"Nick" Housenick '60, Carol's brother; and Mrs. Housenick. The exhibit, one of many scheduled throughout the year, was open to the public through January 28. Hilderbrandt, a graduate of Penn State who received his master's degree at the University of Michigan, is a land and urban planner in Columbia, Md.

Don't fear anxiety, graduates counseled

"Don't be afraid of your anxiety. Recognize it for the priceless intuition that it is, since it means you are alive, awake and aware," Dr. James Creasy, professor of business administration, told the 208 seniors and 39 graduate students who received degrees at mid-year commencement convocation on December 19.

Welcoming remarks were extended by President McCormick, and the 247 candidates for degrees were presented by Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, acting vice president for academic affairs and dean of the faculties.

Degrees were conferred by President McCormick and awarded by William Zurick, chairman of the college board of trustees. Assisting were the deans of the various schools, including Dr. Edson Drake, arts and sciences; Dr. Emory W. Rarig, business; Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, professional studies; and Dr. Charles H. Carlson, graduate studies. The master's degree candidates were hooded by Dr. Wolfe.

Others participating were Paul Seif, president of the senior class; Nelson Miller, commencement marshal; Dr. William Decker, organist; Rev. William Langan, invocation; Rev. Jay Rochelle, benediction; and Stephen Wallace, who led the assembly in the Alma Mater.

Creasy's address

Dr. Creasy used anxiety as a theme throughout his address to point out how it relates to important aspects of life facing the students. He began by acknowledging the anxiety of the students seeking employment — stating that for the first time the preferred place graduates have had in the job market is being threatened.

"I cannot allay your anxiety. I can only remind you that higher education and particularly the education you have received at this very special place was oriented toward much more than your employment.

"We have been concerned with the quality of your personal lives, your ability to research, your service, your citizenship — resulting in the power you have TO BE, as well as TO DO."

Dwelling on the complexity of the world beyond these protected walls of learning, he encouraged the graduates not to be disheartened by this factor

"Life, our society and our world are no longer simple, but organs of incredible complexity. Become infinitely more complex yourself. Open your mind to the complex, and train your mind to encompass more, more and more.

"There is no more pleasurable thing to encounter than a mind that is active, entertaining and alert — continually reaching for understanding. Complexity crumbles with understanding."

Turning to the anxiety about becoming a success in personal life, he pointed out that there are certain qualities of life which are completely out of one's control, but there is no quality — of those we can do something about — more important than the quality of persistence.

"Success is almost never thrust upon us. It is the product of discipline and tenacity of purpose which may encompass a lifetime. But, even after you achieve success, there is no time to let up.

"Anxiety is an inevitable part of our experience and at times almost not to be endured. The manner in which you acquire the qualities of persistence and determination is by experiencing anxiety.

"We all know anxiety can well be negative and detrimental to you. It is only a spark and does not become a force unless you know how to use it. If we look back upon Man's history and see what remarkable things he has accomplished despite his uncertainty and insecurity, you can see how bravely he has transcended them to make manifest his individual and collective dreams and hopes."

In concluding, the business professor quoted a newspaper ad which read as follows: "PRESS ON Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful people with talent. Genius will not; unregarded genius is almost a proverb. Education alone will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent."

McCormick's comments

In his welcoming remarks, Dr. McCormick complimented the graduates for working so diligently to achieve academic success and also contributing significantly to the life of the college in their living and learning experience.

Noting there was a substantial representation of graduate students, he congratulated them for both continuing their education and their willingness to make personal sacrifices of time and money to attain this goal.

Following his reference to the academic accomplishments of the college, he said, "We want this campus to be not only an academic center, but a focal point for cultural, recreational, continuing education, and other programs."

He commended the parents and families for supporting their students through college. To the graduates, he pointed out that one-half the cost of their education has been assumed by the citizens of the Commonwealth, and he urged them to actively support public higher education as alumni so other men and women may enjoy the same opportunity for an education.

Top graduates honored

Thirty-five seniors were honored at an awards luncheon held in Scranton Commons prior to the mid-year commencement convocation on December 19.

Congratulatory remarks were given by President McCormick after words of welcome by Dr. John S. Mulka, director of student activities and advisor to the awards committee.

Cathy Lucrezi, a junior from Bangor who chaired the committee, served as mistress of ceremonies.

Academic Achievement

Twenty seniors were presented with academic achievement certificates by Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, acting vice president for academic affairs. Graduating with accumulative averages of 3.5 or better were the following:

Rebecca L. Adams, Pitman; Pamela S. Blair, Mt. Laurel, N.J.; Beverly M. Brady, Bethlehem; Kathleen G. Caragher, Bethlehem; Sylvia J. Crooks, New Hope; Priscilla V. Dunn, Bloomsburg; LeAnn R. Gogel, Coplay; Louise J. Kilkenny, Carbondale; Elizabeth A. Miller, Lafayette Hill; Barbara A. Pagnotti, Mt. Carmel;

Service Keys

Service Keys were presented by Dr. Jerrold A. Griffiths, vice president for student affairs. These awards are given for "outstanding service" to the 10 percent or less of the senior class who accumulate a minimum of 20 points for participation in various activities during their four years of college.

The three recipients were Joanne L. Bickley, Willow Grove; Robert J.

DeCarolis, Philadelphia; and Keith W. Lawson, Chester.

Who's Who Certificates

Robert G. Norton, dean of student life, presented certificates to the eight senior seniors who were selected earlier this year for inclusion in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities:

Anita L. Arthur, Harrisburg; Joanne L. Bickley, Willow Grove; Todd A. Fay, Basking Ridge, N.J.; Keith W. Lawson, Chester; Mary F. McGuire, Scranton; Elizabeth A. Miller, Lafayette Hill; John F. Pizzoli, Atlas; and Charles M. Sharp, Upper Darby.

Lifetime Athletic Passes

Dr. Conrad A. Bantz, chairman of the health, physical education and athletics department, presented lifetime athletic passes to four athletes who participated in at least one varsity sport for four consecutive years:

Robert J. DeCarolis, Philadelphia, football; Garry L. Lausch, Reading, track and cross country; Russell P. Sarault, Norristown, track and soccer; and Jay C. Wohlgenuth, King of Prussia, track.

McCormick's remarks

Dr. McCormick pointed out that this class came to Bloomsburg at the same time he did four years ago. He thanked them for their warmth and friendliness which made the transition to a new and difficult job much easier.

He noted that the 13 percent of the class attending the luncheon represented the top leadership of the graduating class. He pointed out that they collectively brought progress and excellence to Bloomsburg State College.

"We only hope that you understand how much we appreciate what you have done for our college community. We will always owe you a debt of gratitude. I sincerely hope that what we have provided you with in terms of your college experience will enable you to face challenges successfully and with enthusiasm," he said.

New allocation formula gives BSC more money

An Increase in Bloomsburg State College's financial payments for municipal services it receives from Bloomsburg, and progress in the college's effort to obtain a more equitable allotment of Commonwealth funds were reported to the BSC board of trustees at the quarterly meeting held December 14.

The trustees were advised by Boyd F. Buckingham, vice president for administration, that the Municipal Authority for the Town had notified the college that the annual per capita rental charge for sewage treatment paid by the college has been increased from $6.50 per capita to $10.60.

President McCormick commended the trustees for their support of college efforts to overcome a disparity in the amount of state appropriations received for the operating budget. He said that in the past appropriations had been determined by a formula based on personnel costs, and that because Bloomsburg was under-staffed, the college had been receiving approximately $1 million less than its proper share of state funds.

He said that with the help of trustees, area legislators and the faculty and non-instructional unions, the college had succeeded in obtaining adoption of a formula for distribution of appropriations based on numbers of students and credit hours produced.

"We made some progress this year," he said. "We received about $200,000 more than we would have been allotted under the old formula. We cannot expect the gap to be wiped out in one year, but we are gaining."

Dr. McCormick reported also that he had just been advised the college has been allotted four new positions, and that they will likely be assigned to fill needs in new and expanding missions.

He called attention also to the importance of getting support for a capital budget bill in the new session of the Legislature, and of the need to have the financing for the human services building included in the bill.

"We badly need the classroom space, the faculty offices, and the other facilities that building will contain," he said. "It is the single most important thing we must get for this college."

Our December issue of The Quarterly reported a 1944 class item that was in error and exceedingly unfair to one of our female legislators. We reported that Carmen A. Sirlanni was a member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. The report should have stated that Miss Carmel A. Sirlanni was that state legislator. Many people called to tell us of our error and to state that we not only changed her name, but changed her gender when we referred to her in the masculine gender. We offer our apologies to Miss Sirlanni and plead innocence to any intent to be unfair to a charming lady legislator.

He was awarded his M.S. in education degree from Temple University in 1963 and his Doctor of Arts in English from the University of Michigan in May, 1976. He and his wife, the former Everette Gause of South Carolina, reside at 349 William Dr., Hershey, Pa. 17033, and have two children: William, a seventh grade student at Hershey Jr. High School, and Cathy, a freshman at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown.

Rodney Kelchner '56 is associate professor and dean of students at Mansfield State College, a position he has held for 13 years. The Kelchners have four children and live at Box 109, Covington, Pa. 16917.

William L. Bitner III '56 has recently been promoted to senior vice president of the First National Bank of Glens Falls, N.Y. He received his Master's degree from Rutgers University in 1958 and his Ed.D. from New York University in 1964. Mrs. Bitner (Wylla Mae Bowman '56) is teaching sixth grade in Voorheesville, N.Y. The Bitners have two children, ages 13 and 15, and will reside at 29 Hiawatha Dr., Guilderland, N.Y. 12084, until mid-summer of 1977.

J. Harrison Morson '56 is dean of students at Union College in Cranford, N.J. He has been associated with the college since 1969 and was named to his present post in 1970. Prior to that, he was a member of the faculty and administrative staff of Abraham Clark High School in Roselle, N.J., where he taught business education, coached, and later served as guidance counselor and finally high school principal. Recently, he was nominated to serve a three-year term on the board of trustees of the Middle States Association, the accrediting agency for colleges and secondary schools. He has been a member of and has chaired the association's committee on school and college relations. It was under his leadership that the recent four-volume "Guide to Middle States Schools" was developed.

Walter J. Kozloski '56, a teacher and New Jersey assemblyman, was honored January 16 by the Oglensky-Jackson Post, Jewish War Veterans of the United States when he became the recipient of the coveted "Haym Salomon Award."

The presentation was made at a breakfast in the Freehold (N.J.) Jewish Community Center. Invited guests included former Freehold Mayor Fred Quinn, the only other recipient of the award; Mayor Roger Kane and individuals holding township and county offices.

The award was presented to Assemblyman Kozloski by Irving Kaplan, chairman of the affair, for "having given of himself in innumerable causes and continuing to serve the 11th District in the most commendable manner possible, thus typifying the memory of Haym Salomon, who during the Revolutionary War gave his entire fortune for the freedom of his adopted country."

Kozloski, son of Walter Vincent Kozloski and the late Mrs. Kozloski, graduated from Plymouth (Pa.) High School in 1952 and entered BSC that fall. He graduated from BSC in 1956 with a B.S. degree in elementary education. During the years 1957-1959, he was in the U.S. Army, first with the First Division at Fort Riley, Kansas, and later with the Eighth Division in Sanhofen, Germany, where he played on the championship Western European Football Team in 1958.

Walter married the former Louise Zebroski and moved to New Jersey, where he served as a teacher in the Brick Township Schools from 1959 to 1961. He then moved to Freehold Borough Schools and later to Howell Twp. Schools. In 1963 he received his master's degree in administration from Seton Hall University.

He served three terms on the Freehold Borough Council and was first elected to the New Jersey General Assembly in 1973. He was re-elected in 1975. Other political activities included membership in the Freehold Borough Democratic Club, serving as president in 1966 and 1972; past treasurer and delegate to the National Young Democratic Convention in 1965 for the Monmouth County Young Democratic Club; and member of the Western Monmouth Democratic Club.

In 1967 Kozloski was named among the Outstanding Young Men of America by the Jaycees. His many civic activities assisted in achieving this honor. In addition to the assemblyman's many professional, governmental and family responsibilities, he has found time to offer leadership in numerous civic activities. He is past president of the Freehold Area Jaycees; originator and past president of the Freehold Area Pop Warner Football; member, Freehold Fire Department and fire commissioner for five years; member, board of directors, Freehold Area Y.M.C.A.; member, Knights of Columbus Council No. 1672, trustee three years; member, Elks Lodge 1454; member and usher, St. Rose of Lima Church; manager and umpire, Freehold Babe Ruth Baseball for nine years; umpire of Little League, three years; Charity Ball committee for Freehold Area Hospital, 12 years; and member, Monmouth College President's Council.

But there have been other honors for Assemblyman Kozloski. He received the Henry Biessenbier Memorial Trophy for president of the most outstanding Jaycee Chapter in New Jersey for 1964-65; the Jaycees' "Distinguished Service Award" in 1966; Monmouth County 4-H Association Supportive Award in 1975; Bayshore Conference of Mayors Award in 1975; Knights of Columbus Certificate of Merit, 1976; Outstanding Young Man of America Award, 1967; Monmouth Association of Retarded Children, Inc., Award, 1976; and now — the Haym Salomon Award.

The Kozloskis have four children — William Vincent, 12; Lea Louise, 9; Laura Lynn, 8; and Lorraine Lee, 4. Their address is 18 Vought Ave., Freehold, N.J. 07728.

The chart on this page shows the placement statistics of Bloomsburg graduates over the past five years. Please note that the statistics compiled for the most recent graduates are not our FINAL figures, since our reports are completed in March of each year. The figures reflect data compiled as of December.

It may be beneficial to note what we term as "Placed." A graduate is considered "placed" when he expresses satisfaction with his present position and if it is considered by him/her to be a meaningful position. For example, a manager trainee in a food store chain would be counted as placed, while a part-time checker would not.

In general, compared to national statistics supplied by the College Placement Council, Bloomsburg graduates are keeping pace with or are above other college and university graduates. It is taking seniors longer to find meaningful employment. One is no longer handed a diploma and a job in the same day, and the delayed entry into the world of work may amount to two full years.

Keeping the Bloomsburg Placement statistics high can be maintained with alumni help. If there are openings in your organization, remember Bloomsburg graduates and give the Career Development and Placement Center a call.

Bloomsburg graduates have traditionally been characterized by a desire to learn and work hard and would be a great asset to any employer. After all, you are!

Career Development & Placement

That's a question that many students ask themselves. Seniors especially are concerned about the inevitability of facing the great unknown. After all, life at Bloomsburg is fairly safe, secluded and non-threatening, with an occasional disruption in exam schedule or squabble between friends.

Lives regimented by classes, cafeteria meal times, and library hours are soon to be controlled by bus schedules, conference meetings, and lunch hours. Looking for that ideal schedule is a problem that all seniors face. The tight job market has created an environment where it is indeed very much of a problem to seek out meaningful employment. Job-hunting is one of the most earth-shattering transitions that seniors encounter.

How might these tensions be eased? The Career Development and Placement Center plays a major role, offering services and much needed assistance to the nail-biting student.

The staff of the Center holds sessions in various classes with large senior enrollments to orient students to job-hunting techniques. A graduate who is confident of himself and knows what he is looking for in the way of employment has a definite psychological advantage. Feeling good about oneself is a definite plus that projects to a potential employer. Resume construction and interviewing are included as well as employer contact techniques.

Other services outlined to seniors during these sessions are the procedures for establishing credentials or placement files. Credentials and references are kept in the Center for six years after graduation and may be kept active as long as the alumnus desires.

In fact, any job-hunting services offered to our regular students are equally available to alumni. If you feel you are at a point where your present situation is somewhat frustrating and are contemplating a change, please consider assistance from the Career Development and Placement Center. Some additional services we provide are individual counseling, resume critiques, employer lists, company literature, and vacancy lists (mailed once every three weeks to anyone who desires them). At present there is no charge for the services — that's right, FREE!

ALUMNI CAREER

Start planning early

Accurate career planning begins before the senior year and does not end with a person's first job. Deciding what career area to prepare for should be a thoughtful and well-planned process. One can never be sure when plans will change due to unforeseen variables. Knowing how to assess skills and talents, evaluate interests and values, and being able to translate these attributes into marketable points is encouraged by the counselors in the Career Development and Placement Center.

Freshmen and sophomores will often be confused as to what courses they should choose as their majors. Available career opportunities are of particular concern. Before committing themselves to a major in biology, for example, "undecided" underclassmen will talk with counselors about their interests and abilities to pursue a career in biology as well as their motivations to study and work in the field. Students may further check career literature to explore related areas of interest, possible earnings and working conditions, supply and demand figures, and potential for advancement.

Students find answers to these questions in a variety of ways. Books, magazines, and other literature can provide answers. Beginning in September, 1977, a Career Laboratory will be established in the Center, including various audio/visual resources arranged in a learning stations format so that students can explore individually or with a friend different aspects of themselves in relation to careers.

Alumni can help

One of the best ways for students to get the "feel" of a job or career area is to have direct contact with someone in that occupation. Talking to a lawyer or speech pathologist may be more inspiring than reading an article or job description.

Programs utilizing alumni as resource people are operational on many campuses. Students can make a friend in the "working world" by visiting a professional in his home or office during vacations or weekends. Some alumni combine visits to their alma mater with a visit to the career development and placement center and are available to provide information on their work experiences. Many alumni who are in key positions may encourage their companies to consider graduates for employment and notify the center when openings occur.

In whatever capacity, alumni play a key role in the future employment of graduates.

The Career Development and Placement Center at Bloomsburg is hopeful that alumni will respond to the call for volunteers. Please fill out the form at the bottom of the page to indicate your degree of interest in our program. Return the completed forms and/or stop in or call the center.

Our address is Career Development and Placement Center, Ben Franklin Building — Room 12, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815. Our telephone number is 717-389-3808.

Just as you can be of service to our students, we hope to be of service to you.

Graduate is teaching in Catholic mission

By David J. Wisniewski '75

It is 10 a.m. on the last day of February. Already the desert floor has begun to heat up under an intense morning sun. A constant wind sweeps across this vast expanse as I deliberately pedal my way westward toward the town of Grants. The road, a narrow, isolated ribbon, can be seen winding its way through the emptiness.

As I pass through Grants, the traffic momentarily picks up. Several minutes more of hard riding and the traffic, people, and buildings are left behind.

Once more the loneliness of the desert is my only companion. Then this loneliness suddenly gives way to awe as the mountains loom ahead. Then the climb begins.

For the next 15 miles, it will be hard climbing on a road snaking its way up to an 11,500-foot summit. Half way to the top, the sandy soil disappears, its place taken by snow. Patches of ice appear on the road, and for the last thousand feet of climb, the riding is brutal.

Finally, amidst a flurry of wind, the summit is reached. From this perch in the sky, it is possible to see things fifty miles away. It is at this moment that the struggles seem worth the effort.

Getting here was half the fun. Just being here is fun. This is the land where freezing snows, intense heat, mountains and deserts all exist in harmony. This is the Land of Enchantment. This is New Mexico.

Coming to New Mexico was no accident for me. I worked hard to get here, and I had two good reasons for wanting to be here.

First of all, cycling is a very important part of my life. During the past three and a half years, more than 15,000 miles have passed beneath my wheels.

After 6,000 miles of excursions in and around eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey, I felt a need for a change. The Southwest had always intrigued me, and I knew deep down that it would be a great place to ride.

My second reason for fleeing the East was certainly not an unusual one. After living in and near Philadelphia all my life, I got tired of watching the unending construction of gas stations and shopping centers. I knew that things just had to be better 2,000 miles and seven states away.

So, in the fall of 1974, spurred on by the desire for a different kind of life, I set out to find my own little patch of desert.

Spending four years at BSC prepared me for a teaching career, but did little to prepare me for the headaches of finding a job. Finding work as a teacher in New Mexico is not easy.

To begin with, there are only 88 public school districts in the entire 122,000 square miles. Further complicating matters in my search was the fact that I was fresh out of school with no experience teaching under contract.

As any education major knows, school superintendents tend to view recent graduates as though they have bubonic plague.

The summer of 1975 wore on, and nothing was coming through. By the time August rolled around, thoughts of despair entered my mind. If you can't find a job in New Mexico, where can you find one?

I would say this to myself over and over. I was preparing for the inevitable - working as something other than a teacher, when my break finally came.

Back in my senior year, when I still had a little foresight, I secured the services of an Albuquerque employment agency. As it turned out, it was through their efforts (and my wallet), that I got my job - not in any public school system, but at a Catholic mission school, on an Indian reservation in an isolated area of the west-central New Mexico mountains.

It certainly wasn't what I had planned on, but what choice did I have? So, going on the assumption that it would at least be a novel experience, and following the old adage that beggars can't be choosers, I accepted the job.

From the moment I crossed the Texas border and entered New Mexico, I knew I'd made the right decision. Here was a land like I'd never seen before - natural landforms that defied description, mountains so high that they seemed to touch the sky, stretches of grassy plain and stark desert that contained no sign of anything man-made.

I couldn't wait to get to San Fidel, my home-to-be. In the time I've been here now, I have grown so accustomed to these surroundings that I don't think I would ever be able to leave.

When I got my first glimpse of San Fidel, I was taken back a little. They certainly didn't have anything like this back in Pennsylvania. At that moment I sincerely hoped that it would just be a matter of adjusting to something totally new, and that after a few weeks of life in the wilds, it would seem as if I had lived there all my life. I was right.

San Fidel is a diminutive, ancient town of about 150, nestled at the foot of 11,000-foot high Mount Taylor. One post office, a general store and a church are all we have, aside from the 20 or 25-odd residences of the townspeople.

A short half-mile ride down a primitive, rutted dirt road will take you to my place of employment, the St. Joseph School and Mission, more or less the focal point of the entire metropolitan San Fidel area.

Numerous other dirt roads (yes, Virginia, dirt roads still exist) serve as the major traffic arteries for most of the settlements such as San Fidel. Usually, only the very well-travelled roads in New Mexico are paved.

To give you an idea of just how isolated this area is, I have to go fifteen miles to buy food and to secure many of the other services that I took for granted back East. This is a small price to pay, however, for the clean air, wide open spaces, and less hectic life style of the American Southwest.

The St. Joseph School and Mission is a permanent fixture of the area, since it has existed for quite some time. The permanent staff of the institution, other than myself, consists of three nuns, three Franciscan priests, and two Franciscan brothers.

They are, quite simply, eight of the nicest people I have ever worked with, and I am privileged to have them for friends and colleagues. The school and mission serves the needs of the Laguna and Acoma Indians, providing religious and academic instruction for the children of this area.

The largest amount of my time, obviously, is devoted to teaching. Teaching on the fringes of the Laguna and Acoma Indian reservations is really a tremendous experience because the job demands a certain sensitivity to the problems of these people. And living among the Indians has provided me with the opportunity to look at their problems first-hand.

Although the families are generally poor (this is one of the most impoverished areas of the country), the people tend to be very friendly, and the children are a joy to work with. I teach a split class of first and second grades, with the majority of the kids being either Lagunas or Acomas. The remainder of the children are either Spanish or Anglo.

When you work with children like these, it's a whole new ballgame - far different than a teacher in Pennsylvania would encounter. First of all, you have to exercise a lot of motherly love, and supply an especially large amount of fatherly discipline, because many of the children often are forgotten by their parents.

Among the Indians, there is a serious drinking problem, hence some of the children come from broken homes and problem marriages, or at the very least, from homes where they receive less than adequate attention.

Another problem is the relative poverty in which these people live. The children usually have to do without many of the things we take for granted. They have very few toys, almost no reading materials at home, and many of the families don't have television sets. Can you imagine, an American home without a television set? They are also hurt by a lack of contact with the outside world, with the lucky ones getting to Albuquerque several times a year.

All this, of course, has an effect on the capacity of these children to learn. The process of learning to read is a struggle for the Indian child who has had very limited exposure to the fancier things of modern life.

Stumbling blocks crop up when you have to use a reading program designed for and tailored to the experiences of a child who lives in a Chicago suburb. And on the very limited funds of a mission school, it's hard to provide the children with all the nice educational aids that would help make him a better achiever.

We are not without our bright spots, however. I already mentioned that we have a first-rate faculty. In addition, the children are provided with a free, hot lunch every school day. Our cook, who also doubles as our librarian, does just a fantastic job when you consider all the work she has to keep ahead of.

Not all of my time is taken up with school-related work. So far I have had an opportunity to ride some 10,000 miles on my bicycle within the confines of New Mexico. It has provided me with an opportunity to really get to know the west central area of the state, and I plan to keep on going until I see the whole 122,000 square miles first-hand.

By hook or crook, I'm going to remain in New Mexico. Maybe not in my present job, but I couldn't leave now if I wanted to. I keep making an effort to find a job in a public school system, and maybe I'll find something yet.

All you education majors moping around at home, unable to find work in your chosen fields, might do well to look into the Southwest as a prospective place of employment, not necessarily in New Mexico, but there is plenty of space out here. Just remember when you apply for a teaching job that I was here first.

I would appreciate hearing from any of my old buddies with whom I have lost contact. You can write to me at Box 800 Chief Rancho, Grants, N.M. 87020.

Changes in Constitution proposed

The BSC Alumni Board held its quarterly meeting on Saturday, January 22, with 19 of the 21 members present. The meeting was conducted by Millard Ludwig, president.

A report was given by Boyd Buckingham for President McCormick, who was unable to attend due to illness.

Considerable time was devoted to discussion of delinquent student loans and proposed changes in the Association's Constitution and By-laws.

These changes will be presented to the membership for approval at the business meeting on Alumni Day, April 30, 1977. Members may request copies of the proposed Constitutional changes from the Alumni office prior to Alumni Day.

Enthusiasm wouldn't ordinarily run too high when a football team turns in a 2-7 record for the year, but anyone following the dramatics of the 1976 edition of the Bloomsburg State College football squad had to be impressed with the over-all performance of the spirited group of athletes that Coach Ron Puhl and his assistants guided through the season just past.

The squad was composed of some veterans who had experienced some fopsided losses; a few upperclassmen who had not tried football at BSC prior to 1976; and some 24 freshmen (with 14 being used a great deal of the time).

Tops record

Jerry Radocha, senior co-captain of the Huskies' cage team, scored 29 points January 17 to break BSC's career scoring record while leading the team to an 88-76 victory over host York College. Radocha entered the game just five points shy of John Willis' ('74) former mark of 1,467. The Red Land High School graduate became the Huskies' all-time leading scorer with 7:24 left in the first half when he canned a field goal to push his total to 1,468. He still has a number of games remaining in February to pad that mark.

Alumni asked to help with track program

BSC track program will host an annual Invitational Track and Field Meet on Saturday, April 23, 1977. It is the wish of the coaching staff to include all past BSC Alumni who would be interested in supporting the track program by serving as timers, officials, etc.

A monetary donation is needed for securing medals and trophies for individual and relay events. Your support is needed in this annual event.

Anyone who is interested should contact the Alumni office or Carl M. Hinkle, Head Track Coach, Nelson Field House, BSC.

The Huskies were in every ball game — they were competitive all the way, averaging 15 points per game to their opponents' 18.

While the offense carried off some honors in the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania State College conference, specifically in the passing department, it was the defense, unheralded most the year, which deserves some attention.

It was a pleasure to participate in the press coverage of the games; to see freshman Mike Canzler of Waverly, N.Y., win the passing honors in the eastern conference; to view the antics of the diving Tom Brennan, who led the division in pass receiving.

But looking beyond the statistics of that nature, again, it was the defense which set the tone for a most interesting year. The very first game was an example when Shippensburg ran the kick-off back for a touchdown on the first play. The defense could have given up, and the result could have been another dismal defeat. But they held western division champs-to-be Shippensburg at bay until the offense could unwind, and at the end of the game the homestanding Raiders had some anxious moments.

At East Stroudsburg, in the final game, the Warriors scored two touchdowns in the first period, and people in the press box began talking about a "laugher." It wasn't to be that way, for until the last period there was only one touchdown difference, and East Stroud, hoping to roll up a big score and impress the Lambert boys, just could not put the Huskies away. The defense was the difference.

Time after time during the season, headline runners would face the Huskies only to hear the final whistle sound with a less-than-average game. It would be difficult to point out the stars of this defensive unit which fought so hard during the season.

We're not trying to take any of the headlines away from the offense and passing attack. The records of Canzler and Brennan speak for themselves, and they'll be back next year along with the many other fine offensive players. But the boys in the trenches (including the linebackers) and the defensive backs certainly deserve a lot of credit. And some of it must go to the coaches who worked so hard to prepare the boys for the season.

Right now I can hardly wait until next season!

Neufer named security chief; Wagner retires

Richard Neufer, a veteran of nine years experience with the security force at BSC, replaced Keith D. Wagner as director of security and safety, effective January 14, the date of Wagner's retirement.

Wagner, a member of the force for ten years, and Mrs. Wagner, who has been a library assistant at the college for 5½ years, were guests at a surprise dinner in Kehr Union given by members of the security department and their wives.

Dr. John A. Hoch, dean emeritus, was master of ceremonies and informal talks acknowledging Wagner's service were delivered by President James H. McCormick, Boyd F. Buckingham, vice president for administration; Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, acting vice president for academic affairs; Dr. Frank S. Davis, acting assistant vice president for administration; and Charles Roberts, director of the Pennsylvania Law Enforcement Academy.

Woman's World: Mamie Higgins Thomas '16

Mamie Higgins Thomas '16 was born in Plymouth, Pa., and grew up there. She attended the public school and graduated in 1914, a member of the first class to wear caps and gowns. She entered Bloomsburg Normal School and graduated with a two-year diploma in 1916, which would be made permanent after two years of teaching. Mamie's aim was to be a well-trained, dedicated teacher. Her motto was "This one thing I do."

Her first teaching assignment was a fourth grade class in Bound Brook, N.J. She stayed only one year, since she was eager to teach in Pennsylvania and have her diploma made permanent. Her next teaching contract came from Wapwallopen, Pa. — a farming district, where schools opened early in the fall and closed early in spring, thus allowing children time to help parents in planting and harvesting seasons.

When schools were about to open in Plymouth, Mamie received an offer to teach there. She wanted to teach in her hometown, so she figured out a way to do it. She took an unemployed teacher with her on the day she met with members of the Wapwallopen School Board. These country farmers had heard good reports of Mamie and were especially pleased that she had had no discipline problems, so they were reluctant to release her from her contract.

However, they finally agreed to let her go and to hire the friend she had brought as a replacement. Thus,

Mamie continued her teaching career in Plymouth until 1923.

Along with teaching a fourth grade in Plymouth, Mamie participated in many community affairs. She kept up her interest in the YWCA after she left BSNS and served as a delegate to a national conference held at Lake George, N.Y.

She was superintendent of the Sunday School in her church, a member of the local Sunday School Board, a member of the Luzerne County Sunday School Association, and superintendent of the first Vacation Bible School held in Plymouth. The Vacation Bible School was most successful (400 children came), and it continued for several summers.

Being so interested in church work, it followed quite naturally that Mamie Higgins met and married a young man who felt called to the Christian ministry. She and her husband resigned their positions in Plymouth and enrolled at the Practical Bible Training School in Johnson City, N.Y. At the school, they found work that enabled them to pay board and tuition. Because they had been endorsed by their home church in Plymouth, they were able to preach in various churches during summer vacations.

Mamie was a substitute teacher in the public schools of Leonardo, N.J., and Caldwell, N.J., where her husband held pastorates. After serving forty years in the ministry, illness forced Mr. Thomas to retire.

The years of Christian ministry were most fruitful as Mamie Higgins Thomas notes that 30 young people went to schools for Christian training and are serving today as missionaries, evangelists, and teachers in Children's Bible Clubs.

Some of the verses that mean much to Mamie Higgins Thomas are Matthew 9:37-38, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few, pray ye, therefore the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

She gives as her testimony the words of Psalm 40:5, "Many, O Lord, my God, are thy wonderful works which thou has done, and thy thoughts which are to usward — they are more than can be numbered."

