BLOOMSBURG STATE COLLEGE
Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania 17815

OFFICE OF
THE PRESIDENT

To the Alumni:

The following comments are excerpted from my opening presentation on our Program Budget review, January 25, 1972.

Bloomsburg State College is making every attempt to keep abreast of meaningful changes, to develop long range plans, and to offer valid public higher educational opportunities to citizens of the Commonwealth at the lowest possible cost both to the individual and to the State. The past two years have seen a broadening of the governance process, including the development of a College Senate, further decentralization of decision-making process through strengthening school and departmental organization, more flexible approaches to curricula and programs, the close evaluation of all offerings, and the development of new instructional methods.

The College does not consider size as a meaningful objective in itself; growth in numbers is directly relative to support and to mission. Demand for admission continues to increase, but plans for the coming year do not, at this point, include expansion, in keeping with our understanding of the Governor's guidelines for State-owned institutions.

The College plans to concentrate in the current decade on serving the needs of the Commonwealth in the following specific ways: to continue to develop elementary and secondary teachers of quality, and teachers of Special Education areas for which the need remains significant; to meet some of the manpower needs of the Allied Health fields, a particular mission of this College in view of its proximity to and Cooperation with The Geisinger Medical Center; to continue, through the Arts and Sciences, the development of young men and women capable of fulfilling roles of citizenship, roles of leadership, and lives with meaning; to offer strong programs in both Business Education and Business Administration, and possibly other occupation-oriented fields, to utilize its facilities and its resources for purposes of Continuing Education so that life-long learning opportunities may be available to the people of this area; to provide within its resources, opportunities for those with ability not identifiable through traditional procedures of evaluation; and to offer graduate programs in selected areas within its resources, mission, and capabilities.

Robert Nossen

For three years players and spectators alike could usually find out where the ball was by watching B.S.C.'s big No. 47 — Bob Warner. An All-Conference back for two years, Bob has been drafted by the Denver Broncos.

Warner Is Drafted by Denver; Tucker Top Pass Receiver

For two years Bob Tucker was the only BSC alumnus in pro football. Next season he expects to have company.

Soon after Tucker became the first tight end in National Football League history to win the pass receiving title, Bob Warner became the first BSC football player to be drafted by the pros. Warner was the 13th-round pick by the Denver Broncos.

Tucker came up the hard way, spending two years in the Atlantic Coast league before catching on with the New York Giants in 1970. He had failed in previous trials with the Boston Patriots and the Philadelphia Eagles.

"The hardest thing is experience," he commented. "You have to gain the experience and I didn't have it."

Those two years gave Tucker the experience he needed, and in his first season with the Giants he caught 40 passes for 571 yards and finished fourth in the voting for NFL rookie-of-the-year honors. His 6'3" 230-pound frame helped, because a tight end also has to block big linemen and linebackers.

Warner is almost the same size as Tucker, and the BSC coach thinks he might also wind up as a tight end. "With his strength, hands and blocking ability, he would make an excellent tight end; his quickness, size, upper body strength and football instincts give him the qualities of a great outside linebacker," Sproule says.

But at Bloomsburg Warner was a running back, one of the top Penn Conference backs for three years. He played his high school football at Stroudsburg High, where he also starred in baseball. In fact, he also had an opportunity for a professional baseball career with the Houston Astros, but he held out for football.

At Bloomsburg he won first team all-conference honors in both his junior and senior years after being third in conference scoring and fifth in pass receiving during his sophomore year.

The Broncos appear to be interested in Warner as a running back, Coach Sproule points out. He says Denver is looking for a big running back and that Bob is well above the average size for running backs.

Tucker beat out San Francisco's Ted Kwalik for the pass receiving title, winding up the season with 51 catches for 674 yards.

ATTENTION—1971 GRADUATES

The August, 1971, graduates of BSC were omitted from the mailing of the 1971 Obiter because the list was not included with the mailing labels supplied to the publisher. A special mailing of Obiters to the August graduates is now underway.

Any 1971 January or May graduates who have not yet received a copy of the 1971 Obiter should advise the staff by writing to Box 219, BSC.

It should be noted that addresses for mailing are provided by the computer center, and are those addresses of record prior to graduation. In most cases the addresses are those of parents, and a check should be made with parents or at former addresses before reporting the Obiter has not been received.

ON THE COVER

Two new buildings (top photos) are nearing completion — the Field House on the Upper Campus, and the Administration building on the site of the former Dillon House. It is hoped that both will be ready for inspection by visiting Alumni on April 22.

4,100 UNDERGRADUATES ARE ENROLLED THIS SEMESTER

Over 4,100 full-time and more than 200 part-time undergraduate students completed registration for the second semester of the 1971-72 college year at Bloomsburg State College, according to Kenneth Schnure, acting Registrar.

Seniors who will student teach during this semester were registered and then meet with their supervisors prior to beginning their assignments in the various student teaching centers throughout eastern Pennsylvania.

Over 2,000 students are housed in campus residence halls and eat their meals in the Scranton Commons.

Former B.S.C. Coach Is Now Teaching Deaf Dance Group

By Karen Keinard, B.S.C. Student

Fulfillment is something we all strive for, but few of us find it in our daily work.

Dr. Peter Wisher, originator of the deaf Gallaudet College dance group that appeared at Bloomsburg State College in February is one who has found great personal satisfaction in his profession.

Originally from Frackville, Wisher coached basketball at Bloomsburg High School and later at BSC. He then moved out of the area to Penn State and the University of Maryland. He has coached basketball, gymnastics, soccer, and swimming, and he developed a sign language for frogmen while in the Navy Reserves.

Now, as Chairman of the Gallaudet College Department of Physical Education, Dr. Wisher is happy working with an all-deaf student enrollment. The curriculum at Gallaudet is basically the same as at other liberal arts colleges, so he doesn't find the situation much different from some of his past teaching and coaching experiences.

Gallaudet College is the only college in the world devoted exclusively to the education of the deaf. It has an enrollment of about 1,000 students in a 50-50 male-female ratio. There are ten sports in their athletic program which they play with all-hearing colleges.

Dr. Wisher has been around the world, and has had many career opportunities. Still he finds his greatest satisfaction at Gallaudet. "I would not trade my job for anything," he says.

What does he find at Gallaudet that keeps him there? How can he enjoy working with people who cannot hear? Wisher admits that when he was first offered the position at athletic director, he had a few reservations. However, since it was a job, and it was a change he tried it out.

There have been a few problems. When he arrived at Gallaudet they gave him a two-week course in communicating and then he was sent straight to work. It wasn't easy. He admits he got his signals crossed more than once while attempting to explain a technique.

There are other little problems that pop up now and then, too, especially during the group's travels. Getting them up in the morning is an example. What can he do when he's on the other side of a locked motel door? Knock? He has to find a maid or motel employee with a pass key.

Imagine a deaf girl walking into the ladies room at the airport just as the flight is announced. Yes, it can be a little embarrassing . . .

Dr. Wisher says that in spite of the occasional difficult situations, there is no place in the world he would rather be. "They are the kindest most humble people I have ever worked with. They appreciate what it means to be alive more than the average person. They are average people who happen to be deaf, not deaf and dumb. A deaf person is just as human as one with normal hearing, a fact that too many people refuse to recognize," he said.

ALUMNI TRIP TO LONDON PLANNED IN AUGUST

Bloomsburg alumni are invited to participate in a low-cost trip to London August 16-26.

Cost will be $319 plus 10% tax and service charge, per person for double occupancy hotel accommodations. Single occupancy is available for $60 extra.

Tour includes round trip Jet to London from Philadelphia, with meals and beverages served aloft; accommodations at the new London International hotel including continental breakfast; dinner each evening on a dine-around plan at London's best restaurants; half-day trip to Windsor Castle and a city orientation tour. All gratuities for chambermaids, bellboys and doormen are included, as are round trip transfers and luggage handling from airport to the hotel.

For further information write to Jim Nieswender, Director of Alumni Relations, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

READING CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN MID-APRIL

An outstanding array of speakers is scheduled for the Eighth Annual Reading Conference at Bloomsburg State College to be held Friday, April 14 and Saturday, April 15, 1972, according to Dr. Margaret M. Sponseller, Director.

The Friday evening banquet will feature Dr. Ira E. Aaron, Head of the Reading Department, Alumni Foundations Distinguished Professors, University of Georgia, who will speak on "Classroom Strategies and issues influencing the Goal — that all may read." At the general session on Saturday morning, Dr. Theodore L. Harris, President, International Reading Association, University of Puget Sound, will present as his subject "The Right to be a Flexible Reader."

In addition to the above two speakers, prominent educators in the reading field from the State of Pennsylvania and eastern United States will head the various group demonstrations, discussion groups, panels and workshops to be held during the two day conference. Book and material exhibits will also be featured.

Programs and registration forms are being mailed to administrators, consultants, teachers, and specialists in Catholic and public schools and colleges throughout the State of Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

COMMUNICATIONS DISORDERS FELLOWSHIP CREATED

The Department of Communication Disorders at Bloomsburg State College has created the Behavioral Sciences Institute Fellowship to be awarded to one graduate student each semester, Dr. James D. Bryden, Department Chairman announced.

The Fellowship, which is supported by a training grant from the U. S. Office of Education, will be used to send the recipient to the Children's House demonstration program of Monterey, California. Fellows will spend a full semester in the program receiving specialized training in special teaching and therapy. Behavioral Sciences Institute is pioneering in the modern application of behavior theory and principals to human problems.

The first award of the Fellowship has been made to Miss Margaret M. Turner of Muncy, daughter of Mrs. Wilbur E. Turner. Miss Turner graduated Magna Cum Laude from BSC and is beginning her graduate program in the Department. She flew to California on January 28th and returns to the Campus on May 22nd. In addition to transportation, the Fellowship will also provide tuition for six graduate credits to be earned while on the internship assignment in Children's House.

"As far as we know, this is the first fellowship program of its type in the United States," Bryden said.

WIDOW OF DR. HAAS DIES AT HERSHEY

Mrs. Miriam Rider Haas, 78, widow of Dr. Francis B. Haas, former president of Bloomsburg State Teachers College, died recently in Hershey.

Mrs. Haas was a resident of Bloomsburg from 1927 to 1939, the years her husband was president of the college.

Dr. Haas, for whom the Francis B. Haas Center for the Arts on campus was named, twice served as superintendent of the state Department of Public Instruction, under which state teachers colleges operated. He held that post from 1925-1927 under Gov. Gifford Pinchot, and following his tenure as president of BSTC, returned to it in 1939 and continued as superintendent until 1956. He served in the Department of Public Instruction from 1920 until 1956.

Mrs. Haas was a graduate of Philadelphia Normal School for Girls and a former teacher in the Philadelphia public schools.

She is survived by one son, Francis B. Haas, Jr. Harrisburg, solicitor for that city; two daughters, Mrs. James B. Hess, San Francisco, and Mrs. James K. Gailey, Harrisburg; one sister, Mrs. David Klauder, Toms River, N.J., and seven grandchildren.

Shirley Chisholm Challenges Traditions About Presidency

By Martin Gildea
B.S.C. Faculty

"Our Republic is in trouble and we can no longer sweep the pieces under the rug and hope the trouble will disappear, because this time it will not disappear," The Honorable Shirley Chisholm, first black Congresswoman in the United States and candidate for her party's nomination as President of the United States, told an overflowing, applauding crowd at Bloomsburg State College, February 14, in an address sponsored by the Black Student Association of the College.

Receiving a standing ovation when she entered the auditorium and again when she was introduced, Mrs. Chisholm explained why she, a black woman, was defying tradition by running for a position that has been dominated by white males. Her decision is her response to the confusion throughout the land that afflicts us all, she said. Moreover, it is a response to the confusion specifically among the blacks, women, chicanos and the nation's youth. Finally, she said, it is response to the greatest enemy confronting the U.S. today, "not the Viet Nam war but racism."

"Fighting Shirley," as she likes to refer to herself, then went on to say that blacks in this country have reached the tolerance level. "We are sick of tokenism. We want our just share of the American dream and we want it now. What do we black people want now? No more nor less than what every ethnic group came here for. To realize some of the hopes and to achieve some of the aspirations promised by this land of the free and home of the brave." Continuing, she said black people cannot realize why the American dream should be denied to them simply because they lack the passport of those groups who came from Europe . . . a white skin.

During the course of her talk, Mrs. Chisholm admitted her hostility toward the concept of "Brotherhood Week." "If we have a democracy, if we believe in the Judeo-Christian doctrines that we mention so much in our rhetoric, why do we need 'Brotherhood Week'? I'll tell you why. We need it to assuage the consciences of those who practice brotherhood during 'Brotherhood Week' and racism the other 51 weeks of the year. There is shame and hypocrisy in this approach," she said, and added, "this is one reason why foreign countries, into which we pour millions of dollars of aid, no longer respect us. They know we are living a lie."

In explaining why she was running for the nomination for presidency, Mrs. Chisholm characterized her candidacy as a combination of the roles of spokesman and instrument. "I am running," she said, "to speak for the brilliant blacks, women, Indians and Chicanos, so long ignored, but who now should get to operate the ship of state. For these groups realize the Republic is in danger and feel they can give the sense of direction that is needed." She also said, "I am the instrument who, with these people and on their behalf, will go to the Democratic Convention. This coalition of blacks, women, Indians and Chicanos will point out to the Convention that this is a government of the people . . . the people, not bosses. That it is government by us and for us."

Referring to past practices at presidential nominating conventions, Mrs. Chisholm said: "No one consulted the blacks when putting together a presidential ticket. The women were not consulted, either. And the Indians have not even gotten into the Convention as yet. This time," she promised, "we can go to the convention, not asking for crumbs while others are having a banquet. This America is ours! I am going to the convention to see if we can turn that convention around."

Mrs. Chisholm attacked the other presidential candidates in her party for their "Madison Avenue" approach as well as for their appeals for votes. "Now that they want votes these candidates are for women's rights, for the young, as well as for others. Where were they before? What did they do for these ignored groups in their public roles before this election year," she asked caustically.

She admitted her candidacy was not without its handicaps. "I know I am a dark horse, figuratively and literally," she quipped. The problem arises due to what she referred to as the psychological shock that afflicts people when a black woman seeks to enter the white male's domain of the presidency. "Under the U.S. Constitution, I have the right to run," she said.

In her appeal for help, Mrs. Chisholm made a special plea to women, admonishing them to participate by starting to run for political office under the slogan, "Save America's Children," adding that she needed their help in Congress "so men won't sink when I get up to talk for day care centers." She said if women could have accompanied her on trips to Appalachia and have seen the undernourished children while the political system responds to vested interest groups, they would not be content to talk a lot and then vote for the candidates promising "warmed-over" programs.

She also directed a special appeal to the young who are disenchanted with the system, and who say it should be destroyed. "I am the system," she said, "but I am patient. In the system you see its weaknesses as well as the tactics of those the system rewards," she said, "and now I am pointing out the weaknesses and using the tactics on behalf of ignored groups." She pointed out that though she is part of the system, nevertheless, she is for change and not in the traditional way. "I am a shaker-up of the system within the system."

To suggestions that she should withdraw so as not to divide votes that might go to Senators McCarthy, McGovern or Mayor Lindsay, Mrs. Chisholm said it was "always easier to ask the black one to get out." Her reply was that those three candidates all look the same. "Since I am the only unique one, why don't one of them get out?" she asked.

In the brief question and answer period Mrs. Chisholm said she favored legal and therapeutic abortion. This she said was her feeling because wherever you have women there will be abortions. Without legal abortion aid, many women will die or be maimed by "quacks." Therefore, she said, abortion should be available to any women seeking it. Those whose religions or consciences reject abortions, she said, would not be forced to have abortions. "These same people," she said, "should not dictate that their values should bind other people."

Concerning the war in Vietnam, she said as President she would "end the war forthwith." She was applauded as she answered: "We have lost too many good men in that war. We have made an error by getting into it. Let us admit it and get out."

KEN ROBERTS TO RETIRE, WAS TEACHER FOR 37 YEARS

Kenneth A. Roberts, Associate Professor, Department of Elementary Education at B.S.C., will retire during the summer of 1972, concluding 37 years in the teaching profession. He has been a member of the faculty at B.S.C. for the past 14 years and previously taught in Sullivan and Dauphin schools as well as serving as teacher-principal in Mt. Pleasant Township of Columbia County.

Born in Fort William H. Seward Haines, Alaska, Roberts attended Military Post schools throughout the United States, completing his high school education in Wiconisco, Pennsylvania. He earned his Bachelor of Science degree at BSC and his Master's degree at Bucknell University. Additional courses were completed at Penn State, Bucknell, and Duke Universities.

Before the phasing out of the campus school, Roberts supervised student teachers in Grades 5 and 6 and taught Methods courses, also serving as Assistant Principal of the school during this period. During the last year (1967) of the existence of the campus laboratory school, locally known as the "Training School", he traced the history of the training of teachers and the education of children on the campus of Bloomsburg. This encompassed a period from 1867 to 1967, a full century of teacher education. He also recorded the history of the Benjamin Franklin P.T.A., both compilations appeared as publications in the Morning Press and the BSC Alumni Quarterly. Other publications were "Soliloquy of a Slow Learner" in the PSEA Journal, and "Organization for Progress" in the Pennsylvania Elementary Principal.

Professor Roberts is currently teaching social studies in the curriculum block in the Elementary Education program. He is co-advisor to the College Chapter of the Student Pennsylvania State Education Association, acting advisor to sophomores who have elected Elementary Education as a major, advisor to graduate students, and assistant chairman for the Annual Reading Conference.

Roberts opines that he would like to occupy his time after retirement in a manner somewhat removed from teaching — such as carpentry, block or bricklaying, or possibly catching up on reading some good down-to-earth adventure novels.

Professor Roberts is married to the former Betty Vanderslice; they have three children, Jack, Terry, and Barbara (Mrs. Ray Crawford), and four grandchildren. The Roberts reside at 350 Market Street, Bloomsburg.

AUDIT RECOMMENDATIONS FOLLOWED, CASEY REPORTS

The State Auditor General's Office has reported that the BSC Foundation has followed "in an acceptable manner" the five recommendations made in last fall's audit report.

The recommendations referred to included the matter of possible conflict of interest over bank directorships; reimbursements of freshmen for an Orientation program overcharge; return to the College Trust Fund of gifts and investments received prior to December 28, 1970; and payment to the Commonwealth of charges for use of State property. Also Auditor General Robert Casey reported it had been established that the Foundation could legally receive and administer Federal grants in its own name.

The Auditor General's office at about the same time reported that an audit of the Clarion State College Foundation had found that the Clarion Foundation was being used "as a local depository or 'bank' to deposit Commonwealth funds" in violation of a state law requiring such money to be placed in banks approved by the Board of Finance. The amounts involved totalled approximately $100,000.

James Grammell, Clarion State College president said Casey's charges lacked factual details and were based primarily on the opinions of an auditing department staff member. He said Casey's conclusions hinged on interpretation of the law and that questions of legality should be placed before the State Attorney General's office. He said questions of opinions should be submitted to the State Department of Education.

The Clarion audit recommended that $70,818 be deposited immediately in approved banks; that $13,903 be returned to students from money diverted into Foundation accounts; and that an additional $13,952 be returned by the Foundation to the college for use as special funds.

ALUMNI DAY

INQUIRY INTO COLLEGE PROBLEMS IS CONCLUDED

Over ninety persons including the president of Bloomsburg State College were interviewed by the special committee looking into controversies on the college's campus.

A report released by a spokesman for the committee follows:

Duane E. Wilder, speaker for the special committee, said that the three members of the committee (Wilder of Warren, William C. Heyn of Lancaster, John L. Worrilow, Lebanon) had during three days talked with a committee of the Board of Trustees, interviewed the President, Robert J. Nossen, numerous members of the staff and faculty and heard from students, and from citizens of the Bloomsburg community.

More than 90 persons were interviewed, some of whom had asked to be heard and others who had been invited by the special committee to be interviewed.

Wilder noted that throughout the inquiry the committee received the complete cooperation of all persons with whom it talked. Appearance before the committee produced much helpful information.

The committee was most impressed, he said, in that everyone with whom the committee talked obviously had at heart a sincere concern for the future of Bloomsburg State College.

Wilder indicated that the committee will review and evaluate the information it has assembled. It may interview other persons or talk again with persons already interviewed. The committee will prepare a report to give the Board of Trustees at an early date.

COMMONWEALTH COURT DECIDES AGAINST PORTER

Deake G. Porter, ousted Bloomsburg State College Professor, lost a claim for damages and for reinstatement to the college's faculty.

In a unanimous decision handed down by Commonwealth Court at Harrisburg, the State's objection to Porter's complaint was sustained.

Porter had named as defendants in the original complaint, President Robert J. Nossen, Gerald Strauss, David H. Kurtzman, former secretary of education, and William Williams, former deputy attorney general and now a member of the BSC faculty.

The case was argued before the court by Porter, representing himself, and Barry Roth, deputy attorney general representing the state.

At that time, Roth held that Porter's preliminary complaint was "a rambling, unprecise, not understandable presentation and made it impossible to interpret an alleged cause of action."

The full seven-member court had heard the proceeding last Jan. 4.

It was the second case involving alleged violation of "due process" concerning the college which has been dismissed by Commonwealth Court.

Last December the Court in a 6-1 decision had upheld dismissal of two students.

Luptowski Missed Out In High School But He Has Made It Big At B. S. C.

By Barbara Gillott
Maroon & Gold Reporter

What happens to a 5'5" junior who is cut from his high school basketball team? In the case of Bloomsburg State College's Arthur "Artie" Luptowski, he grows up to be a 5'10" college varsity star.

Artie has been honored twice by the ECAC in recognition for his outstanding jobs on defense (13 steals against West Chester — BSC high). In addition, Artie holds the BSC record for assists in a game (18 against West Chester) and has consistently scored in the double figure column.

Luptowski was a junior at Ridley Park High School with an enrollment of approximately 500 students when it consolidated with another school district and he failed to win a varsity berth.

"Maybe I just wasn't good enough," recalled Artie, "but being cut didn't really discourage me; if anything it made me work all the harder."

Artie became a sort of basketball fanatic. He practiced hours at a time. "People got so used to seeing me practicing all the time, that when they saw me, the first thing they'd ask me is 'where's your basketball?'"

The kid with the basketball tried again his senior year in high school but once again failed to make the team. It still didn't dim his hopes of becoming a good basketball player.

The summer before entering BSC, Artie practiced diligently at what has popularly been termed 'street ball'. As Artie explains, "Street ball is just messing around with a group of kids. Half the time, the rules are flexible and so are the teams. You just play for the sake of playing. I'd usually go home to an outdoor court with lights afterwards and shoot up 'til one or two in the morning. Street ball is definitely great, though, because there isn't any pressure put on you."

Pressure became an important word to Luptowski during his freshman year at Bloom. He made the freshman team but it wasn't a decisive achievement. His name had been penciled in at the bottom of the list. Although he started in 12 of the 19 games that year, he wasn't satisfied with himself as a player or with the team's 12-7 record for the season. "I just wasn't playing as well as I wanted to, so I kept on practicing as often as I could."

Under Coach Earl Voss, Artie played on the second string of the varsity during most of his sophomore year. He takes no credit for the fact that during his prominent appearances in the last five games of the 70-71 season, the Huskies pulled out of their losing slump and went on to win five straight, finishing the season with an 11-9 record. According to Artie, "I just happened to be there. I guess you could say I was sort of a catalyst. Things started to click and we worked well."

This year, the Huskies (17-6 overall — 11-3 PC) were just nosed out for the Pennsylvania Conference championship by Cheyney State and will participate in the NAIA District 19 playoffs beginning March 6. Luptowski has been one of the more prominent varsity performers. As a playmaker, he leads the team in assists and coupled with his scoring ability and defensive maneuvers makes the Huskies "go".

Artie credits Bloomsburg State's new Coach Charles Chronister for the improvement he has shown this year.

By the way, people still ask Artie where his basketball is.

10-GAME SCHEDULE FOR 1972 GRID SEASON

For the first time in its history, BSC will have a ten-game football schedule during the 1972 football season.

In addition to the regular eastern division Pennsylvania opponents, the Huskies will be welcoming Shippensburg State of the western division back to its schedule, and will face another western opponent, California State, a series that began in 1971.

The BSC schedule will open at Shippensburg on September 9, which will be the dedication date of the new Red Raider Stadium. The final game will be as usual with East Stroudsburg on November 11. Millersville State College will be the Homecoming opponent on October 21. Three games will be played under the lights.

The 1972 schedule is as follows: Sept. 9, Shippensburg, A, 2:00; Sept. 16, Scranton, A, 2:00; Sept. 22, Lock Haven, H, 8:00; Sept. 29, Mansfield, H, 8:00; Oct. 7, California, A, 1:30; Oct. 14, West Chester, A, 7:30; Oct. 21, Millersville, H, 2:00; Oct. 28, Cheyney, A, 1:30; Nov. 4, Kutztown, H, 1:30; Nov. 11, East Stroudsburg, A, 1:30.

WINTER SPORTS TEAMS POST OUTSTANDING RECORDS

The BSC basketball and swimming teams concluded their regular schedules, both posting outstanding seasons.

Charles Chronister's cagers finished with a 17-6 overall record and a Pennsylvania Conference record of 11-3. It was the best season since the early 1960 teams of Coach Bill Foster, who later became head mentor at Rutgers University and is currently at the University of Utah.

The Huskies just missed winning the eastern division title of the Pennsylvania Conference, being nosed out by Cheyney State (12-2). Bloomsburg lost two of its last three conference games in overtime play, 90-85 to East Stroudsburg in double overtime and 70-68 to Mansfield in overtime; the latter broke a 12 game home winning streak for the Huskies.

Bloomsburg, by virtue of its fine record, has been named the No. 1 seeded team in the District 19 playoffs of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

Swimming took on a new dimension at BSC this year with the Huskies registering a 10-4 season against some outstanding competition. Coach Eli McLaughlin's charges were defeated only by the powerhouse teams of Temple U., Monmouth College, West Chester S. C., and Clarion S. C. Lack of team depth diminished Bloomsburg's chances against these strong foes as it was necessary for a number of the Maroon and Gold mermen to participate in several events.

During the course of the season, 13 team records and 11 pool records (home and away) were established — most of them during the latter part of the season. This steady improvement speaks well for the future of the sport.

Bloomsburg will compete in the Pennsylvania Conference championships to be held at Clarion State College on March 10 and 11. The host, Clarion, is defending champion and favored to retain its title. BSC's All-American freestyler Dave Gibas will defend his 50 yard (21.8) and 100 yard (48.7) titles. Gibas will also defend his NAIA 50 yard crown (21.81) and will participate in the 100 yard event also in the NAIA nationals, hoping to improve on his last year's fourth place finish (49.11).

Both Chronister and McLaughlin have praised the team effort and spirit of their teams, and were extremely pleased with the overall results. It was the seventh straight winning season for swimming and the sixth for basketball. The Centennial Gymnasium and pool are being used for the last time by varsity teams this year as the new fieldhouse will be in use for the varsity sports program during the 1972-73 college year.

SCHEDULES FOR SPRING SPORTS ARE LISTED

The four coaches of baseball, track, golf, and tennis have indicated that each has a good nucleus of players returning for this year's competition. Hampered again by lack of practice facilities; the teams, however, are expected to make a good representation for the college.

The track team has been participating in several indoor meets, which should enable them to perhaps get off to a better start in the regular outdoor season than the other three sports. It is felt by everyone concerned to make a good representation with its many facilities, the calibre of BSC teams should improve.

The spring sports schedules are as follows:

TRACKMEN COMPETE IN AAU CHAMPIONSHIP MEET

The 1972 Bloomsburg State College track team was represented by a few of its members at the Middle Atlantic Amatun Athletic Union Championships, Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Track Classic conducted during the between-semester break.

John Ficek, Philadelphia, became a bronze winner in the shotput when he boomed a 49'5" toss to place well ahead of many fine shotputters. His toss, however, was not quite long enough to beat out the participants of University of Pennsylvania and LeSalle College. Coach Ron Puhl feels Ficek may develop into one of the east's best.

The mile relay team of Charles Graham, King of Prussia, Kent Prizer, Spring City, Dan Burkholder, Denver, and Rick VanHorn, Weatherly, combined efforts to register a 3:35.5 time for a new indoor BSC team record. This erased the mark set by John Boyer, Bruce Bitner, Graham and Burkholder in 1971 of 3:36.9. The new record was only good enough to net BSC a fourth place in their heat, which emphasizes the high quality of the competition experienced.

The best combined BSC record was registered by the two mile relay team of Larry Strohl, Haxleton, (2:01.7), Bob Quairol, Lebanon, (2:03.5), Terry Lee, Malvern, (1:59.6), and Larry Horwitz, Penn Valley, (2:01.1) for a 8:05.8, which is a new BSC team indoor record. This replaces the 1971 effort of 8:31.7 set by Van Horn, Lee and Horwitz.

FIFTH SPANISH STUDIES PROGRAM ABROAD PLANNED

Dr. Ariane Foureman, Chairman of the Foreign Language Department at Bloomsburg State College announces the fifth Spanish studies abroad program at the University of Madrid, Spain, for the summer of 1972. Students leave Kennedy Airport, New York, on June 28th and return August 10. Graduate students return August 24.

All students, with or without previous experience in Spanish can participate. Advanced courses in language and literature are offered for the more experienced. The curriculum is established according to the level of competence in the language upon arrival at the University. The Department of Foreign Language will grant 6 semester credit hours after successful completion of studies.

The total cost for an in-state student is $763.00; for an in-state graduate student, $905.00. The cost includes round-trip transportation; tuition, full board and private room with facilities; educational trips to Toledo, Monasterio del Escorial, Valle de los Caidos, Avila, and Segovia (La Granja); one-month free admission to the Museo del Prado.

For additional information, write to Dr. Alfred E. Tonolo, Director of the program, Department of Foreign Languages, Bloomsburg State College, telephone 784-4660, extension 373.

VARSITY WRESTLING SUSPENDED FOR SEASON

BSC's varsity wrestling program was suspended for the season early in December after the wrestlers voted against continuing varsity activity.

The wrestlers cited as reasons for their action the fact that the wrestling program of the college had suffered because of administrative changes in policy and personnel; lack of interest of the student body for participation purposes; numerous injuries; and intense animosity between the faculty advisor and the wrestlers.

After Russell Houk's request to be relieved of his coaching duties in September was granted, in interim coach was appointed to act as a faculty advisor. The wrestlers had elected the option of coaching themselves until a permanent coach could be selected.

A MESSAGE TO MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1971 FROM WILLIAM CLULEY, CLASS PRESIDENT

The officers of the Class of 1971 submit an accounting of the money in the Senior Class budget. The total budget which included the balance in a special checking account and the CGA sinking fund, as well as class dues for the Senior year totalled $6,189.59.

Several expenditures were made before the end of the Spring '71 semester, and were well publicized to the class. Among these were the $800 gift to the Alumni Association and a $500 gift to the Patricia Carlough Fund. A complete list of income and expenditures is included for reference. At the end of the spring semester several final expenditures were made to clear the class account.

The Senior Class dinner, dance, including the band, cost a total of $1,033.26 with attendance at somewhat over two hundred. An additional $1,000 was given in the class name to the Carlough Fund making the total donation $1,500. This fund is administered to improve the medical, educational, and recreational health of the children of Columbia County. A second major expenditure involves a gift to Bloomsburg State College. A fund has been set up in the Bloomsburg Foundation, known as the Sculpture Acquisition Fund, the purpose of which is to establish a continuing fund for use by a committee of the arts to acquire sculptural pieces for the beautification and aesthetic improvement of the college. The initial contribution of $2,000 by the Class of 1971 establishes this fund and the first acquisition will be dedicated by the class.

An amount of $398 from the CGA account was donated to the Summer Theatre 71 budget to help offset cost of its outstanding production of two major summer shows and four Master thesis productions which were produced during the summer of 1971. This leaves $453.33 which will be given to the Bloomsburg Foundation for use in its unrestricted fund. An operating budget for the Class of 1971 for reunion purposes is assured from the Bloomsburg Foundation.

DR. LINCOLN SAYS BLACKS ARE SEARCHING FOR THEIR IDENTITY

By James Sachetti
Editor, Maroon & Gold

"Look at me! I want to be recognized! I want you to reinforce my own self-conviction that I am somebody. That I make a difference. That I don't have to look like you to be a person of dignity and worth!"

These dramatic words brought to a climax a paper entitled "The New Blacks in Search of a Self" presented by Dr. C. Eric Lincoln at the first session of the Colloquium on the Black Experience sponsored by the Black Student Society at B.S.C.

In his paper, Dr. Lincoln, who is a professor of sociology at Union Theological Seminary, examined some cultural, social and historical aspects of Blacks in American society.

Commenting on white America's characterization of Blacks as a collective problem, Dr. Lincoln related the story of a woman who asked him for some material on the "colored situation". "... I sent her a 'colored' paint chart from the hardware store," he said, "it was the only 'colored situation' she could handle in her thinking."

Dr. Lincoln stated that many of the problems that Blacks have trouble coming to grips with stem from their problems of identity. "The unbridged chasm between who they were in Africa and who they are in America has crippled the minds, clouded the dreams, dulled the ambitions and bowed the heads of countless generations of men and women who were made to cringe like slaves, when in a free democracy they should have been able to walk like princes."

The emergence of "the New Blacks", educated, informed, and aware of the awesome task before them was an important theme in Dr. Lincoln's paper. He said that this new emergence was the result of the Black American's "discovery of his own ego."

Dr. Lincoln described the essence of the Black ego as Soul. "Soul is the Black man's most positive estimate of himself . . . It is the connective skein that runs through the totality of the Black Experience, weaving it together and infusing it with meaning."

The New Black's definition of himself and his awareness that his heritage is good and therefore a source of pride and strength is a starting point for a Black Revolution. Dr. Lincoln stated that this Black Revolution "intends to change the image of the American society by changing or destroying many of the concepts and attitudinal strategies which function to perpetuate the submerged status of the Black people . . . I see the Black Revolution as the united expression of 30 million Blacks in search of identity, status, privilege and responsibility."

During the question and answer period following Dr. Lincoln's presentation, he was asked how long it would be before Blacks got full equality. He stated that equality can only come about when people who have power concede it, either voluntarily or involuntarily. "And", he said, "power concedes nothing."

Commenting on the meaning of racism, Dr. Lincoln said that racism implies insecurity on the part of the people who have power. "It's knowing who'll win before the race is even run", he said.

Asked why more Blacks weren't behind the Presidential campaign of Shirley Chisholm, Dr. Lincoln said that it was because too many whites were. He later elaborated on the point by stating that Blacks weren't interested in Women's Liberation because Black women will only be liberated when their men are.

He observed that whenever the Black movement in America gathered momentum, some other movement appeared to divert power and energy away from it. He said that he considered Women's Lib just a diversionary movement.

DR. RALPH IRELAND HAS TWO ARTICLES PUBLISHED

Dr. Ralph R. Ireland, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Bloomsburg State College, has been informed that his article, "Education for What?: A Comparison of the Education of Black South Africans and Black Americans," has been accepted for publication in the summer issue of the "Journal of Negro Education," the most outstanding journal in its field.

The article shows how the educational policies and practices of the two countries are affected by their basically different socio-political ideologies. The history of the education of the Blacks in the two countries is traced over three centuries.

Dr. Ireland has long been recognized nationally and internationally as a scholar and researcher in the field of race relations. Eighteen of his thirty-five articles and monographs, which have been published in many noted professional journals, have been devoted to various aspects of racial and minority group relationships. His interest in this area extends back to 1951 when the "Journal of Negro Education" first published two of his articles.

He is one of a very small handful of American scholars who have been invited to the Republic of South Africa as guests of The African Institute of South Africa because of their reputations as researchers. While in the country Dr. Ireland concentrated on the government's educational policies and practices with respect to the four major racial groups: the Bantu (Blacks), the Asiatics (mainly Indians), the Coloureds (mulattoes), and the Whites. Since his return he has published six articles dealing with the education of these groups.

Dr. Ireland has had another article, "American Teen-Age Marriages: Some Facts and Fallacies," accepted for publication in the INDIAN JOURNAL OF SOCIAL RESEARCH. This journal is one of the most prestigious, scholarly publications in the Far East. The article reviews the situation regarding teen-age marriages in America since World War II. The point is stressed that, all too frequently, such authorities as family-life educators, marriage counselors, sociologists, social workers, clergy, and school administrators and teachers have made sweeping conclusions regarding teen-age marriage based either on their own value judgements or, at best, very little factual information.

Dr. Ireland concludes that despite the many yardsticks that are used to predict success or failure in teen-age marriages, not all of them have been proven by research to be effective predictors. "It is more accurate to say that people with the poorest chance of making a good marriage are most likely to marry early than to say that early marriage causes failure in marriage. There is no evidence that these people would make better marriages if they waited for three or four years beyond their present early age."

Once again it is my privilege to invite the graduates of the Bloomsburg State College to join in the festivities of Alumni Day, Saturday, April 22. The classes of the years ending in 2 and 7 will be in reunion. We hope that many ohtres will join us at the Alumni Luncheon and the annual meeting of the Alumni Association.

There have been so many changes in the physical plant of the College that you should come early in order to see what has been going on.

We urge you to support the Bloomsburg Foundation. The Alumni Association is now depending on the Foundation for funds sufficient to carry on the many activities of the Alumni Office. Without this financial support, the office would not be able to operate. The Foundation is also paying the bill for the publication and mailing of the Quarterly to all graduates of B.S.C.

Please keep the Quarterly informed of your activities.

I hope to see you on Alumni Day.

June, 1972

To the Alumni:

Effective September 1, I will terminate my association with Bloomsburg State College. This, then is my final opportunity to share with you this page of the "Quarterly." For it, I have chosen excerpts from some of my comments made during the past few weeks.

Three years ago I came to this campus holding certain assumptions: that there was a significant degree of sophistication on the part of faculty relative to participation in governance and in academic affairs; that I could depend upon those with the academic community for their loyalty and integrity; that professional people placed educational values transcendent over personal ones; that I would indeed err in my efforts to do what was needed, but that such errors would be met with tolerance and understanding and constructive guidance. And I found all of these things in many of you. There are indeed those on this campus who have worked with me to assist in our struggles to achieve a new spirit of academic standards and institutional viability. Such individuals I will not and cannot forget, nor shall the passage of time lessen my thanks to them.

But if there are so many who have lived up to professional expectations and responsibilities, there are, regrettably, those who did not: whether as a result of personal weakness, academic ineptitude, ignorance, or some unknown combination of factors. There is no room in the academic community for gutter fighting, for plotting and conniving, for the selfish and the cunning, for the semi-educated or the miseducated, for those who do not understand the delicate balance within the academic community among disciplines and scholars who struggle constantly to understand a complex and difficult world, who seek and evaluate and reason and argue, hoping that somehow out of their common efforts man will gain new insights into truth.

I am indeed pleased with many of our accomplishments, critical ones at this stage in the history of the College, and basic ones relative to higher education within the Commonwealth and the nation. A brief look at the current catalog will provide sufficient testimony to much that has been done. We underwent complete administrative reorganization, and emerged with a sound structure, placing needed emphasis upon decentralization of authority and specific assignments of responsibilities. We restructured our General Education program, with emphasis upon flexibility and extended student options. We developed a viable College Senate, encompassing all segments of the college community; expanded the Educational Opportunity Program; promoted a full revision of all student regulations in order to establish a fair, equitable, yet educationally meaningful student program; and we substantially improved the quality and the accountability of faculty. The Bloomsburg Foundation was formulated to solicit and to utilize private funds in support of many college programs. Continuing Education programs have been expanded; relationships with and services to the public schools have been enhanced; cooperative relationships with the Geisinger Medical Center have been established. And, perhaps of most importance, we have instituted sound budget management practices, including full inventory control, internal accounting procedures, and similar measures. To these and to other factors I point with a high feeling of accomplishment, not as a unilateral effort, but as symbols of successful leadership.

I am leaving to assume duties at a major university, then, with a high feeling of positive accomplishment, and certainly with every hope for the future of the College. But Bloomsburg indeed needs your help. As with students and faculty, all too many alumni allow a few to become their spokesmen. The College faces, perhaps, the most critical period in its history during the immediate two or three years ahead. It needs your support, your considered opinion, your understanding.

My thanks go to the many of you who tried to work with me towards the advancement and maturing of Bloomsburg State College.

At $24,000 Carver Hall Was Real Bargain When Built in 1867

By Dennis Guyer '74

Carver Hall, B.S.C.'s oldest building, is an interesting contrast to the many new buildings that dot the campus. In 1867 Henry Carver needed only $24,000 to build it. Today $24,000 would hardly pay for an 800 square foot room in Hartline Science Center.

During his tenure of office as the first principal of the Bloomsburg Literary Institute, now Bloomsburg State College, Carver actually helped erect the building which bears his name. It was designated "to accommodate 300 students at a cost not to exceed $15,000," but even in those days estimates were sometimes too low.

Professors and students no longer help erect buildings, but they do participate in designing them. Science professors sat down with the architects to help design Hartline Science Center; more than a dozen girls helped draw plans for Columbia Hall, B.S.C.'s newest dormitory; and administrative personnel helped design the new administrative building.

Carver Hall hides its age well - 105 years last April 4. There have been many changes over the years so it has not outgrown its usefulness. Modeled after Philadelphia's Independence Hall, it was originally a two-story red brick structure with three porches. On the first floor were five classrooms and a cloak room while the second floor was a study hall. Now little remains of the three porches, but a clock tower and balcony were added. Outside fire escapes had been added, but they were replaced by the present inside stairways. In 1954 the red brick entrance was replaced by the present limestone entrance.

Inside, changes included an $80,000 remodeling of the first floor for offices now used by the president, the business manager and the vice president for administrative services. The second floor is now an auditorium with a rebuilt stage and seats for 900. The cost of the second floor changes was $30,000.

Some of the newer buildings on campus such as Elwell Hall, the parking garage and the Student Center now under construction, have a life expectancy of 60 years and it will be difficult to make changes later. There will be no space to build outward, and the structural design will not permit adding stories. When Northumberland Hall and the Student Center were in the design stage, the college requested a structural design that would permit adding other stories. The State denied the request.

Carver Hall has undergone change and numerous activities have occurred throughout its history that speak of change. It remains in many people's minds and in structure as a symbol of the growth of Bloomsburg State College's educational program.

DAVID SEYBERT HONORED FOR WORK IN CHEMISTRY

The Susquehanna Valley Section of the American Chemical Society has honored David Wayne Seybert as the outstanding senior chemistry major at Bloomsburg State College. Seybert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Seybert, 405 Carleton Avenue, Hazleton, Pennsylvania, received recognition from the Section at the Annual Awards Banquet of the Society held on Wednesday, May 10, 1972 at the Hotel Magee in Bloomsburg. A graduate of Hazleton High School, he received a double degree - B.A. in Chemistry and B.A. in Biology - from BSC at the May, 1972 Commencement.

Seybert has been awarded a three year graduate fellowship by the National Science Foundation to pursue predoctoral studies at a graduate school of his choice. He will utilize the fellowship, the first to be awarded by NSF to a BSC graduate, when he enrolls in studies leading to the Doctor of Philosophy degree in the field of Biochemistry at Cornell University in September, 1972.

During the summer of 1971, Seybert was selected for and participated in the Savannah River Undergraduate Research Participation Program, under support of the Atomic Energy Commission at Aiken, South Carolina. At BSC, he has participated in undergraduate research under NSF support in the field of synthetic and mechanistic organic chemistry.

Seybert has served as President of the American Chemical Society Student Affiliate Chapter at BSC. He has been selected for listing in the 1971-72 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American College and Universities". He has participated in the following additional activities: Phi Sigma Pi honorary professional fraternity, Maroon and Gold Band, Studio Band, Biology Club, and Science Club.

Following graduation, Seybert will be wed to Miss Patricia Koppenhaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Koppenhaver, Dalmatia, Pennsylvania, who will receive her Master of Education degree in Biology from BSC in August, 1972. The Seyberts will spend the summer in Bloomsburg before leaving for Cornell in the Fall.

BALLOON SAILBOAT? ART CLASS MAKES IT WORK

On Wednesday, May 10, a strange gathering was seen on the shores of Lake Pinecrest near Town Hill, about a half-hour drive from Bloomsburg. Perhaps the strangest thing about the group was a bobbing, swinging weather balloon rising above a glob of color to which it was attached.

The group of about 20 was a Bloomsburg State College class, meeting as part of a course requirement for the general crafts course taught by Kenneth Wilson. The glob of color was a sheet stuffed with colored balloons. The weather balloon and two smaller colored balloons caught the air and pulled the "craft" over the waters of Lake Pinecrest. This was only one of the sailboats made by students in the class. Of course, the others tended toward more conventional lines than Ed Horvath's balloon boat. Of the 20 crafts constructed of wood and tin and other odd assortments of materials, not many proved as successful in the water as they were in appearance. The sailboat endeavor ended with successes and failures, but all parties seemed to enjoy the excitement of putting their work to the test.

The crafts students have explored several other media beyond construction of their sailboats. "I feel that if a thing has been done well then it used the medium to its best advantage." These words of Mr. Wilson's are often repeated by him during the three class sessions which are used as workshops. The students began the course by working in the three-dimensional realm of mobiles. From there work is focused on carving a wooden tool to satisfy the requirements of usefulness and a good feel of handling. Students turned out everything from shoe horns to magic wooden sticks. Wall hangings used the concept of stencils in creating patterns of color and shading. Leather belts were made and tooled by each member of the class. Mrs. Wilson, who has done leather work herself, helped by giving pointers on methods of using leather tools.

SUNDERLAND IS DIRECTOR OF STUDENT TEACHING

Ray T. Sunderland, associate professor of education at Kutztown State College, has been appointed to the new position of director of student teaching at the college.

Since 1970, Mr. Sunderland has been supervisor of Kutztown State College students assigned as elementary student teachers to the Allentown School District. He joined the Kutztown faculty in 1936.

A native of Newton Hamilton, Mifflin County, Mr. Sunderland was an assistant professor and supervising teacher at the Bloomsburg State College laboratory school from 1962 to 1966. He taught elementary school in Harrisburg and Carlisle from 1954 to 1960 and was elementary principal of the Wilson School, Carlisle, 1960 to 1962.

Five of the thirty-five living members of the Class of 1907, Bloomsburg State College, returned to campus for Alumni Day activities. Joining them (top photo) for some reminiscing was Mrs. Nellie Sweppenheiser Worman, left, Danville, Class of 1903. Members of the 65-year class were, from left, Mrs. Sadie Moyer MacCulloch, Lodi, N.J.; Mrs. Mae Howard Leeming, Ocean Grove, N.J.; Mrs. Ada Mitchell Bittenbender, Wilkes-Barre; Mrs. Agnes Wallace Rees, Livermore, California, who came the greatest distance for Alumni Day, and Edwin Barton, town.

DR. BITNER '56 HONORED BY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Dr. William L. Bitner, III, a member of the Class of 1956, was awarded the BSC Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award on Saturday, April 22, 1972, during the annual luncheon and business meeting of the Association in Scranton Commons.

Prior to coming to BSC in 1952, Bill served four years in the U.S. Marine Corps. He earned his master's degree at Rutgers University in 1959 and his doctor's degree from New York University's Division of Advanced Studies in 1963. He was a teacher and administrator in the Scotch Plains Schools (New Jersey) from 1956 to 1963, when he was appointed Superintendent of the Glens Falls City School District, Glens Falls, New York.

Bill was selected by the U.S. Department of State as one of 25 school superintendents to establish School-to-School Programs with overseas schools. He visited Tunis, Tunisia in 1965, 1967, 1968, and 1970; Algiers, Algeria in 1970; Mexican-American Schools and Central American Schools in 1970 and 1971.

The New York Jaycees selected him as their "Outstanding Young Man of the Year" in 1966. He was also the recipient of the Charles F. Kettering Foundation Fellowship for Innovations in Education in 1966. He is listed in Who's Who in the East, Who's Who in American Education, Outstanding Young Men in America, and Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges (1956), and has been active in a variety of religious, professional, and civic organizations at the local, state, and national levels.

Bill and his spouse, the former Wyl-la Mae Bowman (1956), live at 33 Lincoln Ave., Glens Falls, New York 12801 with their two children, Lizabeth Anne and Lynne Ellen.

Dr. Nossen Resigns; 2 Trustees Ousted, Then Re-instated

In the March, 1972 issue of the Alumni Quarterly, page 5, it was reported that a special three man committee had completed its assignment to look into controversies on the Bloomsburg State College campus.

At the beginning of the meeting of the Board of Trustees on April 28, William Booth, chairman, read a letter from President Robert Nossen, stating the Dr. Nossen was resigning, effective September 1, 1972.

Later in the meeting, the findings and recommendations of the special committee were presented for action by the Trustees. Copies were also distributed to representatives of the news media.

The Trustees, by a vote of 2-4, refused to accept the committee report; some members said the committee had gone beyond its assignment, and one member stated that the report contained "inaccuracies."

On May 4, Frank Fay of Hazleton and Joseph Nespoli of Berwick received a notice from Governor Milton Shapp that their status as Trustees had been terminated, effective immediately. Both men had been appointed by Shapp in December, 1971, and attended their first meeting as Trustees in January, 1972.

Fay and Nespoli received a second communication from Governor Shapp on May 16, advising them to disregard the first communication, and stating that both were still members of the Board of Trustees. Shapp noted that the May 4 notice had been sent to the two because of an "administrative mixup".

The controversy which led to the investigation by the special committee and the subsequent resignation of President Nossen, began in May, 1971, with the resignations of four coaches and the director of athletics. The controversy eventually involved students, alumni, faculty, trustees, townspeople and others.

MINNESOTAN NAMED TO LIBRARY POSITION

William J. Frost, native of Minnesota, has joined the Bloomsburg State College faculty as Assistant References Librarian.

Frost graduated from Stillwater High School, Stillwater, Minnesota, and received his Bachelor of Arts degree in English from Old Dominion University and his Master of Library Science degree from Rutgers Graduate School of Library Services.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg he was Administrative Assistant to the University Librarian at Rutgers. He is married to the former Rebecca Heiting of Hudson, Wisconsin, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin at River Falls. The Frosts have a daughter Kara, age 4 1-2 and a son Brian, age 1 1-2. They reside in Espy.

B.S.C.'s Reading Clinic Helps Both Students And Teachers

By Kathy Yontz '73

"Mrs. Smith, I'm concerned about Jerry. He's not reading at all."

The parents are frustrated; the teacher is frustrated; and, yes, the child is highly frustrated. Reading problems can be basic to a child's overall performance in school because every subject requires certain skills in reading.

Dr. Margaret Sponseller, administrator and director of B.S.C.'s reading program, has spent ten years working to expand the program to keep future teachers abreast of the new techniques being developed to improve the teaching of reading. During most of that time, however, only the basic elementary education requirements, "Teaching of Reading in the Elementary Grades," has been available to students because of what Dr. Sponseller explains as "inadequate staffing."

Four years ago she started a remedial reading clinic which now can accommodate approximately 40 clients. She uses the word 'clients' because the clinic is not restricted to children. One year a 44-year-old client made use of the clinic's services, and this past year the ages ranged from seven to 28 years. "The clinic is the only one of its kind in Eastern Pennsylvania with facilities to handle as many clients," Dr. Sponseller points out.

This past year Dr. Sponseller took on the duties of teaching an additional reading course, "Diagnostic and Remedial Reading." Her main goal in the course, she says "is to put teachers into our schools who are concerned with kids . . . I don't expect to make diagnosticians of you, but I want you to know where to look for problems and then where and when to look for help."

Dr. Sponseller has arranged for each student to work with two remedial reading clients in the clinic, located in the Benjamin Franklin building. Remedial readers are those reading one or two years behind their grade levels.

"The children have generally experienced so much frustration and failure that they can rarely be helped in the regular classroom," Dr. Sponseller explains. "These children need to know they can succeed. Perhaps the clinician's biggest job is to somehow help these children to like themselves again so they can tackle reading with some degree of confidence."

Dr. Sponseller hopes to continue to improve the reading program by reinstating two courses—"Foundation of Reading" and "Reading for the Socially Disadvantaged Child."

"The teaching of reading remains a field continuously open to new learning experiences, even to those who have been within its ranks for more years than they care to admit," Dr. Sponseller says. "With the knowledge of the tremendous bearing success or failure in reading has on total academic and social achievement, teachers are demanding more background with which to combat the reading problems they are sure to meet."

During the clinic's summer program clients attend one hour every day for six weeks. "We've had clients from as far away as Georgia who enrolled while visiting Pennsylvania relatives." The winter program handles clients once a week on Saturdays for 2 1-2 hours. The clinicians are graduate students in reading, usually ten or eleven in number.

Clients are recommended to the clinic by teachers, psychologists, and other specialists in the field. The clinic also includes work with clients needing special education. Dr. Sponseller and her husband, Dr. Nevin Sponseller are both qualified to administer tests in areas of reading disabilities including auditory and visual tests, psychological tests, intelligence tests, and tests dealing with motor skills. If any minor difficulty in sight or hearing is discovered it is dealt with in the clinic. If the problem appears to be serious the child is recommended to the proper doctor, psychologist or other specialists who can best help him. Parental counseling may also be included in the remedial instruction.

SUMMER SESSIONS 1973

First Six Weeks — June 4 - July 13
Second Six Weeks — July 16 - August 24

FROM THE EDITORS

For several years, the BSC Alumni Association has been mailing the Quarterly to all graduates for whom we have correct addresses. It was the feeling of President Emeritus Harvey A. Andruss and President Robert J. Nossen that all alumni should receive news from their alma mater, via the Quarterly, at least four times each year, regardless of their contributions to or their membership in the Alumni Association.

Since September, 1971, the number of living alumni has grown to nearly 13,000, and both printing and postage costs have also increased.

We hope we can continue mailing the Quarterly to all alumni. To do so, we need your HELP! Please send your contributions to the Alumni Association or The Bloomsburg Foundation, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania 17815. Your contributions are tax deductible and will be acknowledged promptly. Boyd F. Buckingham, Editor
Kenneth C. Hoffman, Associate Editor

NEXT ALUMNI DAY

Alumni Day activities will be held on Saturday, May, 5, 1973 since the college will be having Spring vacation from April 13 to April 30, 1973.

629 Degrees Are Conferred At May 28 Commencement

Bloomsburg State College conferred 591 undergraduate and 38 graduate degrees at the commencement convocation May 28.

U.S. Congressman Daniel J. Flood, the principal speaker, addressed the graduates on "The Question of Liberty."

"People say that they don't know who they are, where they belong, what their mission in life is, and what belongs to them," the Congressman said. "They want an ID card addressed not to others but to them. You may not belong to this large group, but I am going to share with you a few reflections on the problem of identity — yours and mine — in our troubled world today.

"The two most important things on your ID card are your address, you belong on earth, and as you belong on earth, so the earth belongs to you.

"First, your address: you belong on earth. You can exist in the sea and also in sky, and now beyond the sky in outer space. By use of all your ingenuity you have made it possible for you to exist down in the depths of the sea where you don't belong, and in the sky where you weren't meant to be, and even in outer space where nobody ever dreamed of being. But in spite of all this, you belong on the earth.

"Unlike any other earthly creature you ask questions, and you ask because you remember. You wonder, and you imagine. Think of it, the magic of those three gifts; memory, intelligence and imagination. This is the first fact of your identification.

"Things are not arranged either for your comfort or convenience. Your existence is not guaranteed. It is amazing how many adults have never faced that fact. You may see it now for the first time. You don't come into the world with any guarantee. As a matter of fact, you live on a thin margin of atmosphere.

"The second thing that is important and that is clearly stated on your ID card is that you belong on earth, so the earth belongs to you."

"Begin with the place where you live. No matter how small or how grand it may be, it belongs to you. You may rent it or may own it, but it is yours. Even though it has been in your family for years, there will come a time when it will not be yours. Other people will live in it.

"It is yours to keep up, not to keep.

"A popular television program has made the phrase 'mission impossible' almost a household term — but how well it describes the quality of life to which you and I are called. It demands the courage and commitment which springs from faith, courage to act for justice and the right, commitment to persevere in the face of apathy, cynicism and other temptations which the world puts in our way."

Dr. Robert J. Nossen, president of BSC, conferred the degrees and William E. Booth, president of the Board of Trustees, awarded the degrees.

Dr. Hobart F. Heller, acting vice president and dean of the faculties, presented the candidates for bachelor degrees. Dr. Charles H. Carlson, dean of the School of Graduate Studies, presented candidates for master degrees.

Miss Mary Jacqueline A. Feddock, president of the class of 1972, gave the class response.

'71, linebackers; Carl Hinkle, Montana State '66, defensive backs; Cecil Turberville, Alabama '62, trainer.

The 1972 football schedule is as follows: Sept. 9 - Shippensburg S. C. - A; Sept. 16 - U. of Scranton - A; Sept. 22 - Lock Haven S. C. - H; Sept. 29 - Mansfield S. C. - H; Oct. 7 - California S. ARTICLE ACCEPTED

Dr. Ralph R. Ireland, Chairman of the Department of Sociology, BSC, has just been informed that his article, "Transkei: The Significance of Education for the Development of the Republic of South Africa's First Bantustan" will be published in May, in the Spring 1972 issue of "Plural Societies", the official journal of the Foundation for the Study of Plural Societies located in The Hague.

Track Team Tops In Spring Sports With 11-2 Record

The BSC track and field team posted the most successful record of the four spring sports teams of the college. Working with limited practice facilities, the thinclads participated in all of its dual meets on the road due to lack of a home track. Nevertheless, under Coach Ron Puhl and his assistants, Dr. Clyde Noble and Carl Hinkle, the team produced a fine 11-2 record and a second place finish in the Pennsylvania Conference Championships. BSC has three Pennsylvania Conference champions — Jim Davis, 100 and 200 yard dashes; John Ficek, shotput; and Larry Strohl, 880 yard run. Puhl and his staff have high praise for the outstanding efforts of the 1972 team.

