NORMAL VICTORIOUS OVER MILLERSVILLE, PHILO LOSES OUT

Judges Hand Down Two to One Decisions in Both Contests

QUESTION STILL UNSETTLED

The yearly clashes in Normal School debating took place Saturday evening April the twenty-eighth at West Chester, Millersville, and Shippensburg. The two society debating teams of each school represented their respective schools; one at home, the other abroad. The home team in each case upheld the affirmative side of the question.

Shippensburg's ancient and keenest rival, Millersville, went down to defeat before the members of Normal Society arguing the affirmative side. Although the Normal team had lost in the Inter-society clash, the speakers showed that much work had been done since that time in revising their arguments and organization.

The decision could not be predicted after the main speeches but the rebuttal seemed to clear up all doubt as to the winner. The Normalites showed very superior ability in their delivery and in their ability to think quickly and present the thoughts in forcible language. The decision of the judges was not unanimous, however, but was two against one in favor of the home team. The judges were men representing three professions; Hon. M. F. Hummel, District Attorney of Cumberland County; Dr. W. S. Seavers, Principal of Central High School, Harrisburg, Pa.; and Rev. A. R. Steck D. D. Carlisle, Pa.

The same speakers of Normal and Philo took part in the Inter-School debate that had met in the Inter-society debate. The members of Normal Society were Miss Ethel Barr '23, Miss Kathryn Wilson '23, and Miss Carolyn Cox '23. The Philo team journeying to West Chester was composed of Miss Florence Davis '23, Helen Miller '24, and Mitchell Dreese '23.

The Philos were not as fortunate at West Chester as Normal was at home since the West Chester forensic representatives handed them a setback by a two to one decision of the judges. The West Chester Normal placed against Philo the team of the Moore Society. These debaters were able to capture the victory through superior delivery and emotional appeals. It was conceded, however, that the visiting team had the material organized in a much better form than the home team.

The question as to whether we should enter the League of Nations is just as much a problem as ever since the Negative team from West Chester defeated the Affirmative team of Millersville at Millersville.

Both at Shippensburg and West Chester, a reception was held for the debaters at the conclusion of the debate. The members of the Philo team report that they were treated most hospitably while at West Chester and we hope that Millersville enjoyed the same courtesies in their stay here.

This closes the debating season for this year. Much interest was shown by the student body at all the debates as was shown by the large attendance and the attention given.

Superintendents from many neighboring counties and boroughs are visiting at the school today. Cumberland, Franklin, York and Adams counties are represented by their superintendents. Some of these men will remain for the Philo Reunion this evening.

WELL SELECTED CAST PRESENTS "THE TRAVELING MAN"

Encore of Cornet Duet Demanded by the Society

THOMAS GIVES DECLAMATION

Normalites experienced a real treat last Friday evening when one of Lady Gregory's plays, "The Traveling Man" was presented under the direction of Miss Dyer. The cast included Miss Hazel Walters '23, who assumed the role of the mother; Miss Maude Geedy '23 as the child; and Nesbit R. Straley '23 as the "traveling man." The play transported the observer to a humble cottage in a picturesque little village among the mountains where he forgot that it was the twentieth century and imagined himself back in the days of miracles. He found himself as eagerly interested as the child while the mother told the story of the King of the world who carried a branch bearing both fruit and blossoms, who had helped her when her world had cast her out. He experienced a feeling of curiosity concerning the ragged traveler, who appeared while the mother was out and the child was alone; and with both the traveler and the mother as she scolded him severely upon her return for daring to handle her precious china. Then the observer is suddenly brought back to the present after realizing with the repentant mother that the traveling man was the King of the world.

A declamation entitled "The Golden Spikes of Life" written by Professor Gilbert, was well given by John Thomas '24. A recitation by Miss Dorothy Coble '23 and the Gazette, edited by Miss Hilde Kindt '23 completed the literary part of the program.

Ralph Orner '23 and Edwin Harbaugh '23 played a cornet duet and Miss Dorothy Weaver '24 sang a solo entitled "The Springtime of the Year" by Harriet Rusk.

Professor Gilbert represented the faculty at this meeting. As usual his remarks were both interesting and encouraging.

PLAY, "THE CHASTENING" ON ENTERTAINMENT COURSE

Charles Rann Kennedy's master play, "The Chastening" will be presented in the auditorium Thursday evening, May the seventeenth. "The Chastening" is a modern Miracle Play in Five Acts. It is essentially spiritual and hence appeals to all classes and creeds. The emotions of humor, irony, sentiment, and tragedy, run through it.