Mrs. Thomas is now a busy, happy person — an active member of the First Baptist Church, Bloomfield. She adds to her income by sewing, but gives freely of her services to the Baptist Home where she went to live when her husband passed away in 1972.

The Thomases were blessed with two children and six grandchildren. Their son, David, is employed in dental research at N.Y.U. and their married daughter, Ardyth, lives with her family in Livingston, N.J.

Mrs. Thomas remembers some members of the faculty. She recalls the time she asked Miss McBride, glis' preceptress, for permission to accept an invitation to the home of a friend in the town of Bloomsburg. Miss McBride sent her to Dr. Waller, who questioned her thoroughly about where she was going, and who would be there. Finally, he gave her permission to make the visit. Mamie thanked him and told him how much she appreciated his concern for her welfare. She remembers Dr. Waller as a fine Christian gentleman who inspired every student under his supervision.

Each time Mamie went home for a visit, she shopped for Professor Brill. He liked broad pen points and Mamie was able to get them at Davenport's Book Store in Plymouth. (No felt tips or ball points in those days!)

a city that keeps its looks

Tired of the same old summer drag? Are you too old for the "groupies" at the shore?

Then how about taking a three-week course in one of the world's great cultural centers — Salzburg, Austria?

Bloomsburg State College, as a member of the Pennsylvania Consortium of International Education, is offering the "Sociology of Alienation" as part of the 1977 program for graduates and undergraduates. The course runs from July 22 to August 14 and is a three-credit "swing" course for both graduate and undergraduate credit.

Salzburg is a remarkable city — the music capital of the world, home of Mozart and "The Sound of Music," and center of the Salzburg summer (music) festival renowned around the world. The festival will be in progress during July and August.

All students live with Austrian families in Salzburg. During the past, most have rented bikes to travel to the quaint little villages in the Alps surrounding the city.

Classes are in the morning, and field trips are common. Faculty and students eat lunch (the big meal of the day) together in a hotel near the University of Salzburg, where classes are held.

Week-end trips are planned to Venice and the castles of Bavaria. Vienna and Innsbruck are easily accessible by train. Everyday, there are many activities posted on the bulletin board.

No German is required; Salzburg is an international city, where many speak English. If you've never been to Europe, this is an incredible opportunity. If you have, you might be excited by the prospect of seeing what has been called the "most beautiful city in all Europe."

There are a six-week and three-week program. The BSC offering is in the three-week session, July 22 to August 14. The full six-week program runs from June 30 to August 14.

The comprehensive price for the six-week session (two courses, one in each three-week session) is $1,450. The three-week session cost is $1,030. The comprehensive price includes (a) round-trip jet transportation with Air France, New York to Stuttgart to New York; (b) room and breakfast with Salzburg families; (c) all lunches and dinners in our private dining facilities in Salzburg (not including beverages); (d) all matriculation and tuition fees, and official transferable college credit for all participants who successfully complete the course work; (e) land transportation from Stuttgart to Salzburg to Stuttgart; (f) sight-seeing tours of Hellbrunn and the city of Salzburg; (g) folk-lore and folk dancing programs and other program-sponsored activities; (h) use of office facilities in Salzburg and the assistance of German-speaking translators; and (i) U.S. departure taxes.

For further course and program information, the application, and answers to all questions, contact Dr. Christopher F. Armstrong, Dept. of Sociology, BSC, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

5,356 register

Despite inclement weather, a total of 5,356 full-time and part-time undergraduate and graduate students completed registration January 10 for the second semester, according to Robert L. Bunge, registrar.

Of that total, 4,965 are undergraduate students and 391 are graduate students. The undergraduate figure is comprised of 4,254 full-time and 301 part-time degree students and 55 full-time and 355 part-time non-degree continuing education students.

Approximately 2,500 men and women are being housed in campus residence halls and will be served their meals through the facilities of the Scranton Commons. In addition, about 1,400 students are living in the Bloomsburg area, with the balance commuting from their homes or living in areas near off-campus student teaching or intern assignments.

About 639 faculty, administrative, and non-instructional personnel are on duty this semester.

Montour Alumni honor Diehls at gathering

BSC graduates living or working in Montour County met January 13 at the Sheraton Inn, Danville, to hear representatives from the campus and to select officers for the coming year.

The meeting was arranged by Miss Lois Bryner '44, a Danville resident who serves on the Alumni Association board of directors, with the intent of honoring Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Diehl '09 & '11.

Mr. Diehl is a retired educator who served 44 years in Montour County and a total of 49 years in Pennsylvania. He served 28 years on the BSC board of trustees, longer than any other person, and has devoted many years of service to BSC Alumni affairs. In 1962 he was the recipient of the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award.

Unfortunately, the Diehls were unable to attend this meeting because of cold weather and on advice of their physician. A recording was made of the testimonials and this will be given to the Diehls along with a gift from the Alumni Association.

Officers of the Montour County BSC Club for next year are Ruth Ann Montague '59, president; Todd M. Baney '72, vice president; Nelen Swank '44, secretary; and Susan Sidler '30, treasurer.

Representatives from the campus and guests included President and Mrs. McCormick, President Emeritus and Mrs. Harvey Andruss, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fenstermaker, Millard C. Ludwig, president of the BSC Alumni Association; Donald A. Watts, executive director of the Alumni Association, and Mrs. Watts. A total of 37 people braved the cold weather to attend the affair.

More supervisory certificates offered

Bloomsburg State College has been authorized to award the supervisory certificate for public school teachers in ten additional areas. In a May 26, 1976 letter, the Pennsylvania Department of Education authorized the College to establish programs leading to the supervisory certificate in business, communication, early childhood, elementary education, foreign languages, mathematics, school health services, science, social studies and special education.

General coordination of the program is under the direction of the Department of Secondary Education with participation by other appropriate departments as disciplines may require.

Since 1964, BSC has been authorized to award the reading supervisory certificate.

"Programs included in our latest authorization from the Pennsylvania Department of Education are important additions to our graduate certification program," stated Charles H. Carlson, dean of the School of Graduate Studies.

This new program is in the area of supervision. A student must hold a earned Master's degree and complete a minimum of fifteen semester hours beyond the Master's degree in courses dealing with group dynamics, curriculum, research, law and budget preparations, and supervision. A student must also hold a valid teaching certificate in the field for which he wishes to be certified as a supervisor and have completed four years of teaching.

Those interested in securing application forms and/or information regarding the program should contact the Office of Graduate Studies.

Dr. Glenn Good, acting chairman of the Department of Secondary Education; Dr. Donald C. Miller, chairman of the Department of Elementary Education; and Dr. Andrew J. Karpinski, chairman of the Department of Special Education.

Study-tour in Southern France

In the spring of 1975, Professor Kenneth Wilson of the art department and Professor Mary Lou John of the foreign languages department organized an interdisciplinary course, Art and Culture of France, which involved a 17-day tour of southwestern France, the chateau country, and Paris, beginning with several days in Spain.

Twenty-eight students, faculty, high school teachers and other adults took part in this rewarding experience of immersion into the culture, language and art of France.

Some of the highlights of the study-tour included visits to the prehistoric caves of the Dordogne Valley, containing the art of prehistoric man, and a stay at a working farm, where some of the students helped to feed the livestock. Everyone enjoyed tasting the various foods produced on the spot: the poultry, bread, wine, and cheese.

The group visited outstanding examples of many periods of architecture — Roman, Romanesque, Gothic, Renaissance, Classic, and Modern, with stops in Perpignan, Carcassonne, Toulouse, Montfort, Les Eyzies, Poitiers, Limoges (and the pottery works), Loches, Chenonceaux, Amboise, Blois, Chartres, and Versailles, completing the tour with several days in Paris, where visits to the Louvre, the Museum of Modern Art, and the Jeu de Paume (museum housing work of the Impressionists) were featured.

The history of the various regions visited was stressed, and much present-day culture was absorbed in visits to open-air markets, the specialty shops, the cafes and restaurants, the theater, and the opera. Orientation sessions were held before the trip and a review was conducted upon return.

In the Summer of 1977, the two departments will sponsor a second study-tour under the leadership of Professors Wilson and John. This course is open to all French and Art students, as well as any other persons who would like a first-hand experience in the art and culture of France.

This year the focus will be upon the cultural heritage of Southern France, especially Provence, with stays in Nice, Aix, and Avignon, and concluding with several days in Paris.

Visits will be made to historical sites, such as edifices remaining from the days of the Roman Empire, to museums, and ateliers, particularly those of the Impressionists, and to areas loved and made famous by many artists and writers.

Participants will have the opportunity to become absorbed in present-day culture in sunny Provence, to taste the regional specialties and to take part in the regional life.

In Paris, walking tours will be made of various picturesque quarters, along with visits to special places such as the newly-modeled Comedie Francaise and the new Museum of Modern Art location in the center of the city, where the old market was recently demolished to make way for a beautiful new park.

This year the course has been expanded to 22 days, from June 19 to July 10, and basic fees (including breakfast, dinner, all transportation, most entrance fees, and all lodging — based on a minimum of 30 participants) amount to $897. Tuition for three credits (based upon present fees) will be $99 for undergraduate credit and $129 for graduate credit. For non-credit, there is an attendance fee of $25.

For further information, contact Professor Wilson (389-2608 or 784-2243) or Professor John (389-2511 or 784-0434).

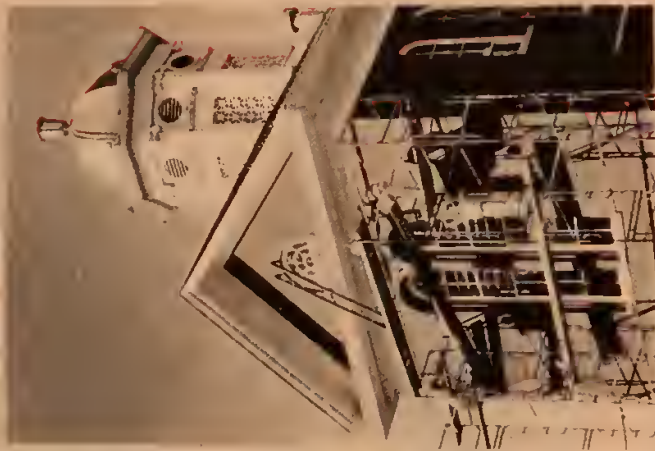

PROFESSOR Mary Lou John points out to interested students some of the sites to be studied and visited during the second study-tour of France, "Art and Culture of France," to be sponsored by the departments of art and foreign languages from June 19 to July 10, 1977.

Mitchell appointed new veep

Dr. James V. Mitchell, dean of the Teachers College of Ball State University, Muncie, Ind., has been appointed vice president for academic affairs at BSC. His appointment was recommended by President McCormick and approved by the board of trustees March 9.

The new vice president will assume his duties July 1. Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, BSC's dean of extended programs, has been filling the position on an acting basis since the resignation last August of Dr. Dayton S. Pickett.

Dr. Mitchell, who won national recognition for his teaching, research, and service, went to Ball State University as dean in 1974, following seven years as associate dean for graduate studies at the University of Rochester. He received his bachelor of arts degree in liberal arts and his master's and Ph.D. degrees in educational psychology from the University of Chicago.

Dr. Mitchell issued the following statement after learning of his appointment:

"I was most pleased to learn that the (trustees) had approved my appointment as vice president for academic affairs, effective July 1, 1977. Bloomsburg State College has had the good fortune to be blessed with enlightened and vigorous leadership, a very able and dedicated faculty and staff, and a fine student body.

"With a strong and well-established reputation as a foundation for its efforts Bloomsburg State College has all the requisites to continue its tradition of excellence and to meet the challenges of the future with the responsive and creative planning that results in quality education. I am most gratified to be able to take a leadership role in these efforts, and I am looking forward to assuming those leadership responsibilities in the very near future."

The new vice president began his professional career in 1953, serving for one year as consultant and director of

THE ALUMNI Association recognized Lambda Chi Alpha at a recent fraternity meeting for the brothers' efforts in a phonathon for the 1976 Alumni Fund Drive. Donald A. Watts, executive director, presented Curtis Melick, president, with a plaque for the fraternity house, while Paul McLinko received a plate for the largest amount pledged — $285.

Frat mans telephones to boost fund drive

The Alumni Service Award was presented to Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity for the work of its members in the phonathon November 29 to December 6, 1976. Thirty-six members and "Little Sisters" manned the telephones during the phonathon to call alumni in the toll-free areas of Bloomsburg to encourage their support in the 1976 fund drive.

A total of over $3,000 in pledges was received and many others promised to contribute but were undecided on the amount.

In addition to a bronze plaque which will be displayed on the mantle at the fraternity house, a special award was given to Paul McLinko for his achievements in getting the most pledges.

Donald Watts, executive director of the Alumni Association, made the presentations at a meeting of Lambda Chi Alpha members in Kuster Auditorium on January 26. Curtis Melick, president, received the plaque on behalf of the members and expressed hope that the group would want to repeat the phonathon next year as one of their service projects. Robert Nicolodi was acting president when Lambda Chi Alpha did the phonathon as one of its service projects.

Dr. FRANK S. DAVIS

Assistant veep post is filled

Appointment of Dr. Frank S. Davis, Jr., as assistant vice president for administration at BSC was approved March 9 by the board of trustees.

Dr. Davis, who was director of computer services at BSC since 1969, has been filling the position of assistant vice president on an acting basis since the retirement of Paul Martin last July.

The appointment was recommended by Boyd F. Buckingham, vice president for administration, following a national search by a college-wide ad hoc search and screen committee.

Doyle G. Dodson, assistant professor of business education, has been director of computer services on an acting basis since last July, and his appointment will continue until August 31.

Dr. Davis joined the BSC faculty in 1966 as an instructor of business education. He was granted a leave of absence for 1968-69 to pursue graduate study towards his doctorate at the University of Pittsburgh, where he served as a graduate assistant. He was appointed director of computer services in 1969 and was promoted to the rank of professor in 1974.

A native of Harrisburg, he was educated in the schools of that city. He earned the bachelor of science and master of education degrees at Shippensburg State College. He received his Ph.D. in business education-computer science from the University of Pittsburgh. Before coming to Bloomsburg, he was a teacher in Allentown school district.

Dr. Davis has served on numerous committees and task forces at the college. He has been a vice president of the State College System's Council, a member of the Advisory Council Educational Computing Activities serving on its state-wide long-range advisory committee, and chairman of ACECA Resource Sharing Committee. He has also been a state college representative on the Basic Education Data System's Council.

He and his wife, Sandra, reside at Bloomsburg R.D. 4 with a son, Jeffrey, age 10, and a daughter, Suzanne, six.

WARREN I. JOHNSON

M. ELEANOR WRAY

Dr. THOMAS G. STURGEON

Dr. JANET STAMM

Four retiring from faculty in May

The retirements of four BSC faculty members were approved March 9 by the board of trustees.

The retirees are Warren I. Johnson, assistant professor of elementary and early childhood education, who is completing 25 years at BSC; M. Eleanor Wray, assistant professor of health and physical education, 20 years; Dr. Thomas G. Sturgeon, professor of English, 14½ years; and Dr. Janet Stamm, professor of English, 12 years.

Johnson, who joined the faculty in September, 1952, as a staff member of the Benjamin Franklin Elementary Laboratory School, has had a total of 38½ years in the field of education. He was chairman of the department of elementary education from 1969 to 1973, returning to classroom duties at that time at his own request.

Johnson was extremely active during his leave of absence last year when he traveled throughout the country with a special Bicentennial program for children. The program, designed to foster further study of our country, was shown to approximately 20,000 elementary children. For many years, he was a supervisor of student teachers.

A native of Bangor, Pa., Johnson received his degrees from West Chester State College and Penn State, with additional graduate work taken at Millersville State College, Heidelberg University in Germany, East Stroudsburg State College, Penn State and Syracuse University. Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, he taught in schools of Richhill Township, Greene County, Pa., and Columbia, Pa. He is a veteran of World War II, where he served as a U.S. Army lieutenant.

Ms. Wray joined the health and physical education staff at BSC in 1957, and assumed the duties of women's intramural director, along with serving as the B Club and water ballet advisor. In about 1962, she helped initiate and organize the women's field hockey and basketball sports on the varsity level, and assumed the duties of field hockey coach. With the inception in 1972 of swimming and tennis as varsity sports for women, she became coordinator of women's intercollegiate athletics along with coaching tennis.

Ms. Wray is completing 30 years in the field of education. She previously taught at Mt. Lebanon and California, Pa., high schools; Heidelberg College; Carthage College; and Upper Iowa University. Her degrees were earned at Lake Erie College and Penn State, with additional studies at the latter and at the University of Pittsburgh.

An active member of the English Department, Dr. Sturgeon served on numerous departmental and faculty committees throughout his nearly 15 years of service at the college. He has served as a member of the graduate council, planning commission, task force, liberal arts, departmental curriculum committee, along with a number of evaluation and promotion committees. He was one of the founders of the faculty senate, and was instrumental in planning the representative assembly, which is the current governing body of the college.

Born in Philadelphia, he earned his A.B. degree at Westminster College and his M.S. and Ph.D. at Harvard University. He began his 31½ years of teaching in the American Mission, Assuit, Egypt. He later taught at the Universities of Kansas and Minnesota, and Franklin and Marshall College. In the 1930s, he was associated with the Manufacturers Trust Company and the J.S. Bache and Co. in New York City. He served in the U.S. Naval Air Combat Intelligence as a lieutenant in 1943-46.

His wife, Lois, has been director of elementary music in the Millville Area School District, and plans to retire at the same time.

Dr. Stamm became associate professor of English at BSC in 1965, after previously having served 14½ years in other schools. She began her teaching career in English and French at Susquehanna University in 1947, and then held successive teaching positions at the Bradford Junior College in Haverhill, Mass.; Cedar Crest College, Allentown, where she was also dean of women; Monmouth College in New Jersey, and Muhlenberg College in Allentown.

Dr. Stamm was a member of numerous departmental committees over the years. She has been an innovative teacher of Shakespeare, along with being a writer and dedicated teacher of writing.

Dr. Stamm received her early education in Brooklyn, N.Y., and was awarded her A.B. degree at Mt. Holyoke College and her A.M. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Pennsylvania.

Each of the four retirees has belonged to many organizations and contributed to publications pertaining to their fields.

Other retirements

Retirements for nine non-instructional employees were also approved March 9:

Gordon M. Bailey, painter foreman; Maynard C. Brown, institutional maintenance supervisor; Hazel M. Coutts, custodial worker I; Freas S. Follmer, utility plant operator; Clair E. Johnson, security officer I; Elwood Rickert, custodial worker I; Edna Sands, custodial worker I; Kenneth A. Shuck, maintenance repairman II; and Claude W. Zehner, equipment operator.

Hundreds expected for conference

The thirteenth annual Bloomburg State College Reading Conference will be held on campus March 31 through April 2, 1977. The Keystone State Reading Association's ninth annual meeting will be held in conjunction with this conference.

Activities get underway on Thursday, March 31, with more than 75 book exhibitors showing their materials, a film festival throughout the afternoon, and the KSRA Assembly of Delegates in the evening.

This year's theme for the conference is "Literacy Through Communications," and pre-registration has been far above expectations. Hotels and motels in the Bloomburg area have reported their rooms have been reserved by early registrants, which signals the calibre of the program prepared by Dr. Margaret Sponseller, professor of education and director of the BSC reading clinic.

The Friday program will open at 8:30 a.m. with book and materials exhibits which will continue until 4:30 p.m. Registration for those who have not pre-registered will occur from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Five workshops will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., and another six from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m., when a buffet luncheon will be served. Because of the large attendance at a time when students are on campus, it has been arranged with Hotel Magee to provide luncheons each day for approximately 100 of the attendees.

Some workshop themes for the morning sessions include: Integrating Phonics, Word Attack Skills, and Comprehension at the Beginning Reading Level; Unusual Approaches to Help Corrective Readers; Creative Writing at the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Grade Levels — A System Approach; Ways of Increasing Reading Comprehension, Basal Texts That Are Used With Hearing Impaired Kids — and many more!

The Friday afternoon program will continue with workshops until 5:20; however, group demonstrations are offered between 3:40 and 4:40, and coffee will be available in Centennial Gymnasium.

A general session is scheduled in Carver Hall between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. when Dr. Jerry M. Weiss, Distinguished Service Professor of Communications, Jersey City State College, will speak on the topic, "Personalities in Personalizing Reading."

The annual banquet will be held in Scranton Commons at 7:30 p.m., with Dr. Charles H. Carlson, dean of the School of Graduate Studies, presiding. Following remarks by President McCormick, children's author Avi Wortis, Trenton State College, will speak on the topic, "What Ever Happened to Tom (Sawyer), Dick (Hunter), and Harriet (The (The Spy)?"

The Saturday conference will open at 9 a.m. in Haas Auditorium. Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, dean of the School of Professional Studies, will be in charge. The speaker, Dr. Duane D. Drake, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., will speak on the topic, "Neurologic Aspects in Variation in Reading Skills."

The book and materials exhibit will continue from 8:30 until 12:20, as will the film festival for reading/language arts. These activities will be in Centennial Gymnasium. Following the general session and a coffee break, 20 group discussions will be offered between 11:30 and 12:45. In addition, a workshop on "Reading Disabilities or Learning Disabilities: Concordance or Confusion" will take place between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. with Dr. Jules C. Abrams, professor of learning disorders, Johns Hopkins University, as the speaker.

More than 300 people are involved in the planning and presentation of this conference. In addition to the nationally known speakers and out-of-state participants already mentioned, the following experts will serve as discussion group speakers, workshop leaders, or resource persons during the conference:

Dr. Norma Kahn, supervisor, College Reading Program, University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Gilbert Schiffman, professor of education, and Dr. Paul Daniels, associate professor of education, The Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Ronald Corrigan, director, Bureau of Teacher Certification, State Department of Education; Miss Kathryn O'Rourke, reading specialist, New York City; Dr. Margaret Early, professor of education, Syracuse University; Dr. Robert M. Wilson, reading department, University of Maryland; Dr. Ira Aaron, director of reading, University of Georgia; and Mrs. Wilhelmina Taylor, reading/language arts advisor, State Department of Education.

THE PLANNING committee for the 13th annual BSC/KSRA Reading Conference has announced the program for the largest campus gathering in many years. Dr. Margaret Sponseller, director of the BSC reading clinic, is also director and organizer of the conference. Committee members are (seated, from left) Mrs. Anne Jones, assistant professor, Center for Academic Development; Dr. William Woznek, associate professor of education; Dr. Sponseller; Dr. Charles Carlson, dean of the School of Graduate Studies; (standing) Bruce Teel, graduate assistant; William Yerger, reading supervisor, Bloomburg Area Schools; Dr. Gilbert Selders, professor of education, Reading Clinic; Heather Sutton, graduate assistant; and Dr. Peter Schneckner, assistant professor, Reading Clinic.

Howard Fenstemaker '12 was honored March 17 by the Bloomsburg Kiwanis for his 50 years of service to the club as pianist and in other capacities. He was presented a plaque by Dr. C. Stuart Edwards '41, a former student and good friend, in recognition of his being made a "Life Fellow" of Kiwanis International Foundation. Looking on is Robert Sweppenheiser, club president.

Picturesque scenes from BSC tour

Sighisoara — A Medieval town with walls and towers where everyone scurried for protection when the villages were being attacked by invaders. It is also the birthplace of Dracula, the Impaler.

Oxen teams are not uncommon in the rural areas of Romania. This picture was taken in a small town of German-speaking people, descendants of invaders centuries ago.

Old Bucharest Market Place — Area hardest hit by the recent earthquake.

Dr. JoAnne S. GROWNEY

Directing planning

Dr. JoAnne S. Growney has been appointed acting director of institutional planning at BSC for the second semester. A professor of mathematics, she will replace Dr. Lee C. Hopple, who has been granted a leave of absence.

Dr. Growney's appointment was announced in connection with the endorsement by the board of trustees of the college's Three-Year Action Plan for 1976-79. President McCormick noted the plan provides for continued development of major endeavors in a comprehensive program in health sciences, and continued strengthening of the recently expanded programs in business administration and continuing education.

Dr. Growney joined the BSC faculty in September, 1969. She received her B.S. degree from Westminster College, her M.A. degree from Temple University, and her Ph.D. from the University of Oklahoma. She taught in the Springfield Township School District at Orelan, Pa., for four years, was a lecturer at Susquehanna University and Bucknell University, and spent two years as a graduate assistant at the University of Oklahoma before coming to Bloomsburg.

'Brigadoon' to be staged end of month

The Bloomsburg Players, in cooperation with the BSC music department, will present the musical, "Brigadoon," on April 28-30 at 8:15 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts.

This special attraction will coincide with Alumni Day activities.

List your hobby in BSC booklet

Alumni Association members are invited to have their hobbies and crafts included in a resource booklet on crafts and hobbies, soon to be compiled by the College.

Anyone with such interests and skills should submit his name, address, and a description of the hobby or craft to John Trathen, Assistant Director of Student Activities, Kehr Union, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

Summer schedule

"Flexibility and a lot of courses," that's how Burel Gum, acting dean of the school of extended programs, describes the 1977 summer session at BSC.

Traditionally, Bloomsburg used a 3-6-3 enrollment pattern which was known as pre-session, main session, and post-session. This was followed by an experiment with a pattern of two six-week sessions.

BSC now offers seven separate sessions. There are three six-week sessions and four three-week sessions. The dates are as follows: Session I — May 31 to July 8; Session II — June 20 to July 29; Session III — July 11 to August 19; Session IV — May 31 to June 17; Session V — June 20 to July 8; Session VI — July 11 to July 29; and Session VII — August 1 to August 19.

Although the dates of several sessions overlap, the system allows for maximum flexibility for resident students and in-service teachers to schedule courses around other summer commitments.

Anyone who would like a copy of the 1977 summer sessions schedule and list of courses should complete the following form and mail it to Burel Gum, Office of Extended Programs, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

D.C. Alumni get together

A group of more than 50 BSC alumni in the Washington, D.C. area met February 4 in the Key Bridge Marriott Hotel, Arlington, Va., for cocktails and dinner. The get-together was arranged by Harriet Kocher '39 and Commander Curtis English '56.

Those attending from campus included President and Mrs. McCormick, Dr. and Mrs. Richard O. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Watts, and Millard Ludwig.

It was decided that a formal BSC Alumni Club be formed to encourage more participation and interest among graduates in the area and to assist in recruitment and job placement for BSC students.

Officers of the newly-formed club are Cmdr. English '56, 8112 Ashton-birch Dr., Springfield, Va., president; Jack Mertz '42, 2109 N. 16th St., Apt. 913, Arlington, Va., vice president; Nancy P. King '57, 13215 Grenoble Dr., Rockville, Md., secretary-treasurer.

Dr. McCormick reviewed the growth and development of the College and emphasized the importance of a strong and interested Alumni — especially in the areas of student recruitment and employment of BSC graduates.

Dr. Wolfe, acting vice president for academic affairs, spoke on curriculum changes now and in the future and predicted a strong and important future for BSC.

Watts, as executive director of the Alumni Association, used slides to show the results of alumni campus

Edith Doty Hayman '07 observed her 90th birthday on January 30. She taught in several New Jersey schools, as well as New Columbus, Cambra, Summerhill and the Scranton area. She was honored at an open house at the home of a son in New Columbus. She still enjoys good health and attends Sunday School and church each week.

Arthur Naugle '11, a life member of the BSC Alumni Association, wrote to President McCormick: "As the years come and go, my eyes grow dim. An unwelcome visitor comes creeping in (loneliness), so your kind letter with those of classmates and friends help to keep this unwelcome visitor away. I hope you had a Happy Holiday season and that 1977 and years to come will be happy ones for you as President of Bloomsburg State College. My prediction is that it will be the next state university. Am I right?" Mr. Naugle lives at 546 Ryders Lane, East Brunswick, N.J. 08816.

1913

Rena M. Snyder '13 wrote recently to President McCormick: "Your fine letter with greetings from my alma mater and best wishes for the new year is much appreciated. I cherish the beautiful landmark scene on the calendar; thank you, alumni association. Today I received The Alumni Quarterly for February. I was pleased to find under Classes in Review, news of 1913 classmates, especially the excellent article about Dr. John E. Bakeless. If I am able to attend my 65th class reunion, in the spring of 1978, I hope to do so. I will be 84, am in good health now, and active in church, fraternal and civic affairs." Her address is 13293 Freeland, Detroit, Michigan 48227.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lawton (Leah Bogart '14), Stone Church Rd., R.D. 1, Berwick, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary May 11, 1976. Her teaching experience was in a one-room school, grades one to eight, in Greenwood twp. — enrollment 32 pupils. She later taught in Montour County during World War II. For several years she was a Sunday School

Cage season one of most exciting in years

By CHARLES W. CHRONISTER
Basketball Coach

It has been one of the most exciting years in Bloomsburg basketball history. Several of the games (10) were decided by five points or less. The team finished 5-5 on the road while compiling a 12-2 mark at home. We were being considered for a Division II bid right up to the last game, but it was just not meant to be.

Rick Evans, Rick Joseph, and Jerry Radocha completed their careers in fine style. During their four years, the team compiled a 67-33 record. We hope that they will be just as successful in their future careers as on the Husky hardwood.

Evans finished ninth on the all-time scoring list, while Radocha set many all-time records. Among these were career scoring (four years), 1778; career assists (three years), 1496; and career assists, 338. Starting in 100 varsity games, he also established many more game, season and career records.

Before our final home game, an SRO Nelson Field House said good-bye to these young men.

A disastrous start prevented the team from finishing higher than fourth. We were 3-3 for the first part of the season, and 5-1 the second part, for an 8-4 finish. The standings were as follows: Cheyney, 10-2; Millersville, 9-3; Mansfield, 9-3; Bloomsburg, 8-4; Kutztown, 4-8; E. Stroudsburg, 1-11; and Shippensburg, 1-11.

The Huskies home success this year can be attributed to the outstanding support of their fans. Both students and townspeople turned Nelson Field House into a great small college basketball arena. For the final three Saturday nights, Nelson was sold out with over 3,000 fans.

Final statistics

Leading scorers — Jerry Radocha, 24.9; Al Williams, 15.1.

Leading rebounders — Jerry Radocha, 8.6; Steve Bright, 6.9; Rick Evans, 6.4.

Free-throw percentage — George Foering, 87.9 pct.; Jerry Radocha, 79; Al Williams, 75.

Bright, 51.7; Jerry Radocha, 51.1; Harry Warren, 51.1.

Assists — Harry Warren, 173; Jerry Radocha, 73; George Foering, 64.

Takes offensive foul — Steve Bright.

Basketball camp

We are running the second annual Husky Basketball School at the college this summer. If you know of any boys or girls that would be interested in improving their skills, please consider Bloomsburg for this coming summer: Boys — June 26-July 1; July 10-15; July 17-22; Girls — August 7-12.

(Editor's Note: Chronister picked up his 100th collegiate win this season and is currently 105-45 while at Bloomsburg. This moves him into second place on the all-time winning list.)

Husky swimmers set in

By ELI McLAUGHLIN

Men's Swimming Coach

The BSC men's swimming team completed their 1976-77 season with six members of the squad qualifying for NCAA Division II at Youngstown, Ohio. Stu Marvin, Keith Torok, Wayne Richards, Steve Price, Doug Thran, and Pete Dardaris are likely candidates for All-American honors.

They enter competition at Youngstown as definite underdogs because they will be competing against teams with full squads which are among the top competition in the country. (This article was written just before the team left Bloomsburg for Ohio.)

Highlights of the season show new team records in the 400-yard medley relay and the 400-yard freestyle relay. The medley relay team which consisted of sophomore Steve Price (Tamaqua), senior Doug Thran (Whippany, N.J.), sophomore team captain and All-American Wayne Richards (Norwin), and senior triple-All-American Stu Marvin (Upper Dublin) turned in a new record of 3:38.89.

