BEV SMITH

TV, radio commentator Bev Smith to give address celebrating MLK's legacy

Television talk show host and national radio commentator Bev Smith will speak at Bloomsburg University Wednesday, Jan. 17, as part of the university's weeklong celebration of the legacy of Martin Luther King.

Smith will give her address, "Remembering the Works of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.: Putting the U in Unity," at 8 p.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

Bloomsburg will observe Martin Luther King Day Monday, Jan. 15, at noon in the Kehr Union Ballroom with a video presentation and discussion titled "The Color of Fear." Provost Wilson Bradshaw will give the opening remarks.

On Thursday, Kambon Camara, counselor and assistant professor of psychology, will facilitate a discussion titled "How to be Non-Violent in a Violent World" at 7 p.m. in the Kehr Union's Multicultural Center.

Featured speaker Bev Smith has more than 20 years of experience in broadcast journalism. Beginning her career as Pittsburgh's first television consumer affairs reporter in 1971, she also wrote a weekly consumer advice column for The Pittsburgh Courier, the nation's oldest African American newspaper.

In 1975, she was named news and public affairs director for the Sheridan Broadcasting Company. While there, she hosted a two-hour Saturday talk show that became so controversial that the station's tower was burned by listeners who disagreed with her views. Since then, she has taken her firebrand style of talk shows to television and radio stations in Miami, Orlando and Washington D.C. She has guest-hosted "Larry King Live" and appeared on "Good Morning America," "Today," and "Crier and Company."

Currently, Smith is host of the talk show "Our Voices" that appears on Black Entertainment Television on Sundays at 11 a.m. She can be heard daily with her commentary show, "Straight Up," on the Sheridan Broadcasting Network.

Unafraid to tackle issues and become involved in her stories, Smith has slept with the homeless, walked the streets with prostitutes, raised funds for babies with AIDS, talked with inmates on death row, and learned to shoot a gun with the FBI.

News briefs

Human relations committee seeks proposals

■ The campus-wide committee on human relations is seeking proposals for funding of events for the spring semester. Proposals must reflect the manner in which the event will promote the recruitment and retention of minorities at Bloomsburg University. To obtain a proposal form, call Ann Mariano in the office of social equity at 4528.

Employee food drive helps 22 families

■ This year's employee food drive helped 22 families comprised of 92 people before Christmas. In addition to canned goods, university employees donated $113 and 40 green stamp books to the effort. The money and green stamp books were used to purchase a canned ham for each family.

King Banquet to honor work towards 'Dream'

Bloomsburg's third annual Martin Luther King Commemorative Banquet will be held Thursday, Feb. 1, at 6 p.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

The theme of the banquet is "Cherishing the Past, Challenging the Present, Chiseling the Future." The keynote speaker will be Harold E. Cheatham, professor and head of the department of counseling education, counseling psychology, and rehabilitation services at Penn State University. Cheatham is coauthor of the book Campus Pluralism. He is also president of the American College Personnel Association.

Entertainment for the banquet will be provided by the Concert Chorus, directed by Eric Nelson, associate professor of music, and by the Bloomsburg University Dance Ensemble, directed by Danielle Eves of the Bloomsburg School of Dance.

The highlight of the banquet will be the presentation of the Martin Luther King Jr. Humanitarian Service Award to the Bloomsburg faculty/staff and student member whose service to the university best exemplifies the realization of King's dream.

Reservations for the banquet are $13 for adults and $8 for students with a meal plan. To make reservations, contact Bonita Franks, associate professor of curriculum and foundations, at 389-4638 or 387-5261.

Communiqué

A newsletter for Bloomsburg University faculty and staff, Communiqué publishes news of activities, events and developments at Bloomsburg University bi-weekly throughout the academic year.

Bloomsburg is committed to providing equal educational and employment opportunities for all persons without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, ancestry, life-style, sexual orientation, disabilities, Vietnam-era veteran, or union membership.

The university is additionally committed to affirmative action and will take positive steps to provide such educational and employment opportunities.

Speaker to address human subjects research

Lorraine M. Mulfinger, coordinator of the Center for Locomotion Studies at Penn State University, will speak Tuesday, Jan. 23, on "The Balancing Act: Academic Freedom and Human Subject Protection." Mulfinger will speak at 10:30 a.m. in McCormick Center, Forum.

Among her accomplishments, Mulfinger has received a research career reentry award from the National Institutes of Health/National Institute on Aging.

She has served as a National Science Foundation Graduate Fellow.

At the Center for Locomotion Studies, Mulfinger is involved with researching gait among groups of impaired and elderly individuals. The research is designed to improve the safety of stairs for the elderly. She has a doctoral and master's degrees in veterinary science, and a bachelor's degree in microbiology from Penn State University.

Mulfinger's talk is sponsored by the institutional review board for human subject research.

Grants available to support thesis research

Bloomsburg now offers grants to support graduate students' work on their theses.

Only graduate students who have been admitted for candidacy and have had a thesis proposal approved are eligible to receive funding for thesis research. A student may apply before achieving candidacy and funding may be tentatively committed to the student. However, final funding approval will be granted only when candidacy and thesis approval have been obtained.

Because funding is limited, the amount requested should not exceed $300. Grants will fund supplies, small equipment items and local travel required for thesis research. Conference and workshop travel will not be supported.

Proposal guidelines are available at the graduate office, Waller Administration Building, room 109. There is no official deadline for proposal submission. Funding decisions should be made within six weeks of submission. Funding will be awarded on a first-come, first-served basis.

Correction

The picture caption on page 1 of the Dec. 14 issue of the Communiqué incorrectly reports that the Women's Choral Ensemble performed at the Poinsettia Pops Concert. The Chamber Singers were the featured choral performers at that event.

Safety Tip: During the last school year, it is estimated that University Police found over 3,000 doors unlocked, propped open or left ajar. In one building alone, 476 doors were discovered unsecured in a 10-month period. An open door is an invitation to a thief. A good New Year's resolution would be to lock your office if you are not in it. If you are done with a classroom in the evening, lock it. Let's work together to make this school year safer.

Quest plans spring adventures

Quest, an outdoor adventure program at Bloomsburg, has scheduled classes for the spring semester.

The cost of the one-day classes is $15 for Bloomsburg students with a student activities sticker and $40 for all others. Unless otherwise noted, courses run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Quest provides all training and equipment for the classes. To register for classes, call the Quest office at 4466 or visit the Quest office in Simon Hall, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Spring courses include:

- Rock Climbing II — Saturday, May 4.

Holidays may change student schedules

Occasionally students request exemptions from class attendance and other university obligations for purposes of religious observance. Most university faculty and staff are willing to entertain such requests but may be unsure as to which holidays may merit excuseable absence.

The office of social equity has compiled the following list of holidays of major world religions for which observance may require a student to depart from their normal routine at the university.

Jan. 16 — Bodhi Day (Enlightenment): Buddhist.

Jan. 22 — Ramadan (thirty days, exact dates dependent upon lunar calendar): Islam.

Feb. 21 — Ash Wednesday: Roman Catholic, Protestant.

Feb. 21 — Idul-Fir, end of the fast of Ramadan (exact date dependent upon lunar calendar): Islam.

Feb. 26 — Eastern Orthodox Lent begins.

April 4-11 — Passover begins at sundown April 3 and ends at sundown April 11 (the first two days and last two days are holiday observances): Jewish.

April 5 — Good Friday: Roman Catholic, Protestant.

April 21 — Festival of Ridvan: Baha'i.

May 16 — Ascension Day: Roman Catholic, Protestant.

May 19 — Muharram (New Year, exact date dependent upon lunar calendar): Islam.

May 23 — Ascension Day: Orthodox Christian.

May 24-25 — Shavuot begins at sundown May 23 and ends at sundown May 25: Jewish.

Carver, Bloomsburg's interdisciplinary journal, welcomes submissions for its 1996 edition. Articles (2,000 to 4,000 words), poems, photographs and illustrations are welcome. For more information, contact Lawrence Fuller, professor of English, at 4717.

Black History Month begins with MLK banquet

Bloomsburg's observance of Black History Month in February will begin with the university's third annual Martin Luther King Commemorative Banquet Thursday, Feb. 1, at 6 p.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

Throughout February, Bloomsburg will host lectures which focus on racial issues and the contributions of African-Americans to the United States.

The theme of the banquet is "Cherishing the Past, Challenging the Present, Chiseling the Future." The keynote speaker will be Harold E. Cheatham, professor and head of the department of counseling education, counseling psychology, and rehabilitation services at Penn State University. Cheatham is coauthor of the book Campus Pluralism. He is also president of the American College Personnel Association.

Entertainment for the banquet will be provided by the Concert Choir, directed by Eric Nelson, associate professor of music, and by the Bloomsburg University Dance Ensemble, directed by Danielle Eves of the Bloomsburg School of Dance.

The highlight of the banquet will be the presentation of the Martin Luther King Jr. Humanitarian Service Award to the Bloomsburg faculty/staff and student member whose service to the university best exemplifies the realization of King's dream.

Reservations for the banquet are $13 for adults and $8 for students with a meal plan. To make reservations, contact Bonita Franks, associate professor of curriculum and foundations, at 389-4638 or 387-5261.

Other Black History Month events include:

■ Friday, Feb. 2, Cheatham will talk on "Mending the Racial Divide: Strategies for Facilitating Campus Pluralism" at 11 a.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

HAROLD CHEATHAM

Featured speaker for Martin Luther King Banquet.

■ Wednesday, Feb. 14, a panel discussion will be held at 7 p.m. in McCormick Center, Forum. The discussion will focus on a video presentation, "Vision 2,000: Celebrate the Difference," produced by Atty. Patricia Russell-McCloud, president of the Links, Inc.

■ Wednesday, Feb. 28, Carter Woodson, the father of Black History month, will speak on W.E.B. DuBois.

■ In April, Bloomsburg will host an African-American Art Exhibit in the Multicultural Center. Artistic consultant for the exhibit will be Frank Morris, a free-lance artist and trustee emeritus of the Copley Society, Boston, Mass.

DEALING WITH EMERGENCY

Ann Lee named interim dean of the College of Professional Studies

Ann Lee has been appointed interim dean of the College of Professional Studies. She will serve in that capacity until September or until a permanent dean is named.

Lee serves as dean in place of Howard Macauley, who retired in December after 28 years at Bloomsburg.

Lee has been the assistant dean of the College of Professional Studies for the school of education since 1990. She has served as a faculty member in the department of communication disorders and special education since 1978.

Robert Gates, assistant professor of curriculum and foundations, has been named assistant dean for the School of Education in Lee's place.

Lee was executive director of the Easter Seal Society of Central Pennsylvania from 1973 to 1978.

She holds bachelor's and master's degrees in communication disorders and special education from Bloomsburg University, and a doctorate in elementary, early childhood and special education from Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Lee was a preschool teacher for the Easter Seal Society of Central Pennsylvania for three years and also has served as head teacher for Columbia County Department of Special Education.

Brasch skewers media in book Enquiring Minds and Space Aliens

Media people — from television, newspapers and radio — pride themselves on paying attention to what the rest of the world is doing.

Bloomsburg mass communications professor Walter Brasch prides himself on paying attention to what media people are doing. Brasch's latest book (his ninth), Enquiring Minds and Space Aliens, compiles three years of observations of media and media people selected from his weekly syndicated newspaper column.

"The media think they have to report on society, but they get upset when someone reports on them," says Brasch. "There's more media than at any other time. But they have a smaller share of the market."

Brasch's columns, from which the book is drawn, won second place last year in National Society of Newspapers for the humor and general excellence categories. The column runs in about 30 newspapers in Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Massachusetts, California, Indiana, and Illinois. Before coming to Bloomsburg, Brasch was a writer and editor for newspapers and magazines.

Contrasting his voice with that of Marshbaum — a foil in the Art Buchwald tradition — Brasch often wields satire to cut through pretension and dishonesty. But the points are scored with an eye toward informing, as well as amusing, ordinary readers.

"I find that too often writers and columnists write for editors and politicians and not for the masses," says Brasch. "I'd rather have 10 blue-collar readers than 50 opinion leaders."

Much of Brasch's criticism of the media is leveled at an increasingly corporate mentality in journalism — a mentality that he says trims newsroom staffs to increase company profits at the expense of journalistic quality.

Released in November, Enquiring Minds is available at Walden bookshops throughout the state, Friar Tuck bookshop at the Columbia Mall, Friends in Mind bookshop in the Market Street shopping center and Phillips Emporium in downtown Bloomsburg. The book is published by Mayfly Publishers, Chicago, which focuses on books by and about journalists. Brasch has two more books in the works.

TALE Center sponsors seminars, lunchtime talks

The Teaching and Learning Enhancement Committee (TALE) has planned a series of continuing seminars and lunchtime discussions during the spring semester.

The seminars, which will meet approximately four times during the semester, will generally be held in the Teaching and Learning Enhancement Center, which is located in the rear of the annex of the University Store. The center consists of an office and meeting room. JoAnne Growney, professor of mathematics and computer science, directs the activities and programs of the center.

The lunchtime research discussions will be held Wednesdays at noon in the Kehr Union, room 409, starting Jan. 31. Those interested are invited to bring a lunch and enjoy discussions with faculty about their research activities.

For more information about the seminars and other TALE programs, contact Growney in her mathematics department office at 4503 or at the TALE center at 4310.

SEMESTER-LONG SEMINARS

The seminars, and their first meeting dates, are listed below. All sessions will be in the TALE Center.

Academic Integrity — Tuesday, Jan. 30, 3:30 p.m. Interested faculty are invited to a session devoted to planning discussions with students on academic integrity issues. Organizer is Marion Mason, assistant professor of psychology.

Radical Pedagogy — Tuesday, Jan. 30, 7 p.m. Discussion will focus on teaching inspired by Bell Hooks and Paulo Friere. Organizer is Mike McCully, associate professor of English.

Teaching Support Program — Friday, Feb. 2, 3 p.m. An orientation/discussion meeting for faculty who have volunteered (or would like to volunteer) as consultants in the TALE Teaching Support Program. Organizer is JoAnne Growney, professor of mathematics and computer science.

Arts in the Sciences — Monday, Feb. 5, 5:15 p.m. Ideas on integrating artistic themes into science curricula will be exchanged. Organizer is Karen Trifonoff, assistant professor of geography and earth science.

Diversity Issues — Wednesday, Feb. 7, 5:15 p.m. This session will feature the showing and discussion of a film segment which portrays different treatment of African-American and European American men in a variety of situations. Do we treat people in a similar way at Bloomsburg? Organizers are Irv Wright, assistant professor of developmental instruction, Jim Dalton, professor of psychology, and Sue Jackson, associate professor of sociology and social welfare.

How to Use Portfolios to Show Performances in Competency — Wednesday, Feb. 14, 4 p.m. Organizer is Rosemary Radziewich, assistant professor of curriculum and foundations.

Chinese refugees' artwork on exhibit in Kehr Union

Bloomsburg will hold an exhibit of Chinese folded paper art created by refugees who tried to be smuggled into the United States. The exhibit will run through Jan. 31 in the Kehr Union's Multicultural Center.

The Chinese refugees found themselves detained in the York County Prison after the ship they were smuggled aboard, the Golden Venture, ran aground in Long Island Sound in June, 1993. The 284 refugees aboard had agreed to pay $30,000 each to be smuggled into the U.S. They have been detained in several prisons throughout the U.S. to await decisions on their pleas for asylum. Since then, five have been granted asylum, a handful have been deported, and still more have agreed to return to China.

"The Music Never Stops," a multimedia lecture and concert celebration of Jerry Garcia and the Grateful Dead will be presented at Bloomsburg Friday, Feb. 2.

Peter Shapiro, producer of the documentary "Tie-Died," will present a multimedia lecture at 7 p.m. in Mitrani Hall. "After Dark," New York City's premier Grateful Dead cover band, will perform at 9 p.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

One ticket gains admission to both parts of the program. Tickets are $3 with a community activities sticker and $5 for others. Tickets may be purchased at the Kehr Union Information Desk, and Pro Audio and Mugsy's Records in Bloomsburg.

LUNCHTIME RESEARCH DISCUSSIONS

Discussions will be held Wednesdays at noon in Kehr Union, room 409.

A Definition of 'Sonificante' in Góngora — Jan. 31. Solange Garcia-Moll, assistant professor of languages and cultures, will track the components and mechanisms of the 'Sonificante' in three sonnets by Luis de Góngora. Musical counterparts will be supplied.

Geologic Mapping in Pennsylvania — Feb. 7. Duane Braun, professor of geography and earth science, will discuss a project to map the distribution of glacial deposits in a 10,000-square-mile area of Northeastern Pennsylvania. The project combines applied research, basic research and student participation.

Rhetorical Trajectories of Guilt and Shame in the Cochlear Implant Debate — Feb. 14. Kara Shultz, assistant professor of communication studies, will explore the controversies about cochlear implants.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

8 FEB 96

Five honored with Martin Luther King award

Five individuals were awarded the university's Martin Luther King Humanitarian Award at the annual Martin Luther King Commemorative Banquet.

Honored were faculty members Sue Jackson, associate professor of sociology and social welfare; Nancy Gill, associate professor of English; and Madhav Sharma, coordinator of international education; as well as students Shareen Silva and Carl Jones.

The featured speaker for the evening was Harold Cheatham, chairperson of the department of counselor education, counseling psychology and rehabilitation services at Penn State University. Bloomsburg's concert choir provided entertainment.

Among the honorees' achievements:

Sue Jackson has served on the University-Community Task Force on Racial Equity. As a member of the Task Force's training the trainers program, she has worked with numerous organizations to increase sensitivity to racial, gender, sexual orientation and other issues. She has also served as a Peace Corps volunteer from 1965 to 1967.

Nancy Gill has undertaken several long-term projects to boost the creativity of students, including students at Martin Luther King High School in Philadelphia. She has also been active in the International Society for Teaching Alternatives and is a leader in starting the annual Diversity Conference for Area Colleges.

Madhav Sharma has worked to increase the number of international students who come to Bloomsburg University and strengthen the university's ties with other colleges around the world. He has helped organize a number of community outreach programs, including the Gandhi Festival, celebrations of Chinese and Nepalese new years, and numerous international festivals.

Student Shareen Silva has mentored students as a program assistant in the department of developmental instruction and in the College Sampler Program. She is president of the Association of Hispanic Students and a copy editor and writer for the student newspaper, The Voice.

Student Carl Jones has mentored many black and latino students at the university. He has been involved in the Black Cultural Society, Help Orientate Other College Hopefuls and Students Together Alleviating Racial Tension. He has helped in diversity training workshops on and off-campus.

Black History Month events

■ Wednesday, Feb. 14, a panel discussion will be held at 7 p.m. in McCormick Center, Forum. The discussion will focus on a video presentation, "Vision 2,000: Celebrate the Difference," produced by Atty. Patricia Russell-McCloud, president of the Links, Inc.

■ Wednesday, Feb. 28, Carter Woodson, the father of Black History month, will speak on W.E.B. DuBois.

■ In April, Bloomsburg will host an African-American Art Exhibit in the Multicultural Center. Artistic consultant for the exhibit will be Frank Morris, a free-lance artist and trustee emeritus of the Copley Society, Boston, Mass.

Communiqué

A newsletter for Bloomsburg University faculty and staff, Communiqué publishes news of activities, events and developments at Bloomsburg University bi-weekly throughout the academic year.

Bloomsburg is committed to providing equal educational and employment opportunities for all persons without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, ancestry, life-style, sexual orientation, disabilities, Vietnam-era veteran, or union membership.

The university is additionally committed to affirmative action and will take positive steps to provide such educational and employment opportunities.

An explanation of Campus Notes

I encounter a lot of confusion about the Campus Notes section of the Communiqué.

Many people think they are just for faculty. In fact, any university employee can submit items to be included in Campus Notes.

Campus Notes are about people doing things. For the faculty, that is often publishing a paper or making a conference presentation. But they may be about other things as well.

Presenting a program for high school students, for example.

Staff here also doing things that can be included in Campus Notes. Items might include leadership in community organizations or a community project.

Two types of items we don't run: notes about conferences attended and notes about most presentations made on-campus.

Eric Foster, editor.

Kozloff appointed to NCAA commission

President Jessica Kozloff is one of nine new members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's (NCAA) Presidents Commission. Members of the Presidents Commission are selected by their peers at NCAA schools.

The 44-member commission serves as a leadership structure and forum for presidential interests in major policy matters in college athletics. Concerns of the commission include ethical conduct, fairness, academic standards and the primacy of the educational mission of colleges and universities.

Kozloff also serves on other national bodies. She is a member of the Presidential Policies and Purposes Committee for the American Association of Stage Colleges and Universities and also the Commission on Leadership Development for the American Council on Education.

Compressed class schedule

Due to bad weather, it is necessary occasionally to delay the opening of the university. When it has been decided to delay opening, the university will follow a compressed schedule rather than cancelling early morning classes entirely.

Labs, physical education, art studio and clinical classes that meet for two or more consecutive meeting times will meet for the same number of adjusted sessions.

Quest plans extended trips, abroad and in the States

Quest, Bloomsburg's outdoor adventure program, is sponsoring a series of trips during spring semester, summer, and next fall. Registration and trip information is available in the ground floor of Simon Hall, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information, call the Quest office at 4323.

The trips include:

Spring Break

March 8 - 17. Cost: $175 Bloomsburg student; $275 other

Quest will travel south to North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee this spring for whitewater paddling, backpacking, and rock climbing. Rivers include the Hiwassee, the Ocoee, the lower Tellico, and Little River Canyon.

Western United States Trip

May 16 - June 9. Cost: $675 Bloomsburg student; $800 other

Travel with Quest to Utah, Colorado, and New Mexico. This year we plan to run 100 miles of the Dolores River and climb a 14,000 foot peak in the San Juan mountains.

Andes of Peru Trip

May 20 - June 16. Cost: $1,600 Bloomsburg student; $1,900 other

Trekking trip through the Andes of Peru into the impressive Cordillera Blanca Range across terraced hill-sides in valleys originally peopled by the Incas, but deserted from the times of the Spanish Conquistadores. Travelers will trek in the rain forest of the Amazon Basin before travelling to Cuzco, where we'll trek the ancient Inca trail to Machu Picchu, one of the most magnificent archaeological sites in South America.

Walking Trips in Europe

Walk through the quiet and beautiful countryside of Europe this summer on walking trips to England, July 4 - 16; France, June 18 - July 2; Scotland, Sept. 20 - Oct. 2; and Ireland, Aug. 2 - 15.

Sail from the Caribbean to New York

Departure dates from Antigua: May 6 or 13. Cost: $2,000

Experience an adventure by sea, and sail the 70-foot sailboat Zora (used by President Clinton) from the Caribbean to Martha's Vineyard. Passage should take around 10 to 12 days depending on the weather.