The cast will be probably the best offered to a Shippensburg audience. The author himself, Charles Rann Kennedy plays the leading role representing a carpenter. Edith Wynn Matthison is well known everywhere as a model of musical English is desired. She will take the part of the carpenter's wife. Considering the nature of the production and the persons who will present it, it cannot help but be one of the most remembered entertainments ever placed upon the stage at this school.

BOYS OF SEVENTH GRADE PRESENT GOOD PROGRAM

Due to the fact that this week is "National Boys' Week" the assembly program in the Training School on Wednesday afternoon was presented by the boys of the seventh grade. One exceptionally good number on this program was a talk on the construction of an aeroplane, given by Melvin Burkholder. Some time in the near future an assembly program will be given in which all the boys of the training school will participate.

PHILO STAGES ANNUAL SOCIETY REUNION TONIGHT

Presents "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" — Society Orchestra Will Appear

RECORD ATTENDANCE EXPECTED

All plans are now completed and everything is in readiness for the annual Philo Reunion scheduled for this evening. All those who will appear on the program as well as the people serving on the various committees have made careful preparations for this event. Miss Lena Beale '23 has been busy all day directing her helpers in decorating the auditorium and the gymnasium. The elaborate decorating and lighting scheme have required much planning and careful execution.

The Glee Club members under the direction of Miss Anna Smith '23 have spent a great deal of time practicing the songs for Friday evening's program. The Philo Orchestra has been working early and late preparing its contribution. The play cast met to rehearse faithfully and frequently. "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" promises to be quite successful, due to the efforts of the cast and the able coaching of Miss Parks. Miss Slaven who is directing the costuming for the play has been busy with her part of the preparation.

Miss Robb is supervising the dance rehearsals. The setting and costuming for this clever number are attractive and elaborate.

Miss Florence Davis '23 is the head of the committee that arranged the entire program. Karl Blanche '23, business manager of the Reunion, announces that between six and seven hundred tickets for this affair have been sold. The number of alumni members who return to their society reunion is expected to exceed the representation of former years. The alumni as well as the student body are looking forward with great interest to this event, which will be the result of weeks of endeavor.

Roy Burkhart '17 will preside with Miss Romaine Brehm as secretary.

The other week-end event which is receiving attention is the Philo dance Saturday evening. The same careful planning will be evident for this affair as for the previous evening's entertainment. This dance will in all probability be well attended for there are to be many outside guests at the school. The Neusbaum Orchestra from Carlisle will provide the music for this event.

WEST CHESTER'S UNDEFEATED NINE HERE TOMORROW

Chambersburg B. R. Club Meets Team Next Week

One of the attractions of the week-end is the base ball game, when the undefeated C. V. nine and West Chester Normal cross bats for the first time this season. This game will give the alumni who are back for the Philo Reunion a chance to see what Coach Sharadin has developed in the base ball line.

Coach Sharadin's proteges have shown wonderful development the last few days. The team at first seemed handicapped by the loss of Eby and Jones, two regulars, and Tarman, a sub. But this loss evidently did not affect the fighting quality of the squad as shown by the way the team walloped Mercersburg on Wednesday. Strike has been moved to second to fill Eby's place and Rice has been replaced at short. Kelly will probably hold down the right corner of the field left vacant by Jones. The team, since these changes, has been hitting and fielding at a much more rapid pace than formerly.

Shull and Harbaugh will be the twirlers for this game with Hays behind the bat. Harbaugh will likely bear the brunt of the twirling and Shull will be saved for the game with the Chambersburg "Maroons."

The game next week will be Tuesday evening. This game from all appearances will be one of the hardest of the season. Manager Mowery of the "Maroons" has all kinds of material lined up this year. The "Maroons" will try especially to defeat the C. V. batsmen on account of the no hit game that was pitched against them by Coach Sharadin last year.

Shull will pitch for the local nine while Dowell, the "Maroons" leading pitcher, will twirl for Chambersburg. Smith, the former local high school pitcher is also likely to get a chance at the C. V. batters.

A jumping pit has been made in front of the grand-stand at its new location.