The 400-yard freestyle relay team consisted of junior All-American Keith Torok (Warminster), Steve Price, Wayne Richards and Stu Marvin, who turned in a new time of 3:13.60.

Individual team records were set by Keith Torok in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:45.97 and Stu Marvin in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events with times of 21.5 and 47.4 respectively.

Other efforts were made by Steve Price, 100-yard backstroke, 56 seconds; Doug Thran, 100-yard breast stroke, 1:01.08, and Steve Price and

By MARY GORDNER

Women's Swimming Coach

The Women's varsity swimming and diving team posted its best record this year with six wins and four losses. We also established new team records in all but two events.

The highlight of the season was Tina D'Hora receiving All-American honors in the 50-yard backstroke at the AIAW Small College Nationals held at Clarion State College. She is the first All-American woman swimmer at BSC.

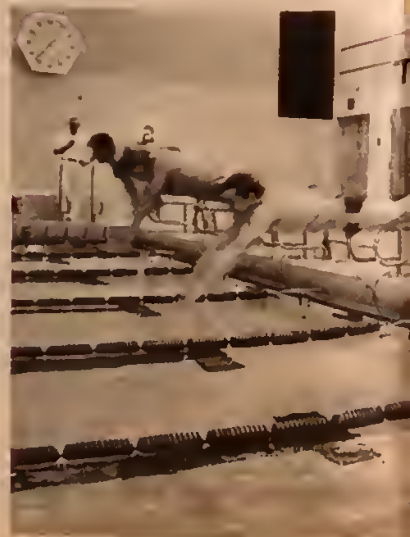

Eight swimmers and one diver qualified for the AIAW Small College National Swimming and Diving Championships — Laurie Kimmerer, Easton; Ardeth Bader, Trevoze; Tina de Vries, Bethlehem; Mollie Mandell, Quakertown; Amy Williamson, Emmaus; Jane Lamon, Warminster; Tina O'Hara, Clarks Summit; Ann Fadner, Landisville; Pat Seither, Riverton, N.J.;

The team placed fifth at the Second Annual Pennsylvania Invitational Swimming and Diving Meet held at Clarion State College.

The swimmers and divers were highly motivated throughout the season and their team spirit and enthusiasm played a large part in accomplishing our best season ever.

We will be losing Pat Seither, Tina de Vries, and Sue White due to graduation, but the underclassmen are very talented and I am optimistic about next year's team.

Grappler season 'successful, rewarding'

By ROGER SANDERS
Wrestling Coach

This article is being written just prior to our departure to the University of Oklahoma for the NCAA, Division I Tournament (March 15-20). The fact that six Husky wrestlers qualified through the Eastern Wrestling League (EWL) Tournament on March 5 and 6 demonstrates that this has truly been a successful and rewarding season for all those involved with the wrestling program at BSC.

Both the dual meet season (11-4) and the tournaments have gone very well for the team, with the lone exception being the Pa. State College Conference Tournament (6th place finish). Three of the four dual meet defeats were at the hands (legs) of EWL opponents — Pitt, Buffalo, and Clarion. To a great extent, those losses were put to rest with our fantastic second place finish to Penn State in the EWL Tournament.

Sixteen different boys wore the maroon and gold uniform in varsity action this season. A freshman, Joe Dougherty, compiled an 8-5 dual meet record and a 12-9 overall record at 118. Joe was plagued by injuries throughout most of the season but still managed a winning record, placing in both post-season tournaments.

David McCollum, the only senior and co-captain, played the "mighty-mite" role by filling in at weights anywhere from 118-142. David's record is unimportant; his dedication and personal sacrifice for the sake of the team is a credit to a fine young man who will be missed next year.

Tom Fink, a junior, returned to the line-up after sitting out (red shirting) last year and turned in his usual steady performance. Tommy probably wrestled more nationally-ranked 126-pound opponents than anyone else on the team and still managed a 10-4-1 dual and 21-13-1 overall record. His second place finish guaranteed him a trip to Oklahoma.

Carl Poff, a sophomore and the other co-captain, also performed well, coming off a red shirt year. A third-place finish at EWL was rewarded with a wild card selection for Nationals at 134. The importance of his selection will become evident to those of us traveling to Norman, Oklahoma, for Carl certainly is the team leader both on and off the mats. His records were 11-3-1 and 26-7-1. Carl also serves as an excellent student trainer.

Rex Lutz, another freshman, wrestled most of the season at 142 (following the loss of Terry Donahue, a freshman) until injuries forced him to the sidelines and contributed to Bart McCollum (no relation to David) dropping to 142 from the next higher weight class. While Rex's record was poor (1-7 and 4-10), steady improvement was noted, and he now has his sights set at dropping to 134 for next season.

Bart (Bucky) McCollum was the super star of the freshmen grapplers, posting a dual meet record of 11-3 and overall record of 29-8. A separated shoulder during the semi-final round of the state tournament would have ended the season for most wrestlers. Not so for Bucky, who wrestled just two weeks later and, incredibly, took second place, defaulting in the finals. Despite the seriousness of his injury, he has continued to practice for competition at Nationals.

Chris Poff, Carl's older brother and the other junior on the team, wrestled anywhere from 158-177. While his record may seem unimpressive (6-4 and 14-9), he "put it together" at Lock Haven and placed first at 150, pinning Penn State's highly-touted Vollrath. Chris turned out to be our only EWL Champion and BSC's best opportunity for a seed at Nationals.

After a real good dual meet season (11-4), sophomore Danny Lechner had two poor post-season tournaments, failing to place in either States or EWL.

Andy Cappelli spent his sophomore year wrestling at either 167 or 177 (depending on the individual matchups) and was undefeated in dual meet competition (14-0-1) and 27-4-1 overall. His State College Championship at 177 and runner-up finish in EWL at 167 should inspire Andy at Oklahoma. This is his second appearance at Nationals in two years.

Leszek Radon, a January freshman and native of Poland, saw limited action the second half of the season.

While not competing at our State Conference Tourney, he wrestled at 177 (although his natural weight makes him ideal for 158) and placed fourth. Leszek lost to White of Penn State in the semi-finals, who is picked to place in the top six at Nationals. Leszek, in addition to trying to learn English, etc., must adjust to our collegiate rules which are considerably different from the international freestyle rules. He has competed internationally for Poland, wrestling some 200 matches, and has won more than 90 per cent of those bouts. Leszek is definitely a fine young man with a bright wrestling future.

Mel Sharp, a sophomore who red-shirted last year, recovered from an ankle injury in December and posted a 9-1 dual meet record and was 14 -6-1 overall. Mel's third place finish at 190 in EWL made him eligible for a wild card bid to Nationals; but like many of his losses, he just got edged out in the freshman Pete Dardaris, who both set the record mark for the 200-yard backstroke at 2:03.43.

Five swimmers (Marvin, Torok, Richards, Price and Thrane) qualified for the Easterns at West Point.

Major weaknesses were lack of depth and the inability to generate points in diving. We have the potential in diving, but lack of a diving coach hampers our final outcome of winning.

Hopefully, this part of our program will be improved, or else diving may be eliminated. It is very hard to give up 16 points in most meets and expect to win with the schedule we swim.

We took a very respectable fourth place in the state championship at West Chester, going in as underdog against perennial powerhouses Clarion, Edinboro, and Indiana.

In pre-season competition, the Husky swimmers took a third place at the Millersville Relays against such teams as Washington and Lee, Franklin and Marshall, Gettysburg, and Millersville. We finished third behind East Stroudsburg and Glassboro State.

We also participated in the Pennsylvania State University Invitation Relays, scoring better than in previous years. We feel our season was a worthwhile experience and look forward to bigger and better achievements next year.

(Editor's Note: Any alumni knowing good student swimming prospects are encouraged to contact Coach McLaughlin immediately, giving candidates' names, addresses, and phone numbers. He will be forever grateful.)

Women's cage team logs ten straight victories

By JOANNE McCOMB
Women's Basketball Coach

The BSC women's varsity basketball team made the 1976-77 season another successful one by compiling a 10-2 record. After dropping their first two contests, the team ran off ten straight victories.

At the conclusion of the regular season, the team was selected to participate in the Mid-Atlantic Regional Tournament for small colleges of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics from Women (AIAW) which was held at Salisbury, Md., on March 10-12. The Mid-Atlantic region is comprised of the states of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia.

The team did not fare very well in the tournament (lost to Ursinus, the tourney winner who moved on to the national championship in California, and to Princeton, the number one seed). The experience gained by playing against this caliber of competition, many of whom have athletic scholarships, should prove invaluable for the returning players on next year's team.

Two seniors who have made significant contributions to the success of the team over the past four years are Ellen French of Tower City, Pa., and Sally Miller of Coaldale, Pa. Ellen holds the BSC career record for points scored (559) and rebounds (446). Sally was a team leader on the court and one of the leaders in assists during her career.

Ten players from this year's squad are eligible to compete next year. Of the returning players, Julia Ludrof, Allentown, and Mary Balaban, Camp Hill, will be seniors.

Terri Mangino (Allentown), Terry McHale (Brookhaven), Sue McKeegan (Wescosville), Donna Santa Maria (Moylan), Sandy Serafin (Wilkes-Barre), and Jayne Yurasits (Allentown) will be representing the junior class.

Sally Houser (Port Trevorton) and Patty Lyons (New Cumberland) will be the leading sophomore prospects.

In addition, we will be anticipating help from some of the junior varsity players whose team compiled a 3-2 record. Sue Hibbs is the assistant coach.

Mrs. John R. Schleber (Rose Marie Kraiser) '48 replied to President McCormick's New Year's letter as follows: "Your letter inspired me to write a brief return letter on behalf of my alma mater. I personally thought it was a beautifully worded 'soft sell' letter. I'm sold! And furthermore, I promise not to miss my next reunion (30th) in 1978. Your words brought back memories of happy bygone days. I can talk this way since I just celebrated my 50th birthday. I hope you keep Carver Hall's exterior as it always was. It means so much to returning Alumni to find something 'as it was,' the old familiar places, the college on the hill.

"Your" letter came just one week after I cleaned out the attic and actually parted with (threw out) all my college notes and memoirs. I never thought I could do it, and after I threw everything away I felt as though I had thrown part of me away because there was no more 'proof' about the house of past endeavors, honors, and accomplishments — only the present.

"I was at Bloom when all the great teachers were — Dean Marguerite Kehr, a wonderful warm person; Dr. Andruss, Miss Harriet Moore, Dr. Nell Maupin, a fantastic woman but why did I never rate more than a 'C' in her social studies classes; Mr. Fenstermacher, Mr. Rygiel, Dr. Wilson, Dr. Kuster, Mr. Gehrig, Dean Hoch — and the V-12s — lest we forget! My wish is that today's students too are

One of last year's sensational freshmen, Tino DiMarco, rounded out the season with second and third place finishes in the two conference tournaments. Tino was selected as a wild card by EWL coaches and joins Andy Cappelli with his second trip to Nationals in two years. While his record (11-3 and 23-7) was impressive, it was not until the EWL Tournament that Tino wrestled as well as his freshman year and started looking like the outstanding wrestler that his record implies.

Sophomores John Rogers and Mike Snyder and freshman Ernie Jackson each saw limited action at the varsity level — all at 177 to heavyweight. Their combined dual record was 3-5 and overall record was 8-9.

The coaching staff, including assistants Bob Rohm and Cal Walker, would like to express our appreciation to the wrestlers (varsity and jayvee), as well as the fans — who are the best supporters in the State College Conference and EWL — for a truly great year. It is our belief that the goal of each individual performer should be qualifying and placing in the National Tournament. With six of ten team members qualifying, at least half of their goal has already been achieved. The rest will be determined in Norman. Although wrestling is demanding time-wise, mid-October to mid-March, it all seems worthwhile with tournament performances such as ours at EWL.

What does the future hold? None of the six qualifiers for Nationals are seniors, meaning each will be back next year. Two of the six are juniors, three are sophomores, and one is a freshman.

Steve Schieb (last year's team captain, State College 177 Champion, and National qualifier) red shirted this year and will return with two years of eligibility remaining.

Tony Caravella, an outstanding freshman performer last year at 142-150, also red shirted this year and should help us next year and following years.

Kenny Broadmerkel, the super 126-pound freshman whom no one saw wrestle due to a back injury should receive a "medical" red shirt for his freshman year and will return with four years of eligibility still remaining.

Domnic DiGiacchino, the 1976 NCAA, Division III, 177-pound National Champion (a transfer from L.S.U. via Montclair State), will become eligible second semester next season and will have a total of 2½ years of eligibility. These four outstanding wrestlers, together with an excellent group of local and out-of-state high school seniors, should combine with this year's performers to give us the potential to be nationally ranked much higher than 20th, which was this season's best.

Beware Lehigh, Penn State, Clarion, Navy, etc. — next year BSC intends to be Number 1 in the East!

Three one-week wrestling schools will again be held at BSC this summer under the direction of Coach Sanders. The weeks are June 26-July 1, July 24-29, and July 31-August 5.

The BSC wrestling team gave head coach Roger Sanders his 100th collegiate coaching victory with a 35-9 triumph over West Chester on January 26 at Nelson Fieldhouse.

Band concert set for Harrisburg

The BSC Concert Band will present a concert at the State Education Building Forum on Tuesday, May 3. It is hoped this project will be an important link with the general public and alumni alike in continuing the positive and active image of Bloomsburg State College.

Three new degree programs offered

Plans are nearly complete for the introduction of three new degree programs in the fall term at BSC. The Pennsylvania Department of Education has already given approval to the School of Business for a new major in marketing under its degree of bachelor of science in business administration.

The Department of Education also has under consideration two requests for degree programs for a bachelor of science with a major in computer and information science, and a similar degree program in office administration. State approval of both programs is anticipated prior to June 1, 1977.

Trends and changes in office occupations, business organizations, and functions and the ever increasing use of computers in large and small business demands that employees entering business field have a fundamental knowledge in the areas of marketing, computer information and service, and office administration. Bloomsburg graduates will have the opportunity to meet these needs.

Saida L. Hartman represented the oldest class present as a member of the Class of 1908. Door prizes were received by Diane A. Bensinger '64 and Ed Horvath '72.

The Washington Area Club is the second BSC alumni group to organize this year. The Montour County group met at the Sheraton Inn, Danville, on January 13 and selected officers for next year.

Your association officers are encouraged and hope that other clubs can be organized in the near future.

Alumni service awards highlight of luncheon

Mrs. Emma Harrison Burrus '16 and Clayton H. Hinkel '40 were recipients of the Alumni Distinguished Service Awards at the Annual Alumni Day Luncheon on April 30.

Mrs. Burrus received the award on the basis of her service as a teacher, handwriting expert, author, church worker, and community leader.

Clayton Hinkel, senior member of the BSC faculty, graduated with the Class of 1940 and has been on the faculty since 1947. He was honored for his long and faithful record of service to his church, youth organizations, and college activities.

Mrs. Burrus' response cited her days at Bloomsburg when it was a Normal School and the influence the various professors had on her life. She mentioned the diploma with its long list of subjects the holder was qualified to teach.

"I've cherished the memories of those years on campus and the inspiration of the fine professors under whom I studied. I am proud of my college and happy to be one of its graduates. At this moment, however, I feel very humble in being honored with this award and to be listed among Bloomsburg's distinguished Alumni."

Hinkel responded by saying, "In accepting this honor, I am very humble when I consider those who have received the award in the past: Francis B. Haas, William B. Sulliff, E.H. Nelson, Kimber Kuster, Harvey A. Andruss, Howard Fenstermaker and Marguerite Kehr. I name these recipients because they were members of the administration and the faculty when I was a student.

"I consider myself to be the most fortunate graduate of the College because President Emeritus Andruss was one of my teachers and because he invited me to return to teach in January, 1947.

"Many of my students are teachers or administrators in high schools and colleges throughout the country; others are employed in business and government positions; and some are members of the clergy. I am proud of all of them.

"I am especially proud of the 12 students who are now members of the administrative or teaching staff of our College, and those students who are directors of our Alumni Association. I am proud to be a graduate of Bloomsburg and I am proud to be a member of the Bloomsburg faculty."

Over 1,300 Alumni return to campus

Emma Harrison Burrus '16 and Clayton H. Hinkel '40, both of Bloomsburg, received the Distinguished Service Awards of the BSC Alumni Association at the annual Alumni Day luncheon on April 30. (See related story on this page for more information about the recipients.)

More than 300 alumni attended the luncheon in the Scranton Commons, representing classes that covered a span of 70 years. The oldest member attending was Edwin M. Barton '07, a previous recipient of the DSA.

During the program, special recognition was given the late Dr. Lee E. Aumiller, a member of the BSC faculty for 12 years prior to his death in 1973. Mrs. Aumiller presented a bronze memorial tablet to the college, which was accepted by Boyd F. Buckingham, vice president for administration. The tablet will be used to identify the Aumiller Plaza. (See related story and photographs on Page 10.)

The Class of 1927 was given special recognition as the 50-year reunion class, with 54 members of the class attending the luncheon. Mrs. Verna Medley Davenport, class representative, was chairman of the 1927 reunion activities. (See related story and photo on the banquet honoring the 50-year class, as well as list of class members attending the dinner, Page 11.)

Other classes with large representations were 1932, with 25 members attending; 1952, with 19; 1922, with 15; and 1942, with 12.

Millard Ludwig, president of the Alumni Association who was re-elected for another term, conducted the business meeting.

New members of the board of directors, elected for three-year terms, are Editha Ent Adams '24, Bloomsburg; M. Stanley Covington '59, Silver Spring, Md.; and August Tibbs '58, Jenkintown. Rebekah J. Ward '69, Milton, was elected to fill the term of a member who had resigned.

Elizabeth Hubler '31, Rev. Ollver Krapf '32, Frank Gallinski '52, and Jacqueline Feddock '72 were re-elected to three-year terms. Paul Seif, president of the Class of 1977, will serve on the board for one year.

Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, president emeritus of the College, during his remarks, displayed a 1907 special edition of the Bloomsburg Morning Press, and called attention to some items of special interest. The edition, published on the occasion of the completion of the Caldwell Consistory building, featured a picture of the College's Science Hall and gave the construction cost as $75,000. He quoted from an advertisement which called attention to free tuition, and to the fact that the community was served by 33 passenger trains daily.

Dr. Andruss referred to the growth of the College and pointed out that a college "receives dividends only in the achievements and accomplishment of its alumni."

President McCormick spoke about specific areas of growth and change. He said there are now more than 20,000 alumni, 6,000 students, a faculty and staff numbering 645, more than 80 academic programs, and buildings with a replacement value exceeding $60 million.

"You have been a part of this growth," he said. "Bloomsburg State College continues to do well in placement of its graduates and in attracting new students because of your help, and because of the reputations that you, as alumni, have built during your careers. You play an important role, and if the College is to be strong, it must have strong alumni support."

He said Bloomsburg has the greatest number of alumni contributors, and the largest percentage of alumni contributing, of the State Colleges and University alumni organizations. He called attention to the six scholarships Bloomsburg alumni provide, and

"No other profession does more good or harm than politics. If things are wrong in our political system, you can help do something about it, but you must become involved, or you are destined to be governed by people worse than yourself," Senator Joseph Biden of Delaware told participants in the commencement convocation May 15.

Six hundred sixty seniors and 35 graduate students received their degrees in the afternoon ceremony at the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds which followed a baccalaureate service held in the morning at Haas Auditorium.

The degree candidates were presented by Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, acting vice president for academic affairs, and the degrees were conferred by President McCormick and awarded by Richard Walton, vice chairman of the board of trustees.

Assisting were the deans of the various schools, including Or. C. Stuart Edwards, School of Professional Studies; Or. Edson J. Orake, School of Arts and Sciences; Or. Emory W. Rarig, School of Business; and Or. Charles H. Carlson, School of Graduate Studies.

Baccalaureate degrees were accepted on behalf of their classmates by Oiane Louise Wechter, School of Arts and Sciences; E. Carey Oorsi, School of Business; and Suzanne E. Cromack, School of Professional Studies. Hooding of the master degree candidates was by Dr. Wolfe.

In his welcoming remarks, Or. McCormick complimented the graduates on achieving academic success and for significant contributions to all phases of life at the college.

"Your contributions," he said, "are significant and in concert with the objectives of Bloomsburg State College — for we are dedicated to the concept of college as an experience in life as well as learning."

In speaking of the master degree students, he pointed out that they deserve a special word of congratulations and commendation both for their continued interest in furthering their education and for their willingness to make personal sacrifices of time and money to obtain their goals.

Continuing, he stated, "We are proud of Bloomsburg State College and we look forward to the years ahead as we continue in our efforts to be of service to the people of this area and responsive to the educational needs of the citizens of the Commonwealth."

"We want our campus to be not only an academic center, but a focal point for cultural, recreational, continuing education, and other programs as well."

In concluding, he stressed that the citizens of the Commonwealth provide the major portion of the graduates' education.

"As alumni, I sincerely hope that you will actively support higher education so that other men and women may enjoy the same opportunity."

He then asked the parents and spouses of all degree candidates to stand and be recognized.

Paul G. Seif, senior class president, in his brief remarks, said there were many fond memories of the college that the graduates will take with them, and that their education — both academic and personal — does not end at graduation but is a continuing process throughout life.

Another highlight of the services was the swearing-in of graduate David Orgler, Bloomsburg, as a second lieutenant in the United States Army, and of graduates Robert Blewis and Francis Welsh in the United States Marine Corps. Orgler was associated with the BSC ROTC program, while Blewis and Welsh were part of the Wilkes College program.

Other participants in the program included Dr. Melville Hopkins, who presided; Rev. Jay Rochelle, Father Thomas F. Langan, Mindelle Bartholomew '77, Or. William Decker, organist; and Warren L. Johnson, commencement marshal.

Graduation

You who have walked in the halls so enchanted,
Sat in the rooms fame has hallowed before,
You, who sought wisdom, in books ever probing
Now, searching, go on in your questing for more.

Farther afield now your eager eyes lifted
Seek a new goal, like a new Holy Grail,
Trudging in mire, over rocks, mighty mountains,
On wastelands frozen, through sun-flooded vale.

Voices will beckon you, things be alluring,
Cares overtax during wearisome years,
Foes by the pathway will hinder your footsteps,
Yet, onward, upward undaunted by fears

Your spirit so willing in human endeavor
Shall at the end of the journey attain
Prizes, invisible crowns in their glory,
Wealth so abundant, no chest can contain.

Now you are starting your journey of life,
The ivy halls leaving, with honor, today.
All you have learned here, a meager beginning,
The wide boundless future calls you away

Woman's World: Jacqueline Feddock '72

We would like to introduce our readers to a recent BSC graduate who is attractive, has boundless energy, enjoys a multitude of activities, and is a young female executive on her way to the top.

Jacqueline A. Feddock was president of the Class of 1972 and represents her class on the Alumni board of directors. While at BSC, Jacquie acquired a score of honors and achievements, only to be excelled by her activities since leaving Bloomsburg.

She received the BSC Outstanding Service Award, the Presidential Scholarship for Outstanding Leadership, certificates of successful completion of workshops and certified facilitation in national leadership methods, listed in Who's Who Among Students with more nominations than any other student in the history of the college, and listed in the National Student Registry of Outstanding College Students in 1971 and 1972.

After graduation from BSC, Jacquie went to Slippery Rock State College as a graduate assistant and MEd. student in counseling service. Her duties as graduate assistant for the 1972-1973 term included coordinating student activities, budgeting, advising a student committee, leadership training and workshops, purchasing, and alumni affairs. Even before her degree was completed, new opportunities called her to Villanova University as assistant dean of student activities. Her M.A. degree was received from Villanova in May of 1975.

Jacquie became the first and youngest woman to be appointed to a dean's position at Villanova other than dean of women. Her duties as assistant dean of student activities included freshman orientation, advising student organizations, interviewing, hiring and supervising professional and student staff, preparation and control of annual budgets, career and personal counseling, plus general administrative responsibilities in planning conferences, seminars, and meetings.

In addition, she found time to write the procedural manual for student organizations. In May of 1975, Jacquie left Villanova to enter the account executive training program with Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith in Manhasset, N.Y.

During the spring and summer of 1975, Jacquie completed an extensive academic and practical program in investments and securities. In the fall, she enrolled in the lawyer's assistant program at Adelphi University and became certified in corporate law and legal research as a lawyer's assistant.

Things change fast for Jacquie, and we forgot to tell you that in 1971 she spent the summer at the University of Cracow, Poland, and received a diploma in international education with concentration on Polish language and culture. Then, too, she was accepted for ACTION (Peace Corps) with an assignment to teach English at the University of Tonga, South Pacific. For various reasons, this assignment was not accepted.

With the brokerage and securities training completed, Jacquie applied for several positions in New York City. Her efforts paid off with offers of positions ranging from an in-flight supervisor for a major airline to trust officer at a major New York City bank. She chose a position with Merkin and Co., 61 Broadway, and is now in her second year with them.

She described the experience of job hunting: "I love looking for a job and I look for all types and try to 'sell' myself to the employer. So far it has worked fairly well. My secret desire is to write a book dealing with the subject."

Jacquie continues: "One thing I have learned since graduating from BSC is that there are very many opportunities in this world and it's foolish to limit oneself. I have some goals, but I'm not sure what I'll end up doing as a career.

"Right now, there's too much to do and see — professionally and personally. I'm not afraid to try new things — I enjoy challenges and responsibilities and I certainly have the time to explore."

When asked what specific things she would like to undertake, Jacquie listed a Ph.D. in psychology, and a new hobby — flying — as things she will do this coming year.

Then, too, her favorite extra-curricular activity is teaching religion to eighth graders in her parish in New York one night each week. She adds, "I'd like to do some more traveling when I get the time. I love to travel and I'll go anywhere. I've seen Eastern and Western Europe, parts of Canada, Mexico, the Caribbean and most of the United States from Maine to Hawaii. I'd like to visit China and, of course, return to Poland."

In a recent note from Jacquie, she added, "Just an update on my ever-changing lifestyle. I recently received a 'promotion' and am now a member of our company's syndicate department and responsible for selling new corporate offerings. At present, my responsibilities are basically administrative, but eventually I will become a bond trader."

"When this happens, I will be the first and only woman trader in the firm, and I'm already the only woman in the bond room. I'd still rather be home in Pennsylvania, but my work here is different and exciting — very good experience. Also, my professional possibilities are becoming more and more appealing."

Husky Club hosts 'Day of Champions'

Over 50 outstanding men and women athletes of BSC were honored April 12 at the fourth annual "Day of Champions" banquet sponsored by the town and gown Husky Club.

The banquet is given by the local support club to recognize the men and women athletes, including team captains, who brought acclaim to the college and the greater Bloomsburg area in the past year.

Highlight of the evening was presentation of a $1,500 check by Harry Evert, club president, to Dr. Conrad Bautz, athletic director, for the general athletic scholarship fund of the college and $235 for specific sports. This brings to $6,500 the total presented to this fund since the club was organized several years ago. Another $722.70 has been presented to the scholarship fund for specific sports.

The organization also performs special functions including the presentation of Husky Club Athlete of the Week awards, entertaining visiting coaches for specific sports events, and hosting basketball returnees and their wives following their annual alumni game.

President McCormick complimented the Husky Club for its efforts and the townspeople for helping the booster organization.

BSC offers marine sciences

BSC, in association with the Marine Science Consortium, will again have nearly 30 undergraduate and graduate courses in marine environmental sciences this summer at the Wallops Island (Va.) Marine Science Center.

Established in 1968, the consortium is a cooperative effort of 18 colleges and universities in Maryland, Washington, D.C., Pennsylvania and West Virginia, with courses available at either of two coastal marine science centers — one on the Atlantic Ocean at Wallops Island and the other on Lake Erie. Emphasis is on field work in estuaries, wetlands, and aboard any of several sea-going vessels.

The summer offerings by the consortium are divided into five sessions, with the first three already completed. The remaining two will be held July 18 to August 5 and August 8 to August 26.

Named to new post

Douglas C. Hippenstiel '68, a member of The Morning Press editorial staff for the past six years, has been named managing editor of the publication, effective June 1. He will be in charge of daily newsgathering operations, including reportorial and photographic assignments.

Hippenstiel taught high school English for three years at Danville and Central Columbia School Districts before joining the newspaper on a full-time basis in 1971. While at BSC, he was active on the student newspaper staff and served as editor for a year and a half. He has been editor of The Alumni Quarterly for the past year.

He is married to the former Kathy Reimard, Class of 1969, and the couple lives in Lightstreet with their two children, Joanna, who was five in March, and Robert, who will be four in August.

What do I get?

What do I get out of membership in the Alumni Association? That may be on the minds of many Alumni each year as they ponder how much money, if any, they should contribute to the Association.

In addition to making it possible for the Association to meet its goals, your membership will mean much more in 1977 as the result of a new policy statement on use of college facilities by Alumni.

Prepared by the Coordinating Committee on General Administration, the policy is based upon college philosophy that education should be a continuing process and that graduates should be included in as many college activities as possible.

The policy includes the following points:

1. Recreational, health, and physical education facilities and equipment will be available to alumni at times when not used by the college community. (Refer to Policy Statement on Use of Physical Education and Athletic Facilities, dated May 6, 1977.)
2. Season athletic passes will be offered at 50 per cent of regular price for alumni with valid membership cards. Free passes will be given to the Alumni Association's Board of Directors (21 members) and to contributors who have given $100 or more to the Annual Fund.
3. There will be reserved alumni parking until 1 p.m. at all home football games for "Tailgaters" who display a valid alumni decal.
4. A section will be reserved at football games of approximately 100 seats, except on Homecoming Day, when 300 will be reserved. All unoccupied seats will be released to others at kick-off time.
5. Residence halls can be used on two or three weekends during the summer, and possible one or two full weeks for alumni reunions, family vacations on campus, mini courses for BSC families, and alumni get-togethers. Cost will be minimal as established by the Conference Committee.
6. Library privileges are extended to all members.
7. The Arts Council's Calendar of Events will be mailed to all alumni, or published in The Alumni Quarterly. A reply form will be included.
8. Alumni will be advised in advance of Big Name Entertainment with option to holders of valid membership cards to purchase tickets at regular student prices.
9. Alumni who have contributed $250 or more to the Annual Fund will be invited guests at an Awards Convocation where they will be recognized, presented a small token, and have lunch with student leaders, parents, and administrators.
10. Alumni Association members will be able to exercise an option to purchase a Community Activities card, priced the same as for faculty.

Alumni returning to campus may report to the Information Desk, Kehr Union, for information on scheduled activities.

We asked -- They responded! Pre-fund drive a success

Following Alumni Day, a special PRE-FUND DRIVE letter was mailed to approximately 150 people who had contributed $100 or more in one or both of the last two FUND DRIVES.

They were asked to renew their pledges in the same amount prior to the general appeal to all members, and to use the total of their pledges as an incentive for others to double in the next two months.

Within one week, 16 members pledged $2,100. By May 15, the number of these special donors had increased to 32, and the amount pledged was $4,550. At press time, the total amount from all donations had grown to $7,479.50.

These loyal alumni have challenged all alumni to double the amount of their pledges during June and July. Why not send your contribution today and join a proud group of BSC alumni and friends.

Clan of Frank Harris still coming

Frank C. Harris, Class of 1900, has been the father of a dynasty of fifteen graduates from BSC. In the aggregate, these graduates have taught in the public schools more than 200 years. In addition, other descendants of Frank C. Harris have graduated from colleges other than Bloomsburg and are active in the teaching profession.

Mr. Harris, the progenitor of this teaching clan, died in 1968. He graduated from "Old Normal" in 1900, having commuted from his farm home in Centre Township, Columbia County.

He taught school in Lime Ridge and Briar Creek.

