

The President's Pen

by Millard Ludwig

Association's image

One of the roadblocks which we encountered upon taking the office of president of Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association was the image in the minds of many BSC alumni regarding state colleges.

Some of the comments heard were:

"I want to give my allegiance and contributions to the school where I acquired my masters degree. There is more prestige."

"The state colleges do not need contributions. They get all they need from the state."

"I don't really think that state colleges need alumni associations."

This image, which began in the days when state colleges did receive most of their needs from the state and when alumni associations on the state college level were not very strong, is still prevalent today, but we are gaining ground.

The letters and contributions which BSC Alumni Association members have sent have demonstrated the great need for an active association. Many compliments have been received by our executive director, Donald Watts, on the improvements in the services offered by our Association. And we are continually listening for additional suggestions which you may have.

The needs of the state colleges today are great, and Bloomsburg is no exception. There are so many things which the state will not cover, including the very important area of landscaping. Our Association would like to do more, but funds are limited.

Many of you remember the days when there were many trees near most of the buildings. With the great expansion of the 1960s, these trees were removed, and in most cases have not been replaced.

CGA prez gathering

Five former presidents of the Community Planning Association returned to campus on Saturday, Feb. 25 for a meeting with President McCormick, the three vice presidents, the deans, the planning director and the executive director of the Alumni Association.

President McCormick invited Steve Andrejack, Charles Bender, Dan Burkholder, Tom Mulhern and Stan Toczek to campus for a discussion involving their perceptions of BSC after graduation and to receive their reactions to plans for the future of the college.

These former student leaders met with the vice president for academic affairs, deans, and the planning director in their first session in the President's Lounge of Kehr Union. Their second session was with the vice presidents for administration and student life along with their staffs. They were later dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. McCormick at Buckalew Place.

It is said that school spirit doesn't really exist to any great degree on college campuses today, and that today's student is too complacent to participate in this kind of thinking. I really believe that school spirit occurs in a stronger way after a person has graduated from college, and after they have had time to think of what effect college has had on their lives.

But the state college image is changing, for the good. We hope that you will consider what Bloomsburg has meant to your life. There is a bond here at BSC that is just as strong as any of the private colleges. All we have to do is look for it.

Dr. and Mrs. James H. McCormick sadly announce the loss of "Husky," the family pet and Bloomsburg State College mascot for the past few years.

Alumni Board of Directors meets

The Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association Board of Directors met on Saturday, Feb. 4 in Carver Hall with 12 members present. Millard Ludwig, president, conducted the meeting which opened with a prayer for the family of Dr. Frank Furgle in the death of their son, and for the speedy recovery of Francis Galinski. Both Furgle and Galinski are members of the Alumni board.

Dr. James H. McCormick, BSC president, and Boyd F. Buckingham, vice president for administration, represented the college staff and administration.

Dr. McCormick stressed the need for a strong, mobilized Alumni Association which cares about the college in terms of requests in such matters of fiscal support and buildings. He reported that the second semester enrollment was 4,811 full-time degree students, 598 part-time degree students, and 709 graduate students, full and part-time, for a total enrollment of 6,118.

He explained that the first semester enrollment of approximately 6,400 was more than had been expected, and that future admissions must hold the line. The number of applications for September, 1978, is ahead of last year. He discussed problems associated with parking in the town and on campus, a need for more adequate student housing off campus, and the need for additional classrooms and faculty offices. The latter problems can be resolved only when the Human Services Center is approved and built. For that reason, he asked alumni to urge passage of House Bill 1322, which is the capital budget for 1977-78. He also expressed deep concern about the spiraling cost of tuition and explained that Pennsylvania students are now paying more than students in neighboring states, and, in fact, our tuition is among the highest in the nation for public higher education institutions.

Another concern of the college is to secure financial assistance for community fire protection of campus buildings. Dr. McCormick then outlined the new degree programs offered or being planned. They include two programs approved last summer and offered this academic year — the B.S. degree in computer and information science, and the B.S. degree in office administration. A master of education degree in earth science was approved in November and is being offered this semester. Two master's degree programs were approved in January and will be first offered in the summer session. They are the M.Ed. in mathematics education and the M.S. in early childhood education. Two other graduate degree programs are in the planning stages — the M.A. in art and the M.S. in Mass Communications.

Dr. McCormick stated that the college has been authorized a permanent personnel complement of 650 plus 20 temporary faculty positions for the current semester. This will bring the total college complement (faculty and support services) to 670 positions. It is expected that 20 or 30 CETA positions will be made available in the near future, all in the non-instructional area.

Mr. Buckingham stressed the need for more classrooms and faculty offices, the renovation or rehabilitation of utility lines and buildings, and the financial squeeze created by last year's fiscal crisis. He also outlined the campus beautification plans and stressed the need for continued student and alumni support in order to complete this long-range project.

Dr. McCormick explained the Keystone University Bill (S.B. 473) which, when passed, would transfer the state-owned colleges and Indiana University of Pennsylvania out of the Department of Education and provide for their own board and executive head and to give the 14 institutions university status.

The college community is currently engaged in a self-study evaluation in preparation for the visit of a Middle States evaluation team during the spring of 1979.

Other matters which came before the board included information on the collection of delinquent student loans. A local attorney has been engaged to collect approximately $17,000 in overdue loans.

The Property Committee submitted an inventory of furniture, equipment and mementos. These items were "lost" when the old Alumni Room in Waller Hall was razed to make room for Lycoming Hall. The property is being collected for use in a proposed Alumni Room.

The Alumni Day Committee made several recommendations including a shorter luncheon meeting, and that the board of directors be hosts to the Friday night and Saturday meetings. Alumni Day is scheduled for Saturday, April 29, and the 50-Year Class of 1928 and guests will be hosted by the Association at a banquet on Friday evening, April 28 in the Scranton Commons. The Distinguished Service Award recipients for this year will be presented at the Alumni Day luncheon.

It was reported that questionnaires will be mailed by our publisher to all alumni about March 1 to collect information for the new Alumni Directory. The directories will become available in September at a cost of $19.95 for the soft cover and $29.95 for the hard cover.

The board approved a change in the fiscal year from April 1-March 31 to a calendar year. The Association also approved a new state guideline to permit the executive director to be an employee of the college and to report to a designated college administrator when doing alumni work for the college.

The Association will grant 10 scholarships. They are named in honor of Dr. E.H. Nelson, O.H. and S.E. Bakeless, R. Bruce Albert, Howard F. Fenstermaker, and Lucy McCammon. And additional five scholarships were approved for talented 7th grade students to take a college math course during the 1978-79 academic year. The board also made a $500 grant to the Athletic Trust Fund for use in wrestling.

Computer mailing

This is the first mailing using computer printed labels. It has been a long and tiresome task of converting 25,000 alumni names (living and dead) along with current addresses from the addressograph files to the computer. It was necessary to maintain and update the old files while compiling the new one. Then came the problem of removing the errors. It was with some apprehension and possible embarrassment that we moved into the computer system.

In some cases, the computer printouts have been amusing and possible offensive if not corrected. There have been errors in zip codes and "Mrs." attached to a man's name, but the most difficult task is trying to match married alumni on our mailing labels in order to send one Quarterly instead of two. The computer may place some alumni wives with other alumni husbands. If that should happen in our future mailings, we are certain to shake up the whole neighborhood, but unfortunately it will also cause distress for the couples.

If, after our next try at this match game, there are such mixed couples, advise us immediately and we will make the necessary corrections. Certainly we didn't plan it that way. We can only ask the offended parties to grin and suffer with us for another try. After all, Bloomsburg Alumni are understanding!

We extend our thanks to Claire Scholbien '05 for the many items of news and things from her scrapbook which she has sent to us. Many of these treasured mementos are now in the College Archives and others are being shared with her classmates. We are always pleased to receive historical items which help to reconstruct the personal history of a great institution.

Mae Wolf Klegman, '05, died in her sleep on March 11, 1978. She would have been 91 on March 23. Mrs. Klegman's daughter, Jean Marshall, lives at 11656 Montana Ave. No. 302, Los Angeles, Calif. 90049.

Dr. Carroll D. Champlin '06, retired professor emeritus of education at The Pennsylvania State University since 1953, died January 23 at age 91 at Park-west Manor, State College.

A native of Chelsea, Michigan, he was a graduate of Bloomsburg High School. He was graduated from Bloomsburg State College in 1906 and was honored as a distinguished alumnus in 1951.

He received the bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees in 1914 and 1915 from Haverford College. He earned his doctor of philosophy degree in 1925 at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Champlin travelled extensively in South America, Europe, including the Soviet Union, and in Africa and the Near East. He interviewed many leading statesmen and educators. He was widely known as a lecturer, having made more than 2,200 appearances, particularly in the fields of history and philosophy of education.

Agnes Wallace Rees '07 has had her mail returned to us marked "not deliverable as addressed — unable to forward." Her last known address according to our records was 125 Trevano Road, Livermore, California 94550. If you have information about Mrs. Rees, please send it to the Alumni Office.

Edwin Barton '07 wrote to us in January as follows:

"Congratulations on the December issue of the Alumni Quarterly. I enjoyed it very much. The stained glass windows came after my time and I was very glad to read the accounts of them. That illuminated glass item in the downstairs basement of Bakeless Center has me intrigued. My limited Greek will not let me read it. But if I could find a Greek dictionary, I would endeavor to translate it. Howard Fenstermaker would of course I believe, translate in a glance.

"I have found nothing further to help on Agnes Wallace Reece. The season's greetings card with Carver Hall is beautiful. Thank you very much for it."

Mr. Barton's address is 211 East First St., Bloomsburg, PA 17815.

Blanche Chisholm '07 wrote to us in January:

"Eddie (Barton) is quite a friend of mine! He was the youngest in the Class of '07 and I the oldest. I taught school four years in a one-room country school directly from high school — and I could write a book about those years!

"This has been a 'queer' year for me! I haven't yet recovered from my fall over a year ago. I had to retire from my church job. (At the age of 94.) The congregation gave me a retirement party which included a very substantial 'purse,' so now I'm truly a 'lady of leisure' but don't enjoy it!

"I'm wondering if you ever knew of the Marcy boys. The two boys were part time teachers well as students in the '07 class. Not too long ago a gentleman moved into the General Greene Apartments here. He was the 'picture' of Clarence Marcy! I later learned that they were first cousins, and that this "Dr. Marcy" was a Bloomsburg graduate a few years later than our class. He has since moved, but I can get his address from our office — I think you might be interested.

"Our 'circle letter' that we started the day we left Bloomsburg is still continuing. There were 18 in the group. There are three living. They are, besides myself: Edna Brundage, now Mrs. J.C. Pentacast, 78 Edgemere Ave., Plainshow, N.J. 08536; and Miss Elsa A. Best, 700 Bower Hill Ave., Pittsburgh PA 15243.

"Recently I had a bout with 'flu, and all I've seen in the past two weeks is snow!

"With all my troubles I gained three great-grandchildren this year, added to the ones I have, that makes ten!

Saida L. Hartman, '08, died in December 1977. Miss Hartman had been a resident of Washington, D.C. for many years and seldom missed the BSC Alumni meetings held in that area.

A letter from Carol K. Morris reports that her mother, Kate Seesholtz Morris '09 died in Miami, Florida, her winter home, in November of 1975. Her husband preceded her in death in December 1959.

Mrs. Susan Toole Bassler, '09, died February 7, 1978 at the age of 90. Mrs. Bassler had been a guest in The Zandt Home, Richfield, Pa. since 1971. She formerly lived in Freeburg where she was an elementary teacher for many years. She also taught in Selinsgrove.

Hazel Longenberger Stelg, '10, has died. Her husband resides at 903 Beachview Drive, Jekyll Island, Ga. 31520.

Lester R. Burlingame, '10, died in November at the age of 86. Born in Almedia, Pa., he was a former Bloomsburg resident and lived in Berwick since 1958. He was a 1910 graduate of Bloomsburg Normal School and was self employed as a plumber from 1938 to 1958. He served as a supply sergeant in the Army Air Force during World War I, and was a member of Washington F&AM Lodge 265 and Caldwell Consistory, Bloomsburg, and the Acacia Club, Berwick. He is survived by his wife, Rebecca, a guest at the Masonic home, Elizabethtown.

Miriam Vannatta Freas '11 was reported by the post office as being deceased. No other information is available except her last address was 115 Rounford Ave., Philadelphia, PA.

A.K. Naugle '11 sent us the bad news that he is currently in a nursing home recovering from a fractured hip. He sent his regrets that he could not attend our first Awards Luncheon in December. We wish this loyal alumnus a speedy recovery. His home address is 45 Hickory Place, Livingston, NJ 07039.

Elsie Winter Herrick '11 is the "early bird" in the 1978 Fund Drive. Her check arrived in mid-December and she was issued the first membership card for 1978. She also explained why she could not attend the Awards Luncheon: "at 85 you're traveling is a bit limited but we are thankful that we did our traveling when we were younger. Now we settle for the month of October at Skytop in the Poconos and after that we are home for the winter. The Herricks' address is Box 6, Putnure Street, Tunkhannock, PA 18657.

Helen Wakefield Hoback, '12, has died. Her address was 413 S. Paul Place, Baltimore, Md. 21202.

Ethel Fowler Nicely, '12, died in December at the age of 85. A former principal of the Watsontown High School, she was a patient at the John F. Kennedy Memorial Hospital in Lantana, Fla. She had lived in that city since 1976.

She was a graduate of Bloomsburg Normal School and of Bucknell University, where she received her bachelor's degree. She received her master's degree from New York University.

She worked for the U.S. Navy in Washington, D.C., during World War I. She pursued her career in teaching in Coudersport and Watsontown, Pa., and in Youngstown and Cleveland, Ohio. She retired in 1942. Her husband, Charles, died in 1976.

Homer W. Fetteroff, '13, died December 10, 1977 in the Centre Community Hospital, State College, Pa. after suffering a heart attack. His widow resides in Millheim, Pa.

1915

Marion Hutchins Stumpf '15 wrote to us in January to tell us how much she enjoyed the calendar with the picture of Long Porch. Mrs. Stumpf's address is Methodist Manor, Tunkhannock, PA 18657.

1917

Mary A. Reichard '17 writes, "I wish to thank the Association for all the communications of the past, especially the certificate honoring my 60th class reunion, April 29, 1977. Sorry I couldn't be present. Ill health keeps me from activities that I once so much enjoyed, due to my being very much "eightyish," my own word for old age. I have been retired from the teaching profession since 1963. I live in River-view Manor, a retirement home connected with the United Methodist Home at Lewisburg. Enclosed is a check for the Alumni Fund."

Grace Margaret Davis '17 has written to class representative Allen Cromis that Dorothy Miller Brower died in November, 1977. Mrs. Brower was a resident of the Lutheran Home in Hazleton.

Marian Phillips Stiteler '18 advised us in February that her husband Elmer had died last May. She hopes to attend the 50th reunion of her class on April 28 and 29. Mrs. Stiteler's address is 315 Bryn Mawr S.E., Albuquerque, N. Mex. 87106.

Hurley O. Patterson '19 brings us up-to-date on our friends in Tucson, Arizona. He writes, "I enjoyed very much the December issue of the BSC Alumni Quarterly. The letter from Mrs. Lucia Hammond Wheeler '19 was especially interesting. Here are some additional items from the next issue of the Quarterly:

"F. Ralph Dreibelbis '19 and his wife Ruth are spending their 12th consecutive winter in Tucson. Also, it may be of interest to other members of the class of '19 that Arthur M. Felker '19 is retired and now lives at 2104 West Fairmont St., Allentown, PA 18104."

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson live at 4601 East Duncan St., Tucson, Az. 85712.

Wesley E. Davies, '19, died Oct. 7, 1977. His widow, Gertrude Gordon Davies, '19, wrote: "It is with deep regret that I inform you of my husband's death. He died of a severe heart attack. He was always grateful for his education he received at Bloomsburg. When he received his distinguished service award, it was one of the highlights of his life. My maiden name was Gertrude Gordon, and Wesley and I both went through school together, both members of the 1919 class, married 53 years. I hope I can come back to the class banquet and the alumni luncheon."

Mr. Davies taught in the Forty Fort Schools and later was supervising principal of Nescopeck borough schools. He was assistant superintendent of schools for Luzerne County, and in 1964 assumed the duties of superintendent. He was involved with the development of the Luzerne County Community College.

Lucia H. Wheeler '19 was featured in our December issue and adds the following comments concerning that article:

"How very thoughtful it was of you to send me extra copies of the current Alumni Quarterly! I thank you most sincerely — I enjoyed reading the piece about Lucia, too. In fact I enjoy the whole Quarterly very much.

"That piece in the Quarterly has had one delightful repercussion: a letter from Mabel Decker '19 of Route 3, Box 156, Apt. A, Tunkhannock, PA 18657. I haven't seen Mabel since I graduated

In June 1919 — she used to be a basketball star.

"She tells me she has put in more than 2,000 hours of volunteer work in a hospital near her home. She also has been to Hawaii. She mentions her friendship with Lillian Fisher, also a 1919 B.S.N.S. graduate. "Fish" lives in Philadelphia. She tells me Catherine Reimard, our class representative, has not been well.

"I am looking forward to the arrival of the Alumni Directory I have ordered."

Mrs. Wheeler lives at 120 West Olive Ave., No. 5, Redlands, CA 92373.

It was nice to receive a note from George B. Rhawn '22 who still lives in western Pennsylvania. George's address is 284 Jones Street, Lilly, Pa. 15938.

Edward Yost, '22, died Nov. 18, 1977. He is survived by his wife, Gladys.

Harold R. Miller '24, of 365 Catherine St., Bloomsburg, died Jan. 19. He was a lifelong Bloomsburg resident and after graduating from Bloomsburg State, he received his masters degree at Columbia University in New York. He taught at Bloomsburg Junior High School for 42 years.

Elizabeth Corrigan Courg, '24, died April 6, 1977. She was a resident of 711 N. Church St., Hazleton, Pa. 18201.

Harold Redeker Miller, '24, died in January at the age of 74. A lifelong resident of Bloomsburg, he was a BSC graduate and received his master's degree at Columbia University in New York. He was a member of the Church of Christ, Bloomsburg, the Bloomsburg Masonic Lodge, Kiwanis Club of Bloomsburg, and the National Educational Association. Surviving are his wife, the former Muriel Marshall, two sons. His address was 365 Catherine St., Bloomsburg.

Clare Lowenberg Reger '24 reports that she had been retired nine years. She received her masters degree from New York University in 1931 and spent one year at Zurich University in Switzerland on an exchange fellowship. She and her husband George live at 537 Westbrook Road, Ringwood, NJ 07456.

I. Helen Wellevor Hayhurst, '25, who spent 18 years of her 35-year teaching career in foreign countries instructing children of the military, was the speaker at a February meeting of the Bloomsburg Women's Civic Club.

Helen, who had been in APO Dependents School overseas, showed slides and gave an interesting account of her teaching experiences.

Nellie M. Sweppenhiser, '27 and '35, died Nov. 14, 1977, at the age of 71 after suffering a heart attack. She taught school in Mountain Grove, in Berwick for 14½ years, and also taught in Harrisburg and Picture Rocks before retiring in 1969. She was a member of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church and the Order of the Eastern Star, 228, both of Berwick. Her address was 939 Market St., Lewisburg.

F.A. "Red" Garrity, '28 and '36, former BSC athlete, scored a hole-in-one on the 130 yard water hole of the Boca Del Mar Golf Clubs Championship North Course Feb. 1. Red used an eight iron to achieve his spectacular ace, according to club.

"This feat, together with his 18-hole net total of 63, served to lead his team to a substantial victory in the Class A Boca Del Mar Groundhog Day Tournament.

"In addition to numerous club and commercial awards, his name and feat will be permanently registered in the World Golf Hall of Fame in Pinehurst, North Carolina. Also, he is automatically entered in the Golf Digest's Hole-In-One Clearinghouse Sweepstakes.

Doris Luce Morton '29 writes that she was an elementary teacher and assistant to the principal from 1947 to 1974. Her last position before retirement was in the Montclair, N.J. schools. Her husband John is a 1929 graduate of the University of Vermont. Doris received her masters from Columbia in 1947. The Mortons live at 131 Buckingham Road, Upper Montclair, N.J. 07043.

1930

Georgiena Weldner '30 died October 10, 1977 at the age of 67. She taught 41 years in what is now the Dallas School District, Dallas, Pa. She was a member of the Trucksville United Methodist Church and participated in many of its activities. A contribution to the Alumni Association was made in her name by Marian E. Young, '29.

1931

Dorothy Foust Wright '31 added a cheerful note to her contribution check following the phonathon in December. The note reads, "to whomever called me, thank you! I've tried to keep up my dues but it's something one puts off and it's nice to have a reminder. But isn't it too bad! As I look back to what the college did for me, I could never forget. Thank you again for reminding me that someone cares that I am an alumna."

1935

Woodrow G. Brewington '35 retired Dec. 30 after 35 years and five months service with the Columbia County, Pa. government. "Woody" is a former Columbia County Sheriff and served one year as Deputy U.S. Marshall under his father who held the Marshall's office at that time.

During World War II, he put in a three and a half year stint with the U.S. Air Force. Woody's service also included civic interest and for 20 years he was chairman of the county March of Dimes before the Salk vaccine when polio was a dreaded fear. He recalls taking a number of patients to Warm Springs, Ga., for treatment.

His county service also included over three years as clerk to the commissioners, eight years as chief deputy sheriff, eight years as sheriff, and another eight years as deputy and chief deputy with the present sheriff.

Woody and his wife, Jane Fahringer Brewington, plan to spend some time with their daughter, Sally, in her home in Medford Lakes, N.J. before taking up the long list of retirement activities. The Brewingtons' address is 2000 N. Vine St., Berwick, PA 18603.

Thelma Moody Fisher, '37, Lou Peck, '37, and Rachel Beck Melick, '36, hold a mini-reunion in Arizona following the Fiesta Bowl.

'37 Get-together: It was agreed by all class of '37 members present at the 40th Reunion last fall that we should have another get-together on Alumni Day, 1978. Mark your calendar now for April 29 as our next meeting. Time, place, etc. should be in your mail box soon.

James L. Marks '37 has been a home and school visitor in Central Dauphin School District, Harrisburg. Jim spent nearly 30 years in the Pennsylvania State Police and completed credits for certification as a counseling and school visitor at Kutztown, Millersburg and Shippensburg. The Marks have one son who is an ordained minister. Jim and Irene live at Box 422-D, R.D. 3, Annville, PA 17003.

Lou Peck, '37, is retired and lives in Sun City, Arizona, but he had "the surprise of his life" during the Christmas holidays. Here is how Lou describes it:

"We had returned from having Christmas dinner with my cousin and her husband who are both from Pennsylvania. We had watched the Fiesta Bowl game (Penn State and Arizona State). We were glad that the Nittany Lions won, but still sorry to see our local team lose.

"Sometime during the evening, the phone rang, and since we had talked to all five our kids, I was curious as to who was calling. As I answered it, I was greeted by a strange voice that asked me if I was Lou Peck. The next question was, 'Do you need any waitresses?' While at La Guardia, we had used waitresses, but I could not think of any of them that would call me, so I replied a simple, 'No.' Then the voice on the other end said that she wanted her friend to talk to me. This voice, also unknown to me, asked, 'Do you need any head waitresses?'

"Well, the dawn finally arrived and I replied, 'This must be Thelma Moody (Fisher) and Rachel Beck (Malick).' Ann Molloy, '38, has worked with me for nine weeks while Thelma was in Williamsport so that she would have been the third choice. The voice on the other end started to laugh and then they told me that they were down for the game and would be in town until Wednesday. We yakked awhile, and finally made arrangements to meet the following day.

"Needless to say, we had quite a reunion. Claire, my wife, had heard bits and pieces of my four years on the hill, but my Obiter from the years '34, '35, and '37 were lost in one of our moves so that she had not seen any pictures of my classmates. We picked them up at their motel in Scottsdale the next day, showed them some of Sun City and returned to our house for a couple of snacks, etc. Later we had a very delicious dinner and spent an enjoyable evening — thanks to our guests.

"You know, I could not have received a nicer Christmas present than the one they gave us with their visit. I know that we will be unable to make the Alumni Day in April, but we will plan to make one in the future — at least by '82. Perhaps some other classmates will remember the name and wish to correspond with us.

Send all those letters to Lou and Claire Peck, 9717 Lodestone Court, Sun City, Arizona, 85373.

Jack Gering, '37, owner of Gering Real Estate, 701 E. Third St., Berwick, has been approved as a certified appraiser, senior designation, by the American Association of Certified Appraisers.

Jack has been a real estate broker and appraiser since 1954. He has had experience in commercial, industrial, recreational and residential property appraising, including apartment complexes, motels, office buildings, shopping centers, farms and land in a multi-state area.

Class Reunion: The 40th Class Reunion of the class of 1938 is scheduled for Homecoming evening, Oct. 21, 1978 at the Pine Barn Inn, Danville. Please reserve the date. Further information will be mailed to you in the near future.

Frank VanDevender '39 announced his retirement from the Shamokin Area School District board of education effective December of 1978.

Frank, a Shamokin native who has spent his entire career as an educator with the Shamokin district, said he wanted to give the board one year's notice of his retirement. He has been superintendent for three and a half years. At the time of his retirement, he will have approximately six months left of his five-year contract.

He joined the Shamokin district in 1940 after graduation with a bachelor of science degree from BSC, where he majored in English and social studies.

Frank's address is 1011 N. Lombard St., Shamokin, PA 17872.

Stanley F. Esmond, '40, died Feb. 5, 1977. His address was 2024 N. 7th St., Ponca City, Ok., 74601.

Attention all classmates: Many of you have discussed the possibility of another class get-together this year instead of waiting another five years. Some suggestions have been offered for a summer outing, a weeked on campus and a reunion at Homecoming time. We would like to know of your interest and the type of get-together before we make any plans. Send your ideas to your class representative, Helen McCracken, 330 N Washington St., Montoursville, PA 17754. In any case, we hope to see you at the 1942 table at the Alumni Day luncheon.

William P. Wanich '42 retired in January from Mansfield State College where he served as director of scheduling and records. His plans for retirement include many uses of his travel trailer with trips to California, Florida and Maine and extended summer vacations at the shore.

Bill is a native of Lightstreet, Pa., and was head of business education department at Mansfield High School for 20 years. He joined the MSC staff in 1966 as director of the Computer Service Center. He received his masters degree in commerce and finance from Bucknell University in 1954.

Bill established a distinguished service record in the Army, rising from infantry private to captain before his discharge in January, 1946. He served in the European theater and was decorated with three battle stars, the Purple Heart, and the combat infantry badge.

Bill and his wife, Ruth Dent Wanich of Espy, have two children, Karen, at home, and Tom, a communications analyst with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation. The Wanichs will continue their retirement at their present address, R.D.2 Mansfield, PA 16933.

Ralph H. Zimmerman, '42, died in January at the age of 57 after a lengthy illness. Born in Berwick, he served in the Army Air Force in World War II. He was retired business manager of Penn Manor School District and was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Millersville. He received his master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1949. His wife, Jean, survives at 165 Krady Ave., Millersville.

Sara Jean Eastman Ortt, '43, wrote to us in February as follows: "In spite of 35 years not being associated in teaching and away from the campus, I still have a feeling of closeness to the college. I look forward to all publications of the Alumni Quarterly, and of course, find the articles of the happenings and deaths of those I knew of most importance. Keep up the good work! I did teach two years but then went into federal government work and after 31½ years with Social Security, I retired Dec. 31, 1976. I thoroughly recommend retirement. I am enclosing a check to cover my dues and for help in the Fund Drive. Hope to see you at Alumni Day."

Sara Jean's address is 204 N 41st St., Allentown, Pa 19104.