The tennis team was somewhat of a surprise when it won its first four matches and finished the season with a 6-2 record. However, the racketmen met strong competition in the Pennsylvania Conference Championships and had to settle for a seventh place finish. It was a fine season for Coach Burt Reese who worked with a number of unseasoned players.

The Husky baseball team, hampered by postponements and cancellations of early games, finished the year with an 8-9 record. On several occasions the Huskies lost an opportunity to sweep double headers, losing the second contest by a close margin. Many of the opponents of Bloomsburg have a pre-season southern tour which is a definite advantage. It is hoped that someday Bloomsburg will be able to schedule this type of early action which will enable the players to be more seasoned when the regular schedule begins. Coach Boler feels his team did an outstanding job under the circumstances prevailing this year.

Coach Charles Chronister's golfers compiled a 5-10 record and although the team didn't fare too well in both the Pennsylvania Conference and NAIA District 19 competition, there are possibly better days ahead. Chronister had only one letterman back from the 1971 team and consequently was forced to field an inexperienced squad. Practically the whole team, along with incoming freshmen and transfer students, will spell a more successful season in 1973.

It is planned to schedule some informal fall competition for the spring sports teams which should give all the coaches a better insight for their 1973 prospects.

GRIDDERS IN SUCCESSFUL SPRING PRACTICE SESSION

One of the most successful spring football practice programs in the history of the college was concluded on Saturday, May 15, when the White Whitewashers defeated the Maroon Maulers 26-20 in an intrasquad game. Head coach William Sproule stated that the cooperation, enthusiasm, and aggressiveness was at a high pitch throughout the several-week program. With a squad of 78 members, including 38 lettermen, the Huskies are looking forward to improving on last year's 4-5 record and the first ten-game schedule in the history of the college.

Sproule has a fine group of assistant coaches working with him this year which should result in more individual attention to all positions on the team. The assistant coaches are: Robert Gutshall, Lock Haven '67, offensive backs; Tom Lyons, Susquehanna '71, offensive line; Bob Parry, Bloomsburg '72, receivers; Clark Boler, Alabama '61, defensive co-ordinator; Joe Dambrocio, Susquehanna

College Dropout Rate Low at B. S. C. But It's Still a Problem

By Joan Zlotnicki '73

Class begins and the student glances occasionally at the professor, but his attention is fixed on the clock. The minutes slowly tick by and in the back of his mind he hears the echoes of a lecture on how to teach well and hold the attention of the class. His mind is occupied with thoughts of the future and he keeps asking himself why he is here, what he expects that he is not getting or how he or his parents are going to pay for it. Class is dismissed and he wanders aimlessly and mechanically to his next class, but he's not sure why or for whom.

It's a typical day in the life of a disillusioned student. After frequent recurrences of days like this, the disillusioned student reacts—he leaves college.

It can and does happen on every college campus with a frequency that has administrators concerned both about the causes and possible remedies.

The national attrition rate for four-year colleges is given as 48 per cent. At B.S.C., over a three-year period, the attrition rate for freshmen has been 30 per cent, for sophomores 25 per cent, for juniors ten per cent and for seniors two per cent. During the Spring semester 33 students dropped out. But even though the B.S.C. attrition rate is below the national average, the problem is not being ignored.

Most students hesitate to give their reasons for leaving and those given are often incorrect, but financial and medical reasons are those most frequently listed. Lack of interest rates third and this is the reason more frequently given by freshmen.

Walter Williams, a junior majoring in Secondary Education, had earned 84 credits when he decided to leave school early in the Spring semester. "My reasons for leaving are partly financial," he explained. "I had to attend a State College for financial reasons, and I liked Bloomsburg the best. I was limited in my choice of a particular field and I chose to major in Education. But I don't want to be a teacher, so I'm leaving."

A transferring sophomore commented "I feel there must be more somewhere. The kids are great here and I suppose that's what I'll miss the most. You get the feeling you're always being talked at, not to. Maybe I'm asking for too much but I've got to go somewhere else, even if it's just to prove something to myself."

John Walker, Associate Dean of Student Affairs, says the problem of student disillusionment has always been with us and that current trends have not brought about any real substantial increase in the number of dropouts. There is a growing concern, however, which began about ten years ago.

"There are several personal reasons for disillusionment," says Chuck Thomas, Director of the Student Counseling Service. "Some students simply have no purpose. Others come expecting a great intellectual experience and are disappointed. A good number of students become disillusioned about their capabilities and simply reach a point of disequilibrium where they become aware that their abilities do not match their aspired goals."

Walker sees frustration over careers as the first step in leaving school. Bloomsburg State College, for the most part, has been training its students to be teachers. Yet it is estimated that there will be 26 applicants for each teaching vacancy by the late 1970's. Now the field is tight and the competition is tough. The moving vocational trend is towards trade, industrial and technical fields, but just a slight change in our economy could alter the whole job picture again and the students are constantly aware of this, he points out.

The disillusioned student may find some consolation in knowing that he isn't being ignored. One of the latest programs established for such students is the, "Leave of Absence Policy." Under this policy, a student may request a leave of absence by application and provided he is in good standing at the end of the semester, he will be allowed to leave and be assured accommodation the semester he is designated to return.

Dr. Edson J. Drake, Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, said that the administration is considering the idea of "Interdisciplinary Courses". In such a field of study, a student majoring in French, for example, would learn not only the language but also the history and culture of the country. This would enable all the educational department to work together as a unit to insure a better all-around education for the student.

To help alleviate career frustration, the Counseling Service is trying to steer students in educational studies to other fields with more appeal for them and a greater job market.

A program of Professor Evaluation is being considered, whereby the student would be given the opportunity to evaluate his professors and the professors would be informed of the results. This plan is aimed at improving the attitudes of teachers and their ability to make their courses meaningful.

Since questions concerning careers are so important, Mr. Walker has suggested what could be termed a "Career Counseling Library," opened to all students and devoted solely to the purpose of publicizing important literature on career guidance and planning. Too many students are dissatisfied and leave school with no other alternatives in mind. A library such as this could be an educational experience in itself. If a student is unhappy in his field, he can decide to change and know exactly where he's heading.

Everyone seems to agree that there will always be a disillusioned student but to ignore the problem would be a mistake. The most important task of administrative leaders is to initiate programs to keep up with the needs of a changing society before student's stress becomes great enough to interfere with an orderly program of professional studies.

SEVEN BSC ATHLETES GIVEN NATIONAL HONORS

Seven Bloomsburg State College students have been chosen to appear in the 1972 edition of OUTSTANDING COLLEGE ATHLETES OF AMERICA.

Selected from the college are: Christopher Sweet, Westhampton Beach, New York, football; James Davis, Kingston, track; Elizabeth Lucadamo, Hazleton, basketball; John Feyer, Bethlehem, swimming; Larry Strohl, Hazleton, cross country and track; Daniel Stellfox, Glenolden, football; and Robert Herb, Easton, swimming.

Announcement of their selection was made by the Board of Advisors of OUTSTANDING COLLEGE ATHLETES OF AMERICA, an annual awards volume published to honor America's finest college athletes.

Coaches and athletic directors from individual colleges and universities across the nation nominated the winning athletes on the basis of their displayed abilities not only in athletics but also in community service and campus activities.

OUTSTANDING COLLEGE ATHLETES OF AMERICA included strength of character, leadership both on and off the playing field, and scholarship.

In congratulating the athletes selected, Head Football Coach Bill Battle of the University of Tennessee pointed out that "their selection is based on qualities of leadership and character in addition to the competitive drive and determination necessary for being a winner in the arena. These are vital ingredients for success in life after college."

Star Running Back Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears said this year's Outstanding College Athlete winners have "set goals for themselves to be the best in the field. They will fight with all they can to achieve success, and with this determination they will surely attain it."

Biographies of all Outstanding College Athletes of America will be included in the 1972 edition to be published in July.

The program's Board of Advisors is chaired by James Jeffrey, executive director, Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

In a ceremony conducted in his honor, Commander Curtis R. English was presented the United States of America Meritorious Service Medal. This Medal is a highly esteemed decoration bestowed for outstanding service to our Nation. The award was conferred for the President by Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt, Jr., Chief of Naval Operations. The ceremony was conducted in the Pentagon, Washington, D. C., by Vice Admiral Stansfield Turner, Director of Navy Systems Analysis. The citation accompanying the award stated: "The President of the United States takes pleasure in presenting the Meritorious Service Medal to Commander Curtis R. English for outstanding meritorious service as an analyst serving with the Systems Analysis Division, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, Washington, D. C., during the period of December 1968 to April 1972. Commander English's superb performance of duty was instrumental in the conduct and support of important and effective analyses in the Monpower/Personnel Field. He served as the Chief of Naval Operations Project Officer on the 'Naval Reserve Missions, Force, and Organization Study' which is one of the most important and significant studies of the Naval Reserve ever conducted. Commander English contributed directly to the formulation of plans to increase the effectiveness and hardware orientation of the Naval Reserve. He has been instrumental in the organization and administration of the highly effective Naval Reserve Systems Analysis Division (RSAND) Program. His exceptional leadership, sound judgement, and outstanding devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Commander English has been assigned to the Systems Analysis Staff of the Chief of Naval Operations since December 1968. The analytical efforts and studies he has directed encompassed all naval forces and have considered the Reserve in the perspective of the total force concept as defined by the Secretary of Defense, Melvin R. Laird. The findings developed by Commander English have been submitted to Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt, Jr., Chief of Naval Operations and to Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Many of his recommendations are currently being implemented.

Prior to his current assignment, Com. English had served as an adviser to the Chief of Naval Personnel in Washington, D. C. and as an intelligence officer and Naval Flight Officer in various flying squadrons.

Commander English, his wife, Janet, and their three sons, Curtis, III; Gary; and Scott, reside in Springfield, Virginia.

ANNUAL ALUMNI MEETING

1. The Annual Meeting of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association was held in Scranton Commons on Alumni Day, April 22, 1972, with Howard F. Fenstemaker, President of the Association, presiding.

2. Mr. Fenstemaker introduced The Reverend Perry Smith, '22, who offered the Invocation.

3. After the luncheon, Mr. Fenstemaker called the meeting to order noting that this was the 105th annual meeting of the Alumni Association. The ladies at the head table were introduced.

4. The minutes of the 1971 Annual Meeting were approved as read.

5. Mr. Fenstemaker presented Jacqueline Feddock, President of the Class of 1972, who will serve as an ex officio member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association for the following year. Miss Feddock presented a check to Mr. Fenstemaker for memberships for the Class of 1972 in the Association. Miss Feddock stated that when she heard this was the 105th meeting of the Association she was overwhelmed. Speaking for the class, she was proud to become a member of the Association.

6. Mr. Fenstemaker asked that the audience turn to a more solemn moment. He stated that last year, Dr. Kuster presented the persons who were given the Distinguished Service Award. Just two months later he attended Dr. Kuster's funeral. Shortly thereafter the Board of Directors adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, Dr. Kimber C. Kuster was a distinguished scholar, teacher, Christian gentleman, and true friend of his fellow man, and

Whereas, he did unselfishly devote much of his time and talent to teaching, encouraging, and counselling thousands of young people, and

Whereas, he did bring honor and distinction to his alma mater, and

Whereas, he did serve ably as a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association of Bloomsburg State College, and

Whereas, he was a leader and outstanding worker in many civic and fraternal organizations as well as a devoted husband and father,

Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association of Bloomsburg State College take cognizance of his many contributions, express their sorrow and regret at his passing, and that a copy of this resolution be spread on the minutes of this meeting, and a copy be sent to Mrs. Kimber Kuster.

Mr. Fenstemaker requested that a motion be presented that the Association as a whole adopt this resolution. It was moved by Dr. Andruss and seconded by Mr. Thomas and motioned carried. Mr. Fenstemaker requested that the members of the association stand for a minute in silent meditation.

7. Dr. Stuart Edwards presented the report of the Nominating Committee, for the following to serve three-year terms on the Board of Directors:

Mr. Millard Ludwig '48
Mrs. Joseph C. Conner '34
Mr. John Thomas '47
Mr. Clayton H. Hinkel '40
Mr. J. Harrison Morson '56

Dr. Edwards moved that the slate be adopted. Motion seconded and unanimously carried. There being no further nominations, the Secretary cast the ballot for those nominated.

8. Mr. Fenstemaker presented Dr. Robert J. Nossen, President of the College, who welcomed the Alumni. Dr. Nossen stated that although the college was founded in 1839, he will accept the date of 1867 as being the date of the first meeting of the Alumni Association. He recognized Miss Feddock, '72, as being a person who will make a contribution to the Association both as a member and as a member of the Board of Directors.

9. Mr. Fenstemaker introduced Mr. Clayton Hinkel, who stated that it was an honor for him to be chosen to fill the shoes of Dr. Kuster as Chairman, Distinguished Service Award Committee. He introduced Dr. Ralph Herre, Professor of History, who is soon to retire after twenty-five years of service to Bloomsburg State College. Dr. Herre presented the Alumni Association Distinguished Service Award to Dr. William L. Bitner, III.

10. Previous recipients of the DSA were asked to stand by the President of the Association. Those present were:

Miss Julia Gregg Brill '10
Dr. Henry J. Warman '32
Mrs. Verna E. Jones '36
Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President Emeritus, BSC
Mr. Howard F. Fenstemaker '12
Miss Grace S. Beck '23
Mrs. Alfaretta Stark '12
Col. Elwood M. Wagner '43

11. Mr. Fenstemaker conducted the Roll Call of Classes in Reunion:

1907 - 5, 1912 - 13, 1917 - 25, 1927 - 45 (Representative of the class announced that $200 will be presented to the Foundation in memory of Dr. E. H. Nelson), 1932 - 34 (57 present for dinner night before), 1937 - 3, 1942 - 3, 1947 - 5, 1952 - 10 (With 16 registered for dinner Saturday evening), 1957 - 2, 1962 - 6 (102 registered for dinner Saturday evening), 1967 - 3 (45 registered for dinner Saturday evening)

Special recognition was paid to Mrs. Nellie Warman, '03. The fifty-year Class, 1922, was recognized. A dinner was held Friday evening for the class. Thirty-eight members were present.

12. Mr. Fenstemaker made the following announcements:

- He asked each table to sign the attendance sheets.
- If classes were having evening meets, a representative was asked to supply a list of those registered.
- The Treasurer's Report will be published in the next issue of the Quarterly.

13. The meeting adjourned at 2:20 p.m.

Respectfully submitted
Elwood Wagner, Sec.

George A. Stradtman

GEORGE STRADTMAN WILL RETIRE IN AUGUST

George G. Stradtman, a member of the Bloomsburg State College faculty since 1955, will retire in August, 1972.

In addition to being an Associate Professor of Math and Science at BSC, Stradtman has served as an Assistant Dean of Men, 1956-1959, and Dean of Men, 1959-1961. He was Faculty Coordinator of the campus Red Cross Bloodmobile visits for 15 years; Chairman, Homecoming Committee for 17 years; served on Alumni Day Committee for 8 years; Campus Coordinator for three Navy V-12 reunions; and served for 15 years as judge of exhibits at the Lower Susquehanna Valley Science and Engineering Fair, Bucknell University. He was the original proposer of the freshmen summer trial program that has been in effect for a number of years at BSC.

A native of Lancaster, Pa., Professor Stradtman received his Bachelor of Science degree in Education from Millersville State College and earned his Master of Education degree with a major in Secondary Education from Temple University. He has taken additional graduate study towards his doctor's degree in Secondary Education at Penn State.

Prior to joining the faculty at BSC, he taught at the Perkiomen School, Pennsburg, Pa.; the West Lampeter School District of Lancaster County; the Wyomissing School District of Berks County, and in Adult Education Classes at the Standard Evening High School, Reading, Pa. At one time he was associated with the Hamilton Watch Company, Lancaster, Pa., for seven years in a number of capacities, before returning to his initial love, the teaching field.

He is married to the former Beatrice Wilkie, a native of North Carolina and a graduate of Radford State College, Virginia. Mrs. Stradtman taught for a number of years in the public schools of Virginia and North Carolina. The Stradtmans have the following children: Jean A., a graduate of Millersville State College and wife of the Rev. Gerald Krum of Landisville, Pa.; Dorothy M., a graduate of Bloomsburg State College and wife of Robert S. Dayton of Friendswood, Texas; and George G. Jr., currently a junior at Millersville State College.

FORMER BSC COACH GEORGE BUCHHEIT DIES

By Edward Schuyler

George C. Buchheit, former coach of football, basketball and track at Bloomsburg State College from 1932 to 1946, died in Springfield, Ill., May 24, at the age of seventy-four.

Buchheit was a very successful and popular man on the hill and guided the Husky track team to three consecutive state track titles in the 30's just prior to World War 2.

He came to BSC from Duke University where he was an assistant to Wallace Wade in the days of the big Duke grid teams and at the time of his stay here, BSC had a one-coach system for all sports.

George, born March 22, 1898, attended Hillsdale College, Michigan, and earned a bachelor's degree in civil engineering at the University of Illinois. He then earned a master of arts degree at Columbia University and throughout his collegiate career, was active in sports.

In 1918, he played right end on the championship U. of Illinois football team and was later named to the Eckersall All-Conference team. Walter Eckersall was an outstanding All-American figure in the Big Ten and the Big Ten All-Conference team was named in his honor.

George was also named to the All-Time Third grid team at UI and was a member of the UI basketball team in 1918. He was also one of the best all-around track athletes in the western conference and received the Big Ten medal during his senior year for his scholarship and athletic prowess.

At the time he left Illinois, George possessed the record for the most points in a track meet.

After his marriage here, George resided on East Third Street, a home now owned by Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Crowl. He was active in the St. Matthew Lutheran Church and served on the church council.

A graduate in engineering, George left Bloomsburg to accept a position offered by the Highway Department in Illinois, and continued with that dept. until retirement.

He is survived by his wife, Natalie; a son Charles, Los Angeles, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Sue Root of Lee, Mass.; and four grandchildren.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARDS

Members of the Alumni Association are invited to nominate BSC graduates for the Distinguished Service Award which is given each year at the Annual Alumni Luncheon Meeting in April.

We wish once more to call to the attention of the Alumni the extreme necessity of supporting the Bloomsburg Foundation. Without this support, it will not be possible to send the Alumni Quarterly to all graduates whose correct address is in our files. It will also be impossible to maintain the Alumni Office.

The Alumni Office has many functions:

1. It is the channel through which all deaths, changes of address, and other important statistics are recorded in the Alumni files.
2. It is the channel of communication with the representatives of the classes in reunion.
3. It is the agency which grants all Alumni Loans.
4. It is the agency which administers all the Alumni Scholarship Funds.

All of these activities require the services of a full-time secretary. The expenses incident to these activities are budgeted and the funds for these expenses are transferred from the Bloomsburg Foundation to the Alumni Association.

Therefore, it is essential that all Alumni, through the Foundation, support the Association, at least to the extent of the five dollars annual dues.

These are difficult days at BSC. Please do not let the College down!

Recently, E. Alden Dunham authored "Colleges of The Forgotten Americans," a profile of state colleges and regional universities, for The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education. Addressing himself to educational pressures, Dunham submits that state colleges are experiencing all sorts of strain in their network of relationships in deciding just what the function of state colleges ought to be. In essence, state colleges are suffering an "identity crisis."

As we all know, Bloomsburg State College is one of 14 state-owned institutions of higher education in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. As such, its broad functions are in the areas of teacher education and in the Arts and Sciences. Very often we still have people inquire about "The Normal School" on the hill, or address correspondence to "The Teachers College."

It is important for all to realize that Pennsylvania's former collection of teachers colleges has moved rapidly along the spectrum from single to multipurpose institutions. As we begin this 1972-1973 academic year, with our total enrollment exceeding 5,000, we find, indeed, that Bloomsburg State College is providing a diversity of educational opportunities.

Our undergraduate students are enrolled in three schools of the College: Arts and Sciences, Professional Studies (teacher education, special education, communication disorders, and dental hygienist), and Business (business education and business administration). Our graduate students, enrolled in the Graduate School, are working toward M.A., M.S., or M.Ed. degrees. In addition, opportunities are provided in continuing education both credit and non-credit, as well as conveniently scheduled courses for teachers-in-service.

Viewed at this time in our history, Bloomsburg State College is full of vitality, enthusiasm, and dedication. Surely as we continue along the spectrum of development, each academic year will contribute to the identifiable and unique personality that is Bloomsburg.

Acting President

Dr. Carlson Acting President Other Staff Changes Are Made

Dr. Charles H. Carlson is serving as Acting President of Bloomsburg State College pending the appointment of a permanent President to succeed Dr. Robert J. Nossen who resigned after filling the position for three years.

Dr. Carlson was appointed Acting President by Gov. Milton J. Shapp and was sworn in by Dr. John Pittenger, Pennsylvania Secretary of Education, at a ceremony in Carver Hall August 31. A member of the Bloomsburg faculty since 1959, he has been Dean, School of Graduate Studies, and Director of Research Activities for the past two years.

Dr. Dayton S. Pickett, formerly Associate Vice-Chancellor at the University of Illinois, has been appointed Vice-President for Academic Affairs and Dean of Faculties. He replaces Dr. Hobar F. Heller who served last year following the resignation of Dr. John A. Hoch.

Dr. Heller, who came to BSC as professor-at-large in 1970 following retirement as Vice-President for Academic Affairs at Eastern Illinois University and several years of service with the Department of Education at Harrisburg, will serve this year as Acting Dean, School of Graduate Studies.

James B. Creasy, director of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions for the past two years, has been appointed Assistant to the President, succeeding John R. Quatroche, who resigned.

Dr. Conrad A. Bautz, formerly chairman of the physical education department at Brooklyn College, New York City, has assumed duties of chairman of the Department of Health, Physical Education and Athletics at BSC. He replaces Dr. Stephen Bresett who filled the position on an interim basis last year.

A newly-created post of Coordinator of Academic Advisement is being filled by Dr. William Jones, who has been Director, Division of Human Resources and Services.

Dr. Charles H. Carlson

Dr. Carlson, a native of Kingsburg, California, received his BA in Music at San Jose State College, and then served two years in the U.S. Army with duty in Japan and Korea. He earned both his Master of Arts and Doctor of Education degrees at Columbia University where he was on the faculty for two years prior to coming to Bloomsburg as Associate Professor of Music.

He was elevated to full professorship of Music in 1962 and later served as Chairman of the Music Department and director of the Maroon and Gold and Studio bands. In 1966 he was named Assistant Director, in 1967 Acting Director and in 1968 Director of Graduate Studies. When the new structure in college administrative positions took place two years ago he was named Dean.

Dr. Carlson currently is president of the Pennsylvania State Colleges and University Graduate Deans Association. He has served on college evaluation teams for the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction and in New York State and he has been a consultant in the area of the Arts for nearby school districts.

He is married to the former Mary Louise Beck, of Berwick, a guidance counsellor in the Bloomsburg schools. They have a son, Charles H. Carlson, Jr.

Dr. Dayton S. Pickett

Dr. Pickett received his early education in California schools. He was awarded his Bachelor of Science degree at the U. S. Military Academy, and earned his Master of Science degree with a major in civil engineering from Iowa State University. His Doctor of Philosophy degree with a major in psychology of personality, was received at the University of Denver.

Prior to his association with the University of Illinois, he served in the following capacities at the University of Denver beginning in 1966; graduate research assistant and university fellow; assistant to the director, School of Education; assistant to the dean, College of Arts and Sciences; lecturer in educational psychology.

He previously was an assistant professor of military science at the Colorado School of Mines for three years where he also served as varsity coach of the soccer and rifle teams. For twelve years prior to that time, he was a U.S. Army officer in the corps of engineers including five years of command assignments, assistant comptroller for management, general depot, and various staff positions in operations and training.

Dr. Conrad A. Bautz

Dr. Bautz is a 1965 graduate of Brooklyn College where he played three years of varsity soccer. He received his Masters degree at the University of Illinois and then served in the U.S. Army before returning to a teaching position in the New York City public schools. He then served as director of intramurals at Columbia University for two years before returning to Brooklyn College. In addition to coaching soccer he was assistant director of athletics, director of physical education in the major program and deputy chairman of the physical education department for the evening division.

He and his wife, Kay, have two children.

OBITORS NEEDED

The 1927 class representative lost her copy of the 1927 Obitor, among other valued possessions, in the June flood. If you can provide her with an Obitor for that year, please advise the Alumni office.

Mrs. Levan is also looking for a 1944 Obitor to complete her file.

'Friendly College' Makes Believers of Nearly 2,000 Flood Refugees

Ed. Note—Dr. Michael Herkert of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, was on campus at the beginning and throughout most of the emergency which arose from Hurricane Agnes. His personalized account of the situation follows:

The line most frequently quoted from Bloomsburg State's old Alma Mater is the "friendly college on the hill" . . . In this instance it was more than just "music" to the ears of nearly 2,000 unfortunate victims of that angry lady Agnes.

If the victims of Anger's wrath could be called "lucky", then those from the greater Bloomsburg area who were evacuated to Bloomsburg State College could be classified as such.

In comparison to evacuees in some disaster areas, those at Bloomsburg State were going first class from every conceivable angle — housing, food and, would you believe entertainment?

When the anti-Agnes action started on campus just before noon on Thursday, it appeared that the number of evacuees arriving would be accommodated quite easily. They were shuttled from the administration building to Columbia Hall where they were assigned rooms along with the coeds already living in the building.

Keep Coming

For awhile it appeared as though it was going to be a ho-hum day. However, as the rains continued and afternoon became early evening it became apparent that Agnes was a liberated lady who was disdainfully showing us the power of a woman.

By 8 PM on Thursday the number of arrivals seeking refuge has escalated to the point where they were being housed in Luzerne, Mortour and Schuylkill residence halls — and they kept coming.

At 10 PM the decision was made to open the doors of the largest residence hall on campus. Elwell Hall with a capacity of 700 was opened and by midnight three of its floors were occupied. The remaining four floors of "Elwell City" (as the students refer to it) were filled Friday afternoon as residents of Sherwood Village, Espy, Lime Ridge, Fernville and the lower areas of Bloomsburg etc. were ordered to evacuate.

Also, in order to accommodate all comers, Northumberland Hall was unnecessarily made ready at 11 PM Friday evening in anticipation of arrivals from Wilkes-Barre who never materialized — the result of a prank played by some pea brain. The "city on the hill" finally settled down by 2 AM Saturday morning.

Noah's Ark

Most of the evacuees arrived on campus with nothing other than the clothing they were wearing. They were confused, cold, weary and wet, nevertheless, in view of the enormity of their personal losses they took the risk of rescuing the family pet(s). If Noah had been standing in the bow of his ship watching the parade of arrivals on campus, he undoubtedly would have beamed a broad smile. The animals ranged in appearance from pitiful-looking pedigreed poodles to magnificent mongrels. There were also cats and birds and, would you believe, even a fish.

And if someone anticipated mayhem in the menagerie they would still be waiting. It seems even the animals sensed the seriousness of the situation and were on their good behavior. In fact, they were less troublesome than some teenagers.

As was to be expected, there were problems. But the problems sometimes were the kind that couldn't be anticipated. Like to dog that had been raised in a ranch-type home and didn't know what stairs were until he arrived at the dormitory. When the elevator wasn't available the master obligingly carried the dog up several flights of stairs.

When the evacuees registered at the residence halls on campus, they were greeted by smiling student volunteers who helped them to their rooms. However, probably none of them were aware of the tremendous effort which was required to get the college on the hill ready for the invasion — it really wasn't done by the local Guru as some might believe. In many instances the working groups were short-handed but they managed to suck it up and give a little extra in all departments in order to minimize any discomfort for people who already had their share of it.

The supervisor of custodians scurried around scrounging sheets for rooms which were not expected to be used until September while student volunteers assumed the task of cleaning up rooms and making beds.

Taken for Granted

Essential communication service, traffic control, policing and numerous emergency services were provided by the BSC security and the ever-present girls on the switchboard who always seem to be taken for granted.

Filling the bellies of the nearly 2,000 people in residence wouldn't appear to be much of a task for a food service under normal conditions. But when it is geared to feeding only 200 people per meal, as it was then, the ten-fold jump could cause people to get a little uptight. However, the BSC food service which is catered by ARA Services rose to the occasion.

They got their adrenalin flowing and with the assistance of student and faculty volunteers, ARA moved to the tune of the Calvary Charge as they increased their output of meals from 600 to 6,000 servings per day through Sunday. It is difficult to imagine the scavenging ARA had to do in order to immediately increase their food inventory and if it were not for the graciousness of the various purveyors in the area who made their limited supplies available it could have been canned soup three times a day.

That ARA Service is a considerate caterer with a heart was evidenced by the fact that they made special purchases of baby food for the young fry who probably will be told they were too young to remember the big one of '72. In retrospect ARA will probably be forever grateful to their cooks who extended themselves (and the food) and to the steady stream of students and other volunteers, without whom their task would have been Sisyphian.

In the Residence Halls, supervision and order were competently maintained by the staff of the Department of Student Affairs. They manned the desks around the clock and, assigned student volunteers to various duties which helped to make the evacuees lives more tolerable. Additionally, the Office of Student Activities set up a schedule and provided entertainment and activities for all age groups as their contribution toward making the stay of the guests at BSC somewhat pleasurable. Ironically the movie featured on Friday night was titled "Marooned".

All things considered, the victims of Agnes made the transition to residence hall life quite well although it wasn't totally without a few complaints like "you have to walk too far to the bathroom"; "they forgot to make coffee for lunch". There were also those who were a bit "hyper" because of their apprehension for the condition of the homes they vacated and perhaps having to be around their youngsters all day.

Most 'Happy'

Nevertheless, 99 per cent of the happy guests at BSC were thankful and some of them expressed their gratitude by volunteering for various chores like cleaning the bathrooms, operating elevators, carrying food to the elderly, emptying trash containers, dogsitting, etc.

Most of the temporary campus residents returned to their homes by late Sunday evening and on Monday the 400 remaining were consolidated in Elwell Hall. Some of them stayed there for awhile as they shuttled back and forth to their homes in operation clean up while others were involved in hunting for new places in which to take up residence.

Meanwhile, among the departees where people were saying to each other . . . "haven't seen you in a dog's age. It was nice seeing you again. We'll have to get together again sometime" . . . one couldn't help but wonder whether they were just putting each other on until again befallen by some form of tragedy or whether neighbors now really find time for each other.

So, from amidst the destruction and ugliness of tragedy there emerged beauty. Beauty in the form of countless numbers of little people, young and old, who cared enough for their fellow men to give of themselves in many ways. However, before the strains of . . . "friendly college on the hill" . . . are lost in the cacophony of progress there are still those cynics who will raucously blare . . . "the college — who needs it"? only this time the odds are on the short side of five to one that it will fall on deaf ears.

4 B. S. C. Building Projects Completed

The newest look on campus: from top, the new administration building on site of former Dillon House, exterior and interior of the Field House on Upper Campus, and the tennis courts above President's home.

During the spring and summer of 1972, a new administration-supply building, a new gymnasium (Upper Campus), a new Recreation Area, and completely new underground utilities (Upper Campus) were completed at a cost of $15,335,000 in preparation for the beginning of class in September. Each project will play a vital role in a variety of ways in the entire college community.

Construction continues on the Student Center and the completion date is estimated at sometime during early 1973. The cost of construction, furnishings, and movable equipment will be approximately $1,500,000.

It is expected that construction will begin this fall on the new football field, track, and baseball field as well as the air conditioning of Sutliff Hall. Low bids for the Athletic Fields were $725,274 and those for Sutliff Hall were $138,000.

Design work has begun on a new dormitory to replace Old Waller Hall. Because of its age and condition, Waller Hall has not been used to house students for several years. The new structure is expected to house 250 students at an approximate construction cost of $1,955,000.

In order to provide adequate heat, hot water, and in several cases air-conditioning (steam absorption method) for existing and new buildings on the Lower Campus, a new boiler is expected to be installed at the college heating plant along with major alterations to existing boilers. $250,000 has been allocated for this purpose.

The design in plans for new and improved utilities on the Lower Campus is expected to begin shortly. An amount of $400,000 has been budgeted for this project.

The first floor of the new administration building is housing all the business office activities formerly located in Carver Hall and former Boyer Garage. The second floor provides offices for academic and other administrative personnel. A separate one-story wing of the building is serving as the delivery, distribution, and storage areas for college supplies.

The completion of the gymnasium will offer a variety of facilities long awaited by the college community and the Bloomburg area. These include a swimming pool, gymnasium area with basketball court and Tartan surfaced indoor track, four air-conditioned classrooms, faculty offices, locker and shower rooms, and specialized areas for class and athletic activities.

OBITERS AVAILABLE

The Alumni Office has informed the Editor of the Quarterly that there are a few issues of Obiters, published during the 1960's, available in the Alumni Office. If you've lost or misplaced yours, write to the Alumni Office at BSC. The only charge will be a dollar to defray mailing expenses.

Biography and Its Place In The Undergraduate Curriculum

The following article is reprinted with the permission of the Pennsylvania Council of English Teachers. It appeared in the April issue of the PCTE Bulletin.

Cecil C. Seroncy, Bloomsburg State College

As everyone knows, there is and has been for some time a great proliferation of courses in American schools and colleges. Much of this change has been made necessary by the advent of new knowledge and by the discovery, common to all ages in history, of new relationships in knowledge that necessitate reorganization of content in the curriculum. An example that comes to mind is the way in which literature in general—poetry, drama, novel and biography—has been affected in form and content by new insights in psychology.

On the other hand, many innovations appear to have no justification whatever. Such new "courses" appear to be spawned in the following manner: in a given course a problem of seeming importance arises; why not deal with this problem more fully in a newly-created course? Such a process might well be reduced to the absurdity of generating new courses every time a problem arises. And the "problem," greatly magnified, often turns out to be ephemeral. The danger, as I see it, is that while for good reasons, regrouping of courses may lead to more integrated knowledge, a contrary fragmentation may also be taking place.

As a consequence of the foregoing considerations, one needs to be cautious about making claims either for or against inclusion of courses in biography in the college undergraduate curriculum. Perhaps we might see the problem more clearly by addressing to ourselves a few questions about the nature of biography and its place in literature.

First of all, what is the interest and attraction of biography? Harold Nicolson has said that since the only certain factor in life is death, our response is the instinct of self-preservation to defy annihilation. However, while we all share in the commemorative instinct, it is this very cenotaph urge which Nicolson believes has falsified the art of biography: "Myth, legend, epic, elegy, have prospered on this very soil, but biography has merely run to leaf." Perhaps that is why we find so few great biographies; since we all more or less have the instinct to fictionalize fact, we run the danger always of falsifying our account of the single, unique person about whom we are writing. Fiction is both an embellishment and an essential of poetry, drama, and novel, but never of biography. So in reading biography we do not consciously want or look for fiction, but for facts about another person who is unique and at the same time like us a feeling, thinking human being, suffering our common fate. I think that is what attracts us to biography. As Dr. Johnson has put it: "We are all prompted by the same motives, all deceived by the same fallacies, all animated by hope, obstructed by dangers, entangled by desire, and seduced by pleasure."

The subjects of biographies have generally been great, infamous, or otherwise distinguished persons. But such is our interest in man that many successful biographies of lesser or even obscure men have been written, among them Carlyle's "John Sterling", Gosse's "Father and Son," and White's "Autobiography of Mark Ruthenford." Johnson goes so far as to say that "there has rarely passed a life of which a judicious and faithful narrative would not be useful." And, again, when Boswell relates that after Johnson's urging him to keep a journal of his own life, Boswell mentioned that he was afraid to put into his journal too many little incidents, Johnson replied, "There is nothing, Sir, too little for so little a creature as Man." Generally speaking, a pure biography is written about a person whom writer and reader can fundamentally respect.

My second question is, To what extent is biography a literary genre? What are its past and present claims as literary art? These questions I have already partly dealt with in my discussion of fiction. Does the demand for fact inherent in biography rule out its status as a literary genre? Opinion has varied. When Johnson (Rambler, No. 60) remarks that "no species of writing seems more worthy of cultivation than biography, since none can be more delightful or useful," he makes a claim for biography at art and literature and likely as genre. Others, like Saintsbury, seem to think this way too. From what I can gather, however, most critics do not take this position. For instance, Virginia Woolf, convinced that biography is only at the beginning of its career, leaves biography merely on the threshold of literature. Her point is that "the two kinds of fact, the real and the fictional, will not mix. The biographer is bound by facts. That is why Lytton Strachey's "Victoria" is a masterpiece and his "Elizabeth and Essex" a failure. Falstaff will outlast Boswell's Johnson, Micawber and Miss Bates, Lockhart's Scott and Lytton Strachey's Victoria. A biography is not a work of art in the same way a poem is. We conclude that the biographer is a craftsman, not an artist." Yet be her phrase "not a work of art in the same way a poem is" Virginia Woolf seems to concede that biography is an art of some sort.

An extreme view is presented by the crusty Bernard DeVoto, who believes that "literary people should not be permitted to write biography, because their minds are least adapted to the use of fact." The limitations of DeVoto's critical imagination are evidenced by his belief that biography is beyond the reach of fiction whose practitioners are habitually inaccurate! For DeVoto facts, even though dull, are everything, because they are trustworthy in the direction of what he calls truth. (It is only fair to say at this point that DeVoto himself is seldom dull.) Why, for instance, "literary people" are more prone to indulge in psychoanalysis than others he never makes clear. Lord David Cecil appears to be somewhere in the middle of all this. For him, biography is not an important form of literary art, but it only a new form. The modern biographer, he claims, strives to make his product a work of art. His assertion that the aim of earlier biographers was not artistic may be true, but one thinks of Plutarch, Boswell, and even Walton as artistic in aim and accomplishment. Cecil's claim that earlier biographers strove to give people information, to tell the truth, is only generally true. The proper biographer then, in a literary sense at least, is an artist who aims at truth to fact.

Regarding the question of literary purity, in the sense of genre, I think we can admit biography as a department of literature. Not all biographies presumably belong here in the course of literary study. But no matter whether the subject is a political, military, or literary figure, his biography has a just claim to our consideration, so long as he appears both through the facts and through their artistic ordering as a human being sharing our common humanity.

Such a position might seem to offer too much latitude. What limits shall we set? What shall we do with the claims of Cellini's autobiography, Walton's "Lives", and the autobiography of Lord Herbert of Cherbury? Walton, enthusiastic about his subject is not altogether trustworthy in his details, yet he brings to life the persons he knew and adduces such evidence as he had to provide us with a life-size portrait suffused with his own warm humanity. Cellini and Lord Herbert both offer many fabrications about their own power and achievement; whether or not these are conscious distortions, we have again life-size portraits artistically arranged, and we have to leave facts out of mind for the moment. We can do this because, while aware of the demands of factual truth, we are responding by a kind of concession to fiction.

All this leads us to our third question: What are we now prepared to accept in the presentation of biographical subject-matter? There is a greater demand for fact at present than in earlier centuries, yet there are still many biographies that are half fictional. Much depends on the avowed purpose of the biographer. If the biographer seriously claims to give us the facts and fails to do so when they are to his knowledge available, he has performed a disservice to both history and literature. We need to be on guard against what seems deliberate distortion of facts to suit the biographer's prejudices. Marchette Chute cites the not-infrequent case of a biographer's seeing that A, B, and D fit well. He now must find C, which he may well try to force into alignment with the others, even though the process is a distortion. I can think of other instances of suspect method from my own limited experiences as a biographer. For instance, Samuel Daniel matriculated at Oxford University in 1581, where he probably met John Florio. Biographers of both men, on the basis of hearsay, assume that the two later became brothers-in-law, and on this assumption, which increasingly takes on the guise of fact, they build inferences and then statements of fact about quite other matters. Another fault in some biographers is their uncritical acceptance of what their predecessors have promulgated as fact. For example, I found that in the nineteenth century a claim was made that a certain printed letter was a forgery, and not authenticated by manuscript. The claim of forgery was unquestioningly accepted by everyone until it was shown that there was no forgery. These are some of the things that we must be aware of in reading biography of the kind that makes claims to truth-of-fact.

We need to be aware of the attitude and tone of the biographer. It is all to the good that we have largely left behind the hagiography of the past and have sought more for factual certainty. But attitude can still determine a tone that shapes facts in a way that leads to distortion. There was at the turn of the century a period of blunt, crude muckraking, when "warriors" were indeed in undress. The ugly facts may be so arranged as to give a misleading portrait of the subject. And there is another quality that needs to be noted, even in such a great biographer as Lytton Strachey, notably in his "Eminent Victorians." This is the tone, perhaps arising from self-esteem, that belittles the subject in a way that just misses being a sneer.

As we have seen, there has been range and diversity of attitude in the biographer, especially in more recent times. The examination of the subject has been more concentrated, and there is an increasing interest in the inner man, what made him act as he did. Of course such a purpose is evident in earlier biographers too, but not with such singleness of aim. Thus Emil Ludwig was saying in 1927 that the biographer's problem is nothing less than the human soul—a big Darwinian environment to the individual psychology. The question now becomes, says Ludwig, not so much "how did the individual harmonize with his world" as "does he harmonize with himself?"

This psychoanalytic approach to the study of biography, while often misapplied, has produced many new insights in our understanding of the subjects of biography. Ernest Jones' "Life of Freud" is an example of how facts may provide the ground for a psychoanalytic attempt to understand the man. And it has been psychology that has taught us as never before the importance of childhood in all men. This attention to childhood is evident in many modern biographies, as it almost never was in the past. Hirschmann's "Great Men: Psychoanalytic Studies," despite the sometimes heavy-handed treatment and the author's self-assurance, offers strong ground for the claim of Narcissism in Goethe, who held always before him the ideal of perfecting his personality. And Goethe in turn is shown as a sort of father-figure to his adoring young friend Eckermann. One of the classic examples of psychological insight into the significance of childhood in biography is Erikson's "Young Man Luther." In his "Literary Biography" Leon Edel gives us an account of the biographical facts that shaped Willa Cather's "The Professor's House" and to considerable degree inspired the artistic unity (and disunity, as well) of that novel. Edel provides in this instance a brilliant example of psychoanalysis and biography working in the service of literary criticism. These are only a few examples of the range and diversity of modern biography.

With perhaps a fuller recognition and understanding of what is the interest and attraction of biography, what are its claims as literary art, and what we are prepared to expect and accept as biography, we now return to the first question: the place of biography in the undergraduate curriculum.

Biography obviously has a popular appeal, perhaps because it satisfies the need to balance fiction with fact. The Sunday Book Review in the New York Times regularly provides almost as much space to reviews of biographies as of novels. Such widespread interest and acclaim requires that some attention be paid in the nation's classrooms to two aspects in the study of any biography: the reliability of its method and its achievement as art. Some discipline must be devised to prevent the uncritical acceptance of just anything read as biography. One important established aim of the teaching of literature in our schools implies this very thing—the cultivation of taste and discrimination in our young people.

A fuller inclusion of biography in the curriculum would also strengthen the perennial need—by no means a recent one—for interdisciplinary studies. The opportunity for such studies is inherent in the very nature of biography. We are not to suppose that there is anything novel about biography as a course of study. It has long been included as a part of our curriculum, although lately it seems to have fallen into disuse as an organized department of study, except for the Master's and Ph.D. programs which to considerable extent consist of literary biographies of specialized kinds. In many college undergraduate programs a course in biography is still offered. I propose that such a course be made more visible to all college students and that if possible biography have some representation in a genre course. The choice of works would be left to the judgment of the instructor who should be cautious about including biographies of contemporaries, heeding Addison's comment on the glib and careless popularizers, "the Grub Street biographers, who watch for the death of a great man, like so many undertakers, on purpose to make a penny of him."

And in the various courses within the curriculum we might well spend a little more time in directing our students in both college and high school to carefully check biographical matter for verification and to encourage in them an appreciation of what is good taste in the biographer. I can think of no better guide in this respect than Edmund Gosse, who holds that the writer of biography must make up his mind about the commission of certain sins of indiscretion: "He need not tell his story if his only solicitude is to give nobody cause of offense. The closer we come to the subject the more we wish to avoid the indelicate, and this sometimes leads up to tell lies. Of course we need good taste, but the rule should be 'how to be as indiscreet as possible within the boundaries of good taste and kind feeling.'" These are values of which the student can be made aware by the study of biography. The sadder aspects in the lives of Coleridge, Lamb, Burns and Poe should be dealt with for their sobering and humanizing effects on the reader.

In summary, biography which has a place in literature, should be made more visible in the curriculum, in the form of elective courses and of increased emphasis in various other courses in literature. Biography, itself not without examples of myth-making, has generally tended to work against myth, by its close attention to fact. Yet the psychoanalytic biography itself may be seen as a sort of myth-making in its effort to seek an explanation of what are sometimes dark and obscure matters in a human soul. These varied aims and methods of biography need to be brought to the student's attention through informed instruction.

96 ON B.S.C. FACULTY HAVE RECEIVED DOCTORATES

B.S.C. has 96 members of the faculty who have received their doctorates, according to the 1971-72 report of the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

With 242 faculty members at B.S.C., this is a percentage of 39.7, compared to 38.5 per cent for the 14 state-owned institutions. Dr. Robert J. Nossen, in reporting this to the Board of Trustees in July, noted that three years ago 25 per cent of the Bloomsburg faculty members held doctorates. Only Clarion, Indiana, Edinboro, Slippery Rock and Shippensburg have a higher percentage of doctorates.

B.S.C. has four faculty members holding bachelor's degrees, a percentage of 1.6 compared to 3.3 per cent for the 14 state-owned institutions. Master's degrees are held by 142 B.S.C. faculty members, or a percentage of 58.7 compared to 58.1 per cent for the 14 State-owned schools.

A group of Japanese students spent a week as visitors on the B.S.C. campus in July, and in August a group of German teachers were on campus for a week. The visitors were sponsored by the International Education Committee of B.S.C.

B.S.C. GRIDDERS PLAYING A TEN-GAME SCHEDULE

Bloomsburg State College opened its first ten-game football schedule in the history of the college with a disappointing 24-14 loss to Shippensburg S. C. They followed with victories over Scranton and Mansfield and a loss to Lock Haven.

In spite of the opening setback, B.S.C. Coach Bill Sproule, now in his second year at the helm of the Huskies, hopes to improve on last year's 4-5 record. He has 20 out of 22 veterans back from last year's squad in the starting lineups.

The offense has returning quarterback Joe Geiger, junior running-backs George Gruber and John James, and NAIA Honorable Mention Rich Walton, one of the finest offensive tackles in the east. Wide receiver Joe Courter and tightend Chris Sweet are back, with tackle Tom Jacobs, guards Joe Micko, Larry Donovan, or Dick Hahn, and center Jerry Witcoski rounding out the offensive line.

All conference team members defensive halfback Steve Shiffert, linebacker Dan Greenland, and defensive end Bill O'Donnell are the defensive leaders, together with co-captain John Cox and his tackle counterpart Glen Dewire and defensive end Dave Pruett. Gene Rejent is at the middle linebacker post while Charles Devanney and Joe Seibert round out the deep backs along with Bill Tierney as roverback. There are also some outstanding candidates from last year's freshmen team. Rich Walton is offensive captain and John Cox defensive captain.

Coach Sproul's assistants this year are: Clark Boler, defensive line; Tom Lyons, offensive line; Carl Hinkle, defensive backfield; Robert Gutshall, offensive backs; Joe Dambrosia, linebackers; and Cecil Turberville, trainer.

The complete B.S.C. schedule is as follows: September 9 — Shippensburg S.C.—A; September 16 — U. of Scranton—A; September 22 — Lock Haven S.C.—H; September 29 — Mansfield S.C.—H; October 7 — California S.C.—A; October 14 — West Chester S.C.—A; October 21 — Millersville S.C.—H; October 28 — Cheyney S.C.—A; November 4 — Kutztown S.C.—H; November 11 — East Stroudsburg S.C.—A.

B.S.C. SENIOR IS NAMED TO BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The State Senate has confirmed the appointment of Michael J. Torbert, 24 a senior at B.S.C., as a member of the Bloomsburg State College Board of Trustees. He is one of 14 students named as trustees at the state colleges and university.

Torbert, a Navy veteran, lives in Allentown. He replaces Edgar A. Fenstermacher, of Berwick, who served nine years as a trustee.

Other members of the board are Chairman William Zurich, Shamokin; Joseph Nespoli, Berwick; Frank Fay, Hazleton; Dr. Edward Weisbond, Mt. Carmel; William Booth, Danville; Frank D. Croop, Berwick; Guy D. Bangs, Orangeville, and the Hon. George Heffner, Pottsville.

N.C.A.A. Report Places College on Probation

On Monday, August 21, 1972, the National Collegiate Athletic Association through its president, Earl Ramer, in Chicago, released an announcement to the news media that because of alleged violations of NCAA regulations, Bloomsburg State College was to be placed on probation for a period of two years (until August, 1974). During the first year of the probationary period, varsity athletic teams at Bloomsburg would be able to participate in regularly scheduled games. They would not, however, be able to participate in any post-season tournaments or championship events.

At some time prior to the end of the two-year period, the NCAA would again investigate the athletic program at BSC to determine whether the probationary period should end as previously stated.

Due to some inaccuracies which already have been noted in the NCAA report, and the claim by some individuals of other inaccuracies, the editors of the Quarterly decided not to reprint the entire text of the NCAA report at this time.

HAS INFLATION INVADED B.S.C.'S GRADE MARKET?

Are B.S.C. students of recent years smarter than their counterparts of the late 50's, or are the professors becoming more lenient with their grading?

This is one of the questions raised by a comparative study of grades issued recently by Dr. M. W. Sanders, Director of Institutional Research. One general observation made in the report is that only the Fall term of 1969-70 has a mean grade point average (2.47) as low as any in the five-year period from 1956 to 1960. By comparison, the mean grade point average for the Spring term, 1971-72 was 2.68. For the year 1956-57 it was 2.41.

One faculty member, referring to a recent New York Times article, asks if "there is an inflation of grades." He reported that he believes his own grades to be higher than those five years ago.

During the five-year period, 1956-60, the percentage of A's ranged from 10.8 to 14.3; B's from 30.9 to 32.9; C's from 40.4 to 43.0; D's from 7.5 to 10.2 and E's from 1.6 to 2.5.

Last year the A's averaged 16.9 percent; B's 37.5; C's 31.4; D's 6.5 and E's 1.5.

Withdrawals from courses last year amounted to 5.5 percent, more than double those of any year back in the late 50's.

APPOINTED

Dr. H. Benjamin Powell, Department of History, has been appointed editor of "Pennsylvania History," the quarterly journal of the Pennsylvania Historical Association, for the academic year 1972-1973. "Pennsylvania History" contains articles of national significance and enjoys international circulation.

HUSKY CAGERS WILL TRAVEL TO VIRGIN ISLANDS

An away contest with the College of the Virgin Islands on St. Thomas Island, the Christmas Tree Tournament at Indiana, Pa., and the addition of the strong Edinboro S.C. cagers are highlights of the 1972-73 Bloomsburg State College basketball schedule, which is probably the toughest ever faced by the Huskies.

The game at the College of the Virgin Islands is the most unique of any cage game in the history of B. S. C. not only due to the distance to be travelled but also because none of the expenses will be charged to the college. The team members have agreed to raise money on their own in order to pay for their transportation and the expenses while the team is at the College of the Virgin Islands will be taken care of by that institution.

In the Christmas Tree Tournament, Bloomsburg will face the strong teams of Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Otterbein College, and the University of Wisconsin at River Falls.

Coach Charles Chronister states, "We are certainly looking forward to this exciting schedule, particularly since we have a fine array of talent available for the 1972-73 season. We hope to improve on last year's 18-7 record and be a contender for the conference title."

The complete schedule is as follows: Dec. 2 — West Chester—H; Dec. 6 — Shippensburg—A; Dec. 9 — Kutztown—H; Dec. 13 — Millersville—A; Dec. 28-29 — Christmas Tree Tournament — Indiana, Pa.; Jan. 3 — College of the Virgin Islands—A; Jan. 10 — Mansfield—H; Jan. 13 — York College—A; Jan. 15 — Kings College—H; Jan. 17 — Lycoming College—A; Jan. 20 — Wilmington College—H; Jan. 24 — Lock Haven—H; Jan. 27 — East Stroudsburg—A; Jan. 30 — Edinboro—A; Feb. 3 — Cheyney—H; Feb. 7 — West Chester—A; Feb. 9 — Baptist Bible—H; Feb. 10 — Shippensburg—H; Feb. 14 — Kutztown—A; Feb. 17 — Millersville—H; Feb. 21 — Mansfield—A; Feb. 24 — East Stroudsburg—H; Feb. 28 — Cheyney—A.

Commissioner of Education Ewald B. Nyquist announced recently the appointment of William L. Bitner, 33 Lincoln Ave., Glens Falls, N. Y. 12801, as associate commissioner for instructional services in the State Education Department. The appointment will become effective October 24.

In his new job, Bitner succeeds Philip B. Langworthy, who retired in May.

The 39-year-old Bitner is currently superintendent of schools in Glens Falls, a position he has held since 1963. Prior to that, from 1961 to 1963, he was assistant to the superintendent for personnel and community relations in the Plainview - Old Beth Page Public Schools. From 1958 to 1961, he served as assistant superintendent in Scotch Plains, New Jersey. His first professional job in 1956 was as an English and history teacher in the same system.

In his new position, Bitner will report directly to Thomas D. Sheldon, deputy commissioner for elementary, secondary, and continuing education, and will be responsible for administering the Department's entire instructional program. This includes curriculum development and instruction, school district organization, continuing education, occupational education, and education of the handicapped.

In announcing the appointment, Commissioner Nyquist said: "I am particularly pleased to have a man as young as Dr. Bitner, and yet with such diversified experience, join the Education Department in this key role. With the entire concept of the traditional role of instruction being re-examined in the light of current needs and pressures, I am confident Dr. Bitner can bring new insight into the Department's operation."

The new associate commissioner is a graduate of William Penn High School in Harrisburg, Pa. He received his bachelor of science degree in English and social studies from Pennsylvania State College in Bloomsburg, Pa.; his master of arts in curriculum and supervision from Rutgers University; and his doctorate of education in administration from New York University.

In discussing his educational philosophy, Bitner said: "Our schools must provide a desirable environment where all children are given opportunities to grow at their own rate in their individual way — physically, emotionally, mentally, and socially. Our schools must be geared to provide an education for the tremendous assortment of children who come from many different cultural and economic backgrounds that are present in this country. This must include the best possible education for all children — the bright, the average, and the slow-learning."

"We must also seek new and unique methods, combined with superior teaching and adequate facilities, in order to meet the demands that are being placed on our educational program."

Among the innovations introduced in Glens Falls schools during Bitner's term as superintendent was a program in international education featured in publications of the National Council for the Social Studies and the subject of a recent filmstrip produced by the American Association of School Administrators. The district has also served as the model for a new elementary social studies course entitled, "Man: A Course of Study." Bitner also developed a high school plan to provide laboratory experiences in social studies, English, business education, mathematics, physical education, and industrial arts.

Professionally, Bitner is president-elect of the New York State Council of School administrators and has served since 1970 as president of the Association for the Advancement of International Education. In 1966, he was cited as New York State's "Outstanding Young Man of the Year" by the State Jaycee organization.

BLOOMSBURG ALUMNA HAS ART EXHIBIT AT HAAS

Bloomsburg State College presented a retrospective exhibition of drawings, paintings, and sculptures by its distinguished alumna, Ruth Hutton Ancker, in Haas Center for the Arts from September 12 through October 6. More than 50 works were on display.

The exhibit was designed to exemplify the artist's development. In her case, this goes back to 1920, when she became a student at Parson's School of Design at New York and Paris. She worked out of the Paris office of "Women's Wear Daily" and covered the Riviera in 1927-31.

It was during that period, and while she was teaching art at the university level that Mrs. Ancker became increasingly interested in fine art, and in her spare time studied water color, oil paintings, and lithography. In the early 1940's while studying at Columbia University she came under the influence of the late American sculptor, Oronzio Maldarelli, who persuaded her that her future lay in sculpture. In 1950 she began exhibiting her sculpture, winning an award at Washington, D.C. in her first competition. Success after success followed.

A graduate of the old Bloomsburg Normal School, Mrs. Ancker is a native whose ancestors were among the first settlers of Bloomsburg in 1810. In 1839, Daniel Snyder, her maternal great-grandfather, donated "10 or 15 acres" on what is now College Hill as the site for Bloomsburg Academy, of which BSC is a direct outgrowth. In 1964, in connection with the Tercentenary celebration of New Jersey, where Mrs. Ancker lived for a number of years, the literary quarterly "University Woman" cited her as "one of the outstanding women in New Jersey history," and in 1967 the BSC Alumni Association presented her with its Distinguished Service Award.

Her late brother, Robert Hutton, was for a long time a teacher of geography in the Bloomsburg Area Schools. She is an elected member of the Philadelphia Art Alliance, the Painters & Sculptors Society of New Jersey, and the National Society of Arts and Letters. Since November, 1964, Mrs. Ancker has been a resident of Washington, D.C., where her husband is an advertising and marketing consultant.

COL. WAGNER RETIRES, JOINS PENN STATE STAFF

Colonel Elwood M. Wagner, Professor of Air Force Aerospace Studies at The Penn State University, was retired from the Air Force July 31 after more than thirty years active and reserve service. He was honored by a formal retreat retirement ceremony at historic Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., and received the Meritorious Service Medal.

Col. Wagner has been named Records Officer in the Division of Admissions, Records, and Scheduling at the Pennsylvania State University.

He succeeds James M. Herron, who resigned from the position last month.

Announcing the appointment, Warren R. Haffner, director of the Division, explained that Mr. Wagner will have the overall responsibility for the registration and academic record keeping of all credit students enrolled at all locations within the University system.

A native of Hamburg, Pa., Colonel Wagner entered the Air Corps in 1943 after his graduation from Bloomsburg State College. Requesting release from active duty in 1946, he enrolled for graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania. He re-entered the Air Force in 1947 and completed his masters degree at the University of Pennsylvania in 1951. He also received a master of science degree at George Washington University.