NEW REFLECTOR STAFF CHOSEN BY RETIRING SENIORS

Seal Heads New Staff With Kennedy as Managing Editor

Heated argument and thoughtful deliberation featured the election of the new staff of THE CAMPUS REFLECTOR last Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. The Senior members of the retiring staff acted in the capacity of controlling board, and first accepted a plan of organization for the new staff, proposed by John Brouger.

According to this organization the Editor-in-Chief was the first elected.

Here the board found themselves limited to a certain extent by the fact that the man chosen for this office could not carry very much outside work. John B. Seal '24 was chosen to succeed John F. Brouger '23. Here the board was compelled to stop in the election.

Wednesday morning they again convened and set to work in earnest. Ernest Kennedy '24 and William Angle '25 were elected as Managing Editor and Assistant. As news editor, Miss Genevieve Mitchell '24 will serve while Wallis McKendree '24 will act in the capacity of Sport editor. Clifford Smith '24 and Sherrick Gilbert '24 are Exchange and Alumni Editors respectively. Miss Leah Decker '24 was elected as Training School editor.

Miss Helen Miller '24, Ruth Frank '24, and Margaret Lehman '25, with Roy Wheelzel '24, were chosen as associate editors. Miss Reba Shue '24 will be special reporter. The other reporters are: Blanche Straley '24, Mildred Brenneman '24, Sophia Reiter '24, and Harry Wolf '25.

On the business staff, Arthur Filler '24 is business manager, Charles Pyle '25, advertising manager, and John Harris '24, circulation manager. The assistants of the business staff will be chosen later.

Wear your ribbon correctly. If you are a Philo wear it crosswise. If you are a Normal place it with the bows pointing up and down.

NORMAL WINS FROM MERCERSBURG FOR THE SECOND TIME

Shull Holds Sluggers Safe With Fourteen Strike-Outs

ORNER KNOCKS CIRCUIT CLOUT

The Red and Blue team continued its winning streak by trouncing Mercersburg Academy for the second time at Mercersburg last Wednesday, by a 4 to 2 score. The first game played here on the 18th of April was captured by a 5 to 2 score.

Shull pitched air-tight ball allowing but two hits and striking out fourteen Mercersburg batters. Garvey, who twirled his first game for Mercersburg was nicked for eight safeties, four of them coming in the fatal fourth inning.

Shull and McDermitt led in the slugging for the Red and Blue, the former having a triple and two singles and the latter knocking out two one-base drives.

Coach Sharadin's men scored their four runs in the fourth when McDermitt the first up singled. Hayes reached first on an error by the second base man. Grba drove out a single scoring McDermitt and advancing Hays to third. Hays scored when Rice flied out to Brooksbank. Orner then walloped the ball into deep center for a round trip, bringing Grba in ahead of him. Further scoring was ended when Harbaugh and Strike struck out.

Mercersburg's two runs came in the fifth and sixth. In the fifth inning Bunnell doubled and was brought in by Walsh's single. Mercersburg scored in the sixth when Harbaugh fumbled French's hot liner.

According to all indications, Normal should have a crack nine this summer. Quite a few of the present varsity have registered for the summer term, and surely from the 850 already registered for the term there should be plenty of new material. Among the present Varsity who will return are: Shull, Harbaugh, Rice, Grba, and Orner.

And now hot weather with its accompanying white duck trousers, good swimming, and all that. The tennis courts aren't ready yet. Have patience.

TRAINING SCHOOL PRESENTS

STRIKING PROGRAM

What was probably the best all around program that was given this year, was staged on Wednesday afternoon at the regular assembly period and was in the form of a bright spring play called "The Talking Garden."

One of the outstanding features of the program was the large amount of beautiful poetry woven into the play, and the unusually attractive way in which the pupils presented it.

The entire program followed smoothly, with dancing and music between the scenes. The platform was backed with green trellises thickly hung with wisteria and dotted with blue birds, above which in attractive design were to be read the words of the title of the play, "The Talking Garden." This play may be found in the spring number of "Everyday Plans." The costuming was dainty and effective, suggesting the various flowers that were the characters. About thirty-five children in all took part.

CAST ANNOUNCED

FOR HEALTH PAGEANT

Plans for the Health Pageant to be given on the campus the thirty-first of May are rapidly nearing completion. About three hundred girls will participate in the fete. The brilliant colors of the variegated costumes will add much to the attractiveness of this gala event. The "Trippers of the light fantastic toe" will be accompanied by an orchestra composed of a piano, violin and cello. Prof. Slyter has charge of the musical numbers which will precede the pageant.

