College are synonymous."

At the time the president of the college, Dr. Francis S. Hutchins, also presented her with a citation from faculty members and students.

Miss Bowersox was a member of the First Congregational Church. She had lived in St. Petersburg 22 years, following her retirement from Bera. A brother, Rollin Bowersox, St. Petersburg, survives.

Miles Killmer '00

Miles I. Killmer, a native of Berks County, who later gained nationwide recognition in the engineering field, died in the River-view Hospital at Red Bank, N. J. Several years ago, Mr. Killmer received the Distinguished Service Award of the BSC Alumni Assn.

Mr. Killmer, who was 78, resided at 21 Visto Pl., Red Bank, N. J., was an executive of a heavy construction firm, was a tunnel engineer in this country and abroad, and held a patent for a method of under river construction which increased safety while saving time and expense.

A native of Marion Township, Killmer was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaacs Killmer. He was reared on the farm of his parents just north of Stouchburg and was graduated from the schools of his community prior to enrolling at the former Pennsylvania State College in the engineering course, graduating there in 1906.

Prior to entering Penn State he graduated from former Bloomsburg State Normal School, took a year of post-graduate studies there and then taught in a rural school for a seven-month term before entering college.

In 1933 he won the Thomas Fitch Rowland Prize from the American Society of Civil Engineers for his paper on "Fulton Street-East River Tunnels, New York, N. Y." In 1946, The Moles, an organization of tunnel and construction men, gave him its annual award for outstanding achievement in construction.

His civilian career in engineering was interrupted by World War I, during which he served as a major in the U. S. Army Engineering Corps. After the war he located in New York, where he became known as a leading authority on tunnel construction.

He was a vice president and director of the Mason and Hanger-Silas Mason Co. of New York, and remained active until recently. Among the projects which he supervised were the Brooklyn-Battery Tunnel, the Midtown Hudson Tunnel and the Holland Tunnel in New York.

He developed a method of under river tunnel construction which cut time and expense in these projects and also provided increased safety for work crews. He held the patent for this procedure.

He was a member of various Masonic Orders, including the Bloomsburg Consistory and the Phi Kappa, a college fraternity.

(Quoted from the Pottsville Republican)

The death of Rev. Ronald E. Kehler removes from a scene another of the county's residents who devoted long hours to the field of education.

Although he resigned from his position as supervising principal of Butler Township in 1958, to devote full time to the ministry, he was well-remembered in these few intervening years for the devotion that he had given to education.

Rev. Kehler had a wide field of experience in the school program, having started as an elementary principal at Butler in 1920, then going on to become a junior high school principal and then, in 1939, supervising principal.

His belief, as he expressed it at a farewell dinner given him in 1958 by school employees was that "No one actually ever retires from teaching." His creed was that everyone is a teacher, in the school, in the home, in the market place and that one teaches by the way a life is lived, as well as by words.

Rev. Kehler lived a life of service to church, school and community. He has left his imprint on this area through his unselfish service to others.

E. H. Nelson Memorial Scholarship Fund

Less than a year ago, Bloomsburg State College Alumni were saddened by news of the death of Dr. E. H. Nelson, President of the Alumni Association since 1945. The July, 1961, issue of the Alumni Quarterly included many tributes from classmates, alumni, and former students. Their expressions of sorrow were also accompanied by suggestions that a permanent memorial be established in Dr. Nelson's name, so that students, faculty, and alumni might always be reminded of his unselfish devotion to his alma mater.

As you read this page, many of you will remember quite vividly that Dr. Nelson spent a great deal of his time and energy building the Alumni Loan Fund and managing the Fund so that you might receive a loan or a scholarship to help you complete your college education. The Husky Fund, which provides financial assistance for scores of worthy athletes, was also created and maintained through his efforts. A fan of all sports, Dr. Nelson served many years as baseball coach at the college. As a young man, he had excelled as a player; as a coach he developed many fine players, including Danny Litwhiler, a major league player for ten years.

Dr. Nelson was graduated from Bloomsburg in the Class of 1911, served as a member of the faculty for 21 years before his retirement in 1947, was Business Manager of the Alumni Association for nearly a score of years, and labored tirelessly as President of the Association for a decade and a half.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association, on April 7, 1962, a motion was passed to provide an opportunity for all alumni to express their gratitude and appreciation to Dr. Nelson by establishing the E. H. Nelson Memorial Scholarship Fund.

It is the hope of the Board of Directors that individuals and classes will, in the next several years, contribute at least $10,000 to the Fund. The principal will remain intact; the income will be used to provide an annual scholarship to an outstanding athlete or athletes who meets the requirements to be established.

The Board of Directors invites your support of this tribute to Dr. Nelson. Use the attached sheet to accompany your contribution.

ing biology. Danville Silk Mill girls knew her for six years as their Recreation House Matron. Her longest period of service was spent as librarian and personnel worker at the Danville State Hospital where after 32 years she retired in March, 1958.

However, this did not in any sense mean retirement from activity, for all through the years Miss Bess, in conjunction with her gainful employment, has been busily engaged in church and community work.

As a member of Mahoning Presbyterian Church, Danville, to which she was elected an Elder in 1961, she has taught Sunday school children as well as young and senior women and chaired and served as a member of numerous committees in all program areas of the church.

Because of a "crowded program" she recently rejected the 1962 presidency of the Montour Council of Churches which she has served on several occasions as vice president and member-at-large, as well as staff member and later, editor of the 'Council News.'

Her interdenominational work in the community has included committee membership in week-day religious education, leadership training schools, constitution, race relations, and as guest teacher of Sunday School lessons (which she has also helped to write in the past) in various church school and leadership situations as well as on the radio.

There is much, much more, but perhaps Miss Hinckley is best known for her prodigious work as a pageant writer and director of the community Christmas program which has brought her public recognition through the years.

This area of interest is listed as one of her hobbies which somehow also include nature study, gardening, books, writing poetry and loving people, a great Christian attribute.

What a wonderful place this world would be if only there were more Christ-like folk like Miss Bess Hinckley!

1918

J. Claire Patterson, a lifelong resident of the county and one of the area's best known educators who is retiring in July after forty years of service in this field, has announced he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative in the General Assembly from Columbia County.

At a recent session of the Bloomsburg Area Joint School Board Patterson announced he is retiring at the close of his term on July 2.

He has been on the faculty of the Bloomsburg system for twenty-eight years, twenty as principal of the Bloomsburg Junior-Senior School and six as superintendent of the area schools.

He is a native of Orangeville, a graduate of the schools there, the Bloomsburg State College in 1918, and Bucknell University in 1934 where he received his Bachelor's Degree. He got his Master's Degree from the latter institution a short time later.

Patterson started his teaching career in Canby High School, in Mount Pleasant Township, in 1918 and shortly after his discharge from military service during World War I.

For a time he was in the State Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, and then resumed teaching with the position of supervising principal in Salem Township, Luzerne County. From there he went to Mifflin Township where he was a member of the faculty and coach of all sports during a seven-year tenure.

Throughout his life he has been active in civic and fraternal affairs.

He is a member of the Bloomsburg Kiwanis Club, being a past secretary, past president and past district governor. He is also a past exalted ruler of the Berwick Lodge of Elks.

For a substantial time he was a member of the board of directors of the Bloomsburg Hospital, being president for several years.

He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church and has served three terms as elder and as clerk of Sessions. For years he has been active in Masonry and is a member of Oriental Lodge 460, Orangeville, the Scottish and York Rite Bodies and Orient Conclave, Red Cross of Constantine, Bloomsburg and Irem Temple, Shrine.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson reside on West Street. They have one daughter, Mrs. John L. Moyer III, Beaver, Pa. Her husband, a physician is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Moyer, Bloomsburg. Dr. and Mrs. Moyer have two daughters.

Mr. Patterson is a member of the Pennsylvania State Education, National Education Association, the Susquehanna Valley Superintendents' Association and other education groups.

Mrs. Lucia H. Wheeler (Lucia Hammond, class 1919) 921 North Fifth street, Lompoc, Calif., says in a recent letter: "Here in sunny California, I greatly enjoy the Quarterly. I am in the 'Cape Canaveral of the West'—we see the missiles go off very often. To be truthful, we have had very little sunshine for a month!"

1928

Mrs. Lillian M. Mineo, 1512 Prospect avenue, Scranton 5, Pa., class of 1928, wrote that she is teaching in Scranton public schools. Her son, Dr. Cyrus L. Mineo, will graduate this June from Jefferson Medical School.

1950

Mrs. Margaret Kashuba, the former Margaret Kcarkuff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Kcarkuff, Benton R. D. 1, and a graduate of BSC in 1950, was selected to attend a training program at Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, Tennessee, January 8—March 16, where she learned modern concepts in chemistry, physics and biology and the use of inexpensive apparatus in teaching science.

She was granted a leave of absence from her teaching position in North Plainfield school system, N. J., and was one of ten in the country to attend the winter session in Tennessee.

Mrs. Kashuba is the wife of Matt Kashuba, also BSC graduate and former teacher at Berwick schools. He has received considerable recognition in nuclear science and will be remembered by sports fans as one of the leading high jumpers in the nation while in college.

A recent letter from Linda Bartlow includes the following:

I'm now employed by Diotron, Inc., and have been for the last eight months. I was hired as a bookkeeper, but, like most of us, am doing much more than that. Diotron is a small electronics company, manufacturing diodes and other special research devices. It's really excellent experience, since I'm responsible for so many different types of work—buying, selling, shipping, not to mention my first love, accounting.

In September, I started graduate work at Temple University—taking Industrial Administration and Auditing. It's a start toward a Master of Business Administration degree—someday! I enjoy being back in school again, but two nights a week makes a very busy week for me.

I'm living in North Philadelphia just off Roosevelt Boulevard, and share an apartment with a girl I knew in high school. I just love living in the big city, after so many years of small towns! I'm still single, as you can see, but working on a list of possibilities. There still aren't enough years behind me that I'm beginning to get worried, in fact, I'm not ready to settle down yet.

My address is 4515 North Marine Street, Philadelphia 40, Pa.

Letter from Miss Lorraine J. Morlock, 911 Ashton Rd., Cornwall Heights, Pa.

I've really been keeping up quite a pace. I'm teaching 6th grade, learning Spanish, making a walnut coffee table, finishing one oil painting and working on another. I completed two courses at Temple University. I finished my Master's degree at Pennsylvania State University and have 17 credits toward a Doctorate. I'm dating a fellow from Penn State. As far as activities go, I'm quite involved in American Association of University Women and school programs.

1960

Robert Steinruck writes:

I should have my master's degree two summers from now. I'm completing the work at the University of Delaware in the field of English. Bachelor's life so far is fun. You're sure to remember Bob Ebner. Well, he comes to my place from time to time for a cooked meal.

I was given the board's approval to start a Spanish program here this year. It is going rather well at the present time. Everybody's watching closely, so I guess it had better continue on the same path.

I'm baseball coach, and I enjoy this as much as anything else I do. Also, we got a group together who was interested in debating. Thanks to some stored knowledge of speech-working, we've been able to point out some things a person needs to know in order to face an audience, or a board of judges. To the surprise of all, we tied Northeast High School of Philadelphia in our first debate. Pressure is now being put on other schools in the area to start debating. The Philadelphia schools accepted us as the fourteenth member of the Delaware Valley Debate League.

If you know of any English students (English majors) who are interested in a fine school, tell them to write immediately to Mr. Charles Scott, Principal, Avon-Grove Area High School, West Grove, Pa. We will have two openings for September.

ALUMNI DAY

CLASS REUNIONS--1962

Webster defines a Reunion as "an assembling of persons after separation." This definition applies very aptly at the various classes that assemble each year at Reunion Time at Bloomsburg. This year it will be on May 25-26.

For most of you it will be after a five year "separation." For many it will cover a longer period of time, but all of you, when the day is past, will say as many before you have said, "I've had such a wonderful time; I've seen so many of my classmates and former teachers; I'm sorry that I waited so long before I came back to Bloomsburg."

You who are of the younger classes will return with husband, wife and children. The older graduates will proudly display the pictures of their grandchildren, but over it all will be the pleasure of renewing former friendships and associations.

Of course there will be changes. Changes in appearance and outlook. Changes also in the physical plant of the College. These will be greater than those noted in your classmates. Have you seen the new Dining Hall—College Commons? (You will enjoy the Alumni Day luncheon there.) Have you seen the Library? The new Men's Dormitory? The new Sutliff (Classroom) Building?

Perhaps your "separation" has been so long that you haven't seen the new Long Porch, or the new entrance—where the fountain used to be? The latest change will be seen in the new seats in the Auditorium. This is a "separation" that you will really appreciate as you sit in one of them, as you attend the General Alumni Meeting at 10:30 o'clock on Saturday morning, May 26th.

Over 1900 young men and women are enrolled in your College this year. "They are now as you were then," with ambitions, interests and problems. As they graduate and leave Bloomsburg, their College training and background will enable them to better meet life's problems, just as in your case, and mine.

This issue of The Quarterly carries the news and the challenge of the creation of the Elma H. Nelson Memorial Fund. The purpose of this memorial is not to erect a monument, or to place a bronze tablet, or to paint a picture, but to create a LIVING MEMORIAL in honor of one of Bloomsburg's most loyal alumni, outstanding teacher and dynamic leader. Many of you knew him as Dr. Nelson the teacher; others knew him as "Jack," our co-worker in various activities and associations. All of us knew him as a true friend.

The Nelson Memorial will help to continue the granting of Loans and Scholarships to worthy students, a project to which Dr. Nelson devoted much time and effort. We trust that as individuals and Classes you will respond generously in the establishment of this Nelson Memorial Fund.

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, I extend our best wishes for a happy and enjoyable Reunion.

Fred W. Diehl.

STATE COLLEGE

Baccalaureus Artium

This degree, generally signified by the abbreviations—A.B. or B.A., will be conferred by Bloomsburg State College, acting under the approval of the Pennsylvania State Council of Education. The bachelor's degree in the Humanities or in the Natural Sciences (including mathematics) or in the Social Sciences (including history) marks the completion of four years of study in one of three curriculums.

In England, only three years of post-secondary study and in most Latin-American countries (except Brazil, Peru, and Chile) only graduation from the secondary school is required for the conferring of the bachelor's or first degree.

Bloomsburg—first an Academy, then Literary Institute, State Normal School, State Teachers College, now becomes a State College in fact. Graduate curriculums leading to the degree of Master of Education will be offered in: Business Education; Elementary Education; Special Education for Mentally Retarded; Speech Correction; Secondary Education (approval pending) in English and Social Studies (including geography); on weekends, evenings, and during summer sessions.

The date for accepting students for admission to the arts and sciences or liberal arts programs in the (1) Humanities, (2) Natural Sciences, or (3) Social Sciences will be announced as soon as plans are matured. No degrees, either A.B. or B.A. may be conferred before 1964.

Present faculty, numbering 119, includes 53 who hold degrees in the Arts and Sciences and 35 who have had a total of 170 years of teaching experience in liberal arts institutions.

Consideration is being given to the adoption of a basic curriculum for all students for the freshman and sophomore years to include English, Speech, Art, Music, one of three foreign languages, one of three or more laboratory sciences, one of three or more social sciences and one elective course in the third and fourth semesters.

This means, in effect, that all students will pursue a general curriculum in Liberal Arts or Arts and Sciences for two years and then will:

- (1) graduate with a certificate or associate in science degree thus terminating their formal college education at Bloomsburg, or
- (2) elect to transfer to another State College for their last two years in fields not offered at Bloomsburg, or
- (3) transfer to colleges or universities other than State Colleges, or
- (4) continue at Bloomsburg in a curriculum leading to the Bachelor of Arts in (a) the Humanities (b) Natural Sciences or (c) Social Sciences, or
- (5) continue for the last two years in one of the teacher education curriculums at Bloomsburg leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education.