Pearl Miller Knight, '43, passed away on Jan. 11, 1978 according to her daughter, Sherree Cutman. Mrs. Knight spent 35 years teaching in the elementary schools. Her daughter's comment says it well: "You helped produce a great teacher, a wonderful person and the best of mothers."

1951

Lewis R. Stauffer, '51, of Milton R.D. 2 has been appointed special education advisor for the Division of Regional Reviewer, Office of Special and Compensatory Education in the Pennsylvania Department of Education. Kenneth G. Kirk, '54, of 12 Windsor Drive, Dallas, Pa. was recently honored by Lackawanna Junior College when the board of directors named a Future Business Leaders of America scholarship after him. A staff member of the Pennsylvania Department of Education, Ken has served as a professional business educator at the secondary, college and Department of Education levels for some 25 years. His masters degree was received at PSU but he has done graduate work at Bucknell University and Marywood College. In addition to being an original board member of Lackawanna Junior College, he is on the board of Luzerne County Community College and is official board secretary of Shavertown Church. His wife, Patricia Edwards Kirk, is also a BSC graduate of 1954. The Kirks have two children, Gayle Ann and K. Gary.

Dr. Larry Roy Fiber, '56, is co-author with Dr. Harry Huffman, professor emeritus of Colorado State University, of a book entitled Principles of Business Mathematics Using the Electronic Calculator. "The book has just been published by McGraw-Hill, and is geared to community college students. It is the result of a three-year effort by the authors. Dr. Fiber is a professor of business education at Shippensburg State College and serves as state executive secretary of Phi Beta Lambda, which will hold its convention at Bloomsburg State College in April. According to Dr. Fiber, there are now 20 colleges in Pennsylvania with PBL chapters, and more than 750 members in this undergraduate business organization in the state."

William H. Phillips, '56, is superintendent of schools in Seneca Falls, N.Y. His address is 16½ Cayuga St., Seneca Falls, N.Y., 13148

J. Harrison Morson, '56, dean of student affairs at Union College, has been elected second vice president of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools. A member of the association's board of trustees, he previously served as chairman of its school/college relations committee.

Morson was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities at BSC, and he received his masters degree in guidance from Rutgers University and is currently enrolled in a doctoral program there.

Former principal of Abraham Clark High School in Roselle, he joined Union College in 1969 as director of student activities and assistant to the dean of the college. He was named dean of student affairs in 1970.

The Middle States Association of College and Schools accredits educational institutions and conducts workshops and seminars to improve communication between these schools and to provide an arena for discussion of educational issues.

studies, the working of a mineral model that will be utilized in one of the courses in the new Master of Education degree program of earth science.

M. Ed. in Earth Science

A new curriculum leading to the Master of Education degree in Earth Science has been approved for Bloomsburg State College by the Department of Education in Harrisburg. This program of study will include courses in astronomy, geology, meteorology and oceanography.

Although this degree program has been designed primarily to meet the needs of in-service teachers of Earth and Space Science in the northeastern region of Pennsylvania, courses are not restricted. Other qualified and interested students may take courses.

Implementation of the program has begun with the initial offering of a three-credit course entitled "Contemporary Topics in Earth Science" during the spring semester, 1978. The college expects to offer courses during the summer and fall.

Earth and Space Science faculty members and their areas of specialization include: Dr. Duane

Wrap-up of BSC winter sports

By ED HAUCK
Student Sports Intern
BSC Dept. Public Info

The winter sports campaign at Bloomsburg during the 1977-78 academic year proved to be another successful venture with winning records for all teams but one. The overall record of the six teams involved was 47 wins and 32 losses for a winning percentage of .684.

The regular winter sports of men's and women's basketball, men's and women's swimming, and wrestling were joined by the new sport of women's gymnastics under the direction of Margie Schaeffer. Schaeffer, a graduate of Towson State College, joined the staff of Health and Physical Education in September and immediately set her sights on attaining new goals for the women of BSC in athletics.

The men's basketball team had two of its members surpass the 1,000 point career plateau during the second half of the season. Seniors Al Williams and Steve Bright, an academic All-American from 1976-77, were both consistent point getters and moved into the fifth and sixth places on the all-time scoring list at BSC. Williams ended up with a total of 1,158 points, while Bright tallied 1,029 points for his college career. Both were named to weekly ECAC Division II selections.

Another senior, Jeff Slocum, established a new record in the final game of the year when he hit 14 straight free throws in a single game. The 14-10 record of the Huskies was not indicative of their play during the middle of the season when they were at their worst point of losing five games in a row. They managed to win the last four games to record the twelfth consecutive winning season for the college. Coach Charles Chronister registered his seventh straight winning season.

The women's basketball team was much the same as the men's in that two seniors, Mary Balaban and Julie Ludrof, were both the top scorers for the Huskies. Balaban led the team with a total of 184 points while Ludrof was second with 122. The 9-6 season mark of the Huskies was highlighted when Balaban broke a single game scoring record by tallying 29 points in the win over Bucknell University, 92-56.

The women's gymnastics team did not fair as well as the other teams did. In fact, they were the only team to be under the .500 mark and the only winter team to go without a win. But, the 0-4 record of the gymnasts did not reflect the enthusiasm the team had when they competed throughout the season. With the initial loss to Indiana University of Pennsylvania, 84-90-44.65, the women were discouraged at the score yet hopeful at the same time of what the next meet would bring. Angele Taormina, who was elected the first captain by her teammates, was also the only all-around performer for the Huskies.

Head Coach Roger Sanders' grapplers, led by 1978 Pennsylvania Conference champions Andy Capelli (167 lbs.) and Tony Caravella (150 lbs.) enjoyed a tremendous season as they compiled an 11-3 wrestling mark. The only BSC team to be nationally ranked in the NCAA Division I standings, the team fell only to Division I ranked teams Cal Poly, 29-8, and Penn State, 19-14, and to Division III University of Buffalo, 25-16. The team finished third in the Pennsylvania Conference only one point behind Slippery Rock who finished second to team winner Clarion State. BSC had the two winners in their respective divisions and also captured two third place spots, one fourth place, and two sixth places for the Huskies.

In the Easter Wrestling League Championships, which were held at Bloomsburg, the wrestlers finished in third place behind Cleveland State and three-time champion Penn State. BSC's only champion was Dominic DiGloacchino, a sophomore, in the 177 lb. class. Maroon and Gold runner-ups were Tony Caravella at 150 and Mel Sharp, heavyweight.

Debbie Edwards, '77, sent us the following letter dated Jan. 4, 1978: "I am writing from Tegucigalpa, Honduras in Central America. I am teaching third grade here in a private American school. I wanted to make everyone aware of the excellent teaching opportunities here in both elementary and secondary."

"I have been here for about two months and I'm really enjoying this whole new experience. It's my first year teaching and my first time overseas. The teaching calendar is just like the states, including Spanish and American holidays. There is no time commitment. They pay your way down here. If you stay for two years they pay your way back home, if you stay less you must pay your way home. One way costs $210. The salary is very high for the standard of living here but low according to U.S. standards."

"If anyone is interested or wants to know more details my address is: American School, CO American Embassy, Tegucigalpa DC, Honduras CA. (write airmail)."

"I think about everyone at Bloomsburg State and like knowing what is going on."

'Belshazzar' opens Alumni Weekend

The Bloomsburg State College Music and Theater Department will present a fully-staged production of Handel's Biblical opera "Belshazzar" April 28 and 29. William Decker will conduct and Hitoshi Sato is scenic designer. Sato is designing the largest set ever used in a Bloomsburg State College production for this monumental 18th century masterpiece.

"Belshazzar" is the Old Testament story of the decadent king of Babylonia who held the Hebrew nation in captivity. During an orgiastic banquet scene, mysterious writing appears on the wall. Only Daniel is able to translate the message which foretells Belshazzar's destruction. Cyrus, prince of Persia, leads his armies into the palace, conquer the Babylonians, slays Belshazzar, and sets the Jewish captives free.

The Bloomsburg State College Concert Choir will portray the central figures of the Babylonians, Persians, and Jewish captives. Richard Stanislaw will be Belshazzar, Mary Decker will portray his mother, Nitocris, and Harriel Couch will be Cyrus. Rebecca Ermisch is designing lavish costumes for the cast of over 100 singers and dancers.

Two national known directors will be responsible for the stage direction and choreography. Dorothy Frank Danner, noted Broadway dancer and choreographer, will be in charge of the dancing. Ms. Danner has appeared on Broadway in various plays and musicals, and also in films. She also taught for three years at the famed Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

Patrick Bakman will be the stage director. His credits as an opera director are also of national renown. For the New York City Opera he has directed a number of productions. Bakman is currently finishing a production of "Susannah" with the Western Opera Theater that is touring all the major cities on the West Coast. In 1977, he was invited to Korea to direct a production of "La Boheme" for the National Theater of Korea in Seoul.

Admission to "Belshazzar," scheduled in conjunction with Alumni Weekend, April 28 and 29, is free to alumni upon presentation of membership card.

BLOOMSBURG STATE COLLEGE, BLOOMSBURG, PA. 17815

SPECIAL ISSUE

April 29, 1978

Esther E. Dagnell, class of 1934, has been a dedicated teacher, church member and alumni worker. She served 23 years as secretary-treasurer for the Philadelphia branch of the B. S. C. Alumni Association and founded the branch's scholarship fund which has benefitted many students since it went into effect in 1954.

Miss Dagnell, a life member of the Alumni Association since 1959, began her teaching career in a one-room schoolhouse in Beaver Township and taught all subjects to the ninth and tenth grades for one year and performed all janitorial duties. Later, in a newly constructed building combining grades one to twelve, she taught all the mathematics classes for the junior and senior high school grades. Following a ten-year stint at Beaver, she taught mathematics as well as reading in Nescopeck, Pa., for six years and then worked 23 more years in the Spring-Ford Area School District. She retired in 1974 after 39 years of teaching.

Esther Dagnell proved to be more than a teacher to her students; she was honored in 1962 for seven years service as Junior-Tri-Hi-Y advisor by having her name registered in the Leaders' Fellowship of the Y. M. C. A.. Previously, she had acted as the advisor for the Class of 1954 which helped to raise money to present a new electric organ to Spring City High School.

Miss Dagnell is an active member of the Spring City United Methodist Church where she is currently chairwoman of the ecumenical affairs and social concerns committee. She has participated in numerous other church organizations including the Council of Ministries. She is a member of many social and professional groups including NEA, PSEA, and Chesmont Business and Professional Women's Club.

Her career can best be summed up by a statement from her former administrator: "Miss Dagnell is one of the most dedicated teachers I have ever met. Teaching has been her life... Esther Dagnell represents all that a teacher should be."

She resides at 120 Penn Street, Apt. B4, Spring City, Pa. 19475.

Susie Rayos Marmon, class of 1906, has long been an inspiration for the American Indian as an educator. Now 101 years old, she is still urging her Laguna Pueblo people to preserve their land, their tradition, and their language, reminding them that "education is the best tool."

Mrs. Marmon exemplifies what one concerned person can do to change the lives of generations to follow. In 1971, she was honored as "Outstanding Indian Woman in the Field of Education" at the North American Indian Woman's Association banquet. She was congratulated by then First Lady, Pat Nixon, who noted that the honor was "deservingly bestowed upon you as a living tribute to your tireless devotion to the better education of the youthful descendants of the first inhabitants and cultivators of our nation's soil."

Some of New Mexico's leading anthropologists and historians recognize Mrs. Marmon as a rich source of Indian lore. The Southern Pueblos Agency made tape recordings to preserve her memories for future generations. As a part of New Mexico's Bicentennial celebration, KGGM-TV interviewed Mrs. Marmon for a 20-minute presentation.

Susie Rayos first attended the Presbyterian Mission, now Menaui School in Albuquerque. A year later when she returned to Pagueate, her native village at Pueblo, she had well begun to learn the English language.

Next, she attended Carlisle, an old Indian school in Pennsylvania. It was seven years before she returned to Pagueate for a visit after which time she entered Bloomsburg State Normal School to take the three-year teachers course. After teaching one year at Carlisle, the government sent her back to teach at Isleta in New Mexico territory.

Susie Rayos worked as a teacher until she married Walter Marmon, the son of a civil engineer who came from Ohio in the 1870's. After the youngest of their five children was old enough, Mrs. Marmon resumed teaching.

It is appropriate that the new Laguna Head Start School is located almost in Mrs. Marmon's front yard, and behind her house still stands the one-room school where she taught for nearly a half century.

F. Ralph Dreibelbis, class of 1919, is a pioneer in soil conservation and has excelled as a research scientist, soil expert, and scientist-author. Most of his professional career was devoted to studies of soils and their effect on water management.

He attended Stanford University one year, majoring in chemistry and spent three years at Penn State University, receiving his B. S. in agricultural chemistry in 1924. After earning a M. S. in soil at Ohio State University in 1928, he did post graduate work as a research fellow at Cornell University in the field of soil technology.

Mr. Dreibelbis was a member of research teams of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station and assistant chemist and later soil expert for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

From 1935 until his retirement in 1964, he worked as research soil scientist for the Soil Conservation Service and Agricultural Research Service in Conshohocken, Ohio.

Acting for 25 years as the only soil scientist member of a scientific team engaged in hydrologic research, Mr. Dreibelbis led all research effort concerning soil moisture regimen and sediment production as well as the interpretation of results and preparation of reports.

He is a member of the Soil Science Society of America, International Society of Soil Scientists, American Society Agronomists, American Geophysical Union, American Association for the Advancement of Science, Ohio Academy of Science, Soil Conservation Society of America, and he is listed in American Men of Science, Who's Who in the Midwest, Who's Who in Ohio, and Chemical Who's Who.

Mr. Dreibelbis has authored or co-authored 53 scientific papers, some of which have been published in the journal of the American Geographical Union. Several of his papers dealt with the nuclear method of evaluating the moisture content of soil profiles. Copies of his work have been requested by many nations of the world.

F. Ralph Dreibelbis is married to the former Ruth McClelland; they have one child, five grandchildren, and one great grandson. They reside at 422 West Highland Avenue, Wooster, Ohio 44691.

Dr. Donald T. McNelis, class of 1957, has served as teacher, administrator, foreign service officer and college president. He is currently president of St. Thomas Aquinas College in Sparkill, N. Y., a position he has held since 1974.

Dr. McNelis holds three academic degrees: a B. S. in mathematics and social sciences from B. S. C., the M. A. in mathematics/mathematics education and the Ed. D. in teacher education/administration, both of the latter degrees from George Washington University. He has also done post doctoral work in African studies at Boston University and the Foreign Service Institute, and in higher education at Columbia University.

Following graduation from B. S. C., he taught and coached in Fleischmanns, N. Y., and in Prince Georges County, Md. With three years of teaching experience behind him, Dr. McNelis became first an instructor and two years later an assistant professor at George Washington University.

In 1963, Dr. McNelis began his two-year foreign service career with an assignment to the U. S. Embassy in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. Upon returning to the U. S., he served one year as educational advisor in the executive office of the President for the Office of Economic Opportunity, Washington, D. C..

Dr. McNelis then accepted a position as dean of instruction at Hagerstown Junior College, Md., and two years later he moved to Ohio where he served one year as department chairman and associate professor of education and psychology at the College of Steubenville. He returned to Pennsylvania and worked one year as a professor at Lock Haven State College before going to St. Thomas Aquinas College in 1970. For four years he served as academic dean until he became college president.

Dr. McNelis is married to the former Romaine Marosy of Washington, D. C., a former high school teacher and guidance counselor with B. S. and M. A. degrees from Edinboro State College and the George Washington University. They have one son, John Joseph, and reside at 5 Bobwhite Lane, West Nyack, N. Y. 10994.

'Creativity' Dec. grad topic

"Creativity is that one area of man's behavior which has been short-changed most in education possibly because creativity and humanism are two ideals which takes tremendous courage to implement," stated Robert Koslosky, professor of art at B. S. C., in his commencement address to approximately 222 seniors and 51 graduate students on Dec. 18 in Haas Auditorium.

President James H. McCormick offered welcoming remarks, and Dr. James V. Mitchell, vice president for academic affairs, presided over the ceremony. The degrees were conferred by Dr. McCormick and diplomas were presented by William Zurick, chairman of the board of trustees. The introduction of the candidates was made by the respective dean of the various schools: Dr. Edson J. Drake, Arts & Sciences; Dr. Emory W. Rarig, Jr., Business; Dr. Howard K. Macauley, (acting), Professional Studies; Dr. Charles H. Carlson, Graduate Studies. Dr. Mitchell hooded the masters degree candidates.

Student remarks were offered by James L. Byrnes, president of the senior class, and senior Mary Miller was soloist. Rev. Thomas Langan gave the invocation and benediction. Clayton Hinkel was commencement marshal; organist was Dr. William Decker; student Philip Bower conducted the national anthem and alma mater.

Koslosky, a 1975 recipient of a statewide Distinguished Faculty Award Teaching Chair, further stated, "This creative problem-solving approach to life is where your greatest satisfaction in life will come from, if you have the courage to create."

"Keep in mind," he warned, "that a creative and contributing life is not an easy one, but it is one that pleases humans. Of all man's activities, the act of creating is the most lonely and requires the most risk-taking and courage."

Koslosky explained the need for creative solutions to conquer mankind's problems. He urged the graduates to be aware of the difference between commitment to creativity and fanaticism about it.

"Your education is just beginning," noted Koslosky. "You have the skills, intellect, and attitudes necessary to function in society. We have given you much, but only you can make the choices that will make you human."

Dr. McCormick, in his opening address, remarked that the graduates were fortunate in attending B. S. C. during a time of significant positive change when enrollment had increased and the quality of education was improved through faculty additions. He impressed upon the graduates the need to remain loyal alumni and strong promoters of public higher education. He closed with, "We are grateful for the opportunity we have had to share in your lives for this brief time and we are proud of you. Best wishes!"

Among the participants in the April awards convocation were John S. Mulka, director of student activities; Janis Ellis Edwards, former BSC trustee; James H. McCormick, president of the college, and Brian T. Sarris, director of the Saga Food Service on campus.

Nearly 200 BSC students, employees and area residents were honored at the ninth annual BSC awards convocation on Sunday, April 23, at Haas Center for the Arts.

Major Eileen Albertson, '67, head of the review branch of the military justice division for the Department of Navy, gave the keynote address that was heard by approximately 800 persons. Welcoming remarks were given by Dr. John S. Mulka, director of student activities, and Cathy L. Lucree, co-chairwoman of the awards committee.

Dr. James H. McCormick, president of BSC, presented certificates of appreciation to three persons who contributed outstanding services to the college — the Hon. Martin L. Murray, Pa. Senate Majority Leader, who received his certificate in absentia; Brian T. Sarris, director of Saga Food Service, and Janis Ellis Edwards, '77, former member of the board of trustees.

Dr. James V. Mitchell, vice president for academic affairs, presented academic achievement awards to seniors who maintained at least a 3.5 grade-point average during their college careers.

Recipients were Janet L. Aagaard, Shickshinny Lake; Jacqueline R. Acunzo, Galetton; Jeanne I. Adams, Northumberland; J. David Arnold, Northumberland; Caroline E. Artman, Berwick;

Phyllis K. Ashenfelder, Nazareth; Laurel Bennet, Picture Rocks; Scott L. Birth, Danville; Betty D. Blyler, Lewisburg; David J. Bogdan, Nanticoke;

Jeffrey E. Brandt, Hershey; Susan A. Bremer, Philadelphia; Steve J. Bright, Bloomsburg; Ronnie L. Bucher, Wilburton;

Marita A. Burlan, Allentown; Anne M. Burritt, Wilkes-Barre; Louise M. Caldarelli, Enola; Linda C. Capperella, Norristown; Nancy L. Carothers, Maple Glen;

Thomas S. Chirkot, Plymouth; Stanley I. Cohen, Elkins Park; Jan C. Crossmore, West Chester; Kevin M. Crouse, Denver; Donna M. Dajnowski, Exeter;

Maxine K. Davis, Wellsboro; Anne M. Dignazio, Media; Debra J. Dilella, Cornwell Heights; Kathy A. Dill, Sunbury; Kay L. Dorney, Pen Argyl;

John D. Dragic, Prompton; Caryll A. Eck, Williamsport; Margaret Ehrhorn, Mt. Gretna; Marie P. Eldam, Elysburg; Victoria A. Engel, Williamsport; Tamara Ewanik, Wilkes-Barre;

James P. Flanagan, White Haven; Stephen D. Fox, Berwick; Karen A. Frantz, Watsontown; Scott E. Gelnett, Watsontown; Penny E. Gow, Dalton; Rebecca J. Graby, Annville;

Ronald E. Hendershot, Milton; Edward A. Herbert, Forty Fort; Sharon L. Hettrick, Chalfont; Cindy L. Hickox, Lewisburg; Cheryl L. Hitchens, Doylestown; Elizabeth M. Jones, Wilkes-Barre;

Students honored at Dec. awards luncheon

An awards luncheon for B. S. C. December graduates and their parents was held Sunday, Dec. 18 at 11:30 a.m. in Scranton Commons prior to commencement exercises at 2 p.m. in Haas Auditorium. Opening remarks were given by co-chairwoman Cathy Lucree, a senior from Bangor, and congratulatory words were offered by President James H. McCormick. Bruce DeHaven, a sophomore from Etters, served as co-chairman, and Dr. John S. Mulka, director of student activities, acted as faculty advisor.

James V. Mitchell, vice president for academic affairs, presented the 34 academic achievement awards, which require an accumulative grade point average of 3.5 or higher, to the following:

Highest Honors

Marcy, Kingsley, secondary education; Geraldine Stish Shepperson, Hazleton, public school nursing; Mary Correale Wallace, Conyngham, public school nursing; Carolyn J. Wheeler, Landenberg, communication disorders; Edmund J. Shustack, Shenandoah, mentally and physically retarded.

Service keys, given for "outstanding service" to 10 percent or less of the senior class who earn a minimum of 20 points for participation in various college activities, were given by Jerrold A. Griffis, vice president for student life. The recipients were Matthew J. Connell, Willow Grove, arts and sciences; Thomas A. Mulhern, Bloomsburg, secondary education; J. Lawrence Nester, Pen Argyl, elementary education.

Trustees discuss housing problems

State legislators have told officials of the state's colleges that "We want private developers to build . . . and take the state out of the housing business," announced Boyd F. Buckingham, BSC's vice president for administration at a recent meeting of the college's board of trustees.

Buckingham said that "tripling," the practice of housing three students in a dormitory room designed for two, is still prevalent at the college due to crowded conditions. He said that a dormitory is included in requests which may be made for future budget considerations, but not this year.

Earlier, President James H. McCormick stated that the need for the human services building was "desperate."

'Worst I've seen'

Dr. James V. Mitchell, vice president for academic affairs, said he had served about six institutions and that the crowding of faculty offices here is "the worst I've ever seen."

Buckingham continued that that while no increase in enrollment is envisioned, apparently the state legislature was anticipating a drop at BSC. He said that of the fourteen state colleges, BSC ranks 14th in the square footage per student.

Trustee Joseph Nespoli expressed surprise at this. He said he knew of developers who would build if there were a guarantee by the college developers wanted a 90 percent guaranteed occupancy rate, but that not such guarantee could be made by the college.

It was reported that developers were encouraged to build housing for students but that the state legislature had not come forward with any inducement for this. There was some mention of a proposal for developers to construct dorms on campus which would be leased and eventually owned by the college. No answer has been received from Harrisburg yet.

Parking problems

Another trustee concern was parking of students in front of homes of town residents. "I'm not sure we've done all we can to alleviate complaints," said Nespoli.

Dr. Jerrold Griffis, vice president for student life, said an inordinate amount of time had been spent on the problem, but that there was no known answer. He said there was parking space available on campus and that students living in town were encouraged to use it. He also said the state attorney general had ruled it was illegal for the college to force its students to park on campus.

As a trial solution, the college has granted permission for any BSC student to park on campus, including freshmen and other previously ineligible students, in a measure to prevent parking problems on town streets.

These certificates are awarded to students who have demonstrated ability, scholastic achievement, personal traits, leadership, potential usefulness to society, and professional promise.

Cecil H. Turberville, Jr., director of athletics, presented lifetime athletic passes to those athletes who had earned a major award during his sophomore, junior, and senior years in one specific sport. The recipients were Mary M. Balaban, Camp Hill, (women's basketball); Brent C. Bankus, Bloomsburg, (baseball); Thomas J. Brennan, Lancaster, Bloomsburg — a university? Legislation is currently before the state Senate which would establish a Keystone State University System encompassing the 14 state-owned institutions of higher education in Pennsylvania.

Senate Bill 473, currently in its second reading in the Senate, enjoys bipartisan sponsorship and support and would create a state university system removed from the Department of Education and from other departments and agencies of the Commonwealth.

Policy for the system would be established by the Board of Governors, which includes the Secretary of Education and representation from the General Assembly, students, trustees, and the public at large. A chancellor would be the chief administrative officer.

Chief sponsor of the bill is Jeanette Reibman, chairwoman of the Senate Education Committee, who has been an advocate of increased autonomy for state-owned colleges for a number of years. State Secretary of Education

Caryl M. Kline made the bill her top legislative priority in higher education and said that "It is an historic bill, one which will permit a more effective and efficient administration of these institutions and establish a more desirable system of governance than we now have. The legislation is truly an idea whose time has come."

The suggested title of the new system is "The Keystone State University System." As the last state in the nation to have colleges and universities functioning under the control of the Department of Education, Pennsylvania's new system would be similar to legislation adopted by other leading states during the last decade or two.

In commenting on Pennsylvania's 14 state-owned institutions which enroll nearly 80,000 undergraduate and graduate students, B. S. C. President James H. McCormick said that "these institutions clearly need the added measure of autonomy that would be provided under the new legislation."

The Mary Eleanor Wray Award for female athletes was given to Mary Balaban, Camp Hill.

The Redman Trophy for male athletes was shared by Stephen P. Eachus, West Chester, and Stuart J. Marvin, Oreland.

The Saga Awards, given to the best male and female undergraduate athletes, were presented to Anthony Caravella, Bricktown, N.J.; and Ann C. Fadner, Landisville.

Journalism certificates, given to seniors who have completed three journalism courses and have been active staff members of student publications, were presented to Barbara J. Fahey, Taylor; Cathy E. Poffenberger, Dauphin; Edward B. Hauck, Jr., Fort Lee, N.J.; Laura M. Pollock, McVeytown; William T. Troxel, Jr., Warminster.

Outstanding achievement in English for students who demonstrated superior performance and attainment as a major in English went to Cathy E. Poffenberger, Dauphin.

Harold H. Lanterman Award for chemistry went to Michael C. Burrell, Harrisburg. C. R. Reardin Math Award was given to Nancy J. Wyshinski, Laporte.

Outstanding achievement in music award went to Ruth A. Barton, Bloomsburg, and Cathie J. Master, Bloomsburg.

Outstanding achievement award in psychology went to J. David Arnold, Northumberland.

Scholarships given by Robert L. Duncan, director of financial aid, were presented to Christine L. Beiser, Hershey; Marsha G. Davis, Lightstreet; Bruce D. DeHaven, Etters; Karen A. Edwards, Tamaqua; Sharon E. Greiss, Slatting; Sally A. Houser, Port Trevorton; Jeffrey A. Hunsicker, Northumberland; Wanda K. Husick, Sayre; Alan J. Lonoconus, W. Hazleton; Brett E. Polenchar, Bethlehem; Joseph J. Surdoyal, Macungie; John M. Sutter, Warren; Michelle L. Whyne, Mt. Carmel.

Serving on the awards committee were chairwoman Cathy Lucenzi and chairman Bruce DeHaven; Leo Lulewicz, Chris Holmes, Cathy Poffenberger, Kim Winnick. Special thanks were also extended to Lambda Alpha Mu sorority.