His loyalty to his Alma Mater was manifested by his seeing that his younger sister and four children got their teaching diplomas from Bloomsburg. A son-in-law and eight grandchildren followed with matriculation and graduation from BSC.

If precedent holds, a new generation of college students from the Harris family for Bloomsburg State College is assured for the future.

A photo of a plane and its crew from the World War II era — found in a storage closet in the Alumni Association office and published in the February Alumni Quarterly — brought a response from a Bloomsburg graduate who was in that photograph.

The letter of Stewart C. Yorks '42, now living at 63 Brook St., Barrington, R.I., follows:

"Many thanks for the Alumni Quarterly (Feb. issue). Yes, the picture on page 6 is of my crew. I am the one standing with the leather jacket and officer's hat.

"At the time the picture was taken, we were flying weather synoptic flights over the North Atlantic. I was a pilot; and our mission was to send weather information back to ground bases which was used to brief combat crews who would later fly their bombers to Europe for combat against the Germans.

"Our flights were to Greenland, Iceland, and occasionally to the British Isles. As the war progressed, we performed the same duty in the South Atlantic; stationed in Trinidad and flying to bases in South America, particularly to Belem, Brazil, which is just below the equator. Tours of duty in the Azore Islands and Bermuda found us in the same duty.

"There were many interesting experiences during this four-year hitch in the then U.S. Air Corps. Some highlights were flying through hurricanes off the coast of Bermuda, having our plane hit by lightning off the Azores, and flying through cold fronts off Newfoundland. But I did enjoy the free geography lessons, and meeting people from many different countries.

"After the service, I taught 1½ years in the high school in Bangor, Maine. Then went back to graduate school full-time for one year at the University of Maine, from which I received my master's degree.

"In the fall of 1948, I started teaching at Bryant College in Providence, R.I. And I've been with Bryant ever since. In 1971 we moved to a new campus in Smithfield, R.I. I've gone from instructor to full professor; from teaching some business and education courses to teaching psychology courses in recent years.

"My wife, Frances, and I have one son, Jeff, who is 20 years old and presently enrolled in Bryant College. Our 16-year-old daughter died in 1966 after open-heart surgery.

"I am an avid trout angler, and take to the woods in late fall to hunt. Photography is still one of my main hobbies, and I've won a few contests and honors with some pictures.

"But, Bloomsburg is still very dear to me, though miles separate us. I'm pleased with all the progress that Bloomsburg has made over the years.

"Thanks again for your personal concern."

Carlson elected by state group

Dr. Charles H. Carlson, dean of the School of Graduate Studies at BSC, has been elected president-elect of the Pennsylvania Association of Graduate Schools. The election was held April 6 at the fifth annual meeting hosted by West Chester State College. Next year the association will meet at BSC on April 5.

GMC plus BSC equals teamwork

There is a new bond of cooperation between Geisinger Medical Center and Bloomsburg State College which is beneficial to both institutions. This cooperative effort opens new career opportunities for Bloomsburg graduates who are interested in health occupations.

For several years the two institutions worked together in training medical technicians and more recently in the nursing program. The most recent effort is a graduate program where members of the medical staff at GMC serve on the thesis committee and direct the candidate's research and analysis.

The program is best described by citing the story of Paul Michael Rudowski, a graduate student in biology, who is doing a master's thesis in chromosome research at GMC.

Rudowski's thesis is "A Cytogenetic Study of Pleural Effusions." Fluid samples are obtained from the lung cavities of patients with various disorders. Cytogenetic analysis involving conventional and modern techniques are used to study chromosomes from certain inflammatory and malignant cells. A search is conducted for chromosome abnormalities, especially the presence of non-random markers that can be used for diagnostic evaluation.

In addition to the use of GMC's

Charles Carlson, dean of the BSC School of Graduate Studies. Seated are Dr. John J. Moran, chairman of the Division of Laboratory Medicine at GMC, and Dr. Phillip A. Farber, cytogeneticist and chairman of Rudowski's thesis committee. Himes and Moran are the other committee members.

scientific equipment in the pathology department, Rudowski will have a staff doctor serving on his thesis committee. Dr. Phillip A. Farber, a cytogeneticist and BSC professor, will be chairman of the committee. Dr. John J. Moran, chairman of the Division of Laboratory Medicine at GMC, and Dr. Craig Himes, chairman of the biology department at BSC, are the other committee members.

Rudowski's experience and training make him well qualified for this type of research. He is a native of Nanticoke and a graduate of Newport Twp. High School.

He graduated from Kings College in 1968 with a B.S. degree in biology. The next four years were spent in the United States Air Force, where he worked in the medical offices as a histotechnologist.

In September, 1973, he joined the pathology department at Geisinger as a cytotechnologist. He was admitted to the M.S. program at BSC with a curriculum in biology in May of 1974. He is residing in Washingtonville.

The College views this cooperative relationship with GMC very highly. It also signifies that both institutions are aware of their commitment to education, science and research. Certainly the students who enter these programs will benefit from this cooperative effort.

Two BSC alumni on careers program

are Dr. Richard O. Wolfe (left), a former classmate and now acting vice president of academic affairs; Thomas Davies, director of career development; and President McCormick.

On March 28, the Career Development and Placement Center sponsored a program called "People, Ideas, Careers" in which two BSC alumni served on a panel of professional consultants representing eight career areas.

Augustus Tibbs, who is personnel director of the Lower Merion School District in Ardmore, Pa., and Stanley Covington, trial attorney for All-State Insurance Co. in Washington, D.C., were available to discuss their occupations, career patterns, and employment outlook to many students in a wide variety of classroom and program sessions.

Enrollees in the "Career Course," a new three-credit course sponsored by the Department of Educational Studies and Services, were surprised to hear that Atty. Covington handles over fifty jury trial cases per year in addition to settlement of about 40 suits out of the courtroom. He is the only attorney who represents All-State Insurance in the greater Washington area.

Later in the day, the consultants met with students in the Kehr Union. During the roundtable discussion portion of the program, it became apparent that Tibbs was the most popular person in the room. Education majors from various curricula were asking about employment outlook and job search techniques which may prove beneficial after graduation.

Both men were roommates for a short time during their years at Bloomsburg and found it interesting to compare student life and campus environment with the way it was about twenty years ago.

Good way to stretch gift

It has come to our attention that a group of BSC Alumni living in the Philadelphia area contributed to the 1974-75 fund drive as a memorial to the late Judge Bernard Kelley '13, Distinguished Service Award recipient in 1954.

The group pooled their contributions and had one member make the donation in his name so his company would match his gift. We are grateful to each contributor and the company which matched their combined amount.

We are certain Judge Kelley would approve.

The Community Government Association has authorized $23,000 for the development of a student recreational area between Benjamin Franklin and Navy Hall. The recreational area was the students' number one priority item in campus beautification, and they have agreed to finance the project.

BOYD BUCKINGHAM

Campus plaza dedicated in memory of professor

The area bounded by Kehr Union, Scranton Commons, and Lycoming Residence Hall will be known as the Aumiller Plaza in memory of Lee Aumiller, a teacher and supervisor at BSC for 12 years. Following Lee's untimely death on January 5, 1973, his many friends and colleagues established the Lee E. Aumiller Fund.

These funds, plus money from the Alumni Association, were used to purchase a pedestal for a work of sculpture, benches and shrubs. It is planned to have sculpture of a Husky dog in bronze or stainless steel placed on the pedestal.

The plaza was officially dedicated during the Alumni Day luncheon when Boyd Buckingham, vice president for administration, eulogized Lee. Mrs. Aumiller and daughter Diane were present, and Mrs. Aumiller presented the bronze plaque which will name the plaza in memory of her husband.

She expressed her appreciation as follows:

"I would like to thank everyone who has helped to make the Lee E. Aumiller Memorial Plaza a reality.

"My special gratitude goes to the Alumni Association and to the many faculty members, students, and friends who have contributed so generously to the Aumiller Fund.

"I would also like to extend my personal appreciation to the people in Administration who gave so much of their time and support in making this memorial possible.

"It is my hope that the plaza will be a constant reminder of Lee's dedication and his concern for all who live, work and study on the Bloomsburg campus."

expressed appreciation for another which was added this year in honor of Howard Fenstermaker. (See related story on Page 2 for this year's scholarship recipients.)

Donald A. Watts, executive director of the Alumni Association, gave a report that emphasized new services which will be available to alumni through the cooperation of the College and the students. "The College gains prestige by making you an important part of its activities," he said. (A list of these services and benefits that come with membership in the association can be found elsewhere in The Quarterly.)

Watts also reported that alumni clubs have been formed in Montour County and in the greater Washington, D.C. area. He spoke of the alumni participation in several projects, including the campus beautification program.

In connection with a recently completed project of the Class of 1976 — the placing of three flagpoles in front of the Waller Administration Building — he presented the College with an American Flag which had flown over the nation's Capitol in April. The flag was obtained for the College by Congressman Daniel J. Flood. (See photo of flagpoles elsewhere in this issue.)

Alma Mater for weekend of activities

Banquet honoring Class of '27 draws 150

Approximately 150 persons attended the 50-year class reunion banquet which initiated the Alumni Weekend activities at BSC April 29. Sixty members of the honored Class of 1927 were present as guests of the Alumni Association, along with members of other invited classes, previous Distinguished Service Award recipients, and special guests.

The Class of 1927 was the last class of the old Normal School and the first class of the State Teachers College since the change was announced just before the graduation exercises.

Following the invocation by Boyd F. Buckingham, vice president for administration and a BSC alumnus, greetings and congratulations were extended by Millard Ludwig, Alumni Association president, with Mrs. Verna Medley Davenport, 1927 class representative responding.

Retired faculty member Howard F. Fenstermaker, a BSC alumnus, and past president of the Alumni Association, brought numerous enjoyable moments by reminiscing events and activities over the years.

Additional reminiscing was done by President Emeritus Harvey A. Andruss. President James H. McCormick gave a then/now comparison of enrollment, tuition, curriculum, athletics, etc.

Donald Watts, executive director of the Alumni Association, presented the 1927 class members with personalized certificates congratulating them on their 50th anniversary. Watts also had other mementos of the teacher college vintage for some of the older classes that were present.

The final activity of the banquet program was a presentation of magic by Walter Woolbaugh, Class of 1974, who is an outstanding amateur magician and a teacher in the Harrisburg area.

Seven DSA Award recipients were present, including Dr. Andruss (1964), Edwin Barton (1975), Buckingham (1974), Howard Fenstermaker (1964), Earl Gehrig (1976), Frank Golder (1976), and Col. Elwood Wagner (1968).

The evening concluded with the various classes socializing in the lobby area of Scrantoo Commons, President's Lounge of Kehr Union, and the Hotel Magee.

Mabel Hawke Anthony '98, thought to be the oldest living alumna, died recently. Her grandson, Charles E. Anthony, in notifying the college of her death, wrote: "Mabel Anthony, my grandmother, spoke many times of her time at 'Bloomsburg Normal.' She recalled, for instance, that the girls were not allowed to venture any further into town than 'the fountain at the bottom of the hill,' unless escorted by an adult. She also mentioned that two girls were expelled from school for smoking cigarettes. My, how times have changed! Mrs. Anthony died peacefully in her sleep, her fond memories of 'Bloomsburg Normal' brightening her life to the end. We shall miss her."

Elizabeth Mertz Leshner '05, Northumberland R.D. 1, served two days as a prospective juror in a recent session of Northumberland County Criminal Court. Although she was excused from serving, Judge Samuel Ranck complimented her for her attendance at two days of court and lauded her for her interest in the jury system. As she stepped from the jury box, spectators in the courtroom applauded her.

1906

The Alumni Office recently received a request from Radcliff College concerning Susie (Rayos) Marmon '06 for inclusion in the publication "Notable American Women."

This volume can include only women who died between 1951 and 1975. We would like to know whether Mrs. Marmon died in this period, and we would also appreciate any biographical information you can give us about her."

Dur files show that Susie Rayos came to Bloomsburg from Laguna, New Mexico, an Indian reservation, by way of the Carlisle Indian School. She graduated in 1906 and became a teacher in Laguna. The July 1956 issue of The Alumni Quarterly reported on the 50th year class reunion and mentioned a letter from Mrs. Marmon in which she expressed her regrets at being unable to attend the reunion.

We would appreciate any information that anyone can supply about Mrs. Marmon.

Groves of 3,000 white oak trees will eventually be growing in Columbia County as a result of the generosity of Edwin M. Barton '07.

Known for his interest in area history and his philanthropic acts, Mr. Barton is giving $1,000 for the project. Barton had wished his gift to be anonymous, but the Columbia County Conservation District — which is aiding in the project — felt he should receive credit.

The local historian's interest in white oaks dates back to his childhood. They were favorites of his mother and of other members of the family. A giant white oak was growing in front of the attractive Barton homestead on West Main Street until both were removed to make way for a service station.

In the Columbia County project, a thousand white oak seedlings will be purchased each year for three years. Township and borough officials will decide where they would like to see the groves planted.

Blanche Hoppe Chisholm '07, who was featured in a recent issue of The Alumni Quarterly, writes: "Thank you very much for your nice note and for the certificate. I'm sure I don't deserve that; I truly haven't done much for the college."

"I'd planned for months on going to the reunion — my two daughters were taking me — but I fell down the stairs at church just before Christmas and was quite badly hurt. Then, the very first time I was out in early February, I fell on the ice, and only a few days ago I've been able to walk!"

"Eddie" (Barton) wrote me a long letter about the reunion. I was surprised that so few of our class was there.

"After all, it was a day to be remembered for me. I became the great-grandmother of a baby boy, who is my 18th great-grandchild."

"I haven't much news about any of my classmates. There are three of our original 18 in the letter we started back in 1907, and we still keep in touch." Mrs. Chisholm's address is 44B Linden Ave., Springfield, N.J. 07081.

The Postal Service did it to us again — it told us one of our loyal alumna had died when she is still very much alive. We are happy to announce that Beulah Anderson Bronson '12 is still among our living alumni, despite a report to the contrary in the April issue of The Alumni Quarterly. Mrs. Bronson writes: "Dear Friends, In the April number of the Alumni Quarterly, I find quite a surprise, in reading the 'Deaths' column, Beulah Anderson Bronson."

"There surely is a mistake, for I am very much alive. The memories of BSNS, as it was known then, are very precious to me. My husband, Herbert, died in 1950, and I am living with each of my four children (two daughters and two sons). I have fifteen grandchildren and twelve great-grands, all of which I am very proud."

Mrs. Bronson wrote to us from Brackney, Pa. 18812.

Annabelle Hirsch Wade '12 died March 16, 1977, at her home in Tamaqua, Pa. A son, Robert H. B. Wade, writes: "Mother took great pride in her association with Bloomsburg and valued the training she received there. She cherished, too, the many friends she had among her classmates and contemporaries as well as happy memories of her student days. She was a loyal and devoted alumna."

Mrs. R. D. Keenleyside (Greta Udelhofen) '12 is living at 189 Nelson St., Oakville, Ontario, Canada.

Mary L. Ashton '14, Wilkes-Barre, died at Kingston. She taught music in Dallas Area and Wilkes-Barre school districts and was principal of the Meade Street School prior to retiring in 1958.

Stella Buckley '14, Nanticoke, died at Nanticoke State General Hospital. She taught in the city school district for 40 years before retiring 14 years ago.

This May 11 Leah and George Lawton celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary. They have two daughters, Jean (Mrs. Bryan Funk), Endwell, N.Y., and Louise (Mrs. Joseph Simington), Berwick. Jean received her B.S. degree from Bloomsburg and has been teaching in the Maine-Endwell School District since 1960. Louise is a graduate of Geisinger Medical Center and is a registered nurse. She was a surgical supervisor at Geisinger prior to her marriage to Dr. Simington. She is now an assistant to her husband in their veterinary hospital. A daughter, Audrey, attended BSC and later majored in art and received her degree from Kutztown State College. She did graduate study at Syracuse University and taught in the New York schools. She married Dr. Fredrick Gilmartin, coordinator of art in the Bethlehem City Schools. She and her husband were attending the National Arts Association Convention in Miami Beach when she was fatally stricken April 9, 1975. Audrey was art consultant and teacher at Lehigh University at the time of her death.

The Lawtons have four grandchildren and live on Stone Church Road, Berwick R.D. 1.

Eva Schuyler DeWald '16, died on March 7, 1977.

Nellie Papciak Turkiewicz '17 sent a "mini-report" to her classmates for their 60th class reunion. Attached to her hand-written letter was a program for a father-son concert at Samford University, Birmingham, Alabama, in February, by her son and grandson — both pianists. Mrs. Turkiewicz writes: "Dear Classmates, This program would have been the highlight of my message to you. This is the fifth father-son concert given by our son and grandson who has shared his father's faculty recitals from the age of eleven. He is now fifteen. I have two sons, both have lovely Christian families and I have eleven grandchildren. I am 78 years old, a widow, but blessed with a retired teacher sister who is 81 with good health and countless other blessings."

Lillian Riskin Blumenfeld '17 wrote to her classmates as they planned for their 60th class reunion: "I am sorry I cannot attend the Class of 1917 reunion as I had hoped to, as I am at present in Wilkes-Barre doing a special piece of work."

"But I thought you and perhaps some members of the class may be interested in the enclosed. My own article will appear in the May issue of Teachers and Writers. I would appreciate knowing if Gladys Teele Kuster is still living." Mrs. Blumenfeld gave her address as Hotel Sterling, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The material she enclosed for her classmates included her forthcoming article, "Some Reminiscences of the Early Progressive School Movement in the United States" and a reprint of an

We received an interesting note and a newspaper clipping from Mrs. Robert Wheeler (Lucia Hammond '19 from Redlands, California. The note read: "Dear Friends at Bloomsburg, As you can see by the enclosed clipping, I have had a little fling in politics. I didn't win, but I had a good time trying. I spoke before a number of organizations, but spent no money on advertising, etc. My opponents spent hundreds of dollars. Best regards, especially the Class of 1919, of which I was a member." In 1961, he was named assistant superintendent of the Plainview-Old Bethpage School District in Long Island, and in 1963 he was named superintendent of the Glens Falls City School District.

In 1972, he was named associate commissioner of education for New York State, responsible for all elementary and secondary education in both public and non-public schools. He resigned his position with the New York State Education Department in September of 1976 to join the First National Bank.

In 16 years, he has mastered the hierarchy of higher education and is now president of St. Thomas Aquinas College, Sparkhill, N.Y. However, the road to the top was not always smooth or without personal sacrifice and determination.

It all started when McNelis left his Kington home and enrolled in BSC, where he was a member of the Dorm Men's Association for three years, freshman class advisor in his junior year, a member of the College Choraleers and dramatics club, FTA, men's glee club, Newman Club, and freshman football.

For three years following graduation, Don taught and coached in Fleishmanns High School, N.Y., and in Prince Georges County, Md. From the latter assignment, he moved to the School of Education, George Washington University, first as an instructor and two years later as assistant professor and assistant director of the off-campus division.

By this time, Don had earned the M.A. (1959) and Ed.D. (1963) from the George Washington University and became a foreign service officer with the U.S. State Department. His was assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, for two years.

Dr. McNelis' foreign service was followed by one year as educational advisor in the executive office of the President for the Office of Economic Opportunity, Washington, D.C. We should add that these last two assignments were possibly due to his interest and post doctorate studies in African studies at Boston University and with the Foreign Service Institute of the State Department. He had also studied higher education at Columbia University.

Following the three-year stint with government service, Dr. McNelis made another start on his career in higher education. He served for two years as dean of instruction at Hagerstown (Md.) Junior College, one year as associate professor and division chairman, College of Steubenville, Ohio, and one year as professor at Lock Haven State College before going to St. Thomas Aquinas College in 1970.

He remained there as academic dean and professor for the next four years, at which time he became president.

In the meantime, he married the former Minna Romaine Marosy of Washington, D.C., a former high school teacher and counselor with B.S. and M.A. degrees from the George Washington University. Patricia (Szakalun) Novotney '62 is principal of Los Naranjos School, Irvine Unified School District, Irvine, California. When Pat read in The Alumni Quarterly of Miss Eleanor Wray's retirement, she immediately wrote the following letter to Miss Wray, with a copy to us:

"I am a former student of yours at BSC, Class of 1962. I noticed in the recent alumni newspaper that you are going to retire at the end of the year. I wanted to let you know that you did some really significant things which influenced me and affected my future. Before I go on, my name then was Pat Szakalun. I played on the volleyball and basketball teams (they were really in the formative stages). My favorite recollection of sports involvement was the field hockey team. You were my coach for this. (Joan McComb did a lot with the volleyball, but you were the boss.) I think it really was just off the ground during my 1958-62 time. I remember very well one of our first games at BSC when our opponents (probably Lock Haven) came fully dressed in their "official" uniforms — and we were dressed with our individually favorite shorts and tops!! We had great fun.

"My purpose in writing is really not to go into my sports memories, but to thank you for being the great coach and neat person you were. I know many girls have gone through your program, and at that time of their lives a lot of things are going on. The opportunities you provided many of us helped us grow. We learned to discipline ourselves. We learned the joys and pains of competition. Most of all, we learned to try and be the best we could be. This was a special gift you gave us. You taught us all about effort.

"So, much luck to you in your retirement. May you during your reflection time think about the fact that you touched many people who in turn are touching others. You are remembered! Should your retirement bring you to Southern California, I'd love to have you visit my school."

Don Bechtel, '76 treasurer, returned to campus recently and related many interesting events he has experienced since graduation last May. Faced with no job offers in Pennsylvania, he and Wayne Mehrer '76 decided to take a well-earned trip through the South and, at the same time, look for teaching positions. By May 31, they had three contract offers — one each in Winchester, Guilford, and Chesterfield, Va. Both men accepted positions in Chesterfield County with Don teaching third grade in the town of Matoaca and Wayne teaching fifth grade mathematics and serving as assistant football coach in the same school. Glenn DeWire '73 is also teaching math in the elementary school.

Don told us the district needs teachers and likes BSC graduates. Anyone interested could write to Don at 2130 Marina Dr., Apt. O, Richmond, Va. 23234. All three men are happy in their jobs and enjoy the history that abounds in the area. Their school is on the bank of the James River and it is reported that Pocahontas played on the land now occupied by the school. Don also told us of an interesting trip he took on an Amtrack 14-day rail pass. For $165 you can travel anywhere on the system and stop in any town for as long as you wish, provided you are back home within 14 days when the pass expires. Don took the trip and visited Chicago, Denver, San Francisco, San Diego and New Orleans — 7,400 miles in 14 days. He used the trip to interest his students in geography by sending them post cards and travel brochures from each of the places he visited. We enjoyed our short visit with Don Bechtel, and we hope other alumni will give us the same pleasure by returning to campus often and telling us of your experiences.

Mrs. John J. McGroarty (Deborah Belcastro) Dec. '76 is a student at West Chester State College, where she is studying for the master's degree. She also reports a new address — 151 Bishop Ave., P207, Secane, Pa. 19018.

Susan Park '76 reports she is still single, unemployed, and lives at Clearfield Road, R.D. 1, Uew Providence, Pa. 17560.

Linda Schmicker '76 is assistant supervisor of the chemistry department, Cooper Medical Center, Camden, N.J. She has been in this position six months. Her address is 6159 Grant Ave., Pennsauken, N.J. 08109. Linda writes: "I am very pleased with The Alumni Quarterly. Many of my brothers and sisters have graduated from larger institutions of higher education, but their Alumni Associations are not as well organized nor as personally oriented as BSC's seems to be. Your efforts are appreciated."

Randall Scott Kimble, Dec. '76, is inventory controller with Midcon Fabricators, Tulsa, Okla. Randall also reported that he was getting married to a Kutztown graduate on March 19. Best wishes to Sally and Randall. Their new address is Box 276, Catoosa, Okla. 74015. They would be happy to hear from classmates and about BSC activities.

Mrs. William Powilus, Sr. (Kathleen Kiley), Dec. '76, began her duties last September as medical technologist at Geisinger Medical Center. They have three children, ages 2, 8 and 12, and live at 11 West Park St., Carroll Park, Bloomsburg.

Gene J. Blatt, Dec. '76, reports he is still looking for the right job and suggests graduate school reunions and vacations (world) as alumni activities. His address is 1219 Fenwick Place, Philadelphia, Pa. 19115.

Mr. and Mrs. Lance Scott Forrest (Lois Castiglione), both '76, live at 7000 Ridge Ave., Sandra Court, Apt. D-303, Philadelphia, Pa. 19128. Lois graduated in elementary education but is now at home busy with their son who was born September 1, 1976. Scott graduated with a B.S. in business administration and is now an accountant at the Derr Flooring Company. Lois writes: "Please keep us in touch with Bloomsburg State College. Also, we are willing to give a helping hand."

Steven E. Buck, Dec. '76, has recently taken a position with Crown American Corp. in the Johnstown office. Steve majored in business education and offered some good advice on how to improve the program. His comments have been passed to the proper authorities. Steve's address is R.D. 1, Hughesville, Pa. 17737.

John P. Brucksch, who received a master of arts degree in history at BSC in 1976, was named curator of the Andover (Mass.) Historical Society in September, 1976. John is a native of Rockville, Md., and received his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Maryland in January, 1971. His area of concentration was American and European history, art history, and architectural history.

Before John entered BSC graduate school, he married Hilikka L. Keto of Rockville. They moved to Bloomsburg in September, 1973, where John became involved in many college and community activities. He was a graduate assistant under Dr. James Sperry from September 1974 to September 1975 and served as a college union supervisor for one and a half years under the direction of Dr. John Mulka.

As a graduate assistant, he worked in the Columbia County Historical Society quarters located in Bakeless Center and provided an exhibit in Kehr Union of 19th Century American decorative textiles and pottery. The exhibit marked the initial Bicentennial event for the Bloomsburg area.

John maintained a 4.0 academic average at BSC and is a member of Phi Alpha Theta History Honorary Fraternity.

John is an avid collector and student of Americana and has considerable knowledge in the areas of textiles, pottery, furniture, kitchenware, tools, tinware, fraktur and clocks. During his first year at the Andover Historical Society his primary job will be to inventory and re-catalogue collections, organize storage and display areas, and train volunteers. John and Hilikka reside on Center Street in Andover, Mass. 01810.

BSC students Betsy Swerdak, Marie Herrity, and Debi Fogle are shown admiring the flags being flown for the first time on Alumni Weekend in front of the Waller Administration Building. The three standards, a gift of the class of 1976, are bearing the American Flag, the Pennsylvania State Flag, and the St. George Cross. The latter, a replica of the first English flag to be flown in North America, will eventually be replaced with a BSC flag. The three standards were placed as part of the campus beautification plan.

Softball

The long-awaited Spring of '77 heralded the birth of a new women's sport at BSC, intercollegiate softball. During their premiere year, the novice Huskys hosted veteran teams from Luzerne Community College and Susquehanna University, and another first-year nine from the University of Scranton. BSC journeyed to Bucknell University and Kutztown State for the balance of a modest starting schedule.

Results of the contests: BSC 14, Susquehanna 13 (scrimmage); Bucknell 12, BSC 3; BSC 10, U. of Scranton 9; Luzerne CCC 10, BSC 4; Kutztown 19, BSC 13.

The team of twenty was co-captained by Sharon Massa, a centerfield junior from Allentown, and senior Monica Magda from East Pittsburg, playing at the shortstop position.

As Coach Sue Hibbs noted, "The leadership so critical to a first year team was most ably provided by Sharon and Monica, who set a positive precedent for future teams to follow."

Other young women athletes who made significant contributions to the team effort included many high school letter winners. One of these, Debbie Karchner, the number one pitcher, was credited with the win over Susquehanna. Karchner also provided last inning relief pitching to insure Betsy Sulpizio's win over the U. of Scranton. Karchner is a commuting student from Nesquehoning, while Sulpizio's hometown is Rosemont.

The brightest talent to surface from this novice squad proved to be its hitting power. While facing numerous talented fast-pitch artists, the Bloomsburg Sluggers were able to accrue a season team batting average of .405.

Leading the big bats were fielders Cindy Enders of Halifax and Annamae Hein of Wescosville. These two sophomores compiled a 667 offensive average for the year.

Hein also shared homerun hitting honors with Donna Santa Maria, a catcher from Moyland. Ang Taormina, third base player from Lock Haven, and senior standout from Nazareth, Michael Flick at first base. Flick and Karchner also led the team in RBIs with five each. Of the total team offense, only five players fell under a .300 season hitting mark.

With all but two senior athletes eligible to return in '78, the team has sights set toward improving their defensive game. Outstanding infield returnees include Carolyn Bartoni at shortstop, an Allentown co-ed; Sunbury native Sally Houser at first base; Leslie Kulick, first-string catcher from Mayfield; fielder Debbie Cardene of Allentown, and Pam Phillips, a third base player from Dallas.

Second base coverage was provided by Karen Schaefer, Holland, and Sandy Serafin of Wilkes-Barre. Rounding out the squad is Sue Kadash, a catcher from Hopelawn, N.J., and fielders Lorrie Fry, Muncy; Sally Small, Lykens; and Vanessa Besecker, a Stroudsburg native.

Coach Hibbs, a veteran of several years of coaching and playing, is encouraged by her team's first year performance. "Considering our brief schedule and the playing experience of our opponents, we did extremely well for a beginning team. Our potential is evident and prospects for the future are very bright."

This spring saw the women of BSC take to the playing fields as never before. Among the newly-formed varsities for women was the lacrosse team.

Eleven upperclass women who had played the sport as an intramural activity in 1976 were joined by 20 newcomers for tryouts in early March. By April 13, 20 of these women were on their way to Bucknell University to participate in their first contest together.

A talented and experienced Bucknell team took their measure by the score of 12-5, but the women of BSC were able to mount a respectable attack, with Pam Chamberlain of Doylestown, Pa., scoring the first goal. Lisa Regan, second home, from Jenkintown, Pa., scored a hat trick (three goals), and Cheryl Krause, attack wing, from Boothwyn, Pa., added one goal. Ellen French, a senior from Tower City, who later received the Eleanor M. Wray Award for outstanding woman athlete of the year, was in the goal for the Huskies. She was participating in the first lacrosse game she had ever seen. Ellen did a fine job, making ten saves in her first outing.

On Saturday of the same week, the team made its first appearance for a home audience, against Millersville State. Able to keep the ball in the attack end of the field, the BSC had several shots on the Millersville goalie, but were unable to score, while Millersville was able to capitalize whenever they had the ball. Down 4-0 at the half, the team rallied in the second half with Gail Hopkins from Norristown, Plymouth-Whitemarsh H.S., scoring two goals and Scilla Elliott of Pottstown scoring one on an assist from Pam Chamberlain. The final score was 8-3.

The team traveled to Lebanon Valley College on April 19 and came up with an all-out team effort for a 13-1 win. Lebanon Valley, fielding a young and inexperienced team, was not able to contain a strong BSC attack, with five players figuring in the scoring.

Lisa Regan had her second hat trick of the season, and Kathy Hotchkiss, third home from Plymouth Meeting, scored four goals. The defense played very well also to make the team effort complete. Ellen French saved 13 shots on goal, allowing only one L.V. score late in the game. The score was 9-0 at the half and with the first team retired to the bench, the second team played the opponents to a 4-1 second half.

Saturday, April 19, the team closed out its season at Kutztown State with a hotly contested 4-2 loss. Lisa Regan and Gail Hopkins each scored for the Huskies and Ellen French saved 16 shots on goal, aided by Fran Bolger, cover point, from Pottstown, and Nancy Bauer, point, from Kimberton, Pa. BSC led at the half, 2-1, but was unable to cope with a strong zone defense thrown up around the Kutztown goal.

The 1978 team will miss the outstanding defensive play of Judy Schmitz of Dresher, Pa., Nancy Bauer and Ellen French, as well as Jan Crossmore, West Chester, who was injured early in the season and saw action in only one game. All of the other players are expected to return and hopefully will be joined by a talented crop of freshmen, as well as some sophomore women who were not able to play this season.