Some research was begun more than a decade ago to determine the steps in the development of Bloomsburg as an expanding institution of higher education. More recently, committees of faculty, the administration, and the faculty at large have been developing curriculum patterns to preserve the quality of teacher education and to offer sound education in the Arts and Sciences for those who may not be interested in or fitted for the teaching profession.

Bloomsburg, now a State College with a graduate school, stands on the threshold of an era of expansion which offers challenges for greater service to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania through educating its future teachers and citizens.

Your understanding, cooperation, and support will be appreciated in this time of transition by

1867 - WILLIAM BOYD SUTLIFF - 1962

Born Stillwater, Pennsylvania, January 20, 1867; son of Darius C. and Maria (Whitesell) Sutliff. Married Ella S. Stump, August 10, 1898, a member of the B. S. N. S. music faculty; daughter, Helen Elizabeth; son, Robert Groff, (deceased 1958); daughter, Harriet Eleanor (Mrs. Harold H. Herr.)

Bloomsburg State Normal School, 1891; Lafayette College, B.A., 1898; M.A., 1900. Professor B.S.N.S., 1891 et seq. Dean of Instruction, B.S.N.S., 1921-1927; Dean of Instruction, B.S.T.C., 1927-1937.

Published "Alma Mater and Other Poems" (1937); Member Bloomsburg School Board for 16 years, serving as secretary; Elder, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., 43 years; Clerk of Session 10 years; 32° Mason; Tyler, Caldwell Consistory, 20 years.

Dean Emeritus William Boyd Sutliff, beloved educator of the Bloomsburg State College and the last of that institution's "Old Guard," died Tuesday, June 5 at the Dent Nursing Home, Scott Township, where he had been a guest for about three weeks. He was ninety-five years old.

Unable, because of age, to be with the alumni for the festivities this spring, the Dean addressed the Alumni through a wire recording, speaking of his experiences and observing that he had enjoyed his work, "especially in keeping in contact with young people for one does not grow old very fast when you have this opportunity."

At the time he observed the ninetieth anniversary of his birth he was tendered a birthday party by the College faculty and upon that occasion he was referred to as "Mr. Bloomsburg." He rated that title. It was used thereafter by thousands of his former pupils and friends.

Until just recently he was able to be about and resided in his home on College Hill until going to the nursing home. Through much of his retirement, which began in 1937, he was an almost daily visitor to the business section of the town, usually walking so that he could meet and greet people, and generally finding time to visit the Craftsman Club for a few games of pinochle.

The dean throughout his life was always as young in spirit and outlook as any around him and was most popular, in fact a sought after member of any group of young people.

He lived to see one of the newest buildings on the campus named in his honor, William Boyd Sutliff Hall. It is a building devoted to classrooms. The dean was present on that occasion, with members of his family, and despite all of the fine oratory and other features it was the Dean who "stole the show." His comments were thought provoking and certainly provided the high point of the occasion.

He was the first dean of instruction at the College, assuming the position when it was created in 1921 and holding it until his retirement in 1937.

This position was made a part of the administrative setup during the tenure of Dr. Fisher. In a chat during the observance of his ninety-fourth birthday the Dean observed "I created that position for I had no plan to go on and I didn't get much help from Harrisburg." In the early years of the office he also taught classes and his students agree that as an instructor in mathematics he was one of the best in the field.

Through much of the period that he served on the hill, his second tenure starting upon his graduation from Lafayette College in 1898, he was active in athletics and much of that time had charge of the scheduling of all of the teams.

He never lost his interest in sports. After he retired, he usually managed to attend the home contests and when, because of age, it was impossible to be present he still kept informed and was always ready to talk about the achievements of the Huskies.

In athletics, as in everything else, the Dean lived in the present. He was happy to talk about the sports achievements of teams of "Old Normal" but usually would guide the conversation so that it was soon focused on the teams of the present and their prospects for the future.

His mind remained clear to the end; that was most evident in the recorded message to the alumni.

He was born in Stillwater but as an infant of six weeks was taken by the family to Town Line in Huntington Valley where he spent his youth. In some of his last public remarks he paid tribute to the faculty of the Old Huntington Mills Academy, stressing the fact that the head of the institution was a Harvard graduate.

After his graduation here, seventy-one years ago, he taught in the public schools of the area and for a year was on the Normal School faculty prior to leaving to continue his education at Lafayette College.

When he was about to enter the Easton institution of learning

DEAN SUTLIFF AND PRESIDENT ANDRUSS LOOK AT SOME OLD RECORDS

Judson Perry Welsh, then head of the school, intimated strongly that when the Dean completed his studies at Lafayette he was to return to the local college faculty. This is what he did.

Through the years on the campus there would appear from time to time poems telling some of the history and catching much of the spirit of the school. They were signed simply, "Q".

The poems were popular with the students and alumni and were used extensively. But only a few knew the author.

Unknown to the Dean, his secretary of many years, Mrs. Gertrude Andrews Horne, and others saved copies of his works and during the tribute paid him on May 22, 1937, in connection with his retirement he was presented a bound volume which noted on the cover that they contained the poems of the Dean.

He was always keenly interested in the development of the College and was most happy to see the recent program of progress. One of his observations, always clean cut, was that the State had not taken over the school when he was a student there, "but the State was running it even then."

One of his many happy experiences on the faculty was to have been the dean of instruction at the time the school became a college in 1927.

He was a devout member of the First Presbyterian Church and served that congregation as an elder forty-three years. During that period he was a representative to one of the most important sessions of the denomination. Its importance is emphasized by the fact the Dean was willing to miss one of the Alumni Day programs in order to attend this international session as a delegate.

Dean Sutliff was for fourteen years a member of the Bloomsburg School Board, being appointed and then elected for two six year terms. He was secretary of the board throughout his tenure and retained that position for a time after he decided to retire as a member of the board.

He was active in the various Masonic bodies and was for twenty years the tiler for the Caldwell Consistory. This was a position he enjoyed for it afforded him opportunity to renew friendships with "his boys" who were in attendance.

His wife, who at one time was a member of the Normal School faculty and who through her life was a talented musician, died a number of year ago, and a son, Robert, in more recent years.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Helen E. Sutliff, Harrisburg and Mrs. Harold H. Herr, Palmyra, and a granddaughter, Miss Marcia Herr.

Funeral services were held at the Bastian home for funerals, Bloomsburg, Friday morning, June 1, in charge of the Rev. Robert C. Angus, pastor of First Presbyterian Church. The cortege then went to Christian Lutheran cemetery, Strouhsburg, Berks county, where he was laid to rest beside his wife.

Miss Linda Faye Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, Nescopeck R. D. 1, and Harold John Cole, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Cole, St., Essington, were married recently at Mt. Zion United Church of Christ, Nescopeck R. D. 1.

The Rev. Clark Heller officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The couple will reside at Apt. 2-B, 21 East Fifth street, Bloomsburg.

The bride graduated from Temple University Hospital School of Nursing and is employed as a nurse in the pediatrics department of Bloomsburg Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Bloomsburg State College and served with the U. S. Marines for nearly five years. He is employed at Bloomsburg Hospital.

Dean Sutliff's Birthday Party

(Reprinted from Quarterly, April 1957)

Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff, who was referred to as the local Teachers College's "Mr. Bloomsburg," was honored Sunday evening, January 20, by the institution to which he has devoted his life.

The occasion was the ninetieth anniversary of his birth and scores of members of the College faculty joined with former members and other friends of the educator in paying a glowing tribute to this man for his contributions to the College and to the community.

The Dean in a charming response observed "the most delightful thing in the world, when you reach mature age, is to know you have friends who remember you. I don't think I deserve all this taffy but I enjoy it."

Howard F. Fenstemaker, who presided as master of ceremonies, spoke of the Dean as "Mr. Bloomsburg" and President Harvey A. Andruss, president of the institution, in introducing the guest of honor asserted, "I do not present the last of the institution's 'Old Guard' but the 'noblest Roman of them all' Dean Emeritus William Boyd Sutliff."

His daughter, Miss Helen Sutliff, Harrisburg, was present for the occasion and telegraphed greetings were received from his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Sutliff, Delray Beach, Florida.

On behalf of the faculty of the institution, the dean was presented with a gift by Mr. Fenstemaker.

The invocation was given by George Stradtman of the faculty. Participating in the tribute to Dean Sutliff were Dr. Thomas P. North, Brookville, who succeeded Dean Sutliff; Dr. E. H. Nelson, a former member of the faculty and alumni president; Dr. Andruss and Edward F. Schuyler.

Dr. Andruss in his comments read two of the Dean's poems concerning the tower on Carver Hall and the old wooden bridge which connected Carver and Noetling Halls. These and other poems were printed some years ago by the alumni. The dean observed that they had been retained for publication by his secretary of many years, Mrs. G. Edward Horne, Shamokin. Mrs. Horne, the former Gertrude Andrews, and her husband, were among those present.

The Dean in his response said there were three things occurring in 1867. One was the purchase of Alaska then referred to as "Scward's Folly"; the crection of Institution Hall, now Carver Hall, the first building on the College campus, and his birth. "Without the latter," he commented, "there would have been no me."

He was given a standing ovation by the group and members joined in singing "Happy Birthday."

The following comments on the affair appeared in the Bloomsburg "Morning Press":

Everyone knows time flies by when you are busy and drags when there is nothing much to do. Those four score and ten years of Dean Sutliff must have gone exceptionally fast for he has always been busy. And to add further speed to the period, his activities were in the field of service to others.

The Dean, who still walks with firm step, places his pinochle bid in a firm voice and discusses with equal ability affairs of the present and events of the past, hasn't changed much in the twenty years since his retirement from the faculty at the local Teachers College. He's just been too busy.

There were some splendid tributes paid him at a dinner tendered by the College recently upon the occasion of his most recent birthday anniversary. What made the evening so fine was that the tributes were most deserved.

The ones we liked and which tell the story of the Dean's productive life best were those of his contributions to the College after retirement. He's always been a fellow to go that extra mile.

Howard Fenstemaker put it well when he asserted the Dean is truly "Mr. Bloomsburg." It would be impossible to measure the contribution he has made to the progress of the Bloomsburg State Teachers College. The reward has been the results obtained as a result of the helping hand he extended in the lives of thousands. The Dean asks nothing more.

There were many things which imprinted the party in memory's book in such a manner that it will not fade. Once was the fact that all four men who have served the institution as Dean of Instruction were in attendance.

Dean Sutliff was the first to hold the office. President Harvey A. Andruss was the second. Dr. Thomas P. North, who with Mrs. North came from Brookville to have a part in the festivities, was the third and the present holder of the position, John A. Hoch, rounded out the quartet.

The veteran educator's span of service covered five administrations and he was associated on the faculty with the present head of the institution. Those men were Dr. Welsh, whom not so many now on the scene were privileged to know; Dr. D. J. Waller, Jr., who served two terms as head of "Old Normal"; Dr. Fisher, Dr. G. C. L. Riemer, Dr. Francis B. Haas and President Andruss.

The Dean has seen tremendous advancement in the program of the College. He was born the year Carver Hall was built. The then Literary Institute had been conducted previously in another part of the town. When it was moved to its present ideal location it had a campus of but three acres. Now it has fifty-seven acres and, with a probability of doubling present enrollment within ten years if there are accommodations, more land is being sought.

The guest of honor in his delightful response related some of the circumstances under which the Commonwealth became interested in acquiring the Literary Institute and starting a Normal School.

The popular educator stands not only as an example of what happens when an individual keeps busy in a field of service but also the fine results of diversified interests.

His love has always been the College but it has been all phases of College life. He was for years the manager of the athletic teams and a telegram from his associate here at the turn of the century, Dr. A. D. Aldinger, noted that without the Dean's wise application of funds the Normal sports program would have been in difficulties many times. The Dean has never lost interest in sports. You can still see him at athletic contests. And if some rule changes have you puzzled ask the Dean. A man with a rich past, he still has his principal interests in the present.

At the banquet he commented the verbal bouquets were "taffy but I enjoy them." Well, if that is so he'll have to admit he supplied the ingredients for the "taffy" and they were of grade A quality.

FASHION SHOW

Citrus shades, versatile straws in spring chapeau, stripes, plaits, splashy floral prints and a hearty dash of blus denim were highlights of the sixteenth annual fashion show Thursday, April 5, at Carver Hall, Bloomsburg State College.

Based on the theme, "Wist of Fashion," the show offered colorful spring and summer styles in sportswear, casual and dress up clothes, lingerie and hats for the young and the very young. The striking set designed by Robert Ulmer was starkly simple in black and white and spotlighted by beautiful floral arrangements.

An audience of 900 students, faculty and townspeople gathered in Carver Auditorium Tuesday afternoon, March 13 to hear the Second Varsity Intercollegiate Debating Contest at the Bloomsburg State College this year. The debate featured an affirmative team of Terry Hoppman of St. Louis, Rick Valdez from Chicago, both freshmen at Princeton University, versus William Mattern, Penn's Creek and Lucy Zablocky, Almedia, both sophomores at the College.

Dean Sutliff Lays Corner Stone Of Sutliff Hall

(From Quarterly of July, 1959)

The corner stones were formally placed Tuesday, May 12, for Sutliff Hall, a classroom building named in honor of William B. Sutliff, dean emeritus, and New North Hall, a men's dormitory, at the Teachers College.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, termed it a step in the growth of the physical facilities of the institution.

State Senator Jo Hays, Center and Clearfield counties, in the address of the day was not as optimistic as Mr. Caruso, but asserted Pennsylvania must build to meet its educational needs and he said the place to build is at the established state institutions.

Dean Sutliff was given an ovation when he was presented by Dr. Andruss. The Centennial gymnasium, in which the program was held, was well filled with most of those in attendance being students at the College.

At the cornerstone laying ceremonies, held at the buildings now under construction, a glowing tribute was paid to Dean Sutliff by Judge C. W. Kreisher and the value of education was emphasized by District Attorney Howard R. Berninger. Judge Kreisher is president and Berninger secretary of the trustees of the College.

There were numerous guests presented by Dr. Andruss during the program in Centennial gymnasium. The ceremonies opened with the National Anthem and the Rev. Walter L. Brandau, president of Bloomsburg Ministerium, gave the invocation. The College Chora-leers, Nelson A. Miller directing, pleased with a selection.

Dean of Instruction John A. Hoch presided at the cornerstone laying ceremonies. In his tribute to Dean Sutliff, Judge Kreisher said: "Dean Sutliff's entire life has been characterized by modesty, ability, good judgment and apt advise-ment without the least attempt at display. His pleasant, cheerful and courteous manner displays his excellent social qualities that so endeared him to his friends and students. His speech is pleasant and his style clear and direct with-out any attempt at embellishment, but there is in his manner and language an expression of frank-ness, sincerity and earnestness that always secures respectful atten-tion."

The "Passing Throng" column of The Morning Press had the fol-folwing comment on the honor paid to Dean Sutliff:

"Mr. Bloomsburg" took it all in stride.

That is the appropriate title which was conferred on Dean Em-eritus William Boyd Sutliff of the Teachers College by Howard Fen-stermaker of the College faculty when the College tendered the Dan on a birthday party on Jan-uary 20, 1957, upon the ninetieth anniversary of his birth. It is most appropriate.

The occasion in which he took things in stride was the recent cor-nerstone laying for William Boyd Sutliff Hall, a classroom building, and the new men's dormitory.

There was a fine program and the orators were at their best. Everything had been well planned and was well executed. But if things hadn't operated so smooth-ly few would have noticed. The beloved educator was the one figure in the spotlight. He didn't will it so but he accepted it as the gentleman and scholar he is.

Surrounded by his family and his friends he received a number of bouquets, verbal and otherwise, and all deserved. And as Judge Kreisher pointed out in his tribute it was so fine the dean was pres-ent to hear those plaudits.

The Dean, born January 20, 1867, near Shickshinny, is a gradu-ate of the Teachers College, class

JOURNEY'S END

We noticed not the ever swelling crest
As up life's hill with eager feet we pres't,
The busy days, the happy friends we knew;
The mists of work and play obscured the view.