Adventure Trips- Summer 1996

Quest will offer 2-week trips in New England and Canada this summer. Activities will include canoeing, rock climbing, and backpacking.

Cross Country Ski Weekend for Women

March 1 - 3. Cost: $110 Bloomsburg student; $150 other

Experience winter on a pair of cross country skis, gliding through the forests and groomed ski trails of Crystal Lake. This weekend includes three meals, lodging, trail fees, and ski equipment. No experience is necessary.

Backpacking Basics for Women

May 6, 11 - 12. Cost: $30 Bloomsburg student; $75 other

Designed for the woman with little or no backpacking experience. Learn basic backpacking skills such as proper clothing and footwear, packfitting, camp stove operation, and cooking.

Biking in Europe

July 18 - 29. Cost $1,400

A great way to see Europe. Starting with a day in Amsterdam, we will bike through some of the most beautiful country of Holland and Belgium. The trip is designed for the weekend biker with accommodations in bed and breakfasts and country inns.

Paintings of trees recall haven from childhood trauma for artist

Paintings by Mariam Kurman will be on display in Haas Gallery Feb. 13 through March 7. The exhibit is sponsored in part by Bloomsburg's commission on the status of women. A reception will be held for Kurman on Wednesday, March 6, from noon to 2 p.m.

Kurman once worked exclusively in black and white; but her latest works include a series of color paintings titled, "Trees with Gold — Mysteries." The series is a continuation of an identity-forming artistic process that has carried Kurman through life.

Now working for a masters in counseling psychology, Kurman has only recently understood the source of inspiration for her latest paintings. As a young girl, she lost her brother in an accident. In response to this tragedy, Kurman would go into the woods by her house to think about her brother, and about life.

The trees in her paintings are reminiscent of these times, and the series is part of an ongoing healing process through artistic expression. Bathed in a light that "perhaps comes from within," Kurman says that the paintings represent a "transforming into life, a transcending of the spirit to survive trauma." They are, for Kurman, a visual expression of the "unknown spirit" that enables us to keep going through both the trials and the mundanity of life.

The artistic process has been a form of survival for Kurman. It is something she knows she must do, although she is not always sure why, or where it will lead her. "Art builds over time," she says. "It is part of your inner strength and structure. It takes you where you want to go, but you must allow it to carry you along. It does not work if you impose your will on it. You must trust in the process."

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

Sankofa Conference attracts students from across state

Approximately 400 students from throughout the state are expected to attend Bloomsburg University's second annual "Sankofa Conference" on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 23 and 24. The two-day conference will be devoted to African and African-American History. Sankofa is an Ethiopian word meaning "using the wisdom of the past to build the future."

The conference will include a variety of workshops, a film screening and the performance of a play, all of which are free and open to the public.

The conference will begin Friday, Feb. 23, with registration and a reception in the Kehr Union Multicultural Center from 4 to 7 p.m. At 8 p.m., the controversial film "Sankofa" will be shown in the Kehr Union Multicultural Center followed by a discussion.

Written, directed and produced by Ethiopian-born filmmaker Haile Gerima, "Sankofa" blends the contemporary reality of African descendants with the experience of slavery. The film wowed audiences at the Berlin International Film Festival in 1993, but distributors were frightened away by the controversial nature of the film. The film was screened in the U.S. only after a committee of African-American supporters rented a theater for one week to show "Sankofa." One week grew to 11 and calls came from across the country to show the film.

Saturday's program includes several groups of workshops. Featured speakers will include Harriet Schiffer, who will give the opening address at 10 a.m. in the Multicultural Center, and Rev. Ron Sailor, who will speak during the buffet brunch.

Schiffer, a former researcher on government and community development in Ghana, is an importer and distributor of authentic Kente cloth, produced in villages in Ghana. Schiffer will discuss the significance and history of Kente cloth.

Sailor, a member of the board of directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was a featured speaker at last year's Million Man March on Washington. Sailor is currently associate pastor of Mount Moriah Baptist Church in Atlanta.

The afternoon workshops will include: "Roots, Pride and Culture," "African Secret Societies," "African-American/Latino Relations," "Can We Exhale!" "From 1963 to the Million Man March," "Success Runs in Our Race," "The Entertainment Business and the Minority Community," "Students Together Making a Difference," "Beginning a Business in the Community," and "Being Greek on a Predominately White Campus."

The play "Black Man Rising" will be presented Saturday evening, from 8 to 10 p.m., in Mitrani Hall, Haas Center for the Arts.

The film, workshops, and play are all free and open to the public. There is a $20 fee for those who wish to participate in the buffet brunch and dinner on Saturday.

For more information, contact Thom Nixon, director of the Multicultural Center, at 4510.

NOW president to speak in March

Patricia Ireland, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), will speak at Bloomsburg University on Thursday, March 21. Ireland will speak at 4 p.m. on "1996 Equality Countdown Campaign: Why We Need to Organize Around Feminist Issues," and at 7:30 p.m. on "Beginning with a Single Step: Taking Action, Creating Change." Both lectures, free and open to the public, will be held in the Kehr Union Ballroom. Ireland's appearance is part of Bloomsburg's Provost's Lecture Series and observance of Women's History Month.

Ireland is the ninth president of NOW, the largest women's rights organization in the world with 250,000 members. Fighting for women's rights is nothing new for Ireland. While at the University of Miami School of Law, Ireland and some friends used toy bows and arrows and water pistols to disrupt a ceremony of the men-only Iron Arrow honor society, the highest honor bestowed by the university.

A former corporate attorney for 12 years, Ireland has worked to broaden NOW's appeal.

Her long-term goal for NOW is to "work ourselves out of business." In other words, gain the equality for women that would make the organization obsolete.

News briefs

Orientation packets being prepared

■ The new student orientation packet is being prepared now. The orientation packet is traditionally the first information source for new students. In July, the packet is intended to give students information regarding academic scheduling and policies as well. The August packet is more generalized and includes information that will help students make the transition to college life. Groups interested in including a one page flyer or brochure in the orientation packet should contact the orientation office at 4595 by March 1.

Evening study rooms available

■ In addition to Andruss Library and Kehr Union, groups of students may study in Bakeless Center, rooms 103, 104 and 105, from 9 to 11 p.m. daily, and in Hartline Center, room 23, from 5 to 11 p.m. daily.

'Jazz Night' to feature guest trombonist John Fedchock

Bloomsburg will host an evening of jazz performances Thursday, March 7, in Mitrani Hall, Haas Center.

Bloomsburg's own Studio Band will perform beginning at 8 p.m. with guest trombonist John Fedchock. Fedchock will have a preconcert jam session with the Vic Boris Trio beginning at 7:15 p.m. in Mitrani Hall. The performances are free and open to the public.

Fedchock established his career as a jazz trombonist in 1980 when he joined the Woody Herman Orchestra. He toured with Herman's "Thundering Herd" for seven years and served as musical coordinator and chief arranger in the production of Herman's last two Grammy-nominated albums, 50th Anniversary Tour and Woody's Gold Star. Fedchock has worked with a wide array of artists, including Cab Calloway, Rosemary Clooney, Flip Phillips, Nancy Wilson, Tony Bennett, Dizzy Gillespie and Sarah Vaughn.

Fedchock is now leader of The John Fedchock Big Band, a 16-piece group comprised of alumni from major big bands and members of New York's contemporary jazz scene. The band's debut recording, New York Big Band, received high praise from critics, including a 4 1/2 star review in Down Beat magazine.

John Fedchock

The Bloomsburg University Studio Band, directed by Stephen C. Wallace, chairperson of the department of music, features 17 instrumentalists and a vocalist. The band's repertoire consists of big band classics, swing and contemporary selections. The Studio Band will perform three of Fedchock's compositions.

The Vic Boris trio features Boris on keyboards and vocals, Rob Ensinger on bass and guitar and Todd Egger on drums.

Fedchock will present an open clinic on the topic of jazz improvisation at 6:15 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts, room 116.

University police sponsor conference on 'Women in Law Enforcement'

The Bloomsburg University police department is sponsoring a Women in Law Enforcement conference on Wednesday, March 13.

Law enforcement personnel from five states have been invited to the conference, according to organizer Margaret Boykin, director of university police.

Featured speakers include Mary V. Leftridge Byrd, superintendent of the State Correctional Institution at Muncy, and Stella DePaulo, a faculty member at East Stroudsburg University. Leftridge Byrd will speak on "Women in Criminal Justice: Archifacts for Justice," while DePaulo will speak on "Coping for Cops: A Woman's Guide to Self-Empowerment."

Boykin expects about 60 people to attend the conference. The conference co-organizer is Sgt. Cindy Bogart of East Stroudsburg University.

The conference will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Kehr Union and is open to all female law enforcement, security, and criminal justice personnel. There is an $8.50 charge for lunch. Those interested in attending should contact Boykin at 4170 by Feb. 23.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

7 MARCH 96

Provost's Lecture, conference highlight Women's History Month

Women's History Month this March will be observed at Bloomsburg with two major events.

The major events scheduled to honor women's history are a speaking engagement by National Organization for Women (NOW) president Patricia Ireland Thursday, March 21, and the 16th annual Women's Conference for Columbia and Montour Counties, held on the university campus Saturday, March 30.

The theme of this year's National Women's History Month is, "See History in a New Way." The role of women in history has often been given less significance than that of men. The purpose of this theme is to show that when all the achievements, stories, and contributions made by women are added to traditional history, history is viewed in another light and takes on new aspects.

"In contrast to previous observances of Women's History Month, our program this year is more strongly focused on major events," says Kara Shultz, assistant professor of communication studies and a member of the university's Commission on the Status of Women.

There are other activities planned in the spirit of women's history month throughout the semester. "The events are spread out this year so that individuals can attend more programs," says Shultz.

NOW president to address women's equality

Patricia Ireland, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), will speak at Bloomsburg on Thursday, March 21, as part of the Provost's Lecture Series. Her workshop at 4 p.m. focuses on, "1996 Equality Countdown Campaign: Why We Need to Organize Around Feminist Issues." She will speak at 7:30 p.m. on, "Beginning with a Single Step: Taking Action, Creating Change." Both will be located in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

Ireland's former professor from the University of Miami, Alan Swan, has noted her leadership abilities. "She was always very persuasive in dealing with people who didn't share her values," he told Miami Magazine. "She always kept her militancy in rather good perspective and was more interested in being effective than being noisy."

Ireland's people skills were honed during seven years with Pan Am. "I learned how to deal with all kinds of people in all kinds of moods. I knew that once they closed the door on the airplane, I could be locked in with these people for as long as ten hours..." said Ireland in the summer 1994 issue of Miami Magazine.

Ireland's leadership abilities have been

University student dies of meningitis

On Tuesday, Feb. 27, a Bloomsburg University student died of meningococcal meningitis. The student was Michael Varano, a sophomore mass communications major from Southampton. He lived off-campus at 501 East Third Street.

According to the Pennsylvania Department of Health, meningococcal meningitis is a relatively rare disease that usually occurs as a single isolated event and is spread by direct close personal contact with the nose or throat discharges of an infected person.

At press time, no other members of the university community exhibited any symptoms of having been exposed to the bacteria. The source of Varano's infection was also undetermined.

The Department of Health advised the university that casual contact as might occur in a classroom setting is not significant enough to cause concern and there was no need to quarantine the campus or to administer any vaccine. Direct exposure to oral or nasal secretions, such as exposure to coughing or sneezing, or the sharing of eating utensils or drinking containers increases the likelihood of infection. Symptoms usually appear within five days of exposure. Those symptoms include fever, severe headache, stiff neck, vomiting, rash, and lethargy. These symptoms may resemble those associated with an upper respiratory infection.

Students, faculty and staff concerned about their exposure to the bacteria should contact the Bloomsburg University Health Center at 4451.

Campus notes

Raymond S. Pastore and Stefanie A. Pastore, assistant professors of curriculum and foundations, recently made several presentations at the 33rd annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association for Educational Communications and Technology. Their sessions were titled "Future Technology for Future Teachers" and "Resources for Technology Planning."

Shaheen N. Awan, associate professor of communication disorders and special education, has written a paper titled "Development of a Low-Cost Nasalance Acquisition System" which appears in Pathologies of Speech and Language: Contributions of Clinical Phonetics and Linguistics.

Linda LeMura, professor of health and physical education, has written a paper, "Interrelationships Between Plasma K+ Concentration, Pulmonary Ventilation and Electrocardiographic Change After Highly Intense Work," which has been accepted by The Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics.

Connie Schick, professor of psychology, and J. David Arnold, dean of faculty at St. John Fisher College in Rochester, N.Y., recently presented "How to Build a Learning Community: A Guide for Psychologists" at the 18th Annual National Institute on the Teaching of Psychology in St. Petersburg Beach, Fla.

Michael Vavrek, dean of the School of Extended Programs, was recently installed as the 1996-97 president of the Pennsylvania Association for Adult Continuing Education. The more than 800 members of the association represent the five major components of adult education in the state: adult basic education, continuing higher education, literacy, English as a second language, and business and industry training.

Donald Pratt, associate professor of curriculum and foundations and executive secretary of the School Science and Mathematics Association, recently negotiated a contract with several Arkansas educational organizations for a joint science/mathematics conference for K-12 instruction. The meeting will be held in November 1996 in Little Rock. Pratt also is planning a possible joint conference with the Pennsylvania Science Teachers Association to be held in Hershey in December.

Gary F. Clark, associate professor of art, has his computer artworks exhibited in a number of invitational shows, including: "Digital Dialects: National and Regional Digital Artists," Creiger-Dane Gallery, Boston, Mass.; "The Electronic Muse: Digital Artists, Designers and Photographers," Arthur B. society. It is an opportunity for women to form networks, showcase their talent, exchange information, pay tribute to their role models (or find new ones), and celebrate the fact that they are women.

The cost of the conference is $17, but scholarships are available. The cost includes lunch.

The conference will begin with registration from 8 to 8:50 a.m. in the Kehr Union, Multicultural Center. The conference will feature music and art exhibits, and the Women's Wall, on which attendees can write the name and a few words about a woman who has helped them build their life.

The opening session, following registration, will include a keynote address by Marjorie Margolies-Mezvinsky titled, "Beyond Beijing." A member of the U.S. House of Representatives for one-term, Margolies-Mezvinsky's address will focus on her experiences as the director of the United States delegation to the UN World Conference on Women. As a former television journalist, she has won five Emmys.

Four sessions of workshops will follow the opening session. Attendees have from over 100 workshops to choose from.

A "Meet the Artists" reception in the Multicultural Center will precede the closing ceremony, which includes a speech, "The One Journey Toward Self and Community," by Beth Stratton and Rosemary Neidig. Stratton and Neidig are both experienced in working with individuals to build their sense of self and self-esteem.

There will be an informal reception at Russell's Restaurant after the conference closes.

Attendees of the women's conference can go on a Quest Women's Waterfall Day Hike at Ricketts Glen State Park the day after the conference. The cost of the trip is $15.

For more information about the conference, contact Linda Gramling at 4003. — Lisa Stockmal

Forum scheduled to air women's concerns

Lynn Yeakel, regional director of Health and Human Services, and Susan McGann, regional director of the Small Business Administration, will hold an open hearing Thursday, March 21, in Kehr Union, multipurpose room A, from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Yeakel is a former candidate for U.S. Senate.

The purpose of the meeting is to hear concerns of women so they can be relayed to the White House.

New honor society recognizes students admitted by non-traditional means

An honor society for college students admitted through non-traditional means was recently founded at Bloomsburg. Twenty-two Bloomsburg students were inducted as the founding members of the Chi Alpha Epsilon National Honor Society, Nu chapter.

The induction ceremony was conducted by honor society's national founder, Elbert Saddler of West Chester University. Janice Feimster Walters, Nu chapter advisor, assisted. The chapter charter was presented to Jesse Bryan, director of Act 101 and chair of the department of developmental instruction, at a public reception. The charter was then received on behalf of the university by President Jessica Kozloff, who spoke at the event.

Bloomsburg's 22 founding members were the greatest number of inductees admitted in a single ceremony among the society's 13 chapters. Founded in 1990, Chi Alpha Epsilon was organized to recognize achievements of students who were admitted to the university via developmental or higher education opportunity types of programs. Membership is open to full-time students who hold a 3.0 cumulative G.P.A. for two consecutive semesters.

The society's purposes are to promote continued high academic standards, to foster communication among its members, and to honor academic excellence achieved by those students admitted to college through developmental programs. The average G.P.A. of the Bloomsburg chapter members is 3.39, while ten of the members hold G.P.A.s over 3.5. All of the members were admitted through Bloomsburg's Act 101 or Education Opportunity programs.

An honor society for college students admitted through non-traditional means was recently founded at Bloomsburg. Shown above are Jessie Bryan, chairperson of the department of developmental instruction, who was presented with the honor society charter, and Janice Feimster Walters, advisor to the honor society.

Racial Equity Task Force trainers held workshops for 14 organizations in 1995

The University-Community Task Force on Racial Equity's trainers service worked with 14 organizations to increase the groups' awareness of diversity issues last year. The training time totaled 145 hours to work with 2,412 individuals from the region.

Representing 14 social, educational and community groups, these individuals participated in workshops designed to help create a community where diversity is celebrated.

The 14 groups that participated in the diversity training workshops included secondary and middle school students and personnel, Bloomsburg University student groups and new students, church groups and community organizations.

The diversity training workshops, offered at no cost to participants, range from two hours to a half or whole day depending on the needs of individual groups. The more than 20 workshop trainers are available to conduct sessions for any community group wanting to learn more about issues of cultural diversity and inclusion.

For further information, contact Joan Mosier, training program coordinator, 784-1656, or co-chairs of the task force, Irvin Wright, 389-4492, or Tom Evans, 784-7703.

Brettschneider books study Jewish American politics

Marla Brettschneider, assistant professor of political science, has written two books which examine Jewish and Jewish American politics.

The first, Cornerstones of Peace: Jewish Identity Politics and Democratic Theory, which was published by Rutgers University Press this winter.

A book reception will be held for Brettschneider Tuesday, March 26, at 6 p.m. in the Kehr Union, Multicultural Center.

Brettschneider has edited another book, The Narrow Bridge: Jewish Views on Multiculturalism, which will be published by Rutgers University Press in the summer.

"Both books are grounded in a Jewish perspective of political philosophy and political activism," says Brettschneider. "They're pushing boundaries and exploring alternatives in democratic theory and practice."

Rather than focus on the role of individuals in democracy, both of Brettschneider's works look at the role of groups in politics and the relationships between groups.

"Cornerstones of Peace takes the American Jewish community and looks at it as a polity — at how a fundamental aspect of the American Jewish community has been changing with regard to being pro-Israel," says Brettschneider.

"Formerly, pro-Israel meant pro-Israeli government. That view totally obscures the vibrant political processes at work in the American Jewish community."

The Narrow Bridge is concerned with the impact that multiculturalism has on Jewish people. "Jews are profoundly affected by notions of multiculturalism. It can be very empowering and also quite dangerous. In politics, alliances are shifting. We're not sure who our allies are."

Faculty team up to teach better through TALE mentor program

Faculty who would like a fresh perspective on their teaching methods can find a partner to help through the TALE (Teaching and Learning Enhancement) committee.

"The teaching support program is for faculty who are interested in making changes and would like help," says JoAnne Growney, math professor and TALE Center director.

Faculty can choose a faculty partner — a consultant — to work with from a list provided by TALE. The partner is to help colleagues find their teaching strengths and weaknesses and to support them in making changes they desire.

The teaching support program may include a variety of activities. Faculty can visit each other's classes to observe teaching methods and later discuss their observations. Participants in the program can also have their classes video taped.

"While teaching, many professors get so wrapped up in what they are doing that they can't be objective about it," says Growney. "The videotaping helps to solve that problem by putting the subjective experience of teaching in an objective form that can be analyzed later."

"This is not a remedial program, but a growth program," said Growney. "We expect that the consultant and the subject will learn from each other. Ultimately, the TALE program aims to help faculty members enjoy their classes more as well as increase student learning."

For more information about TALE, call Growney at 4503 or 4310.

Other materials are available in the TALE Center, which is located in the rear of the University Store.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

21 MARCH 96

Surgeon General nominee Henry Foster to speak

Dr. Henry W. Foster, candidate in 1995 for U.S. Surgeon General, will speak at Bloomsburg University's fifth annual Health Sciences Symposium on April 11 and 12. The symposium is presented in conjunction with the Provost's Lecture Series.

Foster will give the keynote address for the symposium, "Future Investments: Confronting Health Issues of American Youth," Thursday, April 11, at 7:30 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts, Mitrani Hall. He will give a workshop, "Action Plans for Resolving Health Issues of American Youth," Friday, April 12, at 8:30 a.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

An obstetrician/gynecologist as well as a medical educator, Foster is the dean of the school of medicine and acting president at Meharry Medical College. In 1994, Foster served as senior scholar-in-residence at the Association of Academic Health Centers in Washington, D.C. Among Foster's many awards and honors is his induction into the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences.

The White House has recognized Dr. Foster as one of the nation's leading authorities on reducing infant mortality and preventing teen pregnancy and drug abuse.

He developed and directed the "I Have a Future Program," at Meharry. The program aims at reducing teen pregnancy by stressing abstinence. In 1991, President Bush recognized the program as one of the nation's "Thousand Points of Light."

Academic Affairs area reorganization announced

Wilson Bradshaw, provost and vice president for academic affairs has announced a reorganization of his area. The changes were presented to APSCUF for discussion and reaction at a meet and discuss meeting earlier this month.

"These are simply fine tuning adjustments," said Bradshaw. "Our ultimate goal is to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the university's academic affairs area." Transition to the new structure is already underway with July 1 established as the official effective date for all changes.

The most noticeable changes include the relocation of academic computing from administration area to academic affairs and the renaming of extended programs to continuing and distance education. Several units and functions within academic affairs will change reporting lines including:

Functions related to summer sessions and off-campus credit study programming will be performed by the academic deans and the office of the registrar rather than extended programs.

Cooperative education/academic internships will report to academic support services rather than extended programs.

Foundation Board president, vice president, new member named

Bloomsburg University Foundation Executive Director Anthony Ianiero has announced changes in the organization's board for 1996.

Elbern H. Alkire, Jr. of Emmaus and Mrs. Victoria L. Mihalik of Millville have been elected president and vice president respectively, and Mrs. Joan S. Corson of Bloomsburg was named to the board.

Alkire is the executive consultant in residence to the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education. Working with the system chancellor and the director of the Office of Continuous Improvement, Alkire is applying the principles of continuous quality improvement to the State System and its 14 universities.

He was employed by Air Products and Chemicals, Inc. of Allentown for 33 years following four years with General Electric. He has served on numerous boards including stints as a trustee at Lafayette College and Bloomsburg. He has been with the Foundation since 1992.