'Pennsylvania Dutch' chapter meets

The first meeting of the Pennsylvania Dutch Chapter of the B. S. C. Alumni Association was held at the Sheraton-Berkshire Inn, Reading, Pa., April 13, with 72 alumni and guests present. The chapter is comprised of all of Berks County and surrounding area alumni, for a total of nearly 1,100 members.

The organization committee was composed of Francis D. Sell, Nikki Rinehimer, Patricia Cranford, Donald B. Hawthorne, William C. Houck, John W. Thomas, Robert Conrad, Marjorie Robaton, Elaine Mehle and Alan C. Bartlett.

The program was arranged by Barbara Faust, Mary Ellen Whyte, Patricia Cranford and Janice Young. The meeting began with a social hour from 6 to 7 p.m., when a roast top sirloin beef dinner was served. Dr. Edwin C. Kuser gave the invocation and Francis Sell, acting chairman, welcomed the group and made introductory remarks the speaker, John W. Ebling, superintendent of Hamburg Area Schools, who entertained the group with his Pennsylvania Dutch dialect in "Sense or Nonsense."

The following officers were elected for next year: president, Francis D. Sell; vice president, Donald B. Hawthorne; secretary, Patricia Cranford; treasurer, Richard N. Faust.

A beautiful cast iron plaque of the Gettysburg Address was presented to the college as a gift from the Pennsylvania Dutch Alumni Chapter. Dale Biever made the presentation to Buckingham who promised to find a prominent place for it to be displayed. Prizes were raffled with William Houck and Gene Levensgood drawing the winning tickets. Dinner music was provided by tapes from Edwin Kuser.

Following the singing of the older version of the alma mater, the group socialized, renewed old acquaintances and viewed slides of the campus. Members of the club provided a display of old time yearbooks, college newspapers and Doc Sell's track trophies. College literature was available for those interested in it.

Those attending the meeting included: James H. Deily, '41; Dorothy Deily, Charles L. Edwards, '51; JoAnn F. Edwards, '53; David Yergey, '64; Nancy Devore Yergey, '64; Francis D. Sell, '35; Mabel R. Sell, Sandra L. Thomas, '65; Anna H. Fister Kluck, '65; Lee R. Bierly, V-12 program;

Josephine Bierly, Dale E. Biever, '58; Catherine Keller Biever, '58; Alan C. Bartlett, '67; Katherine M. Bartlett, '67; Donald B. Hawthorne, Jr., '63; Barbara Fatzinger Krause, '62; John Morrow, '69; Carlene Renner Morrow,

Montour area party held

A party for BSC graduates living or working in Montour County and Riverside was held at the Danville Elks on April 7. A social hour was held at 6 p.m., followed by a roast beef dinner and a short business meeting. The group of 47 heard reports from Dr. James McCormick, president of the college, and Donald Watts, executive director of the Alumni Association.

All incumbent officers were elected to serve another term: Ruth Ann Montague, '54, president; Todd M. Baney, '72, vice president; Nelenia Swank, '44, secretary; Susan Sidler, '30, treasurer.

Entertainment was provided by four theater students from campus, who presented readings from plays they had performed during the year. The presentations were made by Diana Kulha, Bernadette Haas, Scott Cheek and Mark Somerfield. The club enrolled 15 new members during the evening.

The Montour group had planned to honor Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Diehl at the banquet but the Diehls were unable to attend. Consequently, the centerpiece on the speakers' table was taken to their home by Mrs. Swank. The following letter was received by Dr. McCormick from Mr. and Mrs. Diehl after the receipt of the centerpiece: "Mrs. Swank, secretary of the Montour Chapter of the BSC Alumni Association, has brought us the lovely bouquet and your personal greeting. We appreciate your thoughtfulness, and the kindness of the chapter."

"We regret that we were not able to attend the recent meeting of our chapter."

"About 50 years ago, at the request of Dr. F. B. Haas, then the president of our college, I organized the Danville Chapter. (I was then 40 years of age.) At that time I was the county superintendent of Montour County and we had an active chapter, until I retired in 1958."

"I was followed by a good school man, but not a Bloomsburg graduate, and in a few years the chapter declined."

"We are pleased to note that under your administration and the activity of Mr. Watts, our chapter is again active."

"In recent years we have not been able to attend the various gatherings of the college alumni association, but we have memories of many persons whom we have known, and of our pleasant associations with them."

Richard N. Faust, treasurer; Patricia Cranford, secretary; Francis D. Sell, president; and Donald B. Hawthorne, vice president — all of the 'Pennsylvania Dutch' chapter of the Alumni Association in the Berks County region.

Commissioner speaks to graduate deans

Edward C. McGuire, Pennsylvania commissioner of higher education, told approximately 30 graduate deans that their primary concerns in higher education should be declining enrollments, faculty tenure, the number of administrators, and political involvement.

The commissioner replaced Caryl M. Kline, state secretary of education, at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Graduate Schools held recently at BSC. Kline was scheduled to address the group but had to cancel her appearance due to a late request to represent the Commonwealth at a national meeting.

McGuire pointed out that the ten year projection has college enrollments down 30 percent which naturally will affect faculty and administrator numbers. "There just won't be as many young people available for college educations as there are today," he said.

"At the same time," he continued, "with a high percentage of faculty members having tenure and less numbers needed, young graduates with bright ideas and new teaching methods vitally needed in our education system, will find it difficult to obtain positions."

He further stated that some feel that there may be too many administrators in some phases of higher education today which, in turn, could reflect in higher student costs and less efficiency of operation.

McGuire told the association members that for higher education to survive, it is necessary for educators to become more involved in the political process. "You are more familiar with the problems of higher education than the politicians," he said. "And, if you do not get involved in decisions and policy making at the state and national levels, others less qualified will be doing it for you."

The commissioner spoke briefly on the new Keystone University bill, now under consideration in the Legislature, that would place the 13 state colleges and Indiana University of Pennsylvania under one university system.

A planetary citizen and promoter

Dorothy Derr Tilson, '40, was a guest at a very unusual luncheon last fall sponsored by the Planetary Citizens at United Nations headquarters in New York City. It was the awards luncheon to honor those who have been outstanding in world-wide endeavors for peace, human understanding and a better life for all humanity.

The Planetary Citizens group is working at solving world problems — particularly those of world disarmament. The luncheon was hosted by Norman Cousins, editor of The Saturday Review, and Donald Keys, president of Planetary Citizens and author of several books.

Each year Planetary Citizens bestows its awards on persons who emulate in their own lives the values of true planetary citizenship, and whose important contributions to humanity oftentimes go unrecognized. Usually, the award, a silver medal, is given to one member of the United Nations delegation, one to a member of the secretariat and one to a citizen-at-large. The medal design, showing two hands cradling the Earth, suggests values of stewardship, responsibility and sharing on a world-wide basis.

The three recipients for 1977 were: Alva Myrdal, ambassador from Sweden, author and leader of the non-aligned group in the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament in Geneva; His Excellency, Lazar Mojsov, deputy secretary of state for foreign affairs for Yugoslavia, for his role in re-establishing U.N. peacekeeping efforts in the Middle East; and Brian Urquhart, under-secretary-general for special political affairs at the United Nations, for his pioneering efforts to develop effective United Nations peacekeeping and the U.N. emergency force in the Middle East.

Dorothy Tilson refers to her association with the group as "an outside interest." She said, "I made a short contribution to them under the title Blueprint for World Peace and received their acknowledgement." Here is her contribution:

Blueprint for World Peace

A "closer-in" integration between the United Nations and leaders of all countries of the world is needed for the establishment of Peace on Earth. The UN should make itself known to every leader so that he no longer feels alone in the decisions he makes for his country, but that there is genuine interest and "know-how" available from the "top" in his problems. There should also be that element established in the mind of each leader by the U.N. that he can no longer declare war against any other country for any reason whatsoever, nor can he be responsible for the invasion of the privacy of any citizen within his, or any other country — failure to resolve his problems peacefully, and infringement of this pre-established element, should lead to his replacement.

"When a truly indiscriminate united effort is made between the United Nations and the leaders of all countries, then can we see Peace on Earth."

Donald Keys' acknowledgement follows:

"Dear Dorothy Tilson: Thank you for sending us your beautiful thoughts in a 'Blueprint for World Peace.' You have hit on a key point — the need for a 'closer-in' integration between the U.N. and world leaders, most of whom are not really in touch with the quality and the values which the U.N. represents and is seeking to establish.

"We are trying to do what we can to help in that process, through our uniquely strong relationships with the U.N. and with world leadership. Unfortunately the U.N. is forbidden by its statutes from doing much itself in terms of building these relationships and taking initiatives. But gradually that will change.

"Thanks again for sharing your insights with us. We were so happy to have you with us at the Awards Ceremonies."

The association with Planetary Citizens is volunteer work and only one of Dorothy Tilson's long list of activities.

"After graduation from BSC in 1940, I accepted a teaching position in the Madison Township Junior High School, Jerseytown (today it is an elementary school). I taught 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th grade English, 7th and 8th grade geography, 9th and 10th grade Latin. I also had girls basketball, the school operettas and assisted with Girl Scout activities.

"After two years and with the winds of war beginning to seep in, I left Madison Twp. with an interest toward helping in the war effort. This took me to Philadelphia and to the Ordnance Department, where, after attaining more credits in science at Temple University, I worked in the gage laboratory, checking mathematically the gages used in checking skill and bomb measurements. At that time my knowledge of war was very vague, and the true horrors of it came much later. I can only say that I wish I could have done more towards ending these atrocities. I worked at the gage laboratory about two years.

"Then came the years of introduction to New York City, through my work in the advertising department of Sears, Roebuck and Co., my work with Remington Rand tabulating equipment — teaching its use, and my work with the offices of Coopers and Lybrand. After this came the time of meeting my husband, Irving Tilson, and our eventual work in Pennsylvania. Throughout our entire work there, in order to help monetarily, I maintained my office position in New York.

"My husband received his education in Europe — specifically trained in theater in the Imperial Theater of Russia when it was still in existence. He lived theater in all of its aspects and upon coming to Pennsylvania for the first time, he fell in love with the state — its rolling hills and particularly the Susquehanna River. The idea of establishing a professional theater was born. Our first attempt came in 1949 with the opening of the Penn Mill Summer Theater, Millville. To establish the theater, Irving began a serious promotional campaign during the fall of 1948 — and the many trips back and forth through the snowy winter of Pennsylvania and New York, the seeing of everyone of importance in Pennsylvania together with coordinating his cast in New York resulted in a successful opening in June, 1949. However, through lack of funds and against much opposition, the theater was in operation about one month and then closed.

"We envisioned the eventual establishment of an art center in the area — with a school of the theater as well as schools of the other arts within this center for those in Pennsylvania who were interested in participating in professional art. From 1949 until Irving passed away in 1969, he worked out an elaborate plan for the cultural center — to be located somewhere in the Bloomsburg vicinity. These plans were copyrighted but unfortunately it came at a time when people of the area were skeptical of outsiders who tried to establish a business — who, when theater was mentioned thought in terms of the county fair burlesque shows. Then, too, Irving was not able to communicate his real intentions toward the community upon the closing of the theater.

"Upon the closing of the theater, Irving and I came back to New York in our Chrysler Club Coupe with $40 between us — and my office job. We began to put the pieces together again. He turned to writing TV scripts, songs, teaching, etc. and a new idea for a different type of theater in Pennsylvania came into being. We began making trips to Eagles Mere where a new type of promotion began — one for a novel musical arena-theater, hotel, nightclub and restaurant. About one year was spent on this idea before it was given up for this location.

"Then came Irving's opportunity to acquire Edgewood Park in Shamokin, Pa. where he developed the idea of a major cultural project called "Musical Island." The idea came from the small island in the middle of the lake at the park. We had planned to open Musical Island in 1961 as a theater, restaurant and hotel complex to operate throughout the year, however 1961 and 1962 passed without the opening. In the fall of 1963 we gave up the house in Shamokin and again returned to New York. Mr. Jones, the owner of the park, was kind enough to return our deposit as he had been successful in selling the land for a very attractive housing development.

"Irving returned to writing music, lyrics and scripts. Although his health began to fail, he began working again on the cultural center idea, and was working on another section of Pennsylvania closer to Bloomsburg. He never gave up his promotional activities. This location will remain a secret — until such time as it may become a reality.

Irving and Dorothy Tilson

"Throughout our various promotional activities, my family was there with the farm. They are now deceased but many people from Pennsylvania and New York were guests and participated in barbecues under the pear tree in a select spot on the farm."

Since Irving Tilson's death in May 1969, Dorothy has continued her office work. The promotion of Irving's songs, together with charitable interests in New York Theosophical Society. This interest led to her duties as chief librarian which included weekends and some evenings. The Planetary Citizens also claims her attention as they are interested in the welfare of the United Nations, world disarmament and many other world problems.

"The expansion of Bloomsburg State College has never ceased being of particular interest to me — the tremendous growth since 1940. They have a rich program which includes the arts, and I commend their work in the theatrical line. The theater is beautiful and, having seen some of the productions — highly professional.

"I would like to point out something which I think could enrich and deepen the quality of education not only at BSC but at all institutions of higher education — a course in the freshman year which aids the student to know who he is, what his life purpose is and his place in the universe. Books of reference for the course could include "The Secret Doctrine," by H.P. Blavatsky, "The Treatise on Cosmic Fire," by A.A. Bailey, and other by A.A. Bailey.

Thought power is extremely powerful and if enough people think goodwill to all beings, eventually it must come about according to universal law."

Mrs. Tilson's address is 435 W. 119 St., New York, N.Y. 10027.

Three retirements announced

Three members of the Bloomsburg State College faculty have had their retirements approved by the Board of Trustees. The retirees are: James B. Watts, professor serving as archivist and special services librarian, after 11½ years at BSC; Willard Christian, associate professor and chairman, Department of Business Education, 10 years; and Robert L. Duncan, associate professor-administrator serving as director of financial aid, nine years.

Watts joined the library staff in 1966 as head librarian when Andruss Library was being completed. He has been active in library work for 22 years since assuming his initial position of director of the Carnegie Library, Sumter, N.C. Before coming to BSC, Watts was director of library science and instructional materials at the Clearwater Campus, St. Petersburg Junior College.

Born in Chipley, Florida, Watts received his early education in the schools in that area. He later graduated from Campbell Business School in Dothan, Alabama, and received his A. B. in Speech from Birmingham-Southern College. A master's degree was earned "between wars" from the George Peabody School for Teachers in Nashville, and graduate work was done in mass communications, sociology and library science at the University of Illinois.

Watts served his country in both

World War II and the Korean conflict with the U. S. Air Force. Presently a major in the Air Force Reserve, he is a graduate of the Counter Intelligence Corps School, Camp Holabird, Maryland, and O. S. I. Training School, Washington, D. C.

Christian joined BSC as an associate professor of business education in 1968 and went on to become chairman of the Business Education Department in 1974. Under his guidance, this department has expanded its educational role to instruct business personnel in the area by offering a seminar, and a new area of course study for business education students in office administration.

Christian is a bachelor of science graduate of BSC, after first receiving his elementary and secondary schooling in his home town of Shamokin. He later received his master of science degree at Bucknell, and did additional graduate work at Penn State. Before joining the BSC faculty, he held the position of business teacher and chairman of the Business Education Department at WilliamSPORT High School. Christian is a member of many professional organizations, including the Pennsylvania and National Business Education Associations.

Robert Duncan has served the field of education for 20 years. After elementary and secondary schooling in his home town of Sharpsville, Indiana, Duncan received his bachelor of arts degree at Depauw University and his master's degree at Butler University. He also spent a year at Ohio State University in graduate study.

Duncan began his career as a teacher in his home town, and from there progressed to principal at Atlanta (Indiana) High School. He then joined the Army and was assigned as a classification officer in the Adjutant General's Corps. He is now retired with the rank of colonel.

Duncan returned to education and was dean of student affairs at Lenoir Rhyne College, Hickory, N. C., before joining the BSC staff. He has been active in many professional associations and civic clubs.

Watts' retirement was effective Feb. 2, 1978. Christian will leave at the end of the 1977-78 academic year, while Duncan's retirement date is Aug. 18, 1978.

Retiring staff

Twenty-eight retirees and one employee with 20 years of service were honored at a special get-together for non-instructional employees of BSC.

The program began in Carver Auditorium with a brief performance by the College Concert Choir under the direction of Dr. William Decker. Dr. Frank Davis, assistant vice president for administration, and Paul Conard, director of administration and personnel services, assisted Dr. Boyd F. Buckingham, vice president for administration, in presenting a certificate of appreciation for 20 years of service to Fred C. Cleaver, custodial services manager, and certificates of appreciation and a gift from the college to the 1977 retirees.

Following the presentations, a dessert-buffet and social hour were held in Scranton Commons.

Those who retired were: Allen W. Austin, Gordon Bailey, Charles Bogart, Maynard Brown, Hazel Coutts, Martha Cragle, Jay Crawford, Cameron Dietterick, Rachael Drake, Robert A. Drake, Harold E. Fisher; Freas S. Follmer, Sheldon F. Gay, Harold B. Hartman, Clair E. Johnson, Carl S. Lukens, Raymond S. Martz, Albert A. Minnick, Elwood Rickert, Edna E. Sands, Kenneth A. Shuck, Justin G. Smith, Frances M. Wagner; Keith D. Wagner, Alice E. Yorty, Claude W. Zehner, Michael J. Visnosky and David I. Llewellyn.

Sanders retires

Merritt W. Sanders, director of institutional research at Bloomsburg State College, retired after 39 years of service in education and 11 at Bloomsburg.

Sanders retired in January while recuperating from a lengthy illness. He joined the BSC faculty in September 1966 as professor and chairman of the psychology department, with part-time responsibilities in institutional research. In 1969 he became full-time director of institutional research, having served as an examiner for the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J.

Sanders is the author of educational tests and survey instruments, studies and reports that have gained national recognition.

4,815 students registered

A total of 4,815 full- and part-time undergraduate degree students completed registration for the second semester of the 1977-78 college year at Bloomsburg State College in January, according to Tom L. Cooper, dean of admissions and records.

Of the 4,815 undergraduates, 2,086 are men and 2,729 are women. The full-time undergraduate figure amounts to 4,427, of which 171 are new freshmen, 69 new transfers and 27 new readmits.

Over 450 graduate students registered. There were about 430 persons, from teenagers to senior citizens, classified as non-degree credit students registered for courses in the continuing education program.

None of these figures include people who enroll in non-credit mini-courses which will be held during the semester.

Approximately 2,500 men and women are being housed in campus residence halls and served their meals through the facilities of the Scranton Commons. In addition, over 1,700 students will be living in the Bloomsburg area, with the balance commuting from their homes or living in nearby area while on off-campus student teaching or intern assignments.

Approximately 650 faculty, administrative and non-instructional personnel are on duty this semester.

William Lams, '01, on thinking

Editor's Note: In our December issue, under class notes for the Class of 1901, we printed a letter from William R. Lams '01 to Roger Fromm, a member of the BSC library staff, concerning a book written by Professor Noetling, entitled "Thinking and Learning to Think." Mr. Fromm sent the book published in 1900 by Nathan C. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction for Pennsylvania. Apparently Professor Noetling was a collaborator on the publication. The following letter from Mr. Lams was received Dec. 30 and expresses his philosophy of thinking and learning to think. Our congratulations to this grand gentleman and scholar from the Class of 1901.

"It was very kind of you to send the book 'Thinking and Learning to Think' by Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer. As a token of my appreciation, I am enclosing a small check for your library fund. The book was returned November 1, 1977, by insured registered mail.

"Professor Noetling must have collaborated in assembling the material for the book — at least he always left that impression in his lectures on pedagogy which he gave us three times per week during the spring of 1898. He would quote from it frequently and explain how it applied to the school classroom work in leading the development of the student's thinking in the classroom.

'Analogue on Thinking'

"A semblance exists between a baker and our thinking. He starts with a given raw material — flour — over which he had no control before this point. He starts the fate of the flour by sifting a given quantity into his mixing bowl, and from this point he is in perfect control.

"He can make sourdough bread or he can make delicious loaves of golden crusted bread. Instead, had he so chosen, he could have made it into any one of various products such as pie crust, cakes, many delicious pastries or almost limitless other products by varying additions of other materials to the batch of flour.

"In our thinking our minds are the mixing bowls of our lives and thoughts. Daily happenings are dropped into our minds, mixed there and flavor our thoughts. We acquire an education by reading history and other books most of which deal with the past, but the day to day events are the most influential in our thoughts.

"In 1898 the national background differed vastly from what it is in 1978. At that time our means of travel was the railroad and the horse and buggy. The horseless carriage was being developed in a very crude manner.

"In 1898 Marconi was experimenting on the use of electric impulses in wireless telegraphy. His work stimulated our scientists to increase their work on the development of electronics. To electronics both the terrestrial world and the celestial worlds have yielded their secrets far beyond anything we had ever dreamed. We then began to think about realizing other impossible dreams — some already materialized.

"The bringing of a battle wagon around the Horn was considered quite a marvelous feat, and its sinking in Havana harbor led to the Spanish-American War. This war carried some of our forces to different climes to which we had previously given but slight thought.

"These are the things that furnished the background upon which we based our thinking at the close of the nineteenth century.

"The first half of the twentieth century we devoted most of our time and talent to wars, the great depression and to political change.

"In 1914 Germany started World War I to conquer the world. We sat back, furnished the allies materials for the war, and said, "We are not in it, let them fight it out." The sinking of the Lusitania brought us into the war.

"At the close of the war, great unrest permeated the minds of our country. Millions became obsessed with the ethereal idea that speculation in the stock market would make them millionaires in a short time and speculation was rampant.

"One morning the market crashed, followed by despair and many suicides. The 'Great Depression' was upon us. Soup kitchens, selling apples on street corners, and many private and semi-private organizations provided a means of survival for millions of our people.

"All these were dumped into the mixing bowls of our minds. People on every side asked, 'What happened to us?'

"The depression put a new president in the White House. In 1933 he started 'slogan governments' with the slogan, 'New Deal,' and with the exception of a few saner periods they continued through the 'Great Society.'

"The members of Congress in 1933 seemed more dazed and confused than the rank and file citizens. They became known as the Rubber Stamp Congress. The President sent batches of ten or more bills per day to Congress where they would be taken up one by one without being read, passed, stamped, and returned to the President for his signature, making them the law of the land. Thus many bills in one day would become law.

"The Keynesian monetary idea followed the slogan governments using Keynesian monetary principles to raise the necessary funds.

"Hitler, the Mad Man of Germany, in his quest for power, started World War II. We were brought into this war by Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor. Our forces built up quite rapidly and we had a huge army fighting on various fronts.

"It was not too well known but we had tested an atomic bomb. In 1945, two atomic bombs were released over Japan, one over Hiroshima and one over Nagasaki. Thus the atomic age burst upon us. The horrors of it were dumped into the mixing bowls of our minds, there to leave a lasting impression no matter what efforts we put forward to eradicate it. The horror of atomic bombs still hangs on and will undoubtedly for generations to come.

"In the early forties, the news media began their efforts to influence thinking by dumping its biases and sensational garbage into the mixing bowl of the public mind. Television also began to add its influence by the same process.

"In the early fifties, Sputnik was sent into the stratosphere and launched the space age. Shortly thereafter, our laboratories sent our counterpart consisting of an electronically controlled sphere into the stratosphere and returned it safely. Then men began formulation of plans to land men on the moon and return them safely at a given time and at an approximate place.

"Satellites give us world news as it happens and other satellites explore planets many light years away.

"Next came computers that, when properly programmed, can operate railway trains, fly bomb-loaded airplanes and when aided by a laser beam drop the bomb on a pin-pointed strategic position; or it can operate a lathe in a machine shop with far greater accuracy than is possible by human control. It can solve many problems in a minute which would take hours of effort otherwise.

"Transportation in 1978 has the automobile with possible speeds of 100 mph, if allowed, and the supersonic transport with speeds up to almost twice the speed of sound.

"What next?

"All of these things and accomplishments have been dropped into the mixing bowls of our minds to form the background upon which to chart our thinking in 1978.

"When Dr. Schaeffer wrote 'Thinking and Learning to Think,' had he known of television and the great effect it would have in influencing the minds of pre-school and early school children, he undoubtedly would have given attention to early classroom work. Children enter school today with their minds filled with ideas which were planted there with no effort on their part. All of this has to be combatted before the child can be brought to think and develop the will to think.

"By his knowledge, skill and exercise of choice, the baker controls the ingredients going into his mixing bowl and the products coming out. Unlike the baker, we have all those things dumped into the mixing bowls of our minds from which we have to pick out certain things to keep our minds from running wild. As emphasized by Dr. Schaeffer, we must have the will to think and, to the best of our ability, retain the things that would help us 'bake a good loaf' and discard the rest. To do this was as necessary in 1898 as it is in 1978: the difference now is in the vastly greater number of ingredients going into our minds' mixing bowls."

The first group of urban and regional planning students in BSC'S Department of Geography and Earth Science are now interning in regional planning offices during the spring semester.

Professors Brian Johnson and John Serff are coordinating the internship program.

The Department of Geography and Earth Science is offering a course in advance planning on Thursday evenings this semester, which is being taught by a professional practicing planner and which is available to the public as a continuing education course.

More information concerning this advanced planning course or the urban regional planning course of study can be obtained from the Department of Geography and Earth Science at Bloomsburg State College.

BSC high jumper 'fooled' into new record

Bloomsburg State College high jumper Jeff Carruthers, the defending Pennsylvania Conference champion, cleared the coveted seven-foot mark in an indoor track meet with Bucknell and Mansfield and didn't even know he had leaped that high.

"We kind of fooled him," said Coach Carl Hinkle. "He had just cleared 6-9 and thought his next jump would be 6-11. Without telling him, we moved the bar to 7-0. When we told him he had made the jump, he thought we were kidding."

Carruthers became the second high jumper in BSC's history to clear seven feet. His accomplishment is a school indoor record, topping former Maroon and Gold jumper Leroy Turner who cleared 6-11 indoors and 7-0 outdoors.

"It's quite remarkable for a small college like Bloomsburg to have two high jumpers clear the seven-foot barrier," Hinkle stated. "Of the high jumpers competing today throughout the entire country, there are not a great many seven-foot jumpers. Now that Jeff has done it once, I feel he has renewed confidence and will go to greater heights."

Carruthers, according to Hinkle, has been performing well. At an earlier indoor meet at Lehigh he jumped 6-10 for a meet record and last year was the Pennsylvania Conference champion with a mark of 6-10. He jumped that high in the NCAA Division II competition last spring at Fargo, North Dakota, tying for second place.

Carruthers is also a versatile athlete, as he has hit 22-10 in the long jump and 47-5 in the triple jump and also has performed as a member of the mile relay team.

Callahan memorial fund

Students, faculty and staff at Bloomsburg State College have established a memorial fund as a tribute to Charles J. "Chip" Callahan, a student who died in a fall from the roof of the four-story Old Science Hall early in December.

A large group of students and members of the art department attended services for the student from Oreland, Pa. At the same time a memorial service was held in BSC's Kuster Auditorium by members of the college community.

Callahan, a junior art major, is believed to have slipped on the ice-covered roof the night of Dec. 7 while trying to reach the framing room on the opposite side of the building from the art studio where he had been working. Callahan had permission to obtain equipment from the framing room, and could have called a security officer to have the room unlocked.

Members of the art department faculty are handling the details of accepting contributions and setting up the memorial fund.

Executives return to BSC

The School of Business and the Student Marketing Club have instituted a program of inviting alumni to return to campus in the capacity of "executives in residence." It is hoped that the program can become a tradition in which distinguished alumni can visit the campus periodically to share these perceptions and understandings of the business world with faculty and students.