The voice of youth with eager note, the sound
Of restless feet breaking anew the ground
Where we with joyous steps had set the pace
Came careless free, the busy world to face.

The wider space of life's endeavor lost
The slow descending plain, nor marked the cost
Of passing years, the ever thinning ranks,
We failed to count the foe upon our flanks.

The swift descending slope our tired feet
Urged onward where the level plain we meet
Here where thrift has set a peaceful bower
Age takes its ease and spends a happy hour.

Fearless we gaze upon a tideless sea
Where white sailed ships with anchors free
Stand by impatiently, with flag at mast,
For those who seek the irrecoverable past.

—William Boyd Sutliff

of 1891. From the time he enrolled at the local institution his only interruption in connection with school was when he matriculated at Lafayette College from which he was graduated in 1898.

As Howard stated at that birthday dinner he is "Mr. Bloomsburg" and certainly that is recognized by all. We have heard a number of ovations tendered through the years but none was more sincere and genuine than that given by the assembled guests and members of the student body when the dean was presented by President Harvey A. Andruss during the exercises held in Centennial Gymnasium prior to the cornerstone laying.

During the formal program Dr. Andruss took occasion to mention the close relationship between the Teachers College of Bloomsburg and Indiana, that being prompted by the presence at the ceremonies of two representatives of Indiana. Then the local educator brought up the name of Dr. D. J. Waller, Jr., who for almost forty years served as president of Bloomsburg (through two successful administrations) and at Indiana Normal School. That is a record without equal in the state, Dr. Andruss said. Added to that was the mention that Dr. Waller also served as superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction four years.

The Dean was a close friend of Dr. Waller and we know he was happy Dr. Waller's name was mentioned at the ceremonies. The mention brought to mind the valiant battle the Dean has waged through the years to remove unjust criticism which came to the Waller family on the part of some as a result of the College being started at its present location.

If you have resided in town for a number of years you probably have heard some one utter that the College is located where it is because the Waller family wanted to shut off community growth in that direction so that it would sell lots along the river where the Wallers had extensive holdings.

That is not true, the Dean will tell you. He took the trouble to search the records of the local institution of learning and found that the Waller vote went against placing the college where it stands.

We're sorry the Wallers took a slap they didn't deserve but we're happy the College is located where it is. There are many beautiful campuses around the country but we haven't found any finer than that of Bloomsburg. And in this age of expansion the present location hasn't been any great bar to building.

It was a great day for the dean and a highly deserved recognition.

COMMENCEMENT

Man's accomplishments have come from his anxiety and his knowledge of how to use it, Miss Virgilia Peterson, literary critic and author, told the 321 members of the Bloomsburg State College graduating class at commencement exercises in the Centennial Gymnasium.

Relatives and friends of the class swelled the attendance to more than 2,000 with some standing in the rear of the hall.

The speaker told the class "It is not sorrow that corrodes the nerves, emasculates courage, weighs down the heart and sucks out one's faith in life; it is not sorrow at all, it is anxiety."

"Sorrow has its own stature, its own dignity and most people seem to meet it with a stature and a dignity they did not know they had," the speaker said as she developed her theme on "Reflection on a Changing World."

Continuing, she said, "sorrow seems to make heroes of most men or women while on the other hand anxiety also is an inevitable part of our experience, is at times almost not to be endured. Yet, almost from our beginning, we have had to struggle with anxiety."

"America was founded by people who came here to escape, not from sorrow but from anxiety. They came here to build a life in which equal opportunity for the equal and the unequal alike, would eliminate some of their more obvious anxieties, both material and spiritual and thus set them free to affirm their particular genius."

"We do many things in an effort to eliminate or reduce various anxieties but we have not rid ourselves of anxiety because it is an internal rather than an external thing."

"At the same time we capitalize our anxieties; we are more anxious about them than any other people have admitted to being. Why not be anxious with a world in chaos; with a future which seems to be more uncertain today than on any yesterday?"

"It is mere folly to be anxious about our anxiety. Anxiety is not only a normal but a necessary condition of the soul. However, certain kinds of anxiety are purely negative and purely destructive."

"On the other hand, at the extreme opposite, there are people who appear to have no anxiety at all. Not to have any anxiety is to be perilously less than normal."

"Anxiety is harder to accept and endure and is far more vexing than sorrow because it is not clean cut. Moreover, anxiety is not a force unless you know how to use it."

"If man has accomplished so much it is, I believe, because of and thanks to his anxiety. He has known how to put his soul's anxiety to use."

"Through anxiety we discover life's demands upon us and how to meet them. If we are to be saved it is through our common anxiety."

"And now, since it is my mission to exhort you, I will fulfill it by exhorting you not to be afraid of your anxiety. Recognize it for the priceless intuition that it is and be proud that you have it, since it means that you are awake and aware. If you use it well; if you do not waste it, you will add something of value to the sum of human experience."

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss spoke briefly in wishing the class God-speed and offered a brief memorial prayer for James F. Ambelas, Northumberland and Peter M. Lutz whose deaths occurred during their senior year.

All of the diplomas were presented during the commencement, each member of the class receiving personal recognition.

Graduating summa cum laude were Carimar Shultz, Judy Whaite, Elizabeth Brooker, Nancy Yocum and Kay Kerlish.

Those graduated magna cum laude were Ronald Gerhart, Carole Lee Jones, Shirley Smeltz Brocius, Carol Edwards and Warren Moser.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARDS

A man who for more than a half century has been a leader in the educational life of the area and has served on the board of trustees of the Bloomsburg State College longer than any man now living—Fred W. Diehl, of Danville—and the memory of a man who brought the graduate body to its present position of strength—Dr. Elva H. Nelson—were honored by BSC alumni at the annual meeting on Alumni Day.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, presented the Distinguished Service Award to Diehl, retired superintendent of the Montour County Schools.

Howard F. Fenstemaker, newly elected president of the alumni, made the posthumous award to Dr. Nelson, the first time this award has been made posthumously. It was received by Detective Sgt. Victor Nelson, State Police, Wyoming, a brother of Dr. Nelson, who observed that he accepted the honor with "a feeling of deep humility" and "in the name of the Nelson family. I know that no honor could have come to my brother that he would have appreciated more."

The award to Mr. Diehl set forth that he was long a member and president of the College board of trustees, long vice president and then president of the alumni body and "a loyal alumnus with a long and distinguished record of service in his school, church and community."

Dr. Andruss in the presentation spoke of the recipient as one who is "wise, patient and unselfish" and added "that I know of no one more deserving of this honor" although cognizant of the fact outstanding men and women have been recipients in the past. Mr. Diehl, recovering from illness, more a brief response, terminated by a simple, "thank you."

Mr. Fenstemaker, who was long associated with Dr. Nelson in days at the local institution both as stu-ert; Jane Petuskey, Numidia; Thomas Searer, Francis Guro and Nancy Bower.

CLASS REUNIONS

The "old grads"—those who got their skeepskins so long ago they are happy to tell their age, or at least don't give a care if someone makes an accurate guess—were the ones who stole the limelight at the BSC Alumni Day festivities on the hill.

The classes from 1897 on, at intervals of five years, each had special reunions but the classes that have been off the campus longest had the most back and the most active programs. It is getting more and more that way each year and the association is taking steps now to retain this interest among the veteran classes and at the same time build up more activity among the groups who haven't been away from Bloomsburg so long.

Charles Boyer, eighty-six, a member of the class of 1896, was on the campus. A resident of dent and teacher, at the University of Michigan and again early in the teaching careers of both, paid tribute to the memory of his friend.

The citation set forth that Dr. Nelson was an outstanding educator and authority on health and physical education, president of the alumni from 1946 to 1961, business manager of the Alumni Quarterly from 1937 to 1961, "inspiring teacher, loyal alumnus and great teacher."

Mr. Fenstemaker spoke of his close association with Dr. Nelson and related how the late president had worked for a year to arrange for the fiftieth year reunion of his class a year ago, only to be denied the privilege of attending, because of illness. His death occurred a few weeks later.

Corsages were presented by the association to Mrs. Diehl and Mrs. Victor Nelson. The Victor Nelsons are the parents of a daughter, Joanne, who completed her freshman year at BSC this year. An orchid was also sent to Mrs. Nelson at her home in Bloomsburg.

Lewisburg, he graduated from Bucknell in 1902 and speaks of himself as a "silent partner" with his son in a Western Auto store business.

Elmer Levan, Numidia, class of 1898, had a busy time for himself, even addressing the general meeting and showing some photographs.

Mrs. Eva Faus McKelvey, eighty-eight, class of 1892, now resides near Montoursville. She is a graduate of Dickinson Seminary, now Lyeoming College, class of 1897, and the mother of seven children, six of them reared to adulthood and all of those college graduates. A son is assistant chief of the National Geological Survey, Washington, D. C., and his wife, the former Genevieve Bowman, is a Bloomsburg alumnus. Mrs. McKelvey is the widow of the Rev. Mr. McKelvey, a Methodist minister, who died in 1938.

Larue Brown, seventy-three, class of 1910, resides at Lewisburg. He is a school director in East Buffalo Township and an insurance agent. He reported that "twenty years ago they wanted a candidate and I have been running ever since and always getting 'caught' elected."

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following lists of names are published as they appeared in the "Morning Press." We shall be glad to make additions in the next issue of The Quarterly, if our attention is called to them.

ALUMNI MEETING

Bloomsburg State College alumni set the wheels in motion to change the format of its annual meeting, heard the recorded voice of Dean Emeritus William B. Sutliff, now ninety-five, and expressed pleasure over the strides being made forward by the Alma Mater at the annual meeting in Carver Hall Auditorium.

Named to the board of directors for three year terms were Charles H. Henrie, Bloomsburg, class of 1938, and Miss Elizabeth Hubler, Gordon, class of 1931 and elected as a new member was William Bittler, class of 1956. Millard Ludwig, 1948, Millville, was selected to fill the unexpired term of the late Dr. E. H. Nelson.

Mr. Fenstermaker, who presided at the session, said the alumni are now operating under a non-profit charter if 1935 and that as a result of developments in the past three decades some changes are necessary.

At present the annual meeting is set for a time during the commencement season established by the College administration and it is proposed that this be changed to a date proposed by the administration. The presiding officer pointed out that many institutions have established alumni days earlier in the year with considerable success. It was noted this is an especially busy time of the year for teachers and the majority of the BSC graduates are in this profession.

This and other proposals, to be presented for consideration after being drafted by a committee and approved by the board of directors, will be submitted for action at the 1963 meeting.

A proposal, too, is that the annual meeting be held in connection with the luncheon and it was indicated this may be done next year, immediately after a short session in the auditorium at which time the proposed changes in the constitution and by-laws will be acted upon.

Mr. Fenstermaker said there is a strong belief by many who have studied the developments, that a luncheon meeting will increase attendance and also lead to an additional number of the returning graduates spending more time on the campus. Under this proposal the entire morning would be devoted to reunions. The plan for many years has been to have the reunions in the afternoons.

The major aim of the changes is to increase the attendance at the functions of the general body. It was noted that while many are returning for the graduate festivities, the general meeting is not being so well attended; special reunion functions are taking alumni from the general sessions. Three classes which had reunion dinners in the College Commons on Saturday evening had only token attendance at the general meeting.

Boyd F. Buckingham, business manager of the Quarterly and public relations director of the College, said the graduate body now has 1,260 members and hopes to build this to 1,400 by the end of the summer.

Richard Lloyd, Upper Darby, president of the class of 1962, presented a check for dues in the association for all of the seniors and expressed the hope the class of 1962 will add to the strength of the graduate program in support of the College.

No feature of the session was more appreciated than the recorded message of Dean Sutliff who was in a nursing home. He spoke of his education and his service at Bloomsburg where he was the first dean of instruction, serving in that post from 1921 until his retirement in 1937. The Dean stated he enjoyed the work and "especially in keeping in contact with young people for one does not grow old very fast when you have this opportunity."

Mr. Fenstermaker noted that the oldest living alumna is Mrs. Annie Supplee Nuss, who will be nin-

COMMERCIAL CONTEST

Two hundred and sixty students from 57 high schools, representing 26 of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania, competed for individual and team honors Saturday, May 5, in the twenty-eighth annual Business Education contest sponsored by the Bloomsburg State College. The Conrad Weiser Area High School, Robesonia, group won first place in the team competition. The number of students and high schools equalled the record set when the contest was held in May, 1961. Contest officials selected the 57 schools this year from more than 500 high schools in Eastern Pennsylvania.

In addition to the contestants, 110 students and 96 high school business teachers came to the campus for tours and an inspection of the Book and Office Machines Exhibit. Forty-five representatives from 16 book and machine companies presented one of the most extensive and most successful exhibits in recent years.

One hundred fifty students of the Business Education Division at the College assisted the faculty committee in administering and scoring the exams.

Miss Delores Keen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Keen, junior at Bloomsburg State College, was honored with the title of "Coed of the Year" at the BSC Freshman Hop held at Centennial gym. Johnny Miller and The Starlighters provided music for dancing. "Stairway to the Stars" was the theme of the attractive decorations.

ety-seven in August and is now in a nursing home.

In the roll call of classes one member of the class of 1892 reported. The response for the class of 1912, honor class of the reunion and seated on the platform for the session, was by Lawrence V. Savage, Scranton attorney, who observed that "it seems I was given a lifetime job when I was elected president of my class in senior year."

The luncheon in College Commons followed.

Many Students Aided By Loans And Scholarships

Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association, which in recent years has entered the field of "big business" through the receipt of the $100,000 plus bequest of Miss Mary McNinch to its student loan fund, had a total of $142,431.33 on hand in various funds for loans of scholarships as of May 19, members of the graduate body were told at their annual meeting.

Earl A. Gehrig, treasurer, in submitting his report, noted student loans now receivable total $57,840.96 and these were made to a total of 154 persons. There was $5,695 repaid to the fund by graduates during the past year.

The loans are presently being made entirely from the McNinch fund because this bequest is for the specific purpose of loans. There has been $520 paid out in scholarships during the past year from funds and grants given specifically for this purpose from the earnings of money that can be used for either loans or scholarships.

There is a total in the general fund of $2,135.72, an increase of $1,257.59 during the year.

Two of the funds are in the red, the operations reserve fund by $227.11 and the Husky fund, $1,257.9, but it was noted plans are underway to take care of these obligations.

The newest of the funds is in memory of Dr. E. H. Nelson, long head of the Alumni Association, and it is to be an endowed fund for scholarships for students who participate in athletics. There was $130 in the fund at the time of the audit, with more than $300 received in the past week, plus contributions over the Alumni weekend. The minimum goal is $10,000 and the alumni are to be appraised of the memorial project by mail. There are around 9,000 alumni and addresses are available for 7,600.

The balances in the various funds are: Centennial Loan $18,039.10; Bakeless Memorial $10,001.49; William D. Watkins $1,000; Earl N. Rhodes $1,800; Lucy McCammon $1,136; Henry J. Warman $35; Class of 1950 $88.75; William B. Sutliff $1,230.28.

There was $1,203.91 added to the McNinch fund during the year. It totals $110,655.52 and is composed of a checking account of $2,664.54, savings account $10,150, student loans receivable $37,840.98, permanent trust fund $60,000. The original bequest was $107,052.81.

Income during the year was $1,509.33 and expenses of operation $600.42.

During the past college year eighty-seven loans totaling $14,900 were made from the fund.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of the College, in his address to the graduate body observed that while the loans available have increased they have not kept pace with the increase in enrollment and in the merited demand for such aid. He said that while there has been $150,000 loaned to BSC students from federal funds in the past three years there have always been more worthy applicants than there are funds available.

WILLEY LEY

"The Man in the Moon will be meeting a man on the Moon before the end of the century," predicts Willy Ley, the world-famous authority on rockets and space travel who spoke during the regular assembly convocation at State College on Tuesday, May 15, in Centennial Gymnasium.

"Space exploration is progressing at such sputnik speed these days within ten or twenty years space flights will be an almost everyday occurrence," says the man who is considered by many to be the country's foremost writer on the newest and most exciting field of science; his address featured many of his theories on "The Conquest of Space."