During World War II, Colonel Wagner was assigned to the China-Burma-India Theatre where he flew 444 combat missions in the Battle of Burma and the "Hump." He served also on the R.O.T.C. staff at Ohio State University and on assignments in Japan and Hawaii as well as at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C. He also attended the Air Force Command and Staff College and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

Prior to his appointment to head the Air Force R.O.T.C. program at Penn State, Colonel Wagner was director of the Dependents' Education program for Headquarters, U. S. Air Force in Europe at Wiesbaden, Germany, with responsibility for the operation of 100 schools located in eight countries requiring 2,000 teachers and supporting personnel for 45,000 students.

Colonel Wagner is married to the former Kay Jones, Class of '43.

FINE ARTS CONSULTANT

Dr. Perciva Roberts, Department of Art, has been retained by the Public Building Services of the General Services Department of the U.S. government to serve as Fine Arts Consultant in the first Fine Arts inventory of those works of art are commissioned by the Federal government and located in government buildings.

UPPER CAMPUS TO BE USED TO AID VICTIMS OF FLOOD

B.S.C.'s role in aiding victims of the June flood continued long after the flood waters subsided. In fact, a portion of the campus will be used to aid persons made homeless by the flood for at least another year.

Governor Milton Shapp has approved use of a portion of the 'upper campus' as the location for approximately 90 mobile home units to be provided homeless flood victims.

The 103-acre upper campus area was originally planned as a second campus, but at present only the new field house is located there. An athletic field is planned, but development of the remainder of the upper campus area will depend on Commonwealth policy regarding state college building programs. Because utilities have been installed there, it is regarded as an ideal site for a temporary housing project.

During the weeks that followed the flood the college was a center for the relief work in the area. The new Administration building, open only long enough for the business office to move in, was put to use early when the State Police moved in from their flooded headquarters downtown, establishing both a command post and sleeping quarters. The National Guard also operated out of offices in the new building and used Centennial gym as a dormitory.

Within a week following the flood, Washington sent Lt. Col. Ray Beery, a U.S. Air Force officer on special detail, to Bloomsburg to set up an Office of Emergency Preparedness. Again the new Administration Building was selected as the area for this service, which housed a total of 11 offices.

Still another service rendered by the college, in conjunction with the Cooperative Extension Service, was water testing for area residents with priorities given to private water systems supplying a public service business or more than one family. Dr. Michael Herbert, of the B.S.C. Department of Biology and a qualified microbiologist, directed this activity which lasted several days. B.S.C. biology students also aided in taking samples of impounded water to be examined for presence of mosquito larvae under the mosquito control program.

The American Red Cross also established its Disaster Service Center in the new Administration Building.

Not all the people who were housed at the College were from the greater Bloomsburg area. One Ohio couple found themselves stranded in Bloomsburg by the closing of Interstate 80, and with motel accommodations exhausted, they were directed to the College. In appreciation they sent a check for $50 and a thank-you letter that ended with the following:

"P.S. On the lighter side—now after sixty-nine years I can say as do some of our youthful contemporaries, my wife and I were roommates at college."

APPOINTED CURATOR

Dr. Craig Newton, History Department, has been appointed Curator of the Columbia County Historical Society, replacing Dr. Ralph Herre, who retired.

A book, "A Quiet Hometown: Jamison City, Pa. 1889-1912" written by Dr. Newton and James Sperry, also of the History Department, went into a second printing in July. The monograph is one of the few studies of Community structure and life during the heyday of the lumbering and tanning days and has been popular with those who know the North Mountain country.

ABOUT 'COLLEGE KIDS'

The following letter is reprinted from the Bloomsburg Morning Press.

I would like to speak out a little about some of our "bad college kids."

I'm 9 months pregnant and have 3 step sons. On June 22, 1972 we were forced to leave our home because of flood waters. During the course of this day, the boys and I moved to four different locations trying to find a safe place.

Finally, at 8:30 P.M. we went to Bloom College for shelter. We were drenched, tired, and very discouraged. At the college, my sister-in-law registered us, and from then on the treatment was nothing but "royal."

Those kids worked their hearts out trying to make us comfortable and relieve our worries. My father-in-law, because of his heart, and I because of my condition, were reassured of the medical facilities.

Those college girls and boys were calm and reassuring and kept our minds off of what there was to go back home to.

On Saturday afternoon some dear friends of ours were able to make the trip to Bloom and offered a place in their home for us.

On leaving some of the girls at the desk were still smiling and cheerful after only a couple of hours of sleep since Thursday, I really believe people should see the other side of our college kids before they class all of them as "bad."

To our family we will never forget how they extended their helping hand to us, when we had no-one or no place else to turn to.

Thank you,
The Kile Family

DR. NELSON LAUDED AS A DEVOTED ALUMNUS

by Ed Schuyler '24

"It is only a small college but there are those of us who love it."

These sentiments of the great statesman Daniel Webster with regard to his alma mater, Dartmouth, Hanover, N. H., can be applied with emphasis to the devotion Dr. E. H. Nelson held for the now Bloomsburg State College from the time he entered "the friendly College on the hill" early in the present century until his death June 7, 1961.

One of the foremost educators in the nation in the field of physical education and holder of the AB degree from the University of Michigan, the ME from Harvard and the Ph.D. from New York University, Dr. Nelson's allegiance to Bloomsburg was total throughout his life.

He was a leader as a student in campus activities and in athletics; he was an able, inspiring and dedicated instructor as BSC director of health education and baseball coach from 1924 to 1945, and the enthusiastic and capable president of the BSC Alumni Association from 1946 until his death.

Dr. Nelson was held in the highest regard by students, graduates and all who in any way were in contact with the College or had knowledge of its programs and its progress.

By resolution at the time of his passing the board of trustees, Judge C. W. Kreisher, president, and Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, College president, asserted Dr. Nelson "represented much of the best that is Bloomsburg" and spoke of him as "a man who was esteemed by his associates, loved by his friends and respected by all."

The late Dr. Francis B. Haas, former president of the College and for whom Dr. Nelson served as chief of health and physical education, Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction, in a tribute at the time of Dr. Nelson's death penned: "His many interests touched, vitalized, and strengthened every phase of our American life through his interest and work in religion, in education, in civic and family life, in fraternal activities, in physical welfare and in the progress and success of his students."

Fatally ill during the spring of '61, Dr. Nelson nonetheless directed the plans for the fiftieth year reunion of his class of 1911. His death occurred less than two weeks after that event was held.

We sincerely believe, and know that a legion of alumni share the belief, that mature and deep consideration should be given to naming the new field house on Bloomsburg's upper campus for Dr. Elna Harrison Nelson.

In so doing Bloomsburg State College would not only be honoring one of its most illustrious and devoted sons but would also reflect glory upon itself.

As a result of the recent disaster in Eastern Pennsylvania, it is very likely that there will be an increasing need for Alumni Loans and Scholarships. The officers of the Alumni Association want to be prepared to meet these requests. You, the Alumni of the College, can make this possible by your generous contributions to the Bloomsburg Foundation. Your contributions will be used in the way that you indicate.

By the time this issue of the Quarterly reaches you, there will be a new occupant in the office of the President of the College. At the time of writing, this person has not yet been chosen. Whoever he may be, we wish him well, with the hope that his administration will be a successful one, and that the academic standards of the College will be maintained.

Please continue to assist your Alumni Association in its support of the College.

As I write the President's Message, I am aware that the Quarterly will not be distributed until January. I must, however, begin here by wishing you a belated Christmas greeting as we are rapidly approaching this wonderful season of the year.

The first semester has now been completed, and, looking back, it has been a very interesting period of time for me and the College. We look with satisfaction regarding our work with the National Collegiate Athletic Association. It is our interest to maintain a good relationship with this organization as we hold them in very high regard.

On November 27 and 28, 1972, we enjoyed a campus visit by a three-member team representing the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Those on the team were Dr. James J. Forcina (Team Chairman), Executive Vice President, Trenton State College; Dr. Clifford J. Craven, President, State University of New York at Oneonta; and Dr. Claire M. Olds, Dean of Students, Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, New York. While the Office of the President has not received an official response from Middle States, it is our understanding that the Team Report was a positive one.

Our mid-year Commencement was held in the evening for the first time in the history of Bloomsburg State College. Members of the Board of Trustees, students, family, and friends joined with us in this very important event. The major address was given by Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, Dean of the School of Professional Studies.

In conclusion, I wish to take this opportunity to wish all of our Alumni the very best for the coming year. It is through this "Spirit of Good Will" that we continue to build a college of which we can be proud.

Systematic Selection Techniques May Be Used For Matching Students to Field of Study

Selecting the right people for the right job, a matter of serious concern for any employer, is becoming more and more systematized through research and study.

When Dr. William Jones, Director of Human Resources and Services at BSC, selected his course of study for last year's Sabbatical Leave, he chose to work with SRI (Selection Research Inc.) of Lincoln, Nebraska. The potential for future use at BSC included the possibilities of aiding in developing a better system for selecting college students, for developing a system for selecting students with a high teaching potential to go into teacher training programs, and for the selection and development of successful college faculty and/or administrators. The possibility that area schools might also be interested in the system as it would apply to selecting the best teachers, now that teachers are plentiful in most fields, was also considered.

The Selection Research, Inc. system for selecting teachers and administrators does not use computers. Instead, a doctoral level psychologist makes a recommendation after an analysis of a tape-recorded, stress-free, structured interview based on 20 years of research.

Dr. Jones' report of his sabbatical work follows:

Concerning SRI

SRI is a relatively new firm, although the research behind their activity has been going on for the past 20 years. There are 12 professionals (8 with doctorates) on the staff who have shown proficiency in working with people. Most of them are psychologists. A larger number of non-professionals play support roles in the offices. Some staff members are part time but all are dedicated to constructive use of psychological knowledge to develop human potential. They provide guidance in identifying and developing potentiality in prospective staff members (or staff members) in schools, businesses or industry and other civil agencies. Staff members devote long hours, sometimes 7 days a week and holidays. The number of hours scheduled is of an individual choice and depends on the job at hand. All employees are excited about their work, more excited about what they are doing to help people than how much money they can make. Each has knowledge of what the other is doing and often will leave his own project to help another when needed. Even the office personnel set their own work schedules and usually keep the office open evenings and weekends. The whole system was an example of efficiency, without the emotional pressure of anyone standing over any individual but rather allowing each to be his or her own boss for the most part. Suggestions for improvement were freely offered and accepted but more often, and more important, work well done was recognized. Thus, it was a good demonstration of an ideal working situation, with work efficiency and team work. The key to this arrangement was in selecting the right people; people who are well adjusted, who relate easily to others, who can determine priorities and set goals, and who can adjust to change.

System Of Selection

Selection of the people with the most potential for success in a given field and the development of such people on the job plus continuous research along these lines are the primary functions of SRI, thus the reason for the name, Selection Research, Inc. The approach has been to study the successful people in the particular field in question and then select more with the same essential characteristics through a structured interview technique involving an analysis of what the person has answered to straightforward questions about himself, his family and his work. From this analysis a prediction of this person's on-the-job success is made with suggestions for management and development. The manager of a business concern or the administrator of a school and/or college must be the type who can use such information constructively; therefore he usually goes through the interview process first with direct "feedback" following the analysis of his interview. Not all managerial or administrative personnel can be successful with this process. SRI determines this before proceeding.

My Work Assignment

To fully learn a system or process, one must work with it. I was given the title of Executive Associate and assigned to coordinate special projects along with assisting in the development of the selection process for teachers, school administrators, law enforcement officers, and house parents for residential schools. I coordinated the efforts of SRI staff members in three separate projects, all designed to help staff members of residential schools recognize and develop desirable characteristics in their students. A school for the blind, a school for delinquent boys and a school for delinquent girls were the three settings of these projects. I also assisted in writing of government approved grant projects and in conducting workshops in the following areas: "Needs Assessment" — for a large school system, "Program Planning" — for a large school system, "Facilitating Good Teaching" — for school administrators and house parents of a residential school, "Setting Measurable Goals and Objectives," and "In-Service Training of Guidance Counselor Personnel." Although I did not work directly with a project at the University of Nebraska, as I did 10 years ago, called The Human Resources Foundation, where the development of human potential in college students is studied, I did become somewhat familiar with the present work being conducted with that project.

SRI is conducting other work with which I was not fully involved. It might be of interest to note these areas. A large portion of their work involves the selecting of managerial personnel (including a President of one major company) and selling personnel for insurance companies. They developed "learning kits" for teacher use in several school systems. They sponsor a nursery school for study of a preschool program. They offer assistance in vocational guidance to two different school systems. They are supervising a new training program for prison guards. (I found that Law Enforcement people and those in charge of penal institutions get very little help or even understanding in selecting or training people for a most important job in our society.) A leadership academy which will involve successful teachers is being formed. A "community response" system has been devised to give businesses immediate feedback from customers on their products or advertisements. A new study is being developed on how "community leaders" are identified and used by the community.

This issue of the Alumni Quarterly features a campus scene of yesterday on the cover. The building, Waller Hall, is still intact, although it is scheduled for demolition in a year or so to make room for a new dormitory. The walk and portico, as well as the views, disappeared when the new Scranton Commons was built.

Much of my work last year took me throughout the State of Nebraska. For my own part, many new acquaintances and different points of view were gained in various professional fields, such as: law enforcement, penal institutions, public schools, businesses and industry. This experience alone has been invaluable and given me many new insights.

It is hoped that my relationship with SRI can continue without interfering with my work here at the College but rather to facilitate my work at the College plus being of assistance to colleagues when this assistance is desired. This joint relationship has already proved beneficial in that Dr. Donald O. Clifton, President of SRI, was our main speaker for the Education Conference in October.

Application

The possibilities for application of what I learned working with SRI are numerous. A few possibilities are offered here.

1. There is a possibility of perfecting the system of selecting students with "good teacher" potential to go into teacher training programs. This may be very important for such programs as Speech Pathology and Teaching of Mentally Retarded where there is an overabundance of student interest.
2. There is a possibility of developing a system of more accurately identifying the potentially successful college student for enrollment.
3. Assistance in selecting and developing faculty or improving departmental inter-staff relations is available on a large or small scale basis.
4. The development of an on-campus project involving students and or faculty in the area of human relations, a key to success in any field.
5. The development of an outreach advisory service to other agencies, businesses and industries in the State of Pennsylvania in the area of staff selection and management.

I personally feel very elated about the experience of working with Selection Research, Inc. and would be most happy to talk to anyone who would desire to explore any possibilities. By continuing a relationship with SRI, their staff and body of knowledge will be readily available for our use.

PLAN NOW FOR ALUMNI DAY
MAY 5

Six B.S.C. athletes of the late 60's had a brief reunion in October when they were guests of honor at the college's Homecoming weekend.

It was a brief visit for Tucker, who had to get back to New York and his job as tight end with the New York Giants of the National Football Conference.

Last year Tucker was the NFC's leading pass receiver in his rookie year, but this season had to settle for second place with 52 receptions for 725 yards. Regarded as one of the best tight ends in pro football, he was named to the second team in UPI's All-NFC selections.

B.S.C. RECEIVES GRANT FROM EASTMAN KODAK

Dr. Charles H. Carlson, Acting President of Bloomsburg State College, has announced that a grant of $1,000 has been awarded to the college by Eastman Kodak Company's program of aid to higher education. The grant is based upon graduates who joined the company within five years following graduation and are now completing their fifth year of company employment. The BSC grant was based on the employment of Robert J. Donahue, a 1965 graduate who majored in mathematics in secondary education and now resides at 849 Whalen Road, Pennfield, N. J.

Kodak grants benefit some 330 college and universities and involve $3.3 million. These direct grants have represented an important part of Kodak's higher education for many years. Introduced in 1955 to assist privately supported schools, the plan was expanded in 1969 to include publicly supported institutions. It is being enlarged further this year to provide for grants to two year public and private colleges.

ELECTED

Harry C. Strine III, Speech Department, was elected Vice President for the Pennsylvania State College Forensics Association during the 1972-73 school year.

COLLEGE BAND PLANNING SUMMER TRIP TO SPAIN

The College Concert Band is planning a two-week cultural-concert tour in Spain during June of 1973. Some sixty student instrumentalists, under the direction of Stephen C. Wallace, member of the Music Department faculty and Director of Bands, will travel to several Spanish cities both to sight-see and present programs of selected concert band repertoire.

The tour-project is being planned through the efforts of Dr. Alfred E. Tonolo, member of the Department of Foreign Languages, BSC, in his capacity as President of the Spanish Cultural Center at the campus.

ELECTED

Tom Cooper, Director of Admissions, was elected President of the Admissions Officers of the Pennsylvania State Colleges and University for the 1972-73 academic year at the organization's biannual meeting in Harrisburg.

OBITERS NEEDED

The staff of the Harvey A. Andruss Library has a need for Obiters for 1919 and 1939. These are needed to fill gaps in the Obiter file maintained by the Library.

Scott E. Miller, Jr., Acting Director of Library Services, would appreciate hearing from anyone who would like to donate either of these editions to the Library.

Social Studies Institute Features 'Learn By Doing' Techniques

Approximately 60 social studies teachers representing 24 area school districts attended a Social Studies Institute at Bloomsburg State College in November and were treated to a demonstration of the maxim attributed to John Dewey, educator, political scientist, and historian that students "learn by doing," as that maxim was applied to the teaching of politics in civics and problems of democracy courses in secondary schools.

The demonstration was offered in four programs sponsored by the Bloomsburg State College Institute for Social Studies Teachers under the direction of George A. Turner, associate professor of history. The conference dealt with Project 18, a new and unique course on politics developed by Dr. John Madden of Lower Merion School District in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Education and the League of Women Voters.

The first demonstration concerned an analysis of 18 excerpts taken from speeches of presidential candidates and teachers present were asked to identify the author of the quote and to speculate about the nature of the group to which the candidate was appealing. The lesson was designed to demonstrate to students that candidates appeal to group interests, hoping to win their support.

"Behavior of a Politician: an Interview with Richardson Dilworth," was the second demonstration and was conducted via video tape. Mr. Dilworth gave his candid views on such things as pressure politics, campaign contributions, honesty and dishonesty in politics, and the influence of youth at the 1972 National Democratic Convention. He also discussed ways of getting involved in politics at the ward level, the nature of political machines, and his impressions about recent political campaigns.

The third demonstration was entitled "Political Action Tactics," and dealt with tactics as organization, applying pressure, lobbying, propagandizing, etc., as occurred in Philadelphia with the black political organization.

The fourth demonstration dealt with "The Person as Voter: Expanding the Franchise." It involved a candid look at the way voters are disenfranchised by illegal and legal means. Devices used to discourage voting were discussed and students were motivated to devise tactics to counter such disenfranchising tactics.

The final session was an evaluation of the demonstrations and the entire program of study and action. Dr. John R. Madden, Project 18 director, informed his audience that the first evaluation concerning Unit One of the course by the students involved was a 4.6 on a possible 5 point scale.

Project 18, designed to combine good pedagogy with a realistic picture of the nature and process of politics as it is, not as it ought to be ideally, was developed by experts in education, political science and communications under a $100,000 grant received under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. The program, which seeks to balance student involvement with the transmission of the substance of politics, is currently being tried in 12 urban and rural school districts throughout the state and preliminary evaluations by the students taking the course indicate that it will be successful.

Designed as a one-semester civics or problems of democracy course, Project 18 takes the approach that politics is the way political leaders distribute advantages and disadvantages, usually in response to certain demands by groups having resources such as organization, money influence, etc. that enable them to use tactics that make the political decision makers respond to their demands. The course is divided into six units, all of which combine student participation, audio-visual aids, and simulations. The units are: "Politics—Who gets What and How," "The Citizen's Role in Government: Exercise in Practical Political Action," "The Structure and Function of American State and Local Political Institutions," "How Political Leaders are Chosen: Elections and Voting," "Characteristics Influencing American Political Attitudes and Behavior," and "Evaluating Political Strategies."

In each of the units, students are urged to get involved in the political decision-making process by articulating their demands and designing strategies and tactics to achieve them in consultation with a "resource person" from the locality, always in terms of a cost-benefit analysis.

Accompanying the course, in addition to film strips, including an interview with Richardson Dilworth, former mayor of Philadelphia and Democratic candidate for Governor, are resource books for the students and the teachers, a practical work book for students, and a simulation that mirrors the structure of the state and forces the students to play the roles of people from each of the state's districts, seeking policies from the state government that further their interests. Readings in the student resource book are designed to give a realistic picture of politics and the bargaining, compromising, and accommodation that goes on usually among groups with the necessary resources required to bargain. Authors such as the late Saul Alinsky, organizer, and Robert Dahl, a leading political scientist, are represented in the reading selections as are newspaper journalists who cover the state government institutions and actual politicians.

It is expected that the entire course package will be available for use next September and can be purchased at cost by interested school districts. Teachers involved in the program completed a two-week orientation course on methods and approaches involved, and there is a possibility that the course will be taught this summer at BSC if there is sufficient interest.

The next program planned by the Social Studies Institute will aim at teachers of world cultures and will concern India. It will be offered in February, 1973.

FLOYD GRIMM RECEIVES AWARD FOR ARTICLE

Floyd M. Grimm III, a BSC graduate and currently Associate Professor of Biology at Harford Community College, Bel Air, Md., is the recipient of a special award for an article published in the September issue of the American Biology Teacher.

His article entitled, "Crown Gall Disease: Model of Carcinogenesis" received honorable mention in an award program initiated last year by The National Association of Biology Teachers and Bausch and Lomb, a national manufacturer of scientific and optical equipment. The special award program was set up to recognize outstanding manuscripts of two year college biology education.

Grimm earned both his Bachelor of Science and Master of Education degrees from Bloomsburg State College in the mid 1960's. As an undergraduate student, he was an outstanding performer on the swimming team of Coach Eli McLaughlin. He teaches in the natural science division of Harford Community College where he has been a member of the faculty since 1968.

ATTENTION CLASS OF 1972

If you are a member of the class of 1972 and have not yet received your '72 Obiter, please let us know. Address your letters to Kenneth C. Hoffman, Box 219, BSC.

An undetermined number of mailing labels were lost in the mail. The mailing was done by the North Carolina printing firm, and we have no way of knowing who was omitted from the mailing.

Obiters are mailed to addresses on record at time of graduation unless the Alumni Office received a change of address prior to August 1. Be sure your current address is included in any communication concerning a missing Obiter.

TRAVELING FACULTY

Members of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology attending the annual Pennsylvania Sociological Society meeting held at Lehigh University on October 20 and 21 are: Dr. Chang Shub Roh, Dr. David A. Greenwald, Dr. Ralph R. Ireland, Joseph A. DeFelice, Dr. James H. Huber, Jane J. Plumpis, Bernard J. Schneck, and Robert R. Solenberger. The theme of the meeting is "The Varieties of the Sociological Experience."

Year-Round School Schedules Aren't Here Yet, But May Be On The Way

By Joanie Zlotnicki
B.S.C. '73

A middle-aged mother of six school-age children says "It's a terrible idea."

A twelve-year elementary teacher comments "I prefer the old plan. We've always done it that way."

A nine-year old fourth grader says simply "ugh!"

The 'terrible idea' is the year-round school concept being considered by many educators as a replacement for the traditional nine-month school year with its three-month summer vacation.

School systems in 12 states are now offering some form of year-round education and many others are either studying or testing such programs.

There are several variations of the extended school year but two forms are currently receiving the most attention. The plan most popular in high schools has a schedule of four 12-week terms. Under this plan the student attends three of the four quarters each year.

The other plan receiving considerable attention is known as the '45-15' plan. Under this schedule each of four groups of pupils attends classes for 45 weekdays and then has a 15-day vacation. The schedule is staggered so that only three groups are attending classes at any one time. Efforts are made to give members of the same family and residents of the same neighborhoods the same vacation periods.

The year-round system has been found to cost less, after the initial expense, and it alleviated problems of accommodation and shortage of facilities by making the maximum use of buildings and equipment. Teachers can benefit by having the opportunity to teach for the full year if they wish.

For the students, actual time in school would be no greater under any of the proposals than it is now—180 school days.

Year-round curriculum expansions are likely to be made slowly and only after careful study. The many problems involved, especially for the smaller districts, prevents any rapid conversion to a 12-month school curriculum.

Dr. Craig Himes, B.S.C. professor and a member of the Central Columbia school board, sees bus transportation as an insurmountable problem under existing laws. The same number of buses would be required for the district but each bus would carry fewer children on each trip. The state reimburses 65 per cent of bus costs if the bus has 80 per cent occupancy. If there is less the district is not eligible for the state appropriation.

George Turner, also a B.S.C. professor and a member of the Bloomsburg School Board sees our "pattern of societal life" as the greatest opposition to year-round school. It is innovative, but it affects our greatest resource, our children, so it would consequently need a period of acquaintance and adjustment for the public, he points out.

"The decision should be left to the taxpayer," says John Dennen, another B.S.C. professor and Warrior Run School Board member. He added that the school board is aware of the changes taking place in education but that any developments they make will be "service for and by the taxpayer."

Edwin L. Hoffman, Jr., a member of the Berwick School Board, recently served as a member of an ad hoc Educational Committee of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce organized solely for the purpose of studying year-round school. Mr. Hoffman views year-round schools as an asset to education, financially and scholastically. The findings of his committee are favorable but he is opposed to any school district adopting full force experimental programs unless they are sure of the attitudes of the people and the consequences of the program for that area.

While there are arguments for and against the year-round schools, they are what is currently happening in education and it seems they will be here eventually.

BSC HOSPITALITY SUITE IN ATLANTIC CITY

For the second consecutive year Bloomsburg State College will maintain a Hospitality Suite at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel during the American Association of School Administrators' annual conference, February 24-27, 1973 in Atlantic City.

All Alumni are cordially invited to visit the Hospitality Suite and learn the latest about the college and its programs. Watch for posters in Atlantic City which will indicate the room numbers and the hours the Hospitality Suite will be open.

There will be representatives from different departments of the college to answer questions and give up-to-date information about the institution. There will be slides, films, and light refreshments available. Everyone is welcome.

ELECTED

Dr. Victor X. Fongemie, Dept. of Psychology, has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Columbia-Montour Mental Health Association. Dr. Fongemie also just completed a review and evaluation of the Columbia-Montour-Snyder-Union County Mental Health/Mental Retardation Program.

NCAA Reduces the Penalties Imposed On B.S.C. Sports

Penalties imposed on varsity athletic teams at Bloomsburg State College by the National Collegiate Athletic Association in August, 1972, have been eased and several charges of violations have been removed from the original NCAA report.

All varsity athletic teams except wrestling became eligible as of Oct. 24, 1972, to participate in post-season championships or tournament play. The ban against post-season competition remains in effect for the wrestling team, but the ban may be lifted during the 1973-74 academic year.

The adjustment of penalties was announced by NCAA Assistant Executive Director Warren Brown in a letter to ESC's Acting President Dr. Charles Carlson in November. Dr. Carlson had appealed to NCAA for a review of the case after several charges of violations had been retracted.

Charges of changing high school records of prospective student-athletes against the then director of admissions, alleged to have occurred prior to the 1965-66 academic year, and charges of paying athletes who did no work were found to be untrue and were dropped. The original charges had involved the then dean of students and the director of athletics. Brown's letter, and a subsequent clarification, clearly exonerates Dr. C. Stuart Edwards and Elton Hunsinger from any charges of violations of NCAA regulations. At the time the alleged violations were originally charged to have occurred, they were respectively director of admissions and dean of students. Brown's clarification states: "Accordingly, the Resolution adopted August 18, 1972, by the Council (NCAA) should be altered by removing the words 'director of admissions' and 'dean of students' from any findings involving the principles of ethical conduct."

The college remains on probation for two years beginning August 18, 1972, and the penalty imposed on the wrestling team prohibiting post-season competition remains in force.

The findings of the original NCAA report charging changing of grades of certain student-athletes by the then Dean of the Faculties for several years prior to and ending with the 1968-69 academic year remain unchanged. Other findings remaining unchanged are charges of alleged violations pertaining to recruitment of high school athletes and of violations involving financial aid given to athletes from funds not administered by the college.

George Chaump is Still Competing As Talent Scout for Ohio State

George Chaump left the BSC sports scene 15 years ago, but he's still a tough competitor. He has to be — he works for Woody Hayes.

Chaump is offensive backfield coach for Rose Bowl-bound Ohio State, with the quarterbacks his primary responsibility. When the football season ends, he hits the recruiting trail, working mainly in eastern and central Pennsylvania.

It's familiar territory for the West Pittston native. He graduated from BSC in 1958 after winning letters in football and wrestling. Following graduation he served as assistant football coach at William Penn High School in Harrisburg for three years. In 1961 he was head coach at Shamokin High School and the following year he went to John Harris High School in Harrisburg as head football coach.

His John Harris teams won the Central Pennsylvania championship each of the six years he was coach, compiling a remarkable 58-won, 4-lost record. They had a 35-game winning streak intact when he left to join Woody Hayes' staff. His undefeated 1966 John Harris team scored 396 points, yielding only 27, and his 1967 team scored 479, a Pennsylvania high school record, and gave up only 60. The 1967 team passed for 35 touchdowns, and threw for eight in one game, both state records.

You might think recruiting football talent for a Big Ten powerhouse like the Buckeyes would be easy. Not so, says George.

"The competition for the high school stars is as tough as the competition we face on the gridiron," he says. "We can't relax until we have the signature on a letter of intent."

Chaump scored one of his recruiting victories in Berwick last Spring when he signed up Big 33 Quarterback Gary McCutcheon. Competition for the Berwick High School star included just about every football power in the East and Midwest, including Nebraska and Notre Dame as well as Penn State.

Even though he might relax a little after the letter of intent is signed, a top recruiter like George continues his involvement. A few weeks after McCutcheon made his decision in favor of the Buckeyes, Chaump was back in Berwick for a sports banquet. Among other things, he accepted congratulations on his "recruiting" victory from Penn State's Joe Paterno.

But when he was asked where he was going on his vacation "now that the recruiting season is over," Chaump laughed.

"The vacation will have to wait," he said. "Right now I'm looking for boys who will become the top recruiting prospects in the Fall. We have to know who we'll have to watch during the season so we'll be ready when recruiting starts next winter."

Chaump, who is married to the former Constance Jacobs of Harrisburg, has taken graduate work at Bucknell University. He is recognized as an outstanding clinic lecturer. During his seven years as a head coach he received 14 special coaching awards and citations including the "Coach of the Year" honor each of his six years at Harrisburg's John Harris.

CLINIC

The Speech Department, in cooperation with the BSC Forensic Society, sponsored a high school Forensic Clinic on Saturday, October 21, which was attended by over one hundred students and high school Forensic coaches from six neighboring high schools. The Speech Department members participating in the clinic were: Dr. Melville Hopkins, Chairman; Richard Alderfer, Director of Forensics; Harry Strine, Debate Coach; Janice Youse, Individual Events Coach; and Mrs. Virginia Doerflinger, Individual Events Coach.

HUSKY GRIDDERS TIE FOR 2ND IN CONFERENCE

The Huskies under Coach Bill Sproule won their last three games to finish the season with a 5-5 overall record and a 4-2 eastern division Pennsylvania Conference record; the latter was good for a second place tie in the standings. Among the outstanding performers were running-back George Gruber, Dalton, who finished second in the conference carrying the ball 214 times for 865 yards, a 4.04 yard per carry average, and 11 touchdowns; quarterback Joe Geiger, Lancaster, who rushed 329 yards on 116 carries for a 2.83 yards average and five touchdowns. Geiger also completed 63 passes on 171 attempts for a 36.9 completion percentage for 961 yards and six touchdowns.

Tightend Chris Sweet, Westhampton Beach, N. Y., although injured for the last couple of games, was the leading receiver with 15 catches for 186 yards and one touchdown. Punter Linc Welles, Wyalusing, punted 53 times for 1968 yards and a 37.1 yard average. Gruber was the leading scorer with 66 points, Geiger was second with 32, and kicker Neil Oberholtzer, Columbia, was third kicking two field goals, 21 extra points, for a total of 27 points.

Linebacker Dan Greenland, Bedford, led the team in defensive points with a total of 192 points scored by unassisted tackles, 2; assists, 1; fumble recoveries, 3; passes broken-up, 2; interceptions, 5; blocked punt or kick, 5. Safety Charles Bender, New Cumberland, was next with 147 points including seven interceptions.

Sproule will have a number of veterans returning including Geiger, Gruber, and Bender. Sproule had good assistant coaches in Clark Boler, defensive coordinator; Carl Hinkle, defensive backfield; Bob Gutshall, defensive backfield; Tom Lyons, offensive line; and Joe Dambrocio, defensive line.

HONORED

Dr. H. Benjamin Powell, Dept. of History, presented a paper, "Precursors of the Anthracite Coal Barons" at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Historical Association in West Chester on October 20. At the business meeting of the association he received a certificate of appreciation from the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and signed by Governor Shapp for his work in Wilkes-Barre during flood recovery from Agnes. He spent two weeks in the flood ravaged basement of the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society helping save a valuable collection of rare books on Pennsylvania history.

NAMED

Robert B. Koslosky, Art Department, has been named a "Pacesetter" in Education by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. He was introduced with other Pacesetters at the Pennsylvania Art Education Convention held in Bedford, Pennsylvania on October 20.

Unless you have visited B.S.C. recently, you won't recognize many of the buildings shown on these pages. There have been changes since these two airviews were taken late this past Summer. The photo on the left looks over the upper campus toward the main campus and the town of Bloomsburg with the Susquehanna River in the distant background. The E. H. Nelson Field House (1) is completed and open for use. Since the photo was taken, country club house (2) has been removed and work has been started on construction of the new football field, with permanent stands, in that area. To the right, behind the field house, grading has been started for practice fields (3), Part way down the hill are trailers (4) housing people who were left homeless after the June flood. The other photo made from the opposite direction shows the main campus where the new three-level parking facility (5) is now in use. The new College Union building (6) behind Waller Hall is nearing completion. Waller Hall is scheduled to be demolished, with a dormitory planned for that area.

B.S.C.'s Winter Sports Teams Have Good Reasons for Optimism

The outlook for the three winter varsity sports for the 1972-73 college year appears bright. Although all teams face extremely tough schedules, they should have winning seasons. Possibly the one most in question is wrestling due to the college not fielding a team last year because of the problems resulting from coaching assignments and injuries.

BASKETBALL

Coach Charles Chronister has perhaps the best material the college has had in a number of years. Returning lettermen are 5'10" captain Art Lupowski, perhaps the best ball handler and playmaker in BSC's history; 6'8" John Willis, an NAIA Honorable Mention All-American as a sophomore; and two speedsters with fine shooting ability, 6'0" Gary Choyka and 5'10" Tony DeRa.

Complementing these four will be sophomores 6'4" Gary Tyler, 6'4" Dick Grace, 6'6" John Kessge, 6'4" Ron Keller, 5'11" Mike Ognosky, and 5'11" Joe Woods, along with transfer Joe Kempinski from Wilmingdale Community College, L.I., N.Y., and 6'6" Gary Beatty, who sat out last season due to an injury.

In addition to the regular schedule, the Huskies participated in the Christmas Tree Tournament at Indiana University and traveled to the College of the Virgin Islands on January 3. They hope to participate in the Pennsylvania Conference and NAIA District 19 playoffs.

SWIMMING

Blessed with a nucleus of seven returning lettermen and a fine group of freshmen, Coach Eli McLaughlin and his tankmen are looking forward to their tough schedule and the PC Championships with great optimism.

Seniors facing their last year of competition are freestyler Dave Gibas, an NAIA All-American champion in the 50 yard freestyle in 1971 and a Pennsylvania Conference champion in both the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events for the past two years; two members of the 400 yd. freestyle relay team that holds the BSC record, Doug Yocum and Jon Stoner; Jim Koehler, holder of the team's 200 yard breaststroke record and a member of the school's record-holding 400 yard medley relay team; and diver Steve Coleman, who should have a great year. Other upper classmen with varsity experience include Dale Alexander, Joe Hilgar, and Eric Cureton.

Perhaps the thing that delights McLaughlin the most is his crew of twelve freshmen which are expected to bolster the squad's strength and balance, and undoubtedly assist in establishing new BSC team records this season.

WRESTLING

There seems to be a new air of confidence for the wrestling season under new head coach Roger Sanders, a former mentor at New York University. Sanders has four outstanding lettermen returning from the squad of two years ago which, coupled with some fine sophomores and freshmen candidates, will hopefully provide the Huskies with a winning season.

Leading the Huskies is Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock, a senior from Wyalusing, who is one of the most outstanding wrestlers in the history of the college. Two years ago he was a Penna. Conference champion at 177 lbs. and an NAIA runner-up last year. Going into the Olympic tryouts he had a record of 43-1 and won the eastern AAU Championship, the York and Wilkes Tournaments, and he finished second in the National AAU. Another strong participant at 190 lbs. is Ron Sheehan, who was also a Pennsylvania Conference champion two years ago. The other senior is Kevin Hayes, a 167 lb. competitor, and junior Randy Watts, who was a third place finisher in PC competition at 142 lbs. Two other good prospects are sophomore Dan Burkholder and senior Doug Anderson, both upper weight performers. The balance of the squad, comprised of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, are vying for positions in the lower and middle weights.

Excluded from post-season tournament competition, the Huskies participate early in the season in the U.S. Coast Guard Academy and the Wilkes Open Tournaments and welcome a new opponent, Springfield College, the perennial New England Conference champion, to the schedule. Of course, the always-tough Pennsylvania Conference opponents will provide the usual strong competition.

In Memoriam

1906—Marion K. Groff (Mrs. Spangler) March 30, 1972. Her daughter, Mrs. Mary Jane Russell of Reading, Pa. wrote the Alumni Editor, "Up until the last few months before her death at the age of 88, mother enjoyed reading the Quarterly and keeping up to date with the news from Bloomsburg."

1913—Marie Collins (Mrs. Leo Sick)
1915—Elsie E. Thomas (Mrs. W. C. Burger)

1915—John H. Shuman, 76 of 368 College Hill, Bloomsburg, died Sunday morning, November 20, 1972. His death came as a shock to the community for he had been enjoying apparent good health. He was an active leader in many facets of community life in the Bloomsburg area.

John taught school in Berwick and Bloomsburg in his earlier years and was principal of the Bloomsburg Third Street School until June, 1928 when he entered the Real Estate and Insurance business. He was founder and president of John H. Shuman, Inc., and a past president of the Columbia-Montour Board of Realtors.

He had served on the Board of Trustees of Bloomsburg State College, was an elder of Trinity United Church of Christ in Bloomsburg, had served on the Bloomsburg Town Council, and was a member of the Bloomsburg Fair Association. A veteran of World War I, he was a past commander of the American Legion Post and a member of the VFW. He was a life member of the Elks and a past president of the Kiwanis Club, a former director of the Bloomsburg Area Chamber of Commerce, a director of the Columbia-Montour Motor Club and its manager for 25 years, as well as serving as a director of the Wyoming Valley Motor Club.

John was a director of the Bloomsburg Office of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association since its inception; a secretary of Hillside Cemetery; a past president of the Tri-

State Mutual Agents Association; a director in the Lower Susquehanna Association for the Blind.

He is survived by his wife, the former Pauline Sands; a son, John, Jr., Bloomsburg, R. D. 2, two daughters Mrs. Clair (Nancy) Hock, Bloomsburg, R. D. 4, and Mrs. Robert (Mary) Middleton, St. Louis, Mo.

1918—Leslie E. Brace (Sept., 1971). Leslie lived in Ponpano Beach, Florida since 1963, when he retired as senior buyer for Western Electric Co., Broadway, N. Y. City. He is survived by his wife, Florence; a daughter, Miriam Cole and four grandchildren of Wallingford; three sisters, Kay Laidacker, of Bloomsburg, Laura Hyde of Watontown, and Molly Duffy of Levittown, Pa.

1932—Nola E. Paden (Sept. 20, 1972). Nola was also a member of the Class of 1937.

1933—William G. Strouse (January 5, 1972)

1947—Matthias F. Kashuba (October 27, 1972). Matt resided in Somerville, New Jersey since 1950. He earned his master's degree at Montclair State College, was head of the science department of the Westfield Jr. High School, a lecturer for NASA, and a traveling lecturer for the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Anna N. Kashuba, Forty Fort; his wife, the former Margaret Kearsuff; two daughters, Jessie Ann and Margaret P., both at home; a brother, Edmond, Wallingford, Conn.

His family resides at 1928 Carteret Rd., Somerville, N.J.

1960—David J. Davies, III (The following letter was received by Alumni President, Howard Fenstermaker from Dr. Luther Natter.)

"It is with deep regret that I report to you the death of my friend and former roommate, D. James Davies.

"Jim, or Rebel, as he was known to many of us, passed away Nov. 10, 1972. I received this sad news from his parents in Portsmouth, Virginia.

"Jim was living in Savannah, was teaching, and finishing the requirements for the Master's degree.

"Although a resident of Virginia, Rebel was a spark on Bloomsburg's campus for many of us.

"Upon graduation from BSC, Jim devoted his life to teaching in the rural south. He was a dedicated teacher at Hilton Head, South Carolina for a number of years, doing a job for which his alma mater can be justly proud.

"Hopefully many of his friends and colleagues will take time to express their feelings to his parents at the following address: Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Davies, Jr., 46 Cypress Road, Portsmouth, Virginia 23701."

1971—William G. Teitsworth, 23, of Bloomsburg, R. D. 5, died December 16 from injuries suffered in a one-vehicle accident the previous afternoon near Pottsville. A truck Bill was driving skidded on the slush-covered highway and crashed into a concrete bridge pillar.

Bill was editor-in-chief of the Maroon & Gold at B.S.C. during the 1970-71 academic year.

ALUMNI TRAVEL PROGRAM

Coming attractions in our travel program include.

ACAPULCO, April 14 to the 21st. Cost From $209 per person (4 in a room) to $229 (2 in a room).

LONDON, June 30 to July 7, 1973. Cost: $319 per person.

HAWAII, August 25 to September 3, 1973. Cost: $379 per person.

Each of these trips departs from Philadelphia and includes many extras. If you are interested in more information concerning any of the vacations, please write or call Jim Neiswender, BSC, (389-3417).

1972-73 ALUMNI GIVING REPORT

Alumni response to the October solicitation has been quite satisfying. To date (Sept. 1, 1972 thru Dec. 8, 1972) 680 responses have been processed totaling $5,149. Last year Alumni contributions for the same period amounted to $2,840.

A special THANK YOU to those who responded early.

All contributions to the BSC ALUMNI ASSOCIATION are TAX DEDUCTIBLE according to current I.R.S. Regulations. Please make your check payable to: BSC ALUMNI ASSOCIATION, and send to ALUMNI OFFICE, Waller Admin. Bldg., BSC, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

Thank you,

All Alumni who knew Elna Harrison Nelson will rejoice at the fact that the new field house on the Upper Campus has been officially named "The E. H. Nelson Field House." Because of his long association with athletics at Bloomsburg, and his fifteen years of service as President of the Alumni Association, this is a well-deserved honor.

The response to the latest appeal for contributions has been very satisfactory. From these funds, priority is given to the activities of the Alumni Association, including the expenses of the operation of the Alumni Office, for the publication and mailing of the Alumni Quarterly, and for scholarships and loans. Without your continued support, it would be impossible to mail the Quarterly to all Bloomsburg graduates. We urge you to continue the good work.

Classes in reunion on Alumni Day, the first Saturday in May, 1973, should begin their plans now. The reunion classes are those whose year of graduation ends in 3 and 8. Your officers hope that a great number of Alumni will come back to the Campus. You will receive further information about the activities of Alumni Week-End.

It is, once again, my privilege to extend a warm greeting to you from your Alma Mater. So that a welcome may be extended to you personally, I urge that you set aside the weekend of Saturday, May 5, 1973, to visit our campus during Alumni Weekend. Preparations are being made and a variety of activities are being planned that should be of interest to all of our past graduates. Full details of our Alumni Weekend will be forwarded to you shortly. We trust that you will take an active part in this event.

During this time of the year, all of us at Bloomsburg, as well as at the other State Colleges, are very concerned about the 1973-74 Budget. The Governor has submitted a budget that does not provide for the amount of appropriations necessary for the State Colleges to fully realize their request. The legislature must respond to the Governor's proposal. It will take the combined efforts of all of us to urge legislators that the State Colleges must continue to offer quality education at a reasonable cost.

The college has received, and accepted with regret, letters from five faculty members who have declared their intention of retiring at the end of the Second Semester. They are: Dr. Harold H. Lanterman, Department of Chemistry; Dr. Cecil C. Seronsy, Department of English; Dr. Louise Seronsy, Department of Psychology; Dr. W. Brad Sterling, Department of Geography; and Dr. Royce O. Johnson, Department of Elementary Education. A more detailed analysis of the contribution which each of these faculty members has made to the college will appear in other portions of the "Quarterly."

It is with a great deal of sadness that I recognize the death on January 5, 1973 of Dr. Lee E. Aumiller. I am pleased to note that the Board of Trustees also has given recognition to Dr. Aumiller's contribution to the college by a Resolution in its Minutes.

I look forward to the Spring of this year with great anticipation and enthusiasm, and trust that it will bring even increasing success and joy to each of you. I invite you to avail yourself of the opportunity of corresponding with me or visiting the campus so that you may view the many changes in the physical plant and developments in our academic program.

Best wishes, once again, from "The Friendly College on the Hill".

5 Faculty Members to Retire in May

DR. HAROLD LANTERMAN

Dr. Harold H. Lanterman, the oldest member, seniority wise, of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, has announced his retirement effective at the end of the 1972-73 college year.

Dr. Lanterman joined the faculty at the start of the summer pre-session in June, 1946 to teach mostly chemistry courses and later physical science and some physics courses. At that time, he was the only professor teaching courses in Chemistry I and II and basic physics. Today, there are ten or more courses offered in both the chemistry and physics departments.

A native of Berwick, Pennsylvania, Professor Lanterman was graduated from the schools of that area, and earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Bloomsburg State College in 1931. His Master of Arts degree was awarded from New York University in 1947 and his Doctor of Education degree in chemistry from Penn State in 1954. Shortly after receiving his doctorate, he was promoted to full professor at Bloomsburg State College.

Dr. Lanterman began his teaching career in the Berwick schools in 1931, and taught science courses there until 1942 when he entered the armed forces for a 38 month tour. As required by the Department of Education at that time, he returned to Berwick after being discharged from the service for a year's teaching in order to receive full credit for his military service.

Over the years at BSC, he has served on numerous faculty committees and at one time was secretary/treasurer of the BSC Chapter of PSEA. He was a sponsor of the old Science Club which later became the Student Affiliate of the American Chemical Society; Dr. Lanterman initiated the charter for the latter.

Professor Lanterman is a member of the American Chemical Society and the American Society of Physics. Two years ago, when Bloomsburg hosted the Pennsylvania College Chemical Teachers annual meeting, he served as chairman. He has been a member of that organization for 20 years. In the past, Dr. Lanterman found great enjoyment in taking his various classes to area industries for on-the-job education of his students.

Upon his retirement, Dr. Lanterman will pursue more vigorously his part-time occupation of repairing china and glassware, which he has done for a number of years. He has studied under the internationally known, German born, artisan Carl Klein of Philadelphia, who teaches the art of invisible repair of china. Dr. Lanterman also holds a dealer's license in antiques and in the past has done some refinishing and repair of furniture.

BRAD STERLING

One of the "Old Guard" of the Bloomsburg State College faculty, Dr. W. Brad Sterling, has announced his retirement effective in May at the end of the present college year.

Dr. Sterling joined the Bloomsburg State College faculty in 1947 as head of the Aviation Department, coming from Ohio State University from the National Research Council Department of Aviation Psychology. At BSC he taught student classes in many phases of flying. He was well qualified in this area as he had been a commercial pilot, a flight instructor, a private pilot examiner, had taught members of the F.B.I. to fly, and had tested the Gurley stall-warner for aircraft. He also had eleven years of high school teaching in the State of New York prior to coming to Bloomsburg.

The Aviation Department operated for two years after his arrival on campus and was later discontinued by the State. Dr. Sterling then joined the BSC geography department where he has remained ever since, receiving his full professorship in 1966.

During his early years at BSC, Dr. Sterling was also an instructor for an air operation class for Air Force Reserve Officers; this was not associated directly with the college. During his 26 years of service at Bloomsburg, he served a term as president of the Faculty Association, chairman for two years for Homecoming Day, and on numerous other faculty committees. In 1966, he was honored by being invited to the Annual Explorer Club dinner in New York.

Several years ago, Dr. Sterling spent two summers in research work in the St. Elias Mountain Range in Yukon Territory, under a $2500 grant for BSC. He developed a course in geography in which Bloomsburg students received six hours field service credit in the St. Elias Mountains; this is the first time this was done in modern times at the college level.

Dr. Sterling was born in Antwerp, New York and received a life certificate to teach business from Plattsburg Normal School in the State of New York. He received his Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Buffalo, the Master of Science degree from Syracuse University, and his Doctor of Education degree from Penn State.

In the last few years, Dr. Sterling has become well known for his daily column in the Morning Press of a semi-scientific daily weather report. Over the years at BSC, he developed meteorology programs and a weather station which worked in conjunction with the State Climatological Station at Penn State. Included in the latter has been the development of equipment to complement the National Wire Weather Service and instrument automation. His weather service has been used by the local courts of Bloomsburg; his report on snow and rainfall emergencies and his storm warning system have been used by the Town of Bloomsburg.

Dr. and Mrs. Sterling plan to move to Florida upon his retirement.

DR. CECIL SERONSY

Dr. Cecil Seronsy, a member of the faculty at Bloomsburg State College since 1953, has announced his retirement at the end of the 1972-1973 college year.

During his twenty years at Bloomsburg Dr. Seronsy has served as a Professor of English, being Chairman of the English Department from 1959 to 1964. He has at various times been faculty advisor to such student organizations as the college newspaper and the literary club and has served on many faculty committees dealing with college government.

A native of Lowellville, Ohio, and a graduate of the University of Virginia with a B.A. and honors he later earned his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at Harvard University where he was a Teaching Fellow. During a year's sabbatical leave he studied abroad and at the Huntington Library in California on a money grant from that library.

Following graduation from college Dr. Seronsy taught in high school for several years and worked as a technical writer for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company. After World War II he taught at Purdue University and at Northeastern University before coming to Bloomsburg.

Professor Seronsy is a member of the Modern Language Association of America and of the Renaissance Society of America. Listed in the Directory of American Scholars, he is the author of a book, "Samuel Daniel" (1967) and of many articles and reviews in various literary journals. His writing included studies of Daniel, Shakespeare, Swift, Coleridge, and Wordsworth, as well as some views on educational methods.

He is married to the former Louise Baird, now also a member of the faculty at Bloomsburg State College for the past seven years and who is retiring with him. He and Mrs. Seronsy have no fixed plans as yet, but they expect to travel extensively both in this country and abroad and to do some study and research.

DR. ROYCE JOHNSON

Dr. Royce O. Johnson, a member of the faculty of Bloomsburg State College since 1958, will retire in May, 1973.

Dr. Johnson began his appointment as Director and Associate Professor of Elementary Education in August, 1958. He received his full professorship in 1960, and served as Director of Elementary Education until taking his sabbatical leave during the 1969-70 college year and then returned, by his own request, to teaching status. Warren I. Johnson has served as Director of Elementary Education since that time.

A native of Port Allegheny, Pennsylvania, Dr. Johnson attended the schools of that community and earned his Bachelor of Science degree at Lock Haven State College, his Master of Education degree at the University of Pittsburgh, and in 1958 was awarded the Doctor of Education degree at Penn State.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, he held various teaching and administrative positions for twenty-seven years in public schools of Pennsylvania, including a four year tenure as Director of Elementary Education for the Cumberland Valley Joint School System in Mechanicsburg. Also included in his public school service was five years of teaching in Annin Township and as teacher and principal at the M. J. Ryan Consolidated Schools in Lafayette Township.

While on his sabbatical leave during the 1969-70 college year, Dr. Johnson traveled 15,000 miles through twenty-eight states, visiting 93 outstanding elementary schools, working under a Title I, E.S.E.A. grant. In addition to securing a list of good schools, he obtained some nationwide trends in building construction, organizational patterns and curriculum designs. Visitations ranged from one hour in some schools through the entire day in others.

During the past few years, Professor Johnson has served as a consultant for the elementary schools of Mt. Carmel and Shamokin. He has also been active as a speaker at conferences on the subject of open space schools.

Mrs. Johnson retired in June, 1972, after twenty years of teaching, with the last fourteen being in the Millville Area Schools. The Johnsons have three children, Kristin, graduate of Millersville S. C., who is married to Dr. J. Paul Burkhardt II, a member of the Speech Department faculty at Shippensburg S. C.; Jule, a graduate of Penn State, who is married to the Rev. James McCormack, pastor of the Shenango Presbyterian Church, New Castle, Pa.; and Royce II, a graduate of Princeton University, who is now completing his third year at the Pritzker School of Medicine, University of Chicago.

In their retirement, the Johnsons plan to divide their time between Bloomsburg and Chautauqua, New York. In addition to doing some writing and traveling, they hope to have time for camping, gardening, and some type of social service.

DR. LOUISE SERONSY

Dr. Louise Seronsy, a member of the faculty at Bloomsburg State College since 1966, has announced her retirement at the end of the 1972-1973 college year.

During her seven years at Bloomsburg, Dr. Louise has served as a Professor of Psychology primarily in the areas of Developmental, Social and History of Psychology. Since her tenure has coincided with the life of the Psychology Department, she has been influential as chairman of the curriculum committee in shaping the course of this department. In addition, she has served on many faculty committees dealing with college government.

A native of Munden, Kansas, Dr. Seronsy was educated in the public schools of Kansas. She earned the Bachelor of Science degree at Fort Hays Kansas State College, the Master of Arts degree at George Peabody College and the Doctor of Philosophy degree, majoring in psychology, at Purdue University.

A teaching and research career of more than a quarter century includes service as a public school teacher in the state of Kansas, and as a member of the faculties of both Purdue University and Tufts University. For many years Dr. Seronsy served as research associate for the Institute for Psychological Research, Tufts University, where she conducted contract research for various government and industrial agencies and firms.

Professor Seronsy was elected a Fellow in the American Psychological Association in 1953. Other memberships in professional and civic organizations include Sigma Xi, Kappa Delta Pi, Columbia-Montour Mental Health Association, Pennsylvania Mental Health, Inc., Advisory Board of the Four County Mental Health/Mental Retardation Program, Advisory Council of the Geisinger Community Mental Health Center, American Association of University Women and the Ivy Club.

Dr. Seronsy is listed in Who's Who of American Women and American Men of Science. Her publications include a monograph on the construction and evaluation of an experimental curriculum at Purdue University, a "Handbook of Human Engineering Data" (co-author) and several volumes of a bibliography of Human Engineering Data (co-author).

PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH IS NARROWED TO 7

The Presidential Search Committee at Bloomsburg State College, after considering applications of approximately 140 prospects to serve as the new President of BSC, had narrowed the field to seven leading candidates by late January, according to James B. Creasy, Chairman.

Invitations were extended to the seven candidates to visit the campus during February to view the campus facilities, meet members of the college community and have formal interviews with the Search Committee. The committee expects to narrow its selection to three candidates, but will give a full report on all leading candidates to the Board of Trustees at BSC.

Creasy stated, "The Committee is keeping to its planned time schedule of using January and February for final interviews so that a report and recommendations can be made to the full BSC Board of Trustees in March, 1973."

When the Presidential Search Committee was appointed in May, 1972, it was charged by the Board of Trustees of BSC to follow procedures developed by the Board of State College and University Directors and the Secretary of Education, John Pittenger, in conjunction with Act 13 of 1970.

Additional procedure calls for the BSC Board of Trustees to submit its report and recommendation to the Board of State College and University Directors, who, after consultation with the Secretary of Education, shall submit the report of the Board of Trustees to the Governor and shall advise him thereon.

If the Governor selects one of the three recommended candidates to be president, after notification by the Secretary of Education to the Board of State College and University Directors, the Board of Trustees, and the candidate, the Governor's office will make the public announcement of the selection.

However, it should be pointed out the Board of Directors acknowledges that the final responsibility for the selection of a president of a state college rests with the Governor, and that the Governor may, if he chooses, depart from the above procedures.

Dr. Charles H. Carlson assumed the duties of Acting President on September 1, 1972, and will continue in that capacity until the Governor announces a new President. In addition to Creasy, other members of the Presidential Search Committee, composed of the college community are: faculty - Dr. Barret Benson and Dr. Louis Thompson; students - Douglas McClintock, Rodney K. Morgans, and Thomas Beveridge; trustees - Frank Fav, Joseph Nespoli, and Dr. Edwin Weisbond.

WILL READ PAPER

Dr. Richard Larcom, Dept. of Psychology, will be reading a paper titled, "The Regressive Effects of Frustration Upon the Concrete Reasoning Ability of Seven-Year-Old Boys" at the March 29 to April 1 meeting in Philadelphia of the Society for Research in Child Development.

Husky Cagers' Road Schedule Takes Them to Virgin Islands

By Dr. Michael Herbert

During the early weeks of the season the B.S.C. basketball team spent so much time on the road they felt they would have been at home in one of the Crosby-Hope "Road" movies, but with better substitutes for good old Dorothy. Of their first 11 games, three were away from home. But their most interesting "road" journey was to a Blue Beard's pirate cove in the Caribbean where they conquered the College of the Virgin Islands.

All details of the trip were carefully planned, and naturally, the first leg got off to a bad start. Departure from Bloomsburg was delayed 20 minutes because the team trainer was still grabbing Zs at departure time. Then we were side-tracked in Philadelphia because of faulty directions provided by one of the players, a native Philly kid.

The first big thrill was at the Philly airport, where we saw a man who had a body guard as a companion. Really, it was difficult to believe that Muhammed Ali needed one, but there he was. Muhammed looked more like a business executive than a boxer.