"It is through executive-in-residence alumni personally devoting their valuable time to share their lives and professional experiences that we believe we can make an impact on our students that can be achieved in no other way," declared Dr. James V. Mitchell, vice president for academic affairs.

Foster: coach of year

Bill Foster, former basketball coach at BSC, who guided Duke from last place in the Atlantic Coast Conference last season to the tournament championship, has been named ACC basketball coach of the year.

Foster capped a four-year rebuilding effort at Duke with the ACC title.

He won the award with 82 of the 125 ballots cast by members of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. North Carolina's Dean Smith was second with 20 votes, while North Carolina State's Norm Sloan was third with 18.

Foster's Blue Devils' ACC title was the first for the school since 1966, and Foster guided the rebuilding with outstanding recruiting. His teams have boasted the conference rookie of the year for three years in a row.

All three, Jim Spanarkel, Mike Gminski and Eugene Banks, are on this season's team. There are no seniors on Foster's starting five.

Foster arrived at Duke for the 1974-75 season after building successful programs at Bloomsburg State College, Rutgers and Utah. Since then, he has compiled a 64-46 record, boosting his 17-year mark as a college head coach to 272-171.

Foster, 47, is a native of Norwood, Pa., and a graduate of Elizabethtown College. He holds a masters degree from Temple University.

He was president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches in 1975-76.

Wrestling club formed

Recently a group of people interested in the future of wrestling at BSC formed a club with the purpose of supporting the program through scholarships for outstanding high school wrestlers interested in attending Bloomsburg. This project has the complete approval of the college officials and is within the guidelines of the NCAA.

The efforts of this group plus a $500 scholarship from the Alumni Association have already started to pay dividends. We are now able to attract wrestlers who previously would have gone to other colleges because financial aid was not available at Bloomsburg.

As you probably know, Bloomsburg State College wrestling has been competing in Division I NCAA (the top ranking). We were ranked 17th in the nation last fall; however, in a match with Penn State, (ranked No. 1 in the east,) in January the Huskies lost by the score of 19-14, and the score could easily have been reversed. We proved again that we can compete at this level, and with continued support from our alumni and friends we will remain a major power at the national level.

Why not add your support to a winning team by sending your check in any amount from $10 to $500? Contributions should be made payable to "BSC Wrestling Trust Fund," and sent to Harry S. Evert, P.O. Box 90, Bloomsburg, Bloomsburg, PA. 17815. Your gifts are tax deductible, so why not mail that check today?

Our law school grads

At least 22 Bloomsburg State College graduates are graduates of various law schools, and most of them are practicing attorneys, according to Martin M. Gildea, BSC campus pre-law advisor.

The most popular law school chosen by BSC graduates in Dickinson, where six studied law, followed by Temple, selected by four, Ohio Northern by two, and Howard by two.

Those receiving a law degree from Dickinson include: Jerry Malinowski, William Gering, James Rosini, James Purcell, Gregory Kirk and Jered L. Hock.

The Temple Law School graduates are: John Lavelle, David Syer, Sharon Federovich, and George E. Litterer.

Other graduates and their law schools are: E. Stanley Covington and Otis Johnson, Howard Law School; Joe Romano and Joey Storaska, Ohio Northern; Eileen Albertson, William and Mary; Gregory Horan, Cornell; Betty Hoover Wolfe, University of California at Davis; Carolyn Carr, University of Virginia; Cheryl Furey, Villanova, and Elwood Harding, Tuskegee Institute.

Gildea said that there are probably other BSC alumni who are now lawyers and he is trying to locate them. He asks anyone with this information to contact him by calling 389-2208 or by writing to him at BSC.

Summer school dates listed

The 1978 summer school schedules have been announced by the office of extended services. There will be three six-week sessions, beginning May 30, June 19, and July 10.

In addition, four three-week sessions will begin May 30, June 19, July 10, and July 31.

In most cases, classes begin the same day as registration.

A bicycle jaunt through Holland

By Eudora Hosler Kuhl
Class of 1937

The pretty young blonde in the mod blue jeans studied my face as if it were a road map; then she said, "But aren't you kind of old for that sort of thing?"

"Apparently not," retorted I, the grandmother in the mod biking shorts, "because we did it."

We were talking about our family hobby, bicycling, which has culminated in two bicycle rides across the state of Iowa, a bicycle tour of Holland last June, and plans for many future trips.

The idea for the bicycle trip through Holland began with discussion with our friends in Creston of several articles we had read about the joy of biking in that compact, picturesque country. One couple thought it would be a marvelous way to celebrate a 35th wedding anniversary; another friend wanted to find an old windmill that had been in her family for years.

Reading and planning

We wrote to the VVV (Dutch Tourist Association) and received information on packaged bike tours. After a short winter of reading and planning, springtime found seven of us (three sets of grandparents and one teen-aged daughter), boarding a DC-10 in Des Moines for the flight to Amsterdam.

We had the good fortune to have a young Dutch boy as a seatmate on the flight — a PhD graduate from the University of Illinois, returning to his homeland to seek a job. He answered our questions and prepped us for the upcoming adventure — a lot of talking and the shortest flight I ever had!

I expected Amsterdam to be a great international city, effervescent with sparkling ribbons of canals and laughing, happy people.

But the canals were dull and dirty; the people seemed sober and preoccupied with the burden of spiralling inflation. One thing did sparkle, though — the windows, fantastic windows shining like crystal and all dressed up in white lace curtains and hanging baskets of flowers and greenery. Clean, beautiful windows must be a good housekeeping status symbol in Holland.

Bicycle traffic

Hollanders love big dogs and the evidence of this was everywhere. We soon learned to watch where we put our feet. But I liked the venerable 702-year-old city with its tall, skinny canal houses, leaning and twisting with age, and its crazy traffic with bicycles everywhere jockeying for position. Riders often wear wooden shoes and long skirts, or have passengers sitting side-saddle on the back fender, not holding on to anything.

Next came the quest of Lorene's windmill. We boarded a train in Amsterdam and arrived swiftly and promptly in the town of Ede. Here we rented bicycles and ran head on into the language barrier. In answer to our inquiries in English, the non-comprehending Dutchmen looked at the picture of the mill which Lorene had brought with her and gave directions in Dutch. Very funny, but sad, too, that there are no universal words of communication.

About seven miles out in the country we finally found it — a beauty — the oldest standard mill still working in the Netherlands, built in 1507, restored in 1952, and now protected by the Dutch government. History caught up with us when we thought about 10,000 of these gyrating wind-giants keeping Lorene's ancestors safe from the sea, grinding grain and sawing lumber. There are only about 1,000 windmills left, and not many of them are working mills.

Biggest bargain

We continued our trip by train to Arnhem where our bicycle tour was to begin. Checking in at the VVV, we received bicycles, saddle-bags, maps, directions, vouchers for meals and for the country inns where we would stay each night — all at a price which just has to be the biggest bargain in Europe.

At first we thought our rented bicycles looked like clumsy, overweight country cousins to the slick, slender ten-speed racers we ride at home. But they were stable and sturdy and just perfect for the flat terrain and the heavy luggage we carried.

Getting out of the big city of Arnhem was my next worry. (I worry a lot.) But it was a piece of cake — our own bike paths, our own traffic signals with little bicycles on the red and green lights. When the little bicycle turned green we went and everything else stopped. I loved it.

As soon as we left the city we found ourselves in the beautiful Veluwe Forest, where we rode all day. Here the bicycle paths were full of children, biking with their teachers on end-of-school holidays.

Rearview mirrors funny

Annoyed at first that so many of them giggled and pointed to us as they passed, we finally figured out that they were amused by the rear-view mirrors we had clipped to our glasses. Throughout the whole trip we were asked about these tiny mirrors which protect our rear. We use them in Iowa all the time, but the Dutch had never seen them.

We were conspicuous in another way — our clothing. In southwest Iowa where there are many hills and considerable traffic, bikers learn to "go light and bright." With our colorful anoraks, slacks and shirts we were the brightest things on the horizon in contrast to the Dutch who were dressed in dark, somber colors.

One day's ride took us out over the polder, the flat land reclaimed from the IJsselmer, a vast fresh water lake once the salty Zuider Zee. We learned how the great Afsluitdijk (enclosing dike), 20 miles long, was constructed to keep out the treacherous tides of the North Sea and how dikes were built and water pumped out to form the new land — engineering feats which have earned the Dutch the title of the world's greatest hydraulic engineers.

Leased polder land

The farm buildings were large, neat and clean; the whole lay-out looked expensive and we wondered about ownership. A young Dutch farm boy explained that the government owns and leases the polder land for 12 to 40 years. Farms consist of about 75 acres laid out in 10 acres plots. Farm land sells for about $7,000 to $8,000 per acre. Wow!

One morning we were puzzled by directions that instructed us to proceed to a "foot ferry." Our trail led us to the banks of the wide and deep IJssel River. Here, two fat Dutchmen in dark pantaloons and klompen (wooden shoes) loaded us and our bikes into two big boats and rowed us to the opposite shore. Later, we were to cross the IJssel River again by a more conventional motor-powered ferry.

Our trip was like a giant treasure hunt. We followed directions from one check-point to another and explored all the special points of interest described for us on the guide sheet. Sometimes we got lost; sometimes we took a turn down a country lane to watch workmen thatch a farmhouse roof, or to ride by a pasture where super-productive cows were wearing bras — or we would pause on the dike to watch a big barge go through a lock or take a rest stop for a bratwurst and a Heineken — all just a pedal push away.

We rode only 30 to 40 miles a day, which brought us to our village inns early enough for "happy hour," with hors d'oeuvres of native specialties like salty raw herring and smoked eel.

All of Holland's major towns are connected by bike routes and smaller towns can be reached on little-traveled country roads. As we pedaled along, it was hard to realize that Holland is the world's most densely populated country with 1,000 people per square mile. We passed through much open country, and in addition to beautiful farmland and meadows with grazing black and white cattle, and all the lakes and canals, we rode past miles of heath bogs and drifts and forests.

So that's what one old alumna has been up to! Our "holiday on two wheels" was a great adventure — all seven of us, old and young alike — agree to that. Hopefully, "we've miles to go before we sleep."

Next year — England or New England!

At top, Dutchmen help load the bikes on board the 'foot ferry.' Middle: Part of the Kuhl crew look at an ancient windmill. Bottom: Eudora and her husband on the shore of the Mississippi, "back home."

B.A. in mass communications

The B. S. C. speech communication and theatre arts department announces the addition of a curriculum leading to a bachelor of arts degree in mass communication, recently approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

Dr. Melville Hopkins, chairman of the department, said the new program will include public relations, advertising, radio, television, speech and journalism. He added that the program is unique in its comprehensive scope which draws from the School of Business and the departments of art, English and economics.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Robert Richey, departmental curriculum advisor in Room 319, Bakeless Center for the Humanities.

Early childhood degree ok'd

The Department of Elementary and Early Childhood Education in cooperation with the Graduate School at Bloomsburg State College has been authorized by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to initiate a master of science degree with a major in Early Childhood Education.

The new master's degree program has been designated to provide advanced teaching and research skills for individuals working with young children in public schools, day care centers, nursery schools and preschools. The new master's program will also provide teaching certification at the graduate level in early childhood education for those individuals desiring certification in conjunction with the master's of science degree.

The initiation of the master of science degree with a major in early childhood education resulted from several years of research and study dealing with the advanced educational needs of teachers of young children by members of the Department of Elementary and Early Childhood Education and Dr. Charles H. Carlson, dean of the school of graduate studies.

This advanced degree program will be staffed by members of the Department of Elementary Education, many of whom possess advanced training themselves in the area of early childhood education.

According to Dr. William S. O'Bruba, chairman of the department, the new master's degree program is a response to a growing need to prepare teachers to work more effectively with young children. This need to develop competent teachers of young children is evident nationally as well as in the commonwealth.

Additional information on the new program can be obtained from the Department of Elementary and Early Childhood Education at the college.

Ethnic studies published

The University Center for International Studies at the University of Pittsburgh has announced the impending publication of three books by David E. Washburn, director of Multicultural Education at Bloomsburg State College.

"Ethnic Studies in Pennsylvania" is the result of a survey Washburn conducted of all the schools in the Commonwealth with programs at the kindergarten level and above, and is a detailed analysis of the state of ethnic studies within Pennsylvania.

"Directory of Ethnic Studies in Pennsylvania" contains detailed descriptions of the ethnic studies offerings of the Commonwealth's post-secondary schools, public school systems and non-public schools. Included for each school is the address, phone number, contact person, and a description of each program.

Included in both books are the courses and curricula offered; graduate and undergraduate majors, minors and degrees; ethnic groups included; how long programs have been in operation; the number of students participating; grade levels offering ethnic studies; the academic disciplines participating; the cultural elements, concepts and elements included; types of community involvement in the programs, and the nature of locally produced ethnic studies materials.

The directory is recommended for those with ethnic studies programs or desiring to be informed in the area of ethnic studies.

"The Peoples of Pennsylvania: An Annotated Bibliography of Resource Materials," is a comprehensive compendium of materials dealing with the ethnic experience in Pennsylvania. Included are books and monographs, articles, other print materials, newspapers and periodicals, films, video tapes, film strips, records, audio tapes, and other non-print materials. Forty-two ethnic groups and religious bodies that have had significance in Pennsylvania's history are covered. Close to 3,000 works are cited.

The materials in the book have been reviewed by a panel of 300 ethnic studies scholars who indicate the grade level for which the materials are appropriate, the most prominent academic discipline or disciplines for the materials and evaluate the materials as to format, realism and accuracy, intercultural understanding, and overall effectiveness. A narrative review and summary concludes the evaluators' report.

Walter U. Kaji, '05, died on July 3, 1977. He was nearly 91 years old. His widow writes: "He often spoke of his Bloomsburg associations with professors and friends, and one in particular with whom he strung a telegraph line in the attic of one of the school buildings!" Mrs. Kaji resides in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

Martha Freas, '13, died on March 25, 1978.

Clarice Carter Bezdzjan, '13, passed away on October 19, 1977. She had resided in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Edna Deily Blecher, '18, died on March 3, 1978.

1921

Martha Cole Honstrater, '21, previously listed in our files under "Address Unknown," is residing at 2609 W. Southern, Tempe, Ariz. 85282. Her cousin, Sara E. Tubbs, '39, sent the address and informed us that Mrs. Honstrater has recently been ill.

1931

Orval C. Palsgrove, '31, wrote to report on the 48th consecutive spring meeting of the Philadelphia chapter of the BSC Alumni Association. The meeting was held in the Gold Room of Wanamakers Restaurant on Saturday, April 8. Mrs. Mary C. Comerford, '13, was presented with a "diploma" signed by the president of the college and the chairman of the Board of Trustees. Another highlight of the meeting was the announcement that one of their members, Miss Esther Dagnell, '34, would receive the Distinguished Service Award on Alumni Day. The recipient of the club's scholarship who is presently a student at BSC (no name mentioned) gave an interesting talk of campus activities and answered many questions asked by the "old grads."

1935

Woodrow G. Brewington, '35, was the recipient of a governor's proclamation at the Columbia County Democrats annual dinner-dance at Romeo's Restaurant in Berwick on April 8. Brewington is a former county sheriff. The proclamation was read and presented to "Woody" by state Rep. Ted Stuban. He also received a token gift from the county organization for "Appreciation of Service." Brewington, who retired at the beginning of the year, gave a brief thank-you speech.

The 1937 Class get-together planned for Alumni Day at the Bloomsburg Elks Club was cancelled due to lack of interest. S. Maria Berger, who was in charge of the arrangements, indicated that only "a dozen or so" returned their reservation slips with the check for the dinner. Maybe next year?

Ray Schroppe, '37, writes from his winter home in Stuart, Florida, that his recuperation has been slower than he had expected and he was not able to travel too much. He hopes to make the next '37 Class get-together. The Schropes plan to return to Michigan in mid-May. Too bad Thelma Moody Fisher didn't know Ray's address because she and Bing spent February about two miles from Stuart.

Helen Hess Terhune, '10, writes that she is "still very active;" her present hobby is painting in oils. Having just completed her 335th painting, framed and wired for hanging, she explains, "My pleasure is in giving." To date she has given away 209 paintings and has exhibited her work locally three times and received four ribbons. Mrs. Terhune, 86, has been painting only the last twenty years, but "my hands were always busy at some kind of art work."

Until recently she was always active in her church and community. She is the founder and lifetime honorary member of the P. T. A. in West Milford, N. J..

Mrs. Terhune, a widow for 15 years, recalled that for years she and five fellow graduates communicated via "Round Robin," but now she is the only survivor; the other group members were Mary Lowry Shambach, Lois Yost Smith, Florence Heitsman Hughes, Nora Geise, and Enola Snyder Evans.

Her two sisters are also B. S. C. graduates. Esther Hess Pettit, '12 is living in Florida, and Miriam Hess McDonald, '11 is deceased.

Mrs. Terhune still resides on "Apple Acres," the old Terhune homestead dating back to 1827. Her address is 1064 Union Valley Road, West Milford, N. J. 07480.

Mabel Shuman Luccareni, '13, sent us a beautiful letter in April. Her letter follows:

"Dear Bloomsburg, wonderful old school. Let us not forget its pioneers, those who carried on through the years and those now striving to make it par excellence. How could we have been there without help and encouragement from parents and relatives?

"Truly my Bloomsburg days were among the happiest of my life. Kind and loving thoughts go out to my classmates and teachers.

"Thank you for the attractive calendar which came in the mail.

"Enclosed check is for the Alumni Scholarship Fund."

BSC alumnus Oliver Krapf takes a ride on a camel.

A trip to Spain, Morocco

The U.S. will not be the only country to remember the winter of 1978, according to the Rev. Oliver H.R. Krapf, '32, and his wife, who took a January tour of southern Spain and Morocco. Western Europe and Africa, they say, has experienced unusually low temperatures also.

While in Spain, the Krapfs visited a number of cities in the vacation area of Costa del Sol. They were impressed by the ancient city of Granada where King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella are buried in the Chapel Royal inside the Cathedral of Granada. In 1492, the Spaniards defeated the Moors and established Christianity as the official religion. Columbus came to Granada that year and secured funds to make his successful voyage to America.

In the chapel of the cathedral, tourists are shown Queen Isabella's silver chest that contained the jewels given to Columbus for the 1492 discovery.

The Krapfs saw the Rock of Gibraltar while passing through the straits. In Morocco, they covered over a thousand miles by bus through the cities and countryside of this North African country.

In Tangier, Fez, Marrakesh, Rabat and Casablanca, they explored the Arabic world of casbahs, mosques, veiled women, bazaars and ancient customs unknown to the West. The Krapfs attended a typical Arab feast with native food and entertainment including snake charmers, acrobats and dancers.

Everywhere the donkey furnished transportation for the poor. In Marrakesh, a city on the border of the desert, camels were numerous.

The Rev. Krapf is currently serving as minister of visitation of the Wesley United Methodist Church, Bloomsburg.

USSR study-tour set

Bloomsburg State College will sponsor a study-tour of the U.S.S.R. from August 6 to August 20. Arrangements for the tour are being handled by Professor Anthony Sylvester of the history department with Sputnik Youth Travel Agency (U.S.S.R.) and Aeroflot Air Lines. The cost will be approximately $890 per person and includes airfare, hotel, full board, English-speaking guides, sight-seeing in Moscow, Leningrad; Tallin and Kiev. These prices are established by the Soviet government specifically for youth travel, therefore, there will be limited space for people over 35 years of age. Anyone interested may contact Prof. Anthony Sylvester, BSC History Department, for information or call (717) 389-2515. Sufficient time must be allowed for a passport and visa. College credit, graduate or undergraduate, can be arranged for the course.

Classes in Review

Jane Manhart Morgan, '37, wrote March 28 as follows:

"Again I have to say 'no' to attending a class get-together. Bill is still working and we are using his work to travel in the East. We'd never been there until these last couple years. He works out of Hawthorne, Ca., for Northrop on a Saudi Arabian contract and thus travels back and forth. I go too. I was there all of November, here in U. S. in December, back to Saudi the first of January and back here in California day before yesterday. Seeing the families of both of our children takes up our time here since we'll be back in Saudi by May 1. It's fascinating but hectic to try to keep valued contacts and friendships alive while flitting. As soon as I see a few more places we'll stop this.

"My fond emotions are with you good people who keep the reunions alive and well, and someday I'll be there in person, too.

"Best wishes to all. I thought the booklet from the 40th magnificent! Everytime I 'light' here I re-read it . . . and enjoy it."

The Alumni Office has received word that Josephine Magee, '37, was robbed in Washington, D. C., and lost her handbag and many valuable documents. Josephine has been a teacher in the nation's capital for many years. Her home is at 236 South 29th Street, Penbrook, Harrisburg, Pa. 17103.

Danny Litwhiler, '38, former major league outfielder and head baseball coach at Michigan State University, has been named international president of the United States Baseball Federation.

Holder of the Alumni Meritorious Service Award, Danny was the first major league outfielder to record a perfect fielding percentage in a single season and his fielding glove is in the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

BSC officials thought enough of the former Husky athlete to name their baseball diamond in his honor. Danny Litwhiler Field adjoins Nelson Fieldhouse and Redman Stadium on the college's upper campus.

Litwhiler, an author and inventor of baseball equipment, coached at Florida State before taking over at Michigan State. At least three of his former players made it to the major leagues, including Dick Howser thirdbase coach for the world champion New York Yankees, and Woody Woodward, ex-Cincinnati Reds short-stop.

Litwhiler, quoted in a recent edition of The Sporting News, said, "Our hope is to get baseball in the Olympics in 1984." The former Bloomsburg resident will direct an American team in a college series in Japan and Korea before vying in the world tournament in Italy August 26 — September 10.

Mary Boyle Curry, '39, died Jan. 9, 1978, at Wantagh, Long Island, N.Y. Mrs. Curry was a business teacher in the Levittown (N.Y.) Memorial High School for more than 20 years. Following her graduation from Bloomsburg, she taught at Coughlin High School, Wilkes Barre, for seven years. A scholarship fund has been established by the students and faculty of Levittown H. S. in her honor.

1942

We have been notified by the postal service that Ludmilla Matanin Wintersteen, '42, has moved from Port Carbon, Pa., to 11123 Acme Drive, Orlando, Florida 32807.

Lols Bryner, '44, a teacher in the Danville Area School District, was recently elected as one of three regional officers for the Pennsylvania State Education Association at the organization's annual House of Delegates meeting.

More than 80 delegates representing the more than 8,000 teachers in the association attended the meeting at Mount Pocono.

George W. O'Connell, '58, vice president of sales and marketing for the absorbent products division of the Brown Company, part of the Gulf-Western Industries, was on campus April 19, to participate in the first "Executive in Residence" program sponsored by the newly founded Appalachian Marketing Club of the School of Business.

This program was introduced to attract distinguished alumni to campus, where they could give present business students the benefit of their experience.

The day's events started with an 8 a.m. breakfast hosted by Kenneth Mosteller, president of the A. M. C., in the faculty dining room of Scranton Commons. A full day of addresses, question and answer periods, student appointments, and a panel discussion followed, including a lunch with faculty and student leaders and a dinner in Scranton Commons.

After graduating from B. S. C., O'Connell studied further at the University of Richmond and Syracuse University. He started his business subsequently promoted to director of marketing for its New York district. In 1974, O'Connell moved to the Brown Company as its director of marketing and sales, and became vice president in 1977.

Assisting the Appalachian Marketing Club with the program were professors Melvin L. Woodward, Robert N. Watts, Jr., and Salim Qureshi.

Willard E. Boyer, '59, age 41, was found beaten to death recently in his locked New Jersey apartment. The body was discovered by police after Boyer was reported missing by co-workers at Camden County Area Schools, Camden, N. J., where he was an administrator.

Although a motive was not officially established, Barry Lozuke, assistant county prosecutor, said Boyer's car, a television, stereo set and several small antique tables were missing.

Since the apartment door was locked, Lozuke said Boyer, a bachelor, may have known his assailant. Police are continuing the investigation.

Boyer was born in Lycoming County, Pa. and was a graduate of Hughesville High School and B. S. C.. He taught school in Wyalusing, Pa. from 1959 to 1962. (Editor's note: The preceding was supplied to the "Alumni Quarterly" by Jay E. Long '59.)

Administration shocked by budget cuts

By Bruce Dietterick
Director of Public Information

Bloomsburg State College officials announced Thursday, August 3, that they had been notified by telephone of a re-allocation of Commonwealth funds, ordered by the Governor's Budget Office and that the college's funding for 1978-79 has been cut by more than a half-million dollars.

Early in July, the college was informed officially by the office of the Commissioner for Higher Education that Bloomsburg State College would receive $13,069,155 of the $181.3 million appropriated by the legislature for the 13 state-owned colleges and Indiana University. The re-allocation provides $12,542,864 for Bloomsburg, a reduction of $526,000.

"We are shocked and dismayed by this action," Boyd F. Buckingham, Vice President for Administration at Bloomsburg State College, declared. "Historically, after the legislature has determined the total amount to be appropriated for the state-owned colleges and university, it has been the sole responsibility of the Pennsylvania Department of Education to determine how the funds should be distributed among the 14 institutions. I know of no precedent for the action reversing the department's original decision."

Buckingham said the only explanation given for the action was that the Budget Office refused to accept the Pennsylvania Department of Education's distribution schedule because it failed to provide funds to cover substantial deficits for last year incurred by at least two of the state-owned colleges.

"State agencies are not permitted to incur deficits, as such," Buckingham explained. "However, it is possible to defer payment of obligations from one fiscal year to the next. That amounts to the same thing as deficit spending."

"As tight as money has been at Bloomsburg for more than five years, we have carefully avoided over-spending. Our faculty, staff, and administrators have co-operated completely by doing without needed supplies and equipment when necessary. Now, it appears that although we have been fiscally responsible, we are being penalized. We have to give up badly needed funds to pay debts we did not incur. It's discouraging, to say the least."

Buckingham noted that the "final" distribution announced early in July took into account current enrollment and student/faculty ratios. He said Bloomsburg State College had been working with Pennsylvania Department of Education officials for several years in an effort to obtain a more equitable share of state funds through a distribution formula that would be based, at least in part, on an institution's productivity.

He explained that, "In the past the funds were distributed according to a formula that failed to take into account the enrollment changes of the 1970's, or the expenses involved in the new missions assigned to the institutions since 1973. Consequently, Bloomsburg was not receiving a fair share. Last year, for example, our enrollment was third highest of the 14 institutions; yet, seven other institutions received larger shares of the funds. The distribution announced in July made a substantial correction of that inequity; now, however, we're back where we were five years ago."

The inequity of the present distribution of state funds is best illustrated by comparing the support per student given by the state. One college will receive twice the amount support per student that another receives. The range per student varies from a low of $1963 at one college to a high $3664 at another with BSC at $2290. Unless the State changes its present allocations, students at Bloomsburg will be denied services and materials for lack of sufficient funds.

Area native recalls BSTC's early days

By Joan Norquest '77
Alumni Association Office

Ella Barnes Derr walked five miles every morning to attend classes at the Model School, the teacher-training school of Bloomsburg State Normal School.

The reason she attended the Model School was not for its fine reputation, nor could her parents necessarily afford the cost of tuition ($10.50 a full year), but Ella and her sisters and brothers could not be admitted to Bloomsburg public school because her family lived in East Bloomsburg in a different township — Catawissa Township. The Catawissa public school was an inconvenience since it was located even farther from their home. Fortunately, an arrangement was made providing that some of their tax dollars would be spent to pay their tuition.