An enthusiastic audience heard Dr. John H. Furbay, lecturer, author, speak on Monday, April 30 on "The Four Dreams of Man" at Carver auditorium. Dr. Furbay said that "if we understood the pattern of the world today, we would better understand world problems and the four dreams of man for total world peace, sufficient food, self government and the desire to be "first-class" citizens."

The lecture was the third in a series sponsored by The Endowed Artist and Lecture Fund of BSC. The fund was established with an initial gift of $1,500 from an alumna, Mrs. Verna E. Jones, Millville, N. J., in memory of her husband, Daniel J. Jones, also a Bloomsburg graduate.

Vincent Price, dramatist, author, lecturer and at connoisseur, was the first speaker to be presented by the fund on Friday, March 11, 1960. Last year the speaker was General Carlos P. Romulo, statesman, author, soldier and lecturer.

GEOGRAPHY CONFERENCE

Approximately 225 geography teachers and professional geographers from elementary schools, high schools, colleges and universities throughout Pennsylvania were in attendance Friday, April 27 at the opening session of the Ninth Annual Spring Conference of the Pennsylvania State Council for Geography Education held at Carver Hall, State College.

Oscar Schmidt, professor of geography, University of Pittsburgh, highlighted the evening with his lecture, "East Pakistan: A Rich Land of Poor People."

The general session the following morning in Carver auditorium, featured Richard A. Gibboney, director of the Bureau of Curriculum Development, Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg. He spoke on "Secondary School Curricula; A Matter of Urgency."

MME. SAGHAL

"The most important fact about India is that it is a democracy, and the individual's rights are protected as the individual's rights are protected in the United States by a free democratic structure. This, I think, is the strongest link between India and America, and the strongest hope that India has in the future," declared Madame Naytara Sahgal, novelist, lecturer, and writer, and niece of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India, in an address Thursday, April 26 to the students and faculty of Bloomsburg State College in Carver Auditorium.

Madame Sahgal was born in 1927, the second of three sisters, and she received her education by private governesses and at a British School in India. In 1943, at the age of sixteen, she came with her sisters to the United States to attend Wellesley College in Massachusetts. Most of the members of her family were in political prison at that time.

In 1947, Madame Sahgal returned to India, and went then to Moscow where her mother was serving as the Indian Ambassador. She accompanied her mother also, when she was appointed Indian Ambassador to the United States in Washington and High Commissioner to the United Kingdom in London.

Madame Sahgal now makes her home in Bombay, India, with her husband, Gantam Sahgal, an Indian businessman, and her three children. Her activities are divided between being a housewife and mother, engaging in local, civic, and charitable affairs, and maintaining a rigid writing schedule.

Another of her novels, "A Time To Be Happy", published in 1958, offered insight into modern life in an ancient land whose people are very like our own in America. Her third book, another autobiography soon to be published in England, is a perceptive account of the changes that are taking place in the social fabric of a new and free India.

ARTS FESTIVAL

The first Spring Arts Festival in the history of Bloomsburg State College was held on the college campus from May 2-6, 1962. The purpose of the Festival was to stimulate interest and participation in the arts for college students and residents of the community. All events, listed as part of the Spring Arts Festival were open to the public.

Mr. Etting's paintings were exhibited in the corridor on the first floor of Sutliff Hall from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. May 2, at which time a reception was sponsored by the English Club. Mr. Etting is hon-

ATHLETICS

ATHLETIC HONORS AWARDED

Jimmy Brown, the football great, is an All-American performer on the banquet circuit, too.

The Syracuse alumnus who is now the all-star fullback of the Cleveland Browns and possessor of a basketful of records to attest to his gridiron prowess, had a few philosophical gems to impart on Monday, May 4, as he spoke at the fifth annual dinner session of the revived athletic awards dinner at the College Commons.

Speaking for almost forty minutes before several hundred athletes and guests, Brown held the closest of attention as he told of some of his experiences and from those illustrations drove home some thought provoking points.

He stressed that athletic ability is combined with academic ability today if the college athlete is to make the grade. "The day disappeared twenty years ago when an athlete was awarded a diploma even though he had only the education of a sophomore."

Brown spoke of his decision to go into pro sports after completing his course at Syracuse. He told of a teammate and friend, just as proficient in basketball as the speaker is at football, who gave up pro offers and entered law school. He is now on the staff of Attorney General Kennedy. "This is an important contribution to family and community. It may not be as spectacular as if they went into athletics but it is solid. The athlete is no longer stereotyped. He has a new image."

Dean of Instruction John A. Hoch capably presided. Dean of Student Affairs Jack A. McCauslin gave the invocation.

Russ Houck, director of athletics and wrestling coach, presented to Dr. Andruss, president, and the College the PSCC and NAIA wrestling trophies and Michael Flanagan, track coach, presented the PSCC track and field championship trophy.

Introduced were Ed Cocco, state 100 and 220 champion; Gary

Wrestling champions recognized were Don Poust, PSCC 177 title holder; Robert Hall, 191 state and 167 national champion, and William Garson, state heavyweight and national 191 title holder.

Dr. Andruss in speaking of the success achieved observed that "things like this do not just happen. They represent effort." He commended the coaches and reported the class of '62 is giving a trophy case as a memorial. The College president observed that it is needed and that if the Huskies keep winning, "the cases will have to get larger."

TRACK RECORDS BROKEN

Roy Pepper, the Harrisburg area boy who is an all around performer for the Bloomsburg Husky track and field team didn't rewrite the Bloomsburg record book during the successful season just completed by Mike Flanagan's thin clads, but he did establish 5 new marks, one of which he had previously held jointly with Frank Van Devender, Shamokin.

In all there were 6 records broken, the other being by Gary Edwards, the Allentown sophomore, who set a new mark of 146 foot, 5½ inches in the discus, bettering by more than 2 feet the 144 foot, 5½ mark set by Dan Bonham, Forty Fort, back in 1941.

Pepper went over the 120 yards high hurdles in 15.2, clipping two-fifth of a second off a mark that was held jointly by Jenkins, who was clocked in that time in 1940, and by Moss who went in the same time last year.

The 220-yard low hurdle mark of 24.5 had been held jointly by Pepper, who went the distance in that time as a freshman, and Van Devender who had set the mark in 1939. Pepper clipped .3 of a second off that mark.

The last of the records of the late Lamar Blass, the Aristes native who was a one man track team for George Buchheit in the thirties and who made the Supreme Sacrifice in World War II in one of the invasions of Italy, went off the books when Pepper made a broad-jump of 22 feet, 11 inches. That was a foot and an inch better than the 21 feet, 10 inches set by Blass in 1936.

The 100 yard high hurdle mark of 12.9 seconds was the fourth new one set by the busy Pepper. The old one, set by Rooney in 1947, was 13.1. In the 100 yard hurdles Pepper with 12.9 bettered the 13.1 he set last year.

Gary Edwards, who has won the discus in the PSCC meet for the past two years and who won the shot put this year, concluded the 1962 campaign with colors flying. In the concluding dual meet at Millersville he hurled the platter 146 feet, 7 1-2 inches to better Bonham's old BSC mark and also set a new mark for Millersville's Biemesderfer field.

Flanagan expects Edwards to set a new school mark in the shot put before he winds up his collegiate career. Bonham established the present mark of 46 feet, 6 1-2 inches in 1941.

The oldest record now on the books is in the javelin and was set by Bonham, a standout in the field events, at 199 feet 2 1-2 inches. Three marks still standing were established in 1939. One is a 9.7 by Frank VanDevender in the 100, the second a 50.5 quarter set by Mulhern at 50.5 and equaled by Jenkins 4 years later and the third a 1:58.4 880 run by Dan Kemple of Cumtola, down Pottsville way.

Other marks set in the day when the Huskies were first showing their track and field abilities in the State College Conference that are still standing are Bonham's shot put mark and a mile relay 3:32.2 established in 1942 by Zelesky, Mulhern, VanDevender and Jenkins.

All of the other marks were established in recent years with the exception of the pole vault which was set at 12 feet, 5 1-2 inches in 1950 by Womer.

Ed Cocco, from down Philadelphia way, is graduating with two marks, one a 21.1 220 and a 20.8 on a curve, both established in 1960.

Terry Engleman, who graduated last year, holds 3 marks, a mile record of 4:25.5 set in 1959, a 3 mile 14:26.5 in 1960 and a two mile 9:22.2 established last year.

The 880 yard relay record of 1:31 was set last year by Pepper, Painter, Scott and Cocco. All but Cocco will be back next year.

WRESTLERS WIN

NATIONAL TITLE

On Saturday night, March 17, the Bloomsburg State College wrestling team took the championship title at the NAIA wrestling tournament. The meet was held at Winona State College in Minnesota, this national event will occur here at BSC next year. The Huskies totaled 56 points in all. Lock Haven, champions of the NAIA meet last season, came in second with 47 points. Another Pennsylvania school, Lycoming College, had 39 points for third place. In fourth and fifth place respectively were Moorehead, Minnesota, and Winona State.

Along with team laurels, individual honors went to two Husky matmen, Bill Carson and Bob Hall, both juniors, won national championship titles. This was Carson's second year in a row for the title at the 191 lbs. weight class; Hall took his new title by winning in the 167 lbs. slot. In quarter-finals Hall decisioned Roland Neekman of Indiana State, 6-1. Bob then went on to the semi-finals where he wrestled Terry Halverson of River Falls and also decisioned him, 8-1. In the deciding match, Bob pinned his man, Gary Moyer of Fairmont State, at 6:39 to win his title. Carson outscored Larry Sciacchetano, 10-8, in his semi-final match. In the finals, he retained his crown by decisioning Ben Pulkabek of St. Johns, Minnesota, 6-5.

HUSKY SWIMMERS FOURTH IN STATE

The Husky swimming team came in fourth in the state championship swimming meet at East Stroudsburg. West Chester came in first with 103 points, Slippery Rock was next with 49 and Stroudsburg came in third with 40. BSC followed with 12; Millersville did not score; and Lock Haven failed to show up for the meet.

BSC took fourth in the 400 yard medley and then Chuck Jasper took a first place in his individual heat of the 220 yard free style but failed to place in the finals. A new BSC record was set by Don Young in the 50 yard free style, but West Chester took the event. Nelson Swarts and Floyd Grimm placed first and third respectively in their individual heats in the 200 yard individual medley. Swarts' time gave him a fifth place in the qualifications.

BASKETBALL

The Husky eagers finished the season with an overall record of 16 wins and 3 defeats. During the past season BSC knocked off Shippenburg, Millersville, Lock Haven, E. Stroudsburg and Kutztown state colleges. At Shippensburg, the Huskies won 71-58; high scorer for the evening was Dick Lloyd with 28 points.

On February 24, the Huskies met the visiting Marauders of Millersville and sent them home with a loss of 80-64. The Huskies employed the services of starting unit Dick Lloyd and Bob Herzig at forward position, Ed Beck at center and Fran Curran and Gary Rupert at the guard spots. During the first half, the lead seesawed back and forth between the two teams and came to rest at 34-31, in favor of Millersville at half time. The pace was fast throughout the game and with about 15 minutes remaining to be played, BSC took the lead and held it until the game's end. Herzig was high scorer for the night with 26 and Lloyd followed with 18. The JV's also won their game with a score of 98-66.

On February 27, Captain Lloyd led his teammates to a 98-69 victory over Lock Haven. During half-time of the Lock Haven game, Boyd Buckingham presented Dick with the game ball. The Huskies made most of their points during the second half after a fairly close first period. Curran and Herzig contributed 21 points apiece to the Husky cause. Before the big game, the JV's won their game, 70-52.

The next game played was at East Stroudsburg on March 1. It turned out to be a closer game than expected, the final score being 74-71. At half time, Stroudsburg held a 10 point lead and at one point in the game there was a 3 point gap. Lloyd scored 22 points to bring his Conference total to 395 thus far and surpass Williams' of Cheyney State 381. Bob Herzig had 20 points and Fran Curran had 19. Kurzinsky again led the Husky Pups to a 78-69 victory by scoring 23 points.

Kutztown was the site of the Huskies last game of the season. Another close game, Kutztown held the lead at half time as the score read 27-19. The second half the lead jumped back and forth between the two teams and ended with BSC winning 60-55. Lloyd brought his Conference record to a rest at 404 for a single year. His over-all four year mark is 1156 points. The JV's lost their game by one point.

TRACK

Bloomsburg State Husky track and field team retained its title in the twenty-seventh annual meet held Saturday, May 21 at Shippensburg, nosing out West Chester and Slippery Rock.

It was an all-out team record in which around a dozen athletes of Coach Mike Flanagan and his assistant, John Scringecour, compiled 46 1-2 points, edging out the Rame by 3 and Slippery Rock by 4 1-2.

The Huskies, led by the all around performer, Roy Pepper; the speedy Ed Cocco, and the efficient field man, Gary Edwards, got off to a good start and stayed in front although the Husky title was shaky until the final results came from the high jump.

This is the first year in history that Bloomsburg State has won 2 P.S.C.C titles in a term. The track crown came after the wrestlers took the mat title at Lock Haven during the spring. The wrestlers also won the NAIA title, the second time the grapplers have come up with a national title in three years. These are the only national titles in the athletic history of the local institution.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION NEEDS YOUR SUPPORT

The dedicated teacher, or one often referred to as "born to teach", knows an exhilarating sense of accomplishment each time a student or former student excels in a particular field in which the instructor has been instrumental.

But the crowning glory of being recognized publicly and singularly honored by former students en masse is a thrill few educators ever experience.

Such is the honor being heaped upon Merit Lees Laubach, professor emeritus of Indiana State College, Terre Haute, Indiana, by several hundreds of the more than 3,000 students with whom he was closely associated during his 35 years as head of the college's Department of Industrial Arts.

He will mark his 90th birthday in August at which time the appreciative student group will hold a testimonial dinner in his honor and present to the college and its vocational department a portrait of him they caused to be painted.

Apparently with no special regard for the acquisition of high sounding degrees, Prof. Laubach reportedly moved steadily forward in bringing to ISC and its student population those areas of instruction he felt attendant to his department of responsibility.

Dr. Raleigh Holmstedt, president of the college, recently declared him the founder of vocational education in the State of Indiana and the man who introduced manual training at ISC.

In addition to organizing the first special four-year teaching course in Industrial Arts there, Prof. Laubach also has the distinction of having instituted the home economics department at ISC, serving as its first director, 1909-1915.

He also was originator of the present ceramics department at the college. Recalling his awareness of the need for instruction in the art of pottery, the eternal scholar sought practical experience in a pottery mill and returned to the campus to start the wheels turning.

Born Aug. 15, 1872, at Fairmount Springs, Pa., the future professor attended a one-room country school where he was assigned study material according to his ability, no separate grading classes existed.

He took a teacher's examination and received his first school at the age of 19 for the magnificent sum of $25 per month and did morning and night farm chores to earn his board and room.

A few other annual teaching assignments also preceded his entrance into the Bloomsburg, Pa., Normal School and in the spring of 1894 to complete the two-year course in one and one-half years.

Late in the 1890's he accepted a post with the Bloomsburg State Normal which included manual training instruction and from his association with the work came his decision to make it his career field.

He noted the earliest method of teaching as "The Russian System," introduced in the U. S. during an 1876 Philadelphia shopwork exhibit of Russian engineering courses.

Although it was credited with being the forerunner of all manual training and industrial art instruction in the U. S., it was only an exercise-type of teaching and soon gave way to a more practical type of "finished article instruction" advocated as "The Swedish Sloyd System." This is the system brought to ISC and Indiana by Prof. Laubach.

He and his wife, Eva, who is 93, reside at 104 South Twenty-first street, Terre Haute, where he has been very busily engaged in the 22 years of his retirement tracing the genology of his family in addition to making some stock market and real estate investments. He has also kept a close check on the success of former students.