Mihalik works as preschool director for the Bloomsburg Area YMCA following more than 30 years in education. She served in several capacities with the Central Susquehanna Intermediate Unit from 1972-1981 including diagnostic teacher, diagnostic teaching consultant and coordinator, individual education program for the Education of All Handicapped Act.

Prior to joining the CSIU, she

Russian educator to speak April 9

Russian education official Evgenii Kodin will speak at Bloomsburg University Tuesday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Kehr Union, Multicultural Center.

Kodin, vice rector of the Smolensk State Pedagogical Institute in Russia as well as an expert on Russian political history, will speak on "The Russian System of Higher Education Today: From Chaos to Reform?" The speech is free and open to the public.

Kodin's three-day visit, which is sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences and the departments of history and political science, will include discussions with faculty and students. In addition, Kodin will meet with university officials to discuss an exchange program between the institutions.

He is a graduate of the Moscow Pedagogical Institute with advanced degrees in history and English. He has authored several books on 20th century Russian political history as well as major articles on the role of teachers in contemporary Russian society.

For more information about Kodin's visit, contact Michael Hickey, assistant professor of history, at 4161.

Soap opera expert to visit campus

An expert on soap operas will speak on campus on Monday, March 25, at 6 p.m. in Kuster Auditorium of Hartline Science Center.

The featured speaker is Stephanie Greco Larson, a political science professor at Dickinson College, who has written extensively about media's impact on society, including soap operas. Her talk is titled "Soap Operas: Reflections of Society."

Larson's talk is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, a private, non-profit organization serving as the state's affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Co-sponsors include the mass communications department and the Keystone chapter of the Society for Professional Journalists.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

4 APRIL 96

Trustees vote to continue study of new apartments

The Bloomsburg University Council of Trustees voted at their meeting March 26 to continue to study the possibility of building new student apartments on the upper campus.

The location being examined for the new apartments would be on a wooded area across the street from Montgomery Apartments. At the meeting, architect Robert Lack of Lewisburg presented the trustees with a feasibility report of a housing project. Robert Parrish, vice president for administration, reported on the financial impact of such a project.

The feasibility study examined the possibility of building apartment units to house between 248 and 284 students in a variety of configurations.

After discussion, the trustees opted to focus future study on the orchard site near the current Montgomery Apartments rather than the recently purchased Hummel property because utility infrastructure costs would be much higher at the Hummel property.

President Jessica Kozloff stressed that the purchase of the Hummel property was important because it allows the university to grow in the future, if necessary. She noted that several of the university's athletic fields are currently leased from the Bloomsburg Hospital.

Bloomsburg has one of the lowest rates for on-campus apartments when compared to other State System universities.

Other business

In other business, the trustees approved an increase in student fees beginning next fall semester. (The new fees are listed on page 6.)

The trustees also voted to recommend that the Board of Governors extend President Jessica Kozloff's contract by one year — extending the pact until June 30, 1999.

Health Sciences Symposium features lecture, Wellness Fair

This year's fifth annual Health Sciences Symposium will feature lectures by former U.S. Surgeon General nominee Henry Foster and a "Wellness Fair."

Dr. Henry W. Foster, 1995 candidate for U.S. Surgeon General, will give the keynote address for the symposium, "Future Investments: Confronting Health Issues of American Youth," Thursday, April 11, at 7:30 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts, Mitrani Hall. He will give a workshop, "Action Plans for Resolving Health Issues of American Youth," Friday, April 12, at 8:30 a.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

Wellness Fair

The Wellness Fair, coordinated by the Student Health Center, will be Friday, April 12, from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Kehr Union Multipurpose Rooms A and B. The Wellness Fair is free and open to all members of the university community.

The event will focus on health promotion and wellness, covering physical, emotional, social, and spiritual health. A partial list of topics and activities scheduled for the Wellness Fair include a Health IQ Jeopardy game, body fat and flexibility measuring, neck and back massages, blood pressure and cholesterol screening (cholesterol screening for a minimal fee), nutrition, sexually transmitted diseases and other current health problems, drinking and driving, skin care, exercise, and some cancer screening information.

The Health Sciences Symposium will feature dozens of presentations directed toward health care professionals as well as poster presentations by Bloomsburg University students majoring in the health sciences. For more information about the Health Sciences Symposium, contact the School of Health Sciences at 4426.

Provost's Lecture

Foster's appearance at the Health Sciences Symposium is sponsored in conjunction with the Provost's Lecture Series.

An obstetrician/gynecologist as well as a medical educator, Foster is the dean of the school of medicine and acting president at Meharry Medical College. In 1994, Foster served as senior scholar-in-residence at the Association of Academic Health Centers in Washington, D.C. Among Foster's many awards and honors is his induction into the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences.

The White House has recognized Foster as one of the nation's leading authorities on reducing infant mortality and preventing teen pregnancy and drug abuse. He developed and directed the "I Have a Future Program" at Meharry. The program aims at reducing teen pregnancy by stressing abstinence and steering at-risk teens toward positive life choices through community-based partnerships and interventions. In 1991, President Bush recognized the program as one of the nation's "Thousand Points of Light."

President schedules open office hours

■ President Jessica Kozloff will hold open office hours Friday, April 19, from 1:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Because schedules may occasionally change, it is recommended that those interested in speaking with the president call 4526 in advance to be sure the time is available.

Charity softball tournament planned

■ Residence Life will sponsor the Bloomsburg University Softball World Series on Friday and Saturday, April 19 and 20. Last year's event benefitted the "Five Friends Fund." This year's event will benefit the "Children's Museum of Bloomsburg." Anyone interested in forming an employee team to play against residence hall students, contact Chad Burkholder, Luzerne Hall residence director, at 4809. The cost is $3 per player. The charity will receive all proceeds.

Acclaimed young adults novelist to speak April 17

Deborah Savage, author of four acclaimed novels for young adults, will speak at Bloomsburg University Wednesday, April 17, at 4:30 p.m. in the Kehr Union, Hideaway Lounge. Her topic will be "Young Adult Characters, Young Adult Readers: Where Do They Meet?" The public is invited to attend.

Savage's published novels include three set in New Zealand, A Rumour of Otters, Flight of the Albatross and A Stranger Calls Me Home. A film version of Flight of the Albatross recently opened in cinemas in New Zealand. In writing the books, Savage drew upon several lengthy residences she spent in New Zealand.

Her most recent published novel, To Race a Dream, is set in Minnesota and focuses upon a young girl's relationship with the famous race horse Dan Patch. In it, Savage draws upon her personal experiences with horses and her family's history in Minnesota. A fifth novel, Under a Different Sky, which is set in a rural Pennsylvania boarding school, is scheduled for release in 1997. All of her novels have been published by Houghton Mifflin.

A graduate of Bloomsburg High School, she holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Massachusetts and a Master of Fine Arts degree from Goddard College.

For more information, contact Glenn Sadler at 4881 or the English department at 4427.

Novelist to speak on African culture

African novelist Isidore Okpewho will speak at Bloomsburg University Wednesday, April 17, and Thursday, April 18. The novelist and scholar will give several presentations over the two days, all of which are open to the public.

On Wednesday at 4 p.m., Okpewho will discuss "The Relationship Between Africans, African-Americans and the Diaspora." At 7 p.m., he will discuss "The Development of the African Novel." On Thursday at 11 a.m., Okpewho will focus on "African Oral Traditions." A bag lunch will be provided at this session (Reservations required. Contact S. Akema Agbaw at 4828). All three presentations will be in the Kehr Union, Multicultural Center.

Okpewho's novels include The Last Duty, The Victims and Tides. His scholarly books include The Epic of Africa, Myth in Africa, The Heritage of African Poetry and African Oral Literature.

For more information, contact Agbaw at 4828.

Scholar to examine student, professor behavior

Helen Lefkowitz Horowitz, an expert in the history of college student and professor behavior, will speak at Bloomsburg University Monday, April 15.

Horowitz, professor of history and American studies at Smith College, will give two presentations.

The author of Campus Life, a history of the interaction of students and faculty in America, Horowitz's remarks at Bloomsburg will be the images and misconceptions that students, faculty, administrators and town residents have about each other.

She will be part of a colloquium at 3 p.m. in McCormick Center, Forum.

Other participants will include President Jessica Kozloff; Preston Herring, vice president for student life; Marion Mason, assistant professor of psychology; Mary Lenzini Howe, Bloomsburg Town Council; and Mucio Godoy, president of Lambda Sigma Upsilon. Following the talk, a light supper is planned. Those interested in staying for the supper should call Terry Riley at 4736 by April 11.

At 7 p.m., she will speak on "Thinking About Campus Life" in the Kehr Union, Multipurpose Room B.

Both talks are sponsored by the Teaching and Learning Enhancement Committee (TALE).

Budget Report 96/97

Cabinet's budget proposal reviewed in open meeting

The Planning and Budget Committee had its most recent look last week at the university's proposed $58.6 million operating plan for fiscal year 1996-97.

The plan calls for a 1.1 percent increase in spending over the current year. It assumes no increase in appropriations from the state and a 4.5 percent increase in tuition.

"The budget presented to the committee was balanced," said Robert Parrish, the university's vice president for administration. "But we could achieve that only by cutting about $780,000 from a budget originally projected to grow by about 2.5 percent. Had we not acted with this reduced spending plan, the university would have experienced an operating deficit of about $715,000."

'The restoration of our enrollment is a credit to combined efforts by admissions, faculty, staff and alumni... Without this projected increase in students, our financial picture would be even more challenging.'

The plan adopted by the planning committee includes about $740,000 in salary savings achieved by reassigning employees, not replacing vacancies or temporary positions, and filling other vacancies at lower salaries. About 9.5 positions will remain vacant, including 3 in the instructional area, 2.5 in management and 2 from AFSCME. It was not necessary to layoff any employees or reduce the number of faculty in growth areas.

No allowance has been made for merit salary increases in this plan, though provision is made for annual service or step increments. The deficit elimination plan also cuts $40,000 in administrative operating expenses.

Funds available for investing in equipment remain unchanged. "However," said Parrish, "because the Council of Trustees approved an increase in 'academic equipment' fees at the March meeting, academic programs should have nearly $1.75 million available to support the library and instructional enhancements."

The budget anticipates a substantial growth in freshman enrollment for the fall. Total FTE enrollment is projected to grow to 6,630 — up from 6,437 from the fall of 1995. This reverses a five-year decline in enrollment at Bloomsburg.

"The restoration of our enrollment is a credit to combined efforts by admissions, faculty, staff and alumni," Parrish said. "Without this projected increase in students, our financial picture would be even more challenging."

University ready for large freshman class

When an expected 7,492 students come to Bloomsburg next fall — the largest headcount enrollment since 1992 — the university will be prepared to meet their academic and living needs.

"We're going to be able to accommodate those students," says Wilson Bradshaw, provost and vice president for academic affairs. "Some faculty will be asked to teach additional courses and we may hire some temporary faculty members. We will still offer small class sizes. We're depending on faculty and department chairs to tell us what their staffing needs are."

Next fall's projected enrollment of 6,630 FTE nearly matches the university's record year of 1991, when fall FTE was 6,704. "We can do it, and we can do it even better than before," says Bradshaw.

Next fall's enrollment projections come from admissions director Chris Keller.

"At this point, we're up 700 deposits from freshmen over what we had last year," says Keller.

"We've seen increases in every college and nearly every major and we're at capacity in seven graduate programs."

Keller stresses that talent and academic preparation of the incoming students is not lower than in previous years. "The quality of the students is very comparable to last year, and we've tripled the number of Honors/Scholars and Mitrani candidates."

The university will also be prepared to make students' stay at Bloomsburg a comfortable as well as educational one.

"We have known early enough this year that we're going to have a large freshman class, that we've been able to prepare our accommodations to meet their needs," says Preston Herring, vice president for student life.

"We opened this year with about 75 spaces vacant in the residence halls," says Herring. "Next fall, we're going to be over capacity in our residence halls. But we are going to put into place a number of steps that will result in having our occupancy as low as possible."

"We're talking with resident assistants about the possibility of their having roommates, which we haven't done before. That would give us a minimum of 50 additional spaces."

Other steps that are being taken to relieve pressure on residence halls include allowing upperclassmen to get out of their residence hall contracts if they chose to live off-campus and identifying off-campus apartments that can be made available to incoming transfer students.

The university will also be in contact with students who live in the local area—letting them know that the residence halls are going to be full. As space in the residence halls becomes available, those students will be welcome to come into the residence halls anytime during the fall.

While there may be some triple rooms in the residence halls, Herring stresses that "because we've had time to plan for this, we'll spread those triples throughout the system so no particular building is overcrowded. It's an even distribution. Housing students in floor lounges is a last resort."

Herring adds that what makes Bloomsburg unique is how infrequently students are assigned triple rooms. "Many other schools around us triple students regularly."

For the third year, English majors will hold a "Readathon" fundraiser for the new library.

Faculty are being sent a brochure which lists passages by well-known writers. Each passage has a price (ranging from 75 cents to $2). Employees who wish to sponsor readings can check off the items on the brochure and return it to the English department by campus mail. Works not listed in the brochure may also be sponsored (including poetry and prose sponsors have written themselves). Suggested works will be read at the rate of about a dollar for every 25 lines.

The Readathon will be held Thursday, April 18, from 3 to 6 p.m. in Kehr Union, room 409. Employees are welcome to drop by and hear readings by members of the English Club and Sigma Tau Delta. Sponsors can hear a reading of the work they have underwritten any time during the event.

More than 100 to staff Internet Expo

■ More than 100 volunteers from Bloomsburg University are expected to participate in the first Internet Expo in northeast Pennsylvania on April 19-21 in the Columbia Mall. The Columbia Mall is sponsoring the event, which is expected to draw exhibitors from all sectors of the community.

In addition to students, participants from Academic Computing; Computer Services; alumni affairs; the Institute for Interactive Technology; SOLVE; the art, computer and information systems, math and computer science, chemistry departments and university advancement will be staffing the university exhibit throughout the weekend. Hours on Friday and Saturday are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Sunday, noon to 5 p.m.

For further information, contact Joan Lentzner, director of university relations, ext. 4112.

Psychology department plans talks

■ The psychology department will hold two colloquiums this April. The talks will include:

A Model to Predict Decisions About Estrogen Replacement Therapy — Melissa Zwahr, Penn State University, Friday, April 12, 2 p.m., McCormick Center, Forum.

Interventions for Psychological Risk Factors in Cancer — Kim Seijk, Fox Chase Cancer Center, Friday, April 26, 2 p.m., McCormick Center, Forum.

RAISING SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS — President Jessica Kozloff and Roy Pointer, president of Bloomsburg's faculty union, dance at the President's Ball held March 30. The annual event was attended by 150 guests and raised more than $5,000 for the university's general and music scholarship funds.

Bloomsburg Biography

Charlie Harris is key staff member

Charlie Harris holds the keys to Bloomsburg University. Literally.

An 11-year Bloomsburg veteran, Harris is the supervisor of the carpentry shop and also the university's key control officer. There are 220 departments and 3,100 doors on campus — not including residence halls. There are 5,000 keys issued for those doors, and Charlie Harris knows who has them.

After a year of preparatory study and work by the maintenance and police departments, Harris became key control officer in 1993. Any employee who needs keys to an office or building sees him.

"We know better than anybody who needs a key for what door," says Harris, who has studied to become a certified locksmith himself.

To increase the security of the campus, the locksmith team has been continually recoring all the doors to the campus' buildings — and keeping a tight watch on who has keys to the doors.

But keys are only half of Harris's job. He's also foreman of the carpentry shop, working with six carpenters and two maintenance repairmen as well as a locksmith.

As the semester winds down, Harris' crew is looking forward to their busiest time of year.

"We do our major projects in the summer," says Harris, who worked for 15 years in the construction industry — building homes and doing masonry and carpentry — before coming to the university.

Charlie Harris

Top priority for the carpenter shop? "Repairs to the residence halls and making things nice for the kids," says Harris. "They're paying to be here and this becomes their home."

In addition to maintenance, the carpentry shop is also involved with new construction, such as the addition to the Buckingham Maintenance Center.

The largest in-house project Harris was involved in was the supervision of the renovation of Haas Auditorium in 1986.

Harris and his wife Cindy have two children, a son Paul and a daughter Robin. He has been active in Little League for 12 years and enjoys cabinet-making.

Obutelewicz scholarship awarded

The Joseph and Savannah Obutelewicz Memorial Scholarship has been awarded to economics major Brian T. Wender. The $700 award was presented at the Omicron Delta Epsilon (economics honor society) induction ceremony held last fall.

The scholarship was established by Robert Obutelewicz, assistant professor of economics, in memory of his parents, Joseph and Savannah

Obutelewicz, in 1994. The scholarship is awarded annually to a senior economics major who has the highest grade point average prior to the award semester. The amount of the award is credited to the recipient's tuition.

The scholarship committee is chaired by Obutelewicz and includes Woo Bong Lee (chair of the economics department) and Saleem Khan (adviser to Omicron Delta Epsilon).

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

18 APRIL 96

Chancellor urges adoption of continuous improvement

State System Chancellor James McCormick told managers and faculty last week that State System universities must become more accountable and responsive to environmental shifts occurring in society and in government.

As business and industry have relied on continuous quality improvement methods to improve their products and services to customers, McCormick said, Pennsylvania's State System must apply similar continuous improvement initiatives to "enhance service to students and people of the Commonwealth."

"If we don't figure out ways to demonstrate that the Commonwealth's investment in higher education is giving returns, then someone else will determine the terms for us."

McCormick said that the region's slow economic growth and "competing social priorities for public funds" – notably the state's corrections system – have tightened the economic constraints on public colleges and universities. The chancellor also acknowledged that changing demographics, heightened competition for a smaller pool of students and developing technologies are challenges for higher education.

These challenges come as legislators and business leaders demand new educational accountability.

Universities in the State System must develop "fact-based" evaluation tools to measure effectiveness, said McCormick. "If we don't figure out ways to demonstrate the Commonwealth's investment in higher education is giving returns, then someone else will determine the terms."

McCormick said that legislatures in 18 states have already established such standards.

Adopting principles of continuous improvement to "help us look at our culture and to make changes" is one means by which SSHE will develop accountability standards, the chancellor said.

Continuous improvement is an "organizational change philosophy" coming out of business and industry. In the 1980s, American manufacturers adopted quality improvement techniques pioneered in Japan by American J. Edwards Demming.

McCormick says education must adopt the same kind of culture shift. State System universities must become more student-focused and results-oriented, he said. "We must work to empower people to make changes that will improve the experience for our students."

Stan Carr, former director of human resources at Bloomsburg, has been named director of continuous improvement for the State System.

Alumni, siblings' days to bring hundreds to campus

The Renaissance Jamboree in downtown Bloomsburg is just one of several activities the public can attend during the annual Siblings' and Children's Weekend and Alumni Weekend, both from April 26-28.

The 19th Annual Jamboree, held rain or shine Saturday, April 27, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., is a street festival featuring over 250 arts and crafts booths, live entertainment on two stages, children's rides, costume characters, games, and, of course, food. There is free shuttle bus transportation from the fairgrounds to the Jamboree.

Siblings' and Children's Weekend

Three to four hundred siblings, children, nieces, and nephews are expected to visit student relatives on campus for Siblings' and Children's Weekend. Activities oriented toward young people, such as making sandbottles and screening family movies, are scheduled throughout the weekend. For more information, contact the student activities office at 4344.

Alumni Weekend

Alumni Weekend will feature an anniversary dinner for the class of '46 and an awards program for distinguished service and volunteers. The university will also be celebrating 100 years of student government during the weekend. For more information on alumni events, contact the alumni office at 4058.

In addition to the Jamboree, other public events occurring during the weekend include:

- The Concert Choir will perform at Wesley United Methodist Church at Third and Market Streets Saturday, April 27, at 7:30 p.m. The Choir, directed by Eric Nelson, will perform Handel's Messiah.

- IMAGE will give a sign-language performing arts show Sunday, April 28, at 2 p.m. in Haas Center, Mitrani Hall.

News briefs

New library doors ease wheelchair access

■ New exterior doors with handicapped access have recently been installed at the main entrance to the Harvey A. Andruss Library. The six single leaf doors adhere to the Americans with Disabilities Act standards by replacing four double leaf doors that limited ordinary access and did not provide for wheelchair access.

Protected class issues committee to hold forum

■ The Protected Class Issues Committee is holding an open forum Thursday, April 18, from 2 to 3 p.m. in the Kehr Union, Hideaway Lounge. Forum participants will be Kambon Camara, chair of the protected class issues committee; Wilson Bradshaw, provost; Susan Hicks, interim director of social equity; and Thom Nixon, director of the Multicultural Center.

Communiqué

A newsletter for Bloomsburg University faculty and staff, Communiqué publishes news of activities, events and developments at Bloomsburg University bi-weekly throughout the academic year.

Bloomsburg is committed to providing equal educational and employment opportunities for all persons without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, ancestry, life-style, sexual orientation, disabilities, Vietnam-era veteran, or union membership.

The university is additionally committed to affirmative action and will take positive steps to provide such educational and employment opportunities.

Noted bassist to perform with University-Community Orchestra

Bassist and composer Edgar Meyer will perform with the Bloomsburg University-Community Orchestra Sunday, April 21, at 3 p.m. in Mitrani Hall, Haas Center for the Arts.

Meyer will also hold a master class Monday, April 22, at noon in Old Science Hall, Room G-20. Four double bassists will perform in the master class with Meyer. Both events are free and open to the public.

Renowned for his talent as a bassist and composer, Meyer has won many competitions, and in 1994 became the first bassist to receive an Avery Fischer Career Grant. He joined the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center as an artist member in 1994.

Meyer is also the first bass player to have numerous hits as a bow soloist on mainstream radio, recording with artists like Kathy Mattea, Garth Brooks, and Lyle Lovett.

He has written several bass concertos, the most recent a bass quintet with the Emerson string quartet in 1995. His talents are summed up in a review by The Tennessean: "This is musicianship which simply transcends and transforms its instrument. It is honest and amazing and beautiful. It is what music should always be."

Electric shutdown schedule revised

Electric service to campus facilities will be shut off at designated times in May to accommodate repairs to the electric systems. Employees planning events and projects should keep this schedule in mind. The revised schedule for electric shut down is as follows:

Tuesday, May 14: Northumberland Hall, Carpenter Shop, Simon Hall, Kehr Union, Columbia Hall, Luzerne Hall, Lycoming Hall.

Wednesday, May 15: Montgomery Apartments 1 through 4.

Thursday, May 16: Montgomery Apartments 5 and 6, Modular Offices 1 through 3 (ROTC, DGS and TIP), Ground Crew Trailer, Auxiliary Greenhouse, Ground Crew Greenhouse, Water Tanks.

Friday, May 17: Total upper campus except trailers.

Saturday, May 18: McCormick Center for Human Services, Waller Administration Building, Bakeless Center for the Humanities, Haas Center for the Arts, Andruss Library, Student Recreation Center.