Ella came to the Model School in 1908 when the entire campus consisted of Carver Hall (originally Institute Hall); Noetting Hall (the Model School); Waller Hall; and Science Hall. A lagoon with a rustic bridge, flowers, and park benches provided a peaceful rest stop between Science Hall and the present day Haas Auditorium.

Her first and second grade teacher was Florence Tuttle, a native of Massachusetts. Other instructors Ella remembers include Helen Carpenter, third and fourth grade; K. Maude Smith, seventh grade; Joseph Dennis, German; Jesse Y. Shambach, algebra; and O. H. Bakeless, "a dear old man."

The Manual Training Room was a favorite of Ella's. Similar to modern day "shop class," it provided students with experience in woodworking, basket weaving, and copper etching.

Before the days of Bloomsburg's own dramatics productions, visiting players performed at Bloomsburg State Normal School, and students were often chosen for small parts. Ella remembers the status and excitement in being chosen. She and her sister were "in the height of our glory" as fairies for "A Mid Summer's Night Dream." It was "my first contact with show business" as a child, and the "grease paint smelled so good."

The Gymnastics Exhibition, held every spring, was a special occasion. While a teacher played a grand march on the piano, students marched in, pressed close together, forming concentric rectangles until every student had entered the small gymnasium. Parents were invited as spectators, and each group of students demonstrated a special routine, knowing that each performance was expected to be "par excellence." Young men performed on the rings and other gymnastics equipment.

At the end of the Exhibition, representatives of the two rival literary organizations, the Calliepan and Philogian Societies, would climb the rafters of the Old Gym to exhibit their respective colors. Higher and higher each would climb until at last either the Philo's or the Callie's colors would be triumphantly displayed from the highest point on the ceiling.

Ella recalls the bloomers girls had to wear to gym class. Nevertheless, Ella adds, "we had a crackerjack basketball team."

The Model School holds many wonderful memories for Ella, who regrets never being able to finish her education there. Her school days ended abruptly in 1915 when Ella had to leave to find a job because her father had become very ill. Later, she was able to attend beauty school, and for 23 years she operated a beauty shop.

Presently a widow at 79, she remains active in the community of Bloomsburg, and until recently she rented rooms to college students. When she first began to rent rooms, landlords had to be approved by the college, and the rooms and facilities were regularly inspected by college officials. At one time, Ella explains, her name was at the top of the list for providing excellent housing. She notes that in later years the college did not remain as strict and selective about the type of housing students received. Currently, Dr. Marilyn Saveson of the BSC English faculty resides with Ella during regular semesters.

Job slump levels off

The job market slump for college graduates appears to be levelling off, at least for those graduating from Bloomsburg State College.

According to Thomas A. Davies, director of BSC's Career Development and Placement Center, over 78.5 percent of the graduates from the classes of December 1976, May 1977, and August 1977, have either been placed in professional and/or meaningful employment, are continuing their studies in graduate school, or are fulfilling obligations in military service.

This figure represents a 9.2 percent rise over last year's figure of 69.32 percent, a six-year low in placement figures which reflected a national trend in unemployment. Davies explains that BSC's placement rate appears to be somewhat above the national average for similar institutions, indicating a career-minded student body, enthusiastic faculty and administrators, and impressive curricula which meet with favorable response when viewed by prospective employers.

August grads hear of 'PDQ' values

Clayton C. Daley, president of Wise/Old London Foods of Bordon, Inc., emphasized the changes of life and values in his commencement message: "PDQ — Personal Dedication, Discipline and Quality of Life." The August commencement address was delivered to 120 BSC seniors and 107 graduate students in Haas Auditorium.

Dr. James V. Mitchell, vice president for Academic Affairs, presented the degree candidates, and President James H. McCormick conferred the degrees. Richard K. Walton, vice chairperson of the Board of Trustees, awarded the degrees.

Each of the schools was represented by its respective dean: G. Alfred Forsyth, arts and sciences; Emory W. Rarig, Jr., business; C. Stuart Edwards, professional studies; Charles H. Carlson, graduate studies; Dr. Richard O. Wolfe, extended programs

Dr. Forsyth, who began his new position the week of graduation, was given a special welcoming by Dr. Mitchell.

President of the senior class, Corey Waters, offered student remarks following the degree ceremony.

Daley, a summa cum laude graduate of Ohio State University, stated he was of the opinion that basic values stay the same, that one needs to re-examine his or her values for application in today's world.

"Personal dedication and dedication to your job is of the upmost importance in becoming a success to yourself and those around you," he said. "However, it is also important not to become a workaholic, as a quality life in proper balance, increases one's chances of a successful life."

A graduate of the American Institute of Baking in Chicago, he received his college degree late in his professional career after entering the work world at an early age. After joining Borden, Inc. in 1958, he progressively held a line of administrative positions with a number of snack affiliates in that organization. He was a director of the Potato Chip/Snack Food Association, president of American Society of Baking Engineers and Chairman of the American Bakers Association. Since 1974 he has served as president of Wise/Old London Foods.

President McCormick, in his welcoming address, told the graduates that Bloomsburg had undergone significant, positive change in the last four years, and BSC is the second largest educational institution in central and northeastern Pennsylvania. McCormick added, "We sincerely hope your education here has made a difference in your life, that your education has been an investment in you as a thinking, understanding, concerned and productive member of society."

Dr. McCormick recognized Board of Trustee members Joseph Nespoli and President Emeriti Dr. Harvey A. Andruss. Dr. Alfred Tonolo served as presiding officer. Clayton Hinkle, senior member of the faculty, was commencement officer. Others participating in the ceremony included Father Thomas Langan, who gave the Invocation and benediction; Jon Shaffer, student conductor for the National Anthem; Gwen McConlogue, student soloist; Cryder Bankes ff, organist.

Eugene Fuhrman, Mifflintown, was sworn in as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army by Lt. Colonel John Wilson in a special ceremony in Dr. McCormick's officer before commencement exercises.

Following commencement a reception was held in Kehr Union

Your voice is needed!

The Pennsylvania Legislature has not passed a capital budget in the last six years. It is the capital budget that permits state institutions to build needed buildings and make major repairs to existing facilities through the sale of long term bonds.

Recently a proposed capital budget, House Bill 2632, was reported out of committee and will be considered by the legislature following the Labor Day recess. This proposed capital budget includes $10,641,000 for Bloomsburg State College for the construction of a classroom building (the Human Services Building) and major repairs to steam lines, electric utilities, alterations and renovations. It is important that you understand our needs and voice your support for the capital budget to your state representative and senator.

In 1970, the last year when a classroom building was completed, our enrollment was 3561. Today there are 6100 students enrolled and several new programs are offered which were not available eight years ago — masters degree programs, a degree program in nursing, etc. In order to accommodate the growth in enrollment and new offerings, a garage on Lightstreet Road and a building on Second Street have been rented and renovated. However, these temporary quarters do not provide laboratories and will not meet accreditation standards.

We need a new classroom building — one proposed in 1970 and known as the Human Services Building — plus badly needed repairs to existing buildings and utilities. Some of the alterations are mandated by law in order to accommodate the handicapped.

Please call or write your state representative and senator and ask them to support H.B. 2632. Tell them of your interest in Bloomsburg State College and that as an alumnus and/or parent you know the need for the Human Services Building and that you are aware of the serious deterioration of the utilities due to a lack of a capital budget. Let your voice be heard by those who can help — CALL OR WRITE TODAY. Your voice is needed!

NPR president speaks to May grads

Frank Mankiewicz, president of National Public Radio, was the guest speaker at commencement ceremonies held May 14 at the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds.

In drawing a comparison between the world today and ten years ago, Mankiewicz said, "Ten years ago today students were occupying the main buildings of Columbia University and the Sorbonne in Paris. General William Westmoreland was proclaiming a great victory in the Tet Offensive and Robert Kennedy four days after winning the primaries in Nebraska was preparing for California. He had 18 days left in his life."

Seven hundred thirty seniors and 53 graduate students received their baccalaureate and master degrees at the ceremony.

Mankiewicz cautioned the audience against believing that the violent behavior of the past was stumbled into unwittingly or that the U.S. is out of danger.

"There is a backlash apparent in the last few years, and an increasing response of meanness, mind and spirit," he warned, observing that the previous passionate commitment of the sixties has led to "a passionless uncommitted political environment in which the shrewd and the cunning, the operators and the manipulators are relatively free to go as they please."

Former press secretary to Senators Robert Kennedy and George McGovern, Mankiewicz has a reputation for being passionately committed to his profession and ideals.

He has been a practicing lawyer for the United Steel Workers, civil rights director for the Anti-Defamation League, and Peace Corps Regional Director in South America. He drew on all of his experience and observations through some of the most difficult years America has weathered to stress the importance of commitment.

"If this generation of young Americans does not recapture some of that sense of passion and commitment, it may be beyond the reach of the next one."

John E. Bakeless dies at age 83

John Edwin Bakeless, '13, of Seymour, Conn., a well-known writer, editor and distinguished BSC alumnus, died on August 8, 1978 at the age of 83 at Yale-New Haven Hospital, New Haven, Conn.

During his lengthy career, Bakeless served in many literary, academic and military capacities.

Born in Carlisle, Dec. 30, 1894, he was the son of the late Oscar H. and Sarah Harvey Bakeless. His father was an early driving force at the college and was well known throughout the area. BSC's Bakeless Center for the Humanities is named for the family.

Bakeless was a graduate of the preparatory department of the Normal School and attended until 1913. He received a bachelor's degree from Williams College in 1918; a master's degree from Harvard in 1920 and a Ph.D. from Harvard in 1936. From 1919-26 he did extensive post-graduate work.

He served in the Army in World War II, rising to the rank of colonel in 1945. In 1944, he was the assistant military attache to Turkey and was a representative of the American Section for Allied Control Commission for Bulgaria.

In 1953 he was awarded the Distinguished Service Award by the BSC Alumni Association.

In 1976, Bridgeport Engineering Institute presented him with an honorary doctorate in humanities.

He is survived by his wife, the former Katherine Little, '15.

Graveside services were scheduled for August 23 at Old Rosemont Cemetery, Bloomsburg.

More information will follow in the next issue about the life of John Bakeless, '13.

BSC's Action Plan a commitment

Dr. James V. Mitchell, Vice President for Academic Affairs, released a statement in June concerning Bloomsburg State College's five-year plan.

Mitchell described the Action Plan for 1978 — 1983 as both a plan and a commitment. The commitment is based on the Jeffersonian Ideal that education is the most critical determinant of the future success of democracy. "The ideal of high quality low-cost higher education for the people — regardless of economic circumstances — must receive our constant attention and nurturance."

"The cost of public higher education to the Pennsylvania student continues to rise while public and legislative support lags. Based on 1974 data, 39.5 percent of Pennsylvania high school students continue on to college, compared with 60.3 percent nationally — Pennsylvania ranks last of all the states in the percentage of high school graduates going on to college. Appropriations for public higher education for 1977-78 in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, per $1,000 of personal income, places us 44th of the 50 states of the Union."

Mitchell stressed the necessity of state-funded support, "We can 'plan,' but whether it is an 'action' plan or not depends upon the fiscal support given to us by the people of the Commonwealth."

"One of the principal assumptions of the academic plan is that the college will have a relatively stable, perhaps even a slightly decreasing enrollment, and that we shall make a steadfast effort to prevent the enrollment from increasing if that tendency should occur."

The plan will emphasize the following:

1. Evaluation of all academic programs as a continuing process;
2. A never-ending quest for improvement in the quality of our academic programs;
3. A strong effort to improve and extend our services to the public;
4. Continued attention to the development of a selected number of new academic programs that will best meet the needs of the future."

Mitchell further explained, "Our efforts in evaluation should receive strong impetus from our preparation for visits by accreditation teams from the Middle States Association and the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education. Each of these accrediting agencies requires intensive self-study resulting in a self-report which serves as the basis for the accreditation visit."

All departments and schools would also become involved in this self-study intended to raise evaluation-consciousness and emphasize evaluation as an academic way of life. This self-study movement would further encourage the already strong motivation within the BSC faculty to pay constant attention to quality.

"Our efforts to provide further services to the public are rapidly taking form. We look forward to the further development of programs of 'lifelong learning' for age groups other than the 18 to 22 year olds who traditionally predominate on the nation's campuses, and we already have some programs in mind.

"The 'Center for Experimental Learning' described in the Five-Year Action Plan is a recently mounted effort to develop a program to assess the experiential learning of mature adults to determine whether that learning should receive academic credit. We are also developing our thoughts about some mechanism for monitoring and identifying the needs of the public for services that the college is in a unique position to provide, and for getting those services to the public in the form it can best utilize."

"The Action Plan includes a statement of priorities by the Council of Academic Deans. Highest priority existing programs include the health science areas, business, the reading program, and lifelong learning. Highest priority new programs include geology, special education, multicultural education, and the Center for Experimental Learning. Suffice it to say that these all meet the severest tests.

"If one could devise a formula which might best define how Bloomsburg State College will use its Five-Year Action Plan to chart its future, the formula would read something like this:

Emphasis on evaluation as a continuing process;

A commitment to quality and the continuous improvement of our programs;

An increased effort to provide services to the public;

Carefully selected new programs that meet the test of individual and societal needs;

The continuous planning effort that has always characterized BSC;

A BSC ready for the future. Needless to say, we believe that we are ready for that future."

'Down Under' lands surprising

By KATHARINE LEEDOM BOKUM
Class of 1939

It was a dream come true for Bob and me as we flew across the Pacific, bound for Auckland, New Zealand, and points beyond. The month was January, (1978), summertime for the folks "down under." Total population is only a little over three million, but they make up for it with sheep — 53 million of them!

Touring the North and South Islands of New Zealand by plane and bus for ten days convinced us that the country is truly unique. While other countries may have higher mountains, taller waterfalls, larger volcanoes, bigger thermal areas or more extensive limestone caves, New Zealand has them all and can thus lay claim to having the most varied natural scenery in the world.

Highlights of the North Island were the famous Waitomo Glow Worm Caves, the thermal area of Rotorua, the odd-looking nocturnal Kiwi bird who lays an egg almost as big as she is, and the graceful and charming Maori dancers. We attended a Maori concert which ended with everyone joining in singing the traditional "Now is the Hour."

Leaving the North Island we flew to Christchurch, "the most English city outside England." By bus we passed by the lakes and mountains of the Southern Alps and continued down the East coast of the South Island. Most impressive, at the close of the day, was standing on the shore of Land's End Bluff at Invercargill, the southernmost city of New Zealand. Here, where the signs gave the distance to the United States and other countries, we found we were three times closer to the South Pole than we were to New York City.

A long bus ride over narrow mountainous roads brought us to Milford Sound on the West coast and the only portion of fiords accessible by car. Since this area has 250 inches of rainfall a year, a tourist who strikes a sunny day would be most fortunate. We weren't, but the clouds lifted enough for us to see the sharply rising peaks.

We continued up the West coast, through Queenstown and the Franz Joseph Glacier, returning to Christchurch, where we took off for Australia, flying across the Tasman Sea.

Our tour of Australia took us to the four major eastern cities: Sydney, Melbourne, Canberra and Brisbane. Sydney, the oldest city, is progressive, warm and welcoming, surrounded by one of the most beautiful harbors in the world. There in the harbor is the Opera House, an architectural gem. If we hadn't seen anything else in Sydney, visiting the Opera House would have made the trip worthwhile.

Canberra, Australia's national capital, is a fairly new city. The design of the city formed the subject of a world-wide competition in 1911, which was won by the late Walter Burley Griffin, a Chicago architect. Griffin's plan was for a city of 75,000, but already the population is 200,000.

We thought New Zealand had a lot of sheep, but Australia has three times as many, with 173 million! We spent a day visiting a sheep station, seeing a demonstration of sheepherding and sheep shearing. A visit to Lone Pine Sanctuary gave us a chance to feed and walk among koala bears, kangaroos and emus. The real koalas are even cuter than those you see in the Qantas ad on TV.

We said farewell to Australia and six hours later were in Nadi, Fiji. Our hotel, the Regent of Fiji, was luxurious in relaxing Polynesian style. As we toured the town we realized the community is made up of British, Indian, Chinese and native Fijians. At a small museum we were invited to participate in a typical Fijian welcoming ceremony.

The grand finale to our trip was a relaxing two days in Tahiti, on the romantic island of Moorea — a perfect place to unwind. The Hotel Aimeo was small, but in an ideal setting on Cook's Bay. Hotel "rooms" were double cottages on pilings out over the water. Ours, however, was a single one, which they called "the honeymoon cottage."

We did our best to live up to the title, relaxing and enjoying the gorgeous scenery. It is said that here in the small village of Pao Pao Michener got his idea of "Bali Hai."

All too soon we were back again in the small planes for the short flight over the barrier reef to Papeete where we boarded our Pan Am 747 for Los Angeles, then to Arizona and home.

We had covered 22,000 miles in three weeks. We agree, however, that this was no ordinary travel junket, but a memorable and meaningful adventure which will bring back pleasant memories of "faraway places with strange-sounding names" and many friendly peoples.

College trustees make appointments

The following appointments were approved at the regular meeting of the BSC Board of Trustees held in June.

Dr. Alfred Forsyth, a professor of psychology at the University of New Hampshire, as Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, replaces Dr. Edson Drake who has been granted a leave of absence for the 1978-79 academic year. Upon completion of his leave, Dr. Drake will return to full-time teaching in the Department of History at his own request.

G. ALFRED FORSYTH
Dean of Arts & Sciences

Dr. Forsyth was selected by a search and screen committee from over 140 applicants and recommended to the Board by Academic Vice President James V. Mitchell. He earned his B.A. degree at Dickinson College, his M.S. degree at North Carolina State University, and Doctor of Philosophy degree at Purdue University. All of his degree majors were in psychology.

He has served on the University of New Hampshire faculty since 1967. Last summer he was a visiting associate professor at the University of Victoria, British Columbia, where he served in a similar capacity from 1972 to 1973. Three years ago he was a visiting faculty research associate at the Institute for the Study of Intellectual Behavior, University of Colorado.

Dr. Hugh J. McFadden, named acting Director of Institutional Research in 1977, acquired full directorship in May, 1978. He was awarded both his B.S. and M.S. degrees at West Chester State College and on May 28, 1978 received his doctorate in Educational Administration from Lehigh University. His dissertation was entitled "Strategies for Enhancing the Use of Computers in Instruction at the University Level."

Dr. McFadden joined the staff as an Educational Systems Specialist in 1976. He has served on many committees related to his position, including Academic Computing Committee, Curricular Coding Committee, and Committee on the Use of Human Subjects in Research.

Prior to coming to BSC, the Bryn Mawr native was Educational Coordinator for Computer Services at Lehigh University. His predecessor at BSC, Dr. Merritt Sanders, retired in January, 1978 following a lengthy illness.

Thomas M. Lyons, assistant director of financial aid since 1976, has been appointed temporary director of financial aid, replacing Director Robert Duncan, whose retirement effective this summer was announced at an earlier board meeting.

Lyons graduated from Susquehanna University with a Bachelor of Science degree in marketing and management. He then attended Indiana University of Pennsylvania where he earned a Master of Arts degree in student personnel services.

Joseph P. Metro, Director of Physical Plant at the Bloomsburg School District for the past three years, has been appointed Assistant Director of Physical Plant. He fills the position formerly held by Maynard Brown, who retired earlier this year.

Metro, who will be working directly with Charles Robbins, director of physical plant brings a broad experience in institutional maintenance to BSC. He is a 1966 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy where he received a B.S. degree in electrical and mechanical engineering and is currently enrolled in the Master of Business Administration program at BSC.

While with the Bloomsburg School District, Metro managed all areas of plant operation including supervision of all maintenance, groundkeeping, and custodial employees. He was responsible for designing and the administration of all energy conservation programs in the district's buildings, was involved in recent extensive renovation projects and was responsible for budget formulation and management in his area.

He was previously employed as a maintenance engineer with the International Salt Company at Watkins Glen, N.Y. for two years and with the Corning Glass Works in Corning, N.Y. for a short time.

Following his graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy, he served as a Lieutenant/pilot with the U.S. Navy at Quonset Point, R.I.

Calling all BSC snowbirds!

All BSC Snowbirds going to Florida this winter are asked to forward their winter addresses to the Alumni Office as soon as they are known. A BSC Alumni get-together is planned for the East Coast area in early February. In order for the Alumni Office to send you information about the date, place and time of the meeting, we will need your Florida address.

Francis "Red" Garrity, '28, has volunteered to handle the details of the meeting. We are hoping for other volunteers who will assist in organizing meetings in the Tampa and Orlando areas. Any volunteers?

Again, send your Florida address to the Alumni Office and mark your calendar for a February meeting with Bloomsburg friends. Permanent residents of Florida will receive the invitation without writing to the Alumni Office. More information on the Florida meeting will be published in the December issue of the Quarterly.

'Dam Faculty' answers

Tenures, promotions

Thirteen faculty members were granted tenure and sixteen others were promoted in personnel actions approved by the BSC Board of Trustees. Faculty members become eligible for tenure upon the completion of three years of service.

The board also approved the applications of fifteen faculty members for sabbatical leaves to be taken during the 1979-80 academic year. Faculty members become eligible for a sabbatical leave upon the completion of seven years service.

Tenure was granted to Wayne P. Anderson, Duane D. Braun, Gary F. Clark, Paul C. Cochrane, Judith P. Downing, Susan J. Hibbs, Frederick C. Hill, Kenneth P. Hunt, Robert J. Kruse, Richard E. McClellan, Rajesh K. Mohindru, Lauretta Pierce and Robert N. Watts, Jr.

Sabbatical leaves were approved for Dr. Harold J. Bailey, professor of mathematics; Dr. Ujagar S. Bawa, professor of economics; John H. Couch, assistant professor of music; Dr. JoAnne S. Growney, professor of mathematics;

Dr. Melville Hopkins, professor and chairman, department of speech communication and theatre arts; Dr. L. Richard Larcom, associate professor of psychology; Dr. Lawrence L. Mack, associate professor of chemistry; Thomas R. Manley, professor of biological sciences;

Dr. John M. McLaughlin, Jr., professor of special education; Joseph E. Mueller, associate professor of mathematics; Dr. Allen F. Murphy, professor and chairman, department of foreign languages; Hitoshi Sato, assistant professor of speech communication and theatre arts;

Dr. David A. Superdock, professor and chairman, department of physics; John J. Trathen, assistant professor administrator serving as assistant director of student activities and the college union; and Dr. Norman E. White, professor of chemistry.

The following faculty members were promoted to associate professors:

Wayne P. Anderson, chemistry; Christopher Armstrong, sociology and social welfare; Gary F. Clark, art; Steven L. Cohen, psychology; John H. Couch, music; Francis J. Gallagher, business administration;

Mark A. Hornberger, geography and earth science; Robert B. Koslosky, art; David J. Minderhout, philosophy/anthropology; Rajesh K. Mohindru, economics; Constance J. Schick, psychology; Patricia Weigel, library; Stephen G. Wukovitz, physics.

The following faculty members were promoted to professors: William S. O'Bruba, elementary and early childhood education; Richard J. Stanislaw, music; June L. Trudnak, mathematics.

New faculty and staff members appointed included: Ruth Anne Bond, Bloomsburg, instructor in the office of admissions and the center for academic development serving in the capacity of recruitment and orientation specialist; Alan D. Carey, of Odessa, Texas, professor of business administration; Daniel S. Dessel, of Bethesda, Maryland, temporary instructor of speech communication and theatre arts; Earl A. Gehrig, Bloomsburg, temporary assistant professor of business administration;

James C. Kincaid, of Durham, N.C., associate professor of business education; David Koran, Walnutport, temporary assistant professor of chemistry; Nancy K. Nally, Wapwallopen, temporary assistant professor of nursing; Roland J. Romberger, instructor of business education; William M. Young, Williamstown, Mass., professor of business administration;

Mariou W. Zeller, Bridgeport, W. Va., temporary instructor serving in the capacity of assistant catalog librarian; Judith L. Lanfrey, Newtown, assistant professor of reading on a 25 percent basis; and Bernard J. Vinovski, of Courtland, state college and university administrator II serving in the capacity of assistant director of admissions.

Help! Before you go, let us know!

Help us to be more efficient! Following each mailing of "The Alumni Quarterly," we are swamped with returned mail at the cost of 25 cents per newspaper.

When you move, not only do you miss an issue, we often miss you for years because the returned mail is marked "Forwarding Order Expired."

In order for the Alumni Directory to be a success, prompt updating of addresses is crucial. So, before you go, let us know!

Music Prep program offered

The Office of Extended Programs in conjunction with the Department of Music at Bloomsburg State College offers to the community a Preparatory Program in Music beginning in September, 1978. This program will include private lessons in voice, beginning guitar, and all the individual band and orchestra instruments. These lessons are meant to supplement and not to replace the typical class lesson offered in the public schools.

Teachers in the program are all qualified experts in the particular specialty they teach. Ralph Wolfgang serves as coordinator for this program for the college.

Weekly 30-minute lessons are scheduled Monday through Saturday in Haas Center for the Arts at Bloomsburg State College. The lesson fee is $5 per lesson payable four weeks in advance (four weeks — $20). Lessons will be offered from September through May. Up to two lessons in each four week period can be made up at a mutually convenient time in the event a student is unable to attend the lesson due to illness.

For further information contact Ralph Wolfgang, Preparatory Program in Music, Department of Music, BSC, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

Dr. Roberts named to state visual arts panel

Dr. Percival R. Roberts III has been named to the visual arts panel of the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts by Hiram R. Hershey, Council chairman.

The Pennsylvania Council on the Arts awards matching grants to nonprofit organizations in Pennsylvania which provide programs in community arts, crafts, media arts, theater, literature, dance, music, and visual arts fields.

BSC speakers for free

BSC now provides a community service program offering the engagement of public speakers free of charge (with the exception of traveling costs) to any public service group, school, or school organization. Groups are asked to notify the speaker three weeks in advance of the program date.

A wide variety of topics is available under the general headings of the Arts, Business, BSC Programs and Student Life, Current Events, Education, Employment Opportunities, Hobbies, Human Sexuality, Military Science, Philosophy and Religion, Professional Studies, Sciences and Disciplines, Sports, the Supernatural, Travel Experience, and Workshops.

The speakers and their topics are listed in a booklet entitled "Speakers Resource Manual." For further information, contact the Office of Student Activities.

V-12 unit holds 35th reunion

The V-12 Unit held their 35th reunion on the BSC campus on July 8, 1978. The unit is composed of men who were line officers stationed on the BSC campus during World War II.

This year George Brandon, Pittsburgh and Walter Huhn, Cleveland, chaired the reunion. Cotton "Chief" Franklin, Dallas, Tex., who was the military training officer, said the V-12 Unit will continue having reunions until there are no members left.

The reunions are held every five years.

Former BSTC librarian dies

Pearl Mason Keller, former head librarian at BSTC, died at a community hospital in Adams, Mass. on July 16, 1978.

Born in Pittsfield, Mass. she received her early education in Adams and earned a B.S. in library science from Simmons College, Boston. Following graduation, she held positions in the public libraries of Leominster and Athol, Mass.

In September 1922 she came to Bloomsburg and became faculty advisor to the Young Women's Christian Association and the Mu Phi Sigma Sorority. She was manager of the BSC Double Quartettes with whose assistance she promoted a new type of library extension service to rural schools in Columbia County.

She left BSTC in 1945 and went to Northfield Seminary, Mass. She married Armond Keller, '30.

Mrs. Keller was active in the community of Adams and once served as regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

In 1976 she was invited to Alumni Day activities for the 50th Reunion of the Class of 1926 who had dedicated the 1926 Obiter to her. Unfortunately, she declined to attend due to the failing health of her husband and herself. She was preceded in death by her husband.

'Do-it-yourself-er': Rev. Krapf, '32

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is taken from a feature article by Susan Brook as it appeared in The Morning Press. Photos by Bill Hughes.)