Obviously very alert mentally and enjoying unusually good health for his age, Prof. Laubach has many fond memories of his students, many of whom are now passing on his instruction to students of their own.

He holds Bachelor and Master degrees from ICS and studied at Columbia and Cornell Universities, and the Bradley Polytechnic schools of Peoria, Ill. He numbers among his proudest membership charter affiliation with the 53-year-old Mississippi Valley Manual Arts Conference and the Indiana Industrial Education Association, which he helped found 30 years ago.

Mrs. Arthur T. Ten of my eleven grandchildren live near there, and it's a wonderful place to spend the summer. Our family—5 children and 11 grandchildren—stretches from Reed College, Portland, Oregon, across the United States to East Hampton, Long Island. Best wishes."

Jean M. Penman, 10 S. Kirklyn avenue, Upper Darby, daughter of Marjory Reese Penman '09, was the subject of an article which appeared recently in "The News of Delaware County." Miss Penman, who is employed in the underwriting department at the Penn Mutual Insurance Co. in Philadelphia, was invited by Bishop Fred Pierce Corson, this year's Baccalaureate speaker at BSC, to join a group of forty to visit Puerto Rico and attend the annual conference in San Juan. The article relates in a very interesting way some of Miss Penman's experiences on the trip which she made last summer.

Rowlands is a brother of Joan Rowlands, with Wilkes-Barre General Hospital Pharmacy, and Atty. Hopkin T. Rowlands, Wilkes-Barre. Mr. and Mrs. Rowlands recently moved into their new home at 505 Park avenue, Condersport.

The following editorial was printed in the Wilkes-Barre Times Leader Evening News Monday, April 16, and pays tribute to the newly-elected county school superintendent:

"It is always a matter of local pride to trace a man's success in government, business or the professions to his start in the mines. John T. Rowlands, who was elected superintendent of Potter County schools last week, launched his career in the anthracite industry some four decades ago and now he belongs in a distinguished company of leading citizens and self-made men who have left their mark on the community, Commonwealth and country.

For most of the 36 years he has been in education, Mr. Rowlands, member of an old and respected Plains Township family, has served in an administrative capacity, preparing for the new responsibilities he now assumes. The county superintendency is a fitting climax to a notable career, carved largely beyond the boundaries of his native Luzerne County.

The recognition that has come to him in fraternal, religious and civic circles, as well as in education, rounds out a useful life.

COLUMBIA COUNTY ALUMNI

"Had John Adams not successfully defended the British soldiers who were involved in the Boston Massacre, he might have been our first president instead of George Washington, John E. Lavelle, Ashland attorney and BSC alumnus, stated in an address before the Columbia County Branch of the BSC Alumni Association.

Lavelle described the loss of popularity and the indignities to which Adams and his family were submitted because Adams had been successful in defending the British soldiers.

"For more than 2,000 years," said Lavelle, "lawyers have been in the forefront of the struggle to preserve man's rights and strengthen the system of justice."

"The people of the country and of the state, he said, "have a right to insist that the members of the Bars of its Courts be courageous in the defense of the rights of the citizens of the state. They have the right to insist that their prosecutors be zealous in the prosecution of the people who are accused of misdeeds. They should realize that in the tug of war in court, in the thrust and counter-thrust of experienced counsel, before an impartial and capable jurist, in at least ninety-nine per cent of the cases the truth will become apparent and justice will be served.

"My lot is in endeavoring to secure unto all of us in my own small way, the cherished rights and privileges for which so many of our forefathers and comrades fought and died. As you would ask that I understand your position in life, so too would the members of our noble profession ask that you try to understand the positions which we are sometime compelled to take in the defense and prosecution of those same rights and privileges," he concluded.

During the business meeting conducted by William Barton, president, officers were elected to serve for the coming year. They are Millard Ludwig, Millville, president; Claude Renninger, of Bloomsburg, vice president; Clayton Hinkel, Bloomsburg, treasurer.

"THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH"

With the passing of our President, Elna H. Nelson '11, and the retirement from the Board of Directors of Fred W. Dienl, Vice-President, it has been necessary to reorganize your Board of Directors. Your new President has agreed to take over the duties of the office for the time being. Charles H. Henrie, of Bloomsburg, has been elected Vice-President. The present Secretary, Mrs. C. C. Housenick '05, and the Treasurer, Earl A. Gehrig '38, will continue in their respective offices.

With the increase in enrollment of the College and the broadening of its functions, the members of the Board of Directors feel that it is time to re-examine the By-Laws adopted in 1933, and to propose changes that will be presented to the Alumni for their approval at the annual meeting to be held next year. A Committee of the Board is working on the amendments. After these amendments have been reviewed by the Board, they will be published in detail in The Quarterly. Some of the proposed changes are as follows:

1. Deletion of the word "Teachers" wherever it appears in the official name of the College.
2. Amendments that will permit the time and place of the annual meeting to be changed to make it possible for more members of the Association to be present at the annual business meeting.
3. Increase in the number of members of the Board of Directors, thus permitting a wider representation of the Alumni, both as to their time of graduation and as to their geographical distribution.
4. Provisions for greater flexibility in regard to the amount of the annual dues.

The Board of Directors will be greatly assisted if members of the Alumni write to the President, expressing their approval or disapproval of the proposed changes.

Copies of the present By-Laws of the Alumni Association are available, and may be secured by writing to Boyd H. Buckingham, Director of Public Relations.

This issue of the Quarterly is affectionately dedicated to the memory of Dean Emeritus William Boyd Sutliff.

FIRST FACULTY CONVOCATION

COLLEGE GROWTH AND ITS PROBLEMS

SEPTEMBER, 1962

We have just welcomed 18 new members of the faculty for the 1962-1963 college year. With the 109 who returned from last year, we now have a professional family of 127 members. This is one of the evidences of the growth of our College.

A few statistics may serve to emphasize this growth in terms of the number of faculty members, the number of students, and the number of dollars in the college budget.

In 1952 there were 59 faculty members; five years later, 60 members; and today, 1962, there are 127 faculty members. Ten years ago, there were 771 students; five years ago, 1187, and today more than 2,000 students will begin coming to the campus. The budget figures, including state subsidies and local fees collected directly from the students, show a similar growth. In 1952, the budget was $720,000; five years later, it was $1,062,000; and this year, 1962, our budget will exceed $2,000,000. Statistically, this college is a growing institution.

Suppose we look at the growth and faculty salary during this same ten-year period. Selecting three faculty members at random we find the salaries as follows:

	1952	1957	1962
Assistant Professor	$4,800	$6,300	$8,000
Associate Professor	4,900	6,700	8,250
Professor	5,000	6,900	9,300

Since these faculty members were selected at random, it is possible that they may not be typical or average. It is interesting, however, to note that the lowest increase in salary rank was 66-2/3%, and the average increase in these ten years was 74%, while the highest increase in any rank was 86% over the ten-year period.

Administrative Reorganization

The President of the College is somewhat startled to note that ten years ago we had a relatively small administrative group, which did not include the heads of the departments.

There was a president, three deans, and a director of business education. Since that time, the director of elementary education, secondary education, and special education have become a part of the instructional cabinet of the President, and the academic council consisting of ten department heads, reflect the general growth in administrative positions. There was added a director of admissions a director of public relations, and director of athletics.

Communication and Orientation

Orientation of students, faculty, and administrative reorganization are perennial problems of pulsating numbers. We try to compensate in many ways.

An organization grows and becomes more complex, its lines of communication are stretched and strained. To convey an idea becomes a major project sometimes. To accept and act upon an idea may become a year's effort. The Student Handbook, the Faculty Handbook, the Student Teaching Manual, and weekly student assemblies—all are efforts to meet this need. This, however, is a vital aspect of our organization, and it must be constantly worked upon and improved. Policy decisions must be disseminated quickly and widely. Discussion must be encouraged and misunderstanding dissipated. Rumors should have no place among the ranks of the educated. Confidence in each other will help communications.

Curriculum Growth

Numbers do not reflect the change in function and offerings of our College. It is necessary to go back only five years to 1957 to survey the beginning of the new programs of instruction. A graduate program was begun leading to the degree of the Master of Education in the field of business education, elementary education, special education for the mentally retarded and speech correctionist, with approval in the fields of English and Social Studies pending; the inauguration of the first separate undergraduate division of special education for the mentally retarded and speech correctionists in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and more recently the approval of an arts and science program leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree. Out of 119 faculty members of last year, 53 held one or more liberal arts degrees and 35 have a total of 170 years of teaching experience in liberal arts colleges.

These have not grown overnight. We have reached the present stage of development because interminable hours have been spent by the administration and the faculty. No group has worked more diligently over the past decade than the Graduate Council—meeting regularly, keeping extensive minutes and changing the graduate programs as necessity demanded. Many other similar hard-working faculty groups could be cited if the time and space permitted.

In the last decade, the library accessions have doubled, and the staff has been increased 250%; that is, from two to five librarians. We now have a staff of two faculty and a secretary in the Audio-Visual Library. It has taken hours and hours of labor to prepare book lists, to process the orders and to secure the necessary equipment to house ones purchased before they could be put into use.

In the last half decade construction has been completed in the form of dining room, one men's dormitory, and an extension to the heating plant, while more than $5,000,000 have been appropriated for the construction of two women's dormitories, a second men's dormitory, and an auditorium to house 2,000.

How was this accomplished? Only by extra hours of hard work by the administration and faculty staff supported by non-instructional personnel. It is not often that those who plan a building can look forward to the day when they can see it put into use. Yet, many of us have this opportunity today. This is one of the great and rewarding experiences of being a part of a growing college.

PRESIDENT ANDRUSS SPEAKS AT SHIPPENSBURG

"To understand 'The Struggle for Survival' in our world, we must understand that two economic systems—American and Russian—are pitted against one another to prove which provides the higher standard of living," declared Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the Bloomsburg State College, in an address to graduating seniors at the Summer Session Commencement at Shippensburg State College on August 2.

"Economic productivity in terms of meat and milk has stalled Russia's missile program. New nations view the United States and Russia in terms of which of the two can enable the new nations to raise their standards of living."

"Unless we continue to out-produce other nations, the American Free Enterprise System will be superseded by another system."

"Do Americans understand their own economic system in its entirety? Or do they merely understand the segment that gives them wages or salaries? Or interest on savings? Or dividends on investments? Or rent on properties? How can we defend a system which we do not understand?"

Pennsylvania high school graduates in 1964 will be required to have 36 class hours of instruction in Economics. But schools, by offering Economics, cannot do the job alone. Newspaper, radio television, and columnists must awaken America. Florida and Georgia require a study of Communism in their schools expecting comparisons to favor our American economic system. Pennsylvania, however, will teach the American Free Enterprise System and show Russia's shortcomings by comparison."

Dr. Andruss emphasized some of the principles and problems involved in "The Struggle for Survival." Other aspects of this struggle will provide the basis for the keynote address to be delivered by Dr. Andruss at the annual meeting of the Southern Business Education Association at the Buena Vista Hotel in Biloxi, Miss., on November 3. Business teachers have shown considerable interest in some of the ramifications related to the teaching of Economics to all business students and to all other students who may be required to study Economics. Some Southern states, including Georgia and Florida, require courses which are designated as "Communism" or "Americanism and Communism" in an effort to help students arrive at a better understanding of the democratic, free-enterprise system as it exists in the United States of America.

B. A. PROGRAM APPROVED

Bloomsburg State College has been approved by the State Council of Education, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to offer programs of studies leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree in the Humanities, the Social Sciences, and the Natural Sciences, according to an announcement made by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President of the College.

President Andruss received word of the approval recently from Dr. Harold F. Alderfer, Secretary of the State Council of Education, that the approval of Bloomsburg's application to grant the Bachelor of Arts degree was granted at the regular meeting of the State Council on May 23. The approval also authorized Bloomsburg to begin the new programs in the Fall of 1962.

Courses, leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree in the fields approved by the State Council, will probably be offered at Bloomsburg at the beginning of the semester in September, 1963. In the meantime, the College will complete all arrangements necessary to implement the new program. The interim will also provide ample opportunity for high school students to make a thorough study of the programs to be offered by Bloomsburg and to complete their applications for admission in September, 1963.

Since 1927, Bloomsburg State College (then Bloomsburg State Teachers College) has been authorized to grant the Bachelor of Science degree in Education. In June, 1960, the State Council authorized the College to grant the Master of Education degree in Elementary Education and in Business Education. Several months ago, permission was also received by Bloomsburg to grant the Master's degree in Special Education for the Mentally Retarded and in Speech Correction; applications are now on file with the State Council, seeking approval to grant the Master's degree in both English and the Social Studies.

Bloomsburg State College is fully accredited by regional and national agencies including National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the Pennsylvania State Council of Education. The College also holds membership in professional associations including the American Council on Education, the National Association for Business Teacher Education, and the National Office Management Association.

The application for permission to grant the Bachelor of Arts degree was prepared by a faculty committee and approved by President Harvey A. Andruss and the Board of Trustees prior to consideration and approval by the State Council. The faculty committee consisted of the Chairman, C. Stuart Edwards, Director of the Division of Secondary Education; John A. Hoch, Dean of Instruction, Dr. C. C. Seronsy, Chairman, Department of Communications; Howard F. Fenstermaker, Chairman, Department of Foreign Languages; Dr. John Serff, Chairman, Department of Social Studies; James R. Leitzel, Chairman, Department of Mathematics; Dr. Robert Jordan, Chairman, Department of Science; Dr. Bruce E. Adams, Chairman, Department of Geography.

Ninety-two members of the graduating class at the commencement exercises held at Northwest Joint High School Luzerne County, were told Monday evening, June 11, by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss that if our system of free enterprise is to continue then Americans themselves must understand it.

The local educator, president of Bloomsburg State College, speaking before a large audience at the commencement exercises asserted "the world today seems to consider the standard of living as a measure of success in comparing the American and Russian systems.

HEATING PLANT ENLARGED

Work is progressing on the addition to the heating plant of the Bloomsburg State College which will provide for the contemplated expansion program projected to 1970 with a student population of 5,000. New construction which is already approved, in process, or on the drawing boards will cost more than $5,000,000.

This includes a substation to provide more electric power, the extension to the heating plant, and construction of utility lines necessary for all future buildings on the present campus at a cost of $900,000.

Two dormitories to accommodate five hundred women students costing approximately $2,000,000, are to be bid on this year with occupancy expected in September, 1964. Architects have been appointed to prepare plans for a dormitory to accommodate 200 to 300 men at a cost of more than $1,000,000, and an auditorium to seat 2,000 (with a little theatre to seat 200) at a total cost of $1,750,000. To keep pace with the increase in enrollment and the extension of curriculum offerings, more than $50,000 has been appropriated to plan a library, seating 500 readers and providing shelving for 200,000 volumes.

Herbert H. Reichard, associate professor of physical science, at Bloomsburg State College, attended the June Conference for Institute Directors and Staff of the Physical Science Study Commission. The conference was held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and was conducted by Educational Services, Inc.

Professor Reichard attended the conference at the invitation of the Physical Science Study Committee which consists of university teachers and secondary school physics teachers. The committee undertook, in 1956, the task of developing an improved physics course for secondary schools.

Summer Concert And Lecture Series

Mary Evelyn Bruce, soprano, who toured the United States as soloist with the Robert Shaw Chorale and appeared recently as a soloist with the National Orchestral Association in Carnegie Hall, was featured in the Summer Concert and Lecture Series at Bloomsburg State College on August 1.

Miss Bruce acquired a fine musical background at Radford College, Virginia and at Westminster College. She holds both the Bachelor of Arts and Master of Music degrees. In addition to touring with the Robert Shaw Chorale, she toured the nation with the Columbus Boys Choir, singing the role of the Mother in "Amahl and the Night Visitors." She has also appeared with the Arundel Opera Company in Kennebunkport, Me., with the Greenwich Music School Opera Workshop, and the American Concert Choir.

Miss Bruce headed the Music Department at Blacksburg High School, Virginia, before making her permanent residence in New York City where she studied voice with Winifred Cecil.