The 1-3 record does not indicate the success of the season in terms of the aggressive defensive play or the skillful attack the team was able to put together this first year. Six players scored 23 goals, 11 of which were assisted. The defense had 65 saves while allowing 25 goals to be scored against them.

Co-captains of next year's team are Ellie Hatch, third man from Hughesville, Pa., Norristown Area H.S., and Scilla Elliott, Pottstown, Owen J. Roberts H.S.

Shippensburg State and perhaps Lehigh University will be added to the schedule for the 1978 season.

Computer at work saving energy

A computer has been put to work to conserve energy on the BSC campus.

The specially-designed computer regulates the heating, air conditioning, and electrical equipment in 14 of the college's 28 buildings. Controls in each building are tied in with the computer and make it possible for adjustments in the heating/cooling system in a matter of seconds.

In addition to its energy-saving capabilities, the new electronic monitoring system has other important functions. Both the fire alarm and security systems are monitored by the computer, which provides information printouts in the security headquarters. It also provides for remote control of electrical equipment for optimum efficiency and keeping accurate records on the use of equipment for preventative maintenance purposes.

Bloomsburg is the first state-owned institution to have a computer-based automated control system like this one.

Men's tennis team proves big surprise

The success of this year's BSC tennis team was a surprise to most everyone except perhaps the coach and team members.

"When we compiled a 5-0 dual record in the fall with a team of four freshmen and two juniors, I felt we had the possibility of having one of our better years," Coach Burt Reese stated. "We went on in the fall to finish fourth in the BSC Invitational and sixth in the ECAC. In the latter we were without the services of our No. 3 player, Nate Levine. At this point, I began to see our young players had talent and were rapidly gaining valuable experience."

Reese, who was just named Pennsylvania Conference "Tennis Coach of the Year," continued by saying, "In the spring our players seemed to improve with each match in recording a 13-4 dual mark. The biggest surprise was placing second in the Pennsylvania Conference Championships with Jim Hollister capturing the first BSC singles title at the No. 1 position and Levine winning the No. 3 title. Levine also teamed up with Rob Vance to take the No. 1 doubles, another BSC first."

Hollister, a junior from Bloomsburg, also captured the BSC Invitational singles title over an outstanding field and finished the year with a 22-10 record. Vance, a freshman from Phoenixville, played No. 2 and got to the semi-finals in both the ECAC and PC tournaments, while compiling an overall 20-8 record.

Levine, the freshman product from State College, had the best singles record at 22-5. Reese indicates Levine and Vance have the potential of becoming two of the College's all-time greats.

The No. 4 player, Rick Willders, a freshman from Blue Ball, had an 18-8 record and was a finalist in the conference. He teamed with Hollister at No. 2 doubles where they compiled a 17-5 mark.

Playing at the No. 5 and No. 6 positions were Mark Raynes, a freshman from Palmyra, and Bill Lantz, a junior from Harrisburg, who compiled 13-12 and 11-9 records respectively. At the No. 3 doubles position they finished with 12 wins against six losses.

The real bright side of the picture is that all six of these starters return next year and will have to vie for positions with some fine incoming freshmen prospects. As Coach Reese puts it, "This is a situation for which I have been waiting for eight years."

Nate Levine and Rob Vance claimed the Class A doubles crown on the Memorial Day weekend to lead BSC to a second-place finish in the 55th annual Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Championships at Rochester, N.Y.

Women's tennis squad aims to better record

The wrap-up of women's tennis for 1976-77 finds two seniors joining the Bloomsburg State College Alumnae. Deborah Young of Glen Mills, Pa., was captain for the last year and a half. She earned the lifetime athletic pass and the senior award for her four years of participation. She played the number two position last fall, but was student teaching in the spring.

Amy Westcott of Newark, Del., after four years of competition, student taught in the fall and played number three doubles in the spring.

BSC has a fine young team which is looking forward to the future with great desire to better their record of six wins and five losses for 1976-77. We can all be on the alert for incoming freshmen tennis players.

The women's tennis team participated in the Millersville Invitational Tennis Tournament. Lorie Keating of Montvale, N.J., was defeated in the semi-finals by Barbara Adams from West Chester State College, 6-3, 6-4 in a good match.

BSC's doubles team, consisting of Amy Westcott and Marianne Griffin, of Bethel Park, Pa., were defeated in the second round by a West Chester State team, 6-1, 6-0.

The women's tennis team has scheduled matches with Lock Haven, Kutztown, Shippensburg, Millersville, and Mansfield State Colleges, and Bucknell, Lycoming, Lehigh, Marywood, University of Scranton, and Wilkes College. The team has 14 matches between the fall and spring season in 1977-78, which is about the same as this year's schedule.

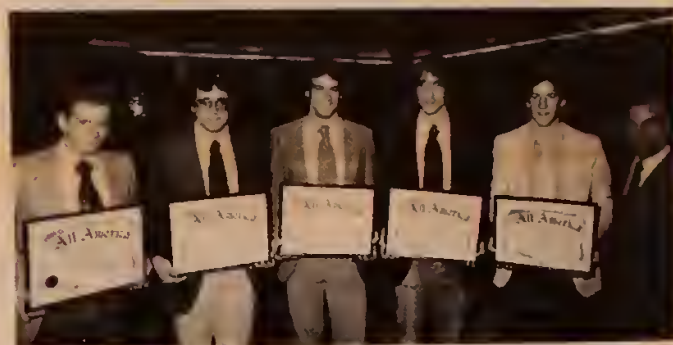

The team defeated Mansfield, Millersville, Wilkes College, Lycoming, Marywood, and University of Scranton. It lost to Irish Women (exhibit), Bucknell, Lock Haven, Susquehanna, Shippensburg, and Bucknell.

Individual results

Individual records were as follows: Lorie Keating, 8-3; Deb Young, 4-2; Sue Purnell, 8-3; Laura Stoneback, 4-2; Joan Riffitts, 5-5; Mary McHugh, 4-2; Kelly Knarr, 2-2; Deb Sabatelli, 2-3; Linda Rescigno, 2-2; Amy Westcott, 1-0; Carol Nosek, 0-0; Marianne Griffin, 1-0; Viv Mollard, 1-0.

Doubles results

Stoneback and Purnell, 2-2; Keating and Riffitts, 3-3; Young and Griffin, 3-2; McHugh and Rescigno, 0-1; Winterbottom and Ferlise, 2-0; Rescigno and Griffin, 1-0; Knarr and McHugh, 1-1; Purnell and Sabatelli, 0-1; Griffin and Westcott, 2-2; Cooke and Nosek, 1-0.

All-America swimmers

Torok, Stu Marvin, Steve Price, Doug Thran, and Head Coach Ell McLaughlin. Marvin was a triple All-America swimmer for the second time.

Track, field performers earn All-America

Memorial Day weekend yielded three All-America honors for BSC track and field performers at the NCAA Division II championships at Fargo, N.D.

Sophomore Jeff Carruthers and junior Stan Kita gained All-American certificates for their performances in the high jump and javelin. Carruthers tied for second in the high jump with a height of 6-10, while Kita was fifth in the javelin with a throw of 224-10. Steve Eachus gained All-America status with a sixth-place finish in the 10,000-meter run. Their combined efforts helped BSC to a 19th-place finish among 45 teams who scored in the meet.

Coach Carl Hinkle pointed gleefully to his team's prospects for the coming year: "As a first-year coach, I couldn't be happier. I've got a lot to look forward to."

The White Towers of Bloomsburg

(Printed in 1951 BSC publication)

(With acknowledgments and apologies to Winifred M. Letts, whose Spire of Oxford inspired these thoughts.)

I saw the towers of Bloomsburg as I was passing by.

The white towers of Bloomsburg against the autumn sky

The river flowed beneath them across the purple hills.

The town lies just below them with all its stores and mills.

Looking at the clock there, no matter where you stand.

This first one is the larger that shines against the blue.

Those who come to Bloomsburg and see September's haze

Up the street to Carver with its ever-welcoming door.

They've climbed with eager footsteps for four score years or more.

So we set up our signposts for those who follow here.

That they may see the towers that we have tried to rear.

Our towers may not point upward like fingers to the sky,

But looking always at them we cannot fail to try

To serve our Alma Mater and to merit to be true,

For the years look down upon us and others that we knew.

SUMMER commencement at BSC had an unusual feature — the address of Dr. Edwin W. Martin, deputy commissioner of the U.S. Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, was interpreted for the hearing impaired by two BSC graduate students, Evelyn Kalbfleisch (right) and Paula Hill.

Unusual and unique

The commencement exercises in Haas Auditorium on Thursday, August 18, were unusual and unique in two ways.

The graduates and guests had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Edwin W. Martin, deputy commissioner of education, HEW, and director of the Bureau of Education for Handicapped, Washington, D.C.

During Dr. Martin's address, two graduate students in education of the hearing impaired stood on stage and simultaneously interpreted Dr. Martin's speech using American sign language.

The students, Paula Hill and Evelyn Kalbfleisch, received their master's degrees during the exercises. (Their interpretations were not required for graduation.)

Organized hearings

In the spring of 1966, when the ad hoc subcommittee on the handicapped was organized in the U.S. House of Representatives, Dr. Martin served as its director. In that capacity, he organized the hearings and assisted with legislation and reports which lead to the first passage of the Education of the Handicapped Act in November, 1966.

The new Act began a program of grants to the States to initiate, expand and improve educational programming for handicapped children, and also to establish the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped and the National Advisory Committee on Handicapped Children.

In 1967, Dr. Martin became deputy associate commissioner, or deputy director, of the bureau which is in the U.S. Office of Education, Department of HEW. Two years later, he became the acting director of the bureau and in 1970 became director.

While serving in the latter position, Dr. Martin was instrumental in developing programming for education of the handicapped as a major aspect of federal education policy, and he worked closely with the Congress to expand and strengthen the federal role.

"Our education system reflects the value of our society and, as our society reaches out to the handicapped, to the poor, to the aged, and fulfills its promises, our society will be richer and more human, and our schools in turn will be richer and more human," Dr. Edwin W. Martin, deputy commissioner, U.S. Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, told the seniors and 130 graduate students who received their degrees during the August commencement convocation held August 18 in Haas Auditorium.

In his address, "I Suppose They Will All Want Dignity," Martin said the real American values are the protection of the rights of a single individual, freedom from unreasonable police

'Now, more than ever'

By Dr. JAMES H. McCORMICK
President, BSC

Mr. Donald Watts, his predecessors, and the members of the Alumni Board have, over the years, reminded alumni of the important role you play in the continuity and maturation of Bloomsburg as a growing, multi-purpose public institution.

Just as the Homecoming activities planned for October 8 have the theme of "Where It All Began," I would like to suggest that the theme for the Alumni Association could be "Now, More Than Ever . . ." In recent years, alumni have repeatedly been called upon for support and, increasingly, you have responded to those requests. However, now more than ever, we need each of you to be an advocate of public higher education and especially of Bloomsburg State College.

This year's fund drive, mentioned elsewhere in The Quarterly, is an obvious way for alumni to contribute to the growth and development of the college. We hope you will find it possible to participate in this year's effort.

We recognize, however, alumni support is much more than the contribution of funds. We value your vital service in recommending new students and attribute our ability to maintain stable enrollment in the past, in large measure, to your recruitment efforts.

In addition, we are aware that you, as alumni, have a powerful impact on public opinion and the resulting legislative support for public higher education. We have been sustained because of the college's reputation for combining high quality, diverse educational opportunities with efficient operation. With your support, we are committed to continue this tradition.

Recently, an article in a prominent educational journal described the 70s as an "era of change" and an "age of complexity." Certainly both phrases are descriptive of the immediate past and predictable future of public higher education. It is a time for institutions to be proactive rather than reactive, to prepare for change with stability, to respect tradition and yet be future-oriented, and to champion the enduring values of a liberal education while meeting the needs of our changing constituencies.

As this message is being prepared, we are in the midst of yet another difficult budget debate. As part of the Commonwealth system of higher education, we must do everything possible to cope with increased costs, but, while we cannot afford the present rate of inflation, we can less afford to succumb to the threats to public higher education brought on by inadequate funding. We are painfully aware of the burdens on the wage earner and the loss of confidence in the governmental and political process, but we are sure that the strengthening of institutions such as Bloomsburg State College will contribute to the solution of these problems.

We are most anxious to welcome you back to campus for our 50th Annual Homecoming on October 8. Your executive director, Mr. Donald Watts, continues to do an outstanding job and has planned some very exciting new events for Homecoming Weekend.

We look forward to greeting you!

action, freedom of speech, and the concern for an individual's rights even if he is a profoundly retarded child.

Other participants

Welcoming remarks were extended by Dr. James H. McCormick, president of the college. The degree candidates were presented by Dr. James V. Mitchell, vice president for academic affairs. Degrees were conferred by Dr. McCormick and awarded by William Zurick, chairman of the board of trustees. Dr. Alfred E. Tonolo presided during the ceremonies.

Assisting were the deans of the various schools: Dr. Howard K. Macauley, School of Professional Studies (acting); Dr. Emory W. Rarig, Jr., School of Business; Dr. Edson J. Drake, School of Arts and Sciences; and Dr. Charles H. Carlson, School of Graduate Studies.

Student remarks were given by James L. Byrnes, president of the senior class. The invocation and benediction were delivered by Father Thomas F. Langan, Catholic campus minister.

BSC milestone

In his welcoming remarks, Dr. McCormick reminded the graduates of their value to society, their contributions to the college, and the necessity for their continual support of higher education in their future lives.

Noting that about one half of the graduates were graduate students, he congratulated and complimented this segment for the interest in furthering their education and for the willingness to make personal sacrifices of time and money to obtain this goal. He also pointed out it was a milestone in BSC commencement exercises with the awarding of the Master of Business Administration degrees for the first time.

In addition to Zurick, other trustees present were Richard K. Walton, Frank Fay, and John Kubeika.

Speech interpreted

Appropriate to the subject of Dr. Martin, his speech was interpreted for the hearing impaired by Paula Hill and Evelyn Kalbfleisch, using sign language. (See story elsewhere in this edition about IMAGE, a new organization on the BSC campus which is opening a new world of experience for many hearing impaired persons.)

Vocalist Rebecca Thorp presented a solo entitled "I Will Sing New Songs of Gladness."

In 1970, he took a leading role in articulating the need for a national goal of educating all handicapped children by 1980. This goal became a major priority of successive U.S. commissioners of education and has been enacted as national public policy through the Education of All Handicapped Children Act of 1975. Since the development of the bureau, federal support for education of the handicapped has increased from approximately $35 million in 1967 to approximately $450 million in fiscal year 1977.

Earns award

In 1970, he was awarded the Superior Service Award from HEW for "visionary leadership in developing, broadening, and implementing a federal commitment to the special education needs of handicapped children." In 1974, he received the honorary doctorate of humane letters from Emerson College in Boston for his leadership on behalf of the civil rights of handicapped persons.

Dr. Martin's writings have been widely published in texts and professional journals and include topics in general education, special education, early childhood education, speech and hearing disorders, psychology, general semantics, and public educational policy. He has spoken to many public and professional audiences and appeared on numerous radio and television programs including the TODAY show and the Dinah Shore Show — advocating the educational rights of the handicapped.

A native of Oceanside, N.Y., he received his B.A. degree (with major in English literature) from Muhlenberg College in 1953, his M.A. degree in speech from the University of Alabama in 1955, and his Ph.D. degree (with a major in speech and hearing disorders and pathology) from the University of Pittsburgh in 1961. He served on the speech department faculty at the University of Alabama from 1960 to 1966.

He is married to the former Peggy Smith of Allentown, Pa., and has two sons, Scott and Bruce.

BSC reception at convention

BSC alumni attending the annual convention of the American Speech and Hearing Association in Chicago, November 2-5, will be invited to attend a reception and alumni symposium sponsored by the BSC department of communication disorders.

The events will be scheduled during the time established for college and university functions on Friday evening, November 4. The department has requested a meeting room at the Essex Inn which is across the street from the convention headquarters hotel, the Chicago Hilton. It is expected that a large number of current students in the programs of the department, including the Image Group, will be attending under the sponsorship of the Student Speech and Hearing Association.

In addition to the reception and greeting for the College's alumni in the fields of speech-language pathology, audiology and education of the hearing impaired, participants will be invited to an alumni symposium which will precede the social events.

The purpose of the symposium will be to report to alumni on the state of the College and the preparation programs of the department of communication disorders and to involve alumni in assessment and planning for the future.

According to Dr. James D. Bryden, chairperson of the department, alumni will be asked to evaluate the department's programs and to suggest changes based on the needs which they perceive.

"We need our alumni to tell us what we are doing right and what we are doing wrong, and to tell us what they think should be happening in the training programs of the field," Bryden said.

Early in the fall semester, an invitation will be mailed to alumni of the department who are engaged in professional practice in the areas of speech-language pathology, audiology, and education of the hearing impaired. Those who return a card indicating an interest in participation in the alumni symposium will receive a packet of materials containing the latest information on the department's programs and the plan to be used in involving alumni in the assessment and planning which will take place in Chicago. Although every effort will be made to contact all alumni, anyone who is missed can become involved in this process by writing to Dr. Bryden.

BSC waives fees for two groups

The BSC Board of Trustees, at its meeting on June 9, approved a waiver of fees for senior citizens. This action will make it possible for any retired person over the age of 60 to enroll for courses, without charge for tuition, in classes where space is available. The only costs would be for textbooks and laboratory or other special fees. The policy had been proposed several months earlier.

In other action, a new policy for waiver of fees for medical technology students during their clinical year was also adopted. This makes it possible for those students who pay fees to the hospitals or medical centers in which they do their clinical experience, to be enrolled at BSC without being required to pay fees to both institutions.

Musical sign language

During the 1976-77 year, the Student Speech and Hearing Association in the department of communication disorders at BSC gave birth to a new IMAGE. Inspired by the nationally-acclaimed "Good Vibrations" at Gallaudet College, the group performs a sign language interpretation of modern vocal music.

Students in all areas of study in the department, audiology, education of the hearing impaired and speech-language pathology, participate. The group derived its name, IMAGE, from a campus-wide naming contest sponsored by the SSHA.

A standing ovation was received from a packed house in Carver Hall on the campus following the inaugural two-hour concert in March. Subsequent concerts were held for special interest groups on campus, and in April the group performed for an enthusiastic all-deaf audience in Hanover, Pennsylvania.

Plans for the coming year include raising funds to purchase improved portable sound and lighting equipment. In November, the group will travel to Chicago to perform at a Bloomsburg Open House at the American Speech and Hearing Association convention.

IMAGE rehearsals began in November under the direction of Don Miller, a member of the audiology faculty, with assistance from Sue Aten, a teacher of the hearing impaired from the Central Susquehanna Intermediate Unit, and Rich Nowell, a field consultant with the State Department of Education.

Nominations of Alumni for DSA sought

The Distinguished Service Award is presented annually on Alumni Day at BSC to no more than three Alumni who, through their loyalty to the College, have brought honor to their Alma Mater and themselves through their professional, humanitarian, or philanthropic activities. A minimum of 10 years must have elapsed between the recipient's graduation and his nomination for this honor.

Nominees are sought from the Alumni membership. A selection committee each year reviews the nominations and names the award recipients. Awards will be made on Alumni Day, April 29, 1978.

Please give serious consideration to Alumni you know, and nominate the person you feel is deserving of the Distinguished Service Award. Send your nominations to Alumni Office, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

Music scholarships

The music department faculty at BSC has established a scholarship fund which will be open to any music major or minor who needs financial assistance.

The faculty contribution is expected to serve as a catalyst for other funds from contributors, receipts from scholarship concerts, bequests, memorial gifts, business and community sponsors.

It is hoped that a minimum of three or four music scholarships will be awarded annually. Anyone wishing to help in this project may make contributions payable to BSC Music Scholarship Fund and mail them to Frank Lorah, Manager, Student Accounts, c/o BSC.

1977 FUND DRIVE REPORT

The 1977 Fund Drive got off to a good start in June when the appeal literature was mailed to all Alumni and friends. In a pre-drive solicitation, 166 members pledged $9,981.50 as a challenge to the general membership to double that amount in pledges during the next two months. The two months will end August 27 when it is hoped that approximately $20,000 in new pledges will have been received.

By August 1, 555 donors had pledged $17,634.50, with the average gift about $32.00. A budget of $50,000 (same as last year) has been set for 1977-78. Donors may use the coupon below to make their pledge.

Thank God for Bloomsburg State!

To All Bloomsburg Alumni:

Our Class of 1952 held its 25th Reunion on April 30, 1977. We enjoyed a beautiful day, guided tours of a growing institution, lunch with alumni and staff, a class meeting, and finally our evening of dinner and socializing. An absolutely outstanding day!

During our dinner discussions, one sobering thought prevailed. Thank God for Bloomsburg State! For whatever reason, be it academic, economic, location, or other, we expressed gratitude for the benefits we received from our Alma Mater. You and I did receive much, and perhaps we should consider sharing something in return. Our Alumni Association needs our financial help now. Whatever we can share will be appreciated and used wisely.

I promise to help! Can we count on you? Please?

It really is a small world!

John Walker, executive assistant to the president, and his family were vacationing in Europe this summer. While riding on a train through Switzerland, the Walkers overheard two girls speaking in English.

This aroused their curiosity and with further eavesdropping it was revealed they were discussing places in Pennsylvania. With his curiosity really aroused, Walker approached the girls and asked if they were from Pennsylvania.

Both girls laughed and replied that one was from Shenandoah and the other from Pottsville. Then one looked closer at Walker and said, "You're Mr. Walker from Bloomsburg State College, aren't you?"

The heroine of the story was Anita Delance, a BSC graduate in 1971. Her friend was a PSU graduate who lives in Pottsville. Anita's address is 118 West Oak St., Shenandoah, Pa. 17976.

We can only repeat — It's a small world, and Bloomsburg people will be found wherever you go.

Woman's world: Susie Rayos Marmon

(Editor's Note: Last February, the Alumni Office received a inquiry from Radcliff College about Susie Rayos Marmon, a Bloomsburg graduate in 1906. Our files indicated mail addressed to her had been returned in 1967 marked "Unclaimed — Address Unknown." We researched the archive files and learned that a letter had been received from Mrs. Marmon and read at her 50th class reunion in 1956. Still determined to learn more about the young girl from Laguna, New Mexico, who enrolled at Bloomsburg by way of the Carlisle Indian School in 1903, we asked for help by placing a note in the June issue of The Alumni Quarterly. We struck gold! On July 25, Phyllis Conner '72 delivered an envelope from Dr. Stuart W. Adler, M.D., containing a world of information and pictures of Mrs. Marmon. Let us start with Dr. Adler's letter.)

"In the latest issue of The Alumni Quarterly, under the class of 1906, you ask for information about Mrs. Susie Rayos Marmon of Laguna, New Mexico. The matter was called to my attention by my cousin, Phyllis Conner of Orangeville, a graduate of the Class of 1972. Miss Conner is now living in Albuquerque.

"It was my good fortune to know Susie Rayos in 1905 at what was then Bloomsburg State Normal School. She was in Bloomsburg receiving her teacher training, having been assigned there from the government school for Indians at Carlisle, Pa.

"Part of her extra curricular activity was to supervise me and two younger brothers under the direction of Dr. and Mrs. Judson Perry Welsh. Dr. Welsh, the principal of BSNS, was my uncle. We three boys became very fond of Susie Rayos, and in my case, the friendship is continuing to this day.

"She was in the east doing her practice teaching for seven years before she returned to New Mexico, even for a visit to her home pueblo of Laguna. After her marriage to Walter K. Marmon of Laguna, she taught for many years in that Indian pueblo.

"Aunt Susie, we affectionately call her, is now in her 100th year. She is a resident at present in a very fine nursing home. I am privileged to see her several times a week. Her vision and hearing are somewhat impaired, but we have many talks about her long life, including the years at BSNS. Her memory is surprisingly good most of the time and her sense of humor is delightful.

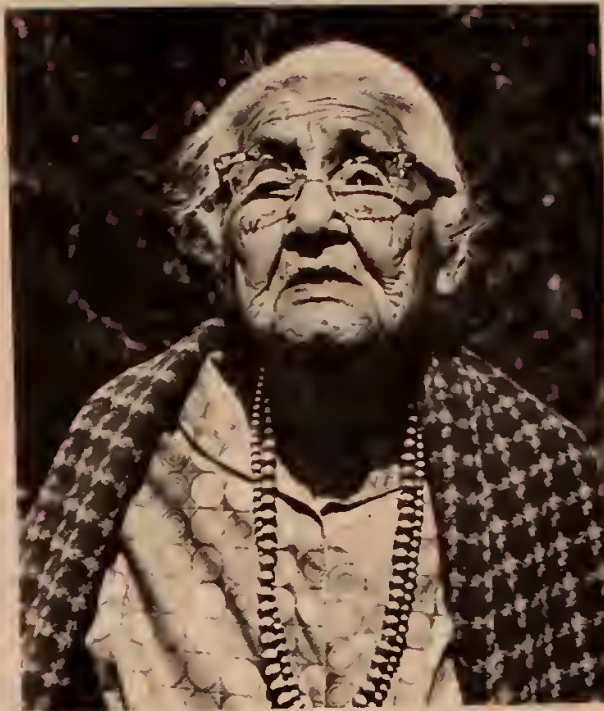

"The enclosed newspaper clippings from 1972 give considerable information about her life interests and the honors she has received. Only July 4, 1976, she was on a local television show for a 20-minute interview as part of New Mexico's Bicentennial celebration.

"I am sending you this information with the approval of Mrs. Marmon's family. Her home address is that of her daughter Josephine, Mrs. Ray Goetting, P.O. Box 208, Laguna, New Mexico 87026.

"Susie would appreciate your resuming the mailing of The Quarterly to that address as well as any other Alumni Bulletins.

"I hope this information will be helpful in bringing your office up to date about this charming, well-educated fellow citizen of our state — the 'Land of Enchantment.'

"P.S. While not on your alumni list at BSNS or BSC, I graduated from the Model School in 1907 and have a diploma and photograph to prove it. Our teacher was Mary Grace Worrell, who later became my stepmother. I am a retired physician (pediatrician). I came to Albuquerque with my wife and children to practice my profession in 1933."

Receives tribute

The following information about Mrs. Marmon was taken from The Albuquerque Tribune of June 24, 1972, and July 31, 1969, with credits to Urith Lucas and Bonnie R. Carmack for their respective articles.

Dignified Susie Rayos Marmon (then 94) has received a warm tribute for her long service to the American Indian. A Laguna Pueblo Indian, Mrs. Marmon was honored at the North American Indian Women's Association banquet at the Albuquerque Indian School. She was honored as "Outstanding Indian Woman in the Field of Education."

Tributes to Mrs. Marmon included a letter from Mrs. Pat Nixon, who called it an honor "deservingly bestowed upon you as a living tribute to your tireless devotion to the better education of the youthful descendants of the first inhabitants and cultivators of our Nation's soil."

Susie Rayos first attended the Presbyterian Mission, now Menaul School in Albuquerque, "when I was about nine years old. They came out to Pague (her native village at Pueblo) and offered the chance to come to the Presbyterian Mission School. My mother had just one daughter, but she wanted me to go because she wanted me to have an education."

The little group of children went to Albuquerque on the Old Santa Fe and it was late at night when they arrived. "A gentleman named Mr. Jenkins was there to meet us at the station in a wagon, and it was a rough ride to the school. When we got there, the boys went to the dormitory to sleep. They made a little pallet by the stove in the dining room for me and the other girl who came."

When they opened a mission box at the Old Menaul School about 80 years ago, there was a red dress in it with such pretty buttons on it that Susie Rayos has never forgotten it. Now — a full and busy lifetime later — there is still a hint of longing in her voice when she remembers that the dress fit another, larger girl.

Susie Rayos didn't speak a word of English when she arrived at the school, but a year later, when she returned to Pague wearing her dress from the mission box — a dark one because it had fit her — her mastery of the language was well begun.

Next came her chance to go to Carlisle, the old Indian school in Pennsylvania. If you went, you had to agree to stay for five years before coming home. She stayed seven before her first homecoming to Pague, and then went back to take the three-year teachers course (at Bloomsburg State Normal School, now Bloomsburg State College). After teaching one year at Carlisle, the government sent her back to New Mexico Territory to teach at Isleta.

At a recent workshop for teachers at Laguna, teachers and teacher aides — Indian and non-Indian — listened to her stories. To make an effort to learn a new language was no new thing for the Lagunas, her mother had told her. In Spanish times, tribal leaders had thought it a good idea to learn the Spanish language. Two or three men were sent to Mexico for that purpose. One came back with a large book he used to teach others of the tribe in the new language.

Some of New Mexico's leading anthropologists and historians count Mrs. Marmon a rich source of Indian lore handed down through the generations. The Southern Pueblos Agency made tape recordings to preserve her memories for more generations.

"From such sources of Indian yesterdays comes the material to enrich social studies for Laguna children," Miss Mae Bratton, principal of the school, pointed out.

On July 1, 1976, Susie Rayos Marmon was interviewed on KGGM-TV and made a 20-minute tape for presentation on July 4 as a part of New Mexico's Bicentennial celebration.

Her face has the warm patina of healthy years, but fewer wrinkles than one would expect for a woman in her 100th year. She pins her hair back in a little knot and holds it smooth with side combs like so many grandmothers used to do. Her voice is soft and her words well chosen. She is equally fluent in English and her owned loved Keresan.

Laguna, with its uranium mines and electronic plants, has the name of a progressive pueblo. Mrs. Marmon says it became so partly because "young Americans came to live among us and married Indian maidens." Her husband was the son of such a man, Robert G. Marmon, a civil engineer who came out from Ohio in the 1870s to join his brother who was teaching at Laguna. Robert Marmon became one of the few non-Indians to be elected governor of a pueblo.

Susie Rayos taught a few years before she and Walter Marmon were married. Their five children went to Albuquerque for high school. Two of the boys went on to the University of New Mexico. When the youngest was old enough, Mrs. Marmon went back to teaching. Several of her former pupils have held the governor's cane and many have served in tribal offices.

She was a little impatient with drop-outs, John Pino, head of the Pueblo Housing Authority, can well remember. He had thought going through sixth grade was schooling enough, so he went to work on a ranch.

"Maybe she didn't think I was going to make too good a cowboy," Pino recalled. "Anyway, she talked me into going back to school, and it helped to get a good job with the railroad. Back in the Pueblo, I have held a number of offices." What she taught him, he passed on to his sons, and two earned college degrees.

Education is one of the things that makes Laguna progressive. Francis Smith, chairman of the school board, is convinced. When he lists its natural resources, he names Mrs. Marmon along with uranium, pink marble and red rock.

Prideful things remembered at the Pueblo are the degrees Lagunas have earned — one Ph.D., doctor of medicine, doctor of dentistry, several master's degrees — one held by Mrs. Marmon's granddaughter. A grandson is a graduate of Julliard Academy of Music and plays with the St. Louis Symphony.

Miss Bratton, principal of the school, mentioned the $50,000 tribal loan fund which is used by about 50 college students a year.

The Laguna Head Start School is appropriately located almost in Mrs. Marmon's front yard, and right behind her house still stands the little one-room building where she taught for many years. Susie Rayos Marmon is still urging the people of her pueblo to preserve its land, its traditions, and in language, and reminds them that 'education is the best tool.'

Sometimes when she talks, her eyelids almost close. "She is having trouble with her eyesight," a friend explained, "but not her vision."

Susie Rayos Marmon exemplifies what one concerned person can do to change the lives of generations to follow. Her people — Indians and non-Indians — can be proud of her and her influence on the lives of countless individuals. They can be thankful that one Indian mother was willing to send her only daughter to a distant mission school for a better education and doubly thankful that the daughter, Susie Rayos, accepted the challenge and has enriched the lives of all who have known her.