Soon after takeoff at 10:30 a.m. the routinely classy stewardesses began taking orders for beverages and believe it or not, some passengers (not our group) were already shooting double martinis. Three hours later we touched down at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and were exposed to our first warm rays of sunshine. If you have never been south in January, the weather is best described as a wonderfully warm, humid 80 degrees. The beauty of the foliage on the tropical trees was momentarily minimized by Mother Nature who presented a short shower of rain followed by a most magnificent rainbow. Perhaps it was the flower in the sky for that baseball great, Roberto Clemente, whose plane left San Juan the day before, never to return.

A 20-minute flight landed us at St. Thomas where an old friend who had graduated from B.S.C. in 1967, Harry Saxton, greeted us. He is an accountant at the College and his wife, Harriet, who hails from Pottsville, is on the staff of the College's Public Relations department. They were very cordial and helpful hosts during our visit.

Since the Huskies were to play a basketball game the next evening, Coach Chronister scheduled a team meeting which was to be followed by a practice session. However, at the meeting he dismissed the thought of practice and told the team to relax and have fun "but don't get sunburned because we want everyone healthy for the Mansfield game."

On the day of the game when the team checked in for the pre-game meal one sensed that was not well with the "Hustlin' Huskies". With the game scheduled for 8 p.m., it was an extremely concerned crew that departed for the hospital at 5:30 to get treatment for our astute marine biologists, Artie Luptowski and Ron Keller. It seems that while they were scampering through the surf they encountered some animals from the phylum Echinodermata, commonly known as sea urchins, and the confrontation proved to be a painful experience. Sea urchins are ball-shaped creatures with a multitude of spines projecting from their bodies. The spines are composed of calcium carbonate and since they are extremely brittle they break off after penetrating and fragment easily when tweezed. Thus they could not readily be removed from the feet of the two athletes.

At the hospital emergency room Artie and Ron were greeted like old friends by the nurse, a former resident of North Wales, near Lansdale. The attending physician prescribed treatment that simply involved soaking the feet in warm water laced with vinegar; if vinegar were unavailable the soaking could be done using urine straight up. The rationale for the treatment is that the acid dissolves the carbonaceous spines in a couple of days. Well, there was a game to be played, and even though he lacked immediate relief, Captain Luptowski, leader that he was, bit on the bullet and played with pain as he directed the Huskies to a 30-point winning margin.

The game itself was played under International Rules which were presented to the team and staff in a mini lesson minutes before tap-off time. The most significant aspects of the rules involve wider foul lanes somewhat triangular in shape; no back court ten-second violations called until the last three minutes of the half; and no fouls shot until the last three minutes of the half. Thus, with so little to be concerned about, the two officials simply closed their eyes to the ensuing mayhem while everyone on the Husky bench hoped no one would get hurt. It was so brutally physical that even the Philly kids admitted it was rough. However, it was the kind of officiating John Willis loves because he played the entire game and was called for only one foul as he took his defender to the hole time after time. Some of the fouling by the host Bucs was so violent it resulted in some players standing around temporarily not knowing which end of the court was theirs.

After the game, which was played in 85-degree heat, the team was dehydrated, parched and looking for some tall relaxation. They were also pretty thirsty and with the legal drinking age on the island being 18 they went off in quest of their favorite beverages. A sixer of Millers was only a dollar while soft drinks were $1.20 so their choice was obvious.

The next few days were spent on the beach ogling bikinis, shopping and sightseeing. No golf was undertaken because it didn't seem like it would be much fun putting on greens made of dirt. You had to smooth a "green" like a sand trap after putting out. Probably the most enjoyable facet of our association with the clear waters of the Caribbean was an introduction to snorkelling and skin diving. One afternoon we headed for Blue Beard's secret cove and a special snorkel tour of some reefs near the point of St. James Island. During the expedition we were initiated into the Society of Fearless Snorkelers and everyone was given a card proclaiming that we were Loyal Wearers of the Fins. However, the distinction is somewhat dubious because one of us failed to complete the tour due to illness caused by the rough water. Nevertheless, a variety of marine life was observed which included pesky sea urchins along with the breath-takingly beautiful coral, sponges, star fish, fiddler crabs, sea turtle, anemone and many varieties of colorful fish.

On the eve of departure the Husky coaching staff was hosted by a Scranton native, Tom Hannon, who is employed at the College of the Virgin Islands. He was an excellent and gracious host as judged by the wide variety of things he proffered up in his tastefully decorated bachelor pad located on a hill overlooking the harbor. Of interest to some of us was his speargun with which he is quite competent as indicated by the specimens (marine) scattered through his house.

One last frolic-filled afternoon on the beach closed out our five luxuriously fun-filled days and innumerable "Pina Coladas". At departure time we experienced the newly imposed FAA regulations which require searching all carry-on luggage as well as electronically frisking everyone for possible concealed weapons. Although it caused some delay in take-off, it certainly reduces whatever apprehensions a traveler might have about being hi-jacked. While standing in line to be frisked we struck up a conversation with a couple from New York. They immediately said they knew about Bloomsburg State because -yep, you guessed it!- "... we are Giant fans and Bob Tucker graduated from there, right ...?" We also met people from Reading and former Mt. Carmel residents.

The only aspect of the return flight worth logging was the breath-taking beauty of the Pan Am stewardess who hails from Burlington, N.C. She told us she would propose to our center if she thought she stood a chance but we said we needed him to win. She was super-whew!!

EDITOR'S NOTE: All travel expense for the trip to the Virgin Islands was borne by those who made the trip—none by B.S.C. The College of the Virgin Islands provided housing and meals for the players; the members of the staff stayed in a hotel at their own expense.

Nelson Gym's New Facilities Put to Good Use During Winter

The sports facilities and large seating capacities of the E. H. Nelson Field House were put to good use during the winter as two varsity sports posted winning records and the third barely missed.

More than 4,000 fans attended the East Stroudsburg and Cheyney games on the hill. The Husky cagers topped ESSC but suffered the season's first loss against Cheyney. The Huskies had three other losses, all on the road, at the close of the season to finish with a 19-4 record.

The B.S.C. swimmers, 10-3 on the season, placed third in the State championships with Dave Gibas winning two individual titles and Rich Kozicki one.

The wrestlers lost to East Stroudsburg by one point in their final dual meet and had to settle for a 7-8 season record. However, Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock regained his 190-lb. state title in the Pennsylvania Conference championships. Ron Sheehan and Lon Edmonds lost title bids in the finals.

SWIMMING

Coach Eli McLaughlin successfully concluded his eighth consecutive winning season with a record of 10-3. Led by his senior All-American freestyler Dave Gibas and a group of fine upcoming freshman headed by distance freestyler Rick Kozicki, the Huskies climaxed their season by upsetting West Chester State 60-53. It was the second time over the years that Bloomsburg has beaten West Chester. In addition to Gibas, other seniors completing their college careers in dual meet competition were Doug Yocum, Jon Stoner, Jim Koehler, and Steve Coleman. Sophomores who performed well through the year were Dale Alexander and Eric Cureton. Numerous BSC team and Nelson pool records were set by this year's team.

WRESTLING

New wrestling coach Roger Sanders just missed having a winning season by losing by one point, 20-21, to East Stroudsburg in the final meet of the season, finishing with a 7-8 record.

The record is even more significant observing that Bloomsburg only won three bouts all season in the 118 and 126 lb. classes. Most of the time the Huskies were behind going into the final three weights and had to come from behind to post victories. Six Huskies had winning records: Lon Edmonds, 134 lbs., 11-3-1; Randy Watts, 142 lbs., 12-3; Kevin Hayes, 167 lbs., 9-6; Dan Burkholder, 177 lbs., 12-2-1; Ron Sheehan, 190 lbs. or heavyweight, 12-2; and Floyd Hitchcock, 190 lbs. or heavyweight, 14-0. Sheehan and Hays are seniors in their last year of competition.

BASKETBALL

The Huskies, coached by Charlie Chronister, are finishing with the best record in the history of the college and perhaps the best group of players in the history of BSC. Although it's been a great team effort, perhaps most responsible for Bloomsburg's fine standing is 6'8" center John Willis, who has been named to the ECAC weekly selections on four occasions, along with the playmaking wizardry of Art Luptowski, the only senior on the team. In addition to these two, others who have been seeing most of the action are Tony DaRe, Joe Kemp-ski, Gary Tyler, Gary Choyka, and Dick Grace. Cheyney defeated Clarion for the State Title.

NEW COLLEGE UNION NEARING COMPLETION

Work is continuing on four projects totalling more than $4,000,000 on the Bloomsburg State College campus.

The College Union, adjacent to the Scranton Commons, is nearing completion at a cost of approximately $1,350,000. The Union Building will have modern snack bar facilities, multi-purpose rooms, a TV room, a listening room, a formal lounge, a game room, a first-aid station, offices for student organizations and publications, post office boxes for faculty and commuting students, four bowling alleys and a number of other specialized areas.

The air conditioning of Sutliff Hall is expected to be completed before Alumni Day; the installation of this equipment will cost $138,000.

The advent of spring weather will bring renewed activity to the construction of the new football field, all-weather track, baseball diamond, and practice fields adjacent to the Nelson Fieldhouse on the upper campus. This project, scheduled for completion in early 1974, will provide varsity football, baseball, and track teams at the college with on-campus facilities for the first time since Mt. Olympus was demolished in 1964 to provide a site for Haas Auditorium and Andrus Library.

Architects and BSC personnel are continuing work on the design of a new residence hall for 250 women which will be built on the site now occupied by old Waller Hall. It is hoped that Waller Hall will be demolished early in 1974 and the new residence hall completed by September, 1975. $1,955,000 has been allocated for construction of this project, according to Boyd F. Buckingham, Associate Vice President for Development and External Relations.

It is hoped that alumni will make plans to visit the upper campus and inspect the new Nelson Gym on Alumni Day, May 5, 1973, as well as the new Waller Administration Building, and possibly the new College Union, Buckingham stated.

MIDDLE STATES REPORT ACKNOWLEDGES PROGRESS

Early in January, 1973, Dr. Charles Carlson, Acting President of Bloomsburg State College, was informed by Elizabeth J. McCormack, Chairman of the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, that "At its meeting just concluded, the Commission received the report of Bloomsburg State College and of the visiting team and acknowledged the progress made with respect to filling key administrative posts and with respect to faculty morale."

The letter from Sister McCormack, who also serves as President of Manhattanville College at Purchase, New York, has a significant and positive relationship to the continuing evaluation and accreditation of BSC by the Middle States Association, according to Dr. Carlson.

The letter is partially the culmination of a series of events beginning in the spring of 1969, when a team from the Middle States Association visited BSC as part of the evaluating process which occurs every ten years. Following their visit and report, college officials, during the fall of 1971, drafted a progress report in reply to some of the major criticisms and recommendations made by the Middle States team.

In May, 1972, a three-member committee from the Middle States Association came to the Bloomsburg campus to check with college personnel concerning details in the progress report. At the time of their visit, controversies on campus attracted the attention of the committee and their report expressed three central concerns, namely, (1) vacancies in top administrative positions, (2) faculty morale generated by the general unrest on campus, and (3) the relationship of the college Board of Trustees to total college governance.

The three-member committee, as a result of their findings in May, 1972, recommended that a committee visit the Bloomsburg campus again during the fall of 1972.

A committee visited the campus in November, 1972, and their findings and report constituted the basis for Sister McCormack's letter to President Carlson.

READING CONFERENCE SET FOR APRIL 6-7

The ninth annual Reading Conference will be held at Bloomsburg State College on April 6-7, 1973, according to Dr. Margaret Sponseller, Director.

Dr. William Durr, President of the International Reading Association, will be the banquet speaker on Friday evening and Dr. Edgar Dale, Ohio State University, will be the keynote speaker Saturday morning. There will be over two dozen group discussions, a panel discussion, a workshop, area school visitations, a books and materials exhibit, along with the general session and banquet.

Dr. Sponseller expects a large attendance of school and college administrators and their teaching staffs.

DR. LEE AUMILLER DIES UNEXPECTEDLY

Dr. Lee E. Aumiller, 54, of Twin Hills Terrace, Bloomsburg R. D. 2, died unexpectedly at 6:20 p.m. Friday, January 5, 1973, at his home.

He was Professor of Education at Bloomsburg State College.

Born in Laurelton, he was a son of the late Wesley A. and Cordula Catherman, and was a member of Wesley United Methodist Church where he was a teacher of Youth and Adult Fellowship, and a former member of the administrative board.

He was appointed associate professor of education and supervisor of student teachers in secondary education at Bloomsburg State College in July, 1961.

He was a graduate of Hartley Township High School, Laurelton, and prior to beginning his undergraduate studies at Pennsylvania State University was employed as an attendant at Harrisburg State Hospital where he completed a one-year course in psychiatric nursing.

He completed requirements for the Bachelor of Science degree in Agricultural Education at Penn State in 1942. During the next three years, he taught vocational ag and science in the Knoxville Borough Schools. He interrupted his teaching career to serve as field representative for six years with Campbell Soup Company.

In 1951, he joined the faculty of West Chillisquaque Township Schools as a vo-ag teacher, and two years later was appointed supervising principal, a position he held until 1959 when West Chillisquaque joined Milton Area School District. Following the jointure, he was director of curriculum in the district.

He earned his Master of Science degree at Bucknell University and his doctorate at Penn State in 1963.

He held membership in the Penn State Education Association, The Pennsylvania Association for Higher Education, Phi Delta Kappa, and Association of Pennsylvania State College Faculties.

Surviving are his wife, the former Polly Vogt; two daughters, Mrs. Jonathan (Diane) Corle, Lansdowne, Pa.; and Mrs. Grant (Patricia) Doyle Jr., Fort Belvoir, Va.; one brother, George Aumiller, Northumberland; three sisters, Mrs. John (Olive) Stamm, Mifflinburg; Mrs. John (Gladys) Coleman, Mifflinburg, and Mrs. Harry (Dorothy) Bingman, Laurelton, three grandchildren; several nieces and nephews.

Dr. Aumiller was buried in Lincoln Chapel Cemetery, Laurelton, Pennsylvania.

LEE E. AUMILLER

Dr. Lee E. Aumiller demonstrated the highest ideals of both leader and instructor in his stay with us at Bloomsburg State College. In his eleven and one-half years, he served as supervisor of student teachers in Secondary Education, Chairman of the Department of Education and Psychology, Director of Field Experiences, and Chairman of the Department of Secondary Education. His leadership in education will be sorely missed, not only by his friends and colleagues, but by the institution as well. Over the years he developed and was an able instructor of many courses, both graduate and undergraduate. He was an enlightened instructor who continually searched for new and better ways to serve his students.

In addition to his service and leadership on many college committees and activities, he chaired the Educational Opportunity Program at its inception at Bloomsburg State College. He worked long and diligently with the problems of students in this program and was largely responsible for its success. His sabbatical leave during the 1971-72 academic year was spent at the University of Miami furthering his knowledge and service to the disadvantaged and oppressed citizens of our country.

Lee's keen sense of humor, his friendliness, and his ability to be a good listener endeared him to all who came into contact with him. His conscientiousness and his sincere consideration of others involved every facet of his life. His absence is profoundly felt among his friends, his colleagues, and his family.

Therefore be it resolved that the Bloomsburg Chapter of APSCUF/PAHE formally acknowledge his passing on January 5, 1973, with deep regret and a profound sense of personal loss.

That the contents of this commemorative statement be included in the minutes and that a copy be forwarded to Mrs. Aumiller by the Secretary.

Be it further resolved that the members observe a moment of silence for our late colleague and friend.

O'TOOLE MEMORIAL

The BSC Speech Department and the Forensic Society hosted the Fourth Annual Interstate 80 James J. O'Toole Memorial Educational Debate Tournament on February 2 and 3, 1973. There were 15 colleges and universities represented from seven states and the District of Columbia. Eighty seven debaters and coaches participated in the two day affair.

1934

Early in February, we received the following letter from Gladys Bakey (Mrs. William R. Furlong, Jr.):

During the month of December, 1972, my husband and I visited two other Bloomsburg Alumni: my brother, Charles R. Bakey, Jr. ('40) who is First Secretary of our Embassy in New Delhi, India, and his charming wife, the former Charlotte E. Gearhart ('41). At this time of the year the weather in India was perfect; not too hot or wet, just great for visiting the many relics of a by-gone Age in New and Old Delhi and, of course, in Agra, the famous Taj Mahal.

While we were in New Delhi, their University was in the press, almost daily. It was only partially functioning due to student violence, which included among other things, the burning of buses, despite the fact that lack of transportation for students appeared to be one of the major problems!

Charles arranged a week's visit to a hunting block in the Himalaya foothills, near Nepal; no tigers were seen, but, wild elephants, nilgai and many other animals as well as colorful birds and extremely interesting countryside.

India is almost half-way around the world but it's amazing how quickly one arrives via Jumbo Jet. I am sure both Charles and Charlotte would be delighted to hear from Bloomsburg Alumni who come their way.

The Pennsylvania Distinguished Service Medal was presented to Lt. Col Hugh S. Niles by order of Governor Milton Shapp. The citation follows:

Lieutenant Colonel Hugh S. Niles, 202-09-9019, distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious service while assigned to a position of major responsibility on the staff of The Adjutant General of Pennsylvania. Colonel Niles exhibited unusual leadership and professional competence in the coordination of innumerable administrative, operational and logistic matters which developed during disaster relief operations of Pennsylvania National Guard units during the period 22 June to 4 August 1972. His tact, initiative and dedication to duty were an inspiration to other members of the staff. He devoted many long and tedious hours to ensure National Guard personnel in the disaster areas were furnished with the guidance and assistance essential to accomplishment of the mission. His keen insight and extensive knowledge directly resulted in the achievement of maximum results in the minimum of time. His expertise in coordinating various staff functions was a key factor in maintaining a high level of efficiency within the headquarters throughout the disaster relief operations. His ability to function with calmness during periods of tension and his rare diplomacy contributed greatly to a harmonious relationship between the staff and personnel from units in the field and various civilian agencies. His mature judgment and professional approach to problems which arose during the emergency contributed significantly to the prevention and the resolution of many problems. His sound and timely recommendations to the Adjutant General and other key staff officers were invaluable. Colonel Niles' high degree of efficiency, aggressive response and selfless dedication throughout the emergency has brought great credit upon himself, the Pennsylvania National Guard and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The captain was commissioned upon graduation from the School of Military Sciences for Officers at Lackland AFB, Texas.

The following letter has been received from Pamela Smith:

A friend has told me that a recent issue of "The Alumni Quarterly" included a query about my present address. For your records, I can always be reached through my home: c/o Mrs. Kenneth V. Smith, 1312 Chestnut Street, Berwick, Pa. 18603. Otherwise, my permanent address is: Sister Pamela Smith, S.S.C.M., Sacred Heart Villa, Danville, Pa. 17821.

If anyone is interested in catching up on my whereabouts since graduation, you might note that I taught for two years at Bensalem Township Senior High School in Cornwells Hts. (1968-1970). Then for the 1970-1971 school year I taught freshman English as a teaching assistant at Villanova University. I received my M.A. in English in May 1971. For the 1971-72 school year I taught freshman English as a teaching assistant at Lehigh University while I began studies for the Ph.D. in English. This summer I joined the sisters of Sts. Cyril and Methodius and am spending this year as an English teacher at Lourdes Regional High School in Shamokin.

I have recently had some successes in publication. This September's issue of the "New England Quarterly" carries my article, "The Unitive Urge in the Poetry of Sylvia Plath." Another article, "Architectonics: Sylvia Plath's Colossus," is scheduled to appear in the spring or summer of 1973 in "ARIEL," a literary magazine published in Alberta, Canada. Over the last few years some of my poems have appeared in "Educational Forum", "Haiku Highlights", "South and West", "DeKalb Literary Arts Journal", and "The Smith." For two weeks in the summer of 1969 I was a contributor at the Bread Loaf Writers' Conference in Vermont. Other poems of mine are forthcoming in "Arlington Quarterly", "Haiku Highlights", "Wind", "Twig", and the "Beloit Poetry Journal."

Mr. and Mrs. David Shivery (she was Kathleen Slusser) have announced the birth of their second child, Marc Andrew, in October, 1972. Their older son, John David is now two years old. Address: Box 123, Poplar Street, Intercourse, Penna. 17534.

Richard S. Benyo was recently appointed editor of Stock Car Racing Magazine, a monthly periodical covering top national automobile racing and racing personalities. He left a position as managing editor of The Times News, Lehigh, Penna., to join the Virginia-based Eastern Publishing Co. Address: 6230 Rose Hill Drive 2B, Alexandria, Va. 22310.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Learn, both 1968 grads (she was Ann MacPherson) are located at 206 Third St., Galena, Illinois 61036. Gordon writes that he is teaching third grade in Dubuque, Iowa and Ann is also teaching.

William D. Andres was named Instructor, serving in the capacity of Assistant Director of Student Financial Aid at Bloomsburg State College in July, 1972.

Andres attended Central High School in Scranton, received his Bachelor of Science degree in Business Education with a major in accounting at Bloomsburg State College in May, 1969, and earned his Master of Business Administration degree in management from the University of Scranton. He has taken additional graduate study at Temple and Michigan State Universities and Marywood College.

For the past three years, he has been a member of the Scranton Technical High School faculty. He also taught a night course in business under the Manpower Training Development Program at Scranton Tech for the first five months of 1972.

Andres is a member of the Eastern Business Teachers Association, and Phi Delta Kappa, honorary educational fraternity. He is a charter member of the Temple Chapter of Epsilon Delta Epsilon, honorary educational fraternity in distributive education and Zeta Psi, social fraternity.

Bruce P. Hopkins has moved to 275 East Tenth St., Apt. 14, New York, N.Y. 10009. We share with our readers the following portion of a letter received from Bruce:

Bruce P. Hopkins is still unmarried and plans to remain so for the rest of his life. Since graduation he has been an English and drama teacher, an apprentice with the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival, a Career Blazer temporary employee, a book reviewer, an editorial assistant, an assistant art director, a typist in a half-way house for mental patients, a Laury Girl, and always through all of this, an actor. For the past year he has been Associate Editor of "HairDo & Beauty" magazine. However, he does not plan to remain in this position much longer because, quite frankly, he is tired of hairdressers. Also for the past year Bruce P. has been performing regularly with Al Carmines' Judson Poetry Theatre on Washington Square Park in Greenwich Village. He hopes to continue there. Under the name of Bruce Hopkins, Bruce P. Hopkins is a member of the Actors Equity Association and the American Federation of Television and Radio Actors. He has appeared, albeit briefly and in the background, several times on CBS soap opera, "Search For Tomorrow." Other than that, his life since graduation has been relatively uneventful.

Second Lieutenant Craig D. Harding has been awarded his silver wings at Reese AFB, Texas, upon graduation from U.S. Air Force pilot training.

Lieutenant Harding has been assigned to Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, for flying duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command, America's nuclear deterrent force of long range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

He was commissioned upon completion of the School of Military Sciences for Officers at Lackland AFB, Texas.

His wife, Sandra, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Landesman, 11 Muirfield Road, Rockville Centre, N.Y.

Sheryll Ebeler (Mrs. Wayne D. Fredrick) has announced the arrival of a son, Eric Wayne Fredrick, on November 20, 1972. Address: 181 Q Howard Drive, Bergenfield, New Jersey 07621.

1971

John R. Benedict has been promoted to sergeant in the U.S. Air Force.

Sergeant Benedict, a site development specialist at Ramey AFB, P. R., serves with a unit of the Military Airlift Command which provides global airlift for U.S. military forces.

Robert S. Valentine, Jr. received the Master of Education degree (counselor education) in December, 1972 at Penn State University. Address: P. O. Box 162, Laurelton, Pa. 17835.

'Abandon Ship' Unscheduled Thrill On 1930 Grad's Antarctic Cruise

The following letter was received early in January from Karleen M. Hoffman, Class of 1930. It is being reprinted in its entirety so that Karleen may share her experiences with her classmates and friends:

To my good Chinese friends 1972 was the Year of the Rat but to me it was a year of great adventure. In addition to being interviewed by newspaper reporters on two foreign continents and having my picture as well as words recorded in those faraway places I was televised in my own apartment in San Diego. Guess who was one of the passengers when the Lindblad Explorer was shipwrecked in the Antarctic and later among a group attending Soochow University in Taiwan. But before these events Elizabeth and I had the fun of celebrating the holiday season South of the Border. Never have I seen decorations to compare with those in Mexico City nor a more exuberant crowd on New Year's Eve. It was a pleasure to watch as entire families spent this evening together — the children adding much to the fun and gaiety.

The latter part of January I flew to Ushuaia, Argentina to begin what I thought must be the most remarkable trip it was possible to take in this world. I was thrilled with the idea of going to Antarctica, to sail across the Antarctic Circle, to visit the scientific stations, to hear of the studies being made there, and to visit hundreds of penguins. Well — I had all this and then in the early morning hours of February 11th the word adventure took on a different meaning as I heard those formidable words ABANDON SHIP! In surprise I thought — this may be IT but it has been a good life. I had a few anxious moments as I gazed down the icy slippery steps to the lifeboat bobbing like a cork in the rough sea but I crept down and safely embarked for a three and a half hour cruise on the rough sea in a blizzard. Can you imagine the wonderful feeling to step on the deck of a rescue ship and be safe in the arms of the Chilean Navy! How wonderful the officers and crew members of the Piloto Pardo were during the seven days and nights that they were host to 168 uninvited guests. Our arrival at Punta Arenas, Chile was an exciting affair with reporters, cameras, band and even President Allende to welcome us.

During July and August another adventure as I wandered back into the life of a coed with all the various experiences of living in a college dorm and eating Chinese college meals. Then on to classes where the five thousand years of history and culture of China made an interesting course with outstanding authorities to guide in the study. A very comprehensive course on Chinese Art in the fabulous National Palace Museum followed by hours of enjoyment admiring the wonderful collections was really super. Sightseeing included all the usual tourist spots plus visits to Congress, acupuncture clinic, Chinese operas, the gorgeous Chung Shan building and climaxed by an eight day tour around this beautiful island. However, my greatest pleasure came with the opportunity to get acquainted with the NOW generation both Chinese and American. I was impressed with their ideas, opinions and ideals and feel that with such fine youth this world has a great future and that tomorrow will be a better day.

RUSSIAN TRIP PART OF SUMMER COURSES

Bloomsburg State College will offer two courses in Russian and Soviet history during the first 6 week session of summer school. The initial three weeks of the courses will be spent on campus and will be devoted to lectures, discussion groups, and student reports while the concluding three weeks will be spent in the Soviet Union. The tour of the USSR will be arranged so as to provide maximum exposure to historical and art museums, Soviet educational institutes, etc. Arrangements will be made for lectures and discussion groups while in the USSR. This program has the endorsement of the Consortium on International Education.

The tour is expected to include visits to at least 4 Soviet cities. The price of the tour is approximately $850.00 and includes first class hotel accommodations, three meals a day, transportation costs, side trips, guide/interpreters, etc. Further information may be secured by contacting: A. Sylvester, History Department, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania 17815.

WRITES REVIEW

Dr. Howard K. Macauley, Dept. of Educational Studies and Services, has written a book review to be published in the journal, "Educational Studies," issued by the American Educational Studies Association. The book reviewed was "Education, Training, and the Urban Ghetto" (John Hopkins University Press, 1972) by Bennett Harrison.

ARTICLE PUBLISHED

Dr. David E. Washburn, Dept. of Educational Studies and Services, has an article entitled, "A Conceptual Framework for Multi-Cultural Education" appearing in the Vol. 10, nos. 1 & 2, Spring/Fall 1973 issue of "The Florida FL Reporter: A Journal of Language and Culture in Education" to be released the last week in March. The theme of this issue is "Black Dialect: Historical and Descriptive Issues."

DR. CARLSON OPPOSES TUITION INCREASE

Dr. Charles Carlson, Acting President at Bloomsburg State College, stated early in March, 1973 that he supports in principle the resolution released on February 18, 1973 by the Board of State College and University Directors regarding Governor Shapp's proposed budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The resolution stated:

"That the Board of State College and University Directors considers that the proposed Budget for the 14 State Colleges will require a severe cutback in program as well as requiring our students to pay increased tuition. We, therefore, oppose the concept of the requested Budget and urge the Legislature to appropriate sufficient funds to preserve the present quality of education with no increase in tuition."

Dr. Carlson indicated specifically that he was opposed to a tuition increase, that he felt the Commonwealth must recognize its commitments and responsibility to higher education by providing a high quality program of instruction at a reasonable cost to students in State Colleges.

The proposed Budget is being analyzed in detail by Dr. Carlson and the Bloomsburg State College Board of Trustees prior to forthcoming budget hearings to be held in Harrisburg. The amount indicated in the budget for B.S.C. is approximately $1,700,000 less than the college had requested for 1973-74.

MAY I HAVE YOUR ATTENTION?

This is an appeal.

One of a dozen, or fifty, or two hundred, depending on how many mailing lists you're on.

But this one is close to home.

This one is for your college alumni association.

If you're like most of us, you have a special feeling toward this college. You may not agree with its every move, but you want to see it perpetuated as the great institution that it is.

Thus, this appeal has a special importance.

Since my last report of December 8, 1972, we have received $1929. giving us a total of $ 7078. in contributions since September 1, 1972.

Please dig deep and send as much as you can to your Alumni Association. A contribution of $ 5 or more will renew your annual membership.

How much did you pay for tuition when you were a student at Bloomsburg?
Are you aware that students are now paying $700.00 a year?

The budget for next year, as announced by Harrisburg, is almost a million and a half less than the amount requested. In order to meet this cut-back, several adjustments will be necessary.

1. Increase the tuition.
2. No increase in enrollment.
3. No increase in appropriations for faculty or staff.

Anyone of these adjustments would be disastrous.

If you have any feeling on the matter, please write to your State Senator and your Representative in the State Legislature.

I personally feel that this is a crucial moment for our Alma Mater.

Then and Now

As Bloomsburg State College comes to the close of the 1972-73 academic year, I am provided with an opportunity to reflect on the past year and also to comment on the months ahead.

Looking back, we have enjoyed a very positive year. Credit, of course, must go to the students, faculty, administrative staff, members of the Board of Trustees, and the Alumni who have contributed their energies and have unselfishly supported Bloomsburg State College. I trust that this renewed confidence will continue.

Bloomsburg State is a college with a rich heritage. At our last Alumni Day, I was reminded that there are some very distinguished graduates, including a Nobel Prize winner, a U. S. Army General, outstanding scholars, artists, businessmen, professional athletes, and many others who have contributed to our country. Bloomsburg State College has responded to the needs of society in the 60's and 70's, and I am confident about her ability to meet the new challenges ahead.

Looking toward the future, I envision many challenges. At the same time, I think that we have a college community equal to the task.

Of continuing concern is the 1973-1974 budget which has not been resolved by the Commonwealth. Accompanying this concern is the issue of a proposed increase in student fees. Escalating institutional operating costs must be matched by Commonwealth appropriations if we are to maintain our current programs and also respond to the program needs of the future.

Our student body for next September will meet our projected figure of 4,300 as reported by the Admissions Office. This information is particularly encouraging in view of the fact that many colleges across the country are experiencing a student decrease.

Soon there will be an announcement of the new President by the Governor. All of us will join together in mutual support as he provides new leadership and direction for the college.

Please accept our best wishes for a pleasant and enjoyable summer.

Dr. Parke, Judge Lavelle Receive Distinguished Service Awards

Two of BSC's outstanding graduates were given the Alumni Association's highest honor, the Distinguished Service Award during the annual luncheon-business meeting on May 5, 1973.

Dr. Margaret Bittner Parke, Class of 1923, received her award from a classmate, Mrs. Hobart Heller, (Hilda Albertson). A portion of Mrs. Heller's comments follow:

"Dr. Margaret Bittner Parke, known to our class as Margaret from Mauch Chunk, has honored her class by becoming an internationally recognized educator.

"After leaving Bloomsburg, Margaret earned her bachelor's degree in English and Social Studies at Pennsylvania State University in 1927. Three years later she received her master's degree from Teachers College, Columbia University, in guidance and personnel, and in 1945 the Doctor of Education degree from the same institution. Just last year she attended a seminar at Eger University in Hungary.

"Dr. Parke's career took her all the way from a rural school in Rockport, Pa. to a full professorship in Brooklyn College.

"In her early years, she taught in several Pennsylvania and New York schools. During the late twenties, while a junior high school teacher of English, she became interested in guidance and in research, and in the mid-thirties she became associated with the New York City public schools. She assumed leadership roles almost at once by working to promote change in the primary grades in Harlem, and helping to develop a new language arts program for the elementary schools of the city.

"She became a member of the Brooklyn College faculty in 1951, remaining there until her retirement in 1971.

"She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi and Pi Lambda Theta; she was selected for membership in the distinguished National Council on Research in English and the New York Academy of Public Education. She is listed in many of the important national and international dictionaries of biography, such as leaders in Education, Creative and Successful Personalities of the World, Dictionary of International Biography. Her membership in professional, civic and public service organizations attest recognition of a broad and significant influence. She has been recognized by women's groups such as Women's Press Club and A.A.U.W.

"Her special honors make a long list from which I would select as examples an honorary degree from Staley College, a Fulbright to lecture at the University of Australia, and just a year ago the Distinguished Alumna Award from Pennsylvania State University.

"Dr. Parke's record of publications must be counted in scores. She published three practice work books. Her books for children include My First Book to Read, My Second Book to Read, You Can Teach your Child to Read, and recently, especially for older children, Getting to Know Australia.

"Her articles in scholarly journals are numbered in the dozens. She kept pace with the times by contributing to film strips, movies, and television. On reading about Dr. Parke, I was pleased to learn of an incident which occurred at Brooklyn College. It seems that, like all faculty members, she hoped for an eventual full professorship. A colleague asked 'Don't you know that no woman has ever been made a full professor in the Education Department at Brooklyn?' Margaret replied, 'Then it's up to me to be the first.'

"Dr. Parke's interests, both professional and personal, have taken her all over the world, not only to the countries of Europe, but Tahiti, Korea, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan, and even behind the Iron Curtain. Again, a mere list takes pages.

"Today, in honoring you, Dr. Parke, we honor the class and the college that you have honored by your life and your work."

Her award is inscribed with the following information:

Dr. Margaret Bittner Parke, Distinguished alumnus, class of 1923. Graduate degrees from Pennsylvania State University and Columbia University. Teacher, author, world Traveler, Fulbright lecturer. A first lady in education.

Judge John E. Lavelle

The Honorable John E. Lavelle, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Schuylkill County, and a member of the Class of 1941, was presented his award by a classmate, Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, whose comments follow.

John E. Lavelle was born in Conner-ton, Butler Township, Pennsylvania. His family consisted of one brother (now deceased) and two sisters.

His basic formal education was received at St. Joseph's Elementary and High School in Girardville, Pennsylvania. He attended Bloomsburg State College from 1937 until 1941, graduating with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education and with certification in business, English, and history. While at Bloomsburg, John was deeply involved, not only in his academic pursuits, but in numerous activities. Foremost there came to mind his participation in track and cross country, his interest in Student Christian Association, Vice-President of our senior class, and his management of the College Dining Hall, supervising the serving of almost 3,000 meals a day. These and other interests proved prophetic of professional leadership and community service to come.

Following college, he taught business subjects at the Butler Township High School, where he remained until

BSC's Newest Buildings Are Named For 'Doc' Nelson, Dr. Kehr and D. J. Waller

Three new buildings were dedicated during a special program in Haas Center for the Arts on Alumni Day, May 5, 1973. Participating in the event were national, state, and local government officials, along with administrators, trustees, and students of the College.

The new administration building was named in honor of Dr. David J. Waller, Jr., whose many contributions to education were described in the following remarks by Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, '41, Dean of the School of Professional Studies at BSC.

"It is particularly significant that we name for and dedicate the new Administration Building to David J. Waller, Jr., It serves as an affectionate link with the past, maintaining a continuity going back to the original Academy which was the parent institution of Bloomsburg State College.

"Waller became Principal of Bloomsburg State Normal School at the age of 31 at a time when it needed strong and devoted leadership. This he gave for 13 years until appointed Superintendent of Public Instruction for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in 1890. After leaving that position and serving as Principal at Indiana State Normal School for 13 years, he returned to his "Alma Mater" as chief administrator for 14 years more, until his retirement in 1920.

"The year he graduated from this institution - 1869 - Institute Hall, now Carver Hall, was completed, and he and two classmates in one day raised $1,200 to purchase the tower bell—solid brass and as good as the one in the Presbyterian Church. In 1939, at the age of 93, he rang the bell on Alumni Day to call the community to the campus for the culminating activities celebrating the institution's centennial year.

"D. J. Waller, Jr., earned his A.B. and M.A. at Lafayette College, a Bachelor of Divinity at Union Theological Seminary, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws from Juniata College, and an honorary Ph.D. from Lafayette. His abiding impact and influence are demonstrated by a comment made about him in the Morning Press at the time of his retirement by a faculty member and former student:

"In October of 1878 that young principal at once won my respect, confidence, and affection because of his love for the work, his skill as a teacher, his personal interest in each student, and his exalted standards of character. And so the quiet influence of his life, his living, his standards became the ideals of those living under him, a subtle influence that continued to transform the lives of his pupils long after school days ceased."

"All of this is summarized on the plaque, presented by the Alumni Association in 1922, which has hung for over 50 years in the soon-to-go old Waller Hall and which will become part of the new Waller Administration Building:

Truth and Virtue

Presented to the Bloomsburg State Normal School by its alumni to commemorate the graduation of its 50th class of teachers and the 44 years of educational service to the Commonwealth of DAVID JEWETT WALLER, JR. as Principal of the State Normal Schools at Bloomsburg and Indiana and as State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"What better inspiration is there for men and women who work in this building and the students who are helped there than the life of the man for which it is named and to whose memory its function is dedicated."

Dr. Marguerite W. Kehr

Dr. Marguerite W. Kehr was present for the ceremony in Haas Auditorium as the new College Union was dedicated in her honor. Boyd F. Buckingham, '43, Associate Vice President for Development and Public Relations at BSC, praised and thanked Dr. Kehr for her service to the College and her concern for its students in the remarks that follow.

"Dr. Marguerite Kehr was Dean of Women at BSC from 1928 to 1953. Those of us who knew her well have often expressed the feeling that her title should have been Dean of All Students. One might have described her as being ubiquitous, promoting and regulating a host of group and individual activities. Her concern for student welfare is still reflected in the Kehr-Ward Emergency Loan Fund which she helped establish and direct. In her firm but gentle manner, she was a scholar and a true friend of humanity, and she labored tirelessly to preserve those traditions which were good and useful at BSC.

"Dr. Kehr earned the Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Tennessee, the Master of Arts degree at Wellesley College and the Doctor of Philosophy degree at Cornell University. Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, she had been Dean of Women at Lake Forest College from 1921 to 1927.

"In addition to her writing and speaking on behalf of student interests and her work as advisor to student organizations, Dean Kehr served as President, Pennsylvania Association of Women Deans and Counselors, 1940-41, and in 1930 she was the first president of the Bloomsburg Branch, American Association of University Women.

"She served in an advisory capacity with the U.S. National Student Federation of America from 1938 to 1941 and with the U.S. National Student Association from 1947 to 1968.

"The following letter from Raymond Hodges, Class of 1930, to Dr. Charles Carlson, Acting President of BSC, sums up the feelings of thousands of Bloomsburg graduates.

"This is to let you know how tremendously pleased I am that you and the Board of Trustees have decided to name the new Student Union for Marguerite Kehr. And how appropriate its location! During my sophomore year we were having some administration difficulties—yes we had them even way back then—and the Dean of Women who had been there about a month left. At a dance being held in what was then the Gym, a new Dean was suddenly introduced to us. It was Dr. Kehr, and now the building occupying that spot is to honor her.

"Dr. Kehr did a great many wonderful things for the college and for us students. We were still in the transition from Normal School to Teachers College and in her subtle way she made us see the need for a more liberal arts approach. She even inspired us to ask for a course in Philosophy!

You have made, I am sure, a great many alumni very happy."

The new fieldhouse on the Upper Campus was dedicated in honor of Dr. Elna H. Nelson by his longtime friend and colleague, Howard F. Fenstemaker, who paid tribute to Dr. Nelson's service to education, athletics, and people in all walks of life in the paragraphs which follow.

"Dr. Nelson, recognized as one of the outstanding authorities in the nation in the field of health education, was a teacher and department head most of his life, but since 1947 had been secretary of Caldwell Consistory much of the nation for his Masonic and was widely known throughout activities.

"One of his principal interests was the Bloomsburg State College, where he was a faculty member for twenty-one years, and president of the Alumni

James A. Magee, President of Magee Carpet Co., (left), and Dr. Charles Carlson, Acting President of Bloomsburg State College, are shown with the tapestry of the BSC seal, which has been donated to the college by the trustees of the Magee Museum Trust following the announcement to close the local Magee Museums. The college has two more identical tapestries that have hung in the Alumni Room in Waller Hall for many years. At the time the tapestries were designed by Mrs. Herre and made for the college, the Magee Carpet Co. decided that the seal came out so well that an additional one should be made for advertising purposes in conjunction with its custom tufting business. When the latter manufacturing process was phased out, the tapestry was put on display in the Magee Museum. The only stipulation made with the presentation was that the tapestry be retained by the college and under no conditions should it be sold to any individual or organization but to remain the sole property of the institution. It has been placed in the large conference room in the new Waller Administration building. When old Waller Hall is razed in the near future, the other two tapestries will be placed in a new area selected for the Alumni Room.

2 NEW BSC TRUSTEES NAMED BY GOVERNOR

Columbia County Commissioner Richard K. Walton, of Berwick, and John Kubeika, assistant principal of Pine Grove Area High School, have been nominated for appointment to the BSC Board of Trustees. They are to succeed E. Guy Bangs, of Orangeville R. D. 1, and Judge George Heffner, of Pottsville, whose terms have expired.

The appointments are subject to confirmation by the State Senate.

Kubeika lives in St. Clair, Schuylkill County, and is the Democratic candidate for mayor in that community.

ARA SLATER AWARDS

Six students at BSC have received the ARA Slater Scholarship Awards given by the College Food Service organization to students in ARA's employ.

Chosen from a group of thirteen eligible students were: Paul W. Rennie, Bloomsburg; Douglas S. Gombar, Coopersburg; Bonnie L. Irreton, Audubon, N. J.; Anna M. Shastay, Cornwells Heights; Frances A. Skube, Forest City; Gary L. Witt, Felton.

The pattern of selection was the one followed by Slater catered colleges in general. Ratings were gathered from the following areas: (1) academics (2) citizenship, behavior, and social acceptance (3) managerial staff of Slater on appearance, loyalty, tardiness, reliability, quantity and quality of work, sanitation practices, and safety record.

BSC Senior Represents Penna. In Miss U.S.A. Beauty Contest

by Valery O'Connell

Editor's Note: After this article was written Miss Unbewust competed in the nationally-televised Miss U.S.A. contest in New York City. One of 51 contestants, she represented Pennsylvania.

How could a girl dressed in hip boots and carrying fishing tackle ever make an impression on the judges of a beauty contest?

Ask Miss Jill Unbewust of Benton, Pa. Her sporty attire, depicting the famed Fishing Creek, was her hometown area costume during the Miss Pennsylvania-U.S.A. Pageant. A senior Elementary Ed major at Bloomsburg State College, she experienced "one of the most thrilling times of my life" as a participant in this beauty contest. And the soft-spoken, brown-eyed brunette walked away with this year's State title.

From March 7 through 10, the 5 foot 8½ inch beauty attended the pageant in Washington, Pa., just south of Pittsburgh. There she participated in four fun-filled days, packed with excitement and emotions.

Thirty two girls from all over the state took part in the pageant. "They came from a variety of backgrounds which was perhaps the most interesting part of the contest," said Jill. The only requirement was that each applicant be between 18 and 28 years old. The average age was 19. College students, models, school teachers, office clerks, even a State Police secretary came to Washington for the final exhibition in the state and a chance to step into the shoes of Miss U.S.A. "The competition was pretty strong," stated Jill. "I was very surprised to be selected from such an array of beauty."

Winning a beauty contest is not new to Jill. After graduating from Benton Area Junior-Senior High School, she entered the Miss Pocono Pageant on her older sister's advice. Winning that contest, Jill also applied to the Miss Anthracite Beauty Pageant, in which she placed first runner-up.

"Miss Pennsylvania - U.S.A. is the biggest step I have taken so far and perhaps the most exciting. I look forward to the Miss U.S.A. pageant as a terrific experience, rather than a competitive contest," Jill said.

Reading an announcement in the Bloomsburg Morning Press, Jill decided to submit her name to the Washington, Pa. agency sponsoring the pageant. She then received forms to complete and instructions to obtain a patron. Each contestant must be sponsored by one or more companies which contribute a total of $200. They are advised to secure local merchants and organizations for backing.

Each day of the pageant was devoted to practice for that evening's performance. One-piece bathing suit competition, an evening gown display, an area costume contest and interviews off and on stage were open to the public. A panel of six judges rated the girls on their poise, personality and physical appearance.

Prizes awarded to the winner included $500 worth of clothing, a $700 scholarship to the Wheeler modeling School of Pittsburgh and an appearance contract through which Miss Pennsylvania arranges a schedule of charitable shows and publicity appearances for businesses.

Miss Unbewust is really "a student at heart." She will graduate in December, 1973, after student-teaching for the fall semester. She has appeared in Bloomsburg Player's summer stock performance "The Impossible Years" and works as a lifeguard at the college pool. Jill enjoys "with a passion" swimming, tennis, and skiing, both water and snow.

How has her title affected her future plans? Jill is "undecided as of yet as to what I want to do right after graduation. I do want to teach school, but I also plan to use my modeling scholarship."

Her advice for future contestants has an encouraging outlook. "I would sincerely urge all those girls who apply for the title next year to be ready for much work. Have an enthusiastic outlook; go into the pageant thinking of it as a great experience and an opportunity to meet and make friends with a variety of people. But most of of all — be yourself."

PUBLICATION

Dr. Ralph R. Ireland, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, has been informed that his article, "POW-WOW: Faith Healing Pennsylvania Style," has been authorized for publication by the review editors of PENNSYLVANIA MEDICINE, the official journal of the state medical society.

DR. TOUMEY, FORMER BSC PROFESSOR, DIES

Dr. S. Lloyd Toumey, 53, 13 DeKalb Square, Newark, Delaware, died March 25, 1973 at Possum Park Emergency Center, Newark, shortly after being stricken at his home.

A native of Ridgeville, Indiana, Dr. Toumey was chairman of the Division of Business Education at Bloomsburg State College from 1962 until 1967 when he moved to Goddard Beacom College in Newark; then to Wilmington College in Wilmington, Del., and currently was dean of the Salem Community College at Penns Grove, New Jersey.

He was a retired Lt. Colonel of the U. S. Air Force, having served during World War II and during the Korean War.

Surviving are his wife, Anne; two daughters, Mrs. Charlotte McBride, Philadelphia, and Deborah, at home.

He was interred in Tampa, Florida.

Westminster Is Added to 1973 Football Schedule

Bloomsburg State College has added Westminster College to the 1973 football schedule, Dr. Conrad A. Bautz, Chairman, Department of Health, Physical Education and Athletics, has announced.

The Huskies, who finished the 1972 campaign in a second place tie in the eastern division of the Pennsylvania Conference, will play Westminster on October 6 at Bloomsburg. The Titans had a 7-1 record last year and have finished in the top ten nationally of the NAIA District II for the past three years. Eight seniors are lost from the seventh ranked 1972 squad.

Coach Bill Sproule states: "It's a pleasure to welcome Westminster to our schedule. Playing a team of such high calibre helps to up-grade our schedule and gives a brand of competition that every good football team enjoys playing."

The Westminster game replaces California State College on the schedule. The nine-game schedule is as follows:

Luptowski, Willis Get Top Awards At Annual Athletic Banquet

Two stars of the 1972-73 BSC basketball team received the top athletic honors at the annual Athletic Awards banquet held in May.

Art Luptowski, of Ridley Park, won the Robert Redman award presented to the outstanding senior athlete. John Willis, a junior, received the ARA Slater award as the outstanding undergraduate athlete.

Recognition for outstanding athletic achievement was also given the following BSC stars who won Pennsylvania Conference championships during the year:

Swimming: Rich Kozicki, Haverstown, 500 yard freestyle event; and Dave Gibas, West Mifflin, who is a former NAIA All-American, 50 and 100 yard freestyle events and the greatest swimmer in BSC's history; Bill Ewell, Springfield, and Doug Yocum, Pottstown, who along with Gibas and Kozicki captured the 400 yard relay team event. Track: Andy Kusma, West Point, 120 yard high hurdles, and John Ficek, Philadelphia, shotput. Wrestling: Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock, Wyalusing, 177 title.

Susan Wise, of Elkins Park, received the Lucy McCammon award as the outstanding woman who maintained a 2.5 cumulative average while participating in Intra-Extramural activities. She has served as President of the Women's Association Board and as Intramural Coordinator.

Luptowski, who captained the Huskies to a 20-5 season record, averaged 10.5 points and seven assists per game. Both he and Willis were named to the NAIA District 19 team and to the first team of the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania Conference. He was also named to the Indiana, Pa., Christmas Tree All-Tourney team.

Willis, a six-foot eight-inch center, averaged 21.4 points and 15.9 rebounds per game. He received the MVP award at the Indiana Christmas Tree tournament and was named to the ECAC Div. 3 All-East squad. Top scorer in the eastern division of the Penna. Conference, he was selected for the ECAC All-Southern Regional Tournament team.

Spring Sports Teams Round Out Successful Year

Three of the four men's varsity spring sports teams at Bloomsburg State College had either winning or break even records.

The baseball team of Coach Clark Boler, which at one point was probably more in contention for a Pennsylvania Conference title than any of the other sports, finished the season with a 9-9 overall record and a 8-6 conference record including the play-off losses. Huskies got off to a fast start and then were slowed down later in the season but made it to the post-season PC Tournament. In the play-off, Bloomsburg dropped a 5-2 contest to Indiana in the first game and was nudged by Millersville 3-2 in 12 innings in the second which knocked them out of the double-elimination event. Indiana went on to win the conference title.

BSC had one of its better tennis teams and perhaps the best in recent years, finishing the season with an 8-3 record. For the first time in the history of the college, Bloomsburg hosted the Pennsylvania Conference Championships which were played on the new grassstex complex located adjacent to the President's Residence.

The Warriors of East Stroudsburg breezed through the championship with a near perfect 35 points, ahead of Edinboro, who posted 23 points. Bloomsburg finished sixth with 7 points. The Huskies of Coach Burt Reese are a young team and will be a force to be reckoned with in the future. The new tennis complex, including the two Tartan indoor courts, in the Nelson Fieldhouse, should help attract future college tennis aspirants to our campus, thus enabling BSC to stay in contention in the much-improved PC circuit.

The track team, under Coach Ron Puhl, completed the season with a 10-2 record and a seventh place finish in the conference meet. Again participating without a home track, the Huskies made an admirable showing while competing on their opponent's facilities all season.

Although lacking some of its upper class strength of the previous year when the Huskies were runnerup in the conference, Bloomsburg did produce two individual state champions in John Ficek, who won the shotput event, and Andy Kusma the 120 yard high hurdles. It is hoped the new track on the upper campus will be ready for use in 1974, which will be a considerable lift to Coach Puhl and his charges.

A rather inexperienced golf squad struggled through a dismal season with a 1-10 record and a twelfth place finish in the conference championships. The stickmen of Coach Charles Chronister will need some fall seasoning for the tough PC competition next spring.

For the first time in the history of the college, the women had a varsity tennis team coached by Miss Eleanor Wray. The Huskies had a 1-5-1 record and are looking forward to an improvement in next year's competition.

The composite record of the nine men's varsity sports teams for the entire year was 72 victories against 53 losses.

Speech, Hearing Clinic on Wheels Helps Solve Communication Problems

There have been many new developments on the campus of Bloomsburg State College since the beginning of 1973. But perhaps the most unusual is the extension of Navy Hall in the form of a mobile speech, hearing and language clinic.

The Department of Communication Disorders has added a specially equipped bus to its facilities, enabling the college and surrounding community to benefit directly from their services offered. This van travels extensively in the area surrounding Bloomsburg, taking personnel to schools to determine communication problems of public school students.

A third grade teacher in Berwick might glance out the classroom window one morning and see the huge white vehicle parked in front of the school. Maroon and gold letters on the side of the bus announce "Bloomsburg State College, Speech, Hearing, and Language Clinic, Department of Communication Disorders." The most unusual feature on the exterior of the bus is the flying wing in the rear. This special provision in the body of the van accommodates a sound-proof auditory testing room in the back, enabling clinicians and clients to stand up in this section.

A typical six-hour day may see 400 to 500 youngsters go through the speech bus. Their teacher or school nurse monitors their entrance. While inside, they are given a hearing test, mandatory for grades 1, 2, 3, 7, and 11. Approximately six undergraduates of BSC administer these tests, formerly given by the school nurse.

In future months the mobile unit will be used to diagnose language disorders. The front part can be divided into three small chambers by sliding partitions, suitable for administering speech screening tests. The air-conditioned vehicle is also equipped with two TV cameras and a one-way mirror, to be used in video-taping private therapy sessions without disturbing clinician or client.

An International Harvester truck chassis is the basis for this custom-designed bus. Under Program Director Dr. James D. Bryden, Chairman of the Department of Communication Disorders, plans were initiated in September, 1971. G. Donald Miller, assistant professor of Communication Disorders, designed the auditory facilities. Miss Colleen Marks, assistant professor of Communication Disorders, supervised the language therapy aids. Robert S. Asby acted as program consultant.

Currently under the fulltime supervision of Ned Kramp, and parttime direction of Miss Marks, the speech bus has been on the road since the beginning of February. Federal funds made available through the Elementary and Secondary Educational Act (ESEA) Title III financed the construction and maintenance of the vehicle.

Its use has been widespread in the past three months, serving more than two thousand school age children from kindergarten to twelfth grade. Intermediate Units 16, 18, and 29 actually own the bus but it is on "perpetual loan to Bloomsburg State," noted Dr. Bryden.

Although the main purpose of Title III was to promote innovative educational projects in public school districts and to change the country's attitude toward the general scene of American public education, the speech bus provides other valuable services to the eight-county area surrounding Bloomsburg. The vehicle is an informative center for student speech clinicians and audiologists, providing training in diagnostic testing and therapy. The TV cameras videotape therapy sessions which are later used as teaching aids in Speech Pathology classrooms.

There is a possibility that in the future industrial hearing tests will be administered from the van. Mr. Kramp hopes to accommodate the vast number of demands for service that have occurred since the first appearance of the curiously shaped speech clinic. Educators in the eastern central part of Pennsylvania will become more familiar with BSC's newest mobile facility in the near future as the Speech, Hearing and Language Clinic hits the road again.

The mobile Speech, Hearing and Language Clinic of BSC's Department of Communication Disorders is shown at top of this page.

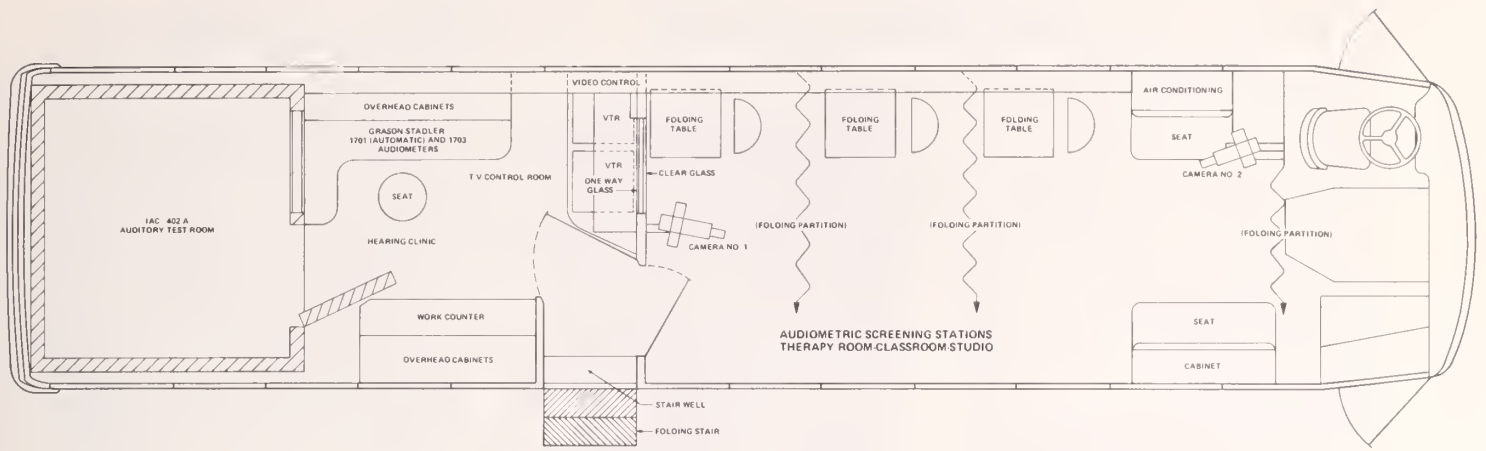

A diagram and interior photos appear on opposite page. In the center of the page are views from opposite ends of the forward section showing the folding partitions which can divide the room into three compartments for speech screening tests and therapy sessions. Video cameras are mounted at both ends of the compartment, and under the TV monitor screen, in photo at left, is an observation window for clinicians in the control room.

RECEIVES AWARD

Dr. Howard K. Macauley, Jr., Associate Professor, Department of Educational Studies and Services, Bloomsburg State College, was the recipient of the Phi Delta Kappa Dissertation Award for 1972-1973 at the University of Pennsylvania.

The award is presented annually for the outstanding doctoral dissertation in the field of education at the university. Dr. Macauley received his Ph.D. from the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences last year, and the title of his dissertation was, "A Social and Intellectual History of Elementary Education in Pennsylvania to 1850."

Youth Learned About Drugs The Hard Way -- A Bad Trip

By Pattie Mihalik

The young man sat in his small bedroom as he made plans to take a trip. He put away his college textbooks, and then placed his favorite records on the turntable.