Sunday, May 19: Total lower campus if needed, Boiler Plant, Old Science Hall, Schuylkill Hall, Montour Hall, Carver Hall, Elwell Hall, Scranton Commons.

Shovels needed for garden project

■ Nancy Gill, associate professor of English, would like to borrow one hundred shovels to use in a project in which her students will plant a garden with Philadelphia students at Martin Luther King High School Thursday, April 25.

Those who would like to support the project may drop off shovels (with names taped to them) at the campus garage at Buckingham Maintenance Center before that date. The shovels may be picked up Friday, April 26.

Campus notes

Hussein Fereshteh, assistant professor of curriculum and foundations, has written an article titled "Samads Behrangi's Experiences and Thoughts on Rural Teaching and Learning," which appears in the Journal of Thoughts (Winter, 1995). The article is a phenomenological-autobiography study of Behrangi, a contemporary Persian educational theorist and teacher who spent most of his life working in the culturally diverse rural villages of northeastern Persia. The results of the study were presented at the Comparative and International Education Society's conference in Washington D.C. Data collected for the article may be used in a book dealing with problems of teaching and learning in rural areas of Pennsylvania utilizing Behrangi's ideas and experiences. The Greenwood Publishing Group Inc., in Westport, Connecticut, is interested in publishing the book.

Julia Bucher, assistant professor of nursing, recently presented a paper "Coaching Family Caregivers With a Telephone Bulletin Board System" to the National Association of Women in Education. The presentation was funded by a grant from the office of social equity at the State System of Higher Education.

Michael C. Hickey, assistant professor of history, served as chair and commentator for the session "Problems in Russian and East European History" at the Mid-Atlantic Slavic Conference held recently at Rutgers University. Hickey has also been chosen to participate in a National Endowment for the Humanities seminar on "New Departures in the Comparative Study of Revolutions," to be held at Cornell University this June through August.

John H. Couch, associate professor of music, recently presented a piano master class and solo recital to the students of West Chester University School of Music's graduate piano pedagogy program.

Mary-Jo Arn, associate professor of English, recently delivered a paper at the Modern Language Association convention in Chicago on "The Frustration of Desire and the End of Narrative."

Henry Dobson, associate professor of curriculum and foundations, had two papers accepted for publication. The first, "Telementoring: Connecting the Learning Community," was presented at the Tel-Ed 95 International Conference in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and was published in the conference proceedings in both paper and CD-Rom formats. The second paper, "Telementoring: Linking Mathematics Teachers to Resources Via the Internet," will be presented at the Society for Information Teaching and Teacher Education International Conference in Phoenix, Ariz. This paper will be published in the conference proceedings and in the peer-reviewed Journal of Computers in Mathematics and Science Teaching.

University relations office renamed to marketing and communication

A reorganization of the office of university relations has recently been completed, according to Anthony Ianiero, vice president for university advancement.

"These changes were made to better reflect the duties of the people in the office," said Ianiero. "The expectations of the public relations function are wide-ranging and these changes are designed to meet those needs and increase our efforts to promote the university."

Included with the reorganization is a name change as the office will change from university relations and communication to the office of marketing and communication.

Joan Lentzner, director of university relations, will move into a new role increasing the university's focus on external relations. She is charged with maintaining and enhancing positive relationships with organizations in the community and region. Among the projects she has been involved with is the Internet Expo at the Columbia Mall. As University-Community Task Force on Racial Equity liaison, she collaborates with the town/gown constituents to develop and implement initiatives such as the Two Way Street Program and the Advocacy/Mediation Team.

She serves as executive editor of The Bloomsburg Magazine, liaison on the campus wide information system committee, and plans activities on behalf of the president and vice president for university advancement. She reports to the vice president for university advancement. Her telephone numbers are 4112 and 4524.

Mark Lloyd, director of marketing and communication, has assumed the role of overseeing the re-organized office and its staff. He is responsible for the budget and daily activities of the seven-person operation. In addition, he works closely in conjunction with the director of admissions to market the university to potential students and their parents. Lloyd also reports to the vice president for university advancement.

James Hollister, who served as director of athletic development and as the university's director of sports information for more than 15 years, becomes director of media relations. Hollister serves as university spokesman and is charged with fostering good working relationships with the media and the university's faculty and staff. He is responsible for the release of information and coverage of university events. His recent initiatives have included organizing a conference to bring professional journalists to campus.

Geoff Mehl remains director of publications. Mehl manages the production of most of the university's publications including the undergraduate and graduate catalogs. He is responsible for layout and design and ensuring publications adhere to the university's policies. Mehl is now manages the university's photography services and supervises photographer, Joan Helfer. He is assisted by Winnie Ney, publications coordinator and office manager.

Eric Foster works with Hollister on the news side of media relations, while Scott Leightman handles sports information. Foster edits the university's employee newsletter, writes press releases and also produced the most recent Parents' Newsletter. Leightman works with the athletics department to promote the university's 18 varsity teams, student-athletes and coaches. He is responsible for writing releases and producing publications for media information and recruitment.

"This reorganization will foster a more efficient and team-oriented office that will help the university build positive relationships both internally and externally," says Ianiero.

The April planning and budget meeting scheduled for Thursday, April 18, has been re-scheduled to Tuesday, April 23, at 3:30 p.m. in the Kehr Union, Hideaway Lounge.

Supervisory roundtable members help employees strive for excellence

First line supervisors who are looking for ways to make improvements at work can find the support and encouragement they need at the supervisory roundtable.

Education and training manager Bob Wislock calls the program unique because it's employee centered and driven.

"The supervisory roundtable is a collection of individuals from all areas of the university who volunteer to develop seminars they feel will help people do their jobs better," says Jo DeMarco, assistant director of development and a member of the supervisory roundtable.

Supervisory roundtable was started six years ago and has been orchestrated through human resources. The committee meets once a month to discuss possible program topics and to plan seminars. A yearly schedule is distributed in August.

Seminars the roundtable has held this year include conflict resolution, stress management, decision making, and gender issues in the workplace. Some programs provide CEU (Continuing Education Units) credits for employees. Among these have been supervisory techniques to improve morale, strategies for effective meetings, the art of giving and receiving criticism, and labor relations and contracts. The roundtable tries to focus on current issues for its presentations.

In addition to helping with work, the program provides across-campus networking opportunities for employees of all fields and positions.

Each year the committee schedules at least one volunteer community project. This year they will go to Kidsburg Saturday, April 20, to help clean up the mud that the flood deposited on the playground. The roundtable also sponsors an individual recognition program as a way of saying thanks to employees who give their all.

About 25 to 30 people attend each program. DeMarco attributes some of the roundtable's success to the organization's concept — employees coming together on their own because they want to do a better job.

"Enthusiasm is very high among members, and the core group is united in their goal to do positive things," says Wislock.

The last seminar scheduled for this year is "Continuous Improvement" Tuesday, May 7, 9 a.m. to noon., McCormick Center, Forum.

Planning and budget discusses Student Services Center concept

At its April 22 meeting, the Planning and Budget Committee approved preliminary plans to create a student services center in the Andruss Library after construction of the new library is completed. The new Andruss library is expected to be occupied before the fall of 1998.

According to Robert Parrish, vice president for administration, the committee's action was "the endorsement of a concept" that would concentrate student services in one location "to promote 'one-stop shopping.'"

Parrish emphasized that no determination has been made about which services should be relocated to the former library. Included in preliminary discussions have been the registrar's office, developmental instruction, financial aid, advisement, counseling, admissions and the student business office.

The one-stop concept for student services was included in recommendations of the Facility and Resources study group that met last spring as part of the strategic planning process.

Library adds internet work stations

Internet access to the World Wide Web has been established for students and faculty at two new public work stations in the reference area of the Harvey A. Andruss Library. Information services worldwide can be accessed through the library's newly revised homepage.

To complement the homepage, reference librarians are instructing students and faculty through individual, classroom and group workshop sessions. There are also handouts on how to search, download to disk and locate e-mail Web sites.

Students and faculty can telephone or sign up at the reference desk for reservations to use the workstations for half-hour periods on weekdays from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. If a workstation is not reserved, it is available to walk-ins. For information on reservations or instructional sessions, call the reference desk at 4204.

IBM manager Anne-Lee Verville to speak at commencement

Anne-Lee Verville, a manager for IBM's Worldwide Education Industry division, will be the featured speaker for Bloomsburg's undergraduate commencement on Saturday, May 11.

The commencement will begin at 2:15 p.m. at the Bloomsburg Fairgrounds. Approximately 900 undergraduate degrees will be awarded at the ceremony. Verville will also speak at graduate commencement Friday, May 10, at 7 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts, Mitrani Hall. More than 100 graduate students will receive degrees at the ceremony. This is the second time that graduate students have had a commencement ceremony of their own at Bloomsburg University.

Verville assumed the position of general manager of Worldwide Education Industry last year. She has responsibility for college and universities (Higher Education), kindergarten through twelfth grade (EduQuest), and also provides business direction to education industries in Asia, Latin America, Europe, the Middle East, Africa and Canada. She will be awarded an honorary doctorate at commencement.

Verville began her career with IBM in 1967 and held a number of marketing and marketing management positions in the data processing division. In addition, she served as administrative assistant to the IBM chairman of the board.

In 1977, she began a series of financial management assignments, including division controller, division vice president of finance and chief financial officer for IBM United States Marketing and Services. She also served as IBM director of telecommunications and information systems.

Verville has a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics from Smith College and completed the program for management development at Harvard Graduate School of Business. She serves on the board of directors of the Stanhome Corporation in Westfield, Mass., and is a member of the Board of Advisors at the Fuqua School of Business at Duke University and the Board of Directors of the National Alliance of Business in Washington, D.C.

She was appointed by the President of the United States to serve on the National Skill Standards Board in 1995.

Scholarship established in memory of Kevin Harder

A textbook scholarship has been established in memory of Kevin Harder, manager of shipping and receiving at the University Store. Harder died on March 31 of a heart attack after a two-week stay at Geisinger Medical Center.

Harder, 41, had worked at the University Store for 15 years. A graduate of Danville High School, he graduated from Williamsport Community College with an associate degree in business. He is survived by his mother, a sister, and two nieces.

As a young man, Harder was a member of the Boy Scouts and received the Order of the Arrow and God and Country Award. Harder was an avid fisherman and hunter.

Donations may be made to the June Ebright/Kevin Harder Textbook Scholarship. Checks should be made payable to the Bloomsburg University Foundation (with a notation to apply the funds to the Harder/Ebright scholarship) and sent to the Development Center.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

16 MAY 96

New business dean, directors appointed

David K. Long has been selected as dean of the College of Business.

Long has served as dean of the School of Business at Ithaca College for the past 14 years. In his role at Ithaca, Long provided academic and administrative leadership for departments of accounting, finance and international business, management and human resource management, and marketing. He was responsible for the college's strategic plan for seeking AACSB accreditation.

Long received his bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of Akron and earned his doctorate at Kent University in 1974.

Director of Social Equity

Sydney Howe Barksdale has been selected as director of social equity.

Formerly the associate director of admissions at Bryn Mawr College in Bryn Mawr, Pa., Barksdale practiced law before returning to higher education.

As an attorney, she managed cases pertaining to civil rights as well as other matters.

Barksdale earned a bachelor of arts degree in anthropology from Bryn Mawr in 1988 and her law degree is from the Boston University School of Law.

In her new position, Barksdale will report to the president and serve as a member of the President's Cabinet.

Director of Development

Susan Helwig has been selected as director of development.

Helwig, who served as interim director of the office since 1993, has been in numerous capacities since joining the university's development office in 1986. She assumed the duties of associate director in 1988.

Prior to coming to Bloomsburg, Helwig served as the director of industrial/corporate services and coordinator of public information and development at the Berwick Hospital. She received her bachelor's and master's degrees from Bloomsburg.

UNUSUAL GIFTS

Mrs. Kathleen McCutchen, widow of Bloomsburg University alumnus Frederic McCutchen, '43, recently presented the university with some unusual gifts — artifacts from the Philippines. The items, which include axes, a knife, hat, brass works, and a carved helmet from the Moro tribe, were acquired by the late Mr. McCutchen's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Robert T. McCutchen, who were missionaries in the Philippines. Plans are being made to display the artifacts in the library.

Reading Conference to bring more than 1,000 educators to campus

Bloomsburg University will host its 32nd annual Reading Conference Thursday and Friday, May 16 and 17.

Bloomsburg's Reading Conference, the state's oldest, will attract more than 1,000 teachers, reading specialists, school administrators and parents from throughout the state to hear some of the nation's leading experts discuss strategies that lead to reading success.

The conference is organized by Ed Poostay, director of the reading clinic. Five speakers are featured on this year's program. The speakers include:

- Bill Halloran, is the author of the film, Reading with Bill Halloran, and the writer of the best seller Proud to be a Teacher.
- Shirley Handy, director of the National Education Network, who is acclaimed for her workshops featuring "literature, movement, music and rhyme." In 1989, Handy joined forces with beloved children's entertainer

Raffi; a collaboration that continues today.

- Sharon Bell Mathis, author of the Newberry Honor Book, The Hundred Penny Box, has reviewed books for The Washington Post.

- Jacque Wuertenberg is the author of seven books and the interactive computer program The Young Author's Program.

- W. Dorsey Hammond, professor of education at Oakland University in Rochester, Mich., is the author of Treasury of Literature, a K-8 reading program.

A total of 30 individual sessions will be offered throughout the two days of the conference. Some of the session topics focus on parent involvement in reading, collaboration strategies between middle schools and universities, portfolio assessment, inclusion and cultural diversity.

For additional information, call 389-4092.

Emily Ledger, registrar's office administrative assistant, dies

Emily Jean (Gumpy) Ledger, 45, an employee for 26 years at Bloomsburg University, died late Monday evening, May 6, 1996, at Geisinger Medical Center, Danville, where she had been a patient since April 28.

Ledger was an administrative assistant in the registrar's office. She had been very active at the university, serving on various committees. She was responsible for coordinating the commencement ceremonies.

Born Aug. 16, 1950, in Berwick, she was the daughter of the late Graydon G. and Dorothy Mae (DeHaven) Gumpy. She was a 1968 graduate of Central Columbia High School and a 1969 graduate of the J'Mel School of Cosmetology in Bloomsburg.

She lived at Alexis Drive for the past two years, having previously lived in Lime Ridge.

Mrs. Ledger was a very active member of the Lime Ridge United Methodist Church. She was a member of the adult choir and the bell choir and was the director of the children's choir.

Survivors include her husband, Robert J. Ledger, with whom she would have celebrated a 25th wedding anniversary on Sept. 25; two daughters: Mrs. Gerald (Darcy L.) Fry, Danville, and Amanda S. Ledger, at home; two granddaughters; and a brother, Brian N. Gumpy, Lime Ridge.

Funeral services were held at the Lime Ridge United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Robert A. Vizthum, her pastor, officiating. Burial is in Elan Memorial Park, Lime Ridge.

Brasch wins three Press Club awards

Walter Brasch, professor of mass communications, has recently won three awards from the Pennsylvania Press Club.

Brasch won first place for feature story, first place for column, and second place for education article. He was also named Outstanding Adviser of a student publication in Pennsylvania for advising Spectrum magazine. The Press Club Awards recognize the work of journalists from throughout Pennsylvania.

Spectrum itself has won numerous regional and national awards for excellence. The most recent is being named the Outstanding College Magazine in the 10-state New England and Mid-Atlantic division of the Society of Professional Journalists. The magazine is also an All-American magazine, took first nationally in American Scholastic Press Association competition, and was a medalist in Columbia Scholastic Press Association competition.

Forensics team places in national contest

The Bloomsburg University Forensics team placed 10th at the National Forensic Association's 26th annual national tournament recently. The competition, held at Western Illinois University in Macomb, included 850 competitors from 112 colleges and universities.

The Bloomsburg team, competing in Division II, featured Ryan Gephart, Andrea McClanahan, Amy Vitacco, David Calvert, Amy Griffin, Brian Kistler and Eva Kornatowski. Traveling with the team and serving as tournament judges were graduate assistants Bill Fiege and Jeff Bradley and Harry C. Strine III, director of forensics.

The team concluded the 1995-96 competition season by returning to campus with a total of 102 awards, including five sweepstakes awards.

Four students awarded scholarships to attend Global Awareness meeting

The Bloomsburg University Foundation has supported a scholarship enabling four Bloomsburg students to attend the Fifth Annual International Conference of the Global Awareness Society in San Francisco.

The students, Diana Gow, Ryan Kozcot, Judy Reardon and Yulun Wu, will attend the conference from May 17 to 19.

The Global Awareness Society was founded by Bloomsburg faculty and others to exchange knowledge and information on issues of global interdependence.

The theme of the San Francisco conference is "The Impact of Globalization on Social Institutions." In addition to the Bloomsburg students, the Society granted scholarships to 10 students from throughout campuses in the United States.

This year, 11 Bloomsburg faculty members will participate in the conference, including Mainuddin Afza, S. Ekema Agbaw, Sukwinder Bagi, Hussein Fereshteh, James H. Huber, I. Sue Jackson, James E. Parsons, James Pomfret, Chang Shub Roh, Neal Slone and Dale Sultzbaugh.

Foundation names four emeritus directors

Four individuals have recently been named director emeritus of the Bloomsburg University Foundation. The action is in recognition of the individuals' long service on the board and their role as founding members of the Foundation.

The directors emeritus include:

Joseph Nespoli of Berwick, Richard F. Laux of Dallas, Atty. Allan M. Kluger of Wilkes-Barre, and Norman Belmonte of Bloomsburg. The directors emeritus will be included in all communications of the board during the year and may attend scheduled meetings of the board.

News briefs

Library excavation begins

■ Excavation for the new library has begun. Top soil from the area will be stored on the upper campus to be used at a later time. The under-soil and shale will also be used on the upper campus to create additional parking. Construction of the new library is expected to be complete in 1998.

The excavation in front of Centennial Gymnasium and Sutliff Hall is part of a project to replace the university's steam lines. The project will run in several phases over the next two summers.

Insurance forms revised

■ To ensure the effective processing of claims, employees covered by the AFSCME, PNA or UPGWA collective bargaining agreements should obtain newly revised major medical forms at the human resources office, Waller Administration Building.

The Public Employees Benefits Trust Fund (PEBTF) form has been simplified and "bar-coded" for faster processing. Old forms should be discarded. Those with questions should call Jim Michael or LouAnn Tarlecky at 4018.

George Turner, professor of history, 30 years.

Kenneth T. Wilson Jr., professor of art, 33 years.

Stephen Wukovitz, associate professor of physics, 27 years.

Department Moves

Rosemary Huber is the new secretary in the art department. She worked earlier in the communication studies office.

Correction

Kim Schmitz was incorrectly listed as a new full-time permanent employee in the May 2 Communiqué. She is a temporary employee at this time.

Continuous improvement expert stresses need to change processes

Changing paradigms is often the first step to improving quality.

If you didn't catch the typographical error in the first sentence of this story, it's probably because your "spelling" paradigm prevented your seeing the mistake. Paradigms amount to perceptual blinders that prevent our seeing opportunities because we view the world the way we expect it to be.

The importance of shifting paradigms was just one of the messages delivered to members of the Supervisory Roundtable on May 7 as part of the university's Continuous Improvement (CI) initiative. In her half-day presentation, Kathy Vitale, a nationally recognized management consultant from Delaware County Community College, also emphasized the importance of delighting the customer, managing processes, using data to make decisions, empowering people and making continuous improvements.

One of the hallmarks of CI, said Vitale, is that quality is improved when process problems are identified and solved. Workers, she explained – despite their willingness to produce better products – often cannot do so because the process itself prevents their affecting outcomes. Changing processes is especially difficult, Vitale said, because organizational paradigms must be altered.

Continuous Improvement, popularized in U.S. manufacturing in the early 1980s, relies on methods introduced in Japan by American J. Edwards Deming in the 1950s. Deming's focus on quality is credited with having transformed Japanese and, later, American industry.

State System Chancellor James McCormick has said that adopting CI processes is essential for educational institutions, which are being challenged to document successes and measure outcomes.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

6 JUNE 96

Library questions answered here

Now that the first dirt has been moved and there is a hole in the ground, many questions can be answered concerning the new Harvey A. Andrus Library.

How will it all get there and how much will it cost? Five major contractors and many sub-contractors will work on the construction. Mar-Paul Company of Dunmore is the general contractor and will oversee the building from its initial stages to completion. The firm was awarded the job by the Department of General Services based on its bid of $5,130,000. The mechanical bid of $1,724,500 went to Bognet, Inc. of Hazleton, $207,000 worth of plumbing to Bohrer-Reagan of Reading and Medlar Electric Company, also of Reading, received the electrical work for a bid of $1,196,000. The final contract for fire protection including sprinklers and detectors was awarded to Fire Protection Industries of Landing, N.J. Total projected cost of the building is $8,394,250.

Yes, the name will accompany the books, computers, microfilm and other materials as well as the staff to the new location at the east end of the lower campus. A new name hasn't been chosen for the existing library, but the building will be used for student services including admissions, financial aid and advisement.

The proposed opening of the facility is spring of 1998. Four floors encompassing 105,000 square feet will make the new building the largest academic facility on campus. Study seating for more than 1,000 people and 20 group study rooms with access to computer data will be available.

The library will include an outdoor reading area on the fourth floor with a view of the Susquehanna Valley. Three Tiffany and four Spence stained glass windows saved from the current library and the original Waller Hall will be placed in the facility. The exterior of the building will feature an area reminiscent of the Long Porch from Waller Hall, which once stood on Second Street where Scranton Commons and Lycoming Residence Hall stand today.

Foundation fund-raising efforts have record-breaking results

Bloomsburg University students, faculty and programs will benefit from a record year of contributions in the 1996-97 academic year. The final numbers for the 1995 campaign are in and, according to Susan Helwig, director of the university's development office, they are good.

University fund-raising efforts during the year exceeded $1.5 million, which will be distributed through the Bloomsburg University Foundation, Inc.

"We set ambitious goals from the start," says Helwig, "and our constituents came through in a big way."

Bloomsburg's alumni participation rate is about 25 percent, well above the national average at public colleges and universities. The university's faculty and staff contributed more than $78,000 in 1995, up from just $6,000 in 1990. Retired employees make up an increasing portion of those donations.

"People are really starting to know the needs of the institution," says Helwig. "Many younger alumni are participating because they were helped by the dollars the foundation has raised."

"The 'bricks and mortar' campaign we conducted to build a new library is something tangible and easily understood by donors, so that helped us. But there is simply a better understanding out there of our needs, and people are answering the call."

Business and corporate scholarships have also increased in recent fund drives and will be one of the focuses of the development staff's attention in the future.

"We have much more to do, and that is definitely an avenue we will pursue. An example is our established relationship with Pepsi. We want to increase those types of opportunities and partnerships."