Bloomsburg State College is proud to count her among its most honored graduates. It has been aptly said that anyone who has touched the life of a child has changed the course of the world.

Susie Rayos Marmon has certainly done that, and now we know why Radcliff College was considering her for inclusion in the publication, "Notable American Women."

Puhl wealthy with grid returnees

Optimism is running high among second-year Coach Ron Puhl and his BSC Huskies for the upcoming 1977 football campaign. Having brought Bloomsburg's respectability back during 1976, Puhl's goal is for a much-improved win-loss record. Last year's 2-7 record doesn't reveal that a possible 5-4 season was missed by a total of only nine points. Bloomsburg was in almost every game right up to the final quarter.

Puhl has a wealth of returnees as only six were lost from last year's squad, including defensive backs Mark Marchegiani and John McCauley, guard Jim Blockus, linebacker Mike Kowalick, wide receiver Barry O'Connell, and tightend Mike Steigerwalt. All saw considerable action. Bloomsburg has a 2-4 mark in the eastern division of the Pennsylvania Conference.

Key returnees such as all-conference players inebacker Doug Ptautz and tackle Walt Savitts will keep the defense spark ignited, and fuel will be added by linebackers Howie Gulick, captain Lou Sannutti, and Bruce Smith, along with defensive back Dave Reidenouer, defensive tackle Tom Koons, and tightend Mike Collins.

Among the better newcomers will be defensive end Curt Pettis. Also back will be quarterback Mike Canzler and wide receiver Tom Brennan, who combined to lead the Huskies as the best passing team in the division with 181.4 yards average per game. Canzler averaged 10.7 completions per game and threw for nearly 1,500 yards in 1976. The passing offense was eleventh in NCAA division III and led both the east and west divisions of the Pennsylvania Conference. Brennan averaged 4.0 catches per game. Other quarterback prospects include Joe Perrotti, Dale Crooks, and Larry Heim.

All-conference halfback Mike Morucci will be called on again to do the major ball carrying and will be complemented by fullbacks Dan McCollum and Ken Zipko. Wide receiver Barry Staton, a 9.8 sprinter, and running backs Joe Hepp and Dale Hockenberry and former all-state high school star wide receiver Ed Bugno will enhance the Huskies' attack. Other strong contributors will be tightend and punter Stan Kita, offensive guard Bob Grantier, center Steve Long, offensive tackle John Mondschein, offensive tackle Paul Ruddy, and newcomers center Bill Lund, defensive tackle Dan Gyzanski, and offensive tackle John Onefrey.

Other strong possibilities whose positions have not been definitely determined are Lee Jacobs, Dan McCollum, Rob Keiser, and transfer Frank Yanik. Puhl and his assistants — Joe DeMelfi, Carl Hinkle, and Dick Haupt — will take a close look at other veterans and some good prospective incoming frosh.

Baseball team looks to alumni for help

By CLARK BOLER
Baseball Coach

The 1977 Husky baseball team enjoyed one of its best seasons ever, although they were less than .500 in winning percentage with an 11-13 record.

The team started the year by traveling to Florida during the spring break for the first time ever. The players stayed at the Little League headquarters in St. Petersburg and had a grand time in addition to their practice games with Florida-based schools.

The Huskies won three and lost two on the Southern swing and helped the team take a quick 2-0 start when they started up North. Then the team played some very good teams in the cold weather and came up on the short end by losing to powerful Wilkes (18-2) and Lemoyne College (22-4). Wilkes and Lemoyne played in their regional playoffs after their regular season.

No-hitter

During the middle of the season, the Huskies won six of eight games with the highlight being a no-hitter by our sophomore left-hander Rick Budweg, who is ranked second in the NCAA Division II E.R.A. statistics on May 7 with an 0.66 E.R.A. in 41 innings pitched.

Incidentally, the no-hitter was over Shippensburg State College, who won the State College Conference crown and also was the Middle Atlantic States Regional winner over California State and University of Maryland Baltimore County. Shippensburg represented our region in the national playoff at Springfield, Illinois, on May 28 to June 1.

The record for the Huskies in the powerful State College Conference was four wins and six losses for a fifth place finish of six teams. The junior varsity team had two wins and two defeats.

Although our team never made the Middle Atlantic Regional Playoffs, I was asked to be the acting chairman of the games committee for the tournament. It was indeed a grand experience.

Outlook good

If the team improves yearly as it has from the 1976 season, the 1978 season should be great. The Huskies rebounded from a 2-23 season to the 11-13 record for 1977.

Several Husky players should make the State College Conference Eastern Division All-Star Team.

The .300 plus hitting of outfielders Scott Vercoe and Bill Pennesi and second baseman Bob Stackhouse was instrumental in the marked improvement from 1976. Vercoe, a junior from Wayne, had a .373 batting average and a .600 slugging average. In his 75 times at the plate, he had 28 hits including six two-baggers, one triple, three homeruns and 15 runs batted in. He was named to the second team of the Mid-Atlantic Regional All-Star Team Selections and was voted the two BSC awards of Mr. Clutch and Best Hitter by his teammates.

Pennesi, a sophomore from Hershey, batted .301 in 73 times at bat, collecting 22 hits, scoring 15 runs, and six runs batted in. He was named to the third team Mid-Atlantic selections this year and in 1976 he was the only All-Eastern Division player named from the Husky squad.

Stackhouse, Malvern, is a key player being lost through graduation. He led the team in the number of times at the plate (77) and hit .311 on 24 hits, including four doubles, one triple, and two homeruns. His field averaging at the hot spot was .924. He was given the Most Dedicated Player Husky award.

Others highly-rated

Three other Huskies rated highly were pitcher Rich Budweg, Craig Mensinger, and first baseman Jeff Long. Budweg, a sophomore from Lansdale, gave up 21 hits and had 38 strikeouts in recording a 3-2 season. Despite his E.R.A. of .66, he was four innings short of the required 45 innings of participation to be listed in the final national stats. His teammates selected him for the MVP and the Most Consistent Pitcher awards. He was also named to the Mid-Atlantic Regional second team.

Mensing, a junior from Mifflinville, received three team honors — Most Improved Player, Husky Hustle Award, and Red Badge Award (most courageous). In 74 times at bat, he had 20 hits, a .270 batting average with four runs batted in.

Long, Hanover, was voted the team's Best All-Around Freshman Player and the Golden Glove Award. He batted 58 times, had 11 hits, four runs batted in, and a .19 average. In fielding, he had 145 putouts for a .987 average.

In addition to Stackhouse, Senior Service Awards were presented to pitchers Mike Broda, Bloomsburg; Joe Turri, Allentown; and Bob Crimian, Philadelphia.

More active recruiting

The baseball program at Bloomsburg has really grown over the last 10 years, and we have hopes of reaching higher goals with better active recruiting and communicating with people about the quality of education at BSC and what the sports program has to offer the individuals.

If you are not certain as to the quality of super facilities that Bloomsburg State College possesses, you should visit our new upper campus. Your recruits will be impressed.

If you would like to help the baseball program in any other way, please do not hesitate to show your interest. All athletic teams have now been given the opportunity to raise money by some active fund-raising program. Our baseball team has started the ball rolling by selling yearly calendars with pictures of our squad and individual action shots of fall baseball practice and 1976 action shots.

If you would be interested in helping to raise money for another Southern trip or special equipment for the baseball program, the calendars are on sale now for the small amount of a $1 to $5 gift. The players will be selling the calendars, and I have about 100 on hand at the college for mailing.

Assistant needed

The third request for the baseball program is a dedicated person(s) as an assistant coach that would like to help a quality program. This person could be a graduate assistant, retired person near Bloomsburg, college faculty, or local school personnel, or present student aid in the form of a work-study program.

Needless to say, if you are willing to expend your efforts to help our program in any particular area, the baseball program will benefit and you will reap the rewards of seeing the team become a big winner. The baseball team and its coaches thank you for your concern.

Charles "Chuck" Daly '52, head basketball coach at the University of Pennsylvania, gave the keynote address to more than 800 students at the BSC Awards Convocation on Sunday, April 24.

Dr. Jack S. Mulka, director of student activities, gave welcoming remarks and introduced President McCormick, who in turn introduced Daly.

Referring to the future of the graduates and their responsibilities in life, Daly quoted the old business axiom, "If you don't go forward, you go backward," inferring there is no standing still in life.

He further admonished that accomplishments of each student to date is certainly an achievement, but self-evaluation will determine maintenance or expansion of those accomplishments.

"You've achieved some of your goals now," he said, "however, in reality, you must set new goals at which you'll have to work hard in order to continue your achievements."

Coach of the year

Burt Reese, BSC tennis coach, was named "Tennis Coach of the Year" in the Pennsylvania State College Athletic Conference. The selection was made by conference tennis coaches with Reese edging Chuck Wolbers of East Stroudsburg.

Track coach is 'proud'

After his first year as head track coach at BSC, Carl M. Hinkle told The Alumni Quarterly he was "deeply honored by our individual and team accomplishment in upholding a winning track tradition at BSC."

Summary of the season included the following highlights:

Indoor season — 13 wins and 4 losses, with 15 indoor records broken.

Outdoor season — 13 wins and 5 losses, with 10 records broken. The team finished second in the Pennsylvania State College Conference.

Two members of the team were Pennsylvania State College champions — high jumper Jeff Carruthers (a sophomore), with jump of 6-10, and half-miler Carter White (a freshman) with a time of 1:52.8.

The team finished in a tie for 27th place in the ICAAAA outdoor championship and in a tie for 18th place in Division II of the national championships.

The Huskies boast three All-Americans — Jeff Carruthers in the high jump, Stan Kita in the javelin, and Steve Eachus (two-time All-American in cross country and track), and in the 10,000 meters.

"The college community can certainly be proud of their scholastic and athletic efforts over a lengthy season from Nov. 1 until June," Hinkle observed.

Co-ed track, a new program for women at BSC, initiated a 3-win, 8-loss record with four qualifiers for the EAIAW regional track and field championships: Sharon Petrusnek, Carol Krause, Allison Watts, and Melody Lowry.

'78 EWL tourney at BSC in March

BSC will host the Eastern Wrestling League Championships on March 3-4, 1978.

The league, which was organized in 1975, has been comprised of BSC, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Clarion State, Buffalo State, and Lock Haven State.

BSC professors Stanley Rhodes (seated left) and John R. Fletcher (seated right) let their former students who have earned medical degrees do the talking during a get-together at the residence of President McCormick. Others included (standing, from left) Dr. David Campbell, president of the Columbia County Medical Association; Dr. Robert Pratt, recent graduate of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Wake Forest University; Dean Edson Drake of the BSC School of Arts and Sciences; and Dr. Frank C. Yartz, who received his degree recently from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine.

New doctors return to advise 'profs'

Former BSC students who have recently received medical degrees returned to campus as advisors to their former professors.

The purpose of the discussions was to explore ways of improving BSC's pre-professional studies program. The new doctors emphasized a continuing need to alert students to the non-academic problems they will face in medical schools, and to prepare them for the changes that occur so rapidly in the medical profession.

Robert Pratt of Selinsgrove and Frank C. Yartz of Honesdale received their medical degrees early in June. Dr. Pratt, who began his residency at the Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital in July, did graduate work in biology at BSC before entering the Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Wake Forest University.

Dr. Yartz received his bachelor's degree from BSC and also did graduate work in biology before entering the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine. He has begun his residency at Geisinger Medical Center.

Joining them in the discussions with faculty members from the biology and chemistry departments were Dr. David Campbell, president of the Columbia County Medical Association, and a former BSC student.

Dr. Pratt and Dr. Yartz are among seven former BSC students who received medical degrees this year. The others are Dr. Steven J. Anselmi, Keiser, Pa., who graduated from the Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine;

Couch to present recital Sept. 8

A solo recital of Romantic piano music performed by John Couch will be presented at BSC as the opening program of the 1977-78 Arts Council season. The performance will take place in Haas Center for the Arts on Thursday, September 8, at 8:15 p.m. The public is invited to attend at no charge.

Couch, professor of piano in the BSC music department, will present an all Romantic program which will include some of the best-known major works of Chopin, Brahms, Schumann and Liszt.

Pa. revises aid program

The state is revising its college tuition grant program to aid more middle income students, especially those whose parents make more than $15,000 a year.

The state Higher Education Assistance Agency announced it was raising the maximum grant from $1,200 to $1,500 per year.

It will also rework its formula so middle income students qualify for more aid and their parents have to contribute less toward tuition and other college expenses.

Specifically, the deductions allowed by the PHEAA for each child in a family will be increased from $500 to $1,000, enabling more large families to meet the $18,000-a-year adjusted income cutoff level. Parental contributions to tuition costs will be 4.5 per cent less.

For example, a family with two children making $17,000 a year will have to contribute $2,500 toward tuition, instead of the $3,250 required this year.

"I guess you can say the agency this year will have something for everyone," said agency director Kenneth Reeher at a press conference.

The agency expects to award 114,000 grants for the upcoming academic year, 11,000 more grants than were handed out for this year.

In the past, the program which provides a minimum grant of $100 for college costs was aimed more at helping lower income students, Reeher said.

But now, Reeher said, tuitions are so high that Pennsylvania's once low-cost public colleges are the most expensive in the country, pushing tuitions further beyond the reach of many middle income parents.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Attention lawyers!

We are trying to identify all former BSC graduates who are lawyers or are now attending law school. If you are in one of these categories, please inform Martin M. Gildea, BSC pre-law advisor, by including your name, year of graduation from BSC, the law school you graduated from or are now attending, and place of practice.

Courses offered

BSC has received approval from the State Board of Nursing Home Administrators to offer two short courses for nursing home personnel this fall. The courses run consecutively and offer the participants 12 licensure credit hours each for a total of 24 credit hours, the licensure requirement.

Course I, scheduled for September 13-19, will cover the areas of employer-employee communications, employee motivation, and labor relations. Course II will run from October 4-20 and will deal with dietetics and infection control in institutional surroundings.

This is the third year that BSC has offered such courses. Members of the business administration and the department of nursing will teach and direct the courses.

Program director is Dr. James E. Cole, professor of biology and program coordinator for health sciences at BSC.

Interested persons should contact Dr. Cole or E. Burel Gum, Dean, Office of Extended Programs, at BSC.

BSC in concert

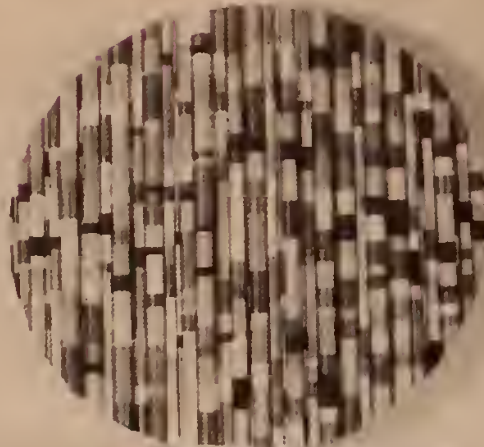

The BSC Concert Choir will sing in the Presbyterian Church, Langhorne, Pa., on January 7, 1978. Alumni and friends of BSC living in Newtown, Cornwall Heights, Levittown, and Langhorne are especially urged to mark their calendars for this event.

Rev. Blair Monie '70, pastor of the church, extends a cordial invitation to all to attend the concert and visit with the students and staff afterwards.

Individual involvement in the arts

A Composite of B.S.C.
Student Art Work 1976-77

By Dr. PERCIVAL R. ROBERTS III
Art Department Chairman

The visual arts continue to flourish at Bloomsburg State College due to a highly motivated and talented student body, an informed and dedicated art faculty, and a supportive administration. The arts in America are gradually emerging from decades of "benign" neglect and are occupying a more central position in the lives of her people.

It is becoming more and more widely recognized that the development of one's fullest human potential can only occur through the pursuit of the pleasures and enlightenment afforded by the arts and that this component of one's learning can exist compatibly with one's drive for economic security.

Individual involvement in the arts in America has never been more prevalent than it is today, and this keen interest in and participation with the arts has been a stimulus to the art program here at Bloomsburg State College.

The 1976-77 academic year has been an exceptionally active and vital one. The art department enrolled over 900 students each semester in classes devoted to art education, art history, and art studio. The approved major fields of study in art history and art studio enroll a total of 75 students, and approximately 50 elementary education majors have elected to minor in art. Students majoring in the art studio curriculum may elect to specialize in any one of the following six areas: ceramics, drawing, graphics, painting, sculpture, and weaving.

A departmental philosophy predicated on the pursuit of excellence in the arts

A departmental philosophy that is predicated on the pursuit of excellence, both in terms of the quality of student work and in achieving a personal means of expression, is fostered by a faculty commitment to individualized and independent approaches to learning. A unique feature of this department's instructional program continues to be its multi-level form of studio teaching, whereby students enrolled in beginning levels work simultaneously with students enrolled in advanced levels.

Art studio classes meet twice a week for three hours, which permits more uninterrupted working time. Art students also gain much from their fellow students in this type of learning environment.

The department has also engaged in the stimulating practice of exchange teaching among faculty and through these combined means feel that it has been able to provide a more ideal climate for learning and creativity in the arts.

Unique opportunities for learning in the arts

Sophomore reviews and senior evaluations, conducted on an annual basis and required of all students majoring in art, provide still another unique opportunity for learning. Assessments of work completed as well as recommendations for further development are made by a faculty committed to significant personal and creative growth, meaningful research and scholarship.

Abundant opportunities also exist within the department for minorities which embrace the spirit of affirmative action. Equal advantages for minorities exist through the vehicles of special opportunity programs, visiting resource persons, liaison cultural contact persons with urban minorities in the department's exhibition policy, and through special community opportunities for minorities coordinated by John F. Cook.

In the arts, one's education does not cease with the granting of a degree.

The department of art is committed to the conviction that one's education does not cease with the granting of a degree and that one's growth in the arts is a life-long commitment. Student advisement, stimulation and guidance, assistance in securing a position, and post-graduate counseling in exploring new avenues of expression or in suggesting exhibition opportunities are among some of the many intangible services offered art students at Bloomsburg State College.

The first student involved in art museum study began an internship at the William Penn Museum in 1977. From the Class of 1977, three art studio majors have applied to graduate school. In previous classes, students have earned M.A. degrees at the Pennsylvania State University and the University of Scranton, and M.F.A. degrees at the Universities of Delaware and Georgia.

Expanded and modified arts facilities

In addition to the expanded studio facilities for graphics, painting and weaving, now relocated in more spacious quarters in Old Science Hall, Haas Gallery of Art has also undergone extensive modification.

Under the direction of Karl Beamer, assisted by John Cook, the art gallery will have a new track lighting system installed, along with increased storage capability and a remodeled and enlarged entry area.

The instructional studio facilities for ceramics, jewelry, sculpture and metal sculpture, and metal smithing will undergo relocation in the former laundry building during the 1977-78 academic year, greatly increasing available instructional space for these studio courses.

A diversified art faculty committed to teaching

The art faculty of Bloomsburg State College represents a varied and diversified range of expertise and competencies in the fields of art education, art history, and the fine arts. The department is made up of nine full-time individuals, together with support from several part-time resource people, frequent visiting artists and exhibitors. The department also employs a half-time secretary and six work-study student assistants.

Among the earned degrees represented by the art faculty are two doctorates, four M.F.A.'s, two M.A.'s, and an M.S. and M.Ed. degree in art education from the following outstanding institutions: Columbia University, The University of Delaware, Edinboro State College, Illinois State University, Kutztown State College, Magill University, The Maryland Institute, The University of Michigan, New York University, The Pennsylvania State University, Pratt Institute, and the University of Wisconsin.

Over half of the art faculty have had previous graduate level teaching experience at other colleges and universities and frequently serve as consultants to other institutions.

The art faculty continues to be active in numerous college, community, and professional organizations. Many members of the art faculty exhibit their work regularly and have established both regional and national reputations in their areas of expertise. The department has also been responsible for a varied collection of publications, books, pamphlets, films, guides, and exhibition catalogs.

The department is listed in the Directory of Art Schools published annually by American Artist magazine and the American Crafts' Council, and in the Directory of Works of Art in Public Places. Two members of the art faculty have been recipients of distinguished teaching and distinguished academic service awards from the Commonwealth in 1976 and 1977.

Members of the art faculty are also active on the following college-wide committees: College Arts Council, Campus Beautification and Appearance Committee, The Representative Assembly, Ethnic and Minorities Committee, Channel 44 Auction Liaison, Meet and Discuss, Professional Development Committee, and Distinguished Awards Committee.

Stewart Nagel currently serves as the faculty advisor to the students' Fine Arts Committee, which develops, plans, and sponsors art-related programs and acquires works of art for the permanent art collection utilizing CGA funds.

During the past academic year, Mr. Beamer completed a second series of Bicentennial salt ware pieces. Mr. Cook exhibited his drawings in an invitational show at the Hahn Gallery in Philadelphia and organized a special multi-media presentation for the college's Spring Arts and Crafts Festival, "Home Grown."

Mr. Koslosky offered a series of informative workshops on "Art and Special Education" at Marywood College and at the Penn State Educational Center at King of Prussia.

Mr. Nagel held a one-man exhibition of his recent collagraphs at Messiah College.

The writer was a guest lecturer in art and juror at Mississippi College, and this past year, became a Life Member of the National Art Education Association.

Ms. Strohmman served as a judge for the annual Lewisburg Arts Festival and continued her travels abroad. A watercolor by Mr. Wilson was awarded a purchase prize at the Second Annual Watercolor Invitational at Millersville State College.

A varied program of artists-in-residence

Among the artists-in-residence sponsored by the department this past year were the South American painter, Julio Da Cunha; the Black American potter and printmaker, Camille Billops; poet, playwright, and critic, Dr. James V. Hatch; and twine-sculptor, banjoist, George Bucher from Susquehanna University.

The second successful summer of drawing and painting at Moosehead Lake, Maine, was organized and directed by Mr. Kenneth Wilson, and exhibitions of creative work produced there were shown in the Kehr Union Gallery. The second trip to France as part of the "Arts and Culture of France" took place in June and July, taught jointly by the departments of art and foreign languages.

Following a nation-wide search, the department recommended Dr. Charles Thomas Walters, who received his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan, as a successor to Dr. Walter A. Simon, who retired from the art faculty in June, and Mr. Walter Nichols, who earned his M.F.A. at the University of Iowa, as a one-year sabbatical replacement.

"Symposium '76: Exposure to Innovation" was a great success due to the inspired leadership of Mr. Robert Koslosky. Other members of the art faculty assisted in the mini-sessions conducted during this two-day, college-wide program which gained national attention. Highlights of the symposiums were televised on WVIA-TV (Channel 44) in the spring and focused on the uniqueness of this enterprise.

In the spring, Saturday classes in art for children, "The Children's Express," was launched under the supervision of Mr. Gary Clark. Visiting consultants from "The Ways and Meaning Place" in Harrisburg and a lively program organized by Mr. Clark and students in art education generated much interest in this "outreach" activity. Mr. Clark and his student assistants also appeared on Channel 44 in the spring to highlight this new venture.

Through the efforts of Mr. Wilson and WVIA-TV, five members of the art faculty donated works of art to the local P.B.S.'s "Auction 44" and donated the proceeds to the public television station.

Two matching grants awarded by the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts enabled the department to sponsor a series of three crafts-persons-in-residence in the spring: Dr. Douglas Pickering from Carnegie-Mellon University, who works in plastics and synthetic media; Bruno La Verdere, a nationally-known potter; and Charles Schneider, who presented a two-day program in commercial printmaking processes. A second grant enabled the department to publish a 35-page illustrated folio-directory of selected works from the College's Permanent Art Collection, which now numbers over 250 pieces.

The second draft of the department's proposal for a Master of Arts degree has been completed and given top priority in the college's Three-Year Action Plan. Members of the art faculty accompanied Dean Charles Carlson of the Graduate School to Harrisburg in the spring and presented the M.A. degree prospectus to Dr. Sam Marcus, director of the four-year and graduate programs for the state Department of Education. Any art alumni who would like additional information on this new program are invited to write to the art department or to the dean of graduate studies, Dr. Carlson.

The department also welcomes visits and correspondence from former art students. If you are in the area, we hope you will take advantage of some of the art exhibits and cultural events planned for the college community.

The department of art offices are located on the third floor of the Bakeless Center for the Humanities. The Haas Gallery of Art is located on the upper level of the Haas Center for the Arts.

Faculty notes

Five new department chairmen have been announced. They are Dr. Norman L. Hilgar, business administration; Dr. Woo Bong Lee, economics; Dr. Ray C. Rost, educational studies and services; Dr. James H. Huber, sociology and social welfare. In addition, Raymond E. Babineau has been appointed chairman of the planning commission.

E. Burel Gum '66 has been re-appointed as acting dean of extended programs until December 30, 1977. He served in that capacity during the past academic year, replacing Dr. Richard O. Wolfe '60, who was acting vice president for academic affairs. Dr. Wolfe will be on leave for the first semester.

The end of an era was marked June 12 by the First English Baptist Church, Bloomsburg, when retiring organist Howard Fenstermaker was honored for 50 years of service to his church.

Fenstermaker, a veteran BSC language instructor and music director, has also served the Caldwell Consistory and the Kiwanis Club at the keyboards for an equal number of years, plus being organist, band director, and director of the orchestra at the college.

During his 30 years of service to the church, he served as trustee, lay moderator, deacon and organist.

Richard D. Alderfer, a faculty member of the speech, communications and theatre arts department since 1967, received his doctoral degree at Ohio University on June 11, 1977.

Jesse A. Bryan, director of the Center for Academic Development at BSC, received his Ph.D. in higher education during ceremonies on July 29 at the University of Toledo. His dissertation was entitled "The Relevancy of Traditional Admission Criteria for the Selection of the Disadvantaged Student at the Undergraduate Level."

Brian Johnson, a member of the department of geography and earth science at BSC since 1967, received his Ed.D. from Penn State University on May 28. Dr. Johnson's dissertation is "The Transition of Rural Land to Absentee Ownership of Second Homes in Columbia County, Pennsylvania: A Geographic Perspective."

The study shows that many properties in the county are being bought by absentee owners for use as a recreational property or second home. It appears that Interstate 80 has stimulated such interests by residents of New York City, Northern New Jersey and other urban areas.

Dr. James H. McCormick, BSC president, was appointed by Gov. Milton Shapp to the Education Commission of the States. The commission is composed of the governors of each state, educators, and others appointed by the governors. It is a non-profit organization formed by inter-state compact to further working relationships among governors, state legislators, and educators for improvement of education at all levels.

Dr. and Mrs. McCormick attended the 11th annual meeting of the commission in New York City, and on June 15 Dr. McCormick was one of four panelists on the problem of "Financing Post-Secondary Education."

It happened on the same day

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Rygiel, Bloomsburg, observed their 50th wedding anniversary with a Mass of Thanksgiving and a renewal of their marriage vows at the St. Columba Catholic Church, Bloomsburg, in June.

Rev. Father Leonard Casey celebrated Mass and performed the wedding ceremony.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Rygiel's sister, Mrs. Stella Shell, Philadelphia, who was the maid of honor 50 years ago. Best man was Raymond Rygiel, Falls Church, Va., son of Mrs. Marie Rygiel, Wyoming, and the late Leo D. Rygiel. He served in place of his father, who served as best man 50 years ago.

The Rygiels were married on June 22, 1927, in St. John Cantius Church, Bridesburg, Philadelphia.

They had two sons. Walter Vincent, a graduate of Bloomsburg High School, Villanova University, and Penn State University, was chief bacteriologist at Winthrop Laboratories, a branch of Sterling Drug Co., Myerstown, before his death on April 28, 1959.

His brother, Eugene Albert, a graduate of Bloomsburg High School, was a senior at the University of Pennsylvania at the time of his death on January 3, 1954. He was a candidate for a Rhodes Scholarship.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rygiel graduated from Temple University, she from the business administration department and he from the Teachers' College.

After graduation from Temple in February, 1926, Mrs. Rygiel was secretary to the trust officer of the Oxford Bank and Trust Company, Frankford, Philadelphia, which later became Girard Trust Co.

Mr. Rygiel taught for 12½ years at the Wyoming Memorial High School and for 30 years at BSC in the department of business education. He retired in January, 1968.

James T. Lorelli, member of the department of geography and earth sciences, received his doctorate from Southern Illinois University on May 14. His dissertation, entitled "The Decision to Purchase Flood Insurance," examines the factors influencing homeowners' adoption of flood insurance within four Pennsylvania communities following Tropical Storm Agnes. Dr. Lorelli joined the BSC faculty in 1967.

Raymond Babineau, associate professor of education, was awarded his Ed.D. degree in May commencement exercises at Temple University. Dr. Babineau joined the BSC faculty in 1969.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Herre, Bloomsburg, were surprised on their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception and dinner at Hotel Magee.

They were married on June 22, 1927, in the Grace Episcopal Church, Lockport, N.Y., with the Rev. Dr. Henry Zwicker officiating. Mrs. Herre is the former Eleanor Mitchell of Lockport. Dr. Herre was from the Pittsford, N.Y., area.

Dr. Herre was graduated from Colgate University and received his doctorate from Pennsylvania State University. Before coming to BSC in 1947, he was principal and supervising principal in the Brockport, Wolcott, and Lockport high schools in New York State. At BSC he taught history and was dean of day men for 25 years, retiring in 1972.

Mrs. Herre was graduated from the School of Fine Arts of the Rochester Institute of Technology and taught art in the Niagara Falls High School until her marriage. During Dr. Herre's principalship in Brockport, she designed stained glass windows for the Haskins Stained Glass Window Studio, Rochester, N.Y., and also designed Christmas cards. For 15 years, she was a designer for the Magee Carpet Co., Bloomsburg.

Mrs. Herre, a well-known and highly respected portrait artist, has done a number of portraits which are on display on the BSC campus, including those of W. Boyd Sutcliffe, Elva H. Nelson, Howard F. Fenstermaker, Francis B. Haas, Samuel L. Wilson, and Marguerite W. Kehr.

The Herres have two children and two grandchildren. Their son, George, a graduate of Kent State University, is a senior system analyst at First National Bank, Akron, Ohio. He and his wife, the former Frances Durbin, have a daughter, Laura, two.

Their daughter, Virginia, is married to Daniel Greeban, a music teacher at Golden State College. She is chief of recreation at the VA Hospital in Long Beach, Calif. She is a graduate of Longwood College, Va. She and her husband have a son, Scott, age 5. They reside in Westminster, Calif.

Since their retirement, Dr. and Mrs. Herre have traveled extensively in Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

Dr. Conrad Bautz, chairman of the health, physical education and athletics department at BSC for the past five years, has resigned the post, effective August 29. Dr. Bautz has accepted chairmanship of the department of health, physical education and athletics at SUNY, Potsdam, N.Y.

of Presidents Committee on Professional Affairs and Continuing Education. It was his first official visit to a state college campus since his appointment.

Dr. Howard K. Macauley, Jr., professor of educational studies and services, has been named acting dean of professional studies at BSC for the 1977-78 academic year. He will replace Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, who will be on sabbatical leave.

During the past year, Macauley served as director of the curriculum materials center.

The Class of 1906 is honored to have two of its members cited in this issue: Mrs. Nellie (Brennan) Henebry, mentioned in the following note, and Susie (Rayos) Marmon, featured in "Woman's World" on another page.

Mrs. Henebry had been listed in the Alumni files as deceased. In fact, the records still listed her under her maiden name. Then on July 22, Mrs. Henebry's son and daughter-in-law were passing through Bloomsburg and decided to see if his mother's name was still on our files. He had often heard his mother speak of her days at Bloomsburg and recently remarked to him that she was probably the only person in her class still living. We assured Mr. Henebry that his mother was not the oldest person listed among our graduates and that 27 members of the Class of 1906 are still receiving mail from us, and twice that number are listed as "Address Unknown."