Surya Kumari, India's only film star to become an internationally-acclaimed actress, was the featured artist in the Summer Concert and Lecture Series at Bloomsburg State College on Wednesday, July 11.

Miss Kumari's program "The Spirit of India in Song, Dance and Drama" was presented in four parts. In her discussion of song and dance, she gave a brief description of different styles of Indian dancing and singing followed by a demonstration in each style. Each gesture in Indian dance, according to Miss Kumari, has a quiet specific meaning. With this in mind, she performed in the language of gesture to poems in English by Rabindranath Tagore and Amar Khayyan as well as by authors more familiar to western audiences. Her folk songs and dances were representative of Northern and Southern India as well as other parts of the world. She dramatized some of the stories of Tagore's "King of Dark Chamber."

Dr. Dorris Lee, author, consultant, teacher and lecturer, presented the fifth in a series of nine programs in the Summer Concert and Lecture Series when she visited the campus of Bloomsburg State College on July 26. Dr. Lee's lecture emphasized suggestions for "Developing Our Youth More Effectively."

Prior to that, she taught at Washington State University for several years. She has also directed workshops in Portland, Oregon and the University of Hawaii, has worked as a Studies Staff Writer and Consultant in Education for the 1960 White House Conference for Children and Youth, and has worked on the project in instruction, sponsored by the National Education Association, particularly the Status Study. She has also been a member of the Summer Sessions faculties of the University of Utah, the University of Alaska, Stanford University, and Montana State College.

Dr. Lee earned the Bachelor of Arts degree at Occidental College, California, and both the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees from Teachers College, Columbia University. She is the co-author of 4 books, "The Child and His Curriculum," "The Child and His Development," "Learning to Read Through Experience," and "Spelling Today." She has also written numerous articles which have been published in professional journals.

ALLOCATION INCREASED

The General State Authority approved recently a $400,000 increase in its $800,000 allocation for the construction of a men's dormitory at Bloomsburg State College.

The authority said it believes it would be more economical to construct a high-rise dormitory to accommodate at least 300 students rather than to provide a 200-man dormitory as originally intended.

The agency said that the college's increased enrollment expectations—from 3,000 to 4,800—require the new dormitory to be constructed.

The new dormitory will be built on the site now occupied by old North Hall, which originally was constructed to accommodate seventy-two students.

For the past two years student occupancy has been discontinued there and the building has been used for offices by faculty members.

Construction of the dormitory also will require removal of an old landmark on the campus, known as the "potato cellar."

Years ago the "mound," as it has become known to present-day students, was a storage place for hundreds of bushels of potatoes which were exchanged by students for tuition fees.

With 300 students occupying the new dormitory the on-campus male population at the college will be increased to 500. The other 200 students are presently accommodated in new North Hall.

Marriage vows were exchanged recently in Clark's Grove EUB Church by Miss Karen Gay Schuck, daughter of Wilfred Schuck, Paxinos, R. D. 1, and Robert Daniel Schankweiler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O. Schankweiler, Shamokin. The bride graduated from Reading Hospital School of Nursing and was employed at Geisinger Medical Center. The bridegroom graduated from BSC and is a business teacher at Lower Daughin Joint High School, Hummelstown. Mr. and Mrs. Schankweiler are now living at 20 West Main street, Hummelstown.

From time to time in the summer we have been devoting columns to sports schedules of varsity teams at the "friendly college on the hill."

Individual columns have been given to football, basketball, track and wrestling. Today these are the big sports on the hill.

They are the ones which draw the crowds or in which success in recent years, such as in track, is starting to win back student interest and general fan interest.

You rate sports today on what they are, not what they once were or what they may become.

There is the possibility, even probability that some of the big ones today will lost status or that if they do hold rank will be joined by others that now carry the handle of "minor."

Baseball

For years one of the big sports on the hill was baseball. They played a great deal of it and they drew as many folks from the town and vicinity as from the campus.

Baseball on the hill, if you look back, never regained varsity status after World War I. In the years that followed there were some good games and some good crowds but compared with what they used to be they didn't rate.

It was in the post War I, too, when Bloomsburg had some of its finest diamond talent. In the thirties, both Danny Litwhiler, now in the NAIA baseball hall of fame, and the late Bernard (Kafchinski) Cobb were performing on the hill. And there were some classy ball games.

For a long time admission to the games has been free but few show up. During the past season some of the boys said the student attendance was better.

writing or calling Dr. Robert C. Miller, Director of Graduate Studies, Bloomsburg State College.

One thing in favor of building that interest is that the schedule makers are giving it more attention. They are taking the situation as it is and making the schedule accordingly.

It must be recognized that in the years when baseball was king of sports on the hill the term extended into June. There were at least two more weeks, more likely three in which to play then. The commencement was in the early part of June. Now it is in May and usually before Memorial Day. Then the concluding game of the year was Alumni Day—in fact it was the sports feature of the graduate festivities—but now the curtain rings down about two weeks before commencement. The schedule for next year closes on May 15.

There are ten dates on this schedule and it is likely that means more than 10 games for the Colleges are becoming practical. When they meet they often play double headers and that is likely to be the program followed next spring.

The schedule will open in early April. It is sure to be marked by rainouts. So if they throw in about 3 to 4 twin bills to make up for cancellations due to cold and rain they'll probably come out with 10 games on the books. This year they did even better in games played, participating in a dozen and posting a 7-5 record. That was exceptionally good when you recall the schedule had to be broken off in the middle because of a late Easter. Now the break comes near the start.

Here's the list for Bob Zeigler's boys in '63: April 5, Kutztown; 18, at Lock Haven; 24, at East Stroudsburg; 27, Shippensburg; 30, Mansfield; May 2, at Millersville; 4, Lock Haven 7, East Stroudsburg; 9, at Mansfield; 15, at Kutztown.

Swimming

We have a goal for '62-'63 in swimming. That is to grab off at least 2 matches and to aim considerably higher. This is a new sport but it is winning attention and the past season was marked by the first victory. Eli McLaughlin's splashers won from Morgan State at Baltimore.

This is one of those sports that it takes time to build. It can be done. We did it in wrestling and in a short period, too. Here's the swim layout: January 5, at Howard; 9, Millersville; 19, at Lycoming; 31, at East Stroudsburg; February 2, Lock Haven; 15, Morgan State; 20, at Lock Haven; 23, Lycoming; March 9, state meet.

Welcome Back

Last year they got around to reestablishing tennis as a varsity sport. The debut was rough, as expected. This is a sport in which the Huskies once held their own and we are sure that they will battle their way back to this status. Craig Himes is coach. The schedule has 8 matches. They are: April 5, Kutztown; 20, Shippensburg; 24, Millersburg; 29, at East Stroudsburg; May 2, at Millersville; 4, at Shippensburg; 15, at Kutztown.

Golf

In years on the program golf rates about with swimming. It's been on a little longer and it is a little more firmly established. We haven't come to the point where we have figured in any state meets but that is the constant objective of the linksmen directed by Coach Martin Satz.

Here is the schedule for next spring: April 5, East Stroudsburg; 20, at Shippensburg; 26, Shippensburg; 30, at Mansfield; May 2, Lycoming and Mansfield; 6, at Lock Haven; May 9, King's; May 13, state meet at West Chester.

The 1961-62 term at BSC is over and the summer session has started. Life moves along at a brisk pace.

One of the phases of collegiate life is athletics and in order to keep abreast of the times it is necessary for the faculty managers of sports to schedule early. The day when you started to schedule games a couple of weeks before the season started and then filled in as it progressed went out with the horse and rig.

Football

There came to the desk the other day the complete sports schedule of the Huskies for the 1962-63 term. Anyway, it is just about complete. The only omission we saw on the last was an opponent to meet in basketball on Tuesday, January 8. We trust one can be found before that date.

Since football is the first sport on the list in the College year we paid most attention to the grid schedule. It is eight games, as last year, and in addition the Huskies will go to Bucknell for a scrimmage on Saturday, September 15. And if they should win the eastern title, which doesn't seem likely unless they get a whale of a lot of capable line material to augment that which is held over, they will clash with the western crown bearer on Saturday, November 17.

Changes

There are a couple of changes in the schedule and the card is moved around considerably. For example, Lock Haven, one of our leading rivals, will be here on Saturday, September 22, to open the regular '62 campaign.

Shippensburg's Red Raiders are off the list. The Raiders belong to the western conference and must shift their assignments so they will meet more of their foes in that branch.

We made a shift for the same reason. In addition to dropping Shippensburg we have also severed gridiron relations with Cortland, N. Y., Teachers. The newcomers on the list this year are Millersville and Kutztown. We've played them both before, Millersville as recently as a couple of years back. Kutztown has been off the list longer. That game, which will be here, will return Bud Hileman to the campus in the garb of an enemy. Bud left a couple of years back, transferring from a job as capable line coach to the job of head mentor of the Golden Avalanche. He has been building steadily.

It was only a matter of time until the relations with Cortland would end. Geography was the reason. This is a fine school and it was a fine opponent. But the fans of the school in the Empire State never got excited about the Bloomsburg game and there wasn't any great interest among the Husky cohorts when Cortland came to town. The schools were just too far apart to arouse interest that brings color and crowds.

Last year at Cortland there were a dozen Bloomsburg fans on hand and most of those were grads teaching in that area. There are Saturday classes on the hill so students couldn't get away and we doubt if they would have made the long trek if the time had been available. In addition it was one of those overnight treks for the gridders, and a $1,000 bill. We don't draw at the gate sufficient to be able to take care of bills of that size without the treasury giving off a loud "ouch."

The Layout

Here is the schedule: September 22, Lock Haven; 29, Mansfield; October 6, at King's, night; 12 at West Chester, night; 20, Millersville, homecoming; 27, at Cheyney; November 2, Kingston; 10, at East Stroudsburg.

In this period of shifting around so that you can get the required conference games on the list it is difficult to come up with a schedule that has a team playing at home or away on alternate weekends.

We haven't achieved that this year but with regard to alternating between the home environment and the road this layout is the best in several campaigns.

After two at home there are two on the road and then the last half of the schedule alternates. This was made possible by returning to Cheyney, where we played last year, for the 1962 encounter.

There are now six conference games on the last. No school has more, for that is the limit. There are 14 SC's, seven in each branch.

That doesn't give a school much chance to add traditional or close at home rivals; at least that is the situation if you stay on an eight game card.

The only TC on the list not in the eastern branch is Loek Haven, a rival of many years standing and always a drawing card.

The only school still on the card that is not an SC is King's. The Monarchs have been on the Husky list almost continuously from the time they started football. They have taken some pushings around but they have never folded and stolen away. They come back for more and it is a certainty that they will be giving us considerable trouble in the years ahead. This is a good rivalry. The schools are located in the same neighborhood and King's, further, is in the heart of an area from which Bloomsburg draws a substantial number of its students.

We are sure Bloomsburg will keep King's on the list. Good scheduling so dictates.

The Jaycees

The jaycee program, for which the Husky operatives are usually frosh, calls for 5 contests. That is about par for the course. There is one night game on the list, that at Bucknell on a Wednesday evening.

In accordance with the custom that has been established, the jayvees will open at Stevens Trade, Lancaster. The game is Thursday, October 4. Then will come a visit to Bucknell and a game at East Stroudsburg, the latter on Friday, October 19. The understudies will finish off with two home games, one with Shippensburg on October 25, a Thursday, and the other with Susquehanna, October 29, a Monday. That's the first football we have engaged in with the Crusaders of Selinsgrove in quite a spell. It could be the opening wedge in establishing varsity competition.

LITWHILER HONORED

Danny Litwhiler, a member of the Class of 1938, Bloomsburg State College and probably the most outstanding athlete in the history of the institution, was named to the Hall of Fame of the National Association of Interscholastic Athletics at a dinner in St. Joseph, Missouri. In addition to Litwhiler, the College was represented by Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President.

A graduate from the high school of Ringtown, Pa., Litwhiler began his college career at Bloomsburg in the Fall of 1934. His high school principal, in recommending him for college, wrote, "He is a young man of sterling character, good family, steady habits, and honest and conscientious in the performance of every duty. He is a Christian gentleman and I do not know of anything which might be detrimental to the splendid character which he reflects in every respect. He is not subject to any of the many vices like drinking, smoking, gambling, swearing so common to young people today." This comment, according to President Andruss who knew Litwhiler, during the latter's four years at Bloomsburg, could have been repeated when Danny completed his college career in 1938.

During his years at Ringtown high school, Litwhiler assisted in coaching football, baseball and basketball. An exemplary student at Bloomsburg, he was active in in football both as a player and as a manager, was a member of the basketball team for one year, and won letters and other awards for four years of outstanding participation in baseball. He was certified to teach in Social Studies, English and Science, and taught those subjects in high schools in both Louisiana and Pennsylvania.

In the Spring of 1935, Bloomsburg played 12 baseball games without a single defeat, boosting the number of consecutive victories to an even 20. In the Spring of 1936, in 57 times at bat, Litwhiler hit .450. The highlights of the 1938 season included a 10-9 victory over the University of Pennsylvania and a 12-6 victory over Western Maryland.

Litwhiler played for the Wilkes-Barre Barons after he left Bloomsburg. In the early 1940's, he joined the Philadelphia Phillies during a Labor Day double header, and played as a regular during the rest of the season. In the Spring of the next year, he went South with the Phillies, beat the veteran Chuck Klein for the right field position which he held for a number of years. During his tenure with the Phillies, Danny set a record of playing every game of a complete season without making a fielding error. He was also the only player in the National League to hit at least one home run in every National League ball park. He went from the Phillies to the St. Louis Cardinals just prior to World War II, and participated in several World Series games against the Yankees. Following several years of military service with the United States Army, Litwhiler joined the Boston Braves (now the Milwaukee Braves) and was later traded to the Cincinnati Reds where he ended his career as a player. Shortly after he terminated his relationship with the Reds, he began his career as a college baseball coach in Florida. He is now baseball coach at Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida, where his teams have won championships for a number of years.

For a number of years while Danny was playing with the Philadelphia Phillies, he coached basketball at Ringtown high school. In recent years, he has played in the Old Timers Game, featuring the National League versus the American League, during spring training in Florida. During the game this year, he was the outstanding hitter of either of the two teams.

At the dinner at St. Joseph Litwhiler received an appropriate award indicating his election to the NAIA Baseball Hall of Fame "For Noteworthy Achievement in Baseball."

PHILADELPHIA ALUMNI

The annual dinner meeting of the Philadelphia Alumni, Bloomsburg State College, was held April 24th at McAllisters, with forty-seven in attendance. We were honored with the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fenstermaker and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Buckingham.

Robert Rowland, our able toastmaster with his sense of humor, kept the evening going at a lively pace. Mr. Buckingham presented a film covering activities at the school from 1934 to present time. It was in sharp contrast to events of the 1912's, 1916's, etc. classes, but times have changed and progress is inevitable.

It is good to gather yearly not only to reminisce, but to be kept informed of the progress year by year.

Bloomsburg needs our help and it is hard work for the few who gather the second Saturday of each month October to May inclusive at Gimbel's Club Women's Center 12:30 for lunch.

Each year we give a worthy student a $50 scholarship. We would like to give more so all Alumni who read the article gather round.

The following were present: Dr. and Mrs. Howard Fenstermaker, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Buckingham, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Hart, Mrs. Lillie Irish, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rowland, Mrs. Charlotte Coulston, Mrs. Mary Burke, Mrs. Helen Shaffer, Miss Margaret Collins, Mr. and Mrs. William Swinehart, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Menapace, Mrs. Dorothy Gibson, Miss Irene Hartman, Mrs. Ruth Hardin, Miss Kathryn M. Spence, Mrs. Ruth Garner, Mr. and Mrs. Commodore Rarieh, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Minner, Miss Geraldine Minner, Mrs. Sadie Mayernick, Mrs. Orval Palsgrove, Mr. and Mrs. John Linner, Mrs. Clara LeMin, Mrs. Florence Singley, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boatman, Mrs. E. A. Shelly, Miss Esther Dagnell, Miss Jean Penman, Mrs. Marjorie Penman, Mrs. Ada Westfield, Mrs. Catherine Evans, Mrs. Vernon Hill, Miss Florence Doherty, Mrs. Emily Gledhill, Mrs. Louella Sinquett, Mrs. Betty Roselle.