Approximately $819,000 was directed to the annual fund which is used to maintain on-going scholarships, including the honors and scholars program. In addition, faculty and staff development, as well as alumni activities, are funded from this area.

Special events such as the President's Ball and Poinsettia Pops Concert are avenues to enhance the scholarship fund as well as build future relationships with donors to the university.

The annual fund also provides monies for scholarships for student-athletes, reaching nearly $108,000 in the recently concluded campaign. Dollars in that area are supplemented by fund-raising ventures such as golf outings, the annual auction/dinner-dance and raffles which accounted for $31,646 last year.

Fundraising highlights include:

- The largest single gift came from the estate of Mary Taubel Rieder. Rieder was the daughter of Mary Moore Taubel, an 1890 graduate of the university, and donated $200,000 in her mother's memory.

- A gift to support the university's efforts to attract world-renowned talent for the Celebrity Artist Series was received from Barbara Hudock, class of 1975, and her husband Michael. They donated funds to purchase a Steinway grand piano in memory of Barbara's father, Francis J. Benner.

- More than $600,000 is allocated

Mohr brings variety of media experience to TV/radio services

Wayne Mohr, a media specialist with experience in print journalism, television production, and multimedia marketing, is now director of TV/radio services.

Mohr arrived at Bloomsburg about seven weeks ago after working for several divisions of a New Hampshire technology firm for nearly a decade. Most recently, he was marketing communication manager for En Technology Corporation in Keene, N.H.

He previously served on the faculty of Southern Connecticut State University in New Haven and Baylor University in Waco, Texas, where he taught courses on video production and technology as well as writing and performance. He also served as adviser to the campus radio station, a role he has accepted at Bloomsburg. He was freelance writer and photographer for several years after serving in the Army in Vietnam from 1970 to 1972.

Among his goals for Bloomsburg, Mohr would like to expand BUTV's offering of campus events such as concerts and lectures. He would also like to expand Bloomsburg's facilities to shoot and edit video in an entirely digital format.

Athletic program is best in system

Bloomsburg University has the premier athletic program among the 14 members of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference as the Huskies won the inaugural F. Eugene Dixon, Jr. Trophy — signifying the best all-around athletic program.

Backed by conference titles in men's and women's tennis, PSAC East titles in football, men's and women's basketball and softball, and conference runner-up finishes in field hockey and women's soccer, Bloomsburg has a total of 116 points, one ahead of second-place Edinboro.

In women's sports, the Huskies were tops in the conference with 60.5 points, outdistancing second-place Slippery Rock by 2.5 points. In men's sports, Bloomsburg is second, 9.5 points behind Edinboro.

The determination of the winner is based on an institution's finish in conference competition. The maximum point total awarded per sport is based on the number of schools sponsoring a specific sport. For example, in a sport which is sponsored by all 14 schools, the champion will receive 14 points, second place 13 points, etc. Points are earned in the top six men's and top six women's finishes for each member school.

The trophy is named after Dixon, the Chairman of the Board of the State System since the body's inception in 1983.

For the 1995-96 academic season, the 18 Bloomsburg University athletic teams combined for a record of 204-105-4 (.658). In the fall, the teams combined for a record of 66-11-4 (.840), the best fall season ever at the school. Seven teams were represented in the NCAA Division II Championships during the year.

Cosper makes sick computers well

Computer on the fritz? Maybe the monitor doesn't work or the printer is on the blink. If so, chances are your piece of equipment will find its way to Jeff Cosper's workshop.

Cosper, who has been working in academic computing for six years this September, is responsible for repairing the university's computer hardware and other electronic equipment. Under his hands, fried circuit boards, messed-up memory chips or hung-up hard drives are skillfully replaced, bringing valuable equipment back to life.

"The toughest jobs are repairing larger monitors and Laserwriter Plus printers," says Cosper.

He also repairs electronic equipment for the chemistry and physics departments and works with Macintosh software.

In the community, Cosper is a Scoutmaster and an Order of the Arrow Brotherhood member in Boy Scouts of America. His wife Pamela is a sign-language interpreter for Berwick schools.

Jeff Cosper

Alumni Association president elected

Sandra Jefferson Rupp of Bloomsburg was recently elected president of the Bloomsburg University Alumni Association. The class of 1971 graduate was first elected to the board of directors in 1991 and served as vice president during the past year.

A substitute teacher in the Bloomsburg Area School District, she is married to Robert W. Rupp, also a member of the class of '71.

Other officers elected for the coming academic year:

Nancy Feher Edwards, '70, vice president. A reading teacher in the Bloomsburg Middle School, she is married to Edward G. Edwards, '73.

Carolyn Vernoy Reitz of Horsham, '51, secretary. A retired teacher, she is married to Robert G. Reitz, '49.

John J. Trathen of Catawissa, '68, treasurer. Director of student activities and the Kehr Union at the university, Trathen has served as treasurer of the Alumni Association since 1980.

Elected to serve their first two-year terms on the Board of Directors were Anna M. Bauer '95 of Somers Point, N.J.; Michele L. Corbin '95 of Harrisburg; John D. McDaniel '94 of Philadelphia; and John S. Mulka '66 of Bloomsburg.

Re-elected to two-year terms were Nancy Fehr Edwards; John Haney '85 of Lancaster; Franklin (Ed) Jones '54 of Philadelphia; Cliff Maurer '66 of Wescosville; Fay Ortiz '87 of Bloomsburg; James Pegg '67 of Williamsport; Virginia Reed Brett '82 of Maplewood, N.J.; and Cameron Smith '84 of Lafayette Hill.

Elected to fill a one-year unexpired term was Nancy Swartz Lychos '52 of Forty Fort. A past president of the Alumni Association, she formerly served on the Alumni Board from 1989 to 1995. During 1995-96, she served ex officio.

Marvin P. Metzger '86 of Mountaintop will serve on the board ex officio for the 1996-97 year as immediate past president.

Kehr Union hours listed

■ Kehr Union summer hours are 8 a.m. — 10 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon — 10 p.m. weekends.

Campus notes

Charles Laudermitch, sociology, was recently given the Francis "Red" Gallagher Award in recognition of his outstanding commitment to the internship program. This is an annual award, named after its first recipient, honoring Bloomsburg faculty who exhibit exemplary service to students and sponsoring organizations in the internship experience.

Gary Clark, art, has been given an award of merit for his computer artwork by the National Art Education Association at its national convention in San Francisco. Clark recently presented a lecture titled "Fine Art on the Internet, The Current State of the Art," at the Art Institute of Philadelphia.

Wayne George, developmental instruction, recently had a paper titled "Helping Students to be Organized When Taking Math Tests" published in the selected proceedings from the 14th annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Developmental Instruction. This publication has also been forwarded for possible inclusion in the ERIC system.

Henry Dobson and Ray Pastore, curriculum and foundations, have received a competitive grant to participate in the Ernest L. Boyer Technology Summit for Educators being held in Pittsburgh in April. The grant is funded by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

Mehdi Haririan, economics, has coauthored an article with Bijan Vasigh and Thomas Tacker of Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University. The article, "Talking Privatization: As Europe Takes the Lead, the Effort Gets Mixed Reviews in the U.S.," was published in the March issue of Airport Business.

Chang Shub Roh, sociology and social welfare, recently chaired a roundtable session on "Globalization" and gave a presentation on "The Conceptualization of Globalization" at the 66th annual meeting of the Eastern Sociological Society in Boston.

Julia Bucher, nursing, recently presented a poster, "Comparison of Self-Led and Professionally-Led Courses for Family Caregivers" at the 25th Annual Congress of the Oncology Nursing Society. She also presented results of a 1996 telephone survey of participants in the ongoing state-wide Family Caregivers Education Project at the 8th Annual International Symposium on Supportive Cancer Care held in Toronto.

Stapleton to serve Olympic athletes

Briggett Stapleton, operations director of Bloomsburg's campus dining services, will bring her years of experience in meeting student's tough dining demands to an unusual assignment this summer — serving thousands of Olympic athletes in Atlanta.

This summer, Stapleton is serving as dining room director for the Olympic athlete's main dining facility — a 75,000 square-foot tent at which 10,000 athletes will have breakfast, lunch and dinner. As dining room director, Stapleton is responsible for ensuring that the athletes receive the best service. She will oversee nearly 1,000 employees.

An employee of Aramark, the corporation which provides food service on campus, Stapleton has been at Bloomsburg for five years. She began her Olympic assignment in April and will finish in August to come back to Bloomsburg. Aramark has been involved in other Olympics, but this is the biggest.

These Olympics provide Stapleton and Aramark with several special challenges. Olympic athletes eat a lot of food, as much as 5,000 calories at a single meal, and the food has to appeal to diners from all over the world. And any meal has to be available at any time of day. For example, some athletes may want to have dinner at 4 a.m.

Memorial planned for Emily Ledger

A liturgy and tree planting ceremony will be held in honor of Emily Ledger, administrative assistant in the registrar's office, who died unexpectedly recently.

The ceremony will be held Tuesday, June 11, at 8 p.m. in front of Ben Franklin Hall on Laubach Drive. Light refreshments will be served immediately following the ceremony in front of Mitrani Hall. The rain date is Friday, June 14.

A "Friends of Emily Fund" is being established to help defray the costs of the plaque and tree. Anyone wishing to contribute to this fund can do so by sending your donation to Joy Bedosky in the development office. Please indicate that the donation is for the "Friends of Emily Fund."

Foundation

this year toward the construction of the new library as part of the university's combined effort with the state. Construction began this month.

- The foundation is also about to initiate a campaign to purchase new seating for Mitrani Hall in the Haas Center for the Arts. Mitrani currently seats 1,900 people. The total cost of the project is $230,000.

"The foundation continues to work diligently to support the strategic goals of the university," said Anthony M. Ianiero, vice president for university advancement and executive director of the foundation. "The efforts support many faculty projects and student needs, and we will continue to be a strong advocate of Bloomsburg University."

Summer programs bring 3,800 to campus

More than 3,800 people will visit Bloomsburg University's campus this summer in connection with a variety of conferences, sports camps and special programs.

The conferences, arranged by the division of continuing and distance education, include:

- Pedal Pennsylvania will use Bloomsburg's campus as a layover on a regional bicycle tour with 150 participants June 20 and 21.
- The Sweet Adelines female barbershop quartet organization will bring about 300 people to campus from June 20 to 23.
- The College Sampler Program will give approximately 40 academically talented African-American high school students an opportunity to experience college life at Bloomsburg from July 14 to 19.
- Elderhostel will offer classes for people 45 and older from July 21 to 27. Fifty people are expected to participate in classes taught by Bloomsburg faculty. For information on the program call 389-4420.

Earlier, Christ Crusaders brought about 650 youth and adult staff to campus from May 24 to 27.

An additional 2,500 students are expected to come to Bloomsburg throughout the summer for a variety of sports camps sponsored by the university's athletics department.

In addition to conferences and sports camps, the university will host a number of summer programs designed to expose high school students to college life. These include:

- The PRIDE (Personal Responsibility in Developing Excellence) Program will bring approximately 125 youth from the Harrisburg School District to Bloomsburg from June 16 to July 19. Students, ranging from grades 7 to 12, will stay on campus in groups of 25 each week. From July 22 to 26, 25 11th grade students will participate in the program at Wallops Island, Va.
- Upward Bound is bringing 60 students from 13 area high schools to campus so they can explore their potential for academic, social and personal growth from June 23 through Aug. 2.

Trustees vote to match student contribution to firehouse campaign

The Bloomsburg University Council of Trustees voted to match a student contribution to the Bloomsburg Fire Departments fundraising campaign to build a new fire station.

The students have pledged $35,000 to the campaign through funds raised from games room and vending machine concessions. The matching gift brings the university's total contribution to $70,000.

President Jessica Kozloff is serving as honorary chair of the fire department campaign, "A Home for Safety," which runs through the summer. The campaign seeks to raise $500,000 to create a new fire station. Plans call for a former dry cleaning building at 9th and Market streets to be renovated to be used as the town fire station. In addition to funds raised from the community, a federal grant, a town contribution and proceeds from the sale of the existing fire stations will be applied to renovating the proposed facility at a total cost of $1.4 million. It is hoped the new station will be occupied in the fall of 1997.

In addition to this gift, the university also makes an annual contribution to the fire department, last year contributing $14,500.

Trustees approve officers

The trustees also unanimously approved officers for 1996-97 at the meeting.

Joseph Mowad of Danville was elected chairperson, Jennifer Adams of Catawissa and LaRoy Davis '67 of Feasterville were named first and second vice chairs, respectively, and A. William Kelly '71 of Kingston was elected secretary.

Mowad was named to the council in November 1994. He is senior vice president of the Geisinger Foundation. He has been affiliated with Geisinger since 1968 when he joined the staff as an associate in the urology department. He has also served as department chairman and assistant medical director at Geisinger Medical Center, and assistant to the president of Geisinger Clinic.

Adams was appointed student trustee in January 1995. The junior management major has been active in student government at the university and is vice president of the Community Government Association for the 1996-97 academic year.

Davis has one of the longest tenures on the council, serving in his 17th year. He was originally appointed to a six-year term in January 1980. He is a secondary social studies teacher at Bensalem Township Senior High School. Davis has previously served as council chairperson.

Kelly is the president of WVIA-TV and WVIA-FM, the region's public television and radio stations. He was recognized as Bloomsburg's "Young Alumnus of the Year" in 1988 and has served as an instructor in mass communications. He serves on the board of the Pennsylvania Association of Broadcasters and is a recognized consultant and speaker on the topic of video tape depositions.

As program director, he was responsible for recitals, master classes, panel discussions, demonstrations and ensemble performances. He also conducted a cello trio and a cello quartet during the event.

Kiln firings featured in magazines

Anagama kiln firings at Karl Beamer's (art) home in Mainville are featured in recent issues of two national magazines. A story about the anagama kiln appears in the April issue of Ceramics Monthly and in the May/June issue of School Arts.

In an anagama kiln, pottery is fired without using any kind of glaze. The pottery becomes brilliantly colored through the effect of the extremely high heat of the wood-fired kiln.

The feature stories are written by Kathy Dobash Kantner, a teacher at Southern Columbia Area School District and former student of Beamer's.

Kantner, who is in charge of the junior high enrichment program and seventh grade art curriculum at Southern Columbia, took her seventh and eighth grade students to visit the kiln and talk to Beamer and visiting Japanese potter Shiho Kanzaki.

Web news pages expanded to include experts, archives and people

The marketing and communication office has expanded its presence on World Wide Web in the past several weeks.

Using Netscape, or similar software, users can now access sports information, calendars, news releases and feature stories, an archive of past stories, a listing of stories about university people, and an experts list. The main menu page, "News@BloomU" (<http://bloomu.edu/www/news/pages/newsbloo.html>), also contains links to regional and national print media which have online editions.

In the coming weeks, the content of these pages will increase. Stories about people will be archived in an alphabetized index page. News releases and features will also be archived. A page will be added to allow the media to download publication-quality digital images of university places and people.

In August, media relations director Jim Hollister and news writer Eric Foster will alert media to these pages, and promote their usefulness as a source of information about the university.

'Experts' submissions sought

Before that time, the "Experts" section in particular will be made as complete as possible. Faculty, and staff, are invited to send information about their fields of expertise to Eric Foster, 104A Waller Administration Building, or through e-mail at fos@husky.bloomu.edu.

The experts section consists of topics, followed by an expert, a telephone number, and in some cases, an explanatory sentence which may add credibility to the expert. Examples of information appropriate for these explanations would be books published or personal experience that adds a human element to an expert's credibility. Inappropriate information includes where an individual earned their degrees and publications in specialized scholarly publications.

Experts in areas outside an individual's academic discipline will be included at the discretion of the editor. A rule of thumb for inclusion: Would this individual be an ideal spokesperson from the several counties surrounding Bloomsburg on a given topic?

Pursel manages as center for campus information

About 70,000 phone calls each year go to extension 3900 — the information desk in the Kehr Union. Managing the desk, the students who staff it, and the information they give out is Betty Pursel.

Pursel has managed the desk for 12 years. She typically has 15 student workers staffing the desk through the academic year. Top requests are student telephone numbers, faculty and staff telephone numbers and questions about campus services.

Betty Pursel (right) and student employee Debbie Tyson.

"We get questions about financial aid, dining hours, scheduling, transcripts, housing information," says Pursel. "We need to have a general knowledge of what services different offices provide."

Besides campus events, Pursel keeps track of events by off-campus groups using the university's facilities and off-campus events such as the Bloomsburg Fair. They even get calls about the high school graduations which occur on campus.

During crises, information desk staff dispel rumors with official information.

In addition to providing information, the information desk staff handles ticket sales for student events and programs, including the community activities tickets for Celebrity Artist Series events. And on evenings and weekends, calls to the university switchboard are answered at the information desk as well.

Employees invited to join in alumni events

Employees, especially those in student life, are invited to help represent the University at the following events:

June 25 — BloomU Night at Red Barons (and pre-game picnic); June 26 — Picnic for new students in Berks County

July 18 — Picnic for alumni/new students in Lancaster County; July 19 — Reading Phillies baseball game and picnic; July 24 — Dinner cruise in Lewes, Del.; July 26 — Picnic in Philadelphia area; July 31 — Picnic in Oswego, N.Y.

Aug. 1 — Picnic in Lehigh Valley; Aug. 6 — Picnic for alumni/new students in Wyoming Valley; Aug. 10 — Bloom at the Beach Party in Avalon, N.J.; Aug. 13-17 — Annual Theatre Trip to Stratford, Ontario.

Sept. 11 — Happy Hour in Wilmington, Del.; Sept. 12 — "The Molly Maguires" in Media, Pa.; Sept. 20 — Golf Outing in York, Pa.

For more information, contact the alumni office at 4058.

Library adds new databases to network

The Harvey A. Andruss Library has added two new CD-ROM databases to the library's local area network.: Newsbank NewsFile Collection and the MLA International Bibliography. These resources can be accessed through terminals in the library.

The Newsbank NewsFile Collection is a full-text, current information news database that offers selected articles from more than 500 regional, national and international newspapers and other news sources. The service supplies over 50,000 articles annually on current social, political and economic issues and events as well as pieces on newsworthy people and organizations.

The MLA International Bibliography, produced by the Modern Language Association of America, contains bibliographic citations to critical documents on literature, language, linguistics and folklore. It indexes journal articles, book articles, dissertations, monographs and series. Over 3,000 journals and series are indexed annually.

In addition, two computer workstations have been dedicated exclusively to World Wide Web access. World Wide Web access to many library resources is achieved through the Andruss Library homepage, found under "libraries" on the university homepage at "<http://www.bloomu.edu>"

Bus trip to Cezanne exhibit planned

Bloomsburg University is sponsoring a bus trip to Philadelphia to see the Cezanne Exhibit at the Philadelphia Museum of Art on Saturday, Aug. 24.

The trip will also include a tour of the Rodin Museum and offers an opportunity to see the Historic District of Philadelphia.

The bus will depart from the Magee Center at 7:30 a.m. Cost of the trip is $59 including admission to the Cezanne Exhibit. Reservations, including payment, must be made no later than July 15. For more information, contact Julia Gusick in continuing and distance education at 4420.

Paramount Brass to perform July 30

Boston's acclaimed Paramount Brass will perform for BloomFest '96 Tuesday, July 30 at 8 p.m. in Carver Hall, Kenneth Gross Auditorium. The concert is free to the public.

The Paramount Brass won the Grand Prize at the 1992 New York Brass Conference Quintet Competition and soon after, released their debut recording, the first in a series of CDs.

Recently, the quintet gave a world premiere of Daniel Pinkham's "Morning Music" for brass and organ with Boston Symphony organist James David Christie.

Currently, the Paramount Brass is in residence for the Boston Conservatory, conducts a summer brass chamber music program at the Maryland Summer Center for the Arts, and are frequent guests of the Boston University Tanglewood Institute. In 1994, the ensemble began a long-term project as the "Ensemble in Residence" for the historic Zeiterion Theatre in the coastal town of New Bedford, Mass.

The performance is sponsored by the university's Community Government Association and the Community Arts Council.

Traffic pattern changes between Bakeless and Navy

Traffic patterns at the intersection of Osuna and Laubach drives (the roadways between Bakeless Center and Navy Hall) have been changed to one way going south past Navy Hall and one way north past Bakeless Center. One-way traffic is still in effect from Second Street north bound toward Haas Center on Laubach Drive. New parking spaces have been created in this area: two west of the Andruss Library, three in front of Navy Hall and three in front of Bakeless Center on Laubach Drive. All new spaces are to be designated faculty/staff.

Frank Hunsinger dies in traffic accident

Franklin A. Hunsinger Sr., 53, a maintenance repairman at Bloomsburg since 1980, died Thursday, June 27, 1996, at the Bloomsburg Hospital following an accident on Route 487 in Lightstreet.

Born Aug. 16, 1942, in Bloomsburg, he was the son of the late Arthur D. and Lucille Keller Hunsinger.

Before coming to Bloomsburg University, he had worked as a truck driver and construction worker. He was a 1959 graduate of Central Columbia High School. He was a member of First English Baptist Church.

Hunsinger, of Worman Street, Espy, was a member of the Washington Lodge 265 F&AM, the Caldwell Consistory and the Moose Lodge, all of Bloomsburg.

Surviving are his wife of 16 years, the former Eileen Tarbox Kovach; daughter Bethann McCarty of Millville; son Franklin A. Hunsinger Jr. of Stillwater; stepdaughter Ann Marie Cary of Berwick; stepson Tom Cary of Bloomsburg; three grandchildren, four step-grandchildren and one step-great-granddaughter; two sisters, Helen Robbins and Marie Park, both of Bloomsburg. He was preceded in death by a brother, Raymond Hunsinger.

Burial is in New Rosemont Cemetery, Espy. Services were directed by the Allen Funeral Home, Bloomsburg.

News briefs

WVIA to hold membership drive

■ On-air volunteers are needed as WVIA public television holds a membership drive on August 9 to 11 and August 16 to 25. In addition to helping WVIA by answering telephones, volunteers help their organization gain valuable exposure on public television. University employees and friends interested in volunteering should contact the office of marketing and communication at 4411.

President schedules open office hours

■ President Jessica Kozloff will hold open office hours Wednesday, July 31, from 1 to 3 p.m. Because schedules occasionally change, it is recommended that those wishing to see the president call 4526 to be sure that the time is still available.

Blood drive will be held July 24

■ The Red Cross will hold a Blood Drive on Wednesday, July 24, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

IIT to help develop State System web pages

■ The Institute for Interactive Technologies (IIT) has been awarded a $5,000 grant to develop a web page for the State System of Higher Education. The web pages will give information on the functions of the State System and provide links to member universities, including Bloomsburg. The IIT was awarded the grant because of the quality of Bloomsburg's homepage. The funding will allow the IIT to purchase top-quality Windows-based hardware and software for use on future projects. The team assembled specifically for this project includes Carl Huhn, Stacy Hubiak, Quen Ly and Jennifer Wert. The project should be completed by mid-summer.