Mrs. Henebry is in good health, has a keen memory, and is looking forward to many issues of The Alumni Quarterly. Her address is 2312 South Patrick Dr., Apt. 1002, Indian Harbour Beach, Fla. 32937.

Mrs. Ethel Zecher Titus '06 died June 1, 1977.

Nellie Lesser Culp '07 now lives in a nursing home, according to information received in June from her daughter, Mary Lu Grover. Mrs. Grover wrote for her mother as follows: "In behalf of my mother, Nellie Lesser Culp, I thank you for sending the mementos of Alumni Day. She is a member of the Class of 1907. She is now living in a nursing home due to the infirmities of old age. Her mind is clear and she continues to be proud of her graduation from Bloomsburg State College.

"I did write to the college of the death of Lu Lesser Conner, of Trenton, N.J., twin to my mother, also Class of 1907. This item did not appear in the Alumni Bulletin. The death occurred in September, 1974. Both of these ladies did attend the 50th reunion of their class. It was a happy, memorable occasion for them and we have a grand group picture of those in the class who attended.

"Please continue to send news to me and I will relay it to my mother. Are there older members of the alumni? She is 89 years old. Could we know of those still living whom she would remember?

"Thank you again, Mr. Watts, for helping an older Bloomsburg graduate to feel recognized and appreciated."

(Ed. Note: We sent Mrs. Grover information on alumni who are older than her mother. According to our records, we have 24 who graduated prior to 1900, and 112 who graduated from 1900 through 1906. We were able to locate the July 1907 Alumni Quarterly and mailed Mrs. Culp a copy of the commencement program.)

Mrs. Henry Sippel (Florence Corby '07) wrote recently to say that she had planned to attend her 70th class reunion but didn't make it home from a Florida vacation trip in time. "While there, I had news that Clark Yeager '07 passed away last November. He resided in Sarasota, Florida. I enjoyed the article on Edwin Barton in The Quarterly." Mrs. Sippel's address is 434 Rutter Ave., Kingston, Pa. 18704.

school until she was 70 years old and, according to her daughter, Mrs. Anna Eustace, her teaching load for over 10 years included double sessions of 36 students in each session.

Ilanthe (Kitchen) Sommers '12 wrote us following Alumni Day: "Thank you for remembering me with the memento of the 65th reunion of the Class of 1912. I am very thankful to the Lord for good health. I have a nice room with an elderly woman and can cook in her kitchen. In a year or more, I expect to go to Gerry Homes, a home of our church in Gerry, N.Y. In the meantime, I may stop in to see my old school again."

Pearl (Hughes) Günther '14 is a resident of Maple Crest Nursing Home, Bloomsburg. Mrs. Günther has been a guest there for several years and would be happy to receive cards and letters from the "old guard" or other Bloomsburg graduates.

Dr. Millard C. Cryder '15 died May 7 at the age of 86. He graduated from Jefferson Medical College in 1920 and practiced medicine in New Jersey for more than 50 years. His home was in Cape May Court House, N.J., for the past 54 years.

Sister Marie Lawrence (Elizabeth M. R. Maher '17) wrote to us in May from Marywood College as follows: "I am deeply touched and most appreciative of your remembrance and memento on the occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of the graduation of my class from Bloomsburg.

"My two years at Bloomsburg were very happy and very productive. I have often regretted that in the years following graduation, I have no contact with anyone from my class.

"I now have an M.A. degree in biology from Villanova and a Ph.D. from Fordham. My present work is in ecology and environmental science. On April 29 and 30 I was with students on a tree-planting project with which I had promised to help."

Mrs. Lillian (Rifkin) Blumenfeld '17 was recently honored by the faculty of the Wyoming Seminary Day School, Wilkes-Barre, on the occasion of her completing 50 years in education. After the informal tea in the Heritage Room, Mrs. Blumenfeld spoke on her experiences in the field of progressive education.

She has written many articles on progressive education and her work has been published in the New York Times, Teachers Magazine, and Teachers and Writers magazine.

She has written several books for children — Our Planet, the Earth; Then and Now (series); and When I Grow Up I'll Be Mrs. Blumenfeld was director of Child Tested Toy Laboratory, a research group which studied children's reaction to commercial toys. At present, Mrs. Blumenfeld is the retired associate director/teacher at the Early Childhood Academy in Fort Myers, Fla., and has recently written a manual for parents and teachers, Consider the Child, to be printed by

Louneta Lorah '26 & '44 returned to Korea and Japan to visit with her "center children" with whom she had spent several years as a missionary. She remembered the Alumni Office staff and sent us a card from Korea which ended up at her address in Japan. Miss Lorah thought it best not to try the foreign mails again and brought the card back to West Pittston, where she mailed it with a letter about her trip. She lives at 511 Delaware Ave., West Pittston, Pa. 18643. She related: "In working as a missionary in Japan it was interesting to meet other Alumni there. I am proud of the fact that I am a graduate of Bloomsburg. God has prospered BSC and pray that many alumni will continue to serve mankind for the love of doing the service."

Marcella C. Maher '26 has joined the Community of Immaculate Heart of Mary and is now known as Sister M. Joseph Maher. Her address is St. Mary of Mount Carmel Convent, 336 Chestnut St., Dunmore, Pa. 18512.

Mrs. Joseph Polacky (Catherine Skvarla '27) writes: "I am sorry that I could not attend our golden class reunion as I had looked forward to it for the past year. I am sure it was a most gratifying and enjoyable reunion."

"After my graduation in 1927, I taught in the Larksville Public Schools until 1935, when I married Joseph Polacky, which ended my teaching for the time since one could not be employed as a teacher when married. I dedicated myself to my home and raised a family of 5 (4 girls and 1 boy). Then in 1950, Our Gate of Heaven Parish was built and a Catholic school was started in 1951. At this time, I again went back to teaching at (that school) in Dallas.

"In the 21 years of my teaching there, I taught all grades from three to eight. I went into retirement in 1974. I will always remember the many wonderful pointers given to me during the classes of instruction, along with the strictness of discipline each teacher demanded of her students. This will always be a good thought to remember since this method helped students to be well aware of the value of education.

"My husband died in 1962, and my daughter and her family are living with me. I am in good health and have 17 grandchildren. I visit them as often as I can and enjoy them very much.

"Again, thanks for this commemoration certificate as a reminder of the wonderful years of study and also a grateful appreciation of the teachers and instructors of the late 1920s at Bloomsburg State College."

Dallas, Pa.

Mrs. Verna Medley Davenport '27 reports: "The cost of the second mailing of letters and pictures to 135 class members following our 50th class reunion on Alumni Day amounted to $146.23. Mrs. J. Fred Giger (Victoria Smith '27) wrote to tell us why she did not attend her 50th class reunion and to report a new address: "Today I received my 'memento' of our 50th reunion. I regretted not being at the college to receive it in person. I had sent our reservations as soon as I received the notice.

"On Tuesday, April 26, I had to call Verna Medley and tell her I couldn't attend. I had developed phlebitis in my left leg and the doctor wouldn't allow me to go anywhere.

"I was sorry to miss the activities planned and visiting with my friends of 50 years ago. Thank you for sending me the memento and the decals. The Post Office has changed our address to R.D. 7, Box 165, Iron Ridge Acres, Bloomsburg."

Louis Yablonski '27 died on April 17, 1977

Two-man class reunion

(Ed. Note: We learned that two members of the Class of 1919 often get together in Tucson, Arizona, for a nostalgic reunion. We asked them to share their experience with our readers. The following is from Hurley O. Patterson '19: "After leaving BSNS in 1919, I went to Bradford County, Pa., where I was elected principal of LeRaysville Borough High School. That year I met Leora Dimon, whom I married, and we continued teaching together in Bradford for two more years.

"We moved to Easton, Pa., where I entered Lafayette College in 1922 and received a bachelor's degree in 1925 and started teaching physics in Easton High School, where I continued teaching for 34 years. During these years I received a master's degree from Lafayette in 1930, became head of the science department in the high school, and was a charter member of the Lehigh Valley Science Fair Executive Committee.

"My wife Leora was graduated from Mansfield S.N.S. in 1919 and taught three years in Bradford County and later taught for a number of years in the Easton School District.

"In 1957-58, we took a sabbatical year and spent it traveling throughout the U.S., Canada and Mexico. We retired in 1959 and moved to the sunny and low humidity climate of Tucson, Arizona.

"Our daughter Ann was graduated from Penn State University in 1954. She is now an instructor at the University of Arizona in the Division of Food, Human Nutrition and Dietetics. She has received an M.S. in nutrition at the U. of Az., and is presently working on her dissertation for a Ph.D. She has two daughters and one son. The older granddaughter is married and lives near us in Tucson, the younger granddaughter is a sophomore at U. of Az., and the grandson is a sophomore in Catalina High School in Tucson.

"Leora and I celebrated our 57th wedding anniversary in July. We are active and faithful members of Catalina United Methodist Church in Tucson. I'm also a member of the AARP and BPOE. All my life my hobbies have been hunting, fishing and horseback riding.

"F. Ralph Dreibelbis '19 and his wife Ruth have spent the winters of the last 11 consecutive years in an apartment in Tucson. Each winter we four get together many times for dinners and sight-seeing trips in Arizona. Ralph and I get out the 1919 Obiter and have a two-man reunion of the Class of '19. Both of us spent four years together in BSNS and we often speak of the fine instruction from the teachers of that college

"I'm enclosing a picture of the four of us taken in the Patterson's back patio by the orange tree on April 2."

These articles will appear under their respective class notes, but we want to quote from Mrs. Hewitt's letter concerning Mrs. Rarig: "(She) is a niece of mine who was born the same day and almost the same hour that my husband and I were married. We are very proud of her and her success." Mrs. Hewitt's address is R.D. 2, Catawissa, Pa. 17820.

Our special event will be held October 14, 1978, Homecoming Day. It will be at the Sheraton Inn, Danville.

So that we may plan for a successful get-together and bring our class records up to date, please fill out the following form and return it by October 15, 1977.

In addition, the educators had the opportunity to meet informally with the visiting lecturers in small seminar discussion groups. Participants also conducted research on course-related topics in Freedoms Foundation's resource libraries.

B.A. in music offered

Bloomsburg State College now offers the bachelor of arts degree in music. Students may concentrate in music history or performance — specializing in any one of the standard instruments or voice.

While music has always been emphasized strongly at Bloomsburg, only in the Spring of 1976 did the state finally permit the institution to offer a major in music.

According to Dr. William K. Decker, chairman of the department of music, the music faculty has been preparing for the music major for several years. The college has been building its supply of instruments and practice facilities for some time.

The department has one of the largest record collections of any department in Pennsylvania, and thanks to the foresight of the college library — particularly acquisitions librarian Aaron Polonsky — Andross Library now possesses an outstanding collection of music scores, books and micro-forms.

During the coming year, the department of music will continue its outstanding schedule of student and faculty performances. Highlights of a lengthy performing schedule include a staging of Handel's "Belshazzar," a presentation of Malcolm Williamson's opera, "The Brilliant and the Dark";

and the Madrigal Singers' "An Evening with Elizabeth."

The Maroon and Gold Band will continue to entertain at football games as well as present outstanding concerts on and off campus.

The department of music has always attempted to bring its resources to the community and has frequently included talent from the local area in its concerts and stage productions. It is believed that both groups benefit from the interaction of the varied ages and experience of the participants.

As part of this program to include members of the community, the well established College-Community Orchestra will combine with the newly-organized College-Community Chorus for a major Beethoven work this year.

The BSC music faculty consists of performers and teachers who continually prepare and present public performances of great music. John Couch, faculty pianist, has performed many solo recitals and appeared numerous times with the orchestra.

Richard Stanislaw, John Master, and William Decker have also given many faculty recitals. Stephen Wallace and Nelson Miller have appeared many times as conductors of instrumental groups and last spring led the Maroon and Gold Band in a concert sponsored by the Harrisburg Patriot News in the Educational Forum.

Sylvia Cronin, professor of music education, has sponsored several workshops for teachers in Columbia and surrounding counties. All of these faculty members will continue their work of reaching both students and townspeople through great music.

As the department continues to grow, more emphasis will be focused on the music major. As more and more students enroll in the program, greater diversity of faculty and facilities will be needed. As interest in music at Bloomsburg expands, the department plans to be ready to offer its services in whatever way possible.

blankets . . . distant laughter . . . the scent of a sea-sprayed beach town—these are the images evoked in this intimate collection of bittersweet reveries. Themes of summer dalliance and transient love are exquisitely captured from the depths of loneliness and unfulfilled yearning. $4.00

Young woman making mark as lobbyist

Faye (Manchester) Mench '70 lives a kind of double life in Washington, D.C. She puts in full days as one of the youngest Washington lobbyists promoting legislation benefiting consumers and older Americans for the National Retired Teachers Association-American Association of Retired Persons (NRTA-AARP). But after leaving the office she plays center-field for a league-leading women's softball team, maintaining a long interest in sports.

During five years of advancement to more responsible positions with the 10.7 million member association, which has more than 800,000 Pennsylvania members, Faye has become a widely recognized specialist in three important legislative fields: transportation, crime, and women's affairs.

Testifies often

She frequently testifies at Congressional hearings — urging the end of age discrimination in employment, elimination of credit discrimination based solely on age, stricter anti-crime laws particularly to protect the elderly against consumer fraud, and the regulation of hearing aid sales.

In transportation — on behalf of the association — she has urged lower airline fares for the elderly and better coordination of existing transportation services and facilities.

In women's affairs, Faye is a strong advocate of programs to benefit the millions of so-called displaced homemakers — the wives and mothers widowed, divorced or abandoned by their husbands who need assistance in finding employment and reclaiming their independence.

Wins appointments

Her responsibilities include attending national conferences such as the annual meeting of the Consumer Federation of America. Recently, she conducted two workshops on women and legislation as part of a seminar for the U.S. Health, Education, and Welfare Department's Federal Women's Program in the Washington-Baltimore area.

As proof of her success and influence in promotion of legislation, Faye has won appointments to National Academies of Science and Engineering research panels and as project advisor to the University of Pittsburgh's Graduate School of Business investigation of consumer buying problems of the elderly.

Only woman with rank

She is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the Academy of Political Science and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Recently, she was offered membership in the exclusive Capitol Hill Club, whose members are mostly Congressmen and Senators. Faye also finds time to pursue a master's degree in Public Administration at George Washington University by attending evening classes.

At present, Faye is the only woman with the rank of legislative representative in NRTA-AARP. But she has a long record of achieving recognition — as class valedictorian at Northeast Bradford High School in Rome and as winner of citizenship awards from the American Legion Auxiliary and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Faye is a graduate of BSC with a degree in secondary education. As a student teacher, she taught at North Penn High School in Lansdale and at Lower Merion High School, Ardmore.

For two years before coming to Washington, she taught English at both junior and senior high levels at Northeast Bradford High School, her alma mater.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Manchester and the granddaughter of Mrs. Ethlyn Manchester. Faye's address is 3035B-2 Buchanan St., Arlington, Va. 22206.

Faye Manchester Mench '70, as lobbyist for NRTA-AARP, recently addressed some of the 90 senior citizen Congressional interns who completed a two-week indoctrination seminar in Washington. She was invited by Congressional members to be one of several briefing officers on the progress of legislation benefiting the elderly.

Cynthia (Cyndi) Gonshor, Dec. '75 is attending summer school at BSC and commuting from her Mountaintop home. Cyndi is taking U.S. history and English to qualify for a temporary certificate to continue her teaching in Manchester High School, Richmond, Virginia.

Cyndi tells of her job-seeking experience as very frustrating in Pennsylvania and how, in sheer desperation, she stopped in the placement office and picked up an application for a position in Richmond. She completed the application and mailed it in February, but did not receive a reply until mid-August when she had a telephone call to come for an interview.

Her reply: "I hardly want to drive seven hours for an interview unless I am being seriously considered for the position." The reply: "Come down; we'll hire you."

She was hired the day before school opened and partly because of her strong college interest in debating. Her success as debate coach in her first year of teaching is the envy of all seasoned coaches. Her team captured the Virginia High School League Championship at the University of Virginia on April 29-30. Both her affirmative and negative teams had earlier won first place in both divisions at Central District and Central Regional Tournaments to qualify for the state finals.

This was the third year for Manchester High School debate team to capture the state championship, but the team receives no financial support from the school district. All costs must be covered by the students, their parents, and the advisor. During Cyndi's first year as debate coach, her teams received more than 25 trophies and placed third in the nation. The teams spent five days in Massachusetts, three in North Carolina, and participated in other debates in New York, Pennsylvania, and throughout Virginia.

When asked how she likes Richmond, Cyndi replied, "At first, I didn't. All my friends were seven hours away, but now I like it. I really enjoy the Southern hospitality."

When asked about her teaching assignment and student load, she explained that Manchester High School has grades 10-12 and that she teaches five sections of English. Her smallest class is creative writing with six students, and her largest has 25.

Cyndi was surprised to learn that Don Bechtei '76, Wayne Mehrer '76, and Glenn DeWire '73 are teaching in Matoaca, just a few miles from her. Cyndi's address when she returns in the fall will be 5611-D, Handel Court, Richmond, Va. 23234.

Hiring freeze lifted

The hiring freeze, in effect for all Commonwealth agencies since May 20, has been lifted for BSC and the other state colleges and universities.

Bloomsburg has begun procedures to fill the faculty, administrative, and non-instructional positions which became vacant during the freeze because of resignations and retirements. Also to be filled are 20 new permanent faculty positions and the same number of temporary faculty positions.

"Secretary Kline and members of her staff at the Pennsylvania Department of Education have been sensitive to our needs for new faculty positions to reduce the unfavorable student-faculty ratio," President James H. McCormick declared.

"Following discussions we had in Harrisburg last week, it is clear to me that every possible effort is being made to support our planning efforts, our new missions in nursing and business administration, and our commitment to quality programs in the arts and sciences and professional studies.

"The department recognizes that we have the enrollment and the programs to justify the need for more instructional personnel and that careful fiscal planning has provided the budget to support the additional positions."

The hiring freeze was lifted after 258 vacant positions in the state colleges and university system were abolished. No positions at Bloomsburg were included. New personnel complements were assigned to the institutions, and Bloomsburg's total complement is 650 permanent, full-time positions.

The college estimates that the money already earmarked for overload sections will be more than enough to pay the salaries of temporary instructors. The overload sections have been necessary because of the high student-faculty ratio.

President McCormick said efforts to make the department aware of Bloomsburg's serious need for additional personnel had involved many people. He expressed his appreciation for the support given by the trustees of the college, legislators, students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

'When It All Began' brings back memories

A BSC sophomore was crowned Homecoming Sweetheart October 8 during half-time ceremonies at the BSC-West Chester football game at the Robert B. Redman Stadium.

The coronation and football game highlighted the 50th Homecoming celebration at the college. Theme for the weekend activities was "When It All Began."

Lynn Cathers of Allentown, Miss Columbia Residence Hall, was crowned Sweetheart. A business education major, she is five feet, seven inches tall and weighs 123 pounds. A brunette with green eyes, she is a 1975 graduate of William Allen High School.

Parade

Saturday's activities began with a parade through Town streets. Many spectators lined the streets along the route, which began at Town Park and proceeded to Centennial Gym via Market, Main and Second streets.

The prize-winning float was "Main Street 1927," entered by Sigma Iota

Omega and Phi Iota Chi.

Montour Hall, which used the theme, "The Way We Were on Film - The Twenties," captured top prize for best decorated residence hall.

Rep. Ted Stuban (D-109th) was the grand marshal of the parade. He was accompanied by Mrs. Stuban.

Other honored guests included President McCormick and family; Edward Schuyler and Mrs. George Buchheit, honorary parade marshalls; Mayor Allen Remley, Columbia County Commissioners George Gensemer, Carol Hiday and Willard Kile; Donald A. Watts, executive director of the Alumni Association; Police Chief Patrick Haggerty; BSC Trustee Richard K. Walton; Community Government Association officers; Miss Karen Beasley, 1976 Homecoming Queen; and the 1977 Sweetheart candidates.

Top band

Southern Columbia Area High School band was named the top musical group with the Bloomsburg and Benton High School organizations finishing second and third respectively.

Other marching groups included the BSC Maroon and Gold Band; Pioneer Ancient Fyfe and Drum Corps of Columbia-Montour Vo-Tech School; Millville High School Band, Northwest High School Band, and North Schuylkill High School Band.

BSC ALUMNI FUND DRIVE 1977

As this edition of THE ALUMNI QUARTERLY went to press, the BSC Alumni Fund Drive for 1977 had reached 56 percent of the $50,000 goal.

Contributions and pledges at that time totalled $28,000.

With only days left in the calendar year, we urge all Alumni who have not yet responded to the appeal to make their contributions in time to include them as 1977 tax deductions.

So far, only a small percentage of the 21,000 living Alumni of BSC have shown an interest in their Alma Mater by making a contribution. Help us make a 10 percent increase in participation this year. Ten percent of our membership is only 2,100 contributors.

If only HALF of those 21,000 Alumni would annually pay their $5 membership fee, it wouldn't be necessary to conduct a formal fund raising drive.

But, unfortunately, too many Alumni rely on somebody else to be in the "giving half."

We invite YOU to be a caring and sharing member of YOUR Alumni Association. Please let us hear from you soon. Help your class donations by sending your contribution today.

Make checks payable to Alumni Fund and mail to Alumni Office, BSC, Bloomsburg, PA 17815. Contributions are tax deductible.

The story of Roongo, the first mascot

By SUZANNE LONG '81

When the administrators of the Bloomsburg Normal School changed its title to Bloomsburg State Teachers College, they couldn't possibly have imagined the other changes which the name would initiate. A new college president appeared on the scene at just about the same time — 1927.

Dr. Francis Haas, the new administrator, decided that since Bloomsburg was now a college, popular college traditions should be introduced to the school. Homecoming, which was held for the first time in 1927, was one of these traditions. The idea of a school mascot was the other.

Due to disagreements as to what the Bloomsburg mascot should be, it took somewhat longer for this idea to be incorporated into college life. Finally, George J. Keller, art instructor at the college, suggested the husky, stating the animal was "the most stubborn fighter" of the canine family. Keller promised he would supply the animal if the husky were chosen as the Maroon and Gold mascot.

The student body assembled in Carver Hall on October 9, 1933, to vote on Keller's proposal. The husky was almost unanimously selected to represent Bloomsburg. Keller designed a figure of a husky to be used on the sweaters of the college, and the husky has remained with the college ever since.

Professor Keller donated a full-blooded North Greenland Eskimo husky for the college's use, and the beautiful black and white animal made its first appearance at a pep meeting. He was all "toggled up" in a maroon blanket with a gold "B" and the word "Huskies."

The mascot gained a name during the evening — Professor Nelson and Dean Koch thought up the title "Roongo," a combination of "Maroon and Gold." It was said that the husky won so many co-ed hearts that he was the "envy of every male student in the institution."

At the rally, Nelson and Koch christened "Roongo" with the use of a beefsteak. Roongo apparently felt his dignity had been insulted, because he refused to eat the steak.

On Nov. 27, 1935, Roongo died of pneumonia, just two days after contracting the illness. The changing temperatures that season were too much for him. A veterinarian said the rapid lowering and raising of temperature brought on the disease which caused the mascot's death.

Roongo had gained quite a reputation locally and was even borrowed by the University of Washington's Huskies as their mascot in a '30s Rose Bowl game.

To carry on the tradition, Roongo II appeared on the scene. A Labrador husky, Roongo II succeeded his distinguished predecessor in boosting the school's morale until he was selected to make the trip to the South Pole with Admiral Byrd.

After his departure, the Maroon and Gold were without a live mascot for several years, until 1950, when Roongo III was presented to the college by the Alumni Association.

A full-bred Siberian Malenute, Roongo Iff was two years old when he arrived on campus. He served Bloomsburg for many years, and as the last in the line of Bloomsburg's distinguished mascots, he is not likely to be forgotten.

Every student who attended Bloomsburg during the "Roongo years" will surely remember the beautiful animals in attendance at every important event — reminding the BSC students of the sportsmanship, fair play, and worthwhile benefits derived from playing the game squarely.

The Huskies always offered a challenge to individuals and teammates to cooperate and work for the common good as he and his brothers have so finely demonstrated.

As described in the December, 1947, Alumni Quarterly, there are some who would remember Roongo this way:

"The animal was big and needed exercise. The football field was a sea of mud. The cheerleader, probably not well versed in the power of canines, was anxious to show off the mascot.

"He elected the time between halves when he and the dog could be the center of attention. Starting under one goal post, the yell-inspirer made the mistake of deciding to run. The husky took over at that point. He lit out at top speed and took the cheerleader along with him. It was a picture of arms, legs, and flying gumshoes that those who saw will never forget."

Well-known radiologist BSC graduate

A Columbia County farm boy who eventually became known as the dean of American radiology was the topic of a paper presented to the Columbia-Montour Torch Club at a recent meeting in Bloomsburg.

Dr. C. Perry Cleaver, Catawissa, presented a detailed account of the life of George Pfahler, Cleaver's personal friend.

Pfahler, born in 1874 on a Roaring Creek Valley farm, graduated from the Bloomsburg Normal School in 1894 and taught school (at $30 a month) for six months.

In 1895, he "read" medicine with Dr. J. C. Winterstein of Numidia, and attended the Medico-Chi Medical College in Philadelphia from 1895 to 1898. He served a year's internship at the Philadelphia General Hospital and was assistant chief resident there from 1899 to 1902. He organized the first department of radiology there and served as its director from 1899 to 1903.

Pfahler then taught radiology and served as a full professor of radiology at Medico-Chi College from 1911 to 1916. From 1916 to 1946 he was professor of radiology and vice-dean of the graduate school of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

He also served as consulting radiologist to four hospitals in the Philadelphia area, and received nine gold medals in recognition of his work in the use of X-ray technologies. He was also the recipient of several honorary degrees and international honors.

Pfahler met two kings of England, the Crown Prince of Sweden, and the President of France during his life.

He is a recipient of the BSC Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award.

At the same Torch Club meeting, Dr. Harvey Andrus was welcomed back to active participation following a lengthy illness.

Student aid at new low

Student loans from the BSC Alumni Association fund have reached a new low, according to a report by association Treasurer Earl Gehrig and college financial aid officer Robert Duncan at a recent meeting of the alumni board of directors.

The low was attributed to the availability of guaranteed loans from banks and educational institutions.

President James H. McCormick remarked that teacher education students have decreased from 70 percent to 30 percent of the total enrollment. He also mentioned that the current semester enrollment has reached 6,400, that the faculty-student ratio is the highest in the state system, and that BSC is probably the third largest in enrollment among the state colleges. He also said that more students cannot be admitted due to lack of boarding facilities on campus and in town.

The board approved the publication of an alumni directory for 1978. Other projects being planned include a student picnic area near the pergola, replacement of the parking lot in front of Carver Hall with a floral garden and fountain, a life-size Husky statue in the Aumiller Plaza, and additional trees to be planted throughout the campus.

Faculty notes

Dr. Percival R. Roberts III, chairman of the BSC art department, has been presented a life membership in the National Art Education Association "in recognition of and appreciation for his support of art in education."

Dr. Roberts recently participated in the dedication of the Association's newly-completed national headquarters in Reston, Va.

During the past year, he was invited by Gov. Shapp to serve as a member of the Visual Arts Advisory Panel for the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts.

In September, 1975, Dr. Roberts was awarded the Distinguished Teaching Fellowship Certificate — a selection by the faculty — and became eligible for the state-wide competition in the Commonwealth's Distinguished Faculty Award. In October of that year, he was one of the six faculty members of the 14 state-owned colleges selected for the Distinguished Faculty Award and a $6,000 prize.

One of his poetry books, Centaurian Flight, is now available in the BSC College Bookstore. It is the first volume of a projected quartet. The second volume, published in 1974, is Red Sky in the Morning. Both were published in England by Mitre Press.

Dr. Roberts is currently on sabbatical leave.

Mrs. Norman Hoffman, former kindergarten teacher in the laboratory school at Bloomsburg State College was honored in September by the American Red Cross for her 27 years of volunteer service.

It all began when Mrs. Hoffman took a canteen course during World War II at the Bloomsburg Hospital. Shortly afterward, she was asked to serve as the local chairman, a position she has retained ever since.

"She's done a very fine job throughout the years," said Mrs. Etta Adams, former executive director of the Bloomsburg chapter. "If she said she'd do a job, I never needed to worry."

Mrs. Hoffman and her husband live at 419 Catherine St., Bloomsburg, PA 17815.

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Waldron of Muncy, a former teacher at Bloomsburg State College, died September 3, 1977, in Muncy Valley Hospital. In addition to teaching at BSC, she served as dean of day students.

New program offered

A new program, entitled "Office Administration," is being offered by the Department of Business Education in the School of Business at Bloomsburg State College.

The graduate, who will receive the bachelor of science degree in office administration (BSOA), will be able to fill the need for trained office administrators and supervisors in today's modern office. The program is being offered to those students interested in the world of business, and who are especially interested in administration and supervision.

The graduate will be an efficient, highly-skilled office administrator who will become a member of the "executive team." The graduate will be capable of improving human relations, dealing with office problems, improving communications, running a smooth office, making decisions, improving time management, and developing and training office personnel.

The office administration student will pursue courses in the following areas: general education, basic business, office procedures, management, and secretarial skills. As in all other curricula offered by the School of Business, 128 credits are needed for graduation.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Professor Willard A. Christian, 202 Sutliff Hall, BSC, telephone 717-389-2914.

Last chance

Nominations for the Alumni Distinguished Service Award must be mailed by January 15, 1978, to DSA Committee, Alumni Office, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, PA 17815. Along with the nominations, please list the candidate's achievements which would justify such an award.

Coed fights fires

A Bloomsburg State College junior majoring in sociology was the only woman volunteer from Pennsylvania sent to California in August to combat a series of wild fires.

Gail Gearhart, 20, of Catawissa, was one of 91 Pennsylvania firefighters sent to the Big Sur area of Los Padres National Forest and Klamath National Forest. She was a member of the volunteer "hot shot" crew directed by her fire warden father, C. Richard Gearhart, a BSC alumnus who has been honored several times for his work in ecology and conservation.

Mrs. Gearhart is also a graduate of BSC. Both parents are teachers in Columbia County schools.

Speech-hearing services since 1930s

Services for children and adults in the Bloomsburg area having speech, hearing and language problems have been provided at BSC for almost 40 years. The diagnostic and therapy services of the current Speech, Hearing and Language Clinic have been related to the College's programs which train speech-language clinicians, audiologists, and teachers of the hearing impaired for work in schools, hospitals and clinics.

In the early 1930s, what was then BSTC began granting the degree of bachelor of science in education to teachers at the elementary and secondary levels. One of the required courses in the elementary curriculum was entitled "Speech Problems," and this course was the forerunner of today's five-year programs in communication disorders at BSC.

During the mid-1930s, a program to train teachers of the handicapped emerged at the State Teacher's College. This program required four years of training, plus a summer session consisting of six semester hours, in order to prepare teachers for special classes.

A speech correction elective was available as part of this curriculum for all prospective elementary teachers who were training in the four-year bachelor's degree program. Course work in this elective revolved around the psychology, English, speech (debate, oral interpretation, play production) and special education offerings of the College. Speech pathology, Speech Clinic I and II, and the psychology of speech were the only

'Speech correction'

The academic year 1942-43 brought the first mention of the "speech correction" major or area of concentration, under the Division of Special Education. Twenty-four semester hours were required for state certification as a speech correctionist, as well as a degree in the elementary teacher preparation major at the College. Diagnostic and methods courses began to be offered, as well as a stress in the area of psychology.

Early in the 1950s, the curriculum "Teachers of Speech and Hearing Handicapped Classes" was formally offered. The first courses in audiology and hearing impairment were offered, and 32 semester hours in study of the speech and hearing handicapped were required for certification.