His is a busy life full of meetings and activity — and sometimes much responsibility — so if, at 70, Oliver Krapf's doctor persuades him that it's time for his church to let him retire, who's to quarrel?

But retirement — he's still available to fill pulpits when he's needed from time to time — isn't going to be very inactive for the cordial man who is a director of seven organizations and the model of the "do-it-yourself-er."

Aside from the life of ministry, which most recently brought him to shut-ins as Minister of Visitation at the Wesley United Methodist Church in Bloomsburg, the Rev. Oliver Krapf, '32, has a whole line-up of hobbies which enrich his life and the life of those around him.

"My real hobby is oil painting. Since I retired I've given away more than 400," he said during a recent interview. (A guest may be offered his choice of one of several just-finished landscapes.) He finds painting is enjoyable and good for him, for he was told by his doctor to keep his hands busy. Self-taught, he says, "I paint as I see it."

A big impetus to his painting was the job at Wesley Church, which he took after retiring from the full time ministry. "I was visiting shut-ins and so I wanted to have something I could give them," he said. At times he paints special requests for friends, too.

Another major interest the Rev. Krapf has pursued for relaxation is carpentry, and his neat one story home is all hand-crafted and of independent design.

"I suppose I might have had a better design if I'd known what I wanted to start with," he said. But the house has grown and developed as it was needed, sometimes with a boost from guests who made suggestions.

It began as a summer home, just a one room cottage where the Krapfs spent vacations with their three children. They began building in 1949. After adding a closed-in porch they winterized the home when it came time to retire from his last pastorate, at Clearfield, Pa.

Rev. Krapf made changes as they seemed appropriate. His sister, who came on a visit, suggested that a few more bedrooms would make the family more comfortable. A friend who couldn't read too well in the living room thought the light of another window in the corner was needed. So Rev. Krapf complied.

Now that his doctor has recommended a reducing diet and continued physical activity Rev. Krapf quips that he's "taking the bay window off the front" and adding it to the back of his house. A new window and storage space are indeed underway at the rear of his home.

Fortunate to be blessed with a character that is willing to try new things, and with the enjoyment of doing them on his own, he's found that all he needs is a book and the raw materials and he's off and running. That's the way it was with wiring, carpentry and plumbing.

And that's the way it went when, recently, he decided to learn how to sew. "I began with a jacket because I figured that was the hardest," he said with a twinkle in his eye. "I just tried to stumble through."

He's now produced several jackets and a suit for himself. "He does all the buttons and hems for us around here," reports his wife, Vera.

On family occasions, Vera Krapf is surrounded by ministers. The couple's son, Byron, is a Methodist minister who, like his father, served the Calvary Methodist Church, Berwick, at one time. And youngest daughter, Joy, married a Methodist minister now serving in Windham, Ohio.

Over the years, Vera's become the family accountant, doing the couple's tax returns, and now she finds the children draft her to do theirs, since they do similar work.

Mrs. Krapf has been active as a church musician and with the youth of the churches they served, and said three persons in the family makes life "a lot of fun!"

Travelling has been a major joy to the Krapfs in their retirement. "I guess we've been to 20-some countries all together. We wanted to get to Africa, and nearest the desert, so we went to Marrakesh." They've been to the Middle East, Scandinavia, Russia, Israel, the Caribbean, Greece and Turkey, on two European trips, and a trip to Methodist sites in England. Last fall took them to Peru.

Best of all their travel experiences, though was their trip to Hawaii. For a sense of pleasure and relaxation, and the friendly atmosphere, it's the one place they'd most like to re-visit.

"They (Hawaiians) made us appreciate being American, because they are so proud of being one of the states," observed Mrs. Krapf.

The only tough part of traveling, they mentioned, is getting to the airport from the bus terminal on time without paying an exorbitant rate to New York's aggressive cab drivers. Now fully retired, they hope to be able to take some longer tours and to visit their children more often.

When they arrive at home, the Krapfs have been much in demand by area organizations to show their travel slides and talk about the countries they've seen. And Rev. Krapf is busy as director of Rotary, Torch Club, Red Cross, Home Health Services, the United Fund and the American Association of Retired Persons.

He is a director of the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association, too, and says he's delighted at the changes he's seen in the college since he was a student.

The couple's roots in Bloomsburg go deep, for they met and were engaged here. Rev. Krapf's father was a minister at the Church of the Nazarene when he was a boy, and he started high school at Bloomsburg, before moving to Lehigh.

He recalls working at the Hotel Magee as a dishwasher when he was in ninth grade (a 42-hour week for $5 a week). The school allowed him to work for two hours during the noon hour, and return for two more classes before going back to work until 8 p.m.

Time for studying was extremely limited. "I guess I have the gift of gab," he said, "somehow I got through."

It was a time older people will recall and young ones might think seriously about: when the opportunity to go to high school at all was considered a privilege. A former teacher, Mrs. Krapf commented that about a fourth of the students left school after eighth grade in the twenties.

Looking back, Rev. Krapf considers the hard work — summers pulling weeds for farmers, and later working on the railroad tracks — as a kind of investment. He finds it was a way of learning about the people he worked with, which was helpful to him as a minister. Today's educators might call it "work experience."

It was a time when working children gave their wages directly to their parents. Some was saved towards school clothing, and parents gave them back a small amount — in his case 50 cents — for spending money.

His father's small church paid little, and working was something the children took for granted. "I didn't know I was underprivileged at the time," he says with a laugh. Helping the family was a way of life — "we were not alone in that," he says.

He recalled spending his 50 cents a week on violin lessons, and that when his teacher complained that Oliver's violin sounded like a cigar box with strings, the boy asked to buy another from him on the installment plan. It was all right with the teacher, but payments were 50 cents a week. So, in one of those Catch-22 situations, his spending money went for the violin and the lessons had to be abandoned. (Nonetheless he reports he was able to continue in high school and college orchestras with what he'd already learned.)

All-Star cagers

Steve Bright, '78, and Al Williams of BSC's basketball team were named to the Pennsylvania Conference's Eastern Division all-star squads at the end of the spring season.

Bright was named to the first team, and Williams was named for second-team honors. Williams was the Huskies' leading scorer during the 1977-78 season and was ranked in the Top 50 in NCAA Division II. Others on the first team were Andrew Fields and Milton Colston of Division II national champion Cheney; Derrick Redd and Ed McTague of Kutztown; and John Whitmer of Shippensburg.

Williams heads the second team which includes Keith White, Shippensburg; Dwayne Dodwell, Mansfield; and Jeff Hutcherson and Roger Layseth, both of Cheney.

"I cannot understand how the Pennsylvania Conference can pick a first all-star team without naming Al Williams to the squad," remarked Coach Charles Chronister. "Al was one of the most explosive offensive players I've ever had at BSC and I feel it was an oversight to omit him from the first team.

"We had no control over the balloting since coaches were not permitted to vote for their own players."

Both Bright and Williams joined the BSC 1,000-point club during the recent campaign, when the Huskies posted a 14-10 record.

Concerning Bright's appointment to the first squad, Chronister added, "It's important to recognize a player who does so much for his team and plays a steady game."

Earlier Bright, a senior co-captain, was named to the College Division's Academic All-America team.

BSC's Carruthers at Oregon NCAA's

Jeff Carruthers, BSC's champion high jumper, was eliminated in the NCAA Division I national competition at the University of Oregon on June 1 when he failed to clear 6'11". Three other Division II representatives in the high jump also failed to clear that height.

Carruthers qualified for Division I competition after an impressive performance at the Division II NCAA national championships held the previous weekend at Western Illinois University. Although Carruthers and three others tied for the top height, 7' 1 1/4", he placed fourth due to previous misses.

Bloomington State finished 17th in the team standings with 12 points in Division II competition. Last year the Huskies were 18th with 10 points.

Carruthers placed second in the Division II competition last year, but coach Carl Hinkle indicated that the field had grown stronger.

Fourteen other Division I jumpers advanced in Oregon by jumping 6'11" and eventually only three cleared 7'1". Under NCAA rules the 14 qualifiers were scheduled to start again at 6'11".

Earlier this spring, Carruthers won the Pennsylvania Conference championship with a leap of 6' 10 1/2", a new conference mark. He placed seventh at the IC4A's in Philadelphia when he failed to clear 7'0", a height he has cleared three times this season. Hinkle commented, "Jeff has been competing against some of the best jumpers in the country and we're proud of his accomplishments. It certainly speaks well of both Bloomington and our conference." Carruthers, a Dean's List student, will be back next season for his senior year of competition.

Another BSC competitor, senior Steve Eachus, finished second in his heat and second in the finals of the 5,000 meter run in Division II competition. The first four runners in that event shattered the NCAA Division II record.

"Steve was the impetus in setting the record-breaking time," Coach Hinkle said. "He knew he didn't have a kick, so he ran faster and pulled the rest of the field up with him."

Eachus will represent American athletes in competition in Mexico, which is sponsored and financed by the NCAA. He will run the 5,000 meter event against Latin American competition.

Earlier this season Eachus was named the outstanding trackman while leading BSC's track team to a third-place finish in the annual Pennsylvania Conference. Eachus won the 5,000- and 10,000-meter races in PC competition.

Tennis team cited

Members of the women's BSC tennis team were cited on May 4 by the Columbia County Commissioners for winning the Pennsylvania Athletic Conference championship. The conference title is the first for any BSC team in either men's or women's sports since 1965.

The tennis team, coached by Mike Herbert, includes Joan Riffitts, team captain; Lorie Keating, Sherry Irwin, Mary McHugh, Sue Purnell, Linda Pinchot, and Donna Royer.

Coach Herbert commented on the first championship ever won by a women's team at Bloomington State College, "We are extremely proud of our women, who showed a lot of class in many ways throughout the tournament."

Annie Derr Vansant, '95, is deceased.

1897

Martha Brugler Creasy, '97, marked her 100th birthday on Dec. 8, 1977. A resident of Wesley Nursing Home, Saratoga Springs, N.Y., she and her husband, Harry, now deceased, moved to Saratoga Springs from Pennsylvania many years ago to be with their daughter, Harriette, vocational director at Skidmore College.

Mrs. Creasy taught in a number of schools in Pennsylvania and tutored children in the elementary grades after moving to New York.

After her daughter's death about 1950, she became a dedicated worker of the United Methodist Church. Active in the United Methodist Women, she belonged to the "Martha Circle" which was named after her.

She lived in her own home and did her own housework until August, 1975, when failing health required hospitalization and residency in a nursing home. She continued to make her keen observations on life, and though she has been in failing health the past year or two, she still surprises friends with her comments.

William Lams, '01, died July 6, 1978. In the last two issues of the Quarterly, his letters to Roger Fromm of the BSC library staff were printed. His scholarly letter concerning the book, "Thinking and Learning to Think" by Nathan C. Schaeffer, mentioned that Professor Noetling had collaborated on the book.

1905

Claire Scholvin, '05, and sisters Elizabeth Mertz Leshen, '05, and Mabel Mertz Dixon, '04, attended the 80th reunion of the Northumberland High School Alumni Association. Miss Scholvin resides at 552 Queen Street, Northumberland, Pa. 17857. Mrs. Leshen lives at Northumberland RD 1. Mrs. Dixon's address is RD 2 Box 477, Belle Meade, N.J. 08502.

W. Earle Browne, '05, is deceased.

Gertrude Rowe, '05, has died.

Claire Scholvin, '05, celebrated her 91st birthday in February and is looking forward to many more. Miss Scholvin is the star reporter for "The Quarterly" in the Northumberland-Sunbury Area. Recently she donated to the Alumni Archives her BSNS diploma and teaching certificate which were in perfect condition. They contain the signatures of many former professors and county superintendents. Both items will be framed and placed in the Archives.

We are happy to report that we have located Agnes Wallace Rees, '07. Apparently Mrs. Rees moved last fall and failed to notify us of her new address. Our mail to her has been returned since last September. Her new address is 2558 Third Street, Livermore, Calif. 94550.

1908

M. Evelyn Peck, '08, is deceased.

E. Mae Callender Wilson, '08, died Jan. 22, 1978. She had resided in Drums, Pa.

1909

Frederick E. Houck, '09, has passed away.

Mary Killgallon Rockefeller, '09, has died.

George F. Williams, '09, is deceased.

Jessie Doran, '12, a resident of Mountain Rest Nursing Home, died May 7, 1978. She was born in Daleville and taught in the Scranton public school system before retiring in 1955. She was a member of Daleville United Methodist Church.

Surviving are a brother, Frank; a sister, Grace Williams; and several nieces and nephews.

Mabel Shuman Luccarelli, '13, died in May, 1978. In the last issue of the Quarterly we printed one of her letters filled with fond memories of "Bloomsburg, wonderful old school." Although she resided in Sierra Madre, Calif., she never forgot her alma mater. She wrote, "Truly my Bloomsburg days were among the happiest of my life." Surely Bloomsburg State College has lost one of its most devoted alumni.

Malzie Phillips Barnett, '13, has died.

Elizabeth Robbins Bradford, '13, sent her regrets that she was not able to attend Alumni Day activities due to failing health. She celebrated her 87th birthday in January. For the past three years she has resided at Bridgeton Nursing Home, Manheim Avenue, Bridgeton, N.J. 08302.

Helen Keen Jones, '13, passed away on April 4, 1978.

Sister Bernard Marie (Helen M. Conlan), '13, has died.

Ruth Koehler Hayes, '15, died on May 8, 1978.

1917

Helen Gregory Lippert, '17, wrote to us in May as follows: "Last June I attended my 60th Reunion at Bloomsburg State College. I appreciated very much the bus service from the hotel. Also the courteous and helpful students who helped me and other members of my class, about the campus, dining room, etc."

"My husband and I 'run' a scholarship of our own, but am glad to contribute a small amount to that of the college."

The Lipperts live at 107 Church Street, Dalton, Pa. 18414

Edna Delly Blecker, '18, has died.

Dr. Ralph L. Hart, '18, a retired Philadelphia dentist, died May 16, 1977. He taught in the public schools of Luzerne County, Pa. before entering the University of Pennsylvania Dental School. He graduated in 1922 and practiced dentistry for nearly 55 years until his recent retirement.

Dr. Hart was a past president of the Pennsylvania Association of Dental Surgeons and the Philadelphia Academy of Stomatology. He was a Mason, a Shriner, a member of other professional groups and the Union League and Presbyterian Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Margaret Felder; a son, Ralph L., Jr.; and four grandchildren.

Florence Peckham Sampson, '18, is deceased.

Ella Butler Wallin, '18, died on April 8, 1978.

Veda Hess Lewis, '19, has passed away.

Ruth Fletcher Doyle Moore, '19, died May 9, 1978. She is survived by her husband John W. Moore.

Hurley D. Patterson, '19, passed away June 14, 1978. His widow, Leora, writes "He was delighted that Ralph Dreibeis received the Distinguished Service Award this past spring. Ralph was one of his best friends." The Pattersons would have celebrated their 58th wedding anniversary in July. Mrs. Patterson resides in Tucson, Ariz.

Jean C. Conner, '21 & '51, writes, "I was pleased to learn that the decision was made to preserve Carver Hall as a significant architectural, historical, and cultural link to the past. It was always there to greet you when you walked up 'Normal Hill.'"

"My mother's sister, my uncle, sister, brother-in-law, his sister, and last but I hope not least, myself, all graduated from 'Bloom.' So, you see, it does hold many fond memories."

Miss Conner resides at 333 South Arlington Avenue, Harrisburg, Pa. 17109

Ralph G. Shuman, '21, died on April 23, 1978.

Marion Hart Smith, '22, died on April 27, 1978 at St. Joseph Hospital, Hazleton, after a two month illness.

A retired school teacher, she was born in Black Creek Township. She taught in Black Creek, Lewisburg, and Lansdale schools.

She resided in Rock Glen 30 years and was a member of United Church of Christ, Conyngham, before moving to Bloomsburg. She is survived by her husband, the Rev. Perry L. Smith, two daughters, one son and one sister. The Smiths lived in Lewisburg from 1938 to 1949 when the Reverend Smith was pastor of St. John's United Church of Christ.

Mary Howell Dean, '23, died in November, 1975.

Madeline Foulk Denton, '23, reports her new address as 43 Skororat Street, Seymour, Ct. 06483

Olive Crawford Girton, '23, is deceased.

Elizabeth Hahn Rueppel, '23, has passed away.

Dr. Andruss honored

A reception for Dr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Andruss, President Emeritus of BSC, was held July 19, 1978, in the President's Lounge of the Marguerite W. Kehr College Union. During the reception, Dr. Andruss' photograph was officially displayed in the Lounge. Dr. Andruss came to Bloomsburg in 1930 to organize and head the department of business after which he became the dean of instruction. In 1939, he was selected to succeed Dr. Francis Haas as president of the college, a position he occupied for 30 years until his retirement in 1969.

Members of the 50 year reunion class stand to be counted at the luncheon. Sixty-seven attended the banquet Friday night.

Distinguished Service Award recipients of previous years stand to be recognized. They are Vera Houseknick '05 (left) and Dorothy Schmidt '29 & '34. Flora Stock '13, is seated.

He now resides at 1236 Kennedy Avenue, Grand Junction, Colo. 81501.

Dr. Howard E. DeMott, '35, botany specialist, is a co-winner of the 1978 Lindback Foundation Award for Outstanding Teaching.

A professor of biology at Susquehanna University, he received a check for $250 at commencement exercises May 20. The Lindback teaching award is presented each year by vote of a faculty committee.

DeMott has been a S.U. faculty member for 29 years. He is presently head of the biology department after serving many years as chairman of the division of natural sciences and mathematics and as faculty marshall.

He received a M.S. degree from Bucknell University and his Ph. D. from the University of Virginia.

He resides at 902 North Ninth Street, Selingsgrove, Pa. 17870.

Jack Wanich, '38, retired as Danville Area Senior High School principal on June 30.

"I've enjoyed working with young people and the staff and have gotten good cooperation from all of them," he said.

Wanich, 61, has been principal 15 years. He was first employed by the district in the fall of 1947 as a business education teacher.

While serving as a teacher, he was assistant football coach one year and coached baseball for three years. The past 10 years he has been a member of the PfAA's District Four committee.

Following graduation his first teaching assignment was in Harrisburg. He later taught in Manchester High School, York County, five years before entering the Navy in 1943 where he was discharged as a chief petty officer in 1946.

Later he attended the Pennsylvania State University and graduated from Bucknell University, Lewisburg, in 1950.

After 40 years of service in the Danville district, he plans to hunt, fish, and travel. He and his wife, Helen A., live at Danville RD 4.

They both received their master of education degrees from BSC in 1968. Their address is RD 3, Danville, Pa. 17821.

Helen Johnson Scammell, '41, was awarded the Pennsylvania Business Education Association's Educator of the Year Award at their annual conference held in Pittsburgh in April, 1978.

Mrs. Scammell has just completed requirements for a Supervisory Certificate through Bloomsburg State College's off-campus graduate program in Bucks County.

She earned her master's degree at Trenton State College and has been a teacher at Pennsbury High School, Fairless Hills, for the past ten years. Previously, she taught at Charles Boehm High School and Yardley High School.

Mrs. Scammell has developed and coordinates one of the finest work experience programs for business education in the Delaware Valley. She organized the first advisory council for business education for Pennsbury School District and serves as chairman. She also conducts annual follow-up studies of business graduates in order to improve and update methods, curriculum, and equipment. She has served as a member of Middle States Evaluation Committee and many other organizations.

She is the fourth graduate of BSC to receive the Educator of the Year Award. Previous recipients were Dr. William Selden, '43, Senior Program Specialist in Business Education, Department of Education, Harrisburg; Morgan Foote, '39, retired chairman of business education, Manheim Township High School, Neffsville; and Clayton Hinkel, '40, Alumni Association Secretary and senior member of the BSC faculty.

Other recipients were Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, BSC president emeritus; and Walter S. Rygiel, professor emeritus.

Third year win

For the third year, the Class of 1972 won a pennant for the greatest number of members contributing to the Alumni Fund Drive. This year the class also won a pennant for the most dollars contributed. The Class of 1942 won the percentage pennant. Class Representative Jacquie Feddock '72 and Helen Klingerman McCracken '42, are shown.

Frank Stuart Straub, '42, was recently awarded the Silver Beaver Award, the highest honor in Boy Scouting.

After graduation Straub attended the Wisconsin School of Banking. Later he entered the U. S. Air Force and served in the European Theatre as a bomber pilot where he completed 50 missions. Upon his discharge in 1945, he was employed as a bank teller at the First National Bank of Berwick, Pa. In 1957 he became assistant cashier and eleven years later advanced to bank president.

He is a member of the Columbia-Montour Executive Board of Boy Scouts of America and has served the First Presbyterian Scout Troop No. 10 as an institutional representative, member of the committee, and committee chairman over the past 28 years.

CURTIS R. ENGLISH '56

Curtis R. English, '56, was recently promoted to the rank of captain in the United States Navy. Captain English is the executive assistant to Vice Admiral Pierre N. Charbonnet Jr., USN, Chief of Naval Reserve, headquartered in New Orleans.

Are you here?

At press time the committee on photo identification discovered several errors in the identification of classmates in the 50th reunion picture. To avoid embarrassment to anyone, it was decided to ask each person in the picture to send a post card to the Alumni Office giving his/her name and position in the picture. Example: John Jones, front row, third person from left. All identifications will be given in the next issue.

Following graduation from BSC, Capt. English earned his master of arts degree in public administration from the University of Oklahoma. He has also completed Naval Air Intelligence, Navy Department Planning and Management, and Navy Systems Analysis Schools.

Capt. English has served in two naval aviation squadrons and completed tours of duty in the Bureau of Naval Personnel and on the Systems Analysis Staff of the Chief of Naval Operations. He served on the Headquarters Staff of the Naval Education and Training Command as head of the Management Division and then as executive assistant to the Chief of Naval Education and Training, Pensacola, Fla.

He has also served in the Office of the Director of Naval Reserve as head of the Non-Tactical, Mobilization and Support Branch. Before being named executive assistant to the Chief of Naval Reserve, he headed the Manpower and Funding Plans Section of the Chief of Naval Reserve headquarters in New Orleans.

The captain is active in the Methodist Church and as an adult leader in the Boy Scouts of America. He is a member of Dietrick Lamade Lodge Number 755, Free and Accepted Masons and the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite, Valley of Williamsport, Pa.

Capt. English and his wife, Janet, formerly of Birdsboro, Pa., have three sons, Curtis III, Gary and Scott.

Shirley McHenry Guy, '69, and her husband, Terry, have two children, Heather Noel, born December 29, 1974, and Robert Hiram, born November 17, 1977. They live at Meadowmere, Rt. 1, Greenwood, Mo. 64034.

Dur computer mailing has revealed an interesting set of Pios. Janice R. Pios, '69, is Mrs. Henry John Camin II, but Janice Foux Pios, '71, is Mrs. Gene E. Pios. That would make Janice Pios Camin, '69, the sister-in-law to Janice Pios, '71. Still confused?

Well, Janice Camin and husband Henry are parents of a new son, Henry John, who was born October 6, 1977. They live at 7101 Chinaberry Road, Dallas, Tx. 75236.

Now, Janice Pios, '71, and husband, Gene, are parents of two children, a son, Timothy Gene, born in 1974, and daughter, Tara Kristen, born Oct. 23, 1977. Their address is 27 Orchard Hills Drive, Spencerport, N.Y. 14559. (Hope we have this correct, Janice!)

Frank S. Straub Jr., '69, son of F. Stuart Straub, '42, is a representative of the Endo Drug Company. His address is Box 5D, RD 1, Perkiomenville, Pa. 18074.

Rebekah J. Ward, '69, married Henry W. Mitchell in July, 1978. Rebekah is a teacher in the Milton School District, and her husband, a graduate of the University of Toledo School of Law, is an attorney for Lyscoming County. They reside at 700 Matlack Avenue, Lewisburg, Pa. 17837.

Susan Zimmerman Sallade, '69, writes, "After graduation I spent part of the summer touring seven European countries I then began my first teaching assignment in Downingtown, Pa., at the sixth grade level. In April, 1971, I married Donald Sallade, a graduate of Iowa State University. In July, 1972, we moved to Des Moines, Iowa; Don went to the University of Iowa and received an MSW while I taught in Des Moines and attended Drake University.

"In January 1974, we moved to East Dubuque, Ill. (where we are presently living); Don began a career in social work and I taught for two years in a parochial school in Dubuque at the junior high level.

"In August, 1976, I received an M. Ed. in English from Loras College in Dubuque and began teaching English at the high school level (which I enjoy very much).

"Currently, Don is employed as a school social worker in the northwestern Illinois region and I am teaching in Cascade High School in the largest geographic district in Iowa. We are building a home in Dubuque and plan to finish it ourselves during this summer vacation."

JAMES L. SMITH '70

James L. Smith, '70, died Nov. 15, 1977 after a year's battle with lymphoma-leukemia. He taught English for six years at Hillcrest Junior High in Springfield Township and then spent one year at Enfield where he had completed his student teaching.

His mother writes, "His school collected $1,500 for him and the students recently presented a plaque to the school in his memory at a special assembly. They are thinking of a scholarship for Springfield High School in his memory."

A special editorial, written by one of his former students, appeared in the school newspaper: "If (a student) is lucky, he meets a (teacher) who is dedicated to his pupils and makes a lasting impression on everyone he meets. He not only teaches the subject he is trained in, but he teaches his students a little bit about life. Those of us who were students of Mr. James Smith were fortunate enough to know this special sort of teacher."

The editorial went on to describe him as "a story-teller, a joker" whose classroom motto was "Friendly, Firm and Fair."

Eugene E. and Ellen Coolbaugh Clough, '70, were selected as participants in the New Jersey Department of Education Teacher Mini-Grant program, a program which encourages public school teachers to create new programs which will be successful with students and also meet thorough and efficient requirements of providing the student needs.

Eugene, a fifth-grade teacher at Oxford Township Consolidated School, writes, "My wife, Ellen (a teacher in Washington Borough Memorial School), received a mini-grant for $920 for a math mini-computer called the Classmate 88 manufactured by the Monroe Company. Her program is designed for accelerated third grade math students."

"I was fortunate enough to receive two grants for a total of $1,587. The one grant was for $920 for the same mini-computer, but for use with advanced, average and remedial fifth grade students. The second grant was for $667 for kits in the area of the environment. We are trying to find solutions to problems in solid waste management, air pollution, thermal water pollution, and marine and seashore pollution."

The Monroe Classmate 88 is a mini-computer which can be programmed to just about any math skill or concept. Eugene uses it with all his students to reinforce whatever math skills they need to practice, based upon the results of a pre-test.

When individual students are finished with their assignments, they take another test on which they must score 100 percent before they can move on to a new program and skill. If they do show mastery, Clough teaches the next skill and they go to the machine for reinforcement activities.

"If they don't, then it's back to the computer," he adds. "The kids are highly motivated. I was a little skeptical at first because of the big claims made by the company, but the kids really love it and achievement is possible. They want to work at the machine."

Eugene's second mini-grant is for a program called "Priority One: the Environment" which aims at involving students in solving pollution problems. It is very pertinent for the students, since Oxford is participating in a regional sewerage project that was scheduled to begin this past spring.

The Cloughs reside at 79 McDonald Street, Washington, N.J. 07882.

Gilbert L. Longwell Jr., '70, was recently named Public Relations Director by the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors. The Association serves local government officials in Pennsylvania's 1458 townships of the second class. Longwell will travel extensively throughout the Commonwealth meeting with township supervisors.

Longwell previously served five years with the Franklin County Planning Commission and one year with a township in Franklin County as Community Development Director.

He resides with his wife, Joyce, and daughter, Laura, in St. Thomas, Pa.