Musical guests to perform at Outdoor Cafe

■ Mike Dillon and guest will perform instrumental music Wednesday, July 24, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Outdoor Cafe outside the Husky Lounge at the Kehr Union.

Psychology students present research to Eastern Psychological Association

Several members of the psychology department and their students recently presented research studies at the annual meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association in Philadelphia.

Professor Connie Schick presented an invited paper, "The Consequences of Adult Attachment Style and its Correlates for Romantic Love Relationships" to lead off the session, "Interpersonal Relationships."

Student Grace Bognatz and Schick presented "Relationships Among Attachment Style, Type A Behavior Pattern, and Perfectionism in Teenage College Students."

Professor Schick and students Scott D. Engleman and Todd C. Doebler presented "Relationship of Attachment Style and Propensity for Chemical Dependency to Emotional Love Styles: Insecure Loving as an Addictive Process."

Student Kelly Garner and professor Eileen Astor-Stetson presented "Older and Younger Adults' Perception of Illusory Contours."

Student Patrice Friant, professor Astor-Stetson, and associate professor Brett L. Beck presented "A Comparison of the Safe-Sex Behaviors of a College Community and an Adult Gay and Lesbian Community."

Associate professor Beck and student Greg Gudleski presented "The Effects of Sex, Self-Esteem Certainty, and Dispositional Self-Handicapping on Situational Self-Handicapping and Proclivity Toward Chemical Dependency."

Beck and student Lisa D. Scott presented "It's All in the Family: The Effects of Friend, Significant Other, and Family Social Support on Self-Esteem, Psychological Well-Being, Self-Handicapping, the Impostor Phenomenon, and Locus of Control."

Assistant professor Marion Mason presented "An Adult Faith Questionnaire: The Development of Scales for Fowler's Synthetic-Conventional Faith and Individuative-Reflective Faith."

Student Stacie M. Metz and assistant professor Mason presented

"Cross-Sectional Investigation of Faith Development, Proverbial Wisdom, and Religious Orientation in the College Years."

Student Beth D. Zebrowski and assistant professor Mason presented "The Use of Religion as a Coping Mechanism for Stress in College Students."

Assistant professor Joseph Tloczynski and students Crista Knoll and Andrew Fitch presented "The Relationship Between Spirituality or Religiosity and Our Personal Space/Time Continuum."

Assistant professor Tloczynski and student Sonja Fritzsich presented "Effects of Being Prayed For on Anxiety and Psychological Well-Being."

Assistant professor Tloczynski and student Sonja Fritzsich also presented "The Efficacy of Intercessory Prayer in Manipulating Depression, Anxiety, and Self-Actualization in Strangers."

Assistant professor Julie M. Kontos, with Joan D. Silver (Army Research Institute, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas) and Brenda M. Wenzel (New Mexico State University), presented "Is the Fact/Object Inversion Effect a Function of Expertise?"

Student Trudy Frace and assistant professor Kontos presented "Where Did You Learn That? An Investigation of Sources of Knowledge and Myths Concerning Premenstrual Syndrome and Menopause."

Student Catherine Tallman and professor Winona Cochran presented "The Relationship Between College Students Need for Achievement and Need for Affiliation and Their Participation in Greek Organizations."

Professor Stephen L. Cohen presented "Behavioral Momentum: The Effects of Temporal Separation Between Component Schedules."

Student Patricia Jung-Malia presented "Gender False Alarm Rates for Vision, Audition, and Gustation."

Associate professor Richard Larcom, professor Michael Gaynor, and about 20 additional students also attended the three-day convention.

Campus notes

Julia Bucher, nursing, published a chapter on "Rural Populations" in ANAC's Core Curriculum for HIV/AIDS Nursing, a preparatory text for the first national certification exam for the Association of Nurses in AIDS Care (ANAC).

Janet Reynolds Bodenman, communication studies, presented and displayed a competitively selected paper in a poster session at the recent International Communication Association Convention in Chicago, Ill. The paper, "Person-Organization Fit: Perceived Importance of Work Values in Relation to Knowledge, Skills and Abilities in Determining 'Fit' Between Job Candidate and Organization During Screening Interview," was presented to the Interpersonal/Organizational division.

Dennis Gehris, business education and office administration, is the author of a newly published textbook titled Using Wordperfect 6.1 for Windows for Desktop Publishing, published by South-Western Educational Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mehdi Haririan, economics, coauthored an article with Bijan Vasigh and Thomas Tacker of Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University. Part two of the article, "Talking Privatization: As Europe Takes the Lead, the Effect Creates Mixed Reviews in the United States," was published in the April issue of Airport Business. Haririan also participated in the Sixth Annual Conference of Monetary and Foreign Exchange Policies sponsored by the Monetary and Banking Research Institute in Tehran, Iran, in May.

Shahalam M. N. Amin, geography and earth science, presented a paper "A Step Toward Narrowing the Gap between Geographers of Developed and Developing Countries: A Pilot Proposal for Bangladesh," at the Association of American Geographers annual meeting in Charlotte, N.C. He also attended the First Annual Global Environmental Conference, "A Practical Approach to the Environment," held at West Chester University.

Marilou Z. Hinchcliff, Andruss Library, presented a paper, "Navigating the Outsourcing Minefield and Coming Out Alive on the Other Side," at the recent meeting of the West Branch Chapter of the Pennsylvania Library Association in Bloomsburg.

Art provides outlet for Sharon Swank

Sharon Swank is known to many on campus through her years as administrative assistant in the College of Arts and Sciences. She has recently moved to the College of Professional Studies while Nawal Bonomo takes the administrative assistant seat in Arts and Sciences.

What's less well-known is that Swank is also an accomplished artist.

"I've been interested in art since high school," says Swank. "I did a lot of painting. About twelve years ago, I decided that in order to improve my painting, I had to improve my drawing."

So she took a drawing class at Bloomsburg where she learned charcoal techniques. "I stuck with it. Once you learn the technique, you can find ways to make that technique do different things for you."

Her works have been exhibited in a two-woman show in Berwick, at the Susquehanna Art League show in Selinsgrove and the gallery in York. Many of her recent works have been sold.

My sister, niece and I enter our artwork in shows. My sister is a photographer and my niece does sculpture and watercolors.

Swank has been at Bloomsburg University since 1974, starting in the planning office, now a component of planning and research. While working in the planning office, she held a variety of temporary posts, such as serving as the secretary for the vice president for administration and holding a six-month management internship in human resources. She was also the secretary for the search for former president Harry Ausprich. She worked in the nursing department for four years, then served as administrative assistant in the College of Arts and Sciences for six years before moving to professional studies. She has served on many committees, including the Commission on the Status of Women.

Swank credits her artwork and other personal interests for helping her keep her cool while under fire at work. "It doesn't hurt to have an outlet," she says.

And when her outlet is not art, it's likely to be playing tennis with her husband Bob. "He taught me to play," says Swank. "And he's always been very supportive of my artwork."

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

AUGUST 1996

News briefs

Opening of school events planned

■ The Opening of School Convocation will be Thursday, Aug. 29, at 3:30 p.m. in Gross Auditorium, Carver Hall. A reception will follow. The Opening of School Picnic will be Friday, Sept. 13, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Buckalew Lawn. Invitations to both events will be sent to employees shortly.

Blood drive tops last year

■ At the recent blood drive on campus in July, 100 pints of blood were donated. There were 114 potential donors at the drive. Last year's goal was 80 pints. Up to four people can be helped by one pint.

Trust fund established in memory of Flight 800 victims

■ A Trust Fund has been established to accept donations in memory of those from the Montoursville area who were killed on Flight 800. Michelle Bohlin, daughter of alumnus Jeffrey Bohlin '81, was among those who perished. Gifts may be made payable to the Bloomsburg University Trust Fund and directed to the Development Center. They will be processed and forwarded to two banks in Montoursville which are accepting donations on behalf of the families. Your generosity is deeply appreciated.

Golf safari is Aug. 19

■ Anyone interest in participating in the Lee Aumiller memorial Faculty/Staff Fall Safari Monday, Aug. 19, is asked to contact Jeanne Bucher at 4461 as soon as possible but no later than Friday, Aug. 16. The tournament will be held at Mill Race Golf and Camping Resort in Benton Aug. 19. Tee times will start at noon. The format is a four-person scramble with teams formed from the list of entrants by the safari committee. The cost is $34.25 per person and includes the greens fee, cart and dinner. Dinner will include a two-meat hot buffet with tax and gratuity included. Fees will be collected at the course.

University prepared for largest ever freshman class

When more than 1,500 freshman students come to Bloomsburg University this fall — the largest freshman class ever — the university will be ready. The total expected enrollment of more than 7,400 students will be the university's largest enrollment in four years.

"We've seen increases in nearly every major and we're at capacity in seven graduate programs. We are a first choice school for a lot of students," says Chris Keller, director of admissions. "We're fortunate to be in this position because so many schools are struggling."

"We've known early enough this year that we're going to have a large freshman class, and we've been able to prepare our accommodations to meet their needs," says Preston Herring, vice president for student life.

Approximately 1,700 freshman and transfer students will come to campus Thursday, Aug. 22, for orientation. Classes begin Monday, Aug. 26.

"Academically, we're going to be able to accommodate those students," says Wilson Bradshaw, provost and vice president for academic affairs. "We remain committed to providing a high quality educational experience for our students in class sizes that enhance the teaching and learning process."

The classroom needs of the large group of incoming students will be met by having some faculty teach additional courses and by hiring additional permanent and temporary faculty members.

The university is also implementing several innovative orientation programs which include "The Challenge of Socrates" Saturday, Aug. 24, as well as an integrated freshman seminar early in the fall semester.

"The Challenge of Socrates" program, designed by associate dean of arts and sciences Michael Poliakoff, will introduce new students to serious, values-centered academic life by focusing on the uncompromising pursuit of truth and virtue exemplified by the Greek philosopher Socrates. The "Integrated Freshman Year Experience" program, designed by dean of academic support services Jack Mulka, will introduce students to the skills and resources they need to be successful in college.

The university has also made sure that there is sufficient space in the residence halls for the students to live. New furniture has been purchased and large meeting rooms have been converted to spacious four-person rooms. Some students will also be assigned to triple rooms.

"Students will be more comfortable in our triple rooms than many campus's doubles," says Herring. "We've had students request triples because they receive a reduced rate."

Herring adds that what makes Bloomsburg unique is how infrequently students are assigned triple rooms. "Many other schools around us triple students regularly."

"The student's preparation is comparable to last year, and we've tripled the number of Scholars and Mitrani Scholarship candidates," says Keller.

The typical student has a 1050 SAT score and is in the top third of their high school class with a B average. "More importantly, we're looking for students who are also involved at their schools, taking on leadership roles," says Herring.

Campus notes

Donna J. Cochrane, business education and office administration coauthored a paper with Maxine Hart and Brenda Morris of Baylor University. The paper, "Training's Role in the OEIS Curriculum," was published in the spring, 1996 Office Systems Research Journal, which is a refereed journal.

Gerry Powers, communication disorders, was recently invited to serve as a peer reviewer and panelist for the Training Personnel for the Education of Individuals with Disabilities Program in Washington, D.C. The evaluations are used by the U.S. Department of Education to make funding decisions for Grants for Preservice Personnel Preparation. Powers has served as a peer reviewer and panelist for the U.S. Department of Education for the past 17 years.

Scott Righter named assistant director of development

Scott Righter, '84, has been named assistant director of development at Bloomsburg University.

Righter, who served as assistant director in an interim role since 1993, has been responsible for several aspects of the university's fund-raising efforts including coordination of the annual fund for alumni. He manages the direct mail appeals and telephone and personal solicitations of nearly 40,000 graduates. He has placed special emphasis on younger graduates and reunion alumni as well as upgrading larger donors to increase contributions to the university's unrestricted account.

He returned to Bloomsburg after stints at Philadelphia's Hahnemann University and Chestnut Hill Academy. At Hahnemann, Righter was the director of development for the Likoff Cardiovascular Institute and added duties as director of annual giving for Hahnemann in October 1992. Prior to that, he was Chestnut Hill's director of development for two years following a year as assistant director of alumni programs and public relations at the Salisbury School in Salisbury, Conn.

Following his graduation from Bloomsburg with a bachelor of arts in mass communication, Righter spent a year as an assistant for computer services with the graphics arts firm of Ruttle, Shaw and Wetherill, Inc. in Fort Washington.

Diversity Conference planned

■ The third annual Diversity Conference for Area Colleges will be held at College Misericordia Saturday, Oct 5. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. with a keynote speaker at 9 a.m. The rest of the day will be devoted to small-group dialogue between teaching faculty and student life staff from 15 area colleges. The conference will end at 4 p.m. The first conference was held at Bloomsburg two years ago. Those interested in attending the conference should contact Nancy Gill, professor emeritus of English, at 799-0339.

Orchestra to perform on cruises

■ The Bloomsburg University-Community Orchestra will perform on three cruise ships in the next year. The orchestra will perform on cruises running Dec. 1 to 8, 1996, and March 7 to 15, 1997, in the Western Caribbean, and May 26 to June 21, 1997, in Alaska. Packages are available which include airfare from Pennsylvania to Florida or Alaska. For more information, contact Mark Jelinek, music, at 4289.

Second Street one-way Aug. 22, 24 and 25

New traffic patterns on Second Street will attempt to alleviate some congestion as students return to campus and move into residence halls. The street will be changed to allow for one-way traffic only between 9:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. August 22, 24 and 25. Vehicular traffic will be eastbound only (up the hill) from Penn Street (tri-level garage) to the intersection of Spruce Street and Laubach Drive (Ben Franklin Building). In addition, Laubach Drive will remain closed due to the ongoing steam line construction project.

National Science Foundation grants will add to lab equipment

Geology and chemistry students will have the opportunity to work with new equipment in the fall semester because of two grants received from the National Science Foundation.

The National Science Foundation is providing $50,000 to purchase an x-ray diffractometer for the geography and earth science department and $14,510 to purchase a variety of equipment for the chemistry department to enhance the department's offerings for non-majors. The university will match both grants.

Geography and Earth Science

The x-ray diffractometer is a device used to determine which minerals are present in a soil or rock sample. The device is enclosed in an armoire-sized chest shielded with lead and connected to a computer.

The x-ray diffractometer bombards the sample with x-rays, explains grant writer Lawrence Tanner, geography and earth science. The crystal lattice structure of minerals diffracts the x-rays by a degree which is known. The device measures the various degrees of x-ray diffraction, thereby determining which minerals are present in the sample. Analysis of a particular sample takes from 15 minutes to an hour depending on how comprehensive the analysis is.

"The greatest use of the diffractometer is in the senior research course required of all geology majors," says Tanner. There are approximately 30 geology majors at Bloomsburg at a given time, with an equal number of earth science majors who will also use the equipment.

In the past, Tanner and his students have used equipment at another university to do research.

Tanner applied for the grant three times before getting the funding. "I had the support of the grants office and the dean's office for the commitment to match the funds."

"Knowing what types of clay minerals are present in a sample has tremendous implications for engineering," says Tanner. In addition to working for engineering and energy firms such as oil and coal companies, many Bloomsburg graduates are involved in environmental work.

"At least half of geology majors are going into environmental jobs," says Tanner. "The environmental industry has grown tremendously." This area includes firms which specialize in waste disposal, contamination cleanup and ground water analysis.

Chemistry

Scientific literacy is what the new chemistry equipment is all about says Emeric Schultz, chemistry. "If we're going to have good public decision making, people need to know what good science is. We want to give non-science majors a science experience that they will enjoy. They will do fundamental types of experiments that would go under the heading of genetic engineering."

The class to use the new equipment will be students from the honors and scholars program this fall. The new equipment will include centrifuges, a water purification system and other equipment needed to isolate genes from DNA.

The students will isolate genes from bacteria which glow, a property called bioluminescence, and splice those genes into another bacteria. Schultz stresses that there is no danger from any type of contamination. "When you engineer these organisms, they are quite inept compared to what's already out there. The organisms that nature has created have evolved over millions of years to be very successful."

The principles that the students will learn are the same principles used in genetic fingerprinting in criminal cases. The scientific processes are also the same as those used to create microorganisms which have been designed to cleanup oil spills.

Campus notes

John E. Bodenman, geography and earth science, has written a paper, "Do Manufacturers Search for a Location? The Case of Hardwood Processors," which appears in the Journal of the Community Development Society, vol. 27, No. 1, 1996: pp. 113-129. Stephen M. Smith and Stephen B. Jones of the Pennsylvania State University are both co-authors of the article.

Chris Keller, director of admissions, recently presented a paper titled "Repainting the Ivory Tower: The Changing Roles of Upper Management" at the Pennsylvania Association of Secondary School and College Admissions Counselors (PASSCAC) annual conference in Hershey.

Tim Phillips, assistant director of the the Institute for Interactive Technologies (IIT) is leading a project to develop the world wide web page for the State System of Higher Education. The IIT has been awarded a $5,000 grant to undertake the project. The web pages will give information on the functions of the State System and provide links to member universities, including Bloomsburg. The IIT was awarded the grant because of the quality of Bloomsburg's homepage. The funding will allow the IIT to purchase top-quality Windows-based hardware and software for use on future projects. The team assembled specifically for this project includes Carl Huhn, Stacy Hubiak, Quen Ly and Jennifer Wert. The project should be completed by late summer.

Swapan Mookerjee, exercise physiology, was recently an invited guest lecturer at the American College of Sports Medicine Certification Workshop at Canisius College, Buffalo, N.Y.

Brian A. Johnson, geography and earth science, was recently selected to attend the Chautauqua Short course, "Science, Technology and Society Technology-Driven Issues for Today: White Collar Jobs; the Waste in Nuclear Waste." He also was reelected to the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Planning Association representing the Central Section.

Gary F. Clark, art, has been invited to be a panelist at "Macworld Boston." He will participate as a member of the Painter Wow panel held at the World Trade Center in Boston Aug. 9. Clark's work is also featured on the cover of the July issue of Australian Macworld magazine. His work will also be featured in a new book, Creative Painter Techniques by Jeremy Sutton, published by Haden Books.

Speech and Hearing Clinic teams with Kiwanis to make hearing aids available to needy

Bloomsburg University's Speech and Hearing Clinic and the Bloomsburg Kiwanis Club are joining forces to provide hearing aids at low cost to needy individuals who cannot afford to purchase a new hearing aid. The Kiwanis Club is distributing collection boxes to area businesses during the next several weeks so individuals can donate unneeded hearing aids. The Speech and Hearing Clinic will have the hearing aids refurbished to be provided to needy individuals at a low cost of about $70. The clinic will also evaluate needy individuals to determine what type of hearing aid will help them the most. Those interested in receiving a refurbished hearing aid should contact the Speech and Hearing Clinic at 389-4436. Shown outside of Bloomsburg University's Speech and Hearing Clinic are from left, Paul Conard of the Kiwanis and Richard Angelo, director of the Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Bloomsburg students take honors at conference

Crystal Kovaschetz of Danville, a junior accounting major, recently placed seventh in economics at the Phi Beta Lambda National Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C.

Alicia Royer, a 1996 graduate from Coopersburg, won 8th place for producing Bloomsburg's Local Chapter Annual Business Report.

Phi Beta Lambda is a national business organization associated with the Future Business Leaders of America. Eight Bloomsburg members attended the conference. In the economics event, Kovaschetz was seventh of 64 competitors.

Also at the conference, Bloomsburg Phi Beta Lambda adviser, Janice Keil, business education and office administration, was named outstanding local adviser.

Bloomsburg was also honored for having the second largest student membership and the largest professional membership in the Eastern Region.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

SEPTEMBER 1996

Alumnus leaves $400,000 to Bloomsburg

A "genuine love" for education and Bloomsburg University led to a graduate's substantial gift to be used for scholarships according to Susan Helwig, director of development. The settlement of the estate of Karleen Hoffman of La Jolla, Calif., a 1930 graduate, has resulted in a donation of $400,000 to be used to assist "needy, deserving students."

"We are very excited Ms. Hoffman thought enough of her alma mater to establish her legacy," said Helwig. "We are designated to receive the residue of the estate after expenses and already have over $315,000. The remainder is to be forwarded sometime in early 1997."

Hoffman, a Bloomsburg native, attended Bloomsburg High School and the National School of Philadelphia prior to receiving a degree in elementary education from the former Bloomsburg State Teachers College and earned a masters at Bucknell in 1945. She taught in Bloomsburg, Bradford and Montandon before spending 22 years (1947-1968) teaching special education in Newark, N. J. She resided in the San Diego area from 1968 until her death in May.

"She was an educator and strongly believed in education," said Denise Simon, who handled Hoffman's financial matters for the Union Bank of California. "She often talked of the school and her strong ties to that part of the country."

The benefactor was formerly a member of the Trinity Reformed United Church of Christ, Bloomsburg; a Worthy Matron, Bloomsburg Chapter No. 279, Order of Eastern Star; and the American Legion ladies auxiliary. She was a member of the Kappa Delta Phi and Alpha Psi Omega sororities and the American Association of University Women. Hoffman traveled extensively throughout the world and was the last member of her immediate family.

"This will become an endowed scholarship fund with the income derived from the gift used to enhance our recruitment efforts," said Helwig. "Currently, almost 80 percent of our scholarship awards go to upperclassmen, so this will fill a gap we have in providing assistance to incoming freshmen."

Kozloff lays out goals met, and goals to come at convocation

President Jessica Kozloff talked of goals met and those ahead during her Opening of School Convocation Address to faculty and staff in the Kenneth Gross Auditorium in Carver Hall.

Facing an academic year that includes the largest freshman class in university history and two major construction projects, Kozloff said these changes are among "the most obvious signs of energy on the campus." The "digging and rerouting of traffic" may occasion some stress, she acknowledged, but the "healthy crop of students should give us cause to celebrate. The increase . . . is a wonderful validation of this university and its value to the Commonwealth."

The university is approaching its enrollment cap, as established by the State System of Higher Education, she reported. The university's challenge next year will be balancing "the goals of selectivity with access." She projected that the university's full-time enrollment will be 6,700 this fall, nearly the level it was five years ago.

She said that faculty have "stepped forward to teach additional courses so that more classes could be delivered.

Our residence hall staff has converted lounges to living areas and purchased new, space-saving furniture to make residence hall living as comfortable as possible. Faculty and staff alike have responded with creativity and energy to the changes around us."

She added that more than 40 new faculty — temporary and tenure track — joined Bloomsburg's ranks to fill vacancies from retirements and meet the needs of additional students. Future faculty retirements will mean that this year the university will have "another 20 to 25 new faculty hires, again giving us an opportunity to recommit to our goals in diversity and quality."