WILLIAM BRILL, 1855-1952

William Brill was born in Pottsville, Penna., on February 23, 1855, the eldest child of Jacob and Caroline Schumacher Brill, both of whom had been born in Germany. His father died when William was a mere lad and his mother remarried and added four Manhart to her three Brill children.

In the late 1870's he taught several years in the public schools of Shamokin, Penna., and there met his future wife, the daughter of Rev. Jacob Snyder McMurray, a distinguished Methodist minister.

After preparatory study at Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, now Lycoming College, he entered Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., from which he was graduated with honor and membership in Phi Beta Kappa fraternity in 1886. He had helped defray college expenses by serving as caterer for his social fraternity, Psi Upsilon. Three years later he refused an automatic Master of Arts degree, believing that the degree should be earned by more than competent performance in one's chosen vocation.

Mr. Brill joined the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Church the year of his graduation from college and served successive pastorates in Port Matilda, Pine Grove Mills, Birmingham, East Tyrone, Mount Union, Burnham, Altoona, Newberry (Williamsport), Shickshinny, Sunbury and Danville. In 1909 he left the active ministry and returned to teaching. For two years he taught classical languages in Bloomsburg High School, then transferred to the then Normal School as teacher of Social Studies; there he remained until he reached the age of compulsory retirement in 1925. He had but one final examination still to give when he was stricken critically ill and removed to the Bloomsburg Hospital, where he died June 8, 1925.

On September 1, 1886, Mr. Brill was married to Lillie Gregg McMurray, who survived him by four years. The union produced four sons and one daughter: Jacob McMurray, who died in the battle of the Argonne Forest, October 4, 1918; Francis Asbury, a merchant in Sunbury until his death on December 17, 1949; Clinton Bowen Fisk, president of the Brill Engineering Corporation, of New York City; William Gregg, who died August 28, 1956; and Julia Gregg, a retired professor living in State College, Pa. The three younger children all graduated from the Bloomsburg Normal: Julia in 1910, Fisk in 1912 and William in 1916.

Professor Brill was extremely proud of the fact that three of his sons served in France during World War I, the two who survived both returning with commissions. Had he lived to see World War II he would have been equally proud that the two served again: Fisk at Engineering Headquarters of the Ninth Army and William at Air Force Headquarters in Washington, D. C., until a series of strokes compelled his retirement, as totally disabled, in 1943 with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Fisk attained a full colonelcy and continued in the active reserve until compulsory retirement at the age of sixty.

From 1910 to 1925 Professor Brill was the greatly beloved teacher of the Susannah Wesley Bible class of the Methodist Church of Bloomsburg, which included practically all the women not otherwise employed in the Sabbath School.

TO VOTE ON PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE
BY-LAWS

ALUMNI BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEET

Your Board of Directors had a meeting Saturday, August 4, in the College Commons. Two new members, William Bitner and Millard Ludwig, sat with the Board for the first time.

The principal item of business was the consideration of changes in the by-laws of the Alumni Association. Elsewhere in this issue of the Quaterly are printed those parts of the By-Laws which the Board has recommended to be changed. They are printed as amended. These amendments must be approved at a meeting of the Alumni Association. Such a meeting will be called during the college year, and all members of the Association will be given due notice as to the time and place. There must be an interval of three months following publication in the Quaterly.

Some of the amendments merely omit the word "Teachers" from the name of the College, to conform with the present name as set by law.

Another amendment provides for an increase in the membership of the Board from nine to fifteen. It is felt that this will provide for better representation of the Alumni.

Another amendment deletes the exact time of the General Meeting, making it possible to hold the meeting during the afternoon of Alumni Day, instead of the morning.

Perhaps the most important one of the amendments is the addition of Article 12. There have been some problems arising from the McNinch fund, in which the Alumni Association received over $100,000 from the estate of the late Miss Mary McNinch. The Department of Internal Revenue has maintained that the Charter and By-Laws of the Association do not establish the fact that the Association is a non-profit corporation. One of the stipulations handed down by the Department has made necessary the addition of Article XII. Otherwise the Association will be obliged to pay a tax of about $26,000 to the Federal Government. The members of the Board feel that every effort should be made to avoid the payment of the tax, as many more students will be able to receive necessary financial aid thereby.

Another matter which has caused the Board much concern is the present inactivity of many of the local branches. Some of the branches have not met for several years. Officers of these branches are urged to put on a meeting at an early date. If possible, meetings should be held before April 1; any time after that would be too close to Alumni Day in May.

 Reunion Classes! Start now to plan for your reunion in May!

HOW MUCH OF COLLEGE COSTS SHOULD STUDENTS PAY?

QUESTIONS

Among the questions which are being asked in public higher education today are these:

- 1—Where will the money come from?
- 2—How much of the total cost of education shall be paid by State Appropriations, Alumni Gifts, Foundation Grants, or earmarked subsidies from Churches or the Federal Government?
- 3—How much shall students be required to pay in the form of tuition and fees and/or housing costs (board, room and laundry)?

HIGHER EDUCATION IN PENNSYLVANIA

When half of the students of college age (18 to 21 years) are attending college in New York and California, why are only about 30% attending in Pennsylvania, whereas the National average is about 40%? In those states, where more than 30% of college age youth are attending institutions of higher education, a low-tuition policy exists.

If voters are to exercise their responsibility as citizens in a democracy, the best way to get ahead of Russia is to educate more American citizens to understand that free people cannot govern themselves out of ignorance. The low-tuition policy recognizes that all young people should have an equal opportunity for education according to their ability. Education is a social responsibility and not a personal or private privilege depending on "papa's pocketbook."

STATE SUPPORT AND STUDENT FEES IN STATE COLLEGES

A study of the State Appropriations per student for the eight-year period from 1955 to 1963 shows that the per capita amount has increased from $517 to $535, or only 3%. If the student fees (instruction, maintenance and operating costs) are computed on the same basis, the student fees have increased 26%, whereas the total per capita cost has increased 15%.

The picture, however, is clarified to a greater extent if we omit the housing (board, room and laundry) costs from the picture, assuming they are self-sustaining, then the increase of the student fees from $102 to $202 represents an increase of 157% as compared with the 3% increase appropriated by the State.

During the present year the students are paying 33c out of every dollar expended in Pennsylvania State Colleges for maintenance, operation and instruction. This is more than twice the amount paid eight years ago.

Pennsylvania's tuition in the State Colleges and in Pennsylvania State University are the highest in the Nation. Even dormitory charges are $100 more in Pennsylvania than in the 106 colleges in the North Atlantic region.

THE FUTURE OF OUR COMMONWEALTH

Until Pennsylvania appropriates more money per student for higher education and lowers the tuition costs, we shall never be able to give Pennsylvania youth of college-going age the opportunity to attend college in as large numbers as in other States of our Nation. In fact, Pennsylvania students will go out of the State to attend college, and in some cases the family will go too. We cannot stand for the migration from this Commonwealth of our greatest asset—our oncoming generation.

Pennsylvania should consider the pattern suggested by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, which recommended that tuition and fees over a period of years should equal not more than 25% of the annual cost of educating young people.

This is the challenge to be faced by the January 1963 Legislature and the citizens of Pennsylvania, as viewed by

ENROLLMENT AT NEW HIGH AT COLLEGE

A total number of 2,043 students is enrolled in classes at Bloomsburg State College for the first semester of the 1962-1963 college year, according to Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President. This is an increase of nearly one hundred more than the number completing registration in September, 1961, and includes 1,976 full-time students and 67 part-time students. Of the latter group, 47 are graduate students completing requirements for the Master of Education degree, and 17 are undergraduates earning the Bachelor's degree.

Campus dormitories house 662 men and women; the number of students accommodated in homes in the Town of Bloomsburg has increased to 631, and another 683 commute from their homes each day. It is interesting to note that the number of men continues to exceed the number of women; the ratio is approximately 1,100 men and 900 women.

Since the demand for courses, offered on a part-time basis to nurses, did not reach the necessary minimum, the College is not offering this type of instruction during the first semester of the year.

The critical need for additional classroom space has already imposed limitations on continued increases in enrollment and in curricular offerings. The present classroom shortage can be relieved to some degree by beginning classes at 7:00 a. m., by adding classes from 4:00 to 5:00 p. m., or by scheduling evening classes. However, some consideration must be given to students who drive relatively long distances to and from their home each day.

It seems likely that any immediate increase in enrollment could be accomplished only by admitting a larger number of male students, who could find housing accomodations off-campus. There are now 463 men and 168 women living in the Town of Bloomsburg; however, at the present time there are spaces for 114 men and 15 women which are not occupied.

In view of the fact that housing accommodations for more than 150 students now exist in the Town of Bloomsburg and there are numerous proposals on the part of householders and private investors to provide additional accommodations, the college, while most appreciative of past cooperation, cannot encourage future planning and investment in private student housing until (1) the campus plan for the Bloomsburg Country Club area is completed; (2) the State announces its policy regarding students living in self-liquidating dormitories if they do not live in their own homes; and (3) the policy to be followed by the new administration in Harrisburg regarding appropriations for increased student enrollments which are now housed in overcrowded classrooms.

With this in mind, the Board of Trustees has passed a resolution indicating that the College can make no announcements or commitments regarding the future occupancy of additional housing space for students in or near the Town of Bloomsburg until the expansion plans have been approved by the Department of Public Instruction, the office of the Governor of the Commonwealth, and the General State Authority.

This action is intended to coordinate the private housing of students, which had made the present expansion of the College possible with the plans for self-liquidating dormitories, which will be constructed in the future, so as to prevent over investment in private housing for students in the Town of Bloomsburg.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

Robert C. Norton has been named Assistant Professor of Education at Bloomsburg State College. Mr. Norton joined the faculty of the Department of Education and Psychology when the Fall term began in September.

A native of Pittsburgh, Norton received his elementary and secondary education in the schools of Donora. He earned the Bachelor of Science degree at Slippery Rock State College and the Master of Science degree at the University of Pittsburgh. He has completed additional graduate work at the University of Pittsburgh certifying him as a Guidance Counselor and as an elementary and secondary school principal.

A veteran of two years of military service with the U. S. Army, Norton began his teaching career in the Fairview Township-Karns City High School in 1955. PARENTS' DAY

At the Freshman Parent's Day Convocation held on Sunday, October 7, 1962, in Carver Hall Auditorium at the College, President Harvey A. Andruss asked the question "What did your son or daughter bring to college?" It cannot be expected that the college in four years can change greatly the attitudes developed during the preceding eighteen years. However, the President of the College and the parents of students have one common interest, the development of youth and the hope that they will be able to teach and lead the oncoming generation.

In discussing the reasons for going to college, several common answers were given. Sometimes parents want students to have "something better than I did." Increased earning power of college graduates is another. The finding of a congenial mate is another. All of these are transcended by the hope that college graduates will be of greater service to humanity in the future.

Among the subconscious reasons never expressed in words is that a college-going student will raise the social status of the family, or the student goes because the neighbor boy or girl is going.

"What are colleges for?" is another question. This is a challenge to the educator. Colleges are for the housing, feeding, supervising of social activities of young people, but most of all for the development of the mind. Therefore, it means there must be good teaching and there must be serious study on the part of students.

Letters from home can be the cause of discouragement and contribute to the failure of college students.

Comparing one student with an older brother or sister or one or the other of the parents can also be frustrating rather than encouraging to students in difficulty.

Day Students have less time on the college campus and, therefore, cannot expect to have all the experiences of dormitory students. This is true of those who go home every week-end.

The residence of one-third of the college population in the town of Bloomsburg raises the question, "Do those who live in town have as many opportunities for growth as those who live in the dormitory?" This depends entirely on the homes in which they live. Many of them provide a better atmosphere for studying and developing of living habits than do crowded dormitories.

Parents can encourage students to attend class regularly and take part in extra-curricular activities which are so necessary for intending teachers.

With the Bloomsburg State College in a period of transition in becoming a multipurpose institution with the inauguration of Arts and Science curriculum in September, 1963, new construction, new policies and new challenges face the parents of the present student-body, the Alumni, the President, the Board of Trustees, faculty, college students, and the towns people of Bloomsburg and vicinity.

Thus did Doctor Andruss counsel the parents of some 500 or 600 Freshmen entering students, many of whom had previously had an opportunity to meet in small groups at the time their sons and daughters were completing their health examinations during the summer months.

HOME-COMING DAY

A concert by Woody Herman and his orchestra, a parade including nearly fifty floats, a football game with Millersville State College, an informal get-together, and a dance featuring the Esquires of Mansfield State College were highlights of the Thirty-Fifth Annual Homecoming scheduled on Friday and Saturday, October 19 and 20 at Bloomsburg State College.

Homecoming festivities got underway Friday, October 19, in Centennial Gymnasium with the concert by Woody Herman's nationally-famous musical aggregation.

Several thousand alumni and friends joined students and their parents in visiting new buildings and dormitories prior to the parade which got underway at 12:15 p. m. Prizes, totaling $110 were awarded by the College Council to the five best floats in the line of march; first prize was $40.

The Mauraders of Millersville State College provided the gridiron competition for Bloomsburg's Huskies at 2:00 p. m. at Mt. Olympus Stadium. Immediately following the game, refreshments were served at an informal get-together in Centennial Gymnasium. Attendance at the latter affair has grown by leaps and bounds in recent years with alumni renewing friendships with classmates and faculty members.

The day's activities were climaxed with an informal dance in Centennial Gym from 8:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m.

A joint faculty-student committee, headed by Dr. Ralph Herre, completed plans for all the events. A special committee provided colorful decorations for Main Street and the college campus as well as special decorations for several of the activities.

"What Every Woman Knows" a four-act comedy by James M. Barrie was presented by the Bloomsburg Players in Carver Auditorium, Bloomsburg State College, on Thursday and Friday, November 1 and 2.

The money is given with the provision that Shand will marry Maggie Wiley if she is still unmarried and willing to marry him when he completes his education.

Shand entered politics, and is elected to Parliament just before his wedding. He falls in love with Lady Sybil, a member of his women's committee. Maggie, in turn, reacts in a most unusual way. However, before the curtain comes down, it is revealed that John is not really in love with Lady Sybil, and his marriage with Maggie is saved when he finds that he is really in love with her.

RELIGIOUS DRAMA PRESENTED

Orlin and Irene Corey's famous drama, "The Book of Job" was presented at Bloomsburg State College on Friday, November 16 in Carver Auditorium.

This unusual drama which premiered at the Brussels World's Fair has enjoyed a successful New York run and four summer seasons at Pine Mountain State Park Amphitheatre, Pineville, Kentucky, where it is presented nightly, except Sundays, during July and August every summer.

"The Book of Job" has toured Europe and Canada, and is now touring a limited number of colleges and universities. Adapted by Orlin Corey from the Authorized Version of the King James translation of the Book of Job, the production has had a rare durability and recognition. Orlin Corey is head of the Speech and Drama Department of Centenary College and director of the Marjorie Lyons Playhouse, Shreveport.

Irene Corey, wife of producer-director Orlin Corey, has decked the players in jewel-like costumes derived from the early mosaics of Byzantine churches. She has carried the theme from feet to gloves to wigs. She has gone even farther by extending the patterns to the players' faces. It is as if the mosaics have come to life.

BUILDINGS APPROVED

An increase of more than $1,500,000 in allocations for the planning, construction and furnishing of six buildings at Bloomsburg State College has been approved by the General State Authority. One of the buildings is in the process of construction, bids for two others will be opened in the Spring of 1963. Architects have been appointed to prepare plans for two others, and funds have been approved for the planning of the sixth building.

Originally, the six buildings were estimated at $5,460,000. The revised total is now $6,894,000 plus an additional amount of approximately $796,375 for architects fees, furniture and equipment.