Dressed in mod clothes, very much a part of the times, 18-year-old Michael Sheenan popped a small purple pill into his mouth. His "trip" had started.

Now, three years later, an older and wiser Michael Sheenan talks frankly about his experiences with drugs. Because he is now firmly committed to the fight against drugs, Michael tells his story, the story of how a typical "nice boy" from a small town becomes part of the drug scene.

When Michael was in high school, "drugs" were something taken to cure an illness. But at College, the word "drugs" took on a new meaning for the youth.

"I started using 'speed' or 'Bennies' to stay up all night to study. This is a common practice because these pills keep you awake and make you feel alert. Trouble is, the next day, your mind is a blank," said Michael, who stopped using the drugs when he saw the side effects they had.

Later he was introduced to marijuana at a rock festival. Said Michael: "There was so much 'grass' in the air that it seemed you could get high just from breathing." Someone passed him a joint of grass, telling him to inhale and hold it as long as possible.

"Suddenly, I felt happy, as if I were really free for the first time. I became very emotional and open. I felt liberated, like I could do anything I wanted to do," said Michael of his first experience with grass.

He explained he had tried grass "just to see what it was like." Said Mike: "I never dreamed it would become part of my life, but, three months later, that's exactly what happened."

The young man explained that even though he was a straight "A" student, all the challenge seemed to leave his life. He said personal problems also added to his discontentment.

"To forget about my problems, I started going 'downtown' from the campus more often. At that time, it seemed like everybody was 'doing grass'. Oh, not on a regular basis, but most of those with whom I came in contact were smoking it. It was only a natural outcome that I, too, started on grass. I liked it, but I was still not 'psyched up' about it," said Michael.

But, for Michael, that was the beginning of his drug habit. He soon graduated to stronger drugs. When a friend brought him a tab of acid from Philadelphia, Michael took it back to his hometown where he decided to "make the trip" in his bedroom.

He describes that first encounter with acid in this way: "I decided to make it a musical trip. I remember how each album made me more and more exhilarated. I got so involved in the music I seemed to become the music. I became the guitar; I understood what it was trying to say. The feeling of exhilaration that I knew was so intense—like the day before your marriage, I suppose. Then, I began spacing out. It was just like I was on another planet observing myself. I looked at my face in the mirror, wondering if it were really my face."

Mike remembers that friends dropped in to see him while he was on his trip. "I was so spaced out that I laughed at everything they said. This is what happens with LSD: it's impossible to communicate with others," commented Mike.

Mike said that when he first took the LSD pill, he felt like he "snatched a little bit of heaven and got away with it." But, after several hours, he began to "come down." He explained that with acid, a user comes up slowly, reaches a peak, then levels down. Coming down is the hard part, according to Mike, who said that at this point he felt depressed and very critical of his life style.

When his "trip" was over, Mike said he felt completely exhausted, as if he had been up studying for 20 hours. But, he was able to make it to school the next day.

After that, Mike found it was easy to stay supplied with LSD. He explained: "Things were really happening here at school. Big dealers start coming on campus. College kids became junkies. One guy at college began turning me on every day. In return for this, he asked if I would supply my home town kids with grass, speed and acid. I did as he asked, not for money, but for my supply."

Mike admits that he smoked grass and hash every day for four months and also "tripped on acid" every once-in-awhile. He admits that he got to the point where drugs were a crutch.

"At first, I thought I was being intellectually stimulated by drugs—that they helped me be creative and understand myself and others better. But slowly I realized that pot made me psychologically dependent in that drugs were taking over my personality. Smoking pot made me physically sluggish and turned me into an introvert, which normally I am not. I was at the point where I cut 75 percent of my classes in school," said Mike.

"I began to realize that drugs weren't helping me with my real goal to help people—drugs were just messing up the works! It was then that I began to see the dope pushers for what they were and to hate them for it. They weren't interested in me as an individual—just in making a buck," he added.

When a dealer at school again asked Michael to take hash to sell in his home town, he turned it down. He told the dealer he was through with drugs. Then he went to his pastor for help.

"It was ironic that just when I decided to quit the drug scene, I got busted," said Mike. He recalls that one Saturday night as he sat in his room at home typing a term paper the state and local police appeared at his door with a search warrant and an order for his arrest. Their search turned up three tabs of mescaline, a hallucinatory drug, in Mike's closet.

It seemed that one of the boys to whom Mike had earlier sold drugs was really a narcotics agent. Mike spent the night in jail until his grandfather could provide bail.

The following weeks Michael spent home in isolation, trying to pick up the pieces of his life. He painted, read, and buried himself in his college textbooks. But, his fight with drugs was not over.

"It was a real struggle between my drug personality and the real me. I knew I should stay off drugs, but something kept pounding in my head saying: One more time Mike . . . just one more time . . .," admitted Mike.

A friend ended the struggle. He supplied Michael with a "four way paper" (acid that should be split four ways). After taking most of it, Michael went on what is known as "a bummer."

"The bummer really hit me hard," he said. "I was feeling higher than ever before. When I started to bum, I actually felt my mind leaving my body, as if I were getting closer to death. I couldn't count to ten. All of a sudden, muscle spasms took over my entire body. I tried drinking a lot of water to get the acid out of my system. I remember feeling as if I could really distinguish between my soul and my body, like I was actually dying."

"I decided to force my mind to do something. I picked up a pamphlet in the bathroom and tried to read it. I knew that I could keep my mind together, but I was worried about my body. Things were happening to it which I couldn't control.

"I remember praying, but I didn't pray for help; I prayed for forgiveness," said Mike.

Michael woke his sister, who called a doctor. But, by then, he had started to go into convulsions. "Everytime I looked at something, it would appear so completely distorted that I thought I would go insane," said Michael of the experience he termed the most horrible of his life.

Michael was rushed to the hospital for emergency treatment where he lingered for days between life and death.

"With the help of doctors, the nurses, and a lot of self-determination, I finally pulled back together. That one bum trip taught me more about drugs than I'll ever care to know about them," said Michael.

"Believe me, never again. Never!" firmly avowed Michael at that time about drugs. Now, three years later, he has not only stayed away from drugs himself, but has talked to other "heads", trying to convince them to give up all drugs. He has appeared before the County Commissioners to testify about the local drug traffic. In addition, he has served as guest enlisting in the U.S. Navy in February, 1942.

John was one of the original "Sea Bees" and left the United States with the Second Naval Construction Battalion on April 5, 1942; this unit served as construction arm of the First Marine Division in 1942 in the South Pacific Theater. He is entitled to five battle stars, including the epic engagements at Iwo Jima and Okinawa. He maintained association with the Navy until his honorable discharge on October 14, 1955 with the rank of Full Lieutenant.

In 1945, he married the former Anne Cooke of Girardville who sits here with him now, and they are the parents of seven children, one of whom is presently a student at Bloomsburg State College.

John graduated with honors from Temple University School of Law in 1948, with a Juris Doctorate. During Law School, he was employed by the famed Ruby R. Vale, Esquire, as a research assistant. Upon graduation from Law School he was admitted to practice before the Court of Common Pleas of Schuylkill county in February, 1949, and was an active trial lawyer for the next twenty-two years, trying several hundred civil and criminal cases in Schuylkill County and in many of the Eastern Pennsylvania Counties. He has also been admitted to practice before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court; Pennsylvania Superior Court; U.S. District Court—Middle District of Pennsylvania; U.S. District Court—Eastern District of Pennsylvania; U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

Previous to his election as judge, he was chairman of the Rules Committee of the Court of Common Pleas of Schuylkill County whose work constituted the first re-writing of the Rules of Practice since 1922.

Before going on the bench, he was also a member of the Rules Committee of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, and served on the sub-committee which formulated the Rules of Practice relative to reducing the number of jurors required in civil cases.

In 1971, he received the Democratic nomination for the position of Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. In the Primary Election of that year, he came very close to also winning the Republican nomination for that post. In the General Election, he was elected as judge over the candidacy of the District Attorney for the office.

John's professional affiliations embrace the full range of societies for the law—county, state, and national; while a practicing attorney he served on the Board of Governors of the Pennsylvania Trial Lawyers Association. He is a member of Phi Alpha Delta (National Honorary Legal Fraternity) and from his Bloomsburg days, Phi Sigma Pi (National Honorary Education Fraternity).

His fraternal and civic associations are too numerous to list at this time, but they embrace every facet of community life and carry influence for good beyond his home and region. He is an active member of St. Joseph's Association for fifteen years, holding the latter office at the time of his death.

"A recognized leader in all fields of civic endeavor, one of his last projects was arranging the fiftieth anniversary of his class of 1911 at the College. Although he was a patient in the hospital for some weeks prior to that event, he directed the planning and also that for the general alumni meeting.

"He was a fan of all sports, and in his years at the Bloomsburg State College much was accomplished in the athletic program. His favorite was baseball, a sport in which he excelled as a young man and in which he directed some splendid College teams including the undefeated one of 1934.

"Much of his life was devoted to helping others and he was especially happy when he could do a good turn for young people. His friends were legion and from all walks of life.

"He graduated from the Bloomsburg State Normal School, now the State College, in 1911, received his A.B. Degree from the University of Michigan in 1917, his Master of Education Degree at Harvard in 1924 and his Ph.D. from New York University in 1932.

"He started his teaching career in the rural schools of Wayne County, where he taught from 1906 to 1909, and was a member of the faculty at Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, now Lycoming College, from 1911 to 1914.

"Dr. Nelson was head of the department of physical education of Highland Park, Michigan, High School and Junior College from 1917 to 1922 and director of physical education and recreation of the Bethlehem, Pa. public schools from 1922 to 1924.

"He returned to Bloomsburg State College in 1924 as director of health education where he remained until 1945 when he was named chief of health and physical education, Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction, serving to 1947.

"That year he was named secretary of Caldwell Consistory, a position he held at the time of his death.

"He was a veteran of World War I, being in the Officers Training School, Camp Lee, Va., in 1918. He was director of physical and military training of Navy units at the Teachers College during World War II, and a member of the Army Advisory Commission, District 2.

"He took over the leadership of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association following the death of R. Bruce Albert in the mid-forties and served in that office until his death, building the Association to its strongest position and giving it its most active program in the history of the school.

speaker to groups interested in exploring the dope problem.

Michael's experience is now all in the past. He was brought to trial on the narcotics charges, convicted, and released on parole. This could be the end of the story for Michael. He could try to keep his past experiences hushed up, forgetting there are such things as drugs. But, determined to help others, Michael will tell his story to anyone who will listen.

"If I can help just one person stay away from drugs, I feel telling this story is worth the pain it costs to again relive that nightmare," concludes Michael.

REDMAN, LITWHILER WILL BE HONORED

The Bloomsburg State College Board of Trustees, during its regular meeting on May 21, 1973, voted unanimously to name two projects currently under construction on the upper campus.

The new football field has been designated Robert B. Redman Stadium, in honor of the man who served as head football coach from 1947 to 1952 and during that time produced a record of 38 victories against four losses, including three Pennsylvania Conference championships and two undefeated teams. Redman's untimely death occurred in 1960 shortly after he had been elected Superintendent of Schools in East Orange, New Jersey, where he previously served as head football coach before being appointed principal of the East Orange Senior High School.

The new baseball diamond has been named Daniel W. Litwhiler Field. Litwhiler was an outstanding diamond performer at BSC during the late thirties when he played for Dr. E. H. Nelson. Danny played with a number of major league teams, including the Philadelphia Phillies, the St. Louis Cardinals, and the Boston Braves before accepting a position as head baseball coach at Florida State University. Following a very successful tenure there, he was named head baseball coach at Michigan State University.

Both projects are expected to be completed early in 1974. The baseball diamond and track should be ready for use that spring, and the football field that fall. The project also includes three practice fields.

Although the academic facilities at Bloomsburg State College have been among the best on the state level, the athletic facilities have not, and with this issue of the Alumni Quarterly one can see the college "turning the corner".

The new Nelson Field House has given the college a most successful winter sports season. Not only has it served as an adequate area for the winter sports from a campus standpoint, but it has provided thousands of area residents with entertainment. And this should be the case with a state institution.

The basketball, swimming, and wrestling squads all matched the class of the new field house. It was a pleasure for fans to view the sports events in a spacious, well-lighted facility.

The new football stadium is expected to be used for the first time in September, 1974. This will certainly be an improvement. The other outdoor teams will also taste the new areas for the first time during that school year of 1974-75.

Anyone who is affiliated with sports knows of the problems which the coaches and athletic staff encounter when teams must be shuttled off campus for practices. Fans feel they are infringing upon student space if they attend the contests which are held in areas which seat a small number. This was proven last winter when a basketball game was played while students were away. The field house was practically filled as the entire area rallied to replace the students who were not there.

If the outdoor areas can meet the quality of the new field house, then Bloomsburg State College will have athletic facilities which are deserving of a school with such an excellent academic record.

It is a pleasure to greet you, the alumni, as the fourteenth President of Bloomsburg State College. I am honored by the recent appointment and welcome this opportunity to provide leadership for the college in these challenging times. I pledge my unstinting efforts to provide a focal point for academic excellence and managerial competence as we work together to meet the challenges of the years ahead. In this effort your support is of prime importance.

The heritage and tradition of the Pennsylvania state colleges is very much a part of my background. Three generations of my family are products of Pennsylvania state colleges. For the past eight years, I have enjoyed the privilege of serving Shippensburg State College in a number of capacities. This background of tradition and experience has provided me with a firm understanding of the Pennsylvania state college system, its historical heritage, and its mission for today and the years to come.

The Pennsylvania state colleges have experienced an exciting period of growth and change during the 1960's. It is my feeling that, during the 1970's, they will continue in a dynamic way to revise their goals and objectives, to broaden their missions and to continue to increase the quality of their educational programs in a way which will enable them to better serve the society which created and supports them. Further, I believe in the future of public higher education in Pennsylvania and that these institutions will be involved in a creative, challenging and exciting experience in the next decade.

This administration at Bloomsburg will be committed to the idea that the college must serve the citizens of the Commonwealth as a multi-purpose institution.

Economic and social pressures throughout the country are exerting tremendous influences on educational institutions for new services to meet changing needs. The total program of our institution's academic, cultural, and social goals must be upgraded and expanded to meet these needs. Teacher education remains a major function, but other possible curricula must be explored, developed, and expanded.

Because the college is situated in a growing area of the Commonwealth, it must continue to develop and improve its services as a multi-purpose institution in order to meet the needs of the students and the region it serves. I firmly believe that the state college and university system in Pennsylvania has a vital role to play and a tremendous contribution to make to the citizens of the Commonwealth. This contribution encompasses not only quality undergraduate and graduate programs but cultural activities, in-service programs, continuing education programs and athletic activities for the regional community as well.

Thus, the mission of Bloomsburg State College is a changing one. It is important that you, as alumni, are involved in and aware of the changes. As alumni, you can play an important role as "good will ambassadors" for Bloomsburg. Through your efforts, we will be able to recruit more students, share important information about the college with community groups, and support vital programs. More than ever, Bloomsburg needs her alumni to know and understand her mission — we welcome your help in telling the Bloomsburg story effectively!

Mrs. McCormick and I look forward to meeting and greeting many of you personally in the near future.

President

Dr. James McCormick Is New President Of B. S. C.

Dr. James H. McCormick, newly appointed president of Bloomsburg State College, believes that a large measure of the success of a college president depends on the degree to which he "can envision new horizons for his institution, and can persuade others to see them and work toward them."

"As the chief planning officer of the institution," he has stated, "the president has a special obligation to innovate and initiate. He must assume responsibility for the direction of current and long-range planning related to institutional goals, academic programs, teaching approaches, public service, enrollment projections, and physical development."

He added that the president must actively involve all members of the college community in such planning, and he made it clear that he considers the Alumni a constituent group in the college community.

Following the announcement of his appointment July 30 by Gov. Milton J. Shapp, Dr. McCormick pledged that "I have a commitment to the principles of old-fashioned honesty, openness and truthfulness, and these will be the hallmarks of my administration."

Dr. McCormick, 34, was in California on leave from his duties as Vice President for Administration at Shippensburg State College when the appointment was announced. He was traveling throughout the United States under the auspices of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, visiting selected colleges and universities to study personnel practices and the administrative organization of those institutions. He terminated his trip immediately and returned to Pennsylvania in August to arrange to assume the BSC presidency September 1. He will succeed Dr. Charles Carlson, who has been Acting President the past year.

In a statement issued on campus after the appointment was announced, Dr. McCormick said:

On the back cover are an architect's sketch of the residence hall planned to replace old Waller Hall, a view of the football stadium under construction on the upper campus, and a picture of the practice fields behind the stadium above Nelson Field House.

"I am deeply grateful for the honor bestowed upon me by the appointment and welcome the opportunity to provide leadership for Bloomsburg State College. I pledge to all members of the College community my unstinting efforts to provide a focal point for academic excellence and managerial competence as we work together to meet the challenges of the years ahead. In this effort I ask for support of the faculty, the students, the administrative staff, alumni, the Board of Trustees and the citizens of the Bloomsburg area.

"It is essential that any college president be able to work in harmony with the many constituent elements of the college community. I have a strong commitment to the collegial concept of administration and believe that the president must confer regularly with colleagues from each of the constituent groups, including the alumni and the Board of Trustees, so that ideas can be discovered, discussed and developed for the improvement and advancement of the institution. In keeping with this collegial concept of administration, I hope to involve the faculty and students as well as members of the administrative team in the process of institutional governance.

"Personally, I have been most impressed with the selection process employed by the Presidential Search and Screening Committee. The active involvement of faculty, students, alumni and representatives of the Board of Trustees in this endeavor indicates to me a healthy willingness to work together in harmony for the ultimate best interests of the college."

Educational Background

Dr. McCormick has an extensive educational background along with ventures in government and community service.

A graduate of Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Dr. McCormick received his Master's degree in curriculum and administration at the University of Pittsburgh in 1961, following that with graduate study the same year at New York University. In 1963 he received his Doctorate in Educational administration, curriculum and research cognitive area of Social Science.

From 1964 through 1969, he obtained post doctoral credits in political science and economics at the University of Pittsburgh, in higher educational administration at Columbia University and did work on the "Institute on College and University Administration" at the University of Michigan and the "Institute in Long Range Planning in Higher Education" at the University of Pittsburgh.

He was a Social Studies teacher from 1959-1961 at Punxsutawney Area Joint School District, a graduate assistant at the University of Pittsburgh from 1962-1963, and an associate professor in the Department of Education and Psychology at Shippensburg State College from 1965-1966. From 1969 until 1970 he was a graduate professor in "Organization and Administration of the Community College," at SSC.

Administrative Experience

His administrative experience includes academic counselor, administrative intern to the superintendent and secondary administrator at Baldwin-Whitehall Schools in Pittsburgh from 1961-1964; assistant superintendent at Washington City School in Washington, Pa., during 1964-1965.

Dr. and Mrs. McCormick are shown here with their children, David, 8, and Douglas, 4.

From 1965 to the present at Shippensburg SC, he has served in the administrative capacities of assistant dean of academic affairs, acting dean of Teacher Education, assistant to the president and vice president for Administration and full professor.

His other administrative experience has been in conjunction with the Falk Intern in Politics program in the Office of the Governor of Pennsylvania, a graduate assistant at the University of Pittsburgh, educational consultant, an elected administrative representative to Shippensburg State College Faculty Senate, and president's representative to the Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate at SSC. He was selected by the presidents of the thirteen state Colleges and Indiana University as one of two vice-presidents to represent the presidents on the Commonwealth team which negotiated a contract with the professors of the state college and university system during 1971-1972. The latter experience afforded an invaluable orientation to the new atmosphere in employee relations which resulted from the implementation of Act 195. And in the past year he had a major role in administering implementation of all negotiated contracts, faculty and non-instructional, at Shippensburg.

Dr. McCormick has memberships in the following professional organizations: American Association for Higher Education, American Association of School Administrators, American Association of University Administrators, Department of Higher Education (NEA) and Phi Delta Kappa.

He was awarded the Falk Intern in Politics in 1959, and as such, served as assistant to the Legislative Secretary of Governor David L. Lawrence, an award granted annually to a political science student. His education honors include Who's Who in the East, in American Education and in American College and University Administration; the Dictionary of International Biography and Outstanding Educators of America.

His publications have been "Aspects of the High School Record Related to the First Semester College Grade Point Average," in the Personnel and Guidance Journal; "The Library as a Curriculum Materials Center," in the Public School Digest, and "Supply and Demand: A Look at the Projections of Need for College Faculty" in The Pennsylvania Professor.

Among his current community activities are: board director and chairman of the Public Education Committee of the American Cancer Society, Cumberland County unit; elder and member of the session of the Central Presbyterian Church of Chambersburg; a past president of the Chambersburg Kiwanis Club and is a 32nd degree Mason.

Dr. McCormick is married to the former Maryan Garner, a graduate of Wilson College at Chambersburg. They are the parents of two sons, David, age eight, and Douglas, age four.

HOMECOMING WEEKEND

OCTOBER 12, 13, 14 1973

Dr. Carlson Completes Term As Acting President of B.S.C.

Dr. Charles Carlson, Acting President of BSC for the past year, issued the following statement concerning the appointment of Dr. James H. McCormick as the fourteenth President of Bloomsburg State College.

"The announcement of the appointment of Dr. James H. McCormick as the next president of Bloomsburg State College reflects the successful culmination of the labors of the Presidential Search and Screening Committee's year-long efforts.

"It has been my privilege to serve as Acting President since September 1, 1972, and I am looking forward to aiding Dr. McCormick make a smooth transition in college leadership during the coming month.

"May I ask all of you to join with me in welcoming Dr. McCormick to Bloomsburg, and ask that you aid him in successfully performing the many and varied responsibilities he will soon assume."

Dr. Carlson served as Acting President for the year following the resignation of Dr. Robert Nossen in 1972. Dr. Nossen had succeeded Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, who retired in 1969 following 30 years as president.

The list of institutional leaders begins with Henry Carver, who started the Normal School movement in Pennsylvania. He served as principal from 1869 to 1871. Charles G. Barkley and John Hewett followed, each serving one year. Hewett was succeeded by T. L. Griswold, who served a four-year term.

In 1877, at a low point in the school's morale and prestige, D. J. Waller, Jr. assumed the Principalship and lifted the facilities and the curriculum to a new and more progressive plane. Waller served until his appointment in 1890 to the State Superintendency and returned in 1906 to serve through the maturation of its EVALUATION—Dr. Gerald W. Powers, Dept. of Communication Disorders, has been requested to serve as a member of an on-site evaluation team appointed by the Penna. Department of Education to perform periodic evaluations of educational programs for the hearing impaired. Some of the programs to be evaluated include the Pennsylvania State Oral School at Scranton, The Penna. School for the Deaf in Philadelphia, The Western Penna. School for the Deaf in Pittsburgh, Elwyn Institute, Elwyn, and selected public school programs. Team members are professionals who work with the hearing impaired from throughout Pennsylvania.

teacher education programs and its sale to the State, retiring in 1920. Judson Welsh, a Bloomsburg graduate, succeeded Waller in 1890 and served until Waller's return in 1906.

Following Waller's retirement Charles H. Fisher served from 1920 to 1923, G. C. L. Riemer from 1923 to 1927 and Francis B. Haas from 1927 to 1939 when he left to become Superintendent of Public Instruction for Pennsylvania. It was during his tenure at Bloomsburg that the title was changed from Principal to President. He was succeeded as president by Dr. Andruss, who had joined the administrative staff in 1930 to organize the Division of Business Education.

NEW RESIDENCE HALL FOR 250 IS PLANNED

Nearly a century has passed since the first dormitory built at BSC was destroyed by fire. A year later, the first "wing" of what is now Waller Hall arose on the site of the old building. Two other "wings" were added, about 1890 and 1905, and Waller Hall has since occupied a large portion of the total campus area.

Time and the elements, and a lot of hard use have taken their toll, and "Old Waller" is scheduled for demolition to provide the site for a new residence hall for 250 students.

Design and planning are nearly completed, and unless costs increase too rapidly, construction could begin early in 1974 with an anticipated completion date by September, 1975.

The new building will occupy a much smaller site than the present sprawling structure. As a result more area will be devoted to lawns, and more space will be available for the planting of trees, flowers, and shrubbery. This, in turn, will enhance the beauty of the south entrance to the Kehr College Union.

Prior to the beginning of demolition of Waller Hall, new quarters must be found for faculty members, administrative personnel, student organizations, the college store, and the college security office.

Some faculty members will be assigned offices for a limited time in the Waller Administration Building, pending the completion of renovations in Navy Hall and Hartline Hall. Others will be assigned to new office areas in Sutliff Hall; all classrooms and offices in Sutliff are air conditioned following the recent completion of a $138,000 project for that purpose.

The college store and security office will be moved to the former College Commons. Student offices will move to the Kehr Union.

In addition to the 125 student rooms, the new four story residence hall will have a resident advisor's apartment, study rooms, lounge areas, a TV room, a project room, a laundry room, and storage areas.

Kehr College Union Opens As Center For Student Activities

The Kehr College Union, the most recently completed building on the Lower Campus, is expected to become the hub of activities for the entire college community when all furnishings and equipment are installed. It is hoped that the Union will be in full service by the time alumni return to campus for Homecoming Day on Saturday, October 13, 1973.

Although the Union was dedicated on May 4, Alumni Day, in honor of Dr. Marguerite Kehr, Dean of Women at BSC for 25 years prior to her retirement in 1953, general construction was not completed until August.

The design and planning of the structure began more than five years ago; student leaders and student personnel staff members participated with professional consultants from the architectural firm of Valverde and Franco, Scranton, Penna. to determine the interior space arrangements and area allocations, according to Boyd F. Buckingham, Associate Vice President for Development and External Relations.

An attractive patio leads to the main entrance of the first level which faces the west end of the campus. This area includes the formal lounge; a game room; the mail receiving and distribution center (including mailboxes for all students who live off-campus); the college bank; a TV room; a locker room for commuting students; several offices; four bowling alleys.

The second level is accessible from a patio area on the north side facing the terraces and Montour and Schuylkill Residence Halls. Specialized areas on this floor include a snack bar and dining area; a large multi-purpose room which can be subdivided into smaller rooms by means of folding partitions; the college infirmary; a receiving area and loading dock; offices for the director of student activities and his assistant; an information center.

The third level may be reached by stair towers on the north, east, and south sides. Offices for student organizations, offices and workrooms for student publications, a game room, conference rooms, and a listening room are among the featured areas on this level. The mechanical room, which houses all the equipment for air-conditioning the entire building, is also located on the third level.

John Mulka, director of student activities, and his assistant, John Trathen, have been working for more than two years with the College Union Board to select and order carpet and equipment. The game room on the first floor, the formal lounge, the TV room, the hi-fi listening room, and student and administrative offices, will have carpeted floors. The dining area and multi-purpose areas have specially designed floors of wood, impregnated with plastic. Floors in other areas are either terrazzo or are covered with asphalt-vinyl tile.

The snack bar and dining area, the multi-purpose room, the formal lounge, and other areas will provide opportunities for students, faculty, parents, alumni, and other guests to meet together and share in a variety of activities.

Originally, when the College Union was designed, the college store was to have been located on the first floor. When the equipment and activities are moved to the new Student Union from the temporary student center (formerly the College Commons) the latter building will be converted to provide attractive and more spacious quarters for the college store. Current plans call for the completion of the new store facilities during the first semester of the 1973-74 college year.

AMAX GRANT RECEIVED THROUGH KAWNEER CO.

For the second consecutive year, an unrestricted grant of $500.00 has been given to Bloomsburg State College by the American Metal Climax Foundation, Inc. on the recommendation of Kawneer Company, Inc., a subsidiary of American Metal Climax, Inc.

The grant was forwarded to Dr. Charles Carlson, Acting President of B.S.C., by Robert I. Mendleson, Assistant General Manager of the Kawneer plant at Bloomsburg on behalf of F. Taylor Ostrander, President of the AMAX Foundation. In his letter, Mr. Ostrander stated, "This support is being granted as a contribution to your institution for the academic year, 1972-73."

In his expression of gratitude, Dr. Carlson noted that, "A contribution from a local industry such as yours is particularly gratifying since it offers testimony to faith in the college. The check will be deposited in the College Trust Fund and will meet a number of basic needs of this college not covered by state appropriations."

HONORED

Thomas R. Manley, Dept. of Biology, was honored recently by the Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Science for ten years service as Director of Region 5 which comprises 10 counties in the Central Susquehanna Valley. The award was given at a luncheon at the Carlton House in Pittsburgh where directors of the Pennsylvania Academy were meeting. Manley was elected Regional Director in 1961 and since then he has directed the program of the Junior Academy in this area expanding it from a 5-county region to the present 10-county program in the Junior and Senior High Schools.

Fountain Is Gift of Class of 1971

A generous gift from the Class of 1915 will enable the completion of a handsome out-door campus fountain project begun in 1971 with a gift from that year's graduating class. The 1971 class alumni representative and former senior class president, William Cluley, established the initial sculpture fund and the guide lines for a Sculpture Acquisition Committee made up of the Chairman of the Art Department and the sculpture professor plus elected representatives from both faculty and art students.

The 9' Cor-Ten steel fountain sculpture selected by the committee was created by Odell Prather, a nationally known Philadelphia based sculptress, who has been actively engaged in art for architecture since 1953 including stained and slab glass work and free-standing creations such as the Cor-Ten fountain piece. Ms. Prather has studied at the Philadelphia Museum School of Art, Tyler School of Fine Art and privately under the German artist Max Marcini and the sculptor Ronald Darra. She is a member of Artists Equity Association, Guild for Religious Architecture, and the Philadelphia Art Alliance.

Mr. Warren A. Dollman, chairman of the Gift Committee together with other members of the Class of 1915, Mrs. Esther Dreibelbis, Miss Ruth E. Pooley and Mrs. Lois Ann Snyder, met with Dr. Percival Roberts of the Art Department this past summer to determine how the gift would be used and where the fountain would be erected.

Members of the art department in cooperation with the office of the Vice President for Administrative Services and Mr. Boyd Buckingham, Associate Vice President for Development and External Relations selected a site adjacent to the Bakeless Center for the Humanities. A 12' x 12' reflecting pool faced in brick and with 4 slab benches similar to those in front of the Andrus Library will be installed to the Southwest of the intersecting paths so that the fountain can be viewed from 3 sides and the parking lot. The expected completion date is still to be determined pending the resolution of a few technical engineering problems.

AUTHORS—Dr. Michael W. Gaynor, Dept. of Psychology, has had a paper accepted for reading at the 81st annual convention of the American Psychological Association in Montreal, Quebec, Canada from Aug. 27 through 31, 1973. "Value of Pornographic Photographs", is co-authored by Edward Gaughan, former BSC student now in Temple Graduate School. This research paper will be read to Division 12, Clinical Psychology. This research effort was aimed at replicating previous research conducted by Dr. Eugene Levitt, at University of Indiana Medical School, and at establishing the degree to which such photographs are arousing to normal, college students.

Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock, an outstanding BSC wrestler, brought a silver medal back with him from the World University games in Moscow. Shorty, who holds two Pennsylvania Conference championships as a Husky, is turning his attention to representing BSC this winter, but he is looking forward to further international competition at Montreal and later in the Olympics. He is shown at left with his wife after returning from Moscow.

later when nearly three inches of rain fell in less than an hour. If repairs can be made as anticipated this fall, there is a good chance that 1974 spring football practice can be held in this part of the new varsity athletic complex on the Upper Campus.

Although Redman Stadium and Litwhiler Field will not be completed by Homecoming Day, alumni and visitors are invited to visit the site for a preview of exciting events of the future. In addition, Nelson Fieldhouse will be open to alumni and visitors prior to the parade which begins at 10:00 A.M.

1973 Grid Team Has 23 Lettermen Back

Coach Bill Sproule has 23 lettermen returning from last year's squad that posted a 5-5 overall record and a 4-2 Pennsylvania Conference record, which put the Huskies in a second place tie with Millersville State in the eastern division. The 23 lettermen, plus several returnees and a group of promising sophomores, provides team depth and a bright outlook for a tough schedule.

The offense is expected to be sparked by two seniors, returning quarterback Joe Geiger and runningback George Gruber, who was named All-Pennsylvania Conference first team last year. It will be necessary to find a strong replacement for tackle Rich Walton, All-Pennsylvania Conference team and a former NAIA All-American Honorable Mention who has graduated. Another offensive starter, fullback Ken Vancas, has graduated and is expected to be replaced by John James, who will be switched back to offense after playing defense last year. Two other quarterbacks in reserve are sophomores Stan Gurecki and Ken Haynie.

Defensively, Sproule has to replace tackle Glen DeWire, linebacker Dan Greenland, the team's leader in defensive points, and defensive backs Joe Semion and Joe Siebert. Three returning backs, Joe Courter, All-Pennsylvania Conference first team; along with newcomer Ray Rodemer, should give Sproule a good secondary. Courter is also available for split end duty. Two new linebackers who bear watching are Earl Mayersky and Jim Owsiany.

Basically, the Huskies will stay with the slot I offensive formation and the 4-3 rover on defense.

Football Stadium On Upper Campus To Be Ready For 1974 Season

More than a decade has passed since Husky football, track, and baseball teams have had a "home" field for varsity games.

When Mt. Olympus became the site of Haas Center for the Arts, Bakeless Center for the Humanities, and Andruss Library, the Husky gridders scheduled home games at the Town Athletic Park, and the baseball and track teams sometimes had difficulty finding a site to host visiting teams. During some years, there were no "home" contests.

The completion of Nelson Fieldhouse on the Upper Campus in August, 1972 inaugurated a new era for varsity basketball, wrestling, and swimming at BSC. Now, new fields are nearing completion, adjacent to the fieldhouse, which will give football, baseball, and track teams and fans the kind of facilities which will make them feel at home.

Early in 1972, earth was moved and "footers" poured for the new Robert B. Redman Stadium. Concrete bleachers on the west side of the field will seat approximately 3700 spectators and provide facilities for press, radio, and TV personnel. It is hoped that additional seating will be erected on the east side in the future.

The football field, which will be seeded this fall, will be circled by an all-weather track for varsity use. Rest rooms and a concession area are located under the north end of the concrete bleachers. Currently, plans are underway to schedule all home football games on the turf of Redman Stadium, beginning in September, 1974, and spectators and players alike will be treated to a beautiful view at the new site.

The grading and seeding of Litwhiler Field are to be completed this fall, and with a good growing season, should be ready for limited scheduling of varsity baseball games in the spring of 1974.

Practice fields for baseball and football have been critically needed at BSC for nearly a score of years; the "new look" for varsity facilities includes three practice fields immediately north of Nelson Fieldhouse. Seeding was completed in mid-June, but suffered some severe damage a week

Works of Art Acquired In Program Headed By BSC Art Department

As the history of mankind so eloquently instructs us, more than one nation has been remembered through its art — long after its civilization has been lost, its leaders buried, and its armies disbursed. A recent editorial in the "Saturday Review" impresses this point still farther, by acknowledging that artists not only enrich their countrymen, but also the entire quality of life. In a democracy, Art, with a capital A, must be available to people from all walks of life, not restricted or reserved to an exclusive elite, whether aristocratic or intellectual. Art must be allowed to touch anyone willing to take the time to behold it. And it is to this end that the Department of Art has embarked on a program to erect significant examples of outdoor sculpture on the campus of Bloomsburg State College.

The first commission completed last year was made possible through a gift from the senior class of 1971. It enabled the erection of a handsome oak structure located between the Bakeless Center for the Humanities and the Andruss Library. Weighing over one ton, the sculpture, entitled "Totem II," was created by Thomas Althouse, sculptor-in-residence at Lehigh University. The piece was selected by a Sculpture Acquisition Committee consisting of the department chairman, two members of the art department, and a senior art student.

The second acquisition, also made by a gift from the Class of 1971, is in the form of a Cor-Ten steel fountain piece designed by Ms. Odell Prather, a sculptress from the Philadelphia area. This unusual outdoor sculpture-fountain will be located in a specially designed reflecting pond constructed of concrete, faced with brick in the vicinity of the Andruss Library in an area that will eventually serve as a pedestrian mall between the library and Bakeless Hall.

The most recent project consists of a pair of environmental "Tonal Sculptures" designed by Joseph Moss from University of Delaware who has been experimenting with auditory-kinetic sculpture for the past two years under the sponsorship of a university grant. Sensitive to sound and the interaction of people are two 9' high black fiber glass reflectors on Cor-Ten steel bases located in front of the Haas Center for the Arts. Mosses' works have been made possible through a grant by the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts, and represents the first grant of this type for a work of art in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Sports fans had an opportunity for the first time this year to view a grouping of bronze "Huskies" installed in the entryway of the new Nelson Fieldhouse located on the upper campus. This project was funded through a class gift which paid for the bronze casting of this handsome sculpture by a former art department faculty member, Howell Pinkston. Members of the art department worked together with the architect to install this one-half ton wall relief.

Small sculptural works located in various buildings throughout the campus include a brass and plexiglas sculpture by J. J. Kelly, author of "The Sculptural Idea" and a professor of art at Kutztown State College; a Cor-Ten steel wall relief by Arturo Bassols, a Cuban born sculptor called "Nereid" located in the foyer of Bakeless Hall; a luminetic "Light Column" by Dr. Walter F. Groer of Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh; and ceramic sculptures by Ronald F. Bower, a former Bloomsburg State College art faculty member and Olen Bryant, a sculptor from Tennessee.

In order to continue the acquisition of significant examples of sculptural work, the department of art needs additional funds. An account was established in the Bloomsburg Foundation in 1971 to accept and disburse monies for the acquisition of sculpture and a committee formed at that time to select appropriate works to enhance the campus.

X-COUNTRY PROSPECTS DEPEND ON FROSH

Coach Clyde Noble has indicated the prospects for this season are somewhat vague at the present time due to the question mark concerning incoming freshmen. Noble has made a number of contacts with good runners who will be matriculating at Bloomsburg and who will hopefully report for the team during the first week of classes.

The main loss from last year's squad is Terry Lee, an outstanding runner who graduated in May. Three seniors will be in uniform this year — Bob Quairol, Mike Hipple, and Larry Horwitz, along with junior Bart Grimm. These four are steady performers and with the help of incoming freshmen, Noble should improve on last year's 2-8 record.

The Husky schedule calls for a quad-meet and two tri-meets at home and three single engagements on the road with the Pennsylvania Conference Championships to be held at West Chester on November 3.

Fund Contributions May Be Made To Alumni Association

Several groups on campus asked recently that appeals be made to alumni—through stories in the Alumni Quarterly—for funds for a variety of worthy purposes. At the regular meeting of the Alumni Board of Directors on August 11, 1973, the Editor of the Quarterly was advised to present the following message to alumni.

The Alumni Association is a non-profit organization, and has been approved by the Internal Revenue Service to receive contributions which the donor may classify as tax deductible for federal income tax purposes.

The Alumni Association is willing to receive and disburse, according to the donor's wishes, any contributions for specific purposes which will in any way benefit the college community and its members.

At the present time several campus groups are endeavoring to raise funds for the following purposes:

1. The Lee E. Aumiller Memorial Scholarship Fund. This will provide a scholarship annually for a student, and will be made in memory of Dr.

Aumiller.

2. The Seronsy Book Collection for Andruss Library. These funds will be used to purchase books for Andruss Library in tribute to Dr. Cecil Seronsy's scholarship and years of Service to students at BSC.

3. The Fountain Fund. A new fountain will be erected in the area between Bakeless Center and Andruss Library. Some funds have already been received from class contributions and other sources. More money is needed.

4. The Portrait Fund. Present contributions will be used to have portraits painted of Dr. E. H. Nelson and Dr. Marguerite Kehr to be installed in the fieldhouse and college union, respectively.

5. The Sculpture and Painting Fund. Each year, a committee of faculty and students tries to purchase a piece of sculpture or a painting to add to the permanent collection at BSC.

If you wish to contribute to any of these funds, send a check or money order to the Alumni Association Office, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815, and indicate specifically the fund to which the contribution is to be made. Since the Alumni Association also has a continuing need for funds to pay for printing and mailing the Quarterly and for operating the Alumni Office, we hope that a part of your contribution will be earmarked for that purpose.

NEWS ABOUT YOUR CLASSMATES

Agnes Wallace Rees was honored recently by more than one hundred members and guests of the Amador-Livermore Valley Historical Society. Many of those in attendance had been her pupils during her service as a teacher from 1908 to 1950. The event was held at Castlewood Country Club, former home of Phoebe Hearst, founder of P.T.A. Address: 1545 Bluebell Court, Livermore, California 94550.

1911

Alfred K. Naugle, a staunch supporter of BSC and the Alumni Association, is living at 45 Hickory Place, Livingston, New Jersey 07039. Mrs. Naugle, the former Irma Miller, also a member of the Class of 1911, passed away January 15, 1970. Mr. Naugle is one of the organizers of the New York Branch of the Alumni Association.

1913

We're happy to report that Gertrude Thomas (Mrs. Albert Leonard) is living at R. D. 1, Highway 60, East Owensboro, Kentucky 42301; the Alumni Association had been notified erroneously that she was deceased.

1916

Ruth Maunette Welliver (Mrs. James T. Ronen) resides at 303 Grant St., Litchfield, Illinois 62056.

1918

Early in April, we received word that Mary R. Orndorf lives at 47 Catawissa Ave., Sunbury, Pa. 17801 and that the address of Fanny Rarig (Mrs. Edwin Van Sant) is Numidia, Pa. 17858.

1921

Ralph G. Shuman lives at 380 E. High St., Elizabethtown, Pa. 17022. He retired in 1968 after a long career in the public schools.

ALUMNI BOARD MEETING REPORT

The following is a report of the Alumni Board of Directors meeting Saturday, August 11:

Authorization for the painting of portraits of Dr. Marguerite Kehr and Dr. E. H. Nelson to be placed in the Kehr College Union and the Nelson Field House, respectively, and the naming of a long list of committees were included in the business transacted by the board of Directors of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association at the August 11 meeting.

Dr. Kehr, who served as Dean of Women from 1928 to 1953 and made countless friends during her time at BSC, attended the festivities on Alumni Day in May when the College Union building was formally dedicated to her.

The late Dr. Nelson, who served as head of the physical education department and was baseball coach for many years, is remembered not only by those who served directly under him but by those who attended BSC following his retirement.

The committees appointed resulted in part from a report of the position of the Alumni Association as stated by chairman Clayton Hinkel, of that committee. This committee has been active for several months and directed that certain goals be attempted.

Following is the committee list: Standing committees — Quarterly publication: Clayton Hinkel, Bloomsburg; Millard Ludwig, Millville; Property committee — Harrison Morson, Edison, N.J., chairman; Verna Jones, Wayne, Pa.; Dr. Alex McKechnie, Camp Hill, Pa.

Student Loan — Earl Gehrig, Bloomsburg, chairman; Clayton Hinkel, Elizabeth Hubler, Gordon, Pa.; Budget — Earl Gehrig, chairman; John Thomas, Hamburg, Pa.; Col. Elwood Wagner, State College.

Special Committees: Homecoming — Dr. Stuart Edwards, Bloomsburg; Timothy Hartman, Bloomsburg; Charlotte McKechnie, Berwick. Alumni Position — Clayton Hinkel, chairman; Millard Ludwig; Grace Conner, Bloomsburg.

Constitution Committee: Frank Galinski, Doylestown, Pa., chairman; Jean Foster, Clarks Summit, Pa.; Dr. Frank Furgele, Glen Mills, Pa. Fund Raising Committee: Dr. Stuart Edwards, chairman; John Thomas; Clayton Hinkel; Harrison Morson.

Distinguished Service Award Committee: Clayton Hinkel, chairman; Dr. Frank Furgele; Dr. Alex McKechnie.

The Board of Directors also discussed and emphasized that the McNinch Loan Fund has money available for students' use. These funds are particularly for sophomores and juniors but under certain conditions freshmen are also eligible. This was emphasized in view of the recent rise in tuition at state colleges.

A report was given on the recent plea for funds with which to operate the general fund in view of the fact that the Foundation, which has been rather dormant during the past year, has not been able to contribute money to the general operation. The emergency request in the spring Alumni Quarterly and a general letter in July have brought in approximately $2,000. The cost of an Alumni Quarterly, the next one being published September 15, is about $1,500. Board members were urged to continue to request that Alumni members express their loyalty with a contribution.

Boyd Buckingham, Director of Development and External Relations at BSC, delivered remarks to the Board regarding the operation of the Association and the work that can be done. Millard Ludwig, president of the Association, chaired the meeting.

The next Board meeting is scheduled for Homecoming Day, Saturday, October 13, at 10:30 A.M.

Volume LXXIV, Number 2, Autumn, 1973

With much enthusiasm I am bringing this message to Alumni of Bloomsburg State College. Early returns from our recent plea indicate that the financial situation of the Alumni Association is vastly improved.

To refresh our memories, the Foundation had taken over the Association's financial responsibility, and promised to provide the necessary money to meet our budget. However, the Foundation met with some difficulties during the 1971-72 college year, was virtually dormant during the 1972-73 college year, and could not provide funds necessary for Association needs. During the latter months of 1972, officials of the Foundation and the Alumni Association agreed to have the Association resume its own fund-raising program.

The cost of the Alumni Quarterly alone is a substantial figure. We hope that the summary which you received recently will explain how the money is spent.

To those who have contributed, we issue a big "thank you." If you have not found it convenient to contribute, we hope you will do so as soon as possible. Your Association needs you.

Late news announced the appointment of Dr. James H. McCormick as the new president of BSC. We are happy to welcome him to our group, and we note that he believes the Alumni Association to be a very important part of the college community.

The Alumni Association Board of Directors also desires to express great appreciation to Dr. Charles Carlson, who demonstrated a sincere interest in the Association during his time as Acting President. His was a real task, but he still found time to meet with our Board of Directors and with small special groups.

Congratulations to both Dr. Carlson and Dr. McCormick.

Cordially,

Millard C. Ludwig

These are exciting and challenging times for all institutions of higher education, and your alma mater is sharing the excitement and endeavoring to meet the challenges with a variety of constructive approaches.

The Board of Directors of your Alumni Association is giving concrete, positive, and enthusiastic support to a project designed to provide the Association with an Executive Director.

The individual selected for this position will be responsible to your Board of Directors for improving services to all alumni and for coordinating all alumni activities with those of the college community. The success of this project can result in a giant step forward for your Association and your alma mater. I invite and encourage your wholehearted support. Additional details can be found on another page of this issue of the Quarterly.

Also included in this issue is a copy of the Concept Document which was sent to the Pennsylvania Department of Education on October 12, 1973. This document is a forerunner of a more specific and detailed plan which will describe the role and missions of this college in the immediate future and during the next decade. Your reactions to the Concept Document would be very much appreciated. These could appropriately be sent to Mrs. Joseph C. Conner, Alumni Representative on the Planning Commission, or to Mr. Boyd Buckingham, Associate Vice President for Development and External Relations, or to me. It is anticipated that a number of alumni representatives will be involved in writing task forces which will develop the detailed long-range plan to be submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Education in the Spring.

Please accept my sincere best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year. We hope that 1974 will present you with an opportunity to visit your alma mater, and look forward to welcoming you to the campus at that time.

B.S.C. Looks Ahead and Outlines New Goals

The Pennsylvania Department of Education has directed each of the 14 State Colleges and University to establish a Presidential Planning Commission for the purpose of drafting a long-range plan for its role in meeting the needs of the future in higher education in Pennsylvania.

During the Fall each institution submitted to the department an initial and tentative statement from the institution's perspective concerning its concept of the institution's role for the future. After review in Harrisburg the initial statement will be revised and used as a basis for a more detailed and comprehensive long-range plan. The final plan is to be completed in May.

The following "Concept Document" was submitted by the BSC Presidential Planning Commission as its initial and tentative statement concerning the missions and future of the college:

Institutional Philosophy

Bloomsburg State College is dedicated to intellectual and academic excellence. The college community seeks to understand the changing scientific, ecologic, and human needs in the world and, in order to achieve and maintain this excellence and understanding, the institution finds it appropriate to commit itself further to a certain set of beliefs:

1. Education consists of much more than coursework assignments, degrees, and the simple gathering of facts. Rather, education is the maturing of the mind and the emotions; it is the acquiring of values and attitudes; it is a liberating process in which the interrelationships of all of life's experiences become understandable.

2. Genuinely free inquiry has great intrinsic value. It also solves problems, helps in bringing about positive change, and is an important factor in the liberating process called education.

3. Every person is unique and deserving of dignity. Education should involve the whole person and should provide a life-long opportunity to pursue that special self-fulfillment which education can bring.

4. Technology and its products have helped to solve major problems over the years. However, the ability of people to deal with one another effectively and without rancor has not kept pace with the development of that technology. Mankind has not yet learned to accommodate the results of advanced technology to the continuation of a productive life. Education in general and institutions of higher learning in particular have important responsibilities in helping to develop that accommodation.

5. Higher education is not an end in itself. Rather, it is a tool used for personal development and the improvement of human society. While the service area of Bloomsburg State College is in many ways as broad as society itself, the college recognizes a special responsibility to the people, organizations, and institutions in areas connected with it by virtue of tradition, transportation networks, geographical closeness, and special service relationships.

These beliefs demand that the college continuously reevaluate its programs and its allocation of resources which support those programs. These beliefs also find expression in the following missions of the college.

Missions

1. The college shall first serve the citizens of the Commonwealth by offering to all who seek it a liberalizing and general education. This liberal education lies at the heart of the institution's efforts, and all other missions of the college stem from this central core.

2. While continuing its commitment to the preparation of elementary and secondary classroom teachers of quality, the college will adjust the numbers of these teachers in the future in response to the needs of the Commonwealth and of this region. The college will continue to respond both to the desires of students and to the needs of society. The college's preparation of teachers will continue its refinement on the basis of competency to teach.

3. It will continue to strengthen and will slightly enlarge its programs in business. Noticeable growth will occur in the areas of management, finance, marketing, and information systems.

4. It will strengthen selected graduate programs, will develop several new programs of graduate study, and will conduct and encourage instruction-related research by its student body and its faculty.

5. It will measurably expand, by means of both interinstitutional cooperative efforts and independent initiative, opportunities for the continuing, life-time education of the citizens of this region. The extent to which this function will become a major activity of the college can be seen under Objectives, which follow.

6. It will provide a responsive and responsible effort in serving the public of the region through the utilization of the college's human, intellectual, professional, and physical resources. This service will be notable in its willingness to go to where the people are, in its resource-team approach to the problems of the region, and in its departure from a dependence upon the traditional evening course/conference efforts of the past.

7. It will continue development of post-secondary, vocational programs below the baccalaureate level designed to serve specific educational needs as those needs are identified. These programs will involve nontraditional admissions practice, and will be sensitive to potentially similar services provided by junior and community colleges near any of the college's service areas.

8. It will mount, in the near future, a major program in health care delivery systems. Although several curricula and efforts presently exist in these areas, the program described here will integrate existing efforts and will involve major segments of the college not now committed. It will also require the establishment of agreements, and other formal relationships with most of the principal institutions delivering health care in this region. This program, unlike those outlined above, will require not only significant redirection of existing resources, but also major expenditures of new funds not now programmed.

9. The missions listed above describe distinct and separable programs. The following missions touch all or most of those programs.

- A. The college will multiply academic opportunities for students and will increase the number of professional and lifetime options available to them, while providing responsible and sensitive counsel and advice through its staff.

- B. It will provide a larger array of internships, work-study programs, study leaves, and other devices designed to assist each student in testing his own educational goals against the reality of the world away from the college campus.

- C. It will emphasize, throughout all its programs and its efforts, those intellectual and emotional tools best applied to a total education of the individual person. It will remain devoted to the difficult task of affording every student maximum opportunity for social development, for intellectual growth, for communication development, and for a maturing exposure to responsibility which should characterize the person who has been fully educated. To this end, the college will continue to rely on the highly skilled, professional services of its student life staff, since that staff's concern lies primarily within that 80% of each student's time which exists apart from classroom instruction.

- D. It will continue to provide and will strengthen its function as a cultural focal center for its students, staff, and for the people of the region.

- E. In order to accomplish the program missions of the college, it will continue the notable development of the Harvey A. And-

Library. This facility will serve not only the resident students and faculty of the college but will also act as a major resource center for people and institutions within a wide radius of the campus.

F. It will provide, through vigorous and continuing efforts, increasing educational and employment opportunities for members of minority groups and for women. The college accepts this responsibility as a fundamental mission of the institution itself.

Objectives

The following short-range (one year), medium-range (five-year), and long-range (ten-year or longer) objectives are listed by numbers which correspond to the nine college missions outlined above.

1. Explicit objectives related to the offering of a liberal education are difficult to list. The college has been strengthening its ability to provide this type of education for some years. Its art and sciences faculty presently provides over 70% of the formal instruction of the college, and that effort will grow in the years ahead.

2. There is no short-range objective in the reorientation of teacher education. The medium-range objective related to teacher education is a reduction of the percentage of baccalaureate graduates who are certified to teach from the present 69 percent to something below 50 percent. This will be accomplished primarily through the continuing downward trend in student enrollment pressures in these fields, although selection and performance criteria in teacher education will be developed, refined, and applied to assist in regulating this flow of graduates. The long-range objective in this area is to remain as flexible and responsive to Commonwealth needs and student choice as possible.

3. By the end of the next ten years, the number of baccalaureate graduates in business will have risen from the present 145 to approximately 200 annually. A number of sub-baccalaureate programs in this area will have been begun by that time also. The number and variety of work-study and internship-type experiences will have increased dramatically within that same time span. Additional development of business executive preparation programs will occur within five years.

4. With regard to graduate programs and research, the college is currently reexamining the structure and quality of its graduate offerings. It has sharpened its distinction between professional programs (for which there is an institutional responsibility for ensuring competence) and those programs in the academic fields of a less "applied" nature (which programs are related more closely to individual student aims and faculty strength). Several existing programs are under critical review. Several potential programs, such as those in economics, business, political science, earth science and psychology, are being studied. Within five years the college will have developed and strengthened its research-support efforts and facilities through increased coordinating activities and the assignment of increased funding support.

5. and 6. Public service and continuing education are closely related. They will become the responsibility of a new dean, that position to be established at the beginning of the 1974-75 academic year. Ten to fifteen percent of the institution's budget will support these efforts within five years. The college's efforts in these fields will cut across traditional academic boundaries and be typified by such new programs as those in community psychology, gerontology, community planning, public administration, international economics, law enforcement, early childhood education, recreation, small business administration, and the entire grouping of programs in health care delivery systems. All of these programs are now, or will be in operation within five years.

7. The college is now establishing an increased level of understanding, cooperation, and integration of instruction with the junior and community colleges located closest to Bloomsburg. As those conversations continue and as unmet needs surface during the next five years, the college will offer post-secondary programs with vocational goals. These programs will draw upon existing faculty strength augmented by the efforts of resource persons in nearby communities.

8. The major new program of the college, the integrated program in health care delivery systems, will be developed in three phases:

A. During the first two years, consolidation and integration of existing programs in pre-medicine, pre-dentistry, pre-veterinary medicine, medical technology, public school nursing, and dental hygiene will occur. In addition, formal and cooperative arrangements will be undertaken with area institutions delivering health care.

B. Beginning at the same time but continuing into the future, additional baccalaureate and vocational programs in such areas as nursing, occupational therapy, physical therapy, cytotechnology, radiologic technology, electroencephalographic and electrocardiographic techniques and skills, medical and biological photography, hospital computer programming, medical records techniques, medical secretarial science, inhalation therapy, optometric techniques, and optician training will be studied and probably developed.

C. In approximately five years, these programs will be consolidated further under a major new organizational unit of the college. Additional facilities and staff, some holding joint appointment with area institutions, will be added.

9A. By the end of the next ten years, the college will have reached a level of 6500 full-time equivalent students, of whom only 4000 will be full-time resident students. The remainder, those students will be persons pursuing a wide variety of diverse degree and nondegree, individually-tailored programs in career reorientation, personal development, and other dissimilar activities. This pattern will require an improvement of the college's academic advising system, a move which has already begun.

9B. Within five years the college will have completed its plan of establishing internship, work-study leave, and/or similar devices in virtually all programs of an "applied" nature. Further refinement and development will occur on a continuous basis.

9C. Although the nature of the institution's student body will change during the next ten years, the need to maintain a responsive professional student life staff oriented toward non-classroom education will continue. While no significant growth in size is projected for this staff, its duties will diversify.

9D. Within five years the viability of the college's cultural and fine arts programs will be increased through appropriate reassignment of resources and efforts from within the college. and despite severe strictures placed upon the fiscal support of this activity during the current year, the aggressive and continuing development of Andrus Library will be resumed in the summer of 1974.

9F. Specific goals related to the affirmative action mission of the college can be found in the college's affirmative action plan, established in accord with the recommendations of the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission.

Rationale

This document portrays a college which will conduct many of its programs along predictable developmental lines. No rationale is offered for these plans. But the paper also describes four major new changes in emphasis or direction for Bloomsburg State College: the significant reduction of teacher education degree recipients, the development of major efforts in continuing education and public service, the initiation of post-secondary vocational programs below the baccalaureate level, and the mounting of a major new and integrated program in health care delivery systems. These changes call for substantiation.

Bloomsburg State College has had increasing difficulty in placing its teacher education graduates (except in such fields as business education, special education, and communication disorders) in the past few years. This factor, combined with national and Commonwealth manpower needs studies, requires that the number of teachers prepared by the college be reduced.

This institution will experience a reduction in the number of 18-22 year old applicants for admission in the immediate future. At the same time, the people of the Susquehanna flood plain will be experiencing those social forces which demand retraining, enrichment, and career reorientation. As industry and communities continue to develop throughout the area, the skills represented on the staff of the college can be of increasing use in that development. The program in public service and continuing education will be the institution's reaction to these factors.

No junior or community college lies within almost fifty miles of Bloomsburg. Further, those lying just outside that commuting radius offer a limited number of programs in vocational preparation. With its broader resources and experienced faculty, the college is in a unique position to offer programs of this type which complement and augment the programs of her sister institutions.