Kozloff reported that the new library and steam line renovation are visible changes to physical facilities. These capital projects cost more than $15 million. Over the next five to ten years, she sees an additional $21 million investment in capital projects. Anticipated projects include renovations of Centennial Gymnasium, Navy Hall and Hartline Science Center.

CHALLENGE OF SOCRATES

Eighty-five faculty and staff recently spent Saturday afternoon working with freshmen for the "Challenge of Socrates" orientation program. Shown at an assembly during the program are, from left: guest speaker George Lucas, professor of philosophy at the U.S. Naval Academy; President Jessica Kozloff; Michael Poliakoff, former associate dean of Arts and Sciences; Lynda Michaels, coordinator of orientation; and Eugene Hickok, secretary of the Department of Education.

News briefs

President, cabinet schedule open hours for Sept. 18

President Jessica Kozloff will hold open office hours Wednesday, Sept. 18, from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Visitors are recommended to call 4526 to be sure the time is available.

There will be an open forum with the president and members of her Cabinet that day from 3-5 p.m. in McCormick Center, Forum, after the regular forum meeting.

Football luncheons underway

The Husky Club Football Luncheons are currently underway every Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m. in the University Room of the Scranton Commons. The cost of the lunch is $6. Coach Danny Hale will speak about the previous game and the upcoming opponent.

Corrections

Council of Trustees member David J. Cope's name was inadvertently omitted from the employee phone book.

In the August issue of the Communiqué, it was incorrectly reported that the University-Community Orchestra will perform on several cruises. The orchestra is sponsoring the cruises, but not performing.

Donna Cochrane named faculty assistant to the president

Donna Cochrane has been named faculty assistant to the president. Cochrane's duties include representing the president with internal and external constituency groups including meetings such as the BUCC and secretariat, serving as secretary to the president's cabinet, and managing operations in the president's office. She also helps prepare reports for the president.

A professor in the department of business education and office administration for the past nine years, Cochrane has served full-time in her new position since late August.

Donna Cochrane

In the past, she served as a grievance coordinator and on the grievance board as well as other faculty committees. She also worked as a conference coordinator during the summer for extended programs (now continuing and distance education) from 1983 to 1993.

Reception planned for social equity director Howe-Barksdale

President Jessica Kozloff is hosting a reception to welcome Sydney Howe-Barksdale, the new director of social equity on Thursday, Sept. 26, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. in the Multicultural Center of Kehr Union. All members of the university community are invited to attend.

Howe-Barksdale earned a bachelor of arts degree from Bryn Mawr and her law degree from the Boston University School of Law. As an attorney, she managed cases pertaining to civil rights as well as other matters. In her position, she reports to the president and serves as a member of the President's Cabinet.

Barksdale has scheduled regular open hours every Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. in Kehr Union, room 327.

Academics focus of TALE programs

The Teaching and Learning Enhancement (TALE) Center is sponsoring several projects this semester. The projects include seminars, lunchtime discussions, and a teaching mentoring programs. The TALE Center is located in the rear of the University Store building.

Lunchtime lectures

Lunchtime lectures will be held every Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. in the Kehr Union, room 340. Interested individuals are invited to bring a bag lunch and join in informal discussion. Upcoming topics include: Sept. 17, Alex Poplawsky, psychology, "Exploring Brain Behavior Relationships"; Sept. 24, Sabah Salih, English, "Deconstruction of Reaganism"; Oct. 1, John Riley, mathematics and computer science, "Calculus Reform."

Continuing Seminars

TALE is also sponsoring continuing seminars. Topics include: Technology in the Classroom, Academic Integrity, Radical Pedagogy, and Tricks of the Trade.

Teaching Support Program

The teaching support program is a consultant/mentoring pairing system for faculty growth. Interested faculty are paired with a colleague outside their department. The pair meet as long and as frequently as desired for discussion about teaching strategies.

For more information about TALE and its programs, contact JoAnne Growney, mathematics and computer science, at 4503 or 4310.

University provides $250,581 for strategic proposals

Bloomsburg has budgeted $250,581 to fund 26 proposals designed to further strategic priorities identified within the university's "Enhancing Excellence" plan.

Approved proposals and proposal writers include:

Retention of Students with Learning Disabilities (C. Schloss, P. Walters, J. Growney, J. Jackowski, R. Klinger) To promote the retention of students with learning disabilities through teaching them skills necessary to continue their education.

An Integrated Freshman Year Experience (J. Mulka, et al.) To expand and improve the Freshman Year Experience at Bloomsburg University. The proposal is the first phase of a three-year project that will culminate by offering the University Seminar course to all freshmen beginning with the 1999-2000 academic year.

Enhancing Tutoring (I. Wright) To purchase equipment and supplies to help prepare students to become effective tutors and by purchasing study carrels.

Mitrani Hall Stage Lighting Replacement (R. Presswood).

The Autoflow System (C. Keller) To introduce an ongoing communications sequence from the admissions office to prospective students and parents beginning in a student's junior year of high school and continuing through enrollment at Bloomsburg.

Diversity and Social Change (T. Nixon) Speakers, receptions, exhibits, film conversations, and plays.

Total Scheduling System (C. Barnett).

Honorarium for Well-known News Personality (J. Hollister) To bring a well-known news personality to campus for a day. The day's events will include meetings with students and regional leaders, culminating in an address open to the public.

Cataloging the Schomburg Collection of Microfilm Holdings (M. Hinchcliff) To place cataloging for the Schomburg collection of Negro Literature and History, 1st and 2nd Series, in machine readable form for loading into Andrus Library's online catalog.

Portable Virtual Library (N. Weyant) To expand reference librarians' ability to teach members of the university community how to access the broad range of electronic information sources. Acquisition of portable equipment will dramatically expand teaching options and increase the number of students able to locate information from online sources.

Electronic Commerce Classroom (J. Dutt) Establish a state-of-the-art electronic commerce instructional classroom/laboratory and developing an electronic commerce concentration.

Enhancement of High School Science Education at the Biology Chemistry Interface (E. Schultz and C. Surmacz) To create a "Science Outreach Institute."

The Challenge of Socrates: A Freshman Orientation Program (M. Poliakoff) A special section of freshman orientation will demonstrate Bloomsburg's commitment to serious, value-centered academic life by focusing on the uncompromising pursuit of truth and moral virtue exemplified by the Greek philosopher Socrates.

Making Connections: A Newsletter for Teachers of Culturally Diverse Literatures (S. Agbaw, M. Bernath, T. Nixon) To establish a twice-yearly newsletter, Making Connections, that would facilitate the exchange of information among secondary school and college instructors in central Pennsylvania who are interested in teaching culturally diverse literatures.

An Opportunity to Excel: The Recruitment of Mathematics and Computer Science Students for the Next Century (S. Kokoska, S. Inch, H. Doll) To recruit academically talented students interested in mathematics and computer science through faculty projects to introduce high school students to our department and the university.

The Bloomsburg University-Head Start Collaborative Research Project (E. Astor-Stetson, S. Jones, J. Waggoner, S. Kokoska) To improve services provided to children and families, which will result in improving the quality of Head Start as a field placement for our students in Education.

Physics Discovery (P. Moser, S. Randall, G. Lange, P. Stine) To enhance active and collaborative learning in the course, "Principles of Physical Science for Elementary Teachers." Active learning will be enhanced by increasing the laboratory time from about 50% to almost 100% of class time, and by allowing the students to formulate their own questions and to design some of their own experiments.

The Migrant Community Project (Jean Downing, N. Gentile Ford, S. Dauria, R. Radziewich) To provide opportunities for students to experience multicultural, real-life situations preparing them for careers and responsible citizenship. Collaboration between Bloomsburg professors, the SOLVE Office, and these community agencies will benefit all involved.

Project Funds for Establishing a Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Advisory Board (J. Vandivere, W. Lee-Lampshire) To establish a Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Advisory Board composed of faculty, staff, and students whose charge is to provide a locus of information, administrate a funding pool for events, and to develop activities to promote understanding of gay, lesbian and bisexual concerns.

Model United Nations Delegation (M. Brettschneider) To support Bloomsburg University's participation in the Model United Nations Program.

Institute for Environmental and Toxicological Statistics (M. Razzaghi, J. Kipe-Nolt) To support the activities of the newly established Institute for Environmental and Toxicological Statistics. These activities will include the organization of multidisciplinary seminars in the field of environmental statistics, preparation of multidisciplinary grant proposals for submission to state and national agencies, and facilitation of multidisciplinary projects for students.

Womens Studies Minor Project (M. Brettschneider, G. Cohen-Dion, W. Lee-Lampshire) To acquire components necessary to develop the intellectual framework of the Womens Studies Minor.

Task Force - Racial Equity (S. Hicks, I. Wright) For a second training of Trainers Workshop to support educational training activities of the University/Community Task Force on Racial Equity.

International Faculty Association (S. Khan).

Distance Education Advisory Committee (M. Vavrek) To establish a committee to provide guidance and advice to the Provost on the appropriate use of distance education and related matters.

Science Education Cooperative (J. Matta) To form a coalition to promote science and mathematics education in the rural counties of northern Pennsylvania. The coalition will increase the availability and quality of science and math education to students in the rural counties. Major grant proposals to the NSF and corporate funders will be produced.

SECA campaign to start

The 1996 SECA campaign begins Monday, Sept. 16. The once-a-year State Employees Combined Appeals permits state employees to identify charities they wish to support and use the convenience of payroll deduction to channel their gifts to organizations and groups that benefit the community.

Thousands of health and welfare service agencies in Pennsylvania, the United States and around the world receive support throughout SECA.

According to Mark Lloyd, general chair of this year's campaign at the university, "our primary goal is to increase the participation rate at Bloomsburg. We're encouraging employees to designate at least $1 per pay period to support their favorite charity.

"If more of us were to give at least $1 every two weeks, we'd surpass our goal."

Bloomsburg's SECA campaign will continue until Nov. 22.

Appointments, promotions and retirements recognized

New Faculty

Recent appointments of tenure track faculty members include:

Patricia Comitini, instructor of English; George Davis, assistant professor of biological and allied health sciences; Robert Dunkelberger, instructor, Andrus Library; Nathaniel Greene, assistant professor of physics; Abner (Woody) Holton, assistant professor of history; Vincert Hron, assistant professor of art; Mark Ness, assistant professor of curriculum and foundations; Andrea Pearson, assistant professor of art; Mary Simmons, instructor of English; Charles Starkey, assistant professor of curriculum and foundations; Cynthia Venn, assistant professor of geography and earth science.

New Staff Appointments

Linda L. Brown of Elysburg, clerk typist 1 in student life/residence life; Sharon B. Fedder of Bloomsburg, police officer 1; Wendy Fetterman of Catawissa, teacher in the Child Care Center; Gregory W. Furman, electronic systems technician in computer services; Terri Meter of Bloomsburg, clerk typist 1 in the Health Center; Donna C. Murphy of Bloomsburg, clerk steno 2 in chemistry and physics; Lori J. Robbins of Bloomsburg, custodial worker 1; Linda L. Titman of Bloomsburg, custodial worker 1.

Promotions and Reclassifications

Anita L. Hakim has been promoted from clerk steno 2 in chemistry and physics to administrative assistant 1 in the registrar's office.

Cheryl A. John has been reclassified from clerk typist 3 to management technician in the office of planning and construction.

Merle M. Knorr has been promoted from custodial worker 1 to custodial worker 2 in custodial services.

Antonio J. Lopez has been promoted from custodial worker 1 to custodial worker 2.

Frances K. Magargle has been promoted from part time clerk stenographer 2 in the office of the dean for College of Arts and Sciences to clerk typist 3 in the Andrus Library.

NEW STAFF WELCOMED

A dozen new non-instructional employees were recently welcomed to the university at an orientation offered by the office of human resources and labor relations. New employees who participated in the program included, from left: Terri Meter, Health Center/office of drug and alcohol programming; Wade Gottstein, maintenance; Lori Robbins, custodial services; Scott Schaffer, custodial services; Linda Titman, custodial services; Wayne Mohr, TV/radio services; Frances Magargle, Andrus Library; Sydney Howe-Barksdale, social equity; and Greg Furman, computer services.

A. Renee Matrishion has been reclassified from clerk typist 1 to clerk typist 2 in the office of human resources and labor relations.

Mark E. Prout has been promoted from custodial worker 1 to clerk 2 in the university mailroom.

Department Chairs

Accounting — Michael Blue.

Sociology and Social Welfare — Anne K. Wilson, for the fall semester only.

Health, Physical Education and Athletics — Susan J. Hibbs, assistant chair.

(A more complete listing of department chairs was included in the June 10 issue of the Communiqué and in the Communiqué web site.)

Retirements

Rollin A. Bankes, a plumber in the maintenance department, recently retired after 13 years of service to Bloomsburg. Lester J. Dietterick, accounting, after 30 years service. H. Benjamin Powell, history, after 31 years of service. Chang Shub Roh, sociology and social welfare, after 25 years of service.

Faculty Emeritus Status

Faculty emeritus status has been conferred upon the following recent retirees:

Ujagar S. Bawa, economics, in recognition of his 25 years of service; Chang Shub Roh, sociology and social welfare, in recognition of his 25 years of service; Kenneth T. Wilson Jr., art, in recognition of his 33 years of service.

Miscellany

Scott Lowe, philosophy, is serving as interim associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Lynda Michaels from residence director and interim coordinator of orientation to coordinator of new student orientation and assistant director of admissions.

Campus notes

Shaheen Awan, communication disorders, recently received the Young Alumnus of the Year Award from Kent State University Alumni Association. Awan earned his Ph.D. in speech pathology and audiology from Kent in 1989.

Michael C. Hickey, history, delivered a paper, "Revolution on the Jewish Street, Smolensk, 1917" at the National Endowment for the Humanities Symposium on Contentious Politics and Revolution at Cornell University in August.

Steven L. Cohen, psychology recently published an article titled "Behavioral Momentum of Typing Behavior in College Students" in the Journal of Behavior Analysis and Therapy. The Journal of Behavior Analysis and Therapy is a new electronic journal that provides peer refereed articles on the Internet. You can find this article at <http://sage.und.nodak.edu/org/jBAT/jbatinfo.html> and select Volume 1.

Robert Obutelewicz, economics, was elected vice president of the Columbia-Montour Torch Club for the 1996-97 year. He is responsible for obtaining speakers for the club's meetings. The speaker for the September meeting was President Jessica Kozloff.

Duane Braun, geography and earth science, recently received a $79,965 grant from the Pennsylvania Bureau of Topographic and Geologic Survey for "The Scranton Project."

Judith Kipe-Nolt, biological and allied health sciences, recently received a $6,053 grant from the Durst Organization for a project titled "Biological Suppression of Fruit Crop Disease via Controlled Microbial Compost."

Howard J. Kinslinger, management, has been elected 1996-97 president of the Susquehanna Human Resource Management Association. The association's membership includes nearly 100 human resource professionals affiliated with the Society for Human Resource Management, a national professional organization.

Reza Noubary, mathematics and computer science, has written an article, "Some Notes on Zero Crossing Formula," which appears in the Journal of Applied Statistical Sciences, vol. 2, 1996. He also recently presented "Mathematics, New Developments and Future Trends" to the Toronto Engineering Association and "Discrimination of Time Series Based on Important Frequencies Using Kullback-Leibler Information" at the Kullback Memorial Research Conference at George Washington University.

Frank Misi, curriculum and foundations, has written an article, "Keys to the Natural World" which appears in the May 1996 issue of the National Science Teachers Association publication, Science Scope.

Linda M. LeMura, exercise physiology, a member of the Science Education Advisory Council in New York State for the last five years, has co-authored a 1.2 million dollar grant over 5 years to rewrite the secondary science curriculum in that state. The grant is aimed at rewriting the Regents Science curriculum in biology, chemistry and physics. She also recently gave a paper at the Syracuse University School of Education titled: "Incorporating Principles of Exercise Physiology in High School Regents Biology."

Wendy Lee-Lampshire, philosophy, presented the paper "Anthropomorphism Without Anthropocentrism: A Wittgensteinian Ecofeminist Alternative to Deep Ecology" to the Society for Philosophy in the Contemporary World annual conference in Estes Park, Col. The same paper will be published this fall in the journal, Ethics and the Environment. Lee-Lampshire has also been invited to serve as executive secretary of the eastern division of the Society for Women in Philosophy for the 1996-98 term.

Sabah A. Salih, English, recently presented a paper, "The Satanic Verses as Literature of Pleasure," at the Literature of Pleasure and Desire Conference at Binghamton University. His essays on Najib Mahfouz, Edward Said, Yashar Kemal, E.D. Hirsch, and Abdelrahman Munif will appear in the forthcoming Cyclopedia of World Authors. His article, "Immigrant Literature in the Classroom," will appear in the forthcoming issue of Pennsylvania English. Salih is also organizing a session, "Exile in Literature," at SUNY Cortland.

Raymond S. Pastore, curriculum and foundations, presented several papers this past summer. He presented "Improving Preservice Teaching Through the Use of Computer-assisted Systematic Observation" at the Ed Media '96: World Conference on Educational Multimedia and Hypermedia in Boston. His paper was published in the Educational Multimedia and Hypermedia Yearbook and on CD-ROM. He also presented "Integrating Internet into the Teacher Education Curriculum" at the NECC '96: National Educational Computing Conference in Minneapolis. His paper was published in the NECC '96 Conference proceedings and on CD-ROM.

SCIENCE FICTION ILLUSTRATOR EXHIBITS WORK IN HAAS

Paul Lehr, an Orangeville sculptor and science fiction illustrator whose paintings have graced the covers of hundreds of books, is exhibiting his works at Bloomsburg University's Haas Gallery through September 26. A reception for Lehr will be held Thursday, Sept. 19, at noon in the gallery. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Lehr's illustrations have appeared on the covers of books authored by Isaac Asimov, Ray Bradbury, Arthur C. Clark, H.G. Wells and others. His is the "Grok" painting on the cover of Robert A. Heinlein's Stranger in a Strange Land, one of the best selling science fiction paperbacks of all time.

New York City trip planned for Sept. 21

Continuing and distance education is sponsoring a trip to New York City Saturday, Sept. 21, to visit the Winslow Homer exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the African art exhibit at the Guggenheim Museum. The cost of the trip is $59 and includes bus transportation and admission to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. For more information about the trip, call 4420.

Reggae Fest is Sept. 14

The Kehr Union program board is sponsoring a Reggae Fest Saturday, Sept. 14, at 2 p.m. on the lawn outside the Kehr Union. The festival, which is free and open to the public, will feature the bands Souljahs and Babylon Hall. The rain location is inside the Kehr Union.

Multicultural Center opening to feature jazz flutist

The fall opening of the Multicultural Center in the Kehr Union Tuesday, Sept. 17, at noon, will feature a performance by jazz flutist Galen Abdur-Razzaq. In addition to his performance, he will give a lecture on the history of jazz at 7 p.m. in the Multicultural Center.

Author to talk about "Life 101" for university community

Author Ellen Rosenberg will give a talk titled "Life 101" Thursday, Sept. 19, at 8 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts, Mitrani Hall. Rosenberg's presentation is part of the university's new Freshman Year Program. The talk is open to the public. Rosenberg is the author of Growing Up Feeling Good and her national column "Real Life on Campus" is carried in Campus Activities Today magazine.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

SPECIAL EDITION

SEPT 26 1996

Projects will benefit university for decades to come

For next year, work will keep campus in upheaval

By next fall, Bloomsburg's new library building will be entirely enclosed and work on the interior will have begun. New steam lines will be installed throughout campus resulting in increased heating efficiency.

However. . .

For the next year, much of the lower campus will look like a work in progress. Trenches to install new steam lines will wind their way throughout the center areas of campus. That construction will bring temporary, albeit, significant, inconveniences. It will result in lasting improvements.

Steam Line Construction

While construction work for the new library is generally confined to the fenced-in work site, the steam line project does anything but stay inside boundaries.

Trenches, 10 feet wide and 15 feet deep, like those dug along Second Street this summer, will be dug throughout campus (see map on reverse side). A much larger trench will be dug running from the basketball courts in the center of campus to the end of the McCormick building to accommodate a tunnel. The eight-foot diameter, 1,000 foot-long tunnel will allow for easier and safer maintenance access in future years.

The installation of the steam lines has been broken into two phases, the first of which is nearing completion.

Phase one of the steam line project ran from Centennial Gymnasium to the University Store along Second Street. According to the contract with the firm doing the project, steam must be restored to buildings by Oct. 15. The remainder of the project, including replacement of sidewalks, roads and landscaping, must be completed by Nov. 20.

Phase two (approximately four times the size of phase one) will focus on the interior of the campus. The work will progress throughout the winter (weather permitting), spring, summer and possibly a portion of next fall. The total time for completion of phase two is 420 days.

The replacement of old and leaking steam lines has been identified as a critical need on campus for the past 10 years. Rolling banks of steam rising from leaking steam lines around Bakeless Center and the University Store have been a common sight during the winter for years.

"We had underground blowouts every winter to the point that there was serious concern that we would not make it through the winter and provide heat to all the buildings on campus," says Robert Parrish, vice president for administration. "Because of the leaks, we were heating the ground. With the new steam lines, we'll be able to reduce our coal consumption in the heating plant."

Each new steam line trench will contain three pipes—a steam supply pipe, and low-pressure and high-pressure condensate return pipes.

The new steam system's pipes are encased in an epoxy-coated steel casing and insulated.

Altogether, the steam line project entails the installation of nearly seven miles of pipe throughout the campus. Roads, parking spaces, sidewalks, grass, shrubbery and trees will be dug up throughout the project. Some roads and parking lots will be closed during construction. Trenches will be bridged at roadways to provide for emergency and other vehicle access and to provide access to buildings. The university will not lose many parking spaces at any given point during work on phase two.

"It's not a very complicated project, but it's very cumbersome," says Nicholas Kalanick, project coordinator in planning and construction.

Tom Contos, assistant director of physical plant for planning and construction says that because the steam system is inter-connected, the project is unlikely to affect heat and hot water in buildings.

Periodic updates on the steam line and other construction projects will be transmitted throughout the campus via e-mail and appear in the Communiqué.

Library Construction

The silhouette of the new library is now taking shape as steel is erected. The more-than-900 beams being put into place weigh more than 750 tons.

Library construction began in April. The university's planning and construction personnel hope to see the building's walls and roof completed soon so work may continue in the interior throughout the winter months.

Most of the work on the new library will be contained within the fenced area. However, movement of equipment and materials may cause roads and parking spaces to be temporarily closed.

On contracts and the DGS

The majority of large contracts for all construction projects on campus are issued by Commonwealth of Pennsylvania's Department of General Services (DGS), the state's office for managing design and construction for state-owned buildings and grounds.

The state's construction contracts have dates by which general contractors and numerous sub-contractors must complete their work. In the case of the new Andruss Library, all work must be complete by July 5, 1997. For phase two of the steam line installation, work must be complete by Aug. 7, 1997. These dates can be altered by contract extensions (because of weather-caused delays for example) if deemed necessary by the DGS.