The faculty in education of the handicapped was growing with the addition of two members who taught only speech correction courses. The Iota Chapter of Sigma Alpha Eta (the National Speech and Hearing fraternity) was installed at BSC in 1951, and interested students were offered membership in this extracurricular activity.

First director

The end of the 1950s brought the promotion of one of the speech and hearing faculty members, Dr. Donald Maietta, to director of the Division of Special Education. Maietta had received his B.S. degree at Bloomsburg in 1950 and did graduate work in audiology at the University of Pittsburgh where he received his Ph.D. in 1955.

His prominence evoked a growing interest in the speech and hearing handicapped major and several more faculty members were added to the staff. In January, 1962, the Commonwealth authorized BSC to confer the M.S. degree in special education and in speech correction, thus commencing a whole new graduate program at the College. Navy Hall was remodeled during the early 1960s, and psychological testing and therapy were included at that time.

During the years 1965-1970, the programs continued to grow under the strong leadership of Dr. Maietta and Dr. Margaret C. Lefevre, who was the first chairperson of the Department of Communication Disorders. Toward the end of the decade the faculty in communication disorders took formal action to require the master's degree for initial state certification and laid the groundwork for a curriculum in education of the deaf.

During the 1970-1971 year the College was reorganized. The Department of Communication Disorders and the newly-formed Department of Special Education became part of the School of Professional Studies.

Influx of students

In the early 1970s, a large influx of students interested in the communication disorders curriculum began to appear. A quota of 35 undergraduates per academic year was established by the staff of the department and a mandatory five-year program culminating in a master's degree was instituted.

Staff and curricular additions enabled the establishment of an area of study in clinical audiology leading to qualification for American Speech and Hearing Association certification in that area as well as in speech pathology. The curricular program in education of the hearing impaired was developed and approved as a new graduate degree program and as an area of certification.

In 1973, the programs of the department achieved national prominence through the award of a Certificate of Merit and an Educational Pacesetter Award from the United States Office of Education to a special project in language disabilities.

At the present time, the department has a faculty of nine training in the areas of speech-language pathology, audiology, and education of the hearing impaired. Affiliations for clinical training and practicum are spread throughout the region and as far away as the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kansas, and the Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center in Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The Speech, Hearing, and Language Clinic continues to serve children and adults in this area having any type of communication problem. During the 1976-77 academic year, approximately 5,000 hours of service was provided to residents of the community. Appointments for evaluation and therapy services can be made by calling 387-2217.

Tennis team in exhibition at Hershey

BSC alumni in the greater Harrisburg area will have the opportunity of seeing the Husky tennis team in an exhibition match with Penn State at the Hershey Racquet Club on Sunday, March 19. The match is being sponsored by the Clabell Company of Lancaster, owners of the indoor club at Hershey.

The match was arranged by former Husky tennis standout Tom Sweitzer '75, who is the head tennis pro at the Hershey Racquet Club. Two other former netmen, Jim Overbaugh '76 and Gary Sprecher '73, are employed by Clabell. Jim is the pro at Clabell's Quaker Valley Tennis Club in Quakertown, and Gary is manager of Clabell's Olde Hickory Racquet Club in Lancaster.

Following a successful fall season, it appears that Coach Burt Reese has another outstanding tennis team. Playing number one is Jim Hollister, a senior from Bloomsburg who by the end of the season should have the record for most career wins.

At the number two and number three positions are Rob Vance and Nate Levine, who combine in doubles to form the strongest tandem in BSC history.

The number four player is Paulo DeCampos, a freshman from Campinas, Brazil. The number five and six positions are also being held by freshmen — Greg Hafeman, York, and Ken Grove, Spring Grove.

Sophomores Mark Raynes and Rick Willders may both crack the starting lineup while senior Bill Lantz and transfer Gary Colbitz both add needed strength to the team.

"This is the deepest team BSC has ever had, with all ten players capable of being in the top six," Reese said.

The rest of the spring schedule should be exciting. The Huskies start off with a southern trip which includes such perennial powers as Navy, Richmond, William and Mary, and Hampton Institute. Once back up north, the team will engage Penn State, Swarthmore, Temple, East Stroudsburg, and Lehigh, all highly competitive teams.

Interested BSC graduates are urged to drop in and see the match in Hershey on March 19.

Chuck Daly joins 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chuck Daly, who led the University of Pennsylvania to four Ivy League basketball championships in the last six years, was named an assistant to new Philadelphia 76er coach Billy Cunningham on November 10.

Daly's move to the National Basketball Association came as a surprise, since the Quakers were in the midst of preparing for their season opener Dec. 1 against Navy.

"The timing was difficult," Daly said. "But I wouldn't be here if the timing wasn't difficult."

"This is the height of the basketball world (the NBA)," Daly said. "It's exciting and I felt I had to take a shot wherever it leads."

"Hey, I feel confident enough about myself that if I'm out of work tomorrow, I'd find something to do, even if it's making submarine sandwiches," said Daly, who received a multi-year contract with the Sixers.

In his six years at Penn, Daly earned a reputation as one of the school's most successful coaches. His winning percentage of .744 (125-38) is the best ever for a Penn basketball coach.

Besides his four Ivy League titles, his teams finished as league runner-up the last two years. His teams won three Big Five championships and were tied for the title last season. Overall, Daly's teams have compiled a 151-62 record, ranking him 17th among all college coaches in the nation.

In 1971, his first year at Penn, Daly's team won 25 of 28 games to finish number one in the East and third nationally. Daly was named Eastern Coach of the Year.

Daly, 46, began his coaching career at Punxsutawney High School in 1955 (after graduating from BSC). He was an assistant at Duke for six years before replacing Bob Cousy at Boston College in 1969. In two years at Boston, his teams recorded a 26-24 record.

Tucker traded to Minnesota

Tight end Bob Tucker '68, highly critical of the losing New York Giants, was granted his wish October 25 when the National Football League team traded him to the Minnesota Vikings for a 1978 draft choice.

The trade, coming on the trading deadline day, reunited the veteran receiver with Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton. In 1971, when both players were with the Giants, Tucker led the NFL with 59 pass receptions — the first tight end in history to win that title.

Tucker was a standout performer during his years at Bloomsburg.

On October 9, Tucker criticized the Giants as a club that was going nowhere. He didn't play in the club's next two games, victories over San Francisco and Washington, which raised New York's record to 3-3.

Tucker's 1977 statistics were six receptions for 91 yards. Before this season, his seven-year totals were 321 receptions for 4,285 yards and 22 touchdowns. He holds the club record for most consecutive games (45) with at least one reception, a streak that ended in 1975.

Perfect 5-0

BSC's men's tennis team finished its fall schedule with a perfect 5-0 record by belting Bucknell, 9-0.

Woman's World: Miss Claire Smith '70

Miss Claire Smith, a 1970 BSC graduate with a degree in sociology, has put her training to an acid test. In 1972 she was selected for the initial staff of the Palo Alto, Calif., Community Drug Abuse Center from over 350 applicants.

The initial staff members were responsible for developing the policy and program of this experimental approach to treating drug abuse in the community. Prior to leaving for the West Coast assignment, she was a professional director of the Children's Service Center in Wilkes-Barre.

Miss Smith's routine duties included speaking to business and social groups, PTA organizations, etc., on the issue of drug abuse in the community. She performed informal individual and group counseling and screening for heroin and barbiturate detoxification in local hospitals. She assisted in the development of the detoxification programs at Stanford University Hospital and the in-service training of the medical staff.

Other duties

Her administrative duties included acting as consultant to industries, groups, etc., that wishes to establish a program on drug abuse. Her duties also required working with the probation department in the local courts.

Claire organized and developed specific programs and was co-teacher at SWOPSI (Stanford Workshop on Political and Social Issues), elective courses on community responsibility to the drug abuse program.

Other activities included preparation information for the media about the program, especially radio, television and newspaper interviews. At one time she did a one-hour radio program over station KZSU, Stanford University.

Claire was also instrumental in organizing the Collective Street Theater, whereby local talent appeared in schools and other public places to present the issues of drug abuse through film, music, comedy, and drama.

China visit

approach of the program has attracted much favorable comment and projected Claire Smith into a select group of 22 community leaders from all parts of the United States to visit China in 1975.

Claire was selected as a member of the National Community Leaders Delegation to the People's Republic of China. The delegation's visit to China in November, 1975, was sponsored by the U.S.-China People's Friendship Association in cooperation with the Chinese government.

Why was Claire Smith selected to be a member of the delegation? The answer is obvious in her record of success in work with social problems.

Between 1972 and 1975 she was a staff member of the Collective — the community-based drug abuse program in Palo Alto, Calif., and in 1975 the Collective was nominated as one of the ten most outstanding drug programs in the United States.

In 1973 Claire was elected to be woman's representative to the National Council of Free Clinics during its national convention in Phoenix, Arizona. She was also a member of the Community Cultural Coalition, an organization of various community groups whose objective was to develop and coordinate cultural events — especially those for young people.

Also in 1973, Claire was a candidate for election to the school board of the Palo Alto School District. She was the candidate selected by the student committee to seek office as a representative of young people's interests and the only candidate to receive broad student support.

From the time Claire arrived in Palo Alto in 1972 until her selection as a member of the delegation in 1975, she was an active community leader in such issues as health care, education, housing and employment. Thus, the reasons for her selection were obvious to all who knew her.

What she saw in China

The delegation spent three weeks visiting various urban areas of China — Peking, Shanghai, and Kuming. In addition, the group visited smaller cities such as Changsha.

In the urban areas the delegation toured factories, schools, clinics, and hospitals. There they spoke with numerous workers, students, and public officials. They also met with various community and neighborhood groups to discuss how services such as health, education, problems of the aging, and pre-school services are organized to serve the people.

According to Claire, "The most exciting aspect of the tour was a visit to the frontier area of Hsishuang Panna — the three counties of Yunnan Province on the southwestern frontier of China, bordering on Vietnam, Laos, and Burma.

To the north, Yunnan Province adjoins Tibet and Szechuan. Hsishuang Panna is inhabited by 10 nationalities including Tai, Han, Han, Pulang, Sohu and Yao. The climate is tropical and sub-tropical — good for the growth of rice, maize, and other cereal crops.

In its mountains and jungles live such rare birds and animals as the peacock, tiger, leopard, bison and elephant. Before 1949, there were only six primary schools in the area. Now, there are 1,248 primary schools and 19 middle schools (high schools).

"While visiting Hsishuang Panna, the delegation was honored with a visit to the county of Menghai. We were the first foreign visitors ever to enter the area. While visiting there, we were treated to a cultural performance and home-cooked dinners."

The Alumni Office has also learned that Claire has taught a course at Stanford University called, "The Role of the Community in the Prevention and Treatment of Drug Abuse." She has done in-service training with the staff of the emergency room at Stanford Medical Center and has conducted her weekly radio program over station KZSU.

Claire's present address is 203 Bryant St., Apt. 1, Palo Alto, California 94301

Start planning for Alumni Day

Classes whose years end in 3 and 8 have special reunion celebrations coming in 1978. The 50-year class of 1928 will be guests of the Alumni Association for their golden anniversary on Friday evening, April 28.

It's time to make your plans for the big Alumni Day at BSC. Call your friends and classmates and plan a truly memorable reunion.

Placement record tops 70 per cent

The following information on job placement was prepared by Thomas Davies, director of career development and placement center at BSC.

There were 1,001 graduates in the December 1975, May 1976, and August 1976 graduating classes. Twenty-three were not available for employment because of graduate studies or personal reasons.

Of the 978 graduates available for employment, 13 supplied no information and were deleted from the study, leaving 965 interested in employment.

Of that number, 678 were placed — a percentage of 70.25. The breakdown by schools of preparation was as follows: School of Arts and Sciences, 58.9 pct.; School of Business, 80.91 pct.; and School of Professional Studies, 68.19 pct.

Service Keys were missed

It was recently called to our attention that we had not included the names of students who had received service keys at the April 24 awards convocation. Our apologies to the following recipients of service keys, along with our belated congratulations.

Mary P. Burrichter, William F. Boyer, John K. Chacosky, Margaret T. Moran, David E. Orgler, Matti A. Prima, Sue Ann Sagan, D. Bruce Sneldman, Rebecca E. Thomas, Rebecca A. Thorp, Ron D. Troy, William E. Boger, and Paul J. Piegallini

Our library staff was pleasantly surprised to receive a request from one of our 1901 graduates. Following is the letter from William R. Lams '01: "While I was a student at BSNS in the spring of 1898, Professor Noetting was writing a book entitled 'Thinking and Learning to Think.' Do you have a copy of that book in your library at the present time? If you have a copy, I would like to borrow it for a short time. I would like to compare his thinking with the many approaches that have developed over this short period of 80 years." (Mr. Lams lives at 265 Hemstead Rd., Ridgewood, N.J. 07450.)

Did the library have the book? Here is the reply to Mr. Lams from Roger W. Fromm, reference/interlibrary loan: "We are delighted to hear from a 1901 Bloomsburg State College graduate any time."

"In regard to your request to borrow a book by Prof. Noetting entitled Thinking and Learning to Think, we have mailed under separate cover a book with that exact title by Nathan C. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction for the State of Pennsylvania, copyright 1900. Everything seems to match except the author; perhaps the professor was aiding Schaeffer in the research and writing. You can let me know if my hunch is right or wrong. We would be interested in hearing of any comparisons you make between Schaeffer's notions and those now current."

"You may return the book to us when you are through with it. Incidentally, I am returning your Alumni Association card with this letter."

Claire Scholvin '05 writes, "I am so happy to have found a home for mementos of my Normal School days. I am past 90 years old and I have no close relations who would be interested in them."

"I was so interested in the 'Book of Rules'—table manners, laundry, etc. How different today."

"I was at a loss in deciding to whom I should give 'The Whole Damn Faculty.' I have a good friend whose hobby is post card collections. BSNS won out, as I thought it really belonged to my Alma Mater."

"I still have our commencement address and a receipted bill for tuition (1903-1905) with Prof. Jenkins' signature. I will send them to you later."

"Why I ever kept the receipt I do not know. When I graduated we had no scrap books as we have today. It (the address) is pasted in an ordinary book."

"Your kind letters were greatly appreciated."

William Rarich '08 sent his regrets that he would not attend homecoming events this year. He explained that his health is fine, but a physical condition has caused him to use a cane and he needs someone to assist him in walking. He also stated, "I have been counting on attending my 70th class reunion. I'll be 91 years old on November 7, 1977."

Martha V. James '08 died in October, 1975.

Hazel Henrie Wright '12 of Bloomsburg died November 21, 1977. She taught for a number of years in the Bloomsburg, Lightstreet, and Espy schools. She was a member of Westey United Methodist Church, Bloomsburg; the Ruth Pooley Sunday School Class of the church; Delta Club, Bloomsburg; and the Columbia County Historical Society.

Tiffany windows, Buddah, cream p

By DONALD A. WATTS '37
Executive Director

To most people, the mere mention of stained glass brings to mind the name of Tiffany, a most respected name in lamps, bronze plaques, and stained glass windows.

Many Bloomsburg graduates, however, are unaware that the beautiful windows in Andruss Library were created and installed in Old Waller Hall by the famous Louis C. Tiffany Studios in 1919.

When it was known that Waller Hall would be razed to make way for the new Lycoming Residence Hall, the windows were removed and placed in the Spruce Street entrance to the new library.

These beautiful windows are illuminated at night by a memorial gift from Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kemp, Berwick, in loving memory of their daughter, Miss Jacklyn Kemp, a BSC student who lost her life in an automobile accident on November 6, 1965. The memorial plaque reads, "Let There Be Light."

History of windows

Even more interesting is the story about the man who was responsible for getting these windows, three bronze plaques, and one small window from Tiffany Studios, plus several other stained glass windows from the George Spence Studios, Boston.

This man was Professor O. H. Bakeless, a graduate in the Bloomsburg Class of 1879 and a member of the faculty from 1890-1892 and 1902-1929.

The new Bakeless Center for the Humanities was named in honor of Professor Bakeless and members of his family. A son, John, and daughter, Katherine Nason, are graduates in 1913 and 1918 respectively. It is from John that much of our story about Professor Bakeless was revealed in a letter to Dr. Percival Roberts prior to the time the Bakeless building was dedicated.

Professor Bakeless, as secretary of the memorial committee, solicited money from students, faculty, friends, and campus organizations to buy the windows and three bronze tablets.

On September 29, 1919, he signed a contract with Tiffany Studios -witnessed by D. J. Waller, Jr. - which called for Tiffany Studios to "design, make and install two three-opening memorials - subject Truth and Virtue - and to make a treatment around the door, all as shown on the sketch submitted and approved, including inscription and protective glass. Same to be set in above mentioned building (Old Waller Hall) with completion date on or before June 1, 1920, at a cost of $3,500.

Many alumni will remember these arch-shaped windows were placed in the corridor opposite the Alumni Room and the entrance to Husky Gym. Others (not Tiffany) were later added in the stairway and windows of Noetling Hall.

Motivation

What motivated Professor Bakeless to solicit funds for this project in the face of other needs in a school hard-pressed for financial support? It is reported that he believed student behavior would improve and noises would be subdued in an ecclesiastical atmosphere.

Thus, in December, 1918, he ordered two stained glass windows from Spencer, Bell & Co., Boston, at a cost of $182.50, and again in February, 1920, another two windows from George W. Spence Co. for $214.

Our records show that Professor Bakeless' power of persuasion had prevailed with the Calliepians and

Truth

Philologists (Literary Societies), plus the YMCA and YWCA, and each group raised money to purchase one window.

Filling in details

Here is how John Bakeless recalls the story behind the windows:

"The Philologists and Calliepians windows, now installed in the library, were made after the large Tiffany windows. My father was disturbed by the raucous voices of students, especially the stridency he heard as they came across from Science Hall to his Room M.

"He decided that a dim religious light in the stairway was the answer and persuaded the two literary societies (also the YMCA and YWCA) to give the windows. The effect was exactly what he had hoped. He used to sit in his office, listen to the difference, and rub his hands in glee."

John Bakeless' letter continues: "Then my father decided that students needed more repose. How to get it? A really good Buddah!

"But this time he was defeated. The Christian societies heard he was planning to put in a heathen idol and (for once in his life) one of his art schemes went down to defeat.

"Most of the reproductions of famous paintings that hang (or used to hang) in the halls are due to him - all on the representative side, of course, but representative art has its points."

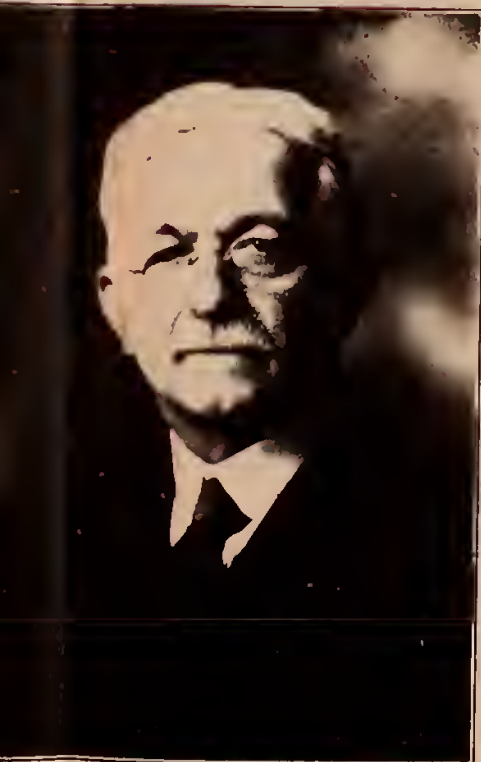

Another Tiffany

When Bakeless Center was dedicated, the Bakeless family presented the College with a small Tiffany window which had been in the family for nearly a half century. It is now on display in the foyer of the building in a mounting which provides fluorescent illumination through the glass to exhibit all pitchers and a man named Bakeless

Virtue

O. H. BAKELESS

the five qualities of Tiffany's work.

John Bakeless' letter includes the following about the memorial window:

"My father would have been delighted by your comments about the window (and the lighting effects), for this was the one indulgence of a life that hadn't cash for too many indulgences.

"I always meant to build a small library building here on the farm, with a small vault for rare books, and put the window in it. But World War II and six years of active duty ended any such dreams, and I am sure that OHB would much prefer to have the window where it is."

In addition to the Tiffany windows, we have discussed, the Tiffany Studios made three bronze tablets for Bloomsburg — all under the supervision and financial arrangements of Professor Bakeless, secretary of the memorial committee.

The first tablet was completed in August, 1919, at a cost of $330 as a memorial to Dr. William Noetting. The second tablet was made in 1920 and reads as follows:

Truth and Virtue

Presented to the Bloomsburg State Normal School by its Alumni to commemorate the graduation of its 50th Class of teachers, and the 44th year of Educational Service to the Commonwealth by as principal of the State Normal School at Bloomsburg and at Indiana, and as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, with culture and efficiency as educational aims, he placed character, honor, right living, and high ideals above material success.

The third Tiffany bronze tablet was purchased in 1925 and dedicated to the founders and trustees. Again John Bakeless enlightens us on this aspect of his father's involvement:

"When he (OHB) took up the idea of a bronze tablet to honor Dr. Waller, I was in my first year of graduate school. I suggested that he send the proposed inscription to me and let me ask President Emeritus Eliot — long retired but still living a vigorous Cantabrigian life — to look it over. Eliot had long had a reputation for writing lapidary inscriptions — the quotation from Herodotus over the N.Y. Post Office is an example. I wrote Eliot and told him it was an inscription for a much revered teacher and college head (actually BSC was still a Normal School when Dr. Waller retired).

"President Eliot returned the inscription with some suggestions (which I believe were all adopted) and a note saying he feared the writer had not had much experience writing lapidary inscriptions. OHB was highly amused, 'Now how did he guess I hadn't written many?' He had never written any in his life, of course, and everybody knew it."

The cream pitchers

The letter continues, "OHB apparently had some kind of acquaintance at the Tiffany's, the jewelry store. I don't know how he got it, for he never bought any jewelry in his life.

"But some years after our marriage, he and my wife, walking down Fifth Avenue, passed Tiffany's. He suggested that they go in. He strolled about as he pleased. Then up a long staircase, around various corners, into the Penetrails, coming at last to a large empty room with curtains hanging in front of shelves.

Thrusting back the curtains, he showed her an immense collection of cream pitchers, with an air of triumph! For some unknown reason, he adored cream pitchers and never came back from a trip without one or two.

"Why Tiffany's let him wander as he pleased, how he found out there were cream pitchers in a jewelry store, I don't know, but apparently they knew him.

"I don't think there was any very close linkage with the Louis Tiffany Studios. I don't know what Tiffany's was doing with cream pitchers, either. But I do know that in spite of years of breakage, THIS household still has more cream pitchers than it knows what to do with."

In the more than four score years since OHB died, thousands of students have passed beside his lasting memorials to a school he loved. In the years ahead, many more will pass these halls.

Some will pause and admire the beauty they inherited from Oscar Hugh Bakeless, 1858-1933; others will never see them. But we hope they will all uphold the motto prescribed by Professor Bakeless as the theme for his beautiful Tiffany windows — Truth and Virtue.

Anna Transue Dickinson '13 informed us that her classmate and very close friend, Clarice Carter Bezdjian, died Oct. 19, 1977, at the age of 84. Her husband died only 18 days before she died. The following obituary appeared in the St. Petersburg Times and was sent to us by Mrs. Dickinson:

Mrs. Bezdjian of 1375 Pasadena Ave. S., South Pasadena, "came here 15 years ago from her native Duryea, Pa., where she was a Latin teacher and orchestra leader in Duryea High School. Survivors include a sister, Grace Carter, South Pasadena."

Miss Estella Madden '13 died August 12, 1977. Word of her death came from her brother, John Madden, 345 S. Oak St., Mount Carmel, PA 17851.

Elizabeth Sturgis '13 & '15 writes that she is presently employed as the executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Drilling Co., Pittsburgh. After graduation from Bloomsburg as an honor student, she held several excellent teaching positions before going with the company. She has been in her present position for 20 years. "Each year I spend some time in Holland to help author Cornelius Vanderburg check on his book, do proof reading, etc." Miss Sturgis lives at 2956 Belrose Ave., Allegheny, PA 15216.

Miriam LaWall Heller '15 died at Geisinger Medical Center, Danville, on August 18, 1977, at the age of 81.

Mary Siegel Tyson '16 was honored in August by the Hazleton Kiwanis Club at a luncheon with a coal mining theme. The 81-year-old former teacher is the author of a book called "The Miners," which is an account of many incidents which occurred in the coal region when Mrs. Tyson was growing up as a student and later a teacher.

Professor Preston Slosson of Ann Arbor, Michigan, spoke on the history of coal from its discovery to present-day use. He taught European history at the University of Michigan from 1921 to 1962. He also taught in nine American universities and colleges and several in the United Kingdom.

Among the guests at the luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. Dean Tyson, Ann Arbor, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Siegel, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Siegel of Pine Grove; Kenneth Hoffman, representing the president of Bloomsburg State College; and Donald A. Watts, executive director of the BSC alumni association.

Beatrice P. Vannan '18 died in June at her home in Danville. She had been in failing health for three years. A native of Danville, she was the daughter of the late J. Newton and Martha Pursel. The former teacher had been married to William Donald Vannan for 54 years.

Miss Genevieve C. Healy '18 of 109 Broad St., Pittston, is deceased, according to the U.S. Postal Service.

Mrs. Lucia Hammond Wheeler '19 took her first fling at politics at age 75. Although she didn't win, she said, "I had a good time trying." We would like to share her most recent letter with our readers:

"I dearly love Bloomsburg. In my student days I was in the classes of the great teachers — Professor Hartline, Professor Bakeless, Professor Albert and Professor Brill — to name a few. And of course Doctor Waller, who had a great influence on my thinking. I was 17 years old when I was graduated.

"I am 75 now and thank God for good health. This summer I have been to Boston, Washington, D.C., New York City, Dallas, Texas, and Scranton, Pa. I traveled via AmTrak and had a wonderful time. I certainly would recommend it as a comfortable way to travel.

"Redlands, where I have lived for ten years, is an ideal place for the senior citizen. Many activities and a wonderfully caring community. I do publicity for the American Association of University Women, the Association for the Blind, the Retired Teachers Association, the Presbyterian Church, the Beacons Fellowship, and several other organizations.

"I am having a ball and thoroughly enjoying my old age. I expect to go to the San Francisco area next week for a visit with my son, Ben. Another son, Jack, comes here to dinner three times a week.

"My sister in Scranton, Mrs. J. B. Craven, is a member of BSC's class of 1916. This summer I had the pleasure of visiting my old roommate, Elsie Pfahler, Class of 1919. Elsie is not very well; she has had four fractured bones in the recent past.

"Best regards to all Bloomsburg folk."

Mrs. Wheeler's address is Apt. 5, 120 West Olive, Redlands, CA 92373.

M. Ruth Eisenhower (formerly Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Bugbee) '24 died July 15, 1977. She had resided in Kingston.

Anna Mae Houser '24 of 237 West Mahanoy Ave., Mahanoy City, is deceased, according to the U.S. Postal Service.

Members of the Class of 1925 held a luncheon meeting at Hotel Magee, Bloomsburg, on Homecoming Day, October 8. Attending were Pauline Bucher, Lillian Burgess, Adaline Burgess, Laura Davis, Margaret Fay, Margaret Flynn, Martha Fisher, Anna Geary, Vivian Harris, Mary Ann Hart, Martha Miers, Mildred Morgan, Margaret Price (Ashland), Margaret Price (Miller), Frances Ruggles, Geneva Schott, Michael Walaconis, Lilly Watkins, and Esther M. Whalen (Farrell).

The next meeting is scheduled for Alumni Day, 1980, our 55th anniversary.

The following members died since the 50th anniversary: Archie Turner (also '36), Rhoda Hess Greenley, Emily Lawrence Miller.

Mrs. David Johnson (Mary Isaacs '27) returned the homecoming brochure with a warm note of encouragement and asked that we remember her to all. Unfortunately, the Johnsons could not attend the 50th homecoming because they left September 4 to spend nine months in the warmer environment of Arizona. Her note was signed, "Have fun!"

1928

TO MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1928: This is your golden anniversary class reunion. Plan now to be the guest of the Alumni Association at a banquet in your honor on April 28, 1978.

Letters concerning your activities since leaving Bloomsburg and other items of interest to your classmates and friends should be mailed to your class representative or the alumni office in order that they can be read on Alumni Day, April 29, 1978. However, your banquet is Friday night, April 28, 1978.

Beatrice Killian Cragle '28 is the first of her class to submit a summary of her activities during the past 50 years. Since her retirement two years ago, she and husband Edgar have spent the winter months with their son in California and have traveled each summer. They went first to Rome, Israel, and Turkey, and last summer to Egypt and Switzerland. The Cragles live at R.D. 1, Hunlock Creek, PA 16821.

Mrs. George MacLachlan '28 (Margaret Jane Jones) died September 23, 1977, in West Palm Beach, Fla. Funeral services were held in the Hibiscus Chapel on September 26 with interment at Clarks Summit, Pa.

Marjorie Klein Pirrotti '28 writes that she and her husband, Theodore, are residing at 101 Center St., Hughestown Boro, Pittston, PA 16840. "After having taught many years in New Jersey, I have returned to the Pittston area. The 40th class reunion of the Class of 1937 was held Saturday, October 8, 1977, at the Pine Barn Inn, Danville. Nineteen members were present, and with spouses and friends, a total of 31 enjoyed the evening. The class representative, Sara Marla Berger, was in charge of arrangements, and the anniversary booklet was prepared by Don Watts.

A letter from Ray Schroepe was read which suggested the group not wait another five or ten years to meet. The group unanimously approved Ray's suggestion to meet again on Alumni Day, April 29, 1978. The Schropes had planned to attend the 40th reunion, but were forced to cancel when Ray went to the hospital for treatment of a blood infection.

For 18 days in October, the retired superintendent of schools in Hughesville found himself doing heavy labor in Liberia.

"I did anything a common laborer without much knowledge (of construction) would do," said Paul A. Paulhamus '40, who now lives at 2920 Heshbon Rd., Williamsport.

Paulhamus was one of 22 Central Pennsylvanians who participated in a building project sponsored by the Board of Missions of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church. The group left October 9.

They began rebuilding a school that had burned years ago. The school, located at the White Plains Retreat Center in Liberia, will be used mainly for religious education and also will be available for non-religious instruction.

"There's a lack of education all over the country," said Mr. Paulhamus. "They do not have compulsory education. Only persons with a lot of money can afford to go even to the public schools."

Work on the school project was hindered by various difficulties.

"We didn't get it done," said Paulhamus. "From the beginning of the trip, it was one frustration after another, but you didn't hear one complaint from the group."

Paulhamus, 59, didn't complain about the hard physical labor he was given.

"I had been working around home so that wasn't too bad," he said. "But the heat and humidity were very bad for me. . . the heat averaged between 80 and 85, but it was very, very humid, so you minded the heat so much more. In fact, you could hardly get your clothes dry in a day, even when you hung them out in the sun."

To help cover the costs involved in going to Liberia, most of the group were able to obtain some kind of financial assistance. However, Paulhamus paid all of the costs involved in his participation. His expenses amounted to about $1,000.

Why did he volunteer to go to Liberia?

"I read about the project in the church paper, and at that time I was looking for something to do," he said. "I guess it sounds self-righteous, but I wanted to do something that would help somebody. I found out that the others felt about the same way."

One of the highlights of the trip was a buffet dinner held for them by the Liberian vice president-elect just before the group returned home.

Paulhamus had never been to Africa before, although he had traveled to Hawaii, Bermuda, several western European countries, several eastern European countries, and to Russia.

Asked if Americans can comprehend the extent of poverty in a country like Liberia without actually visiting there, he said, "No, even pictures will not tell you about it."

"I'm sure there are a lot of things to be improved in our country. But there are so many other places that are worse. . . I've believed this in all my travels."