The college's geographical location, special physical plant and faculty resources, the proximity of several major health care delivery institutions, and the lack of comprehensive and integrated health care education programs in this part of the Commonwealth all argue for the development of a program such as the one outlined in this document. The college has received encouragement and support for its plan from the staffs of most neighboring health care institutions.

Changes To Be Made Within 1-5 Years

All objective statements above, with the exception of objectives 1, 9C, and 9F, contain descriptions of changes anticipated within this time period. Please refer to that section for those descriptions.

Description of New Facilities Needed

In general, the college's plan requires no extensive new construction within the next decade. Better utilization of existing campus facilities and of land currently owned by state, county, and other governmental agencies (parks, state hospital, and municipal facilities and structures) can meet many of the facility needs of the programs outlined above. It is clear, however, that renovation, remodeling, redesign, and replacement of some existing facilities will be required as the internal functions of the college are realigned. Some rental or lease arrangements may also be required to support the public service and continuing education function.

Due to the college's intent to broaden and diversify its curricular approaches, a learning research center is advisable to implement greater inquiry into the learning process. The function of this facility would be that of improving the teacher-learning process. Such a facility would simultaneously serve faculty research projects, student research, special projects and services, and projects involving members and agencies of the community. A precise description of this facility is not possible at this time.

The principal facility required by the plans outlined in this document, however, is that required for the long-range support of the programs encompassed by the new organizational unit devoted to education in the health care delivery system area. The location and specific nature of this facility will be dictated by the nature of the programs themselves, but the requirement for a new and major facility to support these programs is now apparent.

Seven writing task forces have been constituted to undertake development

Task Force I — General Education - Dean Edson Drake

Task Force II — Teacher Education - Dean C. Stuart Edwards

Task Force III — Business Education - Dr. Bernard Dill

Task Force IV — Graduate Programs and Research - Dean Hobart F. Heller

Task Force V — Continuing Education - Summer Sessions - Public Service - Dr. Richard O. Wolfe

Task Force VI — Health Care Programs - Dr. James E. Cole

Task Force VII — College Life - Mr. Robert Norton and Mr. William Ryan, co-chairmen

The following steps for the work of the seven task forces and the Planning Commission have been tentatively established:

1. Completion of initial task force document outlines.
2. Completion of Commission reaction to outlines; additional guidance.
3. Completion of initial working draft of major task force sections (Commission reactions to follow promptly).
4. Completion of final draft of major task force sections (Final editing to follow promptly).

NO RETRENCHMENT OF FACULTY NEXT YEAR

The following "Statement of Mutual Understanding" was released early in December by Dr. James H. McCormick, President of Bloomsburg State College, and William Acierno, President of the BSC Faculty Association, APSCUF/PAHE. The statement was signed in Harrisburg by David W. Hornbeck, for the Commonwealth/Colleges, and Patricia C. Johnson, for APSCUF/PAHE.

Representatives of the COMMONWEALTH/COLLEGES and of APSCUF/PAHE have met to discuss program changes having implications for retrenchment of some faculty members. In the spirit of cooperative concern with the development of excellence in the educational opportunities provided through the Colleges, the representatives herewith report on their discussions and express their mutual understandings of three major conclusions.

First, the COMMONWEALTH/COLLEGES announces that for the academic year 1974-1975, no retrenchment will occur in the following groups of regular full-time faculty members: tenured faculty, first-year and second-year faculty members eligible for renewal; faculty members beyond the second-year who are eligible for renewal and have not attained the age of 65. Furthermore, the contractual and legal rights of all employees of the Commonwealth will be observed.

LIFETIME MEMBERSHIP

Robert Richey, Dept. of Speech, has been awarded a Lifetime Membership in the Players' Club Foundation. The Players' Club Foundation is the oldest community theatre in Ohio and it presented Mr. Richey this Lifetime Membership on the occasion of the Club's 50th Anniversary. Mr. Richey was director of the Columbus, Ohio Players' Club from 1958-1963.

Evening Division Course Offerings Are Increased

In an endeavor to provide increased educational opportunities for area residents, Bloomsburg State College plans to increase its evening division course offerings, to implement a program of mini-courses, and to allow attendance for self-improvement in certain degree classes this Spring semester. The Chamber of Commerce is cooperating with the Office of Continuing Education at the College acting as an intermediary for dissemination and planning in these programs as well as in future ones.

Evening division credit courses are being increased from thirty-five offerings to approximately sixty-five. Introductory courses are being offered in most departments with a variety of courses available. A sample of offerings which may be of special interest to Chamber members includes Business and Professional Speech, Business Law, and Personnel Management. At the present time qualifications for enrollment as a continuing education student in the evening division are a high school diploma and completion of a two-page application form which may be obtained from the College Admission Office (389-3316). A complete list of course offerings may be obtained from the Office of Continuing Education (389-3300).

Mini courses which are short-term non-credit courses are also included in plans for the coming semester. These courses are designed to serve specific needs or interests of the community. Far reaching in their scope, these can be further study of current issues, reviewing of previously developed skills, or retraining for new employment opportunities. Chamber members could utilize these as in-service programs, e.g. personnel management, furthering secretarial skills. Based on the assessment of business, professional, and industrial needs, the Office of Continuing Education is available for planning and implementing specific programs.

Certain regular college courses are being made available to any interested individual for self improvement purposes only—not for credit or audit. These are offered for a nominal fee and no admission requirements have to be met. This program is designed for those interested in increasing their own knowledge in a subject or field, without obtaining a grade or credit for it.

These modifications are part of the College's effort to responsibly serve the public of the region through effective utilization of its resources.

HELPING HANDS

Members of BSC sororities and fraternities worked with a Bloomsburg "Helping Hands" group during the Christmas season to collect clothing, toys and food for distribution to needy families in the area. The idea for the project originated with Mrs. Franklin Kury.

Norton, Koncsol, Hoppole to Serve In New Posts for Balance of Year

Dean Norton

Ms. Koncsol

Dr. Hoppole

The following announcement was made by Dr. James H. McCormick, BSC president, in December:

It was the intention of this office to fill the vacant position of Assistant to the President as soon as possible. It was anticipated that the position title would be changed to Executive Assistant to the President, and the responsibilities of the position would include one-half time as Assistant to the President and one-half time devoted to long-range planning and affirmative action efforts.

As a result of the announcement, a number of candidates expressed interest in the position, and several persons were interviewed. Due to the current financial situation, however, it seems inadvisable to pursue efforts to fill the position with new personnel at the present time.

Consequently, the following temporary appointments are being made: Mr. Robert Norton, currently Dean of Student Life, will be appointed as Acting Assistant to the President. He will serve one-half time in the President's Office and remain one-half time in the Student Life area. Vice President Pickett will continue his responsibilities as Vice Chairman of the Planning Commission. He will be assisted in the planning effort on a part-time basis by Dr. Lee Hoppole, Professor of Geography. It is essential that the Planning Commission utilize the talents of many members of the academic community.

Earlier this year, Vice President Pickett assumed responsibility for affirmative action. Ms. Judith Koncsol, Assistant Dean of Student Life, will be named Acting Affirmative Action Officer, responsible to Vice President Pickett in this area, but will also continue some of her assignments in the Student Life program.

Our objective is to continue recruitment procedures during the Spring semester in order that the permanent appointment of an Executive Assistant can be made for the next fiscal year.

Dean Norton

Robert G. Norton, Dean of Student Life at Bloomsburg State College, joined the faculty in September, 1962 as a Supervisor of Student Teachers in Secondary Education.

In 1967, Norton was appointed Assistant Dean of Men assigned to supervise male students living in private homes and apartments in the Town of Bloomsburg. The following year he was named Dean of Men, in which capacity he served for two years. In 1970, Norton was appointed Dean of Students and when Dr. Jerrold Griffis joined the faculty in 1970 as Vice President of Student Life, Norton's title was changed to Dean of Student Life.

Since 1970, he has served as an advisor to the Community Government Association of the College, along with serving on numerous faculty committees. From 1963 to 1966, he was basketball coach and tennis coach at the College.

Born in Donora, Pennsylvania, Norton earned his Bachelor of Science degree from Slippery Rock State College and was awarded his Master of Education degree, with a major in guidance, at the University of Pittsburgh. He has taken additional studies at The Pennsylvania State University and Bucknell University.

Norton and his wife, Patricia, reside in Sherwood Village and have 6 children; Gregory, 17; Gary, 14; Joseph, 10; Amy, 8; Timothy, 6; and Karen, 4.

Miss Koncsol

Miss Judith A. Koncsol, joined the faculty of Bloomsburg State College as Assistant Dean of Women, with the responsibilities of supervising off-campus women living in the Town of Bloomsburg, in September, 1969.

A native of Erwin, Pennsylvania, Miss Koncsol attended North Dakota State University where she received her Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology and the University of Northern Colorado where she was awarded her Master of Arts degree in psychology, counseling, and guidance.

In 1970, Miss Koncsol was named Assistant Dean of Students, serving as Resident Dean of Schuylkill Hall. In addition, she has been Advisor to the Association of Resident Men and the Association of Women Students.

Dr. Hoppole

Dr. Lee C. Hoppole, professor in the Geography and Earth Science Department at Bloomsburg State College, has been a member of the faculty since September, 1961.

Dr. Hoppole is currently a member of the Long-Range Planning Commission of the college and is vice-president of the Association of State College and University Professors (APSCUF) and serves on the Executive Board of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP). This past June Dr. Hoppole was the BSC faculty representative to the conference entitled, "Planning for Change", a higher education institute sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Education, which was held at Millersville. He also is a member of the Faculty Promotion Committee and recently completed a term on the Nomination and Elections Committee.

A native of Pottsville, Pennsylvania, Hoppole received his Bachelor of Science degree in education at Kutztown State College and his Master of Science degree in geography at Penn State. He received his Doctor of Philosophy degree at Penn State in 1971.

Dr. and Mrs. Hoppole live at 925 Market Street, Bloomsburg, Pa. and are the parents of two children, Brenda and Charles.

MILLER CHAIRMAN OF ELEMENTARY ED. DEPT.

Dr. Donald C. Miller was elected to succeed Warren I. Johnson as chairman of the department of elementary education by its members in a recent departmental meeting. Dr. Miller has been a member of the BSC faculty since 1971 and Johnson, who has been chairman for the past four years, is returning to classroom duties at his own request.

Johnson joined the BSC faculty in September, 1952 as the staff member of the Elementary Laboratory School and was supervisor of student teachers of the elementary education division for a number of years prior to becoming chairman of the department.

Johnson was presented with an engraved pewter mug by the department faculty as remembrance for his many fine years of distinguished service to the department.

Johnson is married to the former Maurita P. Hughes, of Pittston. They have one son, Craig, who is presently a senior at Penn State majoring in Business Administration.

Dr. Miller came to Bloomsburg from Ohio State University where he received his Ph.D. and taught for a period of three years. He also taught at Baldwin Wallace College in Ohio and Northern Illinois University.

Mrs. Miller holds a bachelor of science degree in education and a master of education in elementary education. The Millers have one son, Jeffrey, who is in the ninth grade.

APPOINTMENT

Tom Cooper, Director of Admissions, has been appointed to the Advisory Committee of the Middle States Regional Office of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Russ Houk Elected Chairman of U.S. Olympic Wrestling Committee

Russ Houk, former BSC head wrestling coach, has been elected chairman of the United States Olympic wrestling committee.

One of the committee's chief responsibilities will be to prepare the best team to represent the U.S. in both the 1975 Pan-American Games, currently scheduled to be held in Chile, and the 1976 Olympics to be held in Montreal.

The honor was the second received by Houk this past Fall. Earlier he had been named Mission Leader of the USA National Wrestling delegation which will compete in the Soviet Union from January 26 to February 16.

While in the Soviet Union, the U. S. A. contingent will compete in the prestigious World Invitational Wrestling Tournament conducted traditionally in Tbilisi, Georgia. Following the tournament, the United States and the Soviet Union will engage in a series of competitive dual matches in such cities as Baku, Yerevan, Leningrad, Minsk and Moscow.

This participation is not only sanctioned by the Amateur Wrestling Federation (FILA), but also enjoys the endorsement of the United States Olympic Development Committee and the U. S. Department of State's Office of International Athletic Programs.

As Mission Leader of the group, Houk will oversee all arrangements for the contingent of ten wrestlers and two coaches.

According to James D. Stevens, Jr., National Sports Administrator, such events not only provide increased technical expertise, but perhaps more importantly, create accelerated international understanding, broad cultural perspective, and exemplary professional stature. Stevens also pointed out the AAU acknowledges the numerous contributions of Bloomsburg State College to our country's international amateur sports achievements, and especially appreciates the cooperative inter-organizational spirit which has fostered such opportunity.

Houk, a native of Ellwood City, Pa., served as athletic director and wrestling coach at Bloomsburg State College from 1957-1971. During that period of time, he brought national recognition to Bloomsburg State College by winning three NAIA team championships, being named NAIA Coach-of-the-Year three times, producing twelve individual national (NAIA) champions, along with serving in numerous administrative capacities at the conference, district, and national level. He represented NAIA on the U. S. Olympic Wrestling Committee from 1964 through 1972.

Last year, he was appointed to serve on the United States Olympic Wrestling Committee through 1976 under AAU, and had the distinction of serving as manager of the 1972 Olympic freestyle wrestling team in Munich. Houk also operates a summer wrestling camp in the Endless Mountains that has gained national recognition.

APPOINTED

Erich Frohman, Dept. of Speech, recently was appointed Chairman of the Financial Changes Commission of the Province of the Northeast of Pi Kappa Delta, National Forensic Fraternity.

WRIST-LOCKETTES BACK WRESTLING PROGRAM

Twenty five BSC women students have found a unique way to become involved in a varsity sports program. They are members of the Wrist-Lockettes, an organization formed last year to promote enthusiasm for varsity wrestling.

The girls print and distribute programs, design posters to generate enthusiasm among students, keep score and do other chores to assist wrestling coach Roger Sanders and his staff prepare for home contests.

They have also undertaken money-raising efforts for the purpose of establishing a scholarship fund. They are sponsoring an Athletes in Action wrestling tournament at Nelson Field House January 28 and they are selling booster bumper stickers at $1.00 each and Huskey decals at 50 cents each.

The Wrist-lockettes plan to establish a fund which will provide a $200 scholarship annually.

Alumni may address orders for bumper stickers and decals to Wrist-Lockettes, P. O. Box 77, BSC, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

HOSPITALITY SUITE

Bloomsburg State College will maintain a Hospitality Suite at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel during the American Association of School Administrators annual conference in Atlantic City from February 22 - 25, 1974.

The alumni are cordially invited to visit the Hospitality Suite and learn of the many happenings that are going on at Bloomsburg.

The hours will be: 10 a.m. - 12 Noon; 2 p.m. - 5 p.m.; 10 p.m. - midnight — February 22, 23, 24. February 25 — 10 a.m. - 12 Noon.

There will be representatives from different departments of the college to answer questions and give up-to-date information about the institution.

There will be slides, films, and light refreshments available. Everyone is welcome. See you in Atlantic City!

PROJECT FOR CHILDREN

The Delta Omega Chi fraternity of BSC collected an estimated 400 pounds of Halloween treats, canned goods and toys for children in their eighth annual Halloween project. The material was taken to the Selinsgrove State School for Children to provide a party for the children.

In addition, cash contributions of $310 were received and the money was put into a fund to provide a Christmas party for the children at the Selinsgrove institution.

In eight years the fraternity has collected an estimated 3,500 pounds of food and toys for the children. In the past four years cash contributions have exceeded $1,500.

GUEST LECTURER

George Melis, cultural counselor of the Italian Embassy to the People's Republic of China, at Peking, appeared as guest lecturer in classes of Dr. Ralph Smiley, History Dept., on September 11 and 12.

These are the four new bowling alleys which were installed this fall on the ground floor of the new Kehr College Union. The alleys are open to use by both faculty and students as a part of the recreational facilities available in the new Union.

FORENSICS

Richard Alderfer, Dept. of Speech and Director of Forensics, has recently been informed by Professor Jack Howe of California State University at Long Beach, California, that the forthcoming "Intercollegiate Speech Tournament Results for 1972-1973" ranks Bloomsburg State as 35th among 204 colleges in the category of 2,400 to 8,000 enrollment, which places Bloomsburg well within the top twenty percent for the nation in this division.

REPORT OF ALUMNI BOARD MEETING

This is a report of the BSC Alumni Association Board of Directors Meeting held Saturday, December 8:

Approval to begin a drive for funds to establish the office of an executive director and action to increase the number on the board of directors highlighted the meeting of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association board of directors in a busy session held in the Scranton Commons Saturday.

It has been felt for some time by the board that an executive director is sorely needed. In order to attempt to carry out many of the programs which the various committees have recommended, it will be necessary to employ a full time director.

In order to do that the Alumni Association (which numbers more than 14,000) will be asked to contribute to this fund which will make this a reality. Announcement will be made in the Quarterly which will be published in January. Direct mailing will also be used in order to inform the Alumni of the planned program.

The board of directors hopes to expand due to the many areas which hopefully will be covered during the next few years. Francis Galinski, Doylestown, chairman; Dr. Frank Furgele, Glen Mills; Dr. Alex McKechnie, Camp Hill; and Clayton Hinkel, Bloomsburg, are serving on that committee. This group will recommend the number of proposed increases in board membership plus a rotating system of serving on the board.

Student loans were also discussed during the two and one half hour business meeting. The directors stressed the fact that the Alumni Association has money for student needs and loans are readily available through the financial aid office or the counseling office.

Clayton Hinkel reported that two Distinguished Service Awards will be given at Alumni Day on April 27. Earl Gehrig, treasurer, reported on finances of the Association.

Boyd Buckingham, Associate Vice President for Development and Public Relations at BSC, reported on the December 4 trip to Harrisburg by students of Bloomsburg State. He stated that the faculty who accompanied the group were proud of the conduct and appearance of the students. The Alumni Association had financially aided in the cost of transportation.

Buckingham also announced that the college will provide supportive services if and when the Alumni Association appoints an executive director for the group.

In addition to the drive for this important office, the constitution committee (which brought forth this recommendation) also came up with some other recommendations for consideration — among them, Alumni members hosting college functions; organization of regional meetings; and methods of acquainting new students with the college. It was felt that many of these important ventures will depend upon the naming of an executive director.

Ten of the fifteen board members were in attendance at the meeting. Also attending, in addition to Buckingham, was Howard Fenstermaker, past president and now advisor. Millard Ludwig, Millville president of the Association, chaired the meeting.

PROGRAM IN SPAIN NOW IN SIXTH YEAR

The sixth annual Bloomsburg in Spain Program sponsored by Bloomsburg State College will be conducted during the summer of 1974.

The major objective of the program is to provide the future teacher, as well as the experienced classroom teacher of Spanish and students in general, a better knowledge of the people of the country and their culture, ideas, and customs. As a result of experience, participants will be able to say, "I was there in Spain" and answer more questions relative to the people themselves and their way of life. Additionally, the student will gain a greater command of the Spanish language, since Spanish will be spoken by the group throughout the program.

The program also includes trips to Toledo, Monasterio del Escorial, Valle de los Caidos, and Avila or Segovia. For additional information concerning fees, reservations, and itinerary, contact Dr. Alfred E. Tonolo, Director of Bloomsburg in Spain, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa 17815.

ARCHEOLOGY PROJECT

Under the direction of Robert R. Solenberger and Dr. Peter G. Roe, Dept. of Sociology and Anthropology, BSC students are now excavating a prehistoric Indian site in Point Township, near Northumberland, Pa. Finds include projectile points of Archaic and Early Woodland type, fragments of cord-marked or incised pottery, fire-cracked hearthstones and charcoal, and a bit of steatite or soapstone, possibly part of a type of container used in the Susquehanna Valley about 1500 B.C. At a meeting held in early September of the M.A.N. (Man and Nature) Club at BSC, Dr. Roe outlined plans for BSC's archeological tour of Mexico to be held the first three weeks in June, 1974.

Alumni Board Plans to Expand Program

The Board of Directors of your Alumni Association feels the time has come to take a bold and necessary step.

If you are curious enough to ask why, we invite you to share the results of our deliberations.

Since 1960, BSC has been completing the transition from a single purpose, state teachers college to a multi-purpose state college. Baccalaureate degrees in the arts and sciences and in business, as well as master's degrees in several areas of concentration, are being conferred along with the traditional bachelor of science degree in teacher education.

Our nation and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania have experienced many changes during the past decade. The college must continue to evaluate the programs and services it offers, and redefine its missions and objectives, if it is to do the best possible job of serving you and your families and thousands of other citizens in our Commonwealth.

The growth of your alma mater in terms of enrollment, faculty, academic programs, and physical plant has been accompanied by a similar increase in the number of our graduates for nearly twenty years. At this moment, we have addresses for nearly 14,000 alumni to whom we send copies of the Quarterly four times each year. Approximately 1,000 members have been added annually for the past five years.

Mailing each of you the Alumni Quarterly at regular intervals is important. But, the Quarterly alone does not allow the Alumni Association the facilities to communicate properly or provide adequate services to its members and to the college community.

How can we serve you more effectively?

By establishing an office that is staffed by an executive director responsible directly to your board of directors. This staff member would be responsible for —

1. giving prompt attention to your requests for information about
 - a. admissions and placement,
 - b. alumni loans and scholarships,
 - c. new and existing curriculum offerings in continuing education and graduate studies, and
 - d. news and addresses of your classmates and members of the college community.
2. helping organize regional meetings of alumni.
3. representing the association as directed by the board of directors.
4. organizing and directing an annual giving campaign to secure funds for operating expenses and for projects which will aid the College in providing students with a quality education at a reasonable cost.

We noted there are approximately 14,000 alumni for whom we have current addresses. If each of you sends a minimum of two dollars (more if you wish), in addition to your annual membership, we can implement and maintain the kind of alumni office and services previously described.

Several members of the Board of Directors and other alumni have already made substantial contributions for this purpose. We ask you to support this project, and strengthen our efforts and those of President McCormick and the entire college staff in making BSC one of the key members of the State College system in Pennsylvania.

Our goal is to raise $50,000 by March 31, 1974, the end of our fiscal year. We plan to have a complete report for Alumni Day, April 26, 1974. Will you please send your contribution before that date?

Volume LXXIV, Number 3, Winter, 1974

With this issue of the Alumni Quarterly I am officially announcing a revolutionary plan in the operation of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association as proposed by the Board of Directors at the December 8 meeting.

It is planned to secure the services of a full time Executive Director of the Alumni Association and to considerably expand our operations. In order to accomplish all of this the directors decided to conduct an effective drive which will realize returns of approximately $50,000.

I will hastily state that no money will be wasted. However, the committee on revision of the constitution took a long look at our operation and definitely felt that the Association should be attempting and accomplishing on a larger scale. In order to do this, a full time executive director is mandatory.

The Board of Directors now serving are a dedicated group, and all have done well in their fields of endeavor. Without exception, this Board feels that Bloomsburg State was responsible for their start in the professional world, and they will forever be grateful.

We hope that you feel the same way. Most state colleges have far surpassed Bloomsburg in the matter of contributing to the Alumni Fund, but prior to this venture, we have not felt the need for heavy solicitation.

Much of the material in this Quarterly is angled toward this new movement. If you will help us in this endeavor, we are certain that we can produce results which will make you proud to be an Alumni Association member of the Bloomsburg State College.

Sincerely,

Millard C. Ludwig

NEW COLLEGE STORE

From tennis courts (top photo, made in 1921) to dining hall, to temporary student union, to college store—a story of changes made to keep pace with the growing needs of BSC students.

Tennis is now being played on 18 new courts above the President's residence. The dining hall that replaced these old courts between old Waller Hall and Ben Franklin was converted into a temporary student union nearly three years ago after dining facilities were moved to the new Scranton Commons.

Today, the exterior (center photo) is unchanged, but the interior has been converted into a modern, spacious College Store (lower photo) with 9,000 square feet of carpeted area and aisle after aisle of displays. There you will find everything a student needs in the way of books, magazines and supplies plus items ranging from jackets and T-shirts to glassware and jewelry. And in the right background is a "Candy Nook" where more than 50 kinds of candies may be bought by the ounce or the pound.

The preceding issue of the Alumni Quarterly carried the entire Concept Document, describing the missions and objectives of your alma mater in its efforts to provide academic programs to meet the present and future needs of the citizens of Pennsylvania.

Since that time, seven writing task forces have been formed to develop and describe in greater detail how the missions shall be accomplished, and the human and fiscal resources and the physical plant needed to strengthen or expand existing programs as well as to develop new programs. Approximately 140 faculty, students, trustees, alumni, and community leaders have spent countless hours preparing these reports and attending hearings to discuss and evaluate their work. A team of writers has integrated these reports and the expanded documents were submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Education on May 1, 1974. This has been a very constructive, positive, and exciting example of the kind of college and community cooperation which we plan to continue.

Early in March, we received the good news that the State Legislature had passed and Governor Shapp had signed a bill providing badly needed additional funds for the operation of the thirteen State Colleges and Indiana University during the 1973-1974 college year. Your alma mater received a sufficient amount to pay salaries and wages, to restore depleted inventories of instructional and maintenance supplies, to make a substantial increase in the purchase of library books, and to complete critical repair projects.

During the March meeting of the Board of Trustees, we were encouraged by reports from both the admissions and placement offices. A detailed account of both reports are included in this issue of the Quarterly.

We are expecting to maintain our current enrollment of 4,300 full-time undergraduate students for September, 1974. This is a positive reflection on the outstanding work being done by Mr. Tom Cooper and the staff of the Admissions Office, and the cooperation of faculty, students, and alumni who have aided in this effort.

Our career counseling and placement office reports that 85 percent of the 1973 graduating class, who were available for employment, have been placed in positions for which they prepared at BSC. This is an improvement over last year's record, and is a good omen for the Class of 1974. We feel that Mr. Thomas Davies and his staff are to be commended, as well as all alumni who have so favorably impressed their employers that the latter are willing and happy to offer positions to current graduates.

Those of you who follow the fortunes of our varsity athletic teams will be happy to read of the very successful season experienced by the wrestling, swimming, and basketball squads, along with honors gained by several individuals. Team members and coaches are deserving of our support and appreciation for a job well done.

We are having a very busy and very constructive year at your alma mater. Much of what we have done and hope to do could not be accomplished without your continuing cooperation.

Buckalew Place - a 'lived-in Mansion'

by Kathy Joseph

"Maybe I should take off my shoes," I said, as I followed Mrs. McCormick through Buckalew Place to her kitchen. "I wouldn't want to track anything up . . ."

"With two boys, a dog and a cat, you don't have to worry about tracking anything up!" she laughed. It's surprising that the college President's wife should be so young. But then, too, under the circumstances, it's really not so surprising. When Dr. McCormick became President of Bloomsburg State College in 1973 at 34, he was cited as the youngest president in the state college system.

I was amazed at the house. It's so beautiful — more than a palace — with the high ceilings and the antiques. You'd think they'd be afraid to move in it.

But in the kitchen an entire wall is dedicated to the McCormick children's construction paper artwork — Christmas trees and stickmen galore!

I guess my expression revealed that I didn't expect such a mansion to look so lived in. "We have to be a family no matter where we live," she said, "and that means pictures on the wall."

That's characteristic of her attitude. I followed in awe to another room where we talked. No, she wasn't talking, she was bursting with enthusiasm. She told me how they're planning to entertain every member of the faculty (plus husbands and wives). "How else can we possibly get to know them?" she asked me rhetorically.

"First semester we really tried to get to know the students. That's important . . . We had a dinner in the Commons with the maintenance people. They're the people no one ever recognizes."

People first — that appears to be her motto. With her B.A. in English from Wilson College, as well as graduate study at Penn State, University of West Virginia and Shippensburg, Mrs. McCormick has had a lot of experience with people.

Last year she taught eighth grade English in Shippensburg. In one class she had eighth graders who read on a third grade level. "There's a stigma about special education that shouldn't be . . . The frustrations and failures of these students soon leads them to become discipline problems."

One of her favorite teaching positions was outside Washington, Penna. She taught fourth, fifth and sixth grade on a provisional certificate in what began as a one room school-house and was expanded.

Mrs. McCormick's greatest satisfaction is seeing her service help someone. She left college for a short time to go to New York City to work as a nurse's aide. The conditions weren't always satisfactory but nonetheless she loved the work because she was helping people.

"Then Jim took some courses at N. Y. U. and that was great," she said, referring to Dr. McCormick.

"Is that how you met?" I asked.

"No . . . she smiled one of those wait-til-you-hear-this-one smiles. "When I was in high school, I was editor of the school newspaper and the new democracy teacher's classroom was right across the hall from the newspaper office." She smiled again, preparing me for the clincher. "He was my democracy teacher."

She was a senior and it was his first year teaching. A few years after she graduated, he called and the dating began. Mrs. McCormick recalled, "One day I was absent from class and missed a test and he wouldn't let me make it up . . . so I married him to get even!"

"Get even" is hardly the expression. It's obvious that Mrs. McCormick's down-to-earth and caring attitude is vital to her family and everyone around her.

At that moment five year old Doug came home from nursery school with a slightly bruised hand. Mrs. McCormick kissed it, and after that, it didn't seem to hurt Doug anymore.

Doug went to wash his hands and Placement office reports 85 per cent of 1973 graduates have found jobs

The job market for college graduates opened up, at least temporarily, in 1973.

Thomas A. Davies, director of BSC's Career Development and Placement Center, and some 1150 members of the class of 1974 are hoping it is the reversal of a trend that started some two years ago.

"Our March 15 report showed that 85.6 per cent of the 1973 graduates available for career placement are either teaching, working in business or industry, in the service or in graduate school," Davies said. "This compares with the placement of 78.67 per cent of the graduates in 1972, the lowest year we had."

Placement reports show that 1970 was the last good year for career opportunities, with 89.3 per cent of the graduates placed that year. In 1971 the percentage dropped to 84.6. Davies points out that in both those years final placement reports were made in December and that if the reports had been made three months later, as is the practice now, the percentages probably would have been higher.

"We have to have more time to compile our reports now because the classes are larger," Davies explained. "But we still have trouble accounting for all graduates. This year, for example, we could not get in touch with 18 of our 1973 graduates. Even their parents didn't know where they were. If we could not locate them, we could not count them as being meaningfully employed."

The term 'meaningfully employed' is a criteria used by the placement office, Davis explained. It refers to career-type positions. Persons who have part-time jobs, or are considered to be only temporarily employed, are counted as not being placed.

Davies expects things to be more difficult this year. The 1974 class will have approximately 1150 graduates, compared with 780 in 1971, 923 in 1972 and 979 last year.

"The large graduating class will be a problem," Davies said. "It looks as though it will be more difficult for our graduates to find jobs. But in 1973 it looked the same, so there's always the possibility we'll be pleasantly surprised again."

He noted that there are still good opportunities in education, despite predictions. Four out of five elementary and secondary education graduates were placed last year. In contrast, only three out of four of the Liberal Arts and Sciences majors have jobs.

He pointed out that career opportunities are still available in the Business Education and Business Administration areas. In the education curriculum, Earth and Space Science, Mathematics, Special Education and Communication Disorders positions are still open.

"There seems to be a new trend in hiring procedures," he commented. "The grads don't get jobs when schools open in September, but many do so later in the year, as late as February and March. There seems to be a continuing process of employment throughout the year."

Davies said the services of the placement office are available to all alumni. Files can be kept for only seven years, but any alumnus who wants placement help is welcome to contact the office at any time.

The March 15 placement report follows.

| Curriculum | Graduates | Placement Percentage |
|-------------------|-----------|----------------------|
| Elementary | 302 | 83.9 |
| Secondary | 177 | 81.03 |
| Business Ed. | 70 | 94.11 |
| Business Ad. | 151 | 90.34 |
| Special Ed. | 79 | 93.6 |
| Comm. Disorders | 25 | 100.0 |
| Arts and Sciences | 141 | 75.6 |
| Nurses | 34 | 96.97 |

BUCKALEW PLACE

Mrs. McCormick looked at her watch. "If we have a quick lunch, do you have some more time? I'd like to take you to my favorite place." She was treating me like an old friend even though I had only known her an hour.

Lunch was different and fun as Doug told me about his older brother David and David's stuffed gorilla. What a family!

Mrs. McCormick pointed out a trophy and some blue ribbons to me. They belonged to A. M. Selfras Sun, Mrs. McCormick's Arabian horse. So that's where her favorite place is — the stables!

Lunch was quick and before I knew it we were on our way in the station wagon.

Doug was excited. "On the way back, Mommy, can we take Kathy past Peacock Corners?"

"Okay, I don't see why not."
"What's Peacock Corners?" I asked.

Now Doug was really excited. "They've got animals walking around and you can feed them and there are goats and cows and pheasants and turkeys. And I mean live turkeys!"

By this time we were at the stables, which are near Millville, about 5 miles from BSC. The horses are two Arabians, Selfras and Whimsy. A. M. Selfras Sun had won the trophy and the ribbons for first prize in English Pleasure (riding class) and third in Halter Class (movement, confirmation, manners.)

Selfras is gray, almost white, while Whimsy is brown. They're beautiful, well-groomed horses and Mrs. McCormick's pride in them radiates in her blue eyes. It wasn't hard to imagine her riding them, for she has broken them both.

The feeling was ineffable as I stood there watching the horses run. I hated to leave and so did Mrs. McCormick. "I wasted the whole morning here yesterday," she confided.

Driving back, we passed Peacock Corners, to my delight as well as Doug's. We also passed a man who was walking along the side of the road, dazed.

"It almost seemed like he didn't have a face," Mrs. McCormick frowned. "Too often we don't talk to people to find out what they're really like and what they're interested in. And then people seem faceless. Do you know what I mean?" Her frown deepened. "I hope that man's all right."

I'm certain that she really hoped that man was all right because it's clear she cares and she's interested. She's interested in her family, her Bible school students, her former students, her colleagues, the college community, faceless strangers. The list is endless.

She's even interested in college journalists.

"Now you know so much about me," she said, "but I know so little about you . . ."

CHRONISTER IN BRAZIL TO HOLD CAGE CLINICS

An additional honor has been bestowed upon Bloomsburg State College's basketball coach Charles Chronister, who spent the latter part of May in Salvadore, state of Bahia, Brazil, conducting a 16-day series of basketball clinics for coaches and players in that area. Arrangements for the trip were made by Dr. Robert Miller, Coordinator of International Studies at BSC and Vice President of the Partners of America Exchange Program, through the National Basketball Coaches Association, who has a working agreement with Partners of America.

Chronister led the Huskies to perhaps the most successful season in the history of the college this year by representing Eastern Division in the Pennsylvania Conference Championship, winning the NCAA Mid-Regional title, and going on to participate in the 8 team NCAA College Division finals at Evansville where Bloomsburg was defeated by Morgan State, the eventual winner. The Huskies had a 22-6 overall season, which was the most wins recorded by a BSC cage team. Chronister, in his three years at BSC, has had seasons of 18-7, 20-5, and 22-6, giving him an overall college career of 60-18. With a nucleus of returnees and a fine group of incoming freshmen, he is looking forward to another successful season during the 74-75 campaign.

"Specialized Educational Facilities for the Bantu in South Africa," by Dr. Ralph R. Ireland, Professor of Sociology, has been published in the January 1974 issue of INTELLECT.

THE ALUMNI QUARTERLY

Alumni help is needed in recruiting students to maintain enrollment levels

Mention College "recruiting" and most people would probably think you are talking about sports programs and the quest for athletes.

That's no longer true. Colleges today are recruiting students in an effort to maintain enrollment levels. At Bloomsburg State College recruiting of students has become an important function of the Admissions Office.

Tommy L. Cooper, Director of Admissions, is asking for the cooperation of students, faculty, and particularly alumni in his efforts to encourage students to enroll at B.S.C. You can help, as many alumni are doing, by putting in a good word for B.S.C. with prospective students, and by sending the Admissions office the names of those students so appropriate information can be mailed to them.

"Colleges and universities throughout the country are experiencing a decline in the number of applications for admission," Cooper explains. "Among the reasons for this are the end to the military draft, increased cost, credibility for vocational training, declining birth rates, employment opportunities for college graduates, and changing cultural values. The problem has become so severe in recent years that many colleges have had to delete programs or close entirely."

"The B.S.C. Office of Admissions is concerned about this trend. In an effort to continue to avoid enrollment difficulties the office is attempting to involve every segment of the college community in student recruitment. Alumni can play an extremely important part in recruitment by identifying potential students and by informing them of the educational opportunities at Bloomsburg State College."

"If you know of individuals who are planning to seek a college education, please encourage them to investigate Bloomsburg. The Office of Admissions will be pleased to send application materials and information to any Alumni referrals. Thank you for your help."

To request the mailing of admissions materials you may use the referral form appearing at the bottom of this page, or you may make the request by letter.

Dr. James D. Bryden, chairman of the Academic Affairs/Curriculum Committee, accompanied Mr. Cooper to a conference on admissions problems sponsored by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities held recently in Chicago.

"Although the problem of admitting and retaining a sufficient number of students for institutional operation is not yet as critical among state supported institutions as in the private sector of post-secondary education, the conference made it apparent that all members of our academic community must take these problems seriously as a matter of institutional survival," Dr. Bryden reported. "It should also be noted that Bloomsburg was unique in having sent a faculty line representative to the conference as evidence of the necessity of faculty involvement in admission/retention problems and the administration's commitment to participating governance."

Figures reported by the B.S.C. Office of Admissions reflecting recent changes include:

Admission applications received as of February 14:

1972—3398 freshmen and 600 transfers.

1973—2400 freshmen and 386 transfers.

1974—2209 freshmen and 252 transfers.

Withdrawals increased from 128 in 1972 to 268 in 1973.

"In conducting the Chicago conference," Dr. Bryden said, "the AASCU used a consulting firm which has had considerable experience in working with private institutions on admissions problems. Throughout the presentations, the idea was stressed that the picture is not going to get any better but that it is not yet so critical for state supported institutions that we cannot move with reason and dispatch to alleviate the impact."

Alumni board cites need for support

In an attempt to inject some professional advice into the present drive to secure sufficient funds to hire a full time executive director of the Alumni Association, a committee was appointed at the February 16 meeting of the board of directors to select some professional aid for this venture.

It was the hope of the board of directors that the Alumni Association will respond to this important appeal. At that meeting it was too early to make any kind of statement as to the response.

Boyd Buckingham reported that 14,000 Alumni Quarterlies had been distributed in February with another issue due in April. Buckingham also reported on some Alumni Day activities for Saturday, April 27.

Dr. James McCormick spoke of the excellent support given him in his early months as President of Bloomsburg State. Among other things (1) he mentioned the important "Concept Document" which has involved more than 150 persons. (2) He also stated that job descriptions would be forthcoming for many areas which had not had them. (3) Enrollments are now moving into a very competitive atmosphere.

President McCormick made a very important statement: "We all should be working to talk with people about Bloomsburg. It is not strictly the responsibility of the admissions office. It is a school-wide responsibility. Alumni can play a vital part along with faculty. It is not a crisis, but we should be concerned to keep our enrollment at an effective figure."

Clayton Hinkel, chairman of the Distinguished Service Award, reported that two will be given on Alumni Day. Treasurer Earl Gehrig reported on the McNinch Fund which was established by a will for loans only.

Robert Duncan, reporting on student loans, stated that loans have increased this semester. The Alumni Association has money available for students who need money for education.

Buckingham reported that ASCO (Association of State College Organizations)—including students, trustees, alumni, presidents, and faculty—seems nearly dead due to some of the groups going their own ways.

ASCO was conceived by the State Council of Alumni Associations of the thirteen state colleges and university, but the State Alumni Council itself now is asking whether ASCO is operating properly. Board president Millard Ludwig said that a State Council meeting had not been held since September.

The committee on revision of some parts of the constitution reported on the plan to increase the Alumni Board of Directors to 21 members (from the present 15). The question arose about this taking effect as of Alumni Day, and it was decided to seek legal counsel on this question.

An Outstanding year in winter sports

Bloomsburg State experienced one of the finest winter sports seasons in the history of the college.

Wrestling

One of the greatest achievements of a BSC athlete was realized over the March 16 weekend at Ames, Iowa when Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock captured the NCAA University Division 177 lb. wrestling title and was named "Outstanding Wrestler" for the championship. Hitchcock, along with his teammate Ron Sheehan (167 lbs.), won the right to participate at Ames by winning the NCAA Division II championships at Fullerton, California earlier in March where he was named "Outstanding Wrestler." Hitchcock finished the regular dual season with a 14-0-2 record and was 34-2-2 overall, including 24 falls. His college career record is 84-7-2. Last August he won a silver medal in the World University Games in Moscow and early in December captured a first place in the U. S. Coast Guard Tournament.

Hitchcock, who plans to teach and coach while working towards his master's degree following graduation in May, will also try for participation in the 1976 summer Olympics in Montreal. Hitchcock was seen on ABC's television Wide World of Sports in early April when the NCAA winners were televised. Hitchcock was interviewed by sportscaster Jim McKay.

Although Sheehan was eliminated in the first round at Iowa State, he too became the college's first NCAA champion by winning in the Division II competition at Fullerton. Sheehan completed the regular season with a 17-1-1 record and overall was 37-2-1 for the season, which includes 18 falls. He also won his weight division in the U. S. Coast Guard tournament.

The Huskies finished the regular season with a 16-3 record, winning the U. S. Coast Guard Tourney, placing fifth in the East Stroudsburg Open, third in the Pennsylvania Conference, fifth in the NCAA College Division II Championship, and 15th in the NCAA University Division Championships. The final college rating of NCAA Division II in Amateur Wrestling News had Bloomsburg in fourth place, and in the final eastern poll, the Huskies were sixth.

Basketball

The BSC cagers climaxed their outstanding season by the college's first participating in the NCAA college division finals at Evansville, Indiana. The Huskies had a 22-6 overall season which was the most wins ever recorded by BSC cage teams.

They won their first NCAA Mid-East Regional title, earning the right to participate in the eight-team finals at Evansville where they lost a 71-57 decision in the first round to Morgan State, the eventual winner. In Pennsylvania Conference play, the Huskies (11-3) were co-champions of the eastern division which they represented for the conference title, losing to Indiana 79-69.

Other BSC team records set for the season were: most points (2125); most rebounds (1252); most field goals (886); most field goals attempted (1838); most assists (605); least fields goals by an opponent in one game (14 - Lock Haven); least free throws by an opponent (2 - Denison).

The following individual BSC records were set by 6' 8" John Willis, Carbondale: most career points (1467); most season points (565); most single game points (48); most field goals attempted in one game (28); most career field goals attempted in one game (28); most career field goals scored (598); highest career field goal percentage (54.4); consecutive games started (74). One other individual record set by 6' 5" Jerry Radocha, New Cumberland, was most points by a freshman (282).

Several players received individual honors during the season. Willis was named Most Valuable Player in the Indiana Christmas Tree Tournament and the NCAA Mid-Regional Tournament, a unanimous choice for First Team All-Pennsylvania Conference, leading scorer in the eastern division PC, named six times to the weekly ECAC Division III selections, Honorable Mention All-American of the Associated Press and named to the National Association of Basketball Coaches District All-Star Team. Guard Tony DaRe, Allentown, was named to the All-Tourney Christmas Tree team and second team All-Conference. DaRe also finished ninth among BSC's all-time scorers with 658 points. Guard Joe Kempinski, Philadelphia, was also named to the All-Tourney Christmas Tree team and Radocha was picked on the All-Tourney team at the Roanoke Classic.

Coach Charles Chronister, who was assisted by Burt Reese and Dr. Mike Herbert, posted his third consecutive winning season and now has an overall record of 60-18.

Swimming

Five members of the Bloomsburg State College swimming team went to the 51st annual NCAA College Division Swimming and Diving Championships at Long Beach State University, California, for the first time in the history of the college. More than 500 swimmers, representing 80 Division II and III schools, participated in the championships.

Stu Marvin, a freshman from Oregon, finished 24th in the 50 yd. freestyle event and 16th in the 100 yd. freestyle event. Marvin is this year's Pennsylvania Conference champion in both of the above distances. He also anchored the Huskies' 400 yd. freestyle relay unit in California that consisted of Rich Kozicki, a sophomore from Havertown, Paul Richards, a junior from Wilkes-Barre, and Dave Slade, a freshman from Lancaster. The team finished 20th in that event. Jim Campbell, a sophomore from Chalfont, was an alternate. In the 500 yd. freestyle event, Kozicki, who is a Pennsylvania Conference champion, placed 31st out of 54 entries.

The Huskies finished the regular swimming season with a 9-5 record with McLaughlin registering his ninth consecutive winning season. Bloomsburg finished third in the Pennsylvania Conference championships held at Edinboro February 21-23. In that competition, the Huskies set two conference records along with four new BSC team records.

Other Sports

The indoor track team, coached by Ron Phul, posted a 7-4 record before opening the outdoor season at Towson State, March 29. The women's basketball team, under the direction of Miss Joanne McComb, registered the first undefeated season (8-0) in the history of the college. The women's swimming team, coached by Mrs. MaryLou Wagner, in its second year of existence, had a 2-2-1 record.

BILL FOSTER IS NEW HEAD COACH AT DUKE

Bill Foster, former head basketball coach at BSC, 1960-63, is now the new head coach at Duke University.

From Bloomsburg, Foster went to Rutgers University where he had a successful career as head coach before turning the reins over to his star, Dick Lloyd, who recently resigned the position. Foster left Rutgers to direct the cagers at the University of Utah; he turned around the cage fortunes of the Utes, and led them to the finals of the National Invitational Tournament in New York this year. He is expected to help the Blue Devils of Duke, who participate in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference; that conference includes North Carolina State, the number one team in the country, and Maryland, who ranked number four most of the time.

In addition, Foster has been elected first vice president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches. At Bloomsburg, he compiled an overall three-year record of 45 wins against 11 losses. The Huskies placed second in the eastern division of the Pennsylvania Conference, during his three years at BSC.

IRELAND IS SUBJECT OF SUMMER COURSE

During the last six weeks of the 1974 Summer Sessions, the Political Science Department will offer a six credit course on "The Government and Politics of Ireland." Three weeks will be taught at the College and three weeks in Ireland. It will cover the social, historical, religious and political development of Ireland. The course is available for graduate or undergraduate credit. Those interested should contact: James Percy, Department of Political Science, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

Strengthening Your Alumni Association

A PROGRESS REPORT

A plan was announced in the Winter 1973 Alumni Quarterly to strengthen your Association's ability to serve Alumni, the College and its students. With 14,000 known alumni, the Association needs a full time Executive Director and a larger budget. Here is where we stand at publication date in obtaining the funds needed to establish this position and expand the supportive activities of a vigorous Alumni office.

Our goal is $50,000, which should fund the expanded Alumni Association program for at least two years. Our request for support has to date brought in approximately $9,000 over and above Membership contributions for current operations.

This is a gratifying response, but not enough for our needs. To raise the balance needed — more than $40,000 — the Association Board of Directors is therefore planning a special appeal, to take place this Fall.

Please keep these things in mind:

1. We are convinced that the expansion of Association activities is truly needed, and that it will produce important benefits for you and the College.

2. If you have already contributed more than the $5.00 membership fee during the past appeal year, the "surplus" is being credited toward the special fund.

This is not a request for an immediate contribution, although we will gratefully receive your membership check or special gift if you wish to respond now. Primarily, we want you to know where we stand to date, and of our determination to raise this "seed money" for a stronger, more effective Association.

Specific details about our plan to successfully complete this project will interest many of you, we believe, and will be published soon. We'll be counting on your generous help.

Millard C. Ludwig,
President
BSC Alumni Association

The Alumni Association Executive Director will be responsible for:

1. giving prompt attention to your requests for information about
 - a. admissions and placement,
 - b. alumni loans and scholarships,
 - c. new and existing curriculum offerings in continuing education and graduate studies, and
 - d. news and addresses of your classmates and members of the college community.
2. helping organize regional meetings of alumni.
3. representing the association as directed by the board of directors.
4. organizing and directing an annual giving campaign to secure funds for operating expenses and for projects which will aid the College in providing students with a quality education at a reasonable cost.

BILL NAGY SIGNS CONTRACT WITH WFL

Bill Nagy, a defensive tackle with the 1970 Bloomsburg State College football team, signed a contract on Monday, March 11, with the Philadelphia franchise team of the World Football League, according to a New Jersey free lance journalist Guy Sterling, a personal friend of Nagy.

Nagy, who played his BSC football under Coach Jerry Denstorff, was named twice to All-Penna. Conference teams, and received Honorable Mention on the NAIA football team selections in 1970. He was voted the most valuable defensive player by his BSC teammates. In 1971, he was a starting defensive tackle for Coach Ron Waller of the championship Norfolk-Neptune team of the Atlantic Coast League. The other defensive tackle on that same team was Otis Sistrunk, who is now with the Oakland Raiders of the NFL. Also that year, he was named in the top 500 players in the Pro Football Weekly publication.

Following the 1971 season, Nagy had a knee operation from which he has successfully recovered.

The Alumni Association of the Bloomsburg State College will hold a special meeting SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1974, IN CARVER AUDITORIUM, beginning at 9:30 A.M.

The purpose of this meeting will be to expand the Board of Directors from 15 to 21. In this way your Association can be more efficiently served and represented. Action is being taken according to Article XI which states that "Three months' notice of the proposed amendment shall be given by publication in the Alumni Quarterly."

All contributions to the BSC ALUMNI ASSOCIATION are TAX DEDUCTIBLE according to current I.R.S. Regulations. Please make your check payable to: BSC ALUMNI ASSOCIATION, and send to ALUMNI OFFICE, Waller Admin. Bldg., BSC, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815

More than 300 alumni, representing classes that span 70 years, attended the Alumni Day luncheon in the Scranton Commons April 27. Highlights included special recognition for the 50-year reunion class of 1924, presentation of Distinguished Service Awards to Commander Curtis R. English, USN, and Boyd F. Buckingham, and unveiling of portraits of the late Dr. E. H. Nelson and Dr. Marguerite W. Kehr.

At upper left are members of the class of 1924 at tables in the center of the dining room. On the dais, from left, are BSC President James McCormick, Mrs. Harvey Andruss, Mrs. McCormick, Alumni Association President Millard Ludwig, Mrs. Ludwig, and President Emeritus Andruss. At the left of the dais is the portrait of the late Dr. Nelson. A similar portrait of Dr. Kehr was to the right of the dais. Both were painted by Mrs. Eleanor Herre.

The Alumni Association ranks were increased by nearly 1150 as the class of 1974, largest in BSC's history, became members.

Commander English, '56, is a career officer, aviator and educator in the U. S. Navy, serving presently as executive assistant to Chief of Naval Education and Training. His award states that he "Earned admiration and respect through tireless and unselfish devotion to duty and skill in completing military and civilian assignments." The award was presented on behalf of the association by Mr. Buckingham.

Professor Clayton Hinkel made the presentation to Mr. Buckingham, '43, Vice President for Development and Public Relations at BSC. His award states: "A dedicated gentleman who has made outstanding contributions to his Alma Mater, to his profession and to his community."

Commander English, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis A. English, of Montoursville, received a B.S. in Business Education at BSC and a Master of Arts degree in public administration from the University of Oklahoma. He is a graduate of the Naval School of Aviation, the Naval Intelligence School, Navy Department Planning and Management, and Navy Systems Analysis Schools. He has been awarded the United States of America Meritorious Service Medal for outstanding service to the nation and is an acknowledged expert on strategic and critical materials and our national stockpile program. He and his wife Janet and their sons, Curtis III, 16, Gary, 12, and Scott, 5, reside at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida.

Buckingham, a native of York, earned the Master of Science degree at Bucknell University and has completed course work and oral and written examinations for the Doctor's degree at Penn State. He served as an officer and pilot during World War II, and is a leader in civic and community affairs presently serving on the Columbia County Housing Authority and the Bloomsburg Town Planning Commission. He is a deacon and elder in the Presbyterian church and is a 33rd degree Mason. He and his wife, the former Joanna Fice, also class of 1943, reside at 4 Kent Road, Bloomsburg. Their daughter, Mrs. Gail Cloud, is a graduate of Susquehanna University and a social worker in Norristown. Their son, Boyd, Jr., is attending Davidson College in North Carolina.

BSC NEEDS ANSWERS FROM YOU...

The Planning Commission for the College needs help—your help. You are a member of the largest and most important of the clientele groups it serves—the alumni.

As you know from previous issues of the Quarterly, the Planning Commission was established last summer to evaluate what the College has been and is doing, and what it should be doing in the future, to do the best possible job of serving the citizens of the Commonwealth. The Commission was charged with drafting a new concept of missions and objectives for the College—both short and long term—and a summary of their preliminary work was published in the Winter issue of the Quarterly. The Commission has had input from students, faculty, community leaders, trustees, and alumni representatives. Further input from all alumni is needed—it needs your information, attitudes and opinions. Your alma mater is asking for a few minutes of your time, an envelope, and a 10c stamp.

There are three sets of questions here:—demographic information so we can divide the responses into different groups; general attitudes, so we can match up the responses from this group with earlier national surveys; and more specific opinion questions, so we may know even better what the alumni think about the College and its mission and task, where it's been, where it is now, and where it's headed.

Obviously the computer will be used to process the responses from several thousands of alumni, but if you have anything else to tell us, we assure you that your comments will be read by a human being, not a computer. Like the phone company, we're listening.

Needless to say, your cooperation will be greatly appreciated. We're already making guesses about what percentage of return we'll get from approximately 15,000 alumni. We know returns on mail surveys are supposed to be low, but we're dealing with a pretty specialized, select group. So help us come as close to 100% as possible—fill your reply out now and return it to:

Alumni Questionnaire
Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815

You'll notice that we don't ask for your name, so since the replies are anonymous, you'll know that your response will be held in strictest confidence.

When enough of you reply, we'll try to publish some of the more interesting results in subsequent issues of the Quarterly.

Editor's note: The following news contains excerpts taken from a letter written by Arnie Garinger in his "imitable" style.

Bob Cumens and I were classmates at BSC. We began teaching together in the Paoli Area High School System. After two years, Bob moved to East Orange, N. J. with the late Bob Redman, where he began a very successful coaching career in football. I stayed at Paoli, and ultimately became a junior high principal. We had often talked of business ventures, and felt there must be better places to raise families than 'suburbia'. (Bob has 2 children, 14 and 12; I have four whose ages are 14, 12, 11 and 9.)

"We found an old girl scout camp for sale near my original home at Harvey's Lake. We thought about it for two minutes and bought it. I moved back into the house where I grew up, and Bob bought a house two doors away. Bob is Director of Concentrated Employment in Wilkes-Barre, and I am Director of Student Teaching at College Misericordia.

"We converted the camp into a family camping area . . . did every bit of the work ourselves with help from our families. Because of the proximity to Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, the pool, the setting, etc., we did well until Hurricane Agnes washed part of us away. But we started over, bounced back, and had a fine season last summer.

"Both of our families live at the lake all summer; we have no hired help. I guess I'm the oldest lifeguard around.

"About 40 families stay with us all season; the remaining sites are occupied by constantly changing occupants. It is a pleasure to deal with them; they are clean, honest, and self sufficient.

"On Sunday, we fill the recreation hall twice with Protestant and Catholic church services. In general it is a fine place to involve our families in the 'growing up' process. We would be delighted to renew acquaintances with college friends who have also been bitten by the camping bug. Address: Onawandah Family Campground, R. D. 2, Tunkhannock, Pa. 18657

The big guy trotted to center court when his name was announced. He looked up into the stands, gave his parents a big wink and a giant boyish-like grin, and stood confidently awaiting the start of the last home game. Perhaps it was a small thing to some, but it said a lot of things about John Willis as he prepared to lead the basketball Huskies into action.

And if the truth were known, undoubtedly Floyd "Shorty" Hitchcock, the NCAA "Outstanding Wrestler" in both Division II and Major College categories, and Ron Sheehan, winner of his Class in NCAA Division II, provided experiences similar to that described above.

All of these men came to Bloomsburg when there were problems in administration which were affecting athletics. Along with many others, they have helped turn the Husky fortunes around.

Hitchcock (in case the Alumni are not familiar with what has occurred) won the 177 lb. class and was named "Outstanding Wrestler" at Fullerton, California, early in March in the NCAA Division II championship. Then he went to Ames, Iowa and defeated talented Mel Renfro in the NCAA Major College finals as he turned in what coach Roger Sanders called "practically a flawless performance". Again he was the "Outstanding Wrestler".

Sheehan won the 167 pound class at Fullerton, then went to the third round before losing at Ames. He finished second this year in the Pennsylvania State College Conference.

Willis, of course, has been a legendary figure since Charles Chronister took over the basketball reins three years ago. The Huskies have compiled a 60-18 record over this span of time, with Willis breaking at least eight standing records.

And the swimming team of coach Eli McLaughlin was competing in the NCAA events at Long Beach, California as this was written. They have had a good season in facing a tough schedule.

The winter sports season has been one that has boosted the morale of the campus. Certainly it is a fine thing that Bloomsburg State College can provide the calibre of young men like John Willis, Floyd Hitchcock, and Ron Sheehan.

From Mt. Olympus to Athletic Park to Robert H. Redman Stadium. This Fall the Husky gridders will be playing their home games on the campus again, and instead of walking downtown fans will be climbing the hill that once was a golf course.

The football field will be the last of the upper campus sports facilities to be opened for varsity use. During the 1972-73 winter sports season the basketball, swimming and wrestling teams moved into the new E. H. Nelson field house. This spring the track and field team used the Redman field facilities and the baseball team played their home games on the new Danny Litwhiler baseball field.

Top photo overlooks Litwhiler field, with the field house, far left, and the football stadium in background. Bottom photo looks across the football field during track practice, toward the 4,000-seat concrete stadium on the west side of the field. On the far side of the stadium are practice fields which eventually will double as parking areas.

A year has passed since I was installed as the fourteenth president of your alma mater. Undoubtedly, you will be interested in a brief progress report or account of my stewardship to date.