Lois Anne Lufkin, '70, reports that she is now living in Pennsylvania after five years in Tulsa, Okla. She is currently employed in the Personnel Department of Strawbridge and Clothier in Philadelphia. Lois' address is 1829 Clayton Road, Abington, Pa. 19001.

William and Julie Yerger, '70 & '73, report their new address: 637 Meadow Drive, Macomb, Ill. 61455. Bill has accepted an elementary principalship in Macomb and will soon receive his doctorate in reading from Lehigh University. Julie, who taught at Bloomsburg Middle School for the past five years, will be substitute teaching upon arrival at Macomb.

Virginia Wildsmith Treon, '71, is employed by the Shikellamy School District. She and her husband, Barry, live at 254 Orange Street, Northumberland, Pa. 17857.

Joseph Bottiglieri, '71, has been selected as the new Mounties head football coach at Mansfield State College where he will also serve as an admissions counselor.

A former standout at BSC, Bottiglieri comes to Mansfield from Lafayette College, where he served as an assistant coach since 1973. A member of the American Football Coaches Association of America, he was a team captain while playing at Bloomsburg in the late 1960's, where he earned All-Pennsylvania Conference honorable mention distinction. He also received Bloomsburg's Lifetime Athletic Award for earning three varsity letters.

He received his M.S. in Physical Education from Indiana State University in Terre Haute, Ind. Prior to his service at Lafayette, Bottiglieri served as an assistant at Wyomissing Area High School and at Schulte High School in Terre Haute.

A defensive and lineplay specialist, Bottiglieri has been Lafayette's defensive coordinator for the past four years. He was also in charge of the weight training program and scouting duties. He succeeds Bernie Sabol who resigned as head football coach last fall.

Snowbirds flock to Florida

Plans have been completed for two meetings of alumni and their friends in Florida during the month of February. With the 236 alumni who are Florida residents and the hundreds of visitors from the North, we anticipate a good turn-out at each meeting. Mark your calendar now for one or both of these meetings and forward your temporary winter address to the Alumni Office in order to receive final instructions in January.

The first meeting is scheduled for Feb. 7 at the Lido Beach Holiday Inn, Sarasota, with a social hour and cash bar at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m. Prime rib will be served at a cost of $11 per person including tax and gratuity. Arrangements are being made by Gary Bogart, '77, and a committee of local alumni. Final details and a reservation card will be mailed in early January to all permanent residents and snowbirds whose addresses have been sent to the Alumni Office. Overnight reservations may be made with Holiday Inn: phone 813-388-3941.

The second meeting is planned for the southern Florida group (south of a line from Vero Beach to Punta Gorda) but everyone is welcome to either gathering. This second get-together will be in the beautiful Boca Del Mar Club in Boca Raton on the eve of Valentine's Day, Tuesday, Feb. 13.

Francis "Red" Garrity, '28, is chairman of a committee of 14 making the arrangements. Red is a member of the club and has secured the facilities for the alumni's exclusive use. There will be a social hour with cash bar at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. The menu will include roast beef and all the trimmings at $11 per person including tax and gratuity.

The committee is planning to include movies of "In Days of Yore," group singing and "where are they now?" In case you do not receive a reservation form in January, call Gary or Red and have them count you in on the party. Call Gary at (813) 748-1900 (work) or (813) 756-9261 (home). Red's phone is (305) 391-0845. For visitors to the Gold Coast who wish to spend some time sight-seeing, Red has offered to assist in making motel reservations. Call him at the above number for information and help. Hope to see you and your friends on Feb. 7 and Feb. 13.

Edwards to retire

Dr. C. Stuart Edwards, dean of the School of Professional Studies, will retire on June 29, 1979.

Dean Edwards joined the BSC faculty in 1958 as the first director of admissions and placement. Four years later, he relinquished his placement responsibilities to become director of secondary education, along with his admission duties. The increased enrollment of the college and the growth in the secondary education division made it necessary for a director of admissions to be appointed in 1965.

From then until September 1970, Edwards concentrated his efforts in the role of director of secondary education, the largest curricular division at Bloomsburg State College. Since September 1970, he has been the first dean of the School of Professional Studies, which includes all teacher education programs at BSC except business education.

A native of Edwardsville, Edwards completed his undergraduate work in secondary education at BSC. He was awarded both the master of education and the doctor of education degrees at The Pennsylvania State University.

After several years of teaching in private schools in Florida and Maryland, he accepted a position as teacher and basketball coach at Kane (Pa.) High School. A former varsity player at Bloomsburg, he developed outstanding teams in Class B play, winning the state championship in 1949.

He left Kane after seven years to become assistant high school principal at Coatesville, Pa., and later joined the administrative staff as principal of the senior high school at Ridgway, Pa., where he remained five years.

When asked to comment on his outstanding accomplishments at BSC, he did not hesitate, but replied, "The development of the nursing program from an idea, to its inauguration and now the culmination of its first four years has been a most rewarding experience. This program has been popular from its inception and its future will assure Bloomsburg State College of students interested in the degree nursing program."

Edwards added, "It's a great feeling of satisfaction to know that your plans have been fulfilled and that a successful program has been established for future generations."

Dr. Edwards and his wife, Eda, live at 705 Country Club Drive, Bloomsburg.

C. STUART EDWARDS

Season's Greetings

To All Alumni

Again the Christmas season has arrived bringing the opportunity to extend our warmest holiday greetings and best wishes.

May we wish you and your families a wonderful holiday season and the best for the coming New Year!

Your Alumni Staff

Plaque for members

In order for everyone to become eligible for membership in the various clubs associated with the annual fund drives, the Alumni Board of Directors has decided that the completion of a three-year pledge in the required amount would meet the requirements for membership. Previously the amount had to be given in one year.

Members of each club will receive a beautiful plaque signifying their membership. For example, the bronze etching of Carver Hall on black walnut (12 inches by 17 inches) will be the award given to each member of the Gold Club ($1,000 or more). A similar plaque of the college seal (6 inches by 9 inches) will go to members of the Maroon Club ($600 to $999) and a Wilton Armetale plate with Carver Hall embossed on it will be given to BSC Club members ($300 to $599). All Century Club members ($100 to $299) will receive a blue and gold plaque. A maximum of three years will be allowed to move from one club to another.

Two college professors die

James McCubbin

James A. McCubbin, 56, assistant professor of speech communications and theater arts at BSC, died Oct. 11, 1978, of natural causes.

Born in Glasgow, Ky., he was a son of the late Leslie and Marion Richey McCubbin.

He earned his bachelors degree in sociology and speech from Marshall College in Huntington, W. Va., and his masters degree in dramatic arts from Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. He taught at Marshall College for 17 years before coming to Bloomsburg.

He served as technical director of the BSC players from 1965 to 1970; as assistant to the vice president for student life and assistant registrar from 1970 to 1973.

He is a member of the Speech Communications Association of America; past president of Bloomsburg Little League Baseball; a member of Bloomsburg Elks No. 436; and the Bloomsburg American Legion Post No. 273.

He served in the United States Marine Corps during World War II and the Korean conflict, retiring as a major.

His survivors include his wife of 30 years, Elaine Speicher McCubbin; one son, Jeffrey Allen, Charlottesville, Va.; two daughters, Jane Sheridan, Lafayette, Ind., and Mary Beth Carlin, State College; one sister, Elizabeth Perry, Bradenton, Fla.; two grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

JAMES A. MCCUBBIN

James Bryden Jr.

James Davenport Bryden Jr., 45, chairman of the BSC department of communications disorders died Oct. 26 at Geisinger Medical Center, Danville, after an extended illness.

JAMES D. BRYDEN

He earned his bachelor of arts degree in philosophy at William and Mary College in 1956. He received a masters degree and a doctorate in speech pathology and audiology from the University of Virginia in 1958 and 1968 respectively. He did additional post graduate work at George Washington University and Northwestern University, and earned Pennsylvania's certificate of clinical competence in speech pathology.

Bryden served as instructor, consultant, lecturer and writer. He was a member of the Unitarian Fellowship, Bloomsburg, the Executive Council of the American Speech and Hearing Association, the executive council of the Speech and Hearing Association of Virginia, and the executive council of the Pennsylvania Speech and Hearing Association.

He is survived by his parents, the Rev. James Bryden and Olive Krise Bryden, Alexandria, Va., his wife of 20 years, Elizabeth Stanton Bryden; a son, James David, and a daughter, Victoria Elizabeth; a sister, Mrs. Charles Pierpont, Dale City, Va.; one niece and one nephew.

'Using Newspapers' new graduate course

Teachers interested in learning how to use newspapers in classroom teaching can do so through a course now being offered at Bloomsburg State College.

"Using Newspapers in the Classroom," a three credit graduate level course, is designed to involve teachers in learning experiences using newspapers as supplemental material in the classroom.

The course, taught by Dr. Donald C. Miller, professor of elementary and early childhood education at BSC, has teachers participating in work with newspapers in various subject areas at different grade levels.

Miller said that a great deal of class time is devoted to the construction of learning materials using newspapers as a source of information.

The 28 teachers taking the course incorporate techniques learned in class and gather newspaper materials for use in their own classrooms.

The classroom is a center for activity with newspapers being used for everything from bulletin boards to paper hats.

The course has a workshop-type atmosphere with teachers actively participating in the learning experience.

Some of the guest speakers include Stephen Buckley, marketing director for the Morning Press and Berwick Enterprise; William Lunsford, community service director of the Harrisburg-Patriot News; and Pamalee Stokes, Newspaper in Education resource consultant for the Harrisburg-Patriot News.

These speakers provide insight gained from their on the job experience with newspapers.

"Using Newspapers in the Classroom," is offered on a graduate level by the Department of Element-tary and Early Childhood Education at the college in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association (PNPA) Foundation.

Teachers may gain the support of their local papers through the PNPA Foundations Scholarship program.

The PNPA Foundation has encouraged all Pennsylvania newspapers to sponsor teachers from their circulation areas with partial-fee scholarships.

"Using Newspapers in the Classroom," may be applied to a masters degree program in Elementary and Early Childhood Education at BSC. For more information about the course, contact the Office of Graduate Studies at 389-3814.

C. Stuart Edwards, Dr. James Cole, and Vice President for Academic Affairs James V. Mitchell. Local certificates of Distinguished Academic Service were presented to Sponseller (1977-78), Washburn (1976-77 and 1977-78), and Cole (1976-77).

Twenty-one faculty members at Pennsylvania's state colleges and university received Distinguished Faculty Awards for outstanding performance in 1978. The awards program, designed to recognize excellence in teaching or exceptional academic service, was created through the 1974 collective bargaining agreement between the Commonwealth and the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculty. Four recipients of the award are BSC faculty members.

A grant of $6,000 for academic service was given to the team of John R. Hranitz and Ann Marie Noakes, elementary and early childhood education.

Excellence in teaching awards were given to John McLaughlin, special education, and TejBhan Singh Saini, economics. Winners will receive $3,500. In addition to the $2,500 they have already won locally.

Womanpower war advisor BSNS grad

The 88-pound girl began her career teaching in a Pennsylvania mining town in 1916; by 1943, she was battling World War II on the industrial front, serving as advisor to the Army's Industrial Personnel Division.

Ellen Davies, '16, played an important role on the home front building an industrial army of "women to be paid wages equal to those of the men for equal skill and equal production."

Her civilian record drew the attention of James P. Mitchell, then director of civilian employment for the U.S. Army at the Pentagon, under Gen. Summerville; as personnel director of Chase Brass & Copper Co., Waterbury, Conn., she had developed a pioneer program of employing women in manufacturing jobs, ordinarily performed by men. Robert Patterson, Secretary of War at that time, requested her services to set up and direct a program for the recruitment, employment and training of qualified women who would replace soldiers being transferred to war zones.

For two years she acted as advisor on utilization of womanpower during which time she was "on loan" from Chase Brass, which continued to pay her salary and share the cost of her traveling expenses with the Army when it was necessary for her to be and work at the Pentagon.

By September 1943, the Army Service Forces (ASF) had placed upwards of 379,000 women, young and old, some physically handicapped, in nonclerical industrial war work for the Government in two major areas: The production of war materials and the maintenance of plants and equipment. U.S. Army camps, posts and stations all had their quotas of women workers. She recalls, "To accomplish the goals set by the ASF meant 'selling' the program to the rank and file of the Army and was the most difficult aspect of the task. It was a major public relations job in itself!"

Women over 40 and 50 years of age were sought for especially important jobs, because, according to Ellen Davies, "We felt that these older women would display a greater sense of responsibility and would be better able to cope with the problems of adjustment than would younger and less experienced girls."

Will P. Kennedy of the "Washington Star" wrote of the woman work force in 1943: "Every winged fortress that has showered bombs on Tokyo, Berlin and Rome reflects the work of their hands, outfitted with precision instruments and guns they made, and freighted with bombs they helped prepare."

Prophetically, in 1943, Miss Davies recognized an after-war future for women in professional fields previously closed to them. Women in war work were originally signed up with a distinct agreement that when the war was over and men needed jobs, women would return to homemaking and pre-war activities. However, today 40 million women are members of America's work force.

Following graduation from Bloomsburg State Normal School in 1916, Ellen Davies began teaching school at $40 per month in Nesquehoning, Pa. In the same year Pennsylvania passed a law requiring employers to send all minor employees, aged 14 to 16, to school for one day a week. Teaching in an industrial continuation school was no minor accomplishment, as Miss Davies learned after unruly "continuing" students roused their male teacher from the classroom. Miss Davies requested the job, but demanded she receive the same pay as her predecessor.

Finally, the school board granted her a six weeks' trial and she successfully won the respect of her teenage students — brawny boys who picked over coal in the mines and girls who worked in a silk mill. Realizing that traditional teaching methods would be ineffective, she initiated a program to interest and benefit her students by offering them valuable lessons for application in their daily lives. She taught them to calculate their wages, compute taxes, read time tables and read newspapers. She instructed the girls in basic cooking, and the boys in small home repairs.

In 1918 the Pennsylvania Board of Education learned of her successful program and invited the 19-year-old girl to act as advisor on the continuation school program.

ELLEN DAVIES FOLSOM

After teaching eight years, she earned a bachelor's degree in education from Bucknell University, where she served as assistant dean of women, and a master's degree in education from Columbia University. Her ambition was to become a college dean, and her graduate work included studies in personnel management.

Needing more people-oriented experience to fulfill her ambition, she took a job with the Girls' Service League on the East Side of New York. Discovering an affinity for social work, she went into personnel work with one of the country's largest mercantile establishments — R.H. Macy & Co. This work led her to the position of personnel director of Chase Brass & Copper, a subsidiary of Kennecott Copper. Initially knowing little about technical fields, Miss Davies had to learn how to interview machinists and other skilled men.

Personnel experience and knowledge of women's employment provided her with the ability to advise the Army Service Forces concerning American womanpower during World War II.

In 1944 after her mother died, she resigned from Chase Co. and became personnel director at Reader's Digest, Pleasantville, N.Y. Later she accepted a special assignment as a research-writer on employment practices and procedures in industry for Yale University. Meanwhile she had organized training centers for Connecticut employees of U.S. Employment Offices which had been newly established throughout the Nation.

Ellen Davies and Dwight Folsom were married July 1, 1950. Now widowed, Mrs. Folsom continues her interest in educational and political trends. She is a member of American Association of University Women and the Arts and Crafts League of Delaware County as an amateur enamelist. She resides in Broomall, Pa.

Mrs. Folsom is not a militant "women's libber" as such, but she does believe that slowly but surely women will achieve maximum equality with men in the working world. She advises women, "Just do the job if you have the skills, and stay off the band wagon."

She also believes that Bloomsburg State Normal School has had a deep influence on her life "through the means of classroom association with such professors as Albert, Reinhard, Brill, Bakeless, and of course, Dr. Waller. They all, she said, "in their way provided the inspiration to dream and to achieve, and in achievements, to mark our growth."

Dr. H. Benjamin Powell

Prof publishes book

Dr. H. Benjamin Powell of the BSC history department has written a 167-page book entitled, "Philadelphia's First Fuel Crisis," after 15 years of research into the history of anthracite.

The volume centers around Jacob Cist, a Wilkes-Barre man described by Powell as a "hard coal pioneer." Cist became the key figure in the development of Pennsylvania anthracite, and with his associates alleviated Philadelphia's fuel crisis, caused by the War of 1812.

Powell was formerly an editor of "Pennsylvania History," the state historical journal. His new book is published by Pennsylvania State University Press (2514 Wagner Bldg., University Park, Pa. 16802) and is co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania Historical Museum Commission and the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society.

The book is dedicated to his wife, Edna Keefer Powell, '58 & M.Ed. '67, and their son Stephen.

This book stresses the entrepreneur's role in the drama of Pennsylvania anthracite. When the War of 1812 caused a fuel crisis in Philadelphia, English coal shipments stopped and a British coastal blockade inflated the price of Virginia coal. Cist and his associates met the crisis, serving both their country and their industry.

Wilkes-Barre cousins remember BSNS

In 1917 a young woman's career goal was nearing attainment — she had been accepted for admission to Bloomsburg State Normal School.

Born the daughter of a coachman and gardener, Priscilla Young's earliest ambition was to become a teacher. She shared that dream with her cousin, Edith Dennis, and they applied to Bloomsburg together. Departing from Wilkes-Barre by train, they arrived at the Normal School to mark a chapter in its history.

Priscilla explains, "We were the first two black girls to live in the dormitory and to graduate in the Class of 1919. Two local black girls from Bloomsburg had graduated from the Normal School as teachers, but had not lived on the campus."

Priscilla remembers, "Our stay at Bloomsburg was one of the happiest in our lives. I was honored as the chief class artist for the yearbook. The faculty was excellent. Dr. David J. Waller Jr. was principal. Some of my favorite teachers were Professor Charles Alberts, Dr. Daniel S. Hartline, O. H. Bakeless, and Mrs. Helen F. Carpenter, Critic and Model School teacher."

While at Bloomsburg State Normal School, Priscilla was a member of the Philogian Society, Y.W.C.A., and Girls' Dormitory Club. Besides serving as yearbook artist, she held the position of secretary of the Girls'

Athletic Association. About the town of Bloomsburg, she remembers very little. "I never left the campus, even to go into town. All my necessary needs were sent to me by my parents in Wilkes-Barre."

Following graduation, Priscilla's first teaching position was in Harrisburg where she taught for four years. In 1923, she received an appointment in New York City, and later taught in Jamaica, Long Island, N.Y. She married Herbert McDonald, a U. S. postal clerk, in 1925. A daughter, Priscilla Louise, was born in 1927, followed by a son, Herbert George, two years later. After teaching 41 years, she retired from the Samuel Huntington Junior High School in 1958.

Following her retirement, she and her husband enjoyed three Caribbean cruises and traveled to Europe, South America, and Hawaii. Priscilla also journeyed to Asia and Africa and toured Mexico and Panama.

She is affiliated with Phi Delta Kappa Sorority, National Retired Teachers Association, NAACP, and Friends of Psychiatric Institute Foundation. She is a member of the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church of Washington, D.C.

After the death of her husband in 1968, she moved to Washington, D.C. to be near her son. She will celebrate her 80th birthday on Jan. 2. She resides at 3900 Sixteenth Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20011.

'Gracious, cordial'

Editor's Note: Shortly before press time we received the following letter from Edith A. Dennis, '19:

"When I received the copy of your letter to Priscilla Young McDonald, memories, warm and pleasant, filled my mind.

"Mrs. McDonald and I were indeed the only black students at Bloomsburg State Normal School in the era of which she speaks, and we were the first black residents in the dormitory.

"After weighing the relative merits of institutions of higher learning we reached the decision to enroll at BSNS upon our graduation from Wilkes-Barre High School, a decision we never regretted. The intelligent counsel of our very concerned and supportive parents was a large factor in our choice.

"We were faced with no unpleasantness at BSNS because of our racial identity. On the contrary, faculty and students alike were gracious and cordial. This fact has heightened significance because for many individuals our presence represented a first encounter with members of another race. There is no doubt in my mind that the personal philosophy of then president, Dr. D.J. Waller, a wise and kind man, was largely responsible for the creation of the warm atmosphere which greeted us.

"We both were active participants in the programs of the school; I still have my Philo pin, a memento of my membership in the literary society of that name.

"The names of the faculty members of that time evoke fond memories: Hartline, Bakeless, Alberts, Carpenter, Hinkle, Sutliff, Good, Brill, Moyer, Steele, Wyant. I also think of the students of the Model School who passed through my hands and who, I am certain, went on to make their own considerable contributions to society.

EDITH A. DENNIS

"After graduation from Bloomsburg, I received the bachelor of science degree from the University of Pennsylvania and until my retirement in 1965, served as head teacher in one of the elementary schools in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. I served also as director of the 1965-66 Head Start Program in the Harrisburg School District.

"I have derived much satisfaction from the following community involvements: board of directors of the greater Harrisburg YWCA, American Association of University Women, Foreign Policy Association, Pennsylvania Education Association, Harrisburg Educators Association, and the Capital United Presbyterian Church.

"My two sisters, Marlon A. Dennis, '21, (Mrs. Clarence Polk) now deceased; and Hope Dennis, '25, were also students at Bloomsburg.

"I am certain that I speak for Mrs. McDonald as well as for myself when I say that Bloomsburg 'upon Normal Hill' was one of the strong influences of our lives."

In the early 1900s, Priscilla Young and Edith A. Dennis were the first on-campus black students at Bloomsburg State Normal School. Today, Priscilla Young McDonald and Edith Dennis have nothing but warm memories of their years at Bloomsburg. In photos above and below, taken during their stay at college, asterisk denotes Priscilla Young.

Admission applications up

The Office of Admissions at BSC received a 14.2 percent increase above last year in the number of new freshmen seeking fall admission and an 18.1 percent increase in the number of transfer applicants.

A total of 3,720 freshmen and 699 transfer applications were received for 1,050 and 180 spaces, respectively.

The college has been at institutional student capacity for the fall semester, 1978, since mid-April of this year. The admissions success is a source of pride for BSC since most institutions of higher education are experiencing declining applications.

Full-time students numbering 4,790 were enrolled in undergraduate degree programs for the fall semester on August 28.

This represents a planned, small decrease below last year when 4,913 full-time students were enrolled.

In addition, 154 part time undergraduate students, 650 full and part time graduate students, and 727 non-degree students are now enrolled.

The administration decided to reduce the total enrollment to help alleviate the crowded parking facilities, resident halls, off-campus housing, library, and to reduce overloaded teaching assignments.

BSC in California

Alumni clubs

Bloomsburg in California! A California get-together of BSC alumni was held on Nov. 16 at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco.

Dr. James H. McCormick, president of Bloomsburg State College, met with the group of 14 to discuss the old and new at BSC. Dr. McCormick was in San Francisco for the annual meeting of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Dr. Harry T. Nelson, '37, arranged for a social hour and dinner at the Canlis Restaurant. Those attending included Regina Kotch Snyder, '65; Jessie Cornwell Patterson, '29; Bettianne Compton Quinn, '77; Judith A. Wolf, '62; Edith Blair Shute, '34 and Robert Muscosky, '69.

New Jersey meeting

Richard Lloyd has announced that the BSC Club of New Jersey will hold its annual meeting during the first week of April. The exact date and place will be included in a general mailing in late February to all Bloomsburg alumni living or working in New Jersey. Dr. and Mrs. C. Stuart Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Elton Hunsinger will be guests from the campus.

Pa. Dutch Chapter

The Pennsylvania Dutch Chapter of BSC Alumni will hold its annual meeting on Thursday, April 19, in the Sheraton-Berkshire Inn, Reading, Pa. Frances Sell, '35, is president of the club.

Montour Alumni Club

Montour Ruth Montague, '54, president of the Montour Alumni Club will call a meeting of her task force in early January to make arrangements for their annual meeting. Announcements will be mailed to all members and friends giving the location and date.

RUTH DUGAN SMEAL

Ruth Dugan Smeal, '39, assistant professor and juvenile collection librarian, will retire on Jan. 12, 1979.

Mrs. Smeal became associated with the faculty as instructor, circulation librarian in January 1964, and was promoted to assistant professor, assigned to the library, in 1967.

A native of Milton, Mrs. Smeal received her elementary schooling in Montour Township and her secondary education in the Bloomsburg High School. She earned her bachelor of science degree in education from BSC in 1939 and her master of science degree in librarianship from Marywood College in 1960. She has taken additional graduate work at The Pennsylvania State University.

Mrs. Smeal began her teaching career in 1941 at the Shickshinny School District, where she remained until 1944. She then spent eight years with the faculty of the Millville Area School District.

In addition to being a member of the American Library Association and the Pennsylvania Library Association, Mrs. Smeal has been active in the Order of Eastern Star 285 and the First Presbyterian Church of Bloomsburg. She is also listed in Who's Who in American Women.

The Office of Extended Programs has scheduled dates for 1979 summer sessions:

Session I: May 29 — July 6; Session II: June 18 — July 27; Session III: July 9 — August 17; Session IV: May 29 — June 15; Session V: June 18 — July 6; Session VI: July 9 — July 27; Session VII: July 30 — August 17.

However, course listings will not be available until March. For more information contact the Office of Extended Programs at (717) 389-3300.

Alumni directory to be out in March

The printing of the new alumni directory has been delayed by the slow response from alumni in returning their questionnaires. More than 9,000 members did not return the first questionnaire and over 700 cards were returned to the Alumni Office with incorrect addresses or "no forwarding address." In September the second and final questionnaire was mailed. This mailing will be followed by a telephone call from the publisher to each respondent to verify the data before publication. At that time members can place orders for the directory or they may answer the separate ad in this issue. The publishing company has promised that the directories will be mailed in early March.

BSC at the fair

asked for information and viewed campus scenes and a slide presentation.

Dr. TejBhan S. Saini, professor of economics, has been awarded a Governor's Citation for outstanding service to the Commonwealth for his participation on the Governor's Economic Advisory Committee for the Pennsylvania Economic Review.

The committee deliberated economic problems facing the Commonwealth. The results of their findings were published in the 1978 Annual, "The Review and Outlook: The Pennsylvania Economy." Saini has served on this committee for three years.

In addition, Saini has been commissioned by the Governor's Office of State Planning and Development to write a handbook on economic planning. This project is in progress.

An article authored by David J. Minderhout, Robert R. Solenberger and David E. Washburn entitled "The Southwestern Indian Aesthetic and the White Man's Vision" appears in the latest issue of Minority Voices, Vol. 2, No. 1. This interdisciplinary journal of literature and the arts is published by The Pennsylvania State University. The article traces the acculturative relationship between the Indians of the southwestern United States and the white man and the result this has had upon the contemporary Indian aesthetic. Minderhout and Solenberger are research associates with the BSC Multicultural Education Center and associate professors of Anthropology. Washburn is director of the Multicultural Education Center and professor of Educational Studies.

Dr. David E. Washburn, director of the Multicultural Education Center and professor of educational studies at BSC, is the author of "An Appalachian Summer" which appears in the Pennsylvania Ethnic Studies Newsletter (Vol. 3, No. 5). This article tells the story of Washburn's class, Education in Rural Society, which was conducted in the southern highlands of Kentucky, providing BSC students experience in a culture other than their own.

In an article printed in the September 1978 issue of "The Physics Teacher," P. Joseph Garcia and Stephen G. Wukovitz, associate professors in the physics department, explain a preliminary procedure to the molecular monolayer experiment.

This experiment, used to estimate a molecular diameter, employs a solution of oleic acid. Garcia's and Wukovitz's procedure, which attempts to make the conceptual approach easier to understand, involves the indirect estimate of the average diameter of a collection of Styrofoam spheres using a technique analogous to that used in the monolayer experiment. Details of the procedure can be obtained by contacting Professors Garcia or Wukovitz, or by reading the September issue of "The Physics Teacher."