Miss Eleanor Heiges '23 has been elected to portray the part of King Disease while Miss Walters '23 will play the role of Queen Good Health. Her attendants are Katherine Heefner '23 representing Sun; Katherine Baker '24, Rest; Sophia Reiter '24, Water; Mildred Breneman '24, Air; Sara Upperman '23, Exercise; and Mildred Kapp '23, Diet.

The followers of King Disease are three hideous germs: Tuberculosis, represented by Ray Suders '25; Diphtheria, Peggy Lehman '25; Typhoid, Marion Moretz '25. Each of the nine solo dancers will be assisted by a group of about forty dancers.

At the conclusion of the pageant the G. A. A. will serve refreshments for a nominal fee. Booths will be erected on the campus to serve as headquarters for the hungry.

All cars stopped at this hotel coming from Harrisburg, across the street at the Sherman House and cars stopped coming from Chambersburg. These were the stations before the Civil War. They got water at both of these hotels and many times the entire crew took in more than water. Few freight cars ran over the Cumberland Valley road. At times a fish and oyster car came through and every one bought their produce from the car. We will pass over the branch and where Mr. George Stewart's residence now stands, was the Black Hawk Hotel. This hotel was noted as the stopping place of Washington and his army as they passed through Shippensburg on their way going and coming to the Whiskey Insurrection in 1794. The hotel keeper felt so proud in entertaining the great George Washington that he got drunk and also one of Washington's aids. Washington was not a drinking man, so he punished his aid by making him walk up and down the Branch until he was sober. In the alley below Mr. Stewart's home, "The Old Water Wheel" stood for many years. This was a curiosity as it was twelve or fourteen feet in diameter and three feet wide. It had steer horns on the outside, collected water in the horns, elevated it to a trough, and the fall of water was used in the tan yard.

We next approach Bull's Eye, or Fort Morris, named in honor of Gov. Morris, and marks the year of Braddock's defeat in 1755. It was built for protection against the Indians, surrounded by stockades which included twenty acres. The Indians became angry at the whites and from 1755 to 64 this valley was burned and many massacres, as the one at Conococheague Freight Company occurred.

The only massacre that we have in Shippensburg is an account on the nineteenth of March, 1754. The Indians carried off five people within nine miles of town and shot one man by the name of John Cessna on the Cessna plantation on the Middle Spring road. The Indians, supposed to be eleven in number were pursued and overtaken by one hundred provincials. Many a man saved his life by being fleet of foot. A story is told of a white man who came from Strasburg to Shippensburg a distance of eight or nine miles and out-ran the Indian reaching Fort Morris in safety. We will now travel on the Old Three Mt. Road but will turn off and pass through Mongul and Lurgan visiting the scenes of Margaret Corban of Revolutionary fame, then on to the Mountain town of Roxbury. This mountain town is on the banks of the Conodoguinet, as it flows from the Kittochtenny mountains. It is a beautiful spot and has been compared to Delaware Water Gap. It was founded by Wm. Leeper in 1778. He had a grist mill, a forge and furnace. Two places are worth seeing in Roxbury—one is the Indian graveyard up in the Gap across from the home of Mr. Adam Powell. The next, is the old stone house of the Pomeroy's where the Thomas Pomeroy massacre occurred in July 1763. He was away hunting for several hours and upon his return he found his wife, two children and their domestic, Mrs. Johnson, tomahawked. Mrs. Johnson was not killed and lived without her scalp to a good old age. Mr. Alex Pomeroy of Cleveland, O., a descendant, lives in this house for six months of the year, and is owner of the property.

We will now take a cross country ride to the vicinity of Newburg. I want you to see Hannah's grave yard, which was the burial place for the people along the north mountains that could not bury at Middle Spring, due to the high waters of the Conodoguinet Creek at certain seasons of the year. Somewhere in this yard is a nameless grave and I will tell you one of the folk lore tales of a hundred years ago. When Agnes Robertson was a young girl going to school at Mt. Vernon, she went home with two of her school friends whose father kept the hotel at Newburg. The hotel then was the long weatherboard building a part of which is standing today. That night a drover came to the hotel. Agnes saw him eat supper. She also saw him during the evening. When she went to bed with the girls she passed through the room where the father and mother slept. She noticed the father was sitting on the bed whittling a lot of knives. She could not sleep during the night for the noise. After twelve o'clock, some time she heard a sound as though some one were going down the stairs dragging something very heavy, a thump, thump on every step. The next morning the drover was gone and the mother explained that the men got up very early to go to Squirrel Hollow. She also asked Agnes if she heard anything during the night. Then she explained that the men killed a calf during the night. The hotel family became very suddenly rich and in a short time went west and were never heard of again. A month after this occurrence several men arrived in Newburg hunting the drover. They had traced him to this hotel and then no trace could be found. He had been to Baltimore and had a large sum of money on his person. During the early spring some men were cutting timber in the Ikelberger woods where they saw a large grave that was open. They did not understand it at the time but the story has been current that the drover was first buried in this timber tract and the unknown grave in Hannah's yard contains the body of the drover who was re-buried before the hotel family left for the west.