From my perspective, the past year has been characterized by excitement, challenge, constructive endeavor, and people working together to provide new and improved opportunities in higher education, based upon the strengths and traditions of Bloomsburg's 135 years of service.

In mid-May, members of our Planning Commission went to Harrisburg to present the highlights of our Two Year Action Plan for 1974-1976. Our plan had been carefully and conscientiously prepared, and we have since received positive reports from the reviewing committee. In addition our Action Plan proved to be invaluable both in the final preparation of our 1974-75 budget, and in the preliminary preparation of our budget for the 1975-76 fiscal year.

Perhaps the most exciting and rewarding results of our planning effort were the selection of a Director of Nursing to plan for the implementation of a new program in Nursing, expansion of the School of Business, initiation of an Outward Bound program, increased opportunities for citizens interested in Lifelong Learning Experience and continued emphasis on the already existing programs of excellence in Arts and Science, Teacher Education and graduate study. I share with the college community the thrill and pride of seeing our plans become reality. We are encouraged by these rewarding results as we face the task of planning for the period extending from 1976 to 1979.

What about the year which lies ahead?

Because so many of our staff, students, and alumni worked together, we were able to close our admissions in March, 1974 with what seems to be a slight increase in total enrollment.

Our campus residence halls are filled to capacity, and we expect contracts to be awarded this Fall to demolish Old Waller Hall and build on that site a residence hall for 250 students.

We think we have a budget which, with prudent management and accountability, will help us support a good academic program. We are also looking forward to using our new football stadium, beginning September 21, the first time the Husky gridders have played a varsity game on campus since 1962.

Your Alumni Association has embarked on a program to raise funds for expanding its services to all BSC graduates. Some details can be found on other pages of this issue of the Quarterly, and more information will be sent to you individually in October.

We're looking forward to another exciting year at BSC! Why not plan to join us on October 19 to participate in the Homecoming activities, and learn first hand what's happening at Bloomsburg.

We look forward to seeing you then!

Millard C. Ludwig, center, Alumni Association President, discusses plans for the Alumni fund drive with Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, left, B.S.C. President Emeritus and Honorary Chairman of the fund drive and Howard F. Fenstermaker, General Chairman of the drive. Fenstermaker '12, professor emeritus, is former Alumni Association President.

Andruss and Fenstermaker Head 1974-75 Alumni Fund Campaign

Millard C. Ludwig, BSC Alumni Association President, reports that two Distinguished Service Award winners have accepted leadership roles in the 1974-75 Alumni Fund campaign.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, President Emeritus, will serve as Honorary Chairman and Howard F. Fenstermaker, '12, will act as General Chairman. Dr. Andruss was BSC President from 1939 to 1969 and Howard Fenstermaker was President of the Alumni Association from 1962 to 1973.

"Bloomsburg State College has always fielded great teams and we have done it again by pairing the talents of Dr. Andruss and Howard Fenstermaker to lead the Association in reaching our goal of $50,000 during the next 18 months," said Ludwig.

The campaign, to be launched this Fall, will consist of several phases of solicitation. Initially, the "family" will be asked to subscribe their support—this category includes the members of the Board of the Alumni Association, faculty and staff. Following this phase, a Special Gifts Committee will make personal calls on a selected list of Alumni to ask

"We can reach our goal with the help of every member of the Alumni Association," said Fenstermaker, "and I don't mean just dollars but volunteer help too. This is a big job and it will require the cooperation of several hundred individuals to achieve success. Please say yes, when you are asked to work in the campaign organization."

The benefits to each alumnus are very worthwhile and will put the BSC Alumni Association on an equal footing with other comparable colleges. For example, with a full-time Alumni Executive Director you gain: unified coordination of all alumni affairs, easy access to information on admissions, job opportunities, and help with class reunions. Further, your gift dollars will be directed to active gifts of $100 or more. During this period, class representatives will be signing appeal letters and assisting the Alumni office in reaching every member with information by mail. To wrap up the intensive effort next Spring, a series of "telethons" are planned in areas where there are high concentrations of BSC Alumni. Activities and programs not funded by state money such as—specialized learning equipment, an annual lecture series, special events and the expansion of our successful loan fund.

A program of this magnitude requires "stretch" giving. Your generous subscription may be paid in installments over the next year and a half, to enable you to consider a gift in the range suggested below.

| | Size of Gift | 3 Payments of |
|--------------------|--------------|---------------|
| Golden Circle | $1,000 | $333 |
| Maroon Circle | 600 | 200 |
| BSC Club | 300 | 100 |
| Century Associates | 100 | 33 |
| Sponsor | 60 | 20 |
| Supporting Member | 30 | 10 |

Your annual memberships dues ($5) are included in your gift, which is tax deductible, of course.

More information on how to make a gift, etc., will be mailed soon, but we urge that you plan now to include BSC Alumni Association in your philanthropic budget during 1974-75.

SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of all members of the Alumni Association will be held in Carver Auditorium at 9:30 a. m. on Saturday, October 19, 1974 (Homecoming day) to vote on an amendment to the constitution to increase the number of the Board of Directors from fifteen to twenty-one.

The football game will be broadcast over WHLM (550), beginning at 1:30 p. m.

ON THE COVER

An airview of the new athletic facilities on the upper campus—the Robert H. Redman Stadium, and Danny Litwhiler baseball field, and the E. H. Nelson field-house—appears on our front cover.

Nancy L. Schnuer, a native of Milford, Delaware, has been appointed Assistant Attorney General, Department of Justice, to serve as Regional Counsel to the State College Presidents in the Northeast Region of Pennsylvania, which includes Bloomsburg, Mansfield, Lock Haven, and East Stroudsburg. Attorney Schnuer began her new assignment on August 21, 1974 and has her regional office on the Bloomsburg State College campus in Carver Hall.

Ms. Schnuer received her elementary education in the schools of East Greenbush, New York, attended secondary schools in Lunenburg, Mass., and is a graduate of the Howard School for Girls, West Bridgewater, Mass.

Her Bachelor of Science degree in Political Science and Economics was received from The American University, Washington, D. C. in 1971, and this year she was awarded her Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from Dickinson School of Law.

Attorney Schnuer has served as a legal assistant in the Department of Education of Pennsylvania, working on the Public School Code Project, and was also associated for a period of two years with Legal Services, Inc., Carlisle, Pa. She holds membership in the Law Student Division, American Bar Association; American Civil Liberties Union; and League of Women Voters.

DAVIS IS AWARDED DOCTOR'S DEGREE

Frank S. Davis, Director of Computer Services at Bloomsburg State College, was awarded his Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Pittsburgh on Saturday, April 28. The title of his dissertation was, "Educational Application of Queueing Theory."

A native of Harrisburg, Dr. Davis was educated in the schools of that community and joined the BSC faculty in 1966 as an instructor in Business Education. He requested and was granted a leave of absence for the 1968-69 college year to pursue graduate study towards his doctorate at the University of Pittsburgh where he served as a graduate assistant. He received his Master of Education degree in 1968 from Shippensburg State College where he had previously earned the Bachelor of Science degree. He returned to Bloomsburg in September, 1969 as Director of Computer Services. The Computer Services Center at the college has shown a steady growth under his direction. Prior to his initial appointment at Bloomsburg, he was a teacher in the Allentown School District.

Dr. Davis is married to the former Sandra L. Weil of Harrisburg. The Davises have two children: Jeffrey, age 8, and Suzanne, age 4.

24 LETTERMEN BACK FOR 1974 GRID TEAM

Coach Bill Sproule has 24 lettermen returning, along with some 30 other candidates, from which to mold his 1974 team.

Lost from last year's squad are 12 starters and three other seniors that saw considerable action. Included in the loss of players is the entire starting backfield. Sproule and his assistants plan on a number of offensive changes, including a much-improved passing game. Returning quarterback Stan Gurecki, will be challenged for the number one signal calling position by Ken Haynie and Gene Markoski.

The BSC defensive unit came on strong towards the end of the season last year, and Sproule feels that continued improvement is needed on defense in order for the Huskies to win consistently. Fortunately, many of the young players picked up valuable experience last year. Two main problem areas will be the interior offensive line and finding a big, tough fullback to replace George Gruber and John James. Two fine wide receivers, Joe Courter and converted quarterback Gerald Hoban, will help make the deep pass a threat.

Other outstanding performers should be Charles Bender, defensive back, Linc Welles, defensive back and punter, Dave Kelley, offensive tackle, and Gene Rejent, defensive end. Tri-captains are Bender, Hoban and Rejent.

Sproule states, "We have a lot of hard work to do, but we are going to surprise a lot of people. Our players have a great competitive nature, and we have better depth in most positions, so we're looking forward to a good year."

HILGAR AWARDED DEGREE AT PITT

Norman L. Hilgar, a member of the Bloomsburg State College faculty since 1956, was awarded the Doctor of Education degree from the University of Pittsburgh on June 4 of this year.

Dr. Hilgar's dissertation "Perceptions of Businessmen and College Professors as They Look at the First Year Accounting Course: A Comparative Analysis" dealt with the opinions of business specialists who use and interpret the information which is commonly provided by accountants. The study resulted in a rank order listing of the traditional accounting topics which these business specialists consider most important in the undergraduate training of management students.

CREASY RECEIVES DOCTOR'S DEGREE

James B. Creasy, a member of the faculty at Bloomsburg State College since 1960, received his Doctor of Education degree from the Pennsylvania State University on June 1, 1974.

His dissertation entitled, "A Descriptive Analysis of the Full-Time Teaching Faculty in Pennsylvania's Colleges and Universities," was a study including the personal, demographic, and professional characteristics of 21,228 faculty members in 118 colleges and universities. The study was arranged around six crucial issues presently facing higher education including tenure, faculty mix by academic rank, workload, age, inbreeding, and discrimination. The findings of this study will be published sometime in June in monograph form by The Center for the Study of Higher Education at The Pennsylvania State University.

During his tenure at Bloomsburg Professor Creasy has served in a number of administrative and instructional capacities including Assistant to the President under Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, Director of Summer Sessions, Director of Continuing Education, and he is presently an Associate Professor of Business. He taught in Williamsport Senior High School and Bucknell University.

Professor Creasy is married to the former Mary M. Sauers of Kingston. They are the parents of two children: Mark Kilian, age 15; and Moira Ann, age 10.

Director of Nursing, Other Appointments

Dr. Gertrude Flynn, a prominent personality in psychiatric nursing, has been appointed to the new position of Director of the Nursing Program at Bloomsburg State College, according to Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, Dean, School of Professional Studies.

The Bachelor of Science degree in nursing at BSC has been initiated to act as the main support program for other educational endeavors in health care. It is being made possible through the inclusion of new faculty with specialists in health care fields, through the establishment of new courses, through the relationships developed with health agencies, and with the eventual goal of the development of a graduate program in nursing. It is felt that in the physical health care section, nursing has received the greatest attention and has been identified as the training program most needed in the region served by BSC. Extremely beneficial is the close proximity to and the already-established working relationship with the Geisinger Medical Center, which affords excellent opportunity for the development and services of a nursing program. Dr. Flynn's first year will be utilized for planning with the initial students for the program to be admitted in the 1975-76 college year.

A native of Massachusetts, Dr. Flynn received her Registered Nurse degree from Carney Hospital School of Nursing, Boston, Mass., and her Bachelor of Science degree in psychiatric nursing from the University of Rochester. Her Master of Science degree in nursing was earned at the University of Buffalo, and her Doctor of Nursing Science degree from Boston University.

Dr. Flynn has been a visiting professor at the University of Massachusetts Division of Nursing for the past year, where she has been the major advisor of the graduate psychiatric nursing program. For three years prior to that time, she was a professor and clinical nursing chief at University of Rochester School of Nursing where she was in charge of the Bachelor of Science program for psychiatric nursing and was responsible for clinical nursing in the medical center's psychiatric department. From 1954-70, she served on the faculty at the University of New York, Buffalo, where she rose from instructor to full professor, and initiated the Bachelor of Science and Master of Science curricula for psychiatric nursing.

Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, a member of BSC faculty since 1967, has been named Dean of Extended Programs at the college. The new position includes leadership for the programs of Continuing Education, Summer Sessions, International Studies, and Cooperative Education. The office will be the initial contact point for all persons, and organizations in the region that are interested in the development of life-long education.

The new dean brings a wealth of experience to the position. He joined the BSC faculty as an associate professor of education and as a teaching faculty member, being promoted to the rank of full professor in 1972. For the past year, he has served as Acting Director of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions at the college. During the academic year 1972-73, Dr. Wolfe was on leave of absence from Bloomsburg and served as a visiting professor to the School of Education, Gonzaga University, Spokane, Washington.

A 1960 graduate of BSC, Dr. Wolfe has taught in the public schools of Pennsylvania and New Jersey. He earned his master's degree in educational administration at Rutgers University and his doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania. Prior to his employment at Bloomsburg, he was assistant director of student teaching and placement at Trenton State College.

Dr. Wolfe has had several articles published in national publications on middle school education and teaching strategies. He is noted as having extensive experience with competency-based education.

Dr. Wolfe and his wife Kathleen have been residents of Bloomsburg for the past seven years with their two children, Lisa and John.

Dr. Evelyn A. Mayer, who was until recently Assoc. Dean of Students, Longwood College, Farmville, Va., and a former member of the student life staff at Bloomsburg State College, has been named Executive Assistant to the President of BSC. Dr. Mayer was selected from 329 applications following advertising in national publications and journals of professional organizations. The list was narrowed down to six finalists, according to Robert G. Norton, Dean of Student Life and Acting Assistant to the President, who served as Chairman of the Screening Committee.

Dr. Mayer, who began her duties on July 15, brings a wealth of experience to the position, especially in the area of student life. She was appointed an Associate Dean of Student Life at BSC in September, 1971, and served in that capacity for a period of two years. For the past year she had been Associate Dean of Students at Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, where her responsibilities for student affairs administration included counseling and advising students.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg in 1971, Dr. Mayer was an Assistant Dean of Students at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, and previously was an Assistant Dean of Women at Shippensburg State College. Her other professional experience includes serving as a health and physical education teacher at Tussey Mt. Senior High School at Saxton, Pa.; a health and physical education teacher at Cumberland Valley Senior High School at New Kingston, Pa.; and counselor at Susquehanna Township Senior High School at Harrisburg.

A native of Mifflin, Pa., the new executive assistant earned her Bachelor of Science degree in health education at Lock Haven State College, was awarded her Master of Science degree in guidance and counseling from Shippensburg State College, and received her Doctor of Education degree in counselor education from the University of Virginia.

Ms. Judy Konscol, Acting Affirmative Action Officer at BSC, reported that the activities of the Search and Screening Committee reflects compliance with the latest Affirmative Action Plan. "The search committee should also be commended on the fine example they set in reaching affirmative action goals," Ms. Konscol stated in a memorandum to Dean Norton.

Beginning with the fall semester of 1974, the School of Business of Bloomsburg State College will consist of two separate departments. In response to the changing needs of the educational community and in an attempt to further improve opportunities and offerings, the School of Business will, in the future, be made up of a Department of Business Education and a Department of Business Administration.

On May 10, 1974 the School of Business faculty unanimously recommended Professor Willard A. Christian for appointment as Chairman of the Department of Business Education and Professor Robert P. Yori for appointment as Chairman of the Department of Business Administration. Chairmen Christian and Yori will be responsible for supervising and administering the functions of their respective departments and for coordinating all departmental programs, curricula, and activities. Each of the new chairmen will be responsible to and report directly to Dr. Emory W. Rarig, Dean of the School of Business.

Rapid growth of the School of Business had made departmentalization of the School almost mandatory. Currently, the School is made up of slightly more than 1,000 full-time students and 25 full-time faculty members. Undergraduate curricula provide for seven distinct areas of specialization and approximately 175 graduate students are currently active in the program leading to the Master of Education degree.

The undergraduate curricula in Business Education provide for specialization in the areas of Accounting, Secretarial, Business Information Processing, and General Business, while Business Administration students may specialize in Management, Accounting, or Economics. The School of Business is also currently involved with evaluating faculty, library and instructional facilities and needs as the initial steps in implementing a Master of Business Administration program.

In Memoriam

1897—Ruth Williams (Mrs. Robert J. Henry); April 23, 1974. "Her happy memories of her days at Bloomsburg were very much a part of her 94 years," according to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert P. Henry.

1902—Bessie Yeager (Mrs. Davis); February 24, 1974. "She held her alma mater in high esteem," wrote her daughter-in-law, Irene B. Davies.

1905—Irma G. Myers (Mrs. Earl T. Chamberlin); Oct. 27, 1973. Irma taught in the Lehman and Back Mountain school districts for many years and served as a teacher in Wilkes-Barre and New York City prior to her retirement in 1950. She had resided in Lehman, Penna. since 1950, and was an accomplished musician and well known soloist with church choirs in the Wilkes-Barre area. She is survived by her husband, a step-daughter, six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

1910—Charles W. Potter; May 4, 1974

1911—Dr. Clyde B. Myers, Tampa, Florida; May 10, 1974. Clyde was Principal of Berwick High School before 1930. For seventeen years, he was district superintendent in Cayuga County, New York. He served as education officer with the U. S. State Department Foreign Aid Program in Iran, Indonesia, and India for eight years, and was chairman of the education department of Salem College, West Virginia for seven years. He was a veteran of World War I. He is survived by his wife, Louise Agard Myers of Scipio Center, New York; three sons; two daughters; 18 grandchildren, and one great grandchild

Ethel M. Faust (Mrs. Frank W. Hagenbuch); June 3, 1974. Ethel was a teacher for several years earlier in life. She is survived by her son, Frank F. Hagenbuch, a grandson, and a brother Jay Faust of Berwick.

Jennie M. Barklie (Mrs. Small); April, 1974. Jennie taught in Ashley High School for 25 years and in Hazleton High School for ten years. She was active in both church work and gardening. She is survived by a brother and two sisters.

1912—Minnie Fairchild (Mrs. Carl Spragle); March 10, 1974. Minnie is survived by two daughters: Mrs. William (Marion) Shultz of Nescopeck and Mrs. Alec (Elizabeth) McKechnie, Jr., of Camp Hill.

1914—Dr. F. J. Conlan; April 5, 1971. Dr. Conlan earned his M.D. from the University of Penna., and was a member of the American College of Surgeons.

 Margaret A. Myers (Mrs. Frederick Wyant); January 5, 1974.
 1919—Margaret R. Summers (Mrs. Brock); May 11, 1972.
 Miriam Ludwig; May 29, 1974.
 1920—Margaret V. Hower; April 22, 1974. Margaret taught from 1930 to 1956 in Lititz, Pa. from 1956 to 1964 in Harrisburg before she retired. She was active in both church and professional organizations.
 1923—Lillian B. Derr (Mrs. John A. Kline); June 10, 1974. Lillian taught in Greenwood Township and Millville schools and served as principal of the Madison Junior High School. She and her husband celebrated their 46th wedding Anniversary on April 7.
 1924—Mrs. Edna D. Williams; June 17, 1924.

Two-Year Action Plan is Blueprint for B.S.C. Future

During the past year nearly the entire campus family of students, faculty, administration and staff personnel as well as alumni and community representatives participated in the preparation of a Two-Year Action Plan for Bloomsburg State College. The plan, a road map into the future for B.S.C., proposes refinement of traditional curricula and development of new programs to meet the changing educational needs of a large, diverse student body and a rapidly changing society.

The document is a working blueprint for 1974-1976. Some of the proposed changes are being implemented this year. Two departments have been created in the School of Business; a Director of Nursing has been appointed to plan and prepare for enrollment of students in the Nursing curriculum in September, 1975; and the faculty in the Departments of Special Education, Communication Disorders, Psychology and Sociology have been strengthened.

The summary that follows is an abstract of the major ideas in the action plan.

MISSION I: Liberal Studies

In general, instruction offered by the seventeen academic departments of the School of Arts and Sciences, whether applied by the student to his required effort in general education, to an advanced major study for a B.A. degree or to an area concentration or qualification for the various B.S. degrees and programs of the college, is interpreted in this report to be training in Liberal Education.

Under this interpretation, at present, 75% of the instruction in the college and 67.2% of the efforts of the faculty are devoted to Liberal Education. Whatever plans are adopted in the future, this proportion of education effort required of the academic departments will very likely remain approximately the same.

The primary goal of Liberal Education is to guide all the students of the college along the path towards rational self-determination, and to enable them to develop basic skills in the arts of thinking, reading and oral and written expression. The second purpose is to provide specialized training to those students preparing for professional courses in medicine, law, the ministry, the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences.

Although the general purposes of the liberal arts program will remain the same in the next five years, specific adjustments will be made in various categories of instruction offered by the college because of several relevant changes in the needs of the students and the region served by the college. Among these changes are an increased need for diverse study programs, a reduced demand for primary and secondary school teachers, an increased need for educated workers in social services, more leisure time in the general population, a greatly increased participation by minority groups and women in the general affairs of society, an increased need to respond to conditions produced by the recent accelerated growth of knowledge, and the rapidly increased rate of obsolescence in many occupations owing to technological and social change.

In order to implement its continuing purposes more effectively than it has in the past, and in order to accommodate the foregoing changes in educational needs in the liberal arts, the college proposes to encourage the expansion of faculty concern about problems related to the students' facility in oral and written communications, to increase the emphasis in the liberal arts on the interrelated nature of the branches of knowledge taught in present courses of the various academic departments, and with these interrelationships in mind — to develop projects in several broad areas requiring interdisciplinary studies.

More specifically, these course projects or programs would involve such diverse activities as Environmental Science, Health Care, integration of the library and computer science with other disciplines, establishing studies leading to positions in the governmental services and administration, expanding pre-professional programs, integrating quantitative methods with studies in the natural and social sciences together with those in humanities, extending support for the Center for Economic Education through new course alignments, integration of the study of foreign languages with other disciplines, setting up programs in Human Sciences, establishing an interdisciplinary major in Computer Sciences, implementing an A.B.A. Program in Social Administration and Rural-Urban Affairs, organizing a Bachelor of Social Work program in Social Welfare, and developing the Outward Bound program.

Further proposals would call for expanding Bloomsburg's cooperation with other educational, medical, state-institutional and information-collecting and retrieving institutions in the College's area of influence; and for extending the services of the College to a larger proportion of the citizens of the Commonwealth, including disadvantaged and minority groups, adults beyond the age of 18-22 years, and part-time students of all ages.

To meet the needs of this redirection of effort and expansion of influence, the College's programs in liberal studies will require a moderate increase in financial support by the Commonwealth in the 1974-1975 academic year, and a further projected cumulative increase in each succeeding year for at least five years. Wherever possible, the College will seek grants and gifts to support its new expanded efforts in this area.

If the College gains the required support and proceeds to develop its liberal studies programs along the general lines herein described, it will more effectively serve the Commonwealth and the community toward which its energies are directed.

MISSION II: Teacher Education

Most of the faculty of this College is committed to some degree to the instruction of students in teacher education. Even with an impending reduction in the number of teacher students, this effort will continue, for the education of a teacher involves not only preparation of a professional nature, but it also includes all of the spheres of recognized knowledge inherent in a liberal education.

In the immediate future a decrease in the 18-22 year-old group of undergraduate students enrolled in teacher education in programs is anticipated, except in the areas of Communication Disorders and Special Education. Despite this decline, it is possible that associated staffing levels will not be reduced. Rather, they might be redirected toward (1) reducing excessive class size and overload; (2) supporting graduate programs at a level more nearly in harmony with demand; (3) providing in-service education for practicing teachers; (4) developing new undergraduate programs in Early Childhood education, Reading, and Environmental Education; and (5) developing training programs for para-professionals.

Although the college's Reading Clinic sponsors primarily a graduate program, modest expansion in its facilities and personnel is projected in order to (1) accommodate the demands of an increasing number of graduate students; (2) make clinical practice a critical part of the experience of undergraduates in teacher education and (3) provide developmental (remedial) programs for all undergraduate students in need in this area.

A clear commitment to Competency-based Teacher Education is part of this mission, with definite steps already taken to move all programs from a time/credit base to a performance/credit base. The implications in this commitment include greater faculty and space flexibility. A natural outcome is the need for an Experimental Learning Center to house faculty, clinics, and other facilities for a transient student population of all ages in order to support research and experimentation toward a better understanding of the teaching-learning processes. The demand for this facility is now considered urgent.

While each department within the School of Professional Studies has emphasized the need for the ultimate construction of the Experimental Learning Center, each of them also has some specific requirements for the period, 1974-76. The Department of Elementary Education is hampered by both advisement and class-size overloads in graduate courses. The need for an off-campus property to attain the goals of the environmental education program is a concern of those in both Elementary and Secondary Education. Additional faculty members should be added to the departments of Special Education and Communication Disorders.

MISSION III: Studies in Business

Although there appear to be a number of opportunities for area students to obtain a Bachelor's degree in Business Administration in regional private colleges, high tuition costs and a high degree of selectivity in admissions at certain colleges to not provide a suitable educational alternative. Despite the fact that educational opportunities abound in and around Lehigh, Northampton, Berks, Bucks, Montgomery, Delaware and Chester counties, 40% of students enrolled in the Business Administration program at Bloomsburg come from these counties. As the only state-owned college in Northeastern Pennsylvania with a Business Administration program, Bloomsburg will continue to attract those for whom enrollment in a private or even state-related institution is not an acceptable or viable alternative.

The need for college-prepared personnel to fill positions in management and accounting and in other business-related occupations has been expanding and is expected to continue over the next decade, according to both federal and state estimates. On the other hand, the demand for teachers is expected to increase only slightly in the same time period. Bloomsburg State College, with its tradition of excellence in business education, has responded to these demands and will continue to do so even more vigorously in the future.

While continuing to maintain and improve its business education program, the School of Business at the College can be expected to direct the major portion of its efforts and the bulk of its resources to the further development of programs in business administration-related areas and in an attempt to serve better a number of constituencies. In this regard, a number of tasks have been proposed according to the following time schedule:

1. Expand and strengthen the undergraduate program in Business Administration, including the expansion of the number of majors and courses offered.
2. Develop and improve techniques and methods of instruction, including the further development of internship programs.
3. Maintain a strong program in Business Education at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.
4. Expand continuing education programs in business administration and business education to include short courses, seminars, conferences, and other efforts.
5. Plan for the development and implementation of a Masters of Business Administration degree.
6. Improve student services and expand programs in this regard.
7. Expand and strengthen learning resource materials, equipment and facilities.
8. Initiate departmentalization of the School of Business.
9. Develop a research capability for the students, faculty, and the community by establishing a Research Center to be jointly operated with the Department of Economics.

Implications:

Implications of the above tasks are outlined below. These implications are discussed in detail in the text of the two-year action plan.

1974-1976:

1. Increase the number of undergraduate majors in business administration from three to six.
2. Increase the number of undergraduate course offerings in business administration by at least 15.
3. Increase student enrollment in business administration by Semester I, 1976-77 to approximately 900. Enrollment in business education will remain stabilized.
4. Add 3.75 faculty members in business and .25 faculty members in economics.
5. Increase expenditures to accommodate anticipated growth.
6. Add one secretary to the staff of the School of Business.
7. Add computer terminals and library materials.
8. Increase the number of departments from zero to two in the School of Business.

MISSION IV: Graduate Studies and Research

The first graduate curriculum leading to the professional degree, Master of Education, was established in 1960. Programs for this correspond to areas of specialization in teacher education. More recently the College has established programs leading to the academic degrees of Master of Arts and Master of Science in three disciplines, and the Secretary of Education has authorized the State Colleges to prepare programs leading to these degrees in any other disciplines in which there have existed specializations for the Master of Education degree. Programs are being prepared to implement this authorization.

The number of Master's degrees conferred increased from 12 in 1963 to 157 in 1973. These figures, in addition to the opportunities made available to the College through state encouragement promise substantial future growth in graduate studies at Bloomsburg.

Among programs considered for implementation during the period 1974-76 is an interdisciplinary plan to lead to the professional degree of Master of Public Administration (M.P.A.). This program will use existing courses offered by the departments of Political Science, Sociology, Economics, and by the School of Business.

The School of Business has proposed the establishment of a program leading to the professional degree of Master of Business Administration (M.B.A.) during this same period. To support that project, additional staff will be needed. During the period 1976-79 the Economics Department is planning a program in Business Economics leading to the Master of Science degree. The plan will not duplicate that for the M.B.A. although instructional resources from both units will be interchanged partially to support both programs. The Department of Economics is also planning a Master of Arts program to be initiated in 1974-76.

The Department of Educational Studies and Services presently offers graduate courses in Guidance and Counseling (taken chiefly by master's degree candidates in Elementary Education), which need only a few supplementary courses and modest clinical facilities in order to provide a Master of Education concentration in Guidance and Counseling that could lead to certification. This is planned for the period 1974-76.

All such specific programs planned for the 1974-76 and 1976-79 planning periods will necessarily be guided and to some extent shaped by certain general qualitative considerations. Efforts will continue to clarify the purposes of professional programs and academic programs, and the distinction between the two must be understood and accepted by the academic community. This process ought to sharpen the sense of the nature and direction of the college mission in graduate studies. The present advisement system needs reorganizing. Concentrations for the M.Ed. degree will likely be restructured in order to better suit the purposes of a professional program.

The principal of interdisciplinary Master's degree programs, such as those named above, will be explored and extended further into both professional and academic Master's degree programs. The College is now instituting independent study and seminar courses designed for cooperation with in-service programs in public schools and intermediate units. Finally, it is intended that research be encouraged through the establishment of a budget (initial annual allocation to approximate $5000) for disbursement by the School of Graduate Studies. This fund would be used initially to provide modest grants to partially support faculty research projects.

Since graduate programs and their courses are not financed by budget allocations to the School of Graduate Studies but by the budgets of the schools and departments which offer the courses, most of the costs of graduate programs over the next two years is to be found in the estimates for those departments included in Missions I, II, and III. In addition, the College is considering the following internal appointments:

a half-time assistant to coordinate the advisement in elementary concentration for the Master of Education degree—a half-time specialist in elementary education to handle independent and seminar course experiences involving the coordination of in-service work with these courses—the addition of at least one specialist in reading for the reading concentration.

MISSIONS V, VI, VII: Public Service

Several new developments have changed the concept of continuing education programs at the College. Under the leadership of a newly appointed Dean of College Extended Programs, the following objectives for 1974-75 toward life-long learning experiences will seek (a) to provide opportunities for self-development through college classes at nominal cost; (b) to provide opportunities for obtaining information and for developing specific skills in varied time-length non-credit courses; (c) to provide a complete and extensive program of evening division courses by increasing the number of offerings based on student needs; (d) to increase the availability of life-long learning experiences through the establishment of off-campus instruction locations, and e) to provide the college service area with a program of life-long recreational and sports activities.

During the 1975-76 academic year the Office of College Extended Programs also plans to establish a day-area center for the clients of the college community and to offer college-level courses for the residents of the Dallas Correctional Institution within and outside that institution.

The College will sharpen its sensitivity to community needs and formalize its delivery of public services through a monitoring system, it will strengthen the College service to the regional public schools by establishing a school study council, it will promote cooperation between the college and regional businesses and industries through an Institute for Administrative Services, and it will provide maximum public service by opening the College's physical plant to the public.

The College must commit its resources to the people, organizations, and institutions in the areas connected with it by virtue of traditions, transportation networks, geographical proximity, and special service relations. The development of sub-baccalaureate degree programs is in accord with the Normal School tradition of the College.

With emphasis on assessment of needs, the College plans to form a consortium with the regional vocational-technical high schools for the purpose of analyzing the need for associate degree-level programs in the technical areas, and to develop and execute a needs-assessment of the service region in light of the occupational demands and vocational perceptions of individuals.

This commitment to public service envisions the college as a resource center through which individuals of all ages and socio-economic groupings may pursue learning for their own enrichment, stimulation and professional advancement.

MISSION VIII: Health Care Delivery

A primary mission of the college is to establish and conduct a major educational program in physical and mental health care to meet the needs of the region and of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The impetus for mental health care delivery came with the passage of the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Act of 1966, which included a redefinition of discharge criteria from institutions so that more residents are now returned to their respective communities. The College's programs which provide the foundation for additional activities in physical health care now exist in communication disorders, public school nursing, medical technology, and the pre-professional curricula.

Bloomsburg's location makes it ideally suited for offering health-oriented programs in affiliation with other nearby institutions. Personnel at Geisinger Medical Center, only several miles away, have joined with the College in many health-care endeavors. In addition, the office of a four-county MH/MR program is located less than 10 miles from Bloomsburg.

In connection with the mission development, a feasibility study was conducted to determine which programs are most needed in the region served by the college. Special consideration was given to those which provided therapeutic, preventive, convalescent or custodial services.

New efforts recommended for initiation during the period 1974-76 include baccalaureate programs in nursing and mental health, and associate degree programs in respiratory (inhalation) therapy, medical secretary technology, and opticianry. Those programs to be initiated within the five-year period 1974-1979 are a baccalaureate degree curriculum in health services management and an associate degree sequence in mental health technology. All of the programs share five features: (1) they are needed in the region, (2) they are attractive to students with human service orientation, (3) they offer an expanding job market, (4) they necessitate a broad interdisciplinary approach, and (5) they can be initiated in affiliation with local health facilities.

Bachelor of Science in Nursing: It is important to have a strong, attractive baccalaureate program to serve as the main support for other educational endeavors in health care. The B.S.N. curriculum is such a program; it is a pivotal program from which other paramedical curricula can be generated through the establishment of new courses, through relationships developed with health care agencies, through the inclusion of new faculty with specialties in health care fields, and perhaps through the eventual development of a graduate program in nursing. Of all the new programs described in physical health care, nursing has been identified as the program most needed in the region served by the College.

Bachelor of Science in Mental Health: The baccalaureate curriculum in mental health will place emphases on institutional MH, industrial MH, and MH management. Although it is suggested that this program be the initial one developed, it is viewed as becoming part of a continuum in the training of professionals at a number of academic levels including, within a five-year period, a sub-baccalaureate and master's degrees.

The resources needed for each program accompany the program descriptions. However, it is apparent that in order to support and maintain the programs proposed in the areas of physical and mental health delivery systems, new facilities must be acquired. In large part, the success of this new organizational unit (Health Sciences) will depend upon classroom and laboratory availability, equipment procurement and office space. The long-range support of these programs calls for a new building to house the health sciences, the location of which will be dictated by the nature of the programs themselves.

Bloomsburg State College may well become the only educational institution in Pennsylvania offering some of the programs outlined above, those in opticianry and mental health care fall in this category. It is the demand for qualified professionals coupled with the retraining demand from state institutions that will make these programs successful.

By offering the programs described here, the College will be able to fulfill its mission in two ways: it will be training personnel in specialized occupations that relate to the needs of the region and Commonwealth, and it will be making available to students career opportunities in fields not already filled with well-trained personnel.

MISSION IX: The College Community Mission IX is comprised of six separate sections, each devoted to various aspects of student life and concerned with student activities and programs outside the formal classroom experience.

Organizing for Counseling and Advisement

Section A states the need for an increased number of academic opportunities for both degree and non-degree students — as well as an increased number of professional and life-time options available to participants in the College's programs. As the educational opportunities at the College increase in number and complexity, with more mature students enrolling in less structured programs, it will be essential that the present programs of recruitment, counseling, advisement, placement, and career reorientation be further improved to fulfill the College's academic goals and to meet the changing needs of the growing student body.

Academic Opportunities Beyond the Classroom

Section B recommends procedures to expand the College's present programs of internships, cooperative education, study leaves, and work study. These various educational opportunities are planned to provide students with the chance to test their educational goals and academic expertise in a work situation. There has been a recent change in students' needs and values. This is evidenced by a shift in enrollments from highly theoretical and abstract academic fields to those related directly to employment opportunities. Students are looking for experiences which will afford them more marketable skills. This section of Mission IX reviews past or existing programs in the areas of cooperative education, internships, study leaves, and work study. These out-of-class work programs are a valuable and legitimate part of the College's educational mission. There are decided benefits to be gained from these programs for the individual participants, for the employers, for the people of this region.

Counseling and Guidance Services for Students

Section C provides recommendations on many aspects of student life outside the formal classroom experience, including academic advisement, career development, counseling services, and housing facilities. The importance of college learning experiences which occur outside the formal classroom has been apparent to educators for many years. The extent to which out-of-class activities reinforce, complement, or obstruct formal classroom instruction may well be the determinant of an institution's success in meeting its stated educational objectives.

Although the programs dealt with in this section are presently considered to be outside the formal curriculum of the College, all relate to the curriculum in some respect. Some are introductory programs which provide information about the curriculum, some are educational programs complementing the curriculum, others are enabling services which help the student to take advantage of the curriculum offerings of the College and still others are designed to assist students in the application of their learning experience within a particular curriculum.

Specific resources presently existing are: Residence Hall Programs, Orientation Programs, Kehr Union Program Board and its activities, Human Relations Training, Career Development Course, Academic Advisement Program, Study Skills Laboratory, Sexuality Program, Student Services (Health Services, Student Bank, Post Office, etc.), Counseling Services, Personal Growth Experience, Financial Aid Counseling, and programs for commuting students.

If Bloomsburg State College is to emphasize the education of the total individual, it will be increasingly necessary to examine the traditional curriculum and its relevancy and to examine those areas outside the traditional curriculum with a view toward their possible inclusion. More specific attention must be given to the social, emotional, and less formal intellectual growth of young people.

The view that students, faculty, administration, and staff are involved in the educational process both as teachers and as learners should be promoted. If students are to be totally educated, the College must provide both information and experiences which will allow and promote growth in all aspects of life.

Cultural Affairs

Section D of Mission IX proposes recommendations and procedures to continue the development of the college as a cultural center for the region. Interest in enlarging the curriculum and enriching student and community life through the arts has always been considered one of the important functions of Bloomsburg State College. The cultural program of the College has its basis in the various academic departments: Music, English, Art, and Speech and Theatre. Most of the cultural climate of the College and the community is established through them. Cultural events outside the classroom and the departments, i.e., the Artist and Lecture Series, are planned by the Arts Council and administered by the Director of Cultural Affairs.

So that the arts program at the College may become increasingly more vital to students, faculty, and the people of the surrounding area, more promotion of the arts and more effort to involve and to educate all these people are needed. Bloomsburg State College needs to become a cultural center for our area.

In order to develop the College as a cultural center, the arts programs must be developed beyond the Artist and Lecture Series concept. A full-time Coordinator of Special Events must be employed to coordinate the cultural events on campus and work to achieve an expanding outreach program into neighboring regions. Further use and renovation of existing facilities, both on campus and in the area, will aid the arts program. As will a College-community organization for the arts and additional funding from various sources.

Harvey A. Andruss Library/Learning Resources Center

Section E recommends proposals for continuing the development of the Harvey A. Andruss Library/Learning Resources Center.

Presently, the Andruss Library has 196,282 cataloged books and bound periodicals, plus over 400,000 microfiche, microcards, and microfiche) available to its users. In addition, the Learning Resources Center owns 5,684 films and filmstrips and 1,136 recording cassettes, tapes, and discs. So that the Andruss Library/Learning Resources Center can continue to fulfill its mission of supporting present and planned instructional programs of the College, adequate financing must be provided for developing its collection of books, microforms, and audio-visual materials; for introducing new service technology; and for modifying the physical plant as needed.

With the notable exception of the present fiscal year, the Library/Learning Resources Center has for a number of years been developing its collections and expanding its services. It must resume such development without further delay. A renewed commitment to building collections of print and non-print materials must be made, needed personnel must be employed, and modifications to the facility must be made. Central to any institution of higher learning is its library/learning resources center; other missions of the institution cannot be fulfilled without the support of an adequate library/learning resources center operated by sufficient qualified personnel.

Educational Opportunities for Members of Minority Groups and Women

Section F of Mission IX recommends that the College should continue and increase its efforts to provide educational opportunities for qualified members of minority groups and women.

The College, mindful of its responsibilities to increase the number of minority students enrolled at this state institution, has undertaken steps to accomplish this duty. A Director of Educational Opportunity Programs has been employed and he and his staff, with the assistance of the College's Affirmative Action Officer, will administer the College-sponsored program of increased educational opportunities for members of minority groups and for women.

Equal Employment and Educational Opportunity Affirmative Action Plan

Bloomsburg State College, although located in a rural setting, is not an isolated segment of society but part of the world environment. In its affirmative action thrust, the College accepts the academic, societal and employment challenges to maintain equal opportunity for all qualified persons who participate in and serve its educational processes.

While the responsibility for formulating and implementing the College's Affirmative Action Plan centers in the Office of the President and is administered by an officer whom he appoints, an affirmative action commission provides counsel and guidance to ensure an awareness of its provisions and applications by college personnel as well as by outside vendors and contractors.

All contractual parties are required to submit written statements with employee data assuring that female, racial, ethnic, and, in fact, all minority-groups are encouraged as applicants through the contractors' recruiting methods and policies. Equally stringent procedures are built into the recruitment functions in the employment of the staff of the College.

An auditing and reporting system will maintain a current inventory of employees in all categories and levels, from both internal and external employment sources, in order to place inconsistencies into immediate focus.

Qualification standards for testing and selecting personnel must undergo periodic review to keep them as free as possible from race, sex, and all other biases.

Information regarding the affirmative action policies of the College will be disseminated to every known agency, organization and population center through the advertisements of the college and all other means of communication available to it.

The concerns of the College for fairness and equality of opportunity are also carefully extended into the areas of bargaining, promotion, training, and the resolution of grievances. The rights of all minority groups, and of women are clearly stated in and protected by the stipulations of the affirmative action policy.

Specific objectives include (1) extensive announcement of vacancies, (2) clear and precise job descriptions, (3) impartial appraisal of candidates, (4) elimination of illegal discrimination, and (5) the expansion of educational and career development plans.

In its efforts to rectify disproportions

tionate employment, particularly at the higher administrative and faculty levels, the College has established goals for the recruitment of minority group members and women within the limits of the available pool of qualified applicants. The Acting Affirmative Action Officer will conduct periodic briefing sessions with persons in leadership positions at all levels to keep those goals and policies before those who have authority over these matters.

The college will take the initiative in identifying, contacting and informing recruitment sources in order to encourage applicants from minority groups and women. Its recruitment procedure is so precise and direct that in the employment of personnel for administrative, faculty and support positions the provisions of the Affirmative Action Plan must be observed in the interest of absolute fairness to all who may aspire to serve in any of the positions the College has to offer.

The Educational Opportunity Program, established in 1969, assures equal educational opportunity for all so that in recruitment and admission of students there will be no discrimination by race, color, or sex. The applicant should have either completed the basic high school courses or have satisfied supplementary non-traditional criteria. Freshmen in the program may carry a reduced academic load and take two non-credit courses to improve their skills. Financial assistance may also be provided.

The director of the program coordinates it, engages in the recruitment and selection of students, and helps develop appropriate ancillary programs. In order to ensure equity, the Office of the Vice President for Student Life serves as a clearing house for the application of the rules and regulations on residence halls and off-campus housing equally to all students. The same office requires that the Counseling Center staff provide opportunities for development of student potential and that the Placement and Career Development Center be available to all students. The same non-discriminatory practices apply to the Office of Financial Aid and to participation in student activities.

Careful evaluation and monitoring procedures applying to the various aspects of student life will be established and operated by the Office of the Vice President for Student Life. Finally, no discrimination as to race, color, age, or sex will be applied in the recruitment and admission of graduate students.

IT'S A NEW YEAR

Another college year is in progress, and the Alumni Association is fully aware of the responsibilities of this group. In answer to this challenge the Association is in the midst of a program which we hope will provide you with better service and extend to the college some services which had not been possible in previous years.

The Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, now numbering fifteen but hoping to expand to twenty-one with appropriate action at a special Homecoming Day meeting, is a dedicated group with the development of the Alumni Association in mind.

It is the desire of the Board of Directors not only to create the important office of Executive Director of Alumni Affairs and to aid the college in many areas, but to have regional groups of BSC alumni operating so that a more effective organization can result.

Bloomsburg is growing, academically and physically, and the Alumni Association is growing, too. We will appreciate anything you can do to help in this most important endeavor.

Spring, 1975

Within the last decade, the critical issues in higher education have changed dramatically. In the early Sixties, colleges were faced with the problem of overflow enrollments; in the late Sixties, student unrest and allied problems caused the public to question the value and health of our entire higher education system. Now we wonder how higher education will weather the economic storm!

Often it seems as if the "crises" reported daily through our newspapers and other news media are trumped-up half truths. I assure you that the financial crisis in higher education, for both public and private institutions, is a very real one! As Chairperson of the Budget and Fees Committee of the thirteen State Colleges and Indiana University of Pennsylvania, I am constantly reminded through communication with the Secretary's office, consultations with my fellow presidents and colleagues, and dialogues with legislators and other Pennsylvania Department of Education officials that the financial picture isn't good — nor is it going to get any better in the near future. You all know the cause of the concern. Double digit inflation and rising costs in all areas of the educational program have outstripped the funds available from tuition, State and Federal funds, and other sources. In addition, the decrease in the total student population and in the number of students seeking admission has, and will further, curtail income.

The private institutions tell us that they are threatened with extinction. Well, public institutions are threatened too! There is widespread talk that all students, including those in public institutions, must be made to pay more of the educational costs. Talk about extinction! The charge to students of full costs would end public higher education as we know it. We in public higher education rest upon the democratic principle that while learning helps the individual, it also directly benefits society, the government, the economy, and our culture. Thus, we expect society to bear most of the cost of education. Abandoning this principle and requiring students to pay full costs would dramatically reduce our enrollments and would bring an end to the historic tradition of public higher education in America.

To put it bluntly, college administrators, both public and private, are "hard pressed" to balance budgets which are "cut to the bone," much less to have the financial flexibility to add any of the extras which are vital to quality programs. And present indications are that, in the years ahead, there will continue to be a gap between income and expense — unless ways can be found not only to increase gifts and grants, but also to reduce the costs of operating our institutions.

I believe that, in this time of increased gifts and grants and reduced operating costs, there is a direct correlation between increased gifts and grants and reduced operating costs. All colleges and universities must be increasingly accountable for more efficient management; for the full utilization of funds, facilities, and human resources; and for the development of programs and services in keeping with contemporary needs. Only when our educational and financial "houses are in order" are we in a position to begin to solicit funds. We have to face the fact that we do have a product to sell; in order to sell it, we must be able to make it salable. Through good business management, fiscal responsibility, economic administrative operation, and quality programs, our product becomes a positive one and therefore salable. I seriously doubt that any fund drive painted in black and dire predictions ever succeeded. The "give or else" technique simply doesn't work in these times of tight money. We are all, however, encouraged by good reports of what is being done and positive projections of what can be done if funds are available.

Assume then that your alma mater has been able to pull itself together, to put its financial house in order. Your contribution has been solicited and delivered. How will it make a difference? What can your dollars do? There are many ways that private support can be used to enhance the quality of educational progress, to insure that "margin of excellence" which is so desirable. For example:

1. An "Eminent Scholars Program".
2. Scholarships and loans.
3. Campus beautification projects.
4. Recreational and cultural facilities.
5. Better library collections, including rare and valuable editions.
6. Additions to campus art collections.
7. Broader educational opportunities.
8. "Venture Capital" to initiate new and experimental teaching, research, and service projects.
9. "Seed Money" to attract Federal funds and foundation money. Certainly we must admit that one compelling reason for alumni giving is to provide the institution with the important "percent of response" figures. One of the criteria that some foundations use in granting funds is the figure which reveals how well alumni themselves support their alma mater. When alumni show good support, foundation funds may be more likely to be forthcoming.
10. Support of athletic programs.
11. Support for alumni programs.

If you look at each of our fifty states, you will not find any truly great college or university which has been financed entirely by State appropriations. Rather, you will find that all colleges and universities which we associate with excellence receive private support. Legislators traditionally build basically sound public institutions: private bequests, gifts, and grants aid in the addition of the "margin of excellence." Certainly, alumni support will not determine whether the institution will survive, but it will certainly determine the degree of excellence which the institution is able to inject into the programs and facilities in the future.

A recent ad by U. S. Alumni (a combined effort of approximately one hundred colleges and universities to enlist alumni support through national advertising) uses the "pride theme." It says, "It is a good feeling to take pride in your accomplishments, your career, your education. But there comes a time when you can afford to take another kind of pride . . . the pride that comes from "helping". The "percentage of response" criteria is still another important responsibility for alumni giving.

The financial needs of our public institutions of higher education today are acute. They cannot survive in today's economic situation, maintaining past traditions of quality and excellence or projecting positive, worthwhile aspirations for the future on public funds alone. They will have to receive substantial financial support from outside sources, grants, foundations, and especially from the alumni. In addition to your monetary gifts, your friendship and support, and your own personal successes speak well for your alma mater. Essentially, each graduate is a public relations agent! Speak out for Bloomsburg State College and for public higher education! In large measure, the future hope of Bloomsburg State College and all other public institutions like her, rests upon her products of the past — her alumni.

1974-75 FUND

To March 10, '75

Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, '60, Chairman of the 1974-75 Alumni's Fund family division is shown presenting the final report of his Committee's results to Campaign General Chairman Howard F. Fenstermaker, '12, while Alumni Association President, Millard C. Ludwig, '48, looks on. Dr. Wolfe's division made the first solicitations toward the $50,000 objective of the Fund, and raised over $4,000 from members of the BSC faculty and staff. Congratulations on exceeding their goal of $2,500.

1974-75 Alumni Fund Campaign In High Gear

Howard F. Fenstermaker, '12, General Chairman of the 1974-75 Alumni Fund, reports that as of March 10th, 1172 donors have given a total of $37,880.00 to the campaign.

"We are all tremendously encouraged by the early response of alumni to the campaign to raise $50,000 to fund the reorganization of our alumni office for the next two years. With 76% of our goal now subscribed, I am confident that we will achieve success by our target date of April 1975," said Fenstermaker.

Leading off the solicitation was the "Family" team headed by Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, '60, as Chairman. Their assignment was to personally contact members of the faculty and staff for gifts to the fund. As the Quarterly goes to press, Dr. Wolfe reports 107 gifts and subscriptions totaling $4,128. Gifts were received from non-alumni faculty as well as graduates of BSC. We salute them for their willingness to be a part of this program, and to help set the pace for success.

On Homecoming Day, October 19, the Special Gifts Committee had its kick-off meeting under the chairmanship of Charles H. Henrie, '38. The 30-member committee is making personal approaches, seeking gifts of $100 or more to the 1974-75 Fund. The Special Gifts goal is $20,000 and they are well along on their way toward reaching this objective.

Class Representatives have mailed their first appeal letters to classmates and the results are included in the $20,000 total given above. - Gifts range in size from $5 to $1,000 and come from alumni in classes from 1896 through 1974. Initial response totals $25,262.00 donors.

General Chairman Fenstermaker also commented, "The way to assure the success of our effort is to aim for 100% participation by every BSC alumnus. If this were possible we would not only reach our $50,000 goal but go well beyond it. I'm asking everyone to back this appeal with generous financial support."

As a reminder, in case you may have misplaced your letter from your Class Representative, the suggested scale of gifts appears below. Remember that your subscription may be paid in installments through March, 1976.

B. S. C. Undergraduate Chemistry Program Has Society Approval

The American Chemical Society has placed Bloomsburg State College on its select list of colleges and universities whose undergraduate chemistry programs have been approved by the Society.

Approval was granted after an extensive review, covering several years of the B.S.C. Department of Chemistry program by the Committee on Professional Training of the A.C.S. The review included an on-site inspection by Dr. David Hume of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

In announcing the approval B.S.C. President James H. McCormick commended the chemistry department faculty and students for the academic excellence that has won national recognition and approval for the program of chemistry education.

"This recognition, given only to a relatively small number of chemistry programs across the country, is a credit to the excellent chemistry faculty and their commitment to the program," he said. "It is significant to the development of our Health Science program, and certainly is a testimony to the excellence of our chemistry majors. We believe this national recognition of the program is in keeping with our total commitment to quality education at Bloomsburg State College."

Students majoring in chemistry and the department faculty were guests of the College at a luncheon in the Scranton Dining Commons.

"Only approximately 500 of the more than 2,000 four-year-degree-granting institutions in the national are on the approved list," Dr. Norman E. White, acting department chairman, commented in explaining the significance of A.C.S. approval. "It's more than an honor. Students who take chemistry courses in an approved department are assured that their program will be equivalent to that given in any other approved department; that the staff, facilities, library holdings in chemistry, and fiscal support are adequate for the training of chemists on the undergraduate level to enter the profession of chemistry at any starting point—graduate school, industry, teaching or in any of the medical sciences."

"An additional advantage is that students majoring in chemistry will be eligible, upon graduation, for immediate full membership in the A.C.S. Such students will find they can compete on even terms with graduates of any other College or University."

Dr. White, who joined the B.S.C. Physical Science Department in 1965, became chairman of the Department of Chemistry when it was formed in 1969. Dr. Barrett W. Benson, who succeeded Dr. White as chairman is a visiting professor at Dartmouth College while on sabbatical leave for the first semester. Other chemistry faculty members are Rex E. Selk, Dr. Wilbert A. Taebel, Dr. Clyde S. Noble, Dr. Roy D. Pointer, Dr. Lawrence L. Mack and Dr. Margaret M. L. Chu, Dr. Harold H. Lanterman, who retired in 1973, is Professor Emeritus.

"The American Chemical Society's approval of our undergraduate program in Chemistry is an academic distinction of which we can all be proud," Dr. Edson A. Drake, Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, declared. "It attests to the development of Bloomsburg State College as a multi-purpose institution of the arts and sciences. I commend Dr. Benson and his colleagues for their efforts in achieving the recognition of academic excellence that A.C.S. approval denotes. Although institutional support is essential to the success of any academic program, the primary responsibility for such success rests with the faculty."

The Department of Chemistry offers three undergraduate degrees: the Bachelor of Science degree in Education for secondary school teachers, the Bachelor of Arts degree in Arts and Sciences, and the Bachelor of Science degree in Arts and Sciences for the student who desires the ultimate in chemical training. Research is an integral part of the latter degree. A Master of Education degree in Chemistry or in Physical Science is offered in the graduate program. The department has seven laboratories and six offices in Hartline Science Center. Since 1969 the department has acquired more than $100,000 worth of equipment and instruments.

Dr. White invites high school students who contemplate a career in Chemistry to visit the department and discuss their plans with him or any of the faculty members.

TOTAL ENROLLMENT AT ALL-TIME HIGH

Bloomsburg State College has reached an all-time high in its total enrollment of 5,481 students for the first semester of the 1974-75 college year, according to Tom L. Cooper, Dean of Admissions and Records. This total enrollment figure represents a 6.3% increase over last year's record of 5,155 students.

The 5,481 figure is comprised of 4,893 undergraduate students, a 5.2% increase over last fall and 588 graduate students, a 16.9% increase. Full-time undergraduate enrollment is up 2.4% over last year at 4,417 students, while there are 50 full-time graduate students, an increase of 6.4%. Part-time undergraduate students is up at 41.2% at 476 students and part-time graduate students show an 18% increase at 538.

The overall ratio of women over men of 1.4 remains relatively constant over the two-year period.

"At a time when many colleges are experiencing a decline in enrollment the percentage increases in all of BSC's enrollment categories reflects the excellent diversified educational opportunities at BSC," states Cooper.

SLATER REPLACED BY SAGA IN COMMONS

Bloomsburg State college has increased its student meal charge beginning with the second semester of the 1974-75 College year in January, but will defer any increase in its housing fee until the fall semester of the 1975-76 College year, according to Boyd F. Buckingham, Vice President for Administration.

The increase in meal charges became necessary when ARA Food Services, the food contractor for the past 16 years, exercised its option to terminate its contract and request new bidding because of the rising food costs.

The College has been notified by the Department of Education that a resolution calling for an increase in housing fees had been adopted November 21 by the Board of State College and University Directors. The resolution requires college presidents to raise the housing fee at least $36.00, but no more than $72.00, per year. It also stated that the increase could take effect as early as January, 1975 but no later than the opening of the fall semester 1975. The steady rise in charges for utilities and other housing costs was cited as the reason for the increase.

B.S.C. officials decided to wait until the fall semester to make the minimum $36.00 per year increase because they felt that a January, 1975 increase would be too short notice and possibly create financial hardships on many students. The basic room charge will be increased from the present $432.00 to $468.00 for the academic year beginning September, 1975. The basic room charge for the 1975 summer session will not be increased above the current rate of $12.00 per week.

ACADEMIC CALENDAR FOR 1975-76 YEAR

An academic calendar consisting of 15 weeks of classes and a week of final examinations in each semester has been adopted for the 1975-76 college year at Bloomsburg State College according to Dr. Dayton S. Pickett, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Registration for the first semester will take place Tuesday, September 2, with classes beginning the following day, Wednesday, September 3. Classes will end on Wednesday, November 26, prior to the Thanksgiving Day recess and will resume Monday, December 1. The semester will end following the final examination period of Thursday, December 18, through Tuesday, December 23. Mid-year commencement exercises will be held Sunday, December 21.

Registration for the second semester will be held Monday, January 12, with classes to begin the following day, Tuesday, January 13. Spring recess will start at the end of classes Thursday, March 4, and students will return for classes on Tuesday, March 16. The four-day Easter recess period will include Friday, April 16, through Monday, April 19.

The regular school year will end with the conclusion of the final examination period on Saturday, May 15. Commencement exercises will be held the following day, Sunday, May 16.

Student Chapter of Personnel Society Receives Charter, Has 60 Members

A student chapter of the American Society for Personnel Administration at Bloomsburg State College was presented its charter Monday evening, October 21 on campus by Wilson L. Nicoll, President of the National ASPA.

Some sixty B.S.C. students were in attendance at the event, along with twenty members of the sponsoring organization, the Susquehanna Personnel Management Association, as well as BSC faculty members and several national ASPA officers. The student chapter was organized March, 1971 through the efforts of Professor Bob Hutchison and Joseph Stauder, of Roselon Industries, Danville. These efforts were recognized by Susquehanna Personnel Management Association President, Roy Goodlander. The purpose of the student chapter is to acquaint students with all phases of personnel administration and industrial relations. It likewise serves as a window of the business world through which a continuing dialogue can be maintained between campus and industry.