Donald A. Vannan of BSC's elementary education department wrote the article, "Appropriately Restrictive," which was published in the September issue of "Early Years," a professional journal for teachers through grade three.

Wolfgang heads music prep program

Members of the Music Department and Office of Extended Programs at Bloomsburg State College are pleased to announce that Ralph E. Wolfgang will be acting as their consultant and will be designated as coordinator for the newly established preparatory program in music. This instructional program will include private lessons in voice, beginning guitar, and all the individual band and orchestra instruments. Teachers in the program are all qualified experts in the area they will teach.

Wolfgang received his bachelor of science in music education degree from Susquehanna University, graduate credits from Bucknell University, and a master of science degree in music education from Ithaca College. He attended summer seminars at such music festivals as Tanglewood, Mass., Aspen Festival at Greensboro, N.C., and in Marlboro, Vt. Orchestral conducting, literature, and advanced instruction of all wind instruments were special courses he pursued.

During a sabbatical year he visited schools in all parts of the country, studying the trend of instrumental music in the public schools and colleges. Wolfgang is principal clarinetist of the Bloomsburg College-Community Orchestra and a life long member of Music Educators National Conference, Pennsylvania Music Educators Association, National Education Association, Pennsylvania School Educators Association, and the Musicians Professional Union.

Presently he serves as head of the Department of Fine Arts and band director for the Southern Columbia Area School District.

For more information about the music preparatory course contact the BSC Department of Music at (717) 389-3107.

Memorial scholarship set

A 17-year-old BSC coed died Oct. 27 after being struck by an automobile. The deceased, Sharon Trapuzzano, was a first-semester freshman from Springfield, Pa.

A memorial scholarship is the goal of a concerned group of students who have launched a fund raising appeal directed at the college community and town of Bloomsburg.

They are approximately $1,000 short of their $5,000 goal. The Community Government Association has donated $2,500 to the fund.

Committee chairman David McIlwaine, said, "We are making a personal and emotional plea to everyone who is and has been associated with BSC. Remember that any donation, no matter what amount, will help us in turning a tragedy into a benefit for future students at BSC."

Please make checks payable to Student Memorial Fund, Community Activities Office, Kehr Union Bldg. Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815

Good old days?

Teacher's salaries and working conditions have improved considerably in recent years. A 1923 teacher's contract in Idaho shows what was expected in those days

Be home from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. Don't loiter in ice cream parlors. Don't smoke cigarettes, and don't drink beer, wine, or whiskey. Don't leave town without permission. Don't ride in a carriage or auto with any man except your father or brother.

Don't dress in bright colors, dye your hair or use face powder, mascara or lipstick, and wear at least two petticoats.

Sweep the classroom at least once daily; start the fire at 7 a.m.; and scrub the floor at least once each week.

New telescope presented

In September, Dr. Leonard Winski of Millville presented the biology department with a Celestron-8 telescope. Winski's son, David, a former student at BSC, made the presentation on behalf of his family.

The instrument will be used in several courses in the department's curriculum, especially ornithology and astronomy. Bloomsburg State College is fortunate to be the recipient of Dr.

Winski's generosity which will benefit a large number of students academically as well as provide them with instruction in several techniques employed in the use of the Celestron-8.

Tennis team second

BSC's women's tennis team placed second in October's Pennsylvania Conference championships held in Millersburg.

In a controversial decision, Edinboro was declared the winner after tournament officials used a special system to determine the champion. BSC, the defending champion, and Edinboro had tied with 26 points at the end of the two-day competition.

Edinboro won the title by .01 of a point as officials determined the average number of games lost in the course of competition. Edinboro's average was 3.33 to BSC's 3.34.

A protest was filed by Coach Mike Herbert but was later dismissed by conference officials.

BSC did have one champion as the No. 2 doubles team of Donna Royer, Manheim, and Ellen Williams, Kennett Square, defeated a team from Edinboro in the finals.

Other BSC finalists were Lorie Keating at No. 1 singles and Marylou Hnatlin, No. 3 singles. Keating lost to Cathy Peterman, Lock Haven, while Hnatlin fell to Marylee Baglieri, Slippery Rock.

Final team point totals include BSC 26; Edinboro 26; East Stroudsburg, 22; Lock Haven, 16; Indiana University, 15; Millersville, 15; Slippery Rock, 12; Shippensburg, 9; Kutztown, 6; Clarion, 4; California, 2. Mansfield and Cheyney failed to score.

Members of the BSC women's tennis team include (bow to stern) Cindy Smith, Tracey Cooke, Donna Royer, Linda Pinchot, Lorri Malinski, Ellen

Eachus in nationals

Steve Eachus finished a brilliant collegiate cross country career on Nov. 20 with a 32nd place finish in the Division I 10,000 meter national championship.

STEVE EACHUS

Running on the snow-covered Yahara Hills Golf Course in Madison, Wis., Eachus completed the course in 30:19.8, finishing less than 10 seconds behind the winner, Alberto Salazar of the University of Oregon, who posted a time of 29:29.8.

Among the highlights of Eachus' career are two Pennsylvania Conference individual championships and two third place finishes in Division II. As a Division II runner-up in the 5,000 meters, Eachus traveled to Mexico City last year to compete against a Mexican national team. "That was probably the highpoint of my racing career," said Eachus.

Eachus placed first in all of BSC's dual meets this year. The only race the three-time All-American did not win was the Penn State Invitational when he finished second behind Nittany Lion Ron Zeigler.

During the past two years he has established numerous course records and recently broke his own record on the BSC upper campus course.

In last year's Division I race, Eachus placed 61st in a field of approximately 280 runners.

Coach Clark Boler said of Eachus, "He's the type of runner you would like to have around for a long time. He has been an inspiration to his teammates."

The West Chester native is a geography major in Arts and Sciences and is scheduled to graduate in December, 1978.

Fall sports review

Congratulations to the fall sports teams of soccer, cross country and field hockey.

Soccer (11-1) produced the second consecutive year of only one loss during the regular season. Lou Mingrone's Huskies advanced to the NCAA Division II mid-east-mid-west district playoffs, losing to the University of Missouri at St. Louis, 1-0. The booters tied Shippensburg for the eastern division PC title but the Red Raiders represented the division by virtue of their 2-1 win over Bloomsburg.

Cross-country, losing several close meets, compiled a 4-5 record and placed in the Pennsylvania Conference, but, more importantly, sent six runners to the NCAA Division II championships where Bloomsburg finished 18th. Co-captain Steve Eachus placed third, gaining the right to compete in the NCAA Division I championships. Senior Mark Bond was also co-captain.

Field hockey (11-3-1) had its third consecutive winning season and the first for new coach Jan Hutchinson. The Huskies placed third in the Susquehanna Field Hockey Association tournament and six players were selected to go on and play on the Susquehanna team in the Mideast tournament at Rochester. Tri-captains this year were Robin Maurer, Robin Miller and Donna Santa Maria.

Nominations

Each year your Alumni Association selects no more than three members to receive the Distinguished Service Award and a like number of members to receive Meritorious Awards. The selections are made on the basis of nominations from the entire membership of the Alumni Association. These awards are made to people who have achieved success in their chosen profession, bringing honor to themselves and to their alma mater. his/her name to DSA Committee, Alumni Office, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815. All nominations must include a short paragraph stating why the person being nominated should be considered for the Association's highest honors. All nominations must be received by March 1, 1979.

Morucci stars

Winning football season

The first winning season in eight years, being in contention for a tie for the championship of the eastern division of the Pennsylvania Conference, and the individual accomplishments of running back Mike Morucci were the most gratifying aspects of the 1978 BSC football campaign for coach Ron Puhl and his staff.

In the first two seasons of 2-7 and 4-5, his teams were in most of their losses right up to the final quarter, and were providing exciting football. This year, after two early setbacks, the Huskies got on track to win five in a row and then clinched the winning season with the 14-7 Kutztown victory.

After not being figured at all in the eastern division race in early season play, BSC could have thrown the division in a three-way tie by defeating East Stroudsburg in the final game. However, the Warriors proved to be too strong, winning 23-3. The Huskies did play the national NCAA Division II defensive leader to a 3-3 standstill for three quarters, before the Warriors exploded for a 20-point final stanza.

The Warriors had been holding the opposition to an average of just 53 yards per game rushing, but through the efforts of Morucci and the offensive unit, he ground out 97 tough yards. That yardage boosted his season total to 1,130 yards, and his three-year career total to 2,314, both BSC records.

Individually, his 125.5 yard average per game led both PC divisions in rushing, and the eastern division in total offense. He was third in the nation among NCAA Division III teams in rushing for games through Nov. 11. His final stats were nine games, 238 carries for 1,130 yards, eight touchdowns, 4.74 yards per carry average and 125.5 yards per game average.

As a team in the division, BSC did best in passing defense, allowing 97.1 yards per game. This led the eastern division and placed the Huskies second in the entire conference. The Husky pass defenders were led by co-captain Chris Betterly, who tied for fourth place in the division in interceptions with six. Linebacker Doug Pfautz had two interceptions.

In the defensive categories of rushing and total defense, BSC placed fourth in both, allowing 149.5 and 246.6 yards respectively. The Huskies did not do as well in the offensive statistics, placing fourth in rushing (159.7) and fifth in both passing (74.7) and total offense (234.4).

Quarterback Rick Knisely's eight-game performance of 50 completions of 129 attempts for 482 yards, three touchdowns, and a 6.3 completion average per game, was good for first place in passing in the division. He was intercepted 11 times. Freshman signal caller Matt Figard did a commendable job replacing Knisely when he was injured near the end of the season.

Wide receivers Ed Bugno was second in receiving with 2.7 catches per game and flanker Duane Frantz was fourth, with 2.2 catches. Freshman punter Kurt Werkheiser's 38.2 average in 57 kicks placed him second in the division. Morucci's 48 points gave him second in scoring in the division and fourth in the conference.

MBA in chemistry

Director on state payroll

The provisions of a recent Department of Public Education guideline for alumni directors in the Pennsylvania state college and university system allows for recognition of alumni directors as members of the college administration; thus, they may be employed by the state.

Prior to the new guideline, alumni directors were restricted from working for "an independent, non-profit organization" when employed by the state. The new guidelines recognizes the activities of an alumni association as an integral part of the college and establishes the office of alumni affairs which can be directed by a college employee. However, the association will be required to pay rent for office space and equipment which is used primarily for the business of the association.

Donald Watts, Executive Director for the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association, was transferred from the association payroll to state payroll on Sept. 2, 1978. There should be no noticeable changes in the operation of this office or of the director's duties. However, the change in employment will certainly allow the association to provide many additional services to the students and the college community.

Teitworth fund set

Former members of the student newspaper staff at BSC have established a scholarship in memory of an editor who was killed in a traffic accident in 1972.

At a picnic reunion held in late August, past editors and staff members of the "Maroon and Gold News/Campus Voice" started the fund from which the Bill Teitworth Memorial Scholarship will be awarded.

Teitworth's associates remember him as a mild-mannered, unassuming editor who was seemingly out of place in a college newspaper office of the early 1970's.

During a time characterized by campus disturbances and demonstrations, Teitworth often frustrated more outspoken members of the staff by quietly going about the business of producing a newspaper.

The scholarship will be awarded to a BSC student working on the college newspaper and showing an interest in a journalism career.

Checks should be made payable to "Bill Teitworth Memorial Scholarship Fund" and sent to Frank Lora, Community Activities, Bloomsburg State College, Bloomsburg, Pa. 17815.

The picnic was held at the farm of Richard Savage, advisor to many of BSC's newspaper staffs since the early 1960's.

Library position open

The Andruss Library faculty announces one faculty position for which applications are invited. The position is described as follows:

Agnes Wallace Rees, '07, writes, "I really wasn't lost at all, but . . . my son has had five cancer operations at the V.A. Hospital and needed me. We made two moves in two months — then had to take my "sold" house and arrange it for our comfort.

"Three moves were just too much at 88-89. Now at 90, I am settled, have part time help and am fairly well. He faces another operation, and I have had three trips to the hospital for my arthritis and heart.

"My car was wrecked by a drunken high school boy, so I don't drive anymore. . .

"I am greatly honored to do talks on the history of California. I am the oldest member of State Women's Club — 77 years. I attended as 'guest of honor' a graduation where the speaker, (a former eighth grade student of mine) retired as County Superintendent.

"So I may be 90, but still active — doctor said, 'Agnes, we took 28 X-rays at the hospital fearing brain damage; your back hurts, you limp, but your brain is excellent.'

"My fingers are stiff, but my love for BSN is 'tops' . . . thanks to dear Florence Piper Tuttle (reading), I became a primary reading demonstrator for two counties. Then Professor Goodwin wouldn't be proud of my penmanship. Perhaps Dr. Hartline could improve or cure my fingers, and Dr. Cope would enjoy hearing about the San Francisco earthquake. I was in his lab when the news came to BSNs on April 8, 1906. Then Professor, Albert, I could add to his stories of America and Europe — I was at Queen Elizabeth's coronation. I've been to the South Seas, etc.

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Larabec, my hall police, the gym couple, the Aldingers, and Miss Prentice who prepared me for my public speaking which I have used. I spoke for the city at the dedication of a monument and new freeway. Oh, my fingers say 'quit.'

Mrs. Rees resides at 2558 Third Street, Livermore, Calif. 94550.

HOWARD FENTSTEMAKER

Howard Fenstemaker, '12, professor emeritus and past president of the Alumni Association and long-time editor of The Alumni Quarterly recently spoke to the retired persons. Mr. Fenstemaker spoke on the ethnic and historical meaning of persons' names.

"All names have a definite ethnic meaning, and in particular, an individual's name historically has a definite meaning."

Fenstemaker explained, "As population increased, a man needed more than one name, a surname like John and a family name like Eisenhower, blacksmith, characterizing his work, or Brown, his color, or Ford, a shallow place in a stream, indicating where he lived."

He also illustrated how many names have Biblical origins. Today, he said, we are identified by our number, such as social security, insurance policy number or telephone number.

The story of the life of John E. Bakeless, '13, planned for this issue, will appear in a future issue. Katharine Little Bakeless, '16, has agreed to write the article, which promises to be an interesting profile of a very distinguished alumnus.

Glenns Ricker, '14, a former superintendent of schools in Kane, Pa., was honored by the Kane Rotary Club which designated him as its first Paul Harris Fellow — the highest honor that can be awarded a Rotarian.

A Rotarian for 46 years, he was given the award, named for the founder of the Rotary International, in July, 1978. Ricker was district governor of the Rotary in 1938 and remains an active participant in Rotary activities.

He and his wife, the former Edna Speary, '15 reside at 120 Pine Ave., Kane, Pa. 16735.

Blanche Robbins Damon, '16 died in her home on Aug. 23, 1978.

Born Nov. 18, 1895, in Potts Grove, she was a daughter of the late John and Harriet Ohl Robbins.

She taught school in Potts Grove and Florida and had lived in Concord, Mass., since 1941. She was married to Kennan Damon, who preceded her in death.

She is survived by three stepsons, one stepdaughter, 11 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and one brother, William Robbins of Baltimore, Md.

Annie Meredith Schweppenheiser, '16, died on Sept. 18, 1978 at the Berwick Hospital where she had been a patient 18 days.

Daughter of the late E.G. and Eliza Meredith Schweppenheiser, she was born and lived in Berwick nearly all her life. A graduate of BSNS and Columbia University, she taught school in Moorestown, N.J. for seven years and in the Berwick School District until her retirement 16 years ago.

She was member of First United Methodist Church, Berwick and the Berwick Area Education Association. She is survived by two sisters — Mamie and Dorothy Schweppenheiser.

Lillian Riskin Blumenfeld, '17, has presented an autographed copy of her latest book, "Consider the Child," to the Harvey A. Andruss Library. The book was recently published by King's College Press, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and reviews Mrs. Blumenfeld's experience with progressive education. It is a book for parents and teachers which highlights many innovative teaching methods to capture the interest of different age students.

James T. Musgrave, '18, died on May 24, 1978.

We have been informed that Martha M. Taylor, '18 & '37, died on July 11, 1950. Miss Taylor's name had been on our list of "Address Unknown" for many years.

Mary Rose Lydon, '19, has died, according to the U.S. Postal Service, which returned her mail to us in September.

Lucia Hammond Wheeler, '19, still has an interest in one of her earliest vocations — news reporting.

She currently covers church, social and professional group meetings on a volunteer basis.

Her career in journalism began in the 1920s when along with teaching, she became a part time society reporter for the "Scranton (Pa.) Sun." She resigned from news reporting to start a family following her marriage to the Sun's star reporter, Robert L. Wheeler. The couple raised three sons and a daughter.

After the death of her husband 20 years ago, she returned to college and earned a degree in education. Employed as a remedial reading teacher, she continued to write part time by doing advertising copy for radio, newspapers and magazines.

In 1967 her son Jack asked her to leave Rhode Island and come to California to live, and she accepted. Presently she resides at 120 West Olive, Redlands, Calif. 92373.

Sarah Birch Bellas, '22, died in August, 1975.

1923

Homecoming 1978

Gail Weisenfluh, Homecoming Queen

BSC's 51st Homecoming was a glorious success—students and returning alumni were treated to perfect weather and the first homecoming football victory since 1970.

Sophomore Gail Weisenfluh, a Scranton native representing Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, was selected as homecoming sweetheart during halftime activities at the BSC-Millersville football game.

The homecoming theme, "The Animated World of BSC," inspired campus decorations and about a dozen floats in the annual parade. Grand marshal for the parade was Tony Cusatis, alias "Tony the Baker," who was dressed in his traditional chef's attire. He drew cheers from students and alumni who demonstrated their appreciation for the countless bread and pastry goodies he has created during the many years he has been employed by food service firms contracted by the college.

First-place prize for winning float was captured by Tau Kappa Epsilon and Chi Sigma Rho for their entry "Peter Pan."

The parade's nine college and high school marching bands were led by BSC's Maroon and Gold Band and Millersville State College band. The participating high school bands represented those geographical areas which have in the past sent large numbers of students to BSC — Bloomsburg, Central Columbia, North Schuylkill, Northwest, Millville, Southern Columbia and Benton.

Honorary parade marshall was Robert Nearing of Millville, a retired Bloomsburg banker. Other honored guests riding in the parade included President James H. McCormick; Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, BSC president emeritus; Richard Walton, vice chairman of the board of trustees; Allen Remley, mayor of Bloomsburg; George Gensemer, Carol Hiday, and Willard Kile, Columbia County commissioners; Millard Ludwig, president of BSC Alumni Association; officers of the Community Government Association; candidates for homecoming sweetheart; senior class officers, and Lynn Cathers, 1977 homecoming sweetheart.

Freshman sweetheart was Kelly McDonald of Greencastle.

Winning second prize in the float competition was Tau Sigma Pi, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Lambda Alpha Mu for "Disney Castle."

Third prize was awarded to Sigma Iota Omega and Phi Iota Chi for "Snow White," and fourth place went to the Maroon and Gold Band for "Who's the Leader of the Band?" featuring Mickey Mouse.

A homecoming buffet was held in Scranton Commons featuring speakers President McCormick and Millard Ludwig. Football coach Ron Puhl and soccer coach Lou Mingrone also briefly addressed the group of alumni, students, faculty, county officials, and others.

Other activities included reunion gatherings for several classes — 1938, 1943-44, 1953, and 1968.

Homecoming chairperson Carol Bogaczyk introduced her committee members. Master of ceremonies was John Trathen, '68, acting director of student activities.

Frank Kocher, '40, writes, "I am listed in American Men & Women of Science, and am coordinator of mathematics at the branch campuses of the Pennsylvania State University, called the Commonwealth Campus system. I have been doing this since 1950, and I have seen the mathematics faculty grow from about 15 to about 75. Over half of them have a doctorate (I don't). I am president of the Central Pennsylvania Genealogical Society and organist at Calvary Baptist Church in State College. I have two daughters and two grandchildren. My wife and I attended a performance of "The King and I" at Haas Auditorium this summer and enjoyed conversations with Lucy McCommon and Mr. & Mrs. Howard Fenstermaker." His address is 1104 Smithfield St., State College, Pa. 16801.

Frank Koniecko, '40, relates, "I have retired from teaching and am still alive and kicking!" He lives at 400 Maplewood Road, Wayne, Pa. 19087.

Gwladys Jones Miller, '40, has the following news to report: "I hope to continue working for four more years as a high school librarian until my husband retires and we can travel off season. Fred Visintainer, '40, informed us, "After 37 years as principal and teacher in the Hazleton Area School District, I decided to make room for the younger generation. I retired from the ranks as of Aug. 31, 1977. It was the wisest decision I had made in all of my professional years." His address is RD 2 Box 226, Drums, Pa. 18222.

Gertrude Wilson Withey, '40, writes, "My teaching career of 29 years in Pennsylvania, New York, Kansas, Burma, and Indiana ended with early retirement on May 30, 1978. I hope to finally attend Alumni Day again and see friends and classmates of 1934-37. As our class was the last permitted to teach with a two-year certificate, I'm acquainted with only a few in the Class of 1940, but appreciate being part of it and an alumna of Bloomsburg State College." Her address is Box 288, Hanover, Indiana 47243.

We regret to report that Jessie Schlefer Eckman, '41 and her husband Clarence died Aug. 26 at the scene of an accident 20 miles south of Laramie, Wyoming, when a semi-tractor went out of control and collided into the front of their motor home.

Lucretia Shaffer Lynch, '41, wrote to us concerning Mrs. Eckman: "After graduation she taught retarded children and stayed in that field. She was also a talented artist to the point of having her own shows. In the summer she traveled and painted in the U.S., Mexico, and Europe. I will miss her."

Dr. Frank J. Furgele, '52 was recently appointed Area I Superintendent of New Castle County Schools with offices in Claymont, Delaware. Dr. Furgele is no stranger to the students and staff of the district. He is a veteran educator with more than 25 years of experience and ten years of service as superintendent of the Claymont School District.

Furgele earned his masters in education degree from Temple University in 1955 and his doctorate in education from the same university in 1965. His teaching career began in the Baltimore County public schools in 1952 where he served as a teacher, librarian and athletic coach. The next year he moved to Bristol Township in Bucks County, Pa., where he held several positions including social studies teacher and department chairman at Delhaas High School and Benjamin Franklin Junior High. He served as principal of the new Woodrow Wilson High School from 1959 until 1968 when he left Bristol Twp. to become district superintendent in Claymont.

At Claymont, he was responsible for a complete re-organization of the total school program. Under his leadership, the district initiated Vocational-Industrial Cooperative and Distributive Education programs, a work-study program, a district wide aquatics program, planetarium programs, a summer library program, a complete summer school program and numerous innovative programs.

Dr. Furgele has served as a member, assistant chairman and chairman of numerous Middle States Evaluations Committees for the evaluation of secondary schools in the Middle States region. He has assisted the Pennsylvania Department of Education in the evaluation of educational programs in colleges and universities within the state and the evaluation of federal educational programs which are funded under the elementary and secondary education act. He has served as a member of the Penna. State University Extension faculty since 1963 and was a part time instructor of education at Widener College, Lancaster, in 1972 and an instructor in educational administration at the University of Delaware in 1976.

In 1970 Dr. Furgele was named "Delaware Administrator of the Year" by the Delaware State Chapter of Distributive Education Clubs of America, for his leadership in helping to build a strong distributive education program in the state at Claymont High School.

Other awards received by Dr. Furgele were the American Legion Post Citation for "Meritorious Service and Cooperation to the Community and Education" from the Levittown Post and the Bloomsdale-Fleetwing Estate Civic Award in 1964 from a local Bristol Township civic organization. Dr. Furgele is a member of numerous state and national professional organizations and has served on the Bloomsburg State College Alumni Association Board of Directors for several years.

Dr. Furgele and his wife, Mildred, have three children: Dawn, John and James. Their address is Box 228 Star Route, Lakesville, Pa. 18438.

The Class of 1953 held its 25th reunion on Homecoming Day, Oct. 21, and seldom has a day been so perfect. Grads were treated to spectacular weather, a great homecoming parade and a down-to-the-wire football victory over Millersville. Informal get-togethers were held at Redman Stadium — in special seating during the game and at an alumni reception afterwards. The official get-together at the Bloomsburg Elks consisted of a cocktail hour, dinner and much talking and reminiscing.

Dr. and Mrs. Hoch were unable to attend because of his recent hospitalization, but both President and Mrs. McCormick and Dr. Andruss made visits during the evening. Forty-four class members, spouses and friends came for some part of the evening. Returnees were Dan and Jo Cuff Fitzpatrick, Buck and Nellis Swartz Byham, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Knause, Ruth Thomas Keeler, June Long Gaatsche, Charles Pease, Glenn and Erma Bean Sheats, Emil and Doris Paternoster Wandishin, Dick Ewing, Regina Herchel Schiraldi, George Lambrinos, Dave and Mary Lou Kubic Linkhorst, Dan and Kitty Mitchell Boychuck, Don Butler, Joe and Elaine Ohlman Albano, Bill and Midge Wrzesniewski Stoutenburgh, Charlie and Dee Doyle Brennan, John and Jeananne Evans Scrimgeour, Ben and Vivian Burness, Don and Lois Frantz McClintock, Mr. and Mrs. Al Cyganowski, Ed and Hope Horne Cunfer, Pat and Mary Kallenback Fowler. We were also joined by Ed and Jane Jones '54, Tom and Joan Havard Kilroy, '54, and Burley Grimes, '49, '50, '51, '52 & '53, who have been making Homecoming Day an annual event with the Scrimgeours and Brennans.

Joseph Meler, '53, is no longer listed under "Address Unknown." His address is 839 Willow Road, Hellertown, Pa. 18055.

Robert Moore, '53, has been employed in the research and development department of Sunoco Oil Co., Marcus Hook, Pa. for 17 years. He lives at 10 Francis Lane, Wilmington, Del. 18803.

Elizabeth Speal Posey, '53, sent the following letter in November after inquiring about obtaining a BSC pennant for her son: "Today we received the BSC admission booklet along with the information on buying a pennant . . . The admission bulletin was a bonus for me. It has been 25 years since I was on the campus and the changes are remarkable. Here in Austin, the University of Texas is a big center of activities, however, when my children who are in eighth and ninth grade get ready for college, I hope they will consider a smaller school like Bloomsburg."

A teacher and guidance counselor at Shikellamy Senior High School, Blyler has served in many positions in scouting, including scout master of Troop 342 of Northumberland, and scout round table commissioner of Netami district.

He holds a master's degree from Bucknell University, Lewisburg. He served as a helicopter pilot with the Marine Corps.

Presently Blyler is serving Netami District as advancement chairman. Netami District includes all of Northumberland County and two townships in Columbia County.

His address is RD 1, Northumberland, Pa. 17857.

Check your AQ label

With this issue we have attempted to combine addresses of married alumni on one mailing label, thus eliminating duplicate mailings to one household.

Without a doubt there will be some errors, and we need your help in making the necessary corrections. Please check your mailing label on etc., cut out the entire label and return it to the Alumni Office with the correct information attached — please do not remove the computer identification numbers.

Also, if we have missed couples who are still receiving two copies of this issue, we would like to be advised in order to correct our files. Thank you!

Order our own college or a traditional view of any four year American college. Medical and law schools, too.

We present three handsome pieces: the Mirror ($80), the Picture ($47) and the Desk Box ($75). Each piece includes a hand-painted scene on the reverse side of glass by Eglomisé Designs of Boston.

The Mirror (15x26) and the Picture (10x15) are framed in wood and leafed in silver tones. The Desk Box (12x7x2) is walnut with brass fittings.

A substantial part of your purchase price goes directly to our college.

To order, specify your choice of college in either the Mirror, Picture or Desk Box. Don't forget your address and Zip Code. That's it!