The original and revised allocations are as follows: Addition to Heating Plant and Utilities—$620,000, increased to $950,000; two dormitories for 500 women—$1,790,000, increased to $2,015,000; one dormitory for 300 men—$800,000, increased to $1,200,000; an auditorium to seat 2,000 people—$1,400,000 (no change); a library to seat 500 readers and provide shelving for 200,000 volumes—$850,000 increased to $1,329,000.

Of the total amount of $6,894,000, approximately half or $3,215,000 will be used to build dormitories which are self-liquidating. Housing fees, collected from students over a period of years, are used to liquidate the cost of construction and furnishings.

In addition to the funds allocated for buildings, the General State Authority has spent, in recent years, a total of $184,000 to purchase the Bloomsburg Country Club ($100,000), the Dillon home ($50,500), and the Heiss property ($23,500). Each of the three is adjacent or near to the present campus and will play a vital part in the proposed growth of the college.

The Conference was held at the Hotel Roosevelt, New York City on Thursday and Friday, November 1 and 2. The theme of the Conference, "Frontiers of Education," featured an exciting array of novel and bold forward steps that have been taken in education during recent years.

The allocation for the planning and design for a new library at the Bloomsburg State College was increased from $59,600 to $86,392 at a meeting of the General State Authority early in November. The estimated cost of the 200,000 volume library is $1,329,000.

This was among the construction projects of seven of the state colleges that had the status revised, including increases in allocations for construction, changes in estimated costs of proposed buildings and revision in the scope of previously approved projects.

Bloomsburg State College has pledged $5,000 to the Bloomsburg Hospital Building Fund to provide a room for the doctors. This pledge was made on the basis of one dollar per student during the college years of 1959, 1960 and 1961.

The college enrollment during these years was 1582, 1737 and 1935 respectively. Thus the total amount to be paid will be $5,254 or $254 more than the original pledge. A check for the final payment has been presented to the hospital by Myles Anderson, President of the Community Government Association.

During his sophomore year, he participated in 15 Conference contests and established two new Conference records — the greatest number of field goals scored in one season (139) and the highest number of points scored in one season (358). During his senior year, Dick set at least 25 new individual records which includes the following for one season: most points in one season (463); highest average per game (24.4); most field goals scored (189); most free throws attempted (133); most free throws converted (91); most minutes played (733); most minutes per game, (39.4); conference game scoring average (25.3); most points in Conference scoring (404); most conference field goals (161); most points in 1 game (45); most field goals in one game (18).

consecutive games started (69); most points scored in the Pennsylvania State College Athletic Conference in four years by one player (1144); four-year conference average (19.4 points per game).

Lloyd has a variety of interests. As a freshman he served on the Community Government Election Committee. During his sophomore year, he was elected to College Council, was a member of the Red Cross Bloodmobile Committee, was admitted to Phi Sigma Pi fraternity, was yearbook sports editor, was a member of the Varsity Club, headed the circulation committee of the college year-newspaper, and was one of two students appointed to the student-faculty athletic council. He was also named to the all-sports first team and the all-state second team.

Well liked by his class mates, Lloyd was elected president of his class in both his junior and senior years. He continued to be active in a variety of campus activities, and was one of 2 students selected by a faculty committee, for inclusion in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." He also received a Service Key, the highest honor the college awards to a student for outstanding service to the college community.

Lloyd will be a member of the faculty of the Business Education Department of the Danville High School. His duties as assistant basketball coach at the College will continue the close work association he has had, during the past two years, with Head Coach Bill Foster.

Lock Haven opportunists in football moleskins recovered a fumble on the Husky 1 and took full advantage of a punt Bloomsburg fielded in front of its own goal line to move to a 34-14 victory over the collegians at Bloomsburg on Saturday, September 22, after the two clubs, both making their 1962 debuts, had battled on even terms through the first half.

West Chester's Rams had too much for the Bloomsburg Huskies before a crowd of more than 6,000 on West Chester's Wayne Field and won with ease, 28-0.

The Rams, who were slow in getting started and through the game shellacked themselves by rule infractions, used the running of their ace, Joe Iacone, and the brilliant passing of sophomore Terry Therly to move with dispatch once the second quarter got underway.

A couple of linemen, those unsung heroes of the gridiron, stepped front and center on sunlighted Mount Olympus on Saturday, October 20, to block a couple of Millersville State punts in the first few minutes of battle and get the Huskies started in high gear and on their way to a 33-14 triumph.

The homecoming crowd of around 3,000, mostly returning alumni, saw Bloomsburg score twice in the first seven and a half minutes, battle desperately against an aroused Marauder team much of the balance of the initial half to hold a 13-6 lead and then move away once play resumed.

It was, overall, a game of attack but there were some decisive maneuvers and the visitors showed enough, especially with their variations of the old Statue of Liberty play, to keep the Huskies off balance and far from secure until the fifth touchdown which came at 5:54 of the last period.

What happened from then on was anti-climatic although it did the faithful a chance to see what the teams have coming along for varsity play in the future.

She was the daughter of the late Elisha Warwick Miller Low, M. D., and Rebecca Jane Hill Low and was born at Lime Ridge August 21, 1868.

She was a graduate of the Bloomsburg State College, then the Literary Institute, in 1886. Later she graduated from Dickinson Preparatory School and Dickinson College, being awarded a Bachelor of Arts Degree from the latter institution in 1891.

Miss Low was chairman of Center Township's Liberty Bond Drive in World War I.

She was always interested in youth and in connection with that interest and to the knowledge of few, except those who were intimately concerned, tutored a number of young people in the area that they might advance in their studies.

Miss Low and her brother, J. Vincent Low, in 1959 established the E.W.M. Low Foundation of Lime Ridge to be used for educational, recreational, religious and self improvement of the young people of that area. In connection with that program they purchased the former Lime Ridge Inn and sixteen acres of land. The building was extensively renovated. In the structure at the present there is a library, museum, and three recreation rooms for the young people.

As an added feature, starting last September, a free kindergarten was opened there, with an average attendance of nineteen. Miss Low provided the teacher.

In 1961, Miss Low was instrumental in the honoring the memory of the late Prof. D. S. Hartline with the unveiling of a marked boulder in Lime Ridge at the point where his Bloomsburg College students used to leave and get on the trolley when they were on field trips in that area. The late educator's son, Dr. Keffer Hartline, gave the address at that ceremony.

"When I started to school as a student, a long time ago, I was enrolled in the kindergarten class at Alexander Hamilton No. 19 School. Now, following 43 years service as a teacher in the Scranton School District, I am retiring from teaching service from the same building." Thus did Miss Edwina Evans, 131 S. Lincoln ave., sum up an unusual scholar-teacher setup.

"It is not too unusual for a teacher to have taught in the same building for the entire length of a teaching career. To have started to school and to be retiring from the same location, first as a student, and then as the teacher, is a bit off the usual norm.

Miss Evans resides in the home in which she was born. She is the daughter of the late William R. and Varina Peters Evans.

A member of First Welsh Baptist Church, she is also a member and past matron of Martha Washington Chapter No. 3, Order of Eastern Star, having served as its presiding officer in 1942 and 1953.

Miss Evans' entire service has not been in No. 19 School. She was assigned for some time, to Andrew Jackson No. 17, Keyser Valley. But her service has been divided between the two schools, both in West Scranton, all 43 years of it.

Miss Evans began her teaching career in 1919, when the late Dr. S. E. Weber was superintendent of schools. She has been under the administration of the three succeeding superintendents, — the late Rhys Powell, the late Dr. John H. Dyer and currently, Dr. Richard F. McNichols.

Her work in the school room level has been under the supervision of three principals, — W. W. Jenkins, Anthony Agnone and, currently, Raymond J. Lewis.

The veteran teacher could serve about one more year under the present retirement system rules. However her health has not been too robust lately.

Acting upon the advice of her doctor, friends and many of her students parents to "relax and take things easier," Miss Evans has decided to conclude formally what has been to her a most rewarding and satisfying experience. She submitted her formal request for retirement July 13.

In addition to having earned the honorable title of "a good teacher" in the hearts and minds of hundreds of students and their parents, Miss Evans is one of the "old-school" teachers who "dreaded to see the weekends roll around."

In conversations with the dedicated teacher, it was noted that she did not, at any time, refer to her young charges as "the kids."

In speaking of her warm, reciprocal relationship with her young friends over the years, Miss Evans repeatedly used the term, "my children," "our students" or the "pupils in our building."

The inference was marked and persistent, — she thinks of the youngsters in her charge as individuals, as personages. Even in generalizing, as she drew on a full storehouse of memories, there was no "grouping". Somehow, Miss Evans thinks "individually" although she speaks collectively, naturally.

The retiring teacher has taught grades one through seventh. When the elementary schools taught "departmental work," her assignment was to teach arithmetic. She is retiring as the sixth grade teacher in Hamilton School.

Miss Evans' extra-curricular activities with "her children" have been almost as time consuming and heart warming as her teaching profession. The students who have claimed Miss Evans as "my teacher" could be sure of a least six trips annually "outside the school yard."

One such annual trip would be a visit to as many of the city's important buildings and centers of interest as possible. A "must" would be a call at Scranton Fire Headquarters on Mulberry Street.

There would be at least two excursions to Nay Aug Park, with regular attention to the Everhart Museum, the zoo, and other varied points of interest in Scranton's lovely park. These park trips usually concluded with a wiener roast, and all that went with it, to the great delight of the hearts of the young out for a lark.

The Central City trips would be highlighted with a visit to Tony Harding's Diner for a snack, during which hamburgers and french fries and sodas disappeared like magic. Maybe a little removed from the Three R's, but cultivating good public relations and getting to know each other outside the confines of the classrooms.

Trips to the movies were made periodically, following careful thought, discussions and choice.

When the sixth grade class members at No. 19 School were ready to move on to the 7th grade work and requirements at West Scranton High School, a complete graduation program was presented. Presentations, class will, class prophecy, all the usual fun and fellowship of graduating from the higher levels of education were scaled to the understanding and the pleasure of the sixth graders. The entire class also went out to dinner.

Miss Evans has long played a major role in the safety programs which are so important a part of the elementary schools today. She has aided in the training and teaching of children, both inside and outside the school buildings.

She has, as do all teachers, worked with the principal and the Adult Patrol personnel in training the children to be alert in their daily journeys to and from school. No one takes greater pride in the safety achievement citations usually than does Edwina Evans, which have come to her school annually.

Now she plans to close her textbooks, put aside the report cards and the chalk and erasers, following two score and three years of devoted educational service.

As she retires, she is looking forward to the continued friendship and occasional visits to "the children." "Many of them come to see me, now and then," she stated, "and I hope they will always want to see me. I'll be glad to see them, and watch them as they move upward and outward in the future."

Mr. James Leitzel, recently selected chairman of the mathematics departments, stated that a course in advanced calculus will be offered to senior mathematics majors having the proper prerequisites beginning with the fall term.

The science department directed by chairman Robert Jordan, has added three new courses to its curriculum to be offered in September. These include: Introduction to Atomic Physics, Entomology and Radiation Biology. Eventually the department plans to include courses in history and evolution.

The English department is under the chairmanship of Dr. Cecil C. Seronsy. The main goal of the new program is to reach a balance of professors in all areas of literature and between the undergraduate and post-graduate instructors.

DR. ANDRUSS SPEAKS TO ASSOCIATION

Speaking to the business teachers of twelve states attending the Southern Business Education Association Meeting in Biloxi, Miss., Friday, November 23, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president of Bloomsburg State College, in answering the question, "Where do we go from here?", pointed out that we are engaged in a "struggle for survival."

"In international affairs, Capitalism, in competition with Communism in the field of education must prove itself to the many new nations of the world," he said. "Business teachers must prove that they can teach economics to all high school students so that the American citizen can understand what he stands for."

"Too long," Dr. Andruss said, "we have assumed that all the nations of the world understand what we are trying to do in America in relation to earning, spending, saving and investing money."

"Business Education began in private business colleges operated for profit, became a department in the public secondary schools, and now must make a contribution to the education of all high school students through acquainting them not only with private profit but with the management problems of corporations and the contribution which business as an institution is expected to make to the human welfare."

"Until American voters and investors understand their obligation to their country, their over-concern with their private pocket-books may wreck the very enterprise system which has made America great."

"Business teachers can help young people to begin to think, to read newspapers intelligently, and to evaluate the claims of politicians who wish to appeal to one group or another in the productive process, when, as a matter of fact, production is a partnership involving the producer, the consumer, the labor unions, the corporation, the tax payers, and the government."

VISITED CAMPUS

Dr. Madill Bair, Superintendent of Schools, Lexington, Massachusetts, and Dr. Albert Elsasser, Principal, Mount Herman College, Mount Herman, Massachusetts, visited the campus of Bloomsburg State College Tuesday and Wednesday, November 27 and 28. The two educators came to Pennsylvania at the request of Dr. Charles Boehm, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and also visited Kutztown State College and East Stroudsburg State College. The purpose of their visit to the Bloomsburg campus was to determine what has been done, what is being done, and what has been proposed in terms of preparing to inaugurate programs in the Arts and Sciences in 1963. During their stay in Pennsylvania, Dr. Bair and Dr. Elsasser acted as consultants rather than evaluators in order that a report can be made to the Department of Public Instruction, the State Council of Education, and the accrediting agencies. This report is not directly related to accreditation but will be available for review by the agencies involved.

Mr. Nelson A. Miller, Chairman of the Department of Music, Bloomsburg State College, attended the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Music Educators Association on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 29, 30, and December 1, in Harrisburg. For nearly 20 years, Mr. Miller has been a member of the P.M.E.A. and the Music Educators National Conference of which P.M.E.A. is the State branch.

At last year's meeting of the P.M.E.A., Mr. James Zwally, Millersville State College, who serves as the collegiate representative to the P.M.E.A., appointed Mr. Miller as one of the three Pennsylvania college music teachers to draw up a constitution, by-laws, and nominations for offices in the newly organized Pennsylvania Music in Higher Education Association. Mr. Miller's committee presented a report and recommendations at the three-day association meeting.

In addition to his membership in the State and National Music Associations, Mr. Miller is a life member of Phi Mu Alpha, national honorary music fraternity, and Phi Delta Kappa, national honorary education fraternity.

General Alumni Meeting

YOUR BOARD OF DIRECTORS AT WORK

We shall try to keep the Alumni informed of the activities of your Board of Directors, the governing body of the Alumni Association, as provided for in the charter.

The following are extracts from the meeting held Home-Coming Day, Saturday, October 20:

1. Mr. Gehrig has been busy reminding recipients of loans who have been lagging in their payments. The response has been good, with a few exceptions. The Loan Fund is a revolving fund. Money cannot be loaned to the students of today, if the students of yesterday do not keep funds flowing back into the treasury.
2. Boyd Buckingham, Business Manager, has been building up the active membership to the highest point attained to this date. The membership now is over 1600. However, considering the number of living graduates, the active membership should be well over 5000. We ask the help of Alumni in attaining this goal.
3. The Alumni Association has voted to rejoin the Council of Alumni Associations of Pennsylvania State Colleges. More will be said about this in a later issue.
4. Following the meeting, the Board met with the representatives of several of the classes that will meet in reunion next Alumni Day. There has been a trend in recent years that has been very disturbing. Many classes each year hold their reunions off campus and do not appear on the campus at all. We appeal to those responsible for reunions that they include in their program the presence of their class at the Alumni Meeting and the Alumni Luncheon. This year it is planned to have the meeting in the Commons immediately after the luncheon.
5. Many of the Branches have become inactive in recent years. Representatives of the branches will, in the near future, be invited to the campus to see what can be done to revive those branches which have not held meetings for some time.
6. If you have reactions to any of the situations mentioned above, we should be glad to hear from you. A "Letters to the Editor" page would prove very interesting and valuable.

Yours for a bigger, better, stronger Alumni Association.

Howard F. Fenstermaker
President of the Alumni Association