Nicoll, who is Manager of Employee Community Relations for Colonial Pipeline Company, Atlanta, Georgia, stated, "Personnel management is the fastest growing of the management professions. Rapid technical advances in recent years have made definite changes in our ways of business and life. People's attitude and values have likewise changed. These changes must be recognized by the human resource manager if they are to successfully fulfill the role of business in the present day.

"The human resource manager for a business is gaining more stature and faster pay increases than many of his contemporaries. He has been defined as 'the catalyst of change' in his efforts to fit the man to the job and the job to the man. The human resource field presents great opportunities for creative, challenging and innovative people." In the future, Nicoll sees more self supervision by the employee and self reliance of the employee along with more enriched jobs.

BSC President Dr. James McCormick spoke of achievements and aims of the college, particularly the business community. He referred to the aims of interaction of the college in the local business community. He referred to the importance of "people to people relationships" that have been developed. He expressed appreciation of the commitments made by the national ASPA officers to attend the charter presentation.

Henry J. Schumann, vice president, Region III of ASPA, presented the student chapter to Chapter President Tom Johnson, senior from Oreland. ASPA National Treasurer Rudy Weber, presented the ASPA student chapter guide to Johnson. It was pointed out that the BSC chapter has the largest initial membership of any of the thirty-seven student chapters of ASPA.

HOMEcoming QUEEN

Denise Fritz, a senior from Muncy, Pa., was named 1974 Homecoming Queen in connection with the Homecoming Weekend activities in October. "Nostalgia - the Fabulous Fifties" was the theme of both the colorful parade and the residence hall decorations. First prize for floats went to "Fifty-Seven Chevy Replica," created by Chi Sigma Rho and Sigma Iota Omega. Luzerne Hall's "The Prom of 1956" won the award for residence hall decoration.

NAMED CHAIRMAN

Professor David Superdock has been appointed Chairman of the Physics Department in the School of Arts & Sciences at Bloomsburg State College. Dr. Superdock holds a doctorate in Physics from The Pennsylvania State University and has been a member of the B.S.C. faculty since 1960. He is a native of Freeland, having graduated from Foster Township High School, and he taught at Freeland High School before moving to Bloomsburg.

PARENTS WEEKEND

Nearly 2,000 parents visited the Bloomsburg State College campus for Parents' Weekend Saturday and Sunday, November 2-3.

STUDY IN SPAIN

The seventh annual Bloomsburg in Spain Program, sponsored by Bloomsburg State College, will be conducted during the summer of 1975.

The program for undergraduate students is for 39 days and extends from June 29 through August 20. Six credit hours can be earned upon satisfactory completion of three courses and final examinations. An option of the program is that at the end of courses at Madrid University, students may be permitted to take a trip in Spain at their own expense which is not included in the college fee.

The main objective of the program is to provide future teachers, as well as the experienced classroom teacher in Spanish and students in general, a better knowledge of people of Spain and their culture, ideas, and customs. Additionally, the student will gain a greater command of the Spanish language since Spanish will be spoken by the group throughout the program.

The program also includes trips to Toledo, Monasterio del Escorial, Valle de los Caidos, and Avila or Segovia.

For additional information concerning fees, reservations, and itinerary, contact Dr. Alfred E. Tonolo, Director of Bloomsburg in Spain, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

ARTICLE PUBLISHED

An article by Dr. James B. Creasy, Department of Business at Bloomsburg State College entitled "The Higher Education Faculty at Pennsylvania: Selected Characteristics" was published in the December 1974 issue of Research in Education.

Professor Creasy was awarded his Doctorate of Education degree this past June from Penn State and the above document is an outgrowth of his dissertation entitled, "A Descriptive Analysis of the Full-Time Teaching Faculty in Pennsylvania's Colleges and Universities," which was a study including the personal, demographic, and professional characteristics of 21,228 faculty members in 118 colleges and universities.

HONORED FOR SERVICE

Three retirees and seven employees with twenty or more years of service were honored at a Christmas party for non-instructional employees at Bloomsburg State College.

Certificates on recognition of 20 or more years of service were presented by Boyd F. Buckingham, Vice President for Administration to Robert Drake, 28 years service; Mary Haggerty, 25 years service; Paul Martin, 24 years service; Maynard Brown, 22 years service; Rachael Drake, 21 years service; William Hartzell, 20 years service; Harry Smith, 20 years service.

The three retirees were Roland Bittenbender, Kathleen Harter, and Eldora Stephens.

TRAINING COURSE

Forty-nine persons from area industries were enrolled in Supervisory Training I, a Continuing Education non-credit mini-course offered during the Fall semester.

The objectives of the course were to assist first-line supervisory personnel to perform their assigned tasks more effectively; to improve the decision-making and problem-solving skills of supervisory personnel; and to familiarize the supervisor with the management process of planning, organizing, staffing, directing, and controlling.

Dr. Norman Hopmayer, Professor of Business Administration at BSC, taught the course, assisted by Dr. Bernard Dill, also of the BSC Business Department.

Sports Review and Preview

FOOTBALL

Coach Bill Sproule's Husky griders recorded a 1-7-1 record for its 1974 nine-game season. The lone victory was over Lock Haven, 7-0, and the tie was with Mansfield, 10-10. The Huskies' best performance for the season was against Millersville, who had an excellent ball team. Bloomsburg led the Marauders up until the final eleven seconds when a Millersville 52 yard field goal spelled the difference, 16-14.

Sproule had a young team and will have good experience and depth returning next year. Key losses are: defensive backs Charles Bender, Bill Boyland, Linc Welles, and Gary Zelinske; defensive lineman Gene Rejent; fullback Al Ream; wide receivers John Boyer and Joe Courter. Welles led the eastern division of the Pennsylvania Conference in interceptions with 10 and was third in punting with a 36.6 average. As a result, he was named as a defensive defender to the first division unit of the Division III ECAC selections, the first team of the Pennsylvania Conference and the third team of the All-Pennsylvania team.

Teammates offensive guard Steve Debuski, wide receiver Gerald Hoban, defensive lineman Gene Rejent, and defensive back Charles Bender were named to the second team of the Pennsylvania Conference selections.

CROSS COUNTRY

The thinclads of Coach Clyde Nobel finished the season with a 5-4 record and ninth place in the Pennsylvania Conference championship.

The outstanding performer for the Huskies was a senior Lou Gunderman, who captured four first places for the season. Noble only had one other senior on the squad and, therefore, will have a substantial number of returnees next year along with incoming freshmen.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The BSC women's basketball team, coached by Joanne McComb has been invited to participate in the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women's Invitational Basketball Tournament at Edinboro State College Friday, March 7, and Saturday, March 8. This is the first time a BSC women's basketball team has received this honor.

The Huskiettes recorded the first undefeated season (8-0) for a women's basketball team in the history of the college last year. After winning its first seven games of the season, the Huskies lost a close game to Bucknell, 51-49, on February 25.

Top scorers for the cagerettes have been Barb Donchez, a senior co-captain from Palmerton, and Ellen French, a sophomore from Tower City.

The Huskiettes defeated third seeded Villanova 63-57 in the first round of the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Invitational Tournament and lost to second seeded Edinboro 84-52 in the semifinals. This gave the women cagers an 8-2 record going into their final game with Marywood College.

BASKETBALL

The Bloomsburg State College Cagers concluded their regular season with a win over Millersville for a 14-9 season record. They were 8-6 in eastern division conference play.

With the loss of 6'8" John Willis through graduation, Coach Charles Chronister had to alter both his offensive and defensive tactics this year. As a result, the Huskies were more of a running and shooting team and have had periods of being hot and cold. Sophomore 6'5" Jerry Radocha was the team's leading scorer, averaging around 16 points per game. Senior Gary Tyler and Radocha were the leading rebounders while senior Mike Ognosky was the leader in assists. Forsh Steve Bright has seen considerable action along with junior Rich Yanni and sophomore Rick Joseph. The latter is the only other Husky averaging in double figures, 10 p.p.g. Undoubtedly, the loss of sophomore Rick Evans, for the season due to a knee injury in the fifth game, hurt the Huskies. At that time, Evans was a second leading scorer averaging 13.4 p.p.g. and was the team's leading rebounder.

Bloomsburg hosted the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Regional Tournament March 7 and 8 defeating Slippery Rock 71-70 in the first game and losing to Cheveny in the final's 86-81, ending up with a 15-10 overall record.

BSC forward Jerry Radocha was the leading vote getter in the all-Pennsylvania Conference eastern division basketball team. Honorable mention went to two other Huskies, senior co-captains Mike Ognosky and Gary Tyler.

WRESTLING

When Coach Roger Sanders and his comparatively young team began the 1974-75 season, few persons thought he would end up with an 11-3-1 record. Outstanding for the Huskies were senior Randy Watts, 131-1 at 142 and 150 lbs.; sophomore Chick Carter, 10-4 (6 pins) at 158 lbs.; senior Dan Burkholder, 11-3 at 167 lbs.; sophomore Steve Scheib, 11-2-1 (6 pins) at 177 lbs.; and senior Matt Tydor, 6-3-1 wrestling from 167 through 190 lbs.

In the Pennsylvania Conference Championships held at Kutztown February 21-22, Randy Watts repeated as a state conference champion pinning his opponent at 3:02 in the finals. The Huskies finished second with 110 1-2 points behind the winning Slippery Rock team who recorded 159 1-2 points. Other finishes by Husky matmen were: Tom Fink, third, 118 lbs.; Carl Poff, fifth, 134 lbs.; Dave Brandt, fifth, 134 lbs.; Carter, third, 158 lbs.; Burkholder, second, 167 lbs.; Scheib, second, 177 lbs.; Tydor, fourth, 190 lbs.; and Mel Sharp, fourth, heavyweight.

Randy Watts, BSC's outstanding 150 lb. grappler, won a national NCAA Division II wrestling championship at ESSC March 8. BSC placed seventh in team standings with the following other Huskies placing: Steve Scheib, third at 177 lbs.; Tom Fink, fourth at 118 lbs.; and Matt Tydor, fifth at 190 lbs.

SWIMMING

In completing his regular season with an 8-6 record, Coach Eli McLaughlin and his tankmen performed admirably against some tough competition including such powerhouses as Monmouth, Villanova, Clarion, and Temple. Mainstays of the squad were: Stu Marvin, freestyle sprinter; Rich Kozicki, distance freestyle; Jim Balchunas, individual medley; Doug Thran, breaststroke; Keith Torok, backstroke; and Bill Ewell, butterfly. The only member who will be lost from this year's squad is senior freestyler Paul Richards who was injured for part of the season.

Bloomsburg State College had the privilege of hosting the 16th annual Pennsylvania Conference Swimming and Diving Championships which was won by Clarion for the fifth straight year. The Huskies slipped a notch back from last year, finishing fourth. Bloomsburg, however, was the only team to successfully defend an individual title which Stu Martin did in both the 50 yd. (21.57) and 100 yd. (047.75), breaking Dave Gibas' record in the latter by .36 seconds. He missed Gibas' 50 yd. record by .01 of a second.

McLaughlin completed his tenth straight winning season and has good prospects for making it number eleven next year.

Stu Martin finished 25th in the Eastern Seaboard Swimming Championships at Dartmouth College March 7 and 8. Marvin, along with Keith Torok, Doug Thran, Bill Ewell, Jim Balchunas, and Rick Kozicki, will participate in the NCAA Division II Championships at Cleveland, Ohio on March 19.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

The BSC women's swimming team under coach Mary Gardner completed its regular season with a 3-3 record. Four members of the team qualified for the Eastern Swimming Championships at the University of Pennsylvania held Friday and Saturday, February 28 and March 1. The four performers who have been outstanding all year were: Carla de Vries, 50 yd. backstroke and 100 yd. individual medley; Tina de Vries, 50 and 100 yd. breaststroke; Connie Corso, 50 yd. butterfly; and Jan Crossmore, 50 yd. freestyle and 100 yd. individual medley.

Coach Gardner, who joined the BSC faculty at the start of the current school year, was a former All-American in the 50 and 100 yd. breaststroke at East Stroudsburg State College. She also coached the BSC women's field hockey team this past fall which had a record of 6-1-1.

Tennis

The Husky tennis team appears to be the strongest in the school's history. After posting a 9-1 record last year, this fall Coach Burt Reese's charges were undefeated in five dual matches and won the prestigious ECAC Division II and Division III Tournament at Rider College. The Huskies appear to be strong through all six positions with several promising reserves.

The schedule is: 4-3, Shippensburg, H; 4-10, Millersville, A; 4-12, Edinboro, H; 4-16, Wilkes, H; 4-17, Kutztown, H; 4-18, Penn State, A; 4-19, Lycoming, A; 4-22, Susquehanna, H; 4-26, East Stroudsburg, H; 4-28, Lock Haven, H; 4-30, West Chester, A; 5-2 & 3, Pennsylvania Conf. Tourney, H.

Women's Tennis

The women's tennis team had a fine fall season of five wins and one loss and face a difficult schedule this spring including the tough teams of Maryland, Lock Haven, and Bucknell.

Unfortunately, Coach Eleanor Wray has lost two of her top players who performed in the fall but has Ann McMunn, Deb Young, and Susan Wexler back along with Val Cronin. This is the third year for women's varsity tennis at the college.

The schedule is: 4-17, Susquehanna U., A; 4-19, Lock Haven, H; 4-22, Mansfield, H; 4-24, Wilkes College, A; 4-25, Bucknell U., A; 4-29, Kutztown, A; 5-1, Maryland, H; 5-3, SUNY/Binghamton, H.

Track

Following some good indoor track appearances, Coach Ron Puhl's team has high hopes for a successful outdoor season. Using the new track facilities on the upper campus will be a welcome addition to the Huskies' efforts.

Outstanding returnee is team captain and pole vault record holder Eric Koetteritz. Another real standout for Puhl is freshman high jumper Leroy Turner who has already cleared 6' 8½" in indoor competition.

The schedule is: 3-29, Atlantic Coast Relays at N. Carolina St. U.; 4-5, Trenton St., East Stroudsburg, at Lehigh U.; 4-8, Mansfield at Millersville; 4-12, Susquehanna U., A; 4-16, Cheyney St., H; 4-19, Kutztown, Slippery Rock, East Stroudsburg, H; 4-23, Lock Haven, Lycoming, at Mansfield; 4-25 & 26, Penn Relays; 4-29, to be announced; 5-3, Bloomsburg State College Invitational Relays, H; 5-9 & 10, Pennsylvania Conference Championships at Slippery Rock; 5-16, All-Pennsylvania USTFF Meet at Penn State; 5-24, IC4A's Meet; 6-1, NCAA Division II Championships at Sacramento, California.

Baseball

Coach Clark Boler has a number of veterans returning to bolster the Huskies' hopes of bettering last year's 10-13 record.

Leading the returnees is senior second baseman Linc Welles, who batted .409 last year and had a .961 fielding average. Others include third baseman Bob Stackhouse and Bob DeCarolis, right fielder Bill Navich, left fielder Bill Russell, and shortstop Greg Oswald along with several returning pitchers.

The schedule is: 4-1, Bucknell, A, (2); 4-5, King's, A, (2); 4-7, SUNY/Binghamton, H, (2); 4-9, Patterson, A; 4-10, Wilkes College, A, (2); 4-12, Mansfield, A, (2); 4-14, Lock Haven, H, (2); 4-16, Millersville, A, (2); 4-19, Indiana, H, (2); 4-21, East Stroudsburg, A, (2); 4-24, SUNY/Oneonta, A, (2); 4-29, Shippensburg, H, (2); 5-2, York, A, (2); 5-3, Kutztown, H, (2); 5-9 & 10, State Conference, A.

Golf

Golf has a new coach in Dr. Michael Herbert, who is aiming to improve on last year's record of one win against six losses. Key members of the team are: Tom Brown, junior, Bloomsburg and Dave Suitch, sophomore, Weatherly. Other prospects are: Ted Radcliffe, freshman, Collegeville; Michael Chiodo, sophomore, Mahanoy City; and Michael McIntyre, senior, Wilkes-Barre. Herbert is also hoping freshmen Mark Pringle, Williamsport, and Mark Fallon, Carbondale, will make the team more competitive.

The schedule is: 4-10, Mansfield, H; 4-14, Lycoming, A; 4-15, Kutztown, A; 4-17, Susquehanna, H; 4-21, East Stroudsburg, H; 4-22, Elizabethtown and Millersville at Hershey; 4-30, Shippensburg and Lock Haven at Shippensburg; 5-4, 5, 6, Pennsylvania Conference Championships at Penn National in Chambersburg.

RUSSIAN WRESTLERS WILL BE AT B.S.C.

Bloomsburg State College will be the site of one of the four dual meet appearances of the World Title and Olympic Champion Soviet Union freestyle wrestling team when it visits the United States this spring.

Russ Houk of the B.S.C. faculty and Chairman of the United States Olympic Wrestling Committee, has announced that the Soviet Union team will compete against a United States all-star team in BSC's Nelson Fieldhouse on the evening of Wednesday, April 9. The match was scheduled through the joint efforts of Houk and organizations and businessmen of the greater Bloomsburg area along with the student C.G.A.

The Soviet Union team, who have been Olympic and World Champions since 1956, will be in the United States to participate in the World Cup Contest in Toledo, Ohio, March 29-30 against Turkey, Iran, and the United States. The team will then make four United States appearances as part of the many cultural exchange programs between the Soviet Union and the United States. Following the World Cup competition, the Soviets will perform in Chicago, Jacksonville, Bloomsburg, and Madison Square Garden before departing for home. The world champs will be competing against U. S. all-star teams in each appearance.

Houk, who served as manager of the U. S. 1972 Olympic Freestyle Wrestling team, indicates that he will bring a select team to Bloomsburg, including a number of the U. S. wrestlers who will be participating in the upcoming Pan-American games and the 1976 Olympics. "Probably never again will sports fans of this whole area have the opportunity to view such a spectacle which will include some of the best athletes of the world," Houk said. "Freestyle wrestling, unlike the Roman-Greco performed by the Polish team here last year, is much more like our style of college wrestling," Houk stated.

Reserved Seats, $6.00; Adults Box Office $5.50; Adult Advanced Sale, $4.00; Children Box Office, $3.00; Children Advance Sale $2.00.

65 EVENING DIVISION COURSES OFFERED

Sixty-five evening division undergraduate courses are being offered for the second semester of the 1974-75 college year at Bloomsburg State College, according to Richard O. Wote, Dean of Extended Programs.

This program permits the enrollment of regular credit courses without the more formal procedure of gaining admission to the college as a matriculated student in a program relating to a degree. All courses offered in the evening division are on a college level and are for credit. Although students enrolled in this program are not working on a degree at this time, the credits earned may be accepted at some later date for individuals approved for admission as regular degree students by the Admissions Office of the college. The program emphasizes the concept that learning is a life-long process, provides opportunities for individuals who are pursuing objectives, to review certain skills, acquire new skills, or enhance self-improvement.

Evening undergraduate credit courses to be offered are (department and number of courses): Art 3, Biology 7, Business 9, Chemistry 1, Economics 2, Educational Studies and Services 3, English 6, Geography-Earth and Space Science 2, Health and Physical Education 2, History 6, Music 1, Nursing 1, Philosophy 1, Political Science 4, Psychology 5, Sociology and Anthropology 7 and Speech 3.

All the courses are for three credit hours, conducted on designated nights, Monday through Thursday, from 6:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Non-degree brochures and applications may be obtained by writing the School of Extended Programs, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. Additional information can be obtained by contacting the Office of Extended Programs, telephone 389-3300.

60TH REUNION

Leah Bogart (Mrs. George W. Lawton) of Berwick, has written to point out that three members of the 1914 class enjoyed their 60th reunion on Alumni Day, April 27, 1974. They are: Bertell Laubach (Mrs. Bruce Lamont) and Catherine Glass (Mrs. William Koehler) both of Hazleton, and Mrs. Lawton.

We regret that we failed to obtain a picture of them and apologize for not including a mention of their attendance in the story.

CORRECTION

We apologize to Miss Artemesia M. Bush '07 and to Mrs. Edna D. Williams '24 for erring in reporting they were deceased. Miss Bush is living at 910 McGuire Road, Bloomsburg, Pa., 17815 and Mrs. Williams resides at 1 Berrywood Ct., Woodbine, Wilmington, Del. 19803.

MRS. SHORTESS DIES

Mrs. Anna Reynolds Shortess, of Bloomsburg, whose husband, the late S. Irvine Shortess was a professor of chemistry and physics at B.S.C. before his retirement, died September 26, 1974.

Professor Shortess died in 1964.

DANNY LITWHILER BUILDS WINNERS...

DANNY LITWHILER, who had distinguished career in professional baseball, graduated from Bloomsburg State College in 1933. The college has named the baseball field of the Upper Campus sports complex the "Danny Litwhiler Field" in recognition of his outstanding contribution to baseball as a player and coach. The following article is reprinted from the Michigan State University alumni magazine.

By Lynn Henning

His forehead, caked with a mixture of dust and sweat, was a perfect match for the mud-spattered arms blending their muddiness with the baseball uniform (Philadelphia Phillies, vintage 1942).

And even though his head hurt like hell, he was grinning.

Moments earlier, Danny Litwhiler had knocked himself unconscious in a wild scramble for home plate which resulted in a crunching collision with St. Louis Catcher Walker Cooper.

Result: One run for the last-place Phillies going nowhere on the last day of the season (the winning run, incidentally). Also, a forced play-off for the pennant between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cardinals, who won it minus Cooper out nursing a dislocated shoulder from the thump by Litwhiler.

Another result: A red and gold World Series ring a year later. Litwhiler was playing for, of all people, the St. Louis Cardinals who were so impressed with his hustle on a last-place team, they quickly traded for him.

Others over the years, too, have been impressed with Michigan State's head baseball coach of the past 10 years. Among them, the Baseball Hall of Fame which displays Litwhiler's glove; Jackie Robinson for Danny's help in breaking the major league color barrier, and one-time Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick who saw Litwhiler's talent for teaching.

If the muddy picture of Litwhiler doesn't particularly stand out among the hundreds of others among the larger-than-life baseball college on his Jenison Field House office wall, its lesson does — at least to his mind.

"I tell my players that story a lot," he concedes. (It actually put him into two successive World Series with the Cards.)

It must impress, too, because "Skip's" MUS teams have played better than .650 ball over the decade, won the Big Ten championship in 1971 and have never finished out of the first division. In addition, several Spartans under Litwhiler have played their way into the major leagues: Bruce Look, New York Yankees; Steve Garvey, Los Angeles Dodgers; Dick Billings, Texas Rangers; Mel Behnye, Cincinnati Reds; Rick Miller, Boston Red Sox, and Rob Ellis, Milwaukee Brewers.

Nonetheless, success in training future major leaguers has, to a degree, taken its toll on Danny's impressive 271-141 won-lost record at Michigan State, because many of them have signed professional contracts with college eligibility remaining.

Still, Litwhiler doesn't interfere.

For example, pitcher Larry Ike signed with the Detroit Tigers in 1973, thus forfeiting his senior year with the Spartans.

Said Ike at the time: "I talked to him and I know he definitely wanted me to stay. It never hurts a college baseball coach to have a three-year veteran around. But he didn't stand in my way. He's the kind of man who wants the best for his ballplayers."

So, you have Danny Litwhiler — former major league baseball star, coach and teacher of baseball, and more: Inventor (one thing at a time, folks, we'll get to that later) and author.

This then is not a fellow lacking confidence in his own capabilities. Even when he was in high school, Litwhiler knew that he would play in the major leagues.

"O, yeh," he nods, "I went to New York and saw a ballgame between the Phillies and the Giants and I said if I couldn't play in the majors, there's something wrong. I figured I was as good as they were right then."

He graduated from Bloomsburg State College in his home state of Pennsylvania and broke into the "big" with Philadelphia in 1940. A year later he set a season fielding record: Fifteen errors, more than any other National League outfielder.

In 1942 (what a year that must have been) he played every inning of all 151 games and handled 317 chances — without committing a single error — to become the first major leaguer ever to play an entire season without a single flub. He extended the errorless streak into the next season where it finally ended at a record 187 games.

The errorless string almost ended prematurely on a rainy September afternoon had it not been for the irate determination of New York's Giant Johnny Mize.

"They had held up the game for about an hour and a half," recalls Danny. "And in leftcenter field there was a great big area of water up over your shoes, and in the deepest place it was up over your ankles."

Well, sir, Mize hit a ball that headed for that water like a frog on a lily pad leaping in a pond. But Litwhiler roared in from left field like a Sherman tank looking to tangle with a submarine. And darned if he didn't glove that ball; she plopped into that mitt of his nice as a piece of cake.

But when Danny set himself for the throw into the infield ahead of an advancing baserunner, his feet slipped out from underneath him. And ker-plunk. He dropped the ball. Yessir.

They give 'im an error on it, too.

Well, now, Danny thought it was all over, but for some reason the newspapers didn't mention the error. Ten years later, broadcaster Mel Allen ("Howww about that!") told Danny what happened: It turns out that Mize was hitting .299 and shooting for the magic .300 mark. Immediately after the game he raced up to the press box, still in uniform, and challenged Allen and the official scorekeeper that it should have been ruled a hit. Thus, Litwhiler's perfect fielding record — unknown to Allen and the scorekeeper — was preserved.

And Danny's glove ended up in the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

He cherishes the record and its place in the Hall of Fame, the 1942 All-Star game he played in, the two World Series with the Cardinals (he still wears a World Series ring), but he treasures the friendship most.

One friend was Jackie Robinson.

Litwhiler was playing for Cincinnati in 1947 when Robinson broke baseball's color barrier. With its proximity to the Mason-Dixon Line, many Cincinnati fans were not enthusiastic about Robinson's first appearance in Crosley Field, nor were some of Litwhiler's teammates.

"They'd all be saying, 'I'm not going to play against them (blacks)," recalls Danny. "Particularly the Southern boys were upset. Well, I knew right then they were all crazy. There was no way they were going to quit playing. Where were they going to get a job like they had?"

Nonetheless, Cincinnati President Warren Giles was concerned and asked Litwhiler ("a level-headed guy") to pose for a picture with Robinson when the Dodgers came into town in hopes a display of welcome could help quell negative attitudes.

"I said fine, I'd be glad to do it," recalls Danny, adding with a smile: "I took a lot of flack over that."

The picture hangs in Litwhiler's office today with this inscription: "Danny: Been a lot of water under the bridge since this picture was taken. Good to see you again."

... BY GIVING TEACHING TOP PRIORITY

Jackie Robinson, 1947-1967."

When he retired as a player in 1951 after 12 seasons, Danny became a minor league manager for five years.

"I didn't like managing pro ball," admits the 57-year-old Litwhiler, "because they don't believe in teaching, they believe in winning. That seemed to be the trend — either win or else. My theory of baseball is 'teach baseball and then win.'"

About this time Florida State University contacted Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to recommend a man to set up a baseball program at the school. FSU was seeking a former player with professional managing experience who could also teach classes. Frick said Danny was their man, and in 1955 Litwhiler was a college baseball coach.

"I would have coached for nothing at the time just to get started," he says.

His teaching methods built a winner immediately and over nine seasons, Litwhiler's Florida State teams posted an 189-81 record and played in three College World Series.

In 1963, the late John Kobs retired as Michigan State's baseball coach and Athletic Director Biggie Munn was looking for a Danny Litwhiler to take over.

"I came up," says Litwhiler, "liked what I saw and particularly liked Biggie. I knew I could work with him."

Litwhiler brought with him his "teach, then win" philosophy which complemented a host of his baseball inventions.

For example, he designed an unbreakable five-foot by five-foot mirror for pitchers to check their motions. The idea was a result of an advertisement showing horseshoes being thrown against a glass that didn't break.

A five-man batting cage Litwhiler created allows a team to achieve as much live batting practice in one day as usually can be gained in five.

Several of his innovations have made their mark at the Major League level. "Diamond Grit," used to dry baseball fields after rain, and "Diamond Dust," used to recondition and dry wet baseballs, have been on the market since Danny and a chemist friend came up with the compound in 1956. "Diamond Grit" is used by most major league teams; the Chicago White Sox have used it since its inception.

He also came up with a novel way to teach bunting. Applying knowledge of what it takes to bunt successfully, ("You have to hit the top half of the ball with the bottom half of the bat"), Litwhiler carved a bat to those specifications, eliminating every part of the hickory stick which bears no value in bunting.

He took his disfigured bat to spring training and showed it to the late Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson, Yankee manager Casey Stengel and White Sox skipper Al Lopez. All were impressed with the results and asked Danny to make them some.

"Made six for Lopez, six for Hutchinson and nine for Casey Stengel," Litwhiler muses. "Two of them won the pennant and the other one was runner-up, so I guess it was all right."

The bats, incidentally, are still on the market bearing Litwhiler's patent.

And now Danny Litwhiler is working on another invention, though not exactly a new innovation for him: Another Big Ten championship for Michigan State.

Mrs. Reilly Gives Glimpse of College Life At Bloomsburg 75 Years Ago

By Katherine Dalton

Mrs. Isabelle Reilly, of Shenandoah, Pa., is ninety years old, a remarkable fact in itself. However, of most interest to students and alumni of Bloomsburg State College is the fact that she graduated from this school under her maiden name, Isabelle Mullahey, with the class of 1907.

As you can imagine, life at BSC was very different in those days around the turn of the century. The trip from Shenandoah to Bloomsburg was a journey of 28 miles. Perhaps to the modern-day student the word journey is too strong to describe such a short trip. However, to Mrs. Reilly it was indeed a journey. She began by taking a horse and buggy to the neighboring town of Ringtown. From there she proceeded to Rupert by train. From Rupert, a shuttle was taken to Bloomsburg, where she was met by a bus from the school. She returned home only on long vacations because of the difficulty of the trip.

At that time, the school was known as the Bloomsburg State Normal School. There were four buildings, with Carver Hall used as a chapel and auditorium. Old Science was the science building with a laundry in the basement. Another building, which Mrs. Reilly thinks has since been torn down, was a library, gymnasium, and housed the practice teaching rooms. Present-day Waller Hall was the dorm and cafeteria which, interestingly enough, was coed at the time.

Mrs. Reilly reminisces, "In those days at Bloomsburg we could enroll in one of two courses. One was a three-year teaching course. There was no specialization then. When you got your certificate you could teach anything in any school. The other was a one-year college prep course." Mrs. Reilly enrolled in the teaching course and was instructed by some professors who are still remembered, including Professors Sutliff, Hartline, Bakeless, and Waller. Also, Tom Elwell, a student from the town of Bloomsburg, was here at that time.

Student life was quite different in 1907. At 7:00 p.m. in the dorm a bell was rung signalling all students to be in their rooms for the next three hours. At 10:00 p.m. a second bell rang which meant all lights out. One of the devilish pranks played by students was to meet in one room at midnight for a feast. "I was caught once and hauled down to the President's office." The only special functions at the college were guest lecturers and small concerts. A big treat for the students was to attend the local church suppers for a good meal. This was about the only contact the students had with the town of Bloomsburg itself. Money was scarce then too. As Mrs. Reilly remembers, "my only spending money was a dollar from Uncle Will on special holidays."

In 1907, there were two fraternities on the Bloomsburg campus. Mrs. Reilly remembers them as being very inactive, so inactive she could not recall their names. There were no sororities. Dress was formal by today's standards and no girl dared to smoke a cigarette, let alone anything else. It was a five-day school week, with no school on Mondays and classes on Saturdays. Science classes were popular because the students were taken on field trips in the surrounding area. A popular pastime was to take long walks, some as far as five miles.

Isabelle Mullahey Reilly graduated in 1907 and taught in the Shenandoah schools for many years. She also ran a brewery and beer delivery business. Today she is a grandmother and great-grandmother many times over. In recent years she has spent a lot of time in hospitals, but loves to tell me, her granddaughter, of the days she spent learning on the campus at the present-day Bloomsburg State College. She tells me it was tradition that I chose BSC. My paternal grandmother, Hannah Scanlan Dalton, graduated in 1898. Mrs. Reilly in 1907, and my two aunts, her daughters Eleanor Reilly Doolphin and Rosemary Reilly Flannery, in 1943. I guess you could say that Bloomsburg State is the "Ivy League" school of the Dalton-Reilly dynasty.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

The Distinguished Service Award is presented to those members of the Alumni Association who have made outstanding contributions in their professions.

We invite all members of the Association to nominate alumni for this award. Send complete information about your nominee to Vice President Clayton H. Hinkel, School of Business, Bloomsburg State College.

All nominees are carefully considered by a committee which makes recommendations to the Alumni Board of Directors.

B.S.C. PARTICIPATES IN RURAL STUDIES

Bloomsburg State College is participating with seven other regional Colleges and Universities in a Cooperative Rural Studies Program which will involve faculty, students and rural Pennsylvanians in studies and surveys of problems peculiar to rural areas. The five-year program is designed to give College students a new appreciation of rural values and to enable the institutions to relate program offerings to the educational needs of the people of the region.

The program has been made possible by a $22,000 grant awarded by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Education. In addition to BSC other institutions participating are: Bucknell University, Lock Haven State College, Pennsylvania State University, Susquehanna University, Lycoming College, Mansfield State College and the Williamsport Area Community College.

The program is believed to be the first in the Nation in which rural society will be studied by undergraduates from a liberal arts point of view through cooperation among several institutions. As a pilot venture it will be used to help determine the ability of the eight institutions to work together on similar projects. A significant aspect of the program will be off-campus on-site studies by students who will meet and work with local leaders of all segments of rural society in the area. The first year of the program will consist primarily of an inventory and assessment of the resources available at the co-operating schools, detailed planning and development of the program, and the preparation of courses. These courses would be offered beginning in the summers of 1975 and 1976 and in the 1976-77 academic year.

In addition to the long-range goal of improving many aspects of rural life, it is hoped that the research and study undertaken by students and faculty involved in the program will result in increased community service and the enhancement of existing resources.

Two representatives from each school will serve on a Board of Directors which will administer the program. Representing Bloomsburg State College as Directors are: Dr. James H. Huber, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, and Dr. William O'Bruba, Department of Elementary Education.

DR. KLENNER, BIOLOGY PROFESSOR, IS DEAD

Dr. Jerome J. Klenner, 49, professor of biology at B.S.C., died October 19 at Geisinger Medical Center, Danville, where he had been a patient 15 days.

He was born in Johnstown, Cambria County, the son of Jerome Joseph and Augusta Mallin Klenner. He had resided in Bloomsburg since 1966, and had previously resided in Ebensburg for 10 years.

He was a graduate of Willmore High School, Cambria, and received his B.S. degree from St. Francis of Loretto College, Loretto, Pa. He earned his M.S. degree at the University of Pittsburgh, and his Ph.D. at the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind.

He was employed as a professor of biology at B.S.C. for eight and one-half years. He had previously been on the faculties of St. Francis of Loretto College for 10 years; Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va., for one year; and the University of Dayton, Ohio for one year.

He was a member of St. Columba Catholic Church, Bloomsburg and served as an usher at the church. He also belonged to the American Institute of Biological Sciences, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Biologists.

He was serving on the executive board of the Susquehanna Valley Tuberculosis Society. He was a U. S. Army veteran of World War II, having served in the European Theatre of Operations.

Surviving, in addition to his parents, are his widow, Jacqueline A. Rioux Klenner, to whom he had been married for 24 years on September 2; one daughter, Jaynie A. Klenner, and a son, Kevin J. Klenner, both at home; and one sister, Mrs. Louis (Phyllis) Carincelli, Erie.

DR. KEHR, FORMER DEAN OF WOMEN, DIES

Dr. Marguerite W. Kehr, former Dean of Women at B.S.C. died March 1, 1975 in Lake Charles, Louisiana, where she resided with her sister, Mrs. George W. Sevier. She had been ill several months.

Dr. Kehr had been in Bloomsburg in May, 1973 to participate in the dedication ceremonies of the Kehr College Union, which was named in her honor.

Dr. Kehr retired in 1953 after serving as Dean of Women at B.S.C. for 25 years. She previously was Dean of Women at Lake Forest College from 1921 to 1927. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Tennessee, her Master of Arts degree from Wellesley College, and her Doctor of Philosophy degree from Cornell University.

During the past 22 years of her retirement, she kept informed of B.S.C. activities through Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, Dean, School of Professional Studies, who made arrangements for her attendance at the ceremonies two years ago.

Mrs. Sevier resides at 3824 Vanderbilt Drive, Lake Charles, La. 70601.

The BSC Alumni Association hopes to accomplish many things with the present financial drive. The realization of an executive director in order to give the Association extended services is only one aspect of the reasons for the drive.

Recent events have indicated that BSC is being short-changed in many areas due to limitations placed by the state on budgetary items which don't directly involve instruction, yet are most essential in the operation of the college.

The Alumni Association has helped in some ways in the past, but it is our hope that we can be more helpful than we have been. Helping sponsor BSC sports events on radio, aiding the CGA in some endeavors, and financially providing for areas in which there is no state aid has been an enjoyable experience, but there is still much to be done. The entire campus needs beautification, including general landscaping and trees, and there is no money for this type of venture.

If the Alumni Association realizes its $50,000 goal, some of that money could be used for areas which would help the over-all development of Bloomsburg State College. Otherwise, it just would not happen.

BSC graduates used to think that because the college is a state school, no money was needed for the operation, since the state seemed to supply endless amounts. Really, this has never been true, and certainly it is not the case now. During this second semester, the college has been ordered to cut into its present budget in order to decrease costs in an ever-rising price market.

Therefore, the financial help that you have given (or will give) will permit some of these dreams to become a reality as BSC continues to move forward!!

President McCormick Highlights Current Issues

Bloomsburg State College moves into its 137th year of serving educational needs with the satisfaction of achievement which helps us overcome the frustrations of current fiscal problems as serious as any the institution has ever faced.

We have a record-breaking enrollment, approximately seven percent higher than last year, with 4,747 full-time and 1,196 part-time students attending classes. Our freshman class includes some 60 students enrolled in the new program leading to a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree. We have been notified by the Pennsylvania Department of Education that Initial Approval status has been granted for teacher education programs in Early Childhood education and Communication, and for a graduate teacher education program in Special Education (Hearing Impaired).

These significant accomplishments are the result of the important work of our Planning Commission, which included alumni participants, and of the dedicated efforts of our faculty and staff members in maintaining a high quality of education and in developing attractive programs attuned to the changing educational needs of people.

We have a new residence hall under construction, and its completion next year will help relieve overcrowding in our residence halls. We have had an encouraging response to our plans for a new classroom building, and we hope also to obtain approval for a badly needed addition to the Andruss Library.

As our building program nears completion, we are able to turn attention to a Campus Beautification project now underway with the help of funds provided by your Alumni Association. A landscape architect is developing a plan for the planting of trees, flowers, and shrubs, and for other projects which will make our campus more attractive.

These positive and encouraging developments attest to the strength and vigor that has enabled Bloomsburg State College to grow as a quality multi-purpose college. Less pleasant, however, have been the financial pressures that have reached crisis proportions for Bloomsburg and the other State Colleges and University. All 14 institutions were directed by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to effect savings in 1976-77 that will recover a projected $16.6 million deficit across the system. Each institution was assigned a share of that deficit, with Bloomsburg's share being set at $1,070,000. Originally, the institutions were directed to recover the entire amount by reducing personnel costs. This directive was later modified to permit the institutions to recover the target deficit through alternative budget savings, and Bloomsburg was able to reduce the number of employees to be retrenched by more than 50 percent.

Despite our efforts to avoid retrenchment, it was necessary to notify 30 faculty and staff members that their positions will be abolished at the end of the current year unless more funds become available. Retrenchment planning was a distasteful task for everyone involved. The impact is tragic for individuals directly affected, demoralizing for others on our staff, and disheartening for all who have worked diligently to improve the quality of education at Bloomsburg.

We are acting aggressively to seek the funding we believe the college deserves. We believe Bloomsburg is being penalized for efficient and responsible fiscal management and that the college is underfunded because changes in enrollment patterns across the system have not been given adequate consideration in the allocation of state appropriations. The result is that students pay a larger part of education costs at Bloomsburg than at many sister institutions.

With the help of funds made available by your Alumni Association, we have been contacting members of the Legislature to seek their support for public higher education in Pennsylvania. You, as individuals, can help by letting your senator or representative know how much you appreciate the educational opportunity you had here and why you believe the State College and University system deserves their support.

I want to express once again my appreciation for your continued interest and support.

Edwin Barton '07 D.S.A. Recipient for 1975

Edwin M. Barton, Class of 1907 and a former member of the BSC faculty, was the recipient of the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award at the General Meeting of the Association on Alumni Day, April 26, 1975. The presentation was made by Clayton H. Hinkel, Association Vice President. Mr. Barton replied with a five-minute acceptance speech and was given a standing ovation by the more than 300 in attendance. (See other Assn. business and Alumni Day news in separate articles).

Mr. Barton is a retired educator, author, and historian. Following his graduation from BSC in 1907, he received both the B.A. and M.A. degrees from Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. He later earned another M.A. Degree from Columbia University with a special diploma, Supervisor of History Instruction. Mr. Barton's first year of teaching was in Locust Township High School, and the second year was in Millville. He then taught in New York City; Meriden, Conn.; Minneapolis; and a private school before joining the Elizabeth, N. J. faculty where he remained for 20 years as Supervisor of Social Studies. After retirement, he continued to teach both full time and as a substitute for a short period at BSC.

Mr. Barton has been active in many civic affairs and was the founder and first President of the Columbia-Montour Torch Club. He is Past President and Executive Secretary Emeritus of the Columbia County Historical Society and has been designated "Official Historian" by that group. In 1970 Mr. Barton was named "Citizen of the Year" by the Chamber of Commerce in his hometown. He is also a collaborator of a widely used civics textbook and has contributed to State and national educational journals. One of his outstanding recent publications was a 34-page book profusely illustrated, entitled, The Covered Bridges of Columbia County, Penna., With Report of the 1972 Flood Damage. Mr. Barton is currently working on an "Updated History of Columbia County." He resides at 353 College Hill, Bloomsburg.

Edwin M. Barton Distinguished Service Award Recipient Acceptance Remarks

I must state a problem to which I ask your charitable and sympathetic attention. In view of my manifold limitations and shortcomings with which I have come to be only too familiar, how could your screening committee have let its guard down to let my name slip through to be associated with the many giants and giantesses who have honored this ceremony by taking their deserved places in it? My only answer is to accept it with due, and I hope, becoming modesty, and to add a few tributes to my associates along the way.

To modesty I have some claim as is suggested by this incident. Someone observed to Winston Churchill that his arch political antagonist, Clement Attlee, was such a "modest man." To which Churchill tartly retorted that he had much to be modest about. Abraham Lincoln yields another thought that can be a guide for me. The warning that I refer to is that "It is better to be thought a fool than to open one's mouth and remove all doubt." From this I draw a corollary, "It might be better to let the observers have some question as to the suitability of the recipient of this year's choice than for me to open my mouth and arouse among my listeners acute misgivings, not to say consternation, as to the suitability of my having been chosen." On the basis of this reasoning it behooves me as a defensive measure to speak very briefly. This I will do.

There are tributes I should pay to helpers along my way. Are they not legion? My wife of almost 56 years, most regretfully no longer with us; my parents, relations, educational institutions, colleagues and associates who have helped smooth off my rough corners or polished and refined them, or put in some shoulder padding where character voids needed filling in. They helped also to supply stimulus and determination.

There is one tribute which but few can join with me in giving. That is in the length of my association with this institution. I entered the model school of the Bloomsburg State Normal School and Literary Institute in the fall of 1895 as a first grade student and was granted its diploma in 1907. My first twelve years of schooling, elementary, secondary, higher, and professional were entirely from this institution. In later years, after formal retirement from public school teaching, I was accorded still further enriching association with this institution. From my own experience and from that of other alumni with whom I have been able to have association, I can testify that this institution did and did very well what it attempted to do. For my share in this training and experience, I am profoundly grateful, and especially for this opportunity to give this testimony.

And now as a further attempt at modesty, I will hold my response to a modest length and bring it to an end with a fervent "Thank you."

President Ludwig Reports on Fund Drive

This has been our first opportunity to acknowledge the appointment of Mr. Donald A. Watts as the first executive director of the Alumni Association of the Bloomsburg State College. Mr. Watts has already made his presence felt by giving the Alumni Association full time special representation at events and meetings. The first publication under his guidance, the Homecoming letter distributed just recently, was a timely and newsy communication which we hope you found useful.

As of September 15 the Alumni Association was within "earshot" of reaching the $50,000 annual giving goal. This is the realization of a great dream by many people. Perhaps we have overcome that traditional theory which seems to dictate the fact that State schools do not need aid and that alumni members will not give. Certainly, in this day of tight budgets and retrenchments the College needs our assistance.

We have already begun to provide some of that assistance with a contribution to a much-needed landscape project. Money was needed to get this off the ground, and the Alumni Association has demonstrated its personal interest by contributing $3,000 for the initial study and the preliminary action. This was done as the result of requests by alumni members after complaints that the campus looked "bare." In addition to financial interest, the Alumni Association also is represented on the landscape committee with three members.

The program closed with selections from the Women's Choral Ensemble under the direction of Richard Stanislaw, BSC Music Department.

THE COMPUTER AND YOU

With the increase in size of each graduating class and our alumni rolls approaching 17,000, it becomes necessary to computerize our records and mailing lists. We are now in the process of transferring our files to computer storage; however some information is incomplete or inaccurate due to marriages, new positions, changes of address, or death of alumni members. Please inform us immediately if the name and address on the bulletins and newsletters from us are incorrect in any way. You can help us to better serve you and other alumni.

Walker Named Acting Executive Assistant to President

Mr. John Walker, Assistant to the Vice President for Student Life, has been appointed Acting Executive Assistant to the President for the fall semester. The appointment began on August 17, 1975 and will end January 3, 1976. Mr. Walker has replaced Dr. Evelyn A. Mayer, who has been granted a leave of absence without pay at her request for the fall term only.

FOUR BSC FACULTY MEMBERS HONORED

Robert Koslosky, Dr. Percival R. Roberts III, Dr. William O'Bruba, Dr. TejBhan Saini

Dr. Percival R. Roberts III, Chairman of the Department of Art, and Robert Koslosky, Professor of Art, were awarded The Distinguished Teaching Fellowship Certificates at the faculty meeting held September 2. Distinguished Academic Service Certificates were presented to Dr. TejBhan Saini, Chairman, Department of Economics, and Dr. William O'Bruba, Professor of Elementary Education. Dr. James H. McCormick, President of BSC, made the presentations, assisted by Dr. Dayton Pickett, Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculties, and William Acierno, President of BSC's Chapter of the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties (APSCUF).

The Distinguished Teaching recipients each received a cash award of $2500 and a Certificate of excellence. They are now eligible to compete in Statewide competition for one of the ten $3500 Commonwealth Teaching Awards. Dr. O'Bruba and Dr. Saini will be eligible to compete for one of eight $6000 Commonwealth cash awards. Recipients were selected by a special committee composed of two students, two BSC faculty members and two out-of-state faculty members selected by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. The Awards were given for the first time this year and grew out of a 1974 agreement between the Teachers' Union (APSCUF) and the Commonwealth. They are intended to replace the Merit Awards given by the individual State Colleges and University in the past.

Class Reunions for Alumni Day 1976:

Now is the time to plan for your Class Reunions on Alumni Day Weekend, April 23 and 24, 1976. Your Alumni Office staff will assist Class Representatives or committees with mailing lists or other arrangements in order to make your Class Reunion pleasant and memorable. We suggest you begin those plans as early as possible.

Your Alumni Association on the Move!

The Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association recently took a bold, new step in improving its services to the College and its 16,500 members with the employment of a full-time Executive Director. Under the direction of Donald A. Watts, the new Executive Director, plans are underway to improve communications between the College and Association members through more timely newsletters, special bulletins, and the Alumni Quarterly. A concerted effort will be made to locate all "lost" members and to modernize the mailing procedures. When this is completed, a new Alumni Directory can be printed. The last Directory was issued in 1964. A primary objective will be the search for dynamic leadership to organize Bloomsburg State College Alumni Clubs wherever our graduates reside. Through these leaders and local clubs, many activities to assist the College can be developed — especially the recruitment of promising students and the development of a good public relations program for Bloomsburg State College. In addition to funds needed to support the Alumni Office, the Association provides scholarships, student loans, and financial support to numerous College activities not funded by the State. A "prestigious" college or university is prestigious only because its alumni (and faculty) made it so. We hope to awaken a new feeling of interest and pride among the Bloomsburg State College alumni.

If you are interested in having a BSC Alumni Club in your area, we would appreciate a note from you with suggestions on the area to be served by the Club, places to meet, and names of persons who might assist with the planning and organization of a club. You may wish to call us at 717-389-3613. Several faculty members and administrators (including President McCormick) have volunteered their services and will assist groups in any way possible.

Bloomsburg Bank Promotes Three BSC Alumni

Angelo P. Scheno '52 has been promoted to Vice President and Treasurer of the Bloomsburg Bank-Columbia Trust Company. He has been active in many local community activities and is currently serving on the Bloomsburg Town Council. His address is 185 W. 12th Street, Bloomsburg, Penna. 17815.

Reed C. Miller '54 has been promoted to Senior Vice President and Secretary at BBCT. His address is 145 W. 5th Street, Mifflinville, Penna. 18631.

Samuel F. Harrison, Jr. '70 has been promoted to Assistant Vice President in charge of computer operations at the BBCT. He resides at 105 Railroad Street, Danville, Penna. 17821.

Mrs. Joan Keller BSC Trustee

Governor Shapp's appointment of Mrs. Joan Keller as a member of the Bloomsburg State College Board of Trustees was confirmed by the State Senate on July 28. Mrs. Keller, the only female member of the Board, has replaced Frank D. Croop, Berwick, veteran member of the Board. Mrs. Keller is married to Gailey C. Keller, District Attorney of Columbia County, and the mother of three children; Charles aged 21, Pamela aged 19, and Gail aged 14.

12th Annual Reading Conference at BSC will be held April 2 and 3, 1976. Theme of the Conference is Mainstreaming and Other Issues in Reading.

BSC GRADUATES 1014 IN TWO COMMENCEMENTS

More than 6000 parents and friends attended the May Commencement exercises when 700 Seniors and 56 Graduate Candidates were presented diplomas. The program was held in the grandstand of Bloomsburg Fairgrounds at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, May 11, 1975, under ideal weather conditions. Dr. Dayton S. Pickett, Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculties, presented the candidates and Dr. James H. McCormick, President of BSC, conferred the Degrees as Frank D. Croop, Vice President of the Board of Trustees, awarded the diplomas. The Honorable Jeanette F. Reibman, Pennsylvania Senator from the 18th District, delivered the Commencement Address. The Senator said, "The most basic belief to any society is the belief that people can, through deep personal commitment and sacrifice, master events and give some sense of shape to their collective destiny. Society must balance and regulate their levels of conflict and change. We need to educate people to see the value of opposing tendencies and to enable them to bridge the gaps that opposing movements can create." In closing the Senator said, "We live in a world of rapid change and turmoil in which politics plays an important permanent part. If we are to regain the necessary sense of balance and national well-being, we can only do so through participation in our democratic processes which require us to use conflict as a creative force in the lives of our citizens."

Dr. Henry H. Hood, Executive Director of the Geisinger Medical Center gave the Commencement Address at the August 22 Graduation ceremonies in Haas Auditorium when 138 Seniors and 120 Graduate students received Degrees. Dr. Hood spoke of "The Last Frontier — The Human Mind." After noting various aspects of the human mind, Dr. Hood pointed out that somewhere within its vastness reside two ordinary qualities which most assure success — the willingness to work and a good disposition. "The willingness to work to one's utmost," he said, "is sufficiently scarce as to assure success in competitive situations of equal ability, when present in abundance, it justifies the highest aspirations. A good disposition lubricates vocational and social intercourse, invites confidence, and earns loyalty and respect. Abandonment of a good disposition relinquishes control of one's relationship to his environment, opening wounds that may or may not heal. In competitive situation of equal ability in industry it is in turn decisive. Work should be enjoyable and fulfilling; and if it is not, one would do well to search for other fields, regardless of prior interest, education or training."

A Family Vacation On Campus?

There is a real possibility that BSC dormitories and recreational facilities will be available to Alumni families on weekends during the summer of 1976 at a very nominal cost. Plans are being developed to provide programs for adults, youth groups, and a nursery in order that Alumni parents may enjoy the weekend reminiscing with college friends, touring the Campus or doing a host of other things while others take care of the kids. It appears that the total cost for room, meals and planned activities from Friday evening dinner through Sunday noon will be $30.00 per adult or teenager, $15.00 per child under 12, and free for children under two years of age. Parents of small children would be required to furnish their own crib.

This is an excellent opportunity to renew those old friendships on the same campus where they were developed during College days (and nights). Why not arrange now to meet that college friend and his/her family at BSC for a weekend of fun and recreation. Complete the form below to inform us of your interest.

I would be interested in hearing more about the Summer '76 Alumni Family Vacation on Campus:

1. My suggestion for the best weekend would be: (check one)

() Mid June; () Mid July; () Mid August

2. My suggestions for programs and activities would include:

Name _____ Class _____ Maiden Name _____

Address _____ Town _____ State _____

Zip _____

Four BSC Graduates Enter Medical School This Fall

Timothy J. McCloskey '74 begins studies at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Michael Porvaznik '75 enters the Penn State College of Medicine at Hershey.

Stephen Schell '75 will attend the Temple University College of Medicine.

Russell Horn '75 will enter the Physician's Assistant Program at Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia.

LONG-RANGE PLANNING

The Presidential Long-range Planning Commission, organized about 2½ years ago, has already developed four (4) major planning documents. These plans are detailed descriptions of the major curricular aspirations of the College for the remaining years of this decade.

These plans define the primary mission of the College, which is to become a multipurpose institution which can respond rapidly and effectively to the educational needs of all residents of the Commonwealth, and the curricular developments and educational objectives which must be achieved in order to fulfill this major goal.

Walter Siesko '29: The following article appeared in "Shrine Band," sent to us via the courtesy of a friend of Walter Siesko. We felt it informative as well as amusing, so we present it as received: "By Noble Walt Siesko":

August appearances of the Band included the monthly business meeting, the St. Pete Shrine Club annual ball game, and the usual Thursday evening rehearsals with coffee and doughnuts at intermission.

Did you know that Colonel McCool, while Adjutant General at Fort Myers, busted up a Band that Joe Galati directed? Seems that musicians were needed elsewhere, so they took Joe's Band and scattered his musicians to all points. I don't know how true the story is, but I hear that Joe Galati's directing was then confined to conducting recorded music on an old Victrola. Joe is a young kid of 75. He played in a dance band in Paris in World War One.

Walt Beers, Largo clarinetist, is a graduate Engineer from Union College in New York State. His hobby now is putting that white ball in a hole in the ground. He keeps in excellent health on the golf course.

Walt Siesko, a Bloomsburg State College graduate, went to an accredited law school, graduated after four years of evening study, and holds both LLB and Juris Doctor degrees. He held a 2nd Lieutenant's commission, Field Artillery, Officer's Reserve Corps. He was a professional examiner in skilled trades, the social sciences, and the Physical Sciences in the U. S. Civil Service Commission and the Potomac River Naval Command Board of USCS Examiners. His work in the Naval Research Lab in Washington, D. C. led to his last job prior to retirement, that of Head of Employment at the U. S. Naval Ship Research and Development Lab in Annapolis, MD. He is a disabled veteran of World War II. Walt played clarinet for nine years with the 109th Field Artillery Band, played solo clarinet with the 260th Coast Artillery Band, with the U. S. Maritime Commission Band, and in a concert orchestra that played at different Homes for the Elderly in the Washington, D. C. area. Walt is currently trying to play the oboe. His wife, Mabel, has her AB Degree from the Eastman School of Music, and her Master's Degree in Music Education from Columbia University. Walt now is studying the art of mowing the lawn, while Mabel listens to the purring music from a vacuum cleaner. Did someone say "Retirement"? Mole Crickets and Chinch Bugs!

Isn't it wonderful that, as Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, we all become one when we enter the Gates of the Temple? See you there.

Walt and Mabel now reside at 6020 4th Street, S., St. Petersburg, FL 33705.

Rachel Gething (Mrs. Rachel Anthony) '29 was retired from the Struthers School System in Ohio, ending a teaching career of 44 years. In addition to Struthers, she also taught at Nanticoke and Grant School in Youngstown. She plans to visit a brother, Ted Gething in Mt. Lebanon, Pa. and a sister, Mrs. Elwood Lewis in Harrisburg. Her address is 250 East Auburndale Ave., Youngstown, Ohio 44507.

1931 Frank J. Golder
Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815

Frank J. Golder '31 retired as Principal of Bloomsburg Area High School after 34 years as teacher, Coach, and Principal. Frank is remembered by his College friends as BSC's outstanding athlete from 1927-1931. He played Varsity baseball and Varsity basketball for three years and was Captain of the basketball team during his senior year. Although the College was not associated with a conference at that time, the teams provided one of the best seasons of all times. Frank followed graduation with a six-year period of teaching and coaching at Hughesville and a Master's Degree from Teacher's College, Columbia University. In the fall of 1937 he returned to Bloomsburg to teach English and Civics and coach basketball. During his 19 years as Coach in the Susquehanna Valley League, his teams won 10 championships. For the past 13 years, Frank has been a member of District IV, PIAA Board of Directors, and Chairman of the District the last three years. In 1972 Mr. Golder was the recipient of the Meritorious Service Award from the Caldwell Consistory of Bloomsburg for his contribution to young people of the area. Mr. and Mrs. Golder (Myra Ritter) have one daughter Anne '64 (Mrs. Fred Baker) and two grandchildren, Cheryl 13 and Frank 9. The Bakers, both BSC graduates in 1964, live in the Harrisburg area where both are teachers in the Central Dauphin, East, Junior High School. The Golders live at 1103 Market Street, Bloomsburg, where Frank is catching up on long overdue odd jobs and an improved golf score.