Newburg had had some famous murders for its size and history. The greatest is the Rebok Chayney case (Continued on Last Page) that is so recent, that the story is known by every one. Leaving Hannah's graveyard we come to Newburg and see the old eight-sided school building, now used as a dwelling house, the Sunny-side Seminary, a large brick building still standing. This school was chartered by the legislature and opened in 1858. Mrs. Caroline Williams was the first principal. The school was in existence for ten years. Mr. Morrison was principal for two years. We next pass Hopewell Academy, established by John Cooper in 1810. The school building was an oblong structure, of hewn logs, with a single entrance, sliding doors and a gable roof. It has long ago been torn down but the old mansion house which was really the parsonage for Dr. Cooper and his son is still standing and in use by Mr. Al Fogelsonger.

After taking a drink from the Sulphur Springs at the foot of the hill, we travel for a mile to the old covered bridge across the Conodoguinet Creek. Here we turn to the right and travel along the creek for several miles and view the old home-stead of Capt. Samuel Brady. This road brings us to the McClay Mill that is known to most of us. Note the style of architecture and the date that is given, 1754. This is the oldest mill on the Conodoguinet and was the first grist mill in Lurgan township. There were forty of these mills in Franklin county at one time, all built early in its history and all performed a great service.

The old stone bridge at this place is also worth a glance as it stands as a type of the bridges built by the Hessian Soldiers who remained as great bridge builders after the Revolutionary War.

We will now approach Middle Spring and here we will eat our lunch and view the four graveyards with their seven thousand dead, the three monuments, the sites of the three church buildings, visit the graves of many of the noted people mentioned in this paper; here the history of this thriving little village thirty years ago when it was a manufacturing paper village under the Shryock Brothers. Coming again to Shippensburg we see the site of Fort Franklin on Burd Street, another fort built for the protection of the whites between the years of 1740 and 1756. At the foot of the hill we see the old Court House, now used as a dwelling house—the whipping post stood just near it in the square. The Cumberland County courts were held here from 1750 to 1761, when they were removed to Carlisle.

We will go south by the old Baltimore Road to Cleversburg. On our way we will see the Old Gettle Graveyard that is still in use by that family. Most of the private yards have disappeared but this family and their descendants are clinging to this old yard which is located near the Railroad track. (This is the region of the furnaces, at one time a great industry along the South side. It was also the region that was used by General Braddock in the French and Indian War as a store house for his grain and cattle. The names of the four furnaces are Southampton, situated near Cleversburg and connected with the Doctor Woman, the site of her little home marked by three apple trees. Augusta and Mary Ann, one mile apart, situated at Cleversburg, called after the parentage of their owners, Mr. George Clever. And the last Big Pond Furnace, giving employment to one hundred men, and creating a little town around it. Mr. Matthews was the owner. Near the Big Pond Furnace is Lewis, the robber's cave. He lived most of the time at Dublin Gap, but at times was seen in this section. It was at the Spring near this cave that he met a young Gettysburg student who was walking across the mountain to school after spending his vacation at his home near Carlisle. He stopped to rest near the Spring. Lewis found him and asked him to drink out of his cup. The young man was carrying a very nice gun and Lewis asked him to see that fine weapon. After the young man drank from his borrowed cup he faced his benefactor to see the gun pointed straight at him with the demand to raise his hands and allow himself to be searched. He had his money for his tuition in his pocket. He was quickly relieved of that and again presented with his gun after all ammunition had been taken from him and allowed to go his weary way, a poorer but wiser boy. From Big Pond Furnace we return by the now famous state highway, called the Walnut Bottom from Leesburg to Shippensburg, and our trip is ended.