New Andruss Library

General contractor, Mar-Paul Company of Dunmore; mechanical, Bognet Inc. of Hazleton; plumbing, Bohrer-Reagan, electrical, Medlar Electric Company, both of Reading; fire protection, Fire Protection Industries of Landing, N.J.

Total Cost: $8,394,250

Steam Line Phase I

General contractor, Rado Enterprises of Bloomsburg; electrical, Williamsport Electric.

Steam Line Phase II

General contractor, Rado Enterprises of Bloomsburg; electrical, Lecce Electrical of Williamsport.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

3 OCTOBER 1996

The nurse is in

Bloomsburg launches new nurse practitioner program

The door to the waiting room opens. You hear your name called, followed by..." the nurse practitioner will see you now."

"Fine, but when can I see the doctor?," you say to yourself. That may not be necessary.

In some cases, nurse practitioners may make the visit to the doctor, well...doctorless. These registered nurses have gone back to school for specialized training and can provide expanded services for patients, including physical examinations, diagnoses and basic treatments. They can provide high-quality primary and preventative care in settings like hospitals, schools and primary care clinics.

Bloomsburg University is a training ground for this new breed of nurse. Sharon Haymaker, certified registered nurse practitioner (CRNP), joined the university's staff with the charge to develop and implement the program.

The veteran nurse practitioner did her homework before the first class enrolled in late August.

"We wrote and talked with many physicians," says Haymaker. "Unlike most of Pennsylvania's family-based programs, ours is focused on adults. Our nurses will be best at seeing chronic patients, especially in clinic and nursing home settings, to provide care alongside physicians. Nurse practitioners can provide much in the way of counseling, health promotion and health maintenance."

Admission to Bloomsburg's nurse practitioner program requires a baccalaureate degree in nursing, a license to practice in Pennsylvania, and a minimum of one year of recent practice.

There are 27 candidates in Bloomsburg's graduate nursing program in three areas of study; community health specialization, adult health/illness specialization and the nurse practitioner specialization.

In nearly all states (but not Pennsylvania) nurse practitioners can prescribe medication. In half the states, they can practice independently without physician collaboration or supervision.

"Many physicians employ nurse practitioners to enhance services for their patients. There is a tremendous supply of specialists but a real need for primary health care providers particularly in this and other rural areas."

Faculty books

Hudon's latest work examines 16th century religious thought

William Hudon, history, has translated and edited Theatine Spirituality: Selected Writings. The book provides translation of works by religious writers of the 16th century Theatine Order — an order whose thinking formed a bridge between the Renaissance and the Counter Reformation.

While the Renaissance is often thought of as a time of progress and Counter Reformation a time of repression, "things aren't as simple as they seem," says Hudon. His book portrays the complexity of the time.

A specialist in religious history, Hudon is also the author of Marcello Cervini and Ecclesiastical Government in Tridentine Italy, as well as eleven entries in the Encyclopedia of the Reformation. He has also just published an essay, "Religion and Society in Early Modern Italy — Old Questions, New Insights," in The American Historical Review (vol. 101, No. 3, June 1996).

William Hudon

Hudon began work on this latest book in 1991 and finished it last year. "The book is part of a series, 'The Classics of Western Spirituality,' published by Paulist Press of New York," says Hudon.

The series includes more than 80 volumes of works by religious and spiritual writers.

"The series has been highly regarded because of its usefulness in classrooms at divinity schools and seminaries, as well as people who have an interest in church history."

Rockwood edits new collection of essays on law and literature

Bruce Rockwood, finance and business law, has edited a book, Law and Literature Perspectives. The book includes 16 essays on law and literature from a variety of contributors, including Rockwood and Ervene Gulley and Marion Petrillo from the English department.

"You can use literature to study the law and use literary theory to study legal cases," says Rockwood, who has worked in the field of law and literature for more than a decade.

Rockwood has been soliciting manuscripts for the book, published by

Rockwood book

Peter Lang, for about five years and did most of the editing during the summer and fall of 1995.

The book has won acclaim from leading scholars in the law and literature field. "Skillfully chosen for their variety and appeal," says Richard H. Weisberg, professor at the Benjamin Cardozo School of Law, of the essays.

"Bruce Rockwood has assembled one of the most useful and imaginative anthologies I have ever seen," says Stanley N. Katz, president of the American Council of Learned Societies.

In addition to editing the book and writing the introduction, Rockwood contributed the essay "Abortion Stories: Uncivil Discourse and 'Cider House' Rules." Gulley contributed "Dressed in a Little Brief Authority: Law as Theater in Measure for Measure" and Petrillo contributed "Law as Society: Nadine Gordimer's The Late Bourgeois World."

Spectrum magazine wins gold medal

Spectrum magazine, published by students at Bloomsburg University, has been awarded a gold medalist certificate by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association (CSPA).

The competition included entrants from 335 colleges and universities across the United States. Spectrum earned 998 points out of a thousand — making it first in the point rankings.

The award is another in a series of national awards that Spectrum has earned since its inception in 1986. In seven of the past nine years, the student publication has earned medalist honors from the CSPA. Spectrum's faculty adviser is Walter Brasch, mass communications.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

17 OCTOBER 1996

Homecoming '96 features new events

Alumni and friends of the university will have new choices of things to do during homecoming weekend, Friday, Oct. 25, to Sunday, Oct. 27. Along with the traditional parade, athletic contests and concert, the Alumni Association is sponsoring a buffet lunch and Casino Night.

This year's homecoming theme is Medieval Bloomsburg.

The weekend will begin with a plaque dedication at the Five Friends Memorial in front of the library Friday, Oct. 25, at 4 p.m. The event is organized by a student committee headed by Community Government Association president Kevin Lockwood.

The annual athletic hall of fame dinner will be held Friday evening. Five Bloomsburg sports stars will be inducted into the Hall of Fame this year. For more information, call 4413.

Saturday's events begin at 9 a.m. with alumni registration in the Kehr Union Multicultural Center.

The homecoming parade, which starts at 10 a.m. Saturday, will follow a different route than in years past. The new route starts at the Bloomsburg Hospital parking lot, proceeds up Penn Street to Carver Hall, turns down College Hill to Main Street, then left on Market Street, finishing at Town Park. The new route is designed to be easier for both marchers and vehicles. Chang Shub Roh, professor emeritus of sociology, will be the parade marshal.

The Alumni Association is sponsoring a family luncheon at Nelson Field House from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. The luncheon features a choice of buffet for $11 or a Berrigan's sub meal for $7.

The Huskies will take on the Shippensburg Red Raiders at 1:30 p.m. at Redman Stadium. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for students and $1 for children ages 8 to 12.

The Alumni Association is also holding a Casino Night/Dance Party at the Caldwell Consistory on Market Square from 7 p.m. to midnight. Admission is $10 and includes a light supper catered by Magee's Main Street Inn as well as a cache of play money. Steve Lindenmuth, '83, will play the piano for a singalong. The D.J. will start playing music for dancing at 9 p.m. Any proceeds from the Casino Night activities will benefit the Husky Club (athletic scholarships).

Provost's lecturers will examine the relationship of the sexes

Bloomsburg University will host a two-day exploration of the relationship between men and women on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 22 and 23. Featured speakers are the authors of The Myth of Male Power and Who Stole Feminism: How Women Have Betrayed Women.

Warren Farrell, author of two international best-sellers, The Myth of Male Power and Why Men Are the Way They Are, will speak Tuesday, Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. on "Why Men Are the Way They Are."

Christina Hoff Sommers, author of Who Stole Feminism, and Farrell will hold a workshop together Wednesday, Oct. 23, at 2 p.m. titled "Men and Women in the 21st Century: Fact, Fiction and the Future."

Sommers will speak Wednesday, Oct. 23, at 7 p.m. on "Who Stole Feminism."

All three lectures are open to the public and will be held in Carver Hall, Kenneth S. Gross Auditorium.

Warren Farrell

Farrell is the only man in the United States to have been elected three times to the board of directors of the National Organization for Women. He was the only person selected to speak at California's Conference on Men and Conference on Women in 1995. Farrell has been featured in publications such as Psychology Today and Time, and on many television programs like "20/20" and "Larry King Live."

Christina Hoff Sommers

Sommers, president of the Boston Chapter of the National Association of Scholars, has written exposes on flawed gender research and how it has negatively affected national policy for many publications, including The Wall Street Journal, USA Today, and The New Republic. A philosophy professor at Clark University, she has also appeared on many television programs such as "20/20," "Nightline," and "Crossfire."

Sadler edits collection of 19th century stories

Glenn Sadler, English, has recently published a revised edition of the complete fairy tales and short stories of 19th century Scottish writer George MacDonald.

The collection, Gifts of the Child Christ, includes 21 stories and 41 illustrations by artists of the period. The stories include some of MacDonald's best-known fairy tale parables and lesser known stories, some of which are suitable for adults and family reading. Included in the collection are a werewolf story and the tale of a little princess who loses her gravity.

Sadler edited the original in two volumes in 1973 and mass market paperback in 1980.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

7 NOVEMBER 1996

Jazz singers Nancy Wilson and Joe Williams to perform Nov. 15

Jazz singers Nancy Wilson and Joe Williams will perform at Bloomsburg Friday, Nov. 15, at 8 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts, Mitrani Hall.

Wilson, who has released 55 albums, has won two Grammys and an Emmy award. Williams, known for his blues singing and ballads, has had his album Ev'ry Day placed in the Recording Industry Hall of Fame.

Joe Williams

Williams, 77, began his career singing the blues in Chicago clubs of the 1930s and 40s. He joined the Lionel Hampton band in 1943, working alongside vocalist Dinah Washington. In '54, he began singing with Count Basie and his orchestra—recording his breakthrough album Ev'ry Day. He went on to record more than 45 albums — receiving a Grammy award for “Best Jazz Vocal Album” for his 1985 release I Just Want to Sing.

Williams has appeared on television numerous times, appearing on The Tonight Show starring Johnny Carson more times than any other male jazz vocalist. He has also had roles on Lou Grant and The Cosby Show.

As a young woman, Wilson originally planned a teaching career. Landing a singing gig in 1956 with Rusty Bryant's Carolyn Club Band in Columbus changed those plans. She received her first Grammy award in 1964 for “Best R&B Album” for How Glad I Am and followed her success with another nomination the following year for Gentle is My Love. Throughout the 1960s and 70s, she appeared regularly on television. Her TV series The Nancy Wilson Show was awarded an Emmy.

Nancy Wilson

Wilson garnered Grammy nominations for her albums With My Lover Beside Me and Forbidden Lover. Most recently, she has had recurring roles on the television series The Cosby Show, Sinbad and The Parent 'Hood.

Tickets for the performance are $25 and are available by calling 4409. Community activities tickets are available at the Kehr Union, Information Desk.

Nobel prize winner Archbishop Desmond Tutu to speak at commencement

Archbishop Desmond Tutu, Nobel Peace Prize winner from South Africa, will be the speaker for Bloomsburg University's winter commencement convocation Saturday, Dec. 14, in Nelson Field House.

Archbishop Tutu will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters at the ceremony, at which both graduate and undergraduate students will be awarded their degrees. The graduate and undergraduate ceremonies will be combined for an opportunity to hear a speaker with the international stature of Archbishop Tutu. Graduate and undergraduate students will return to separate ceremonies in the future.

As General Secretary of the South African Council of Churches from 1978 to 1985, Archbishop Tutu became embroiled in controversy as he spoke out against the injustice of the apartheid system. For several years, he was denied a passport to travel abroad, but in 1982 the South African government withdrew this restriction in the face of national and international concern.

Archbishop Tutu's contribution to the cause of racial justice in South Africa was recognized in 1984 when he received the highest award the world can offer — the Nobel Peace Prize.

In 1985, Tutu was elected Bishop of Johannesburg, where he worked to bridge the chasm between black and white Anglicans in South Africa. In 1986, he was elected Archbishop of Cape Town. In 1987, he was elected president of the All Africa Conference of Churches.

To the surprise of some critics, Archbishop Tutu has not sought a political position. Instead, he has become a principal mediator and conciliator as chair of South Africa's Truth and Reconciliation Commission.

He retired from office as Archbishop in June 1996, but was named Archbishop Emeritus.

Archbishop Tutu has written four collections of sermons and addresses: Crying in the Wilderness (1982), Hope and Suffering: Sermons and Speeches (1983), The Words of Desmond Tutu (1989), The Rainbow People of God (1994).

900 new full-text journals available online through Andruss Library

More than 900 journals will be available in their entirety at computers in the Harvey A. Andruss Library and throughout campus as part of the State System's library connectivity project. The online journals will include full text, indexing, abstracts and images.

The journals can be consulted through computers in the library, student computer labs and faculty offices by going to Bloomsburg's world wide web homepage (at <http://bloomu.edu>), advancing to the "library resources" page, entering the "WWW Virtual Library" section, and selecting "full-text databases." Off campus access to resources will be provided in the future.

"Our students and faculty can now experience the excitement of the real beginnings of the information explosion," says J. Daniel Vann, dean of library services.

Students and faculty who desire information or assistance in using these new digital resources should make requests in person at the reference desk or telephone 4204.

The new online resources consist of three InfoTrac SearchBank databases: Expanded Academic ASAP, Business ASAP, and Health Reference ASAP. Most of the journals included in the service begin with full texts of the 1992 or 1993 volumes of journals, but the Expanded Academic and Business databases also include access to backfiles of abstracts or many journal articles from the early 1980s.

A list of journals available through the new databases has been prepared by reference librarian Bradley S. McDonald. John B. Pitcher, assistant director for automation and technical operations, has been responsible for implementation of the service at Bloomsburg.

The library connectivity project is being financed by a $2.5 million State System appropriation supported by the university presidents to provide major funding for the full-text databases for two years and to introduce a common integrated library system for all 14 system universities. The effort will become the Keystone Library Network, which will provide access to all the cataloged resources of the system schools.

Computer forms simplified

Computer Services has a new form to be used when requesting access to the various administrative computer systems on campus. The new form is green and is called the Access Authorization Request form and it replaces all previous forms. New forms are available at the operations window on the ground floor of the Ben Franklin Building. Please start using them immediately.

In the event severe weather conditions threaten to disrupt class and/or administrative office schedules, the primary concern will be the safety and welfare of the students, faculty and staff. In such situations, the following plan will be initiated:

The vice president for administration will contact the Pennsylvania State Police and/or Pennsylvania Department of Transportation to ascertain the condition of roads accessing Bloomsburg University. In addition, the vice president for administration will confer with the director of physical plant to evaluate potential difficulties in keeping campus roads and parking areas cleared throughout the day.

The vice president for administration will confer with other members of the cabinet to develop a recommendation for the president on the status of classes/administrative offices. If severe weather conditions exist prior to the start of the class/administrative office schedule, a decision will be made by 5:15 a.m.

The president may invoke one of the following three options: (The bold copy is how the message will be stated in news announcements.)

- University closed, except essential personnel. This decision will be made prior to or during the class/administrative office schedule. Essential employees must remain and/or report, unless otherwise directed.
- Delayed opening/compressed class schedule, offices open at 10 a.m., except essential personnel. If the classes and/or administrative office day have yet to begin, the compressed class schedule with delayed administrative office hours will be put into effect. Essential employees must report at the regular time, unless otherwise directed.
- Classes canceled; *liberal leave, except essential personnel. This decision will be made prior to or during the class/administrative office schedule. If the class/administrative office schedule has begun, classes may be curtailed for the remainder of the day at a designated hour including evening classes. For staff employees, liberal leave will be instituted. Essential employees must remain and/or report, unless otherwise directed.

Following the president's decision, the vice president for administration will immediately inform the director of media relations who will use the appropriate outlets to disseminate the information to students, faculty and staff and general public.

Cabinet members will initiate methods in place (phone trees, etc.) to inform the employees under their direction. Updates will be issued should the weather affect more than one class and/or administrative office day.

In severe weather conditions, safety is foremost. However, non-essential employees must inform their supervisor/department chairperson of their decision to remain at home and must take appropriate leave at that time.

**Liberal Leave: Employees must utilize, annual, personal or official compensatory time for work missed if they have approval to leave campus or not to report to work. This must be approved by their supervisor/department chairperson.*

Outlets for information regarding status of classes/administrative offices during severe weather conditions (Employees may refer to any outlet; however, the bold-faced outlets will be the first to receive the information).

Orchestra plans two concerts

The Bloomsburg University-Community Orchestra will give a free concert Sunday, Nov. 10, at 2:30 p.m. in Haas Center, Mitrani Hall.

Timothy Durbin, featured violin soloist, will play the Wieniawski Second Violin Concerto. Also on the concert program are Beethoven's "Prometheus Overture," Bach's "Violin Concerto in A Minor" first movement (featuring Mr. Durbin and three local Suzuki violinists), and Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite No. 1." In addition to Durbin's performance, he will give a Suzuki violin workshop on Saturday, Nov. 9, which culminates with a performance of the participants at 3 p.m. in Mitrani Hall.

The Bloomsburg University Chamber orchestra will present a short concert Sunday, Nov. 17, at 6 p.m. in Old Science Hall, room G20. The program will feature violinist Phyllis Skoldberg, a professor of violin at Arizona State University.

The program will include Telemann's "Don Quixote Suite" and Vivaldi's "Spring from the Four Seasons." The performance is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Mark Jelinek at 4289.

U.N. economist to speak Nov. 22

Dominic Salvatore, an internationally recognized economist who serves as a consultant to the World Bank and United Nations, will speak at Bloomsburg Friday, Nov. 22, at 1 p.m. in McCormick Center, Forum.

Salvatore, professor of economics at Fordham University, has written 32 books, is the editor of several academic journals, and has published more than 100 articles in journals. He also serves as a consultant to the International Monetary Fund and the Economic Policy Institute. He has lectured extensively in Europe, Latin America, as well as Canada and the United States.

Later that evening, Salvatore will speak at the induction ceremony for Omicron Delta Epsilon, the economics honor society.

Native American arts and crafts show Nov. 9 and 10

A Native American arts and crafts show will be held Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 9 and 10, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

The show will feature crafters and traders, story telling and musical entertainment, and Native American food. Admission is $2 ($1 for those with a community activities card) and free for children under 12.

Cherokee Rose and Silena will give a free concert Friday, Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

A NEWSLETTER FOR FACULTY AND STAFF AT BLOOMSBURG UNIVERSITY

21 NOVEMBER 1996

Radiology program links with Johns Hopkins

Bloomsburg University will soon affiliate with Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore to expand its offerings in medical imaging.

For Bloomsburg radiology students, the Johns Hopkins option represents an alternative track to the present bachelor of science program that was established in 1979. The affiliation is expected to be in place in the fall of 1997.

The Johns Hopkins option allows students to select two clinical competencies after completing their required coursework at Bloomsburg. The competencies include: radiologic technology, nuclear medicine technology, diagnostic medical sonography, radiation therapy technology and cross sectional imaging (MRI and CT).

Students will attend Bloomsburg for two years and a summer, then matriculate to Johns Hopkins Hospital to complete their clinical education. Following successful completion of the program, students will receive their bachelor of science degree from Bloomsburg University.

According to James Cole, program coordinator of allied health sciences at Bloomsburg University, there are currently 135 students in the university's program for radiographers. The Johns Hopkins option will be extended to them as well as qualifying freshmen.

This affiliation is initiated following the recognition of Johns Hopkins Hospital by U.S. News and World Report as the best hospital in the country. The hospital was among the nation's ten best in almost every specialty field the magazine surveyed.

Chamber Singers to perform Nov. 24

The Chamber Singers will present a "Holiday Classics" concert Sunday, Nov. 24, at 2:30 p.m. in Carver Hall, Kenneth Gross Auditorium. The concert is free and open to the public.

The 18-member ensemble will sing spiritual hymns, such as "What You Gonna Call Him," and secular songs like "Santa Claus is Coming to Town." A Chanukah song, "Light the Candles of Freedom," is also on the program. Soloists include Sara Kuhns, Carolyn Cain, and Shawn Rosler. Keith Kostiuk is the accompanist. The Chamber Singers are directed by music professor Wendy Miller.

Use of old library building discussed at planning and budget

Preliminary plans for converting the existing Harvey A. Andruss Library to a student services center were among items discussed at the November meeting of the university's Planning and Budget Committee (UPBC).

Reports during the November 7 meeting also included initial budget projections for the next fiscal year, an admissions update and discussion of possible changes for enrollment caps.

Library building use discussed

Following the report of George Agbango, associate professor of political science and co-chair of the student services steering committee, the UPBC recommended sending the initial findings of the steering committee on to its next stage. An internal feasibility study will be initiated to analyze the most efficient renovations of the building for the requested space for the several offices.

Space has been allocated for the following offices; academic advisement, academic support/international education, accommodative services, admissions, career development, cooperative education/internships, counseling center, developmental instruction, drug/alcohol program, financial aid, registrar, SOLVE, student standards/off-campus housing, university testing/ombudsman and upward bound. The facility will be vacated when the new library opens in the spring of 1998.

The committee, headed by Agbango and H. Preston Herring, vice president for student life, will oversee the feasibility study and make recommendations concerning other occupants for the additional space in the building to the UPBC.

Budget scenarios presented

Poinsettia Pops to raise scholarship funds

Bloomsburg University will hold a musical holiday party, the Poinsettia Pops Concert, Saturday, Dec. 7, in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

This fund-raising event for the university's general and music scholarship funds will feature light refreshments served at reserved tables and a visit from Santa Claus.

Doors will open at 7 p.m. with pre-concert seasonal music in the Ballroom lobby by the Brass Menagerie. Beginning at 7:30 p.m., the evening will feature festive music—performed by the Bloomsburg University-Community Orchestra, directed by Mark Jelinek, and the university's Chamber Singers, directed by Wendy Miller.

Tickets are $7 for adults and $3 for students and children. Tickets may be purchased Monday through Friday at the Development Center located next to the Alumni House on Lightstreet Road. Table reservations for family or friends may be made when the tickets are purchased. For further information about the event, call Bloomsburg University's Development Center at 4128.

Sponsors of the event are Breisch's Dairy and First Columbia Bank and Trust Company.

Off-Campus access on online library resources

Students, faculty and staff — both on and off-campus — who have computers without World Wide Web capability can now access more than 900 full-text journals. The online journals are available through the Harvey A. Andruss Library's new information access search bank announced in the last Communiqué. The character-based, non-graphic access is available to anyone with an account on the "planetx" server. It is also available off-campus by using computer services communications server, telephone 389-3030. To use the service, log onto "planetx" and at the "planetx$" prompt, type "iac" to connect with the databases.

Goldwater Scholarship nominations sought

The Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship Program invites nominations of outstanding sophomore and junior students majoring in the natural sciences, engineering or mathematics to compete for the 250 scholarships awarded annually nationwide. Scholarships cover tuition, fees, books, room and board up to $7,000 annually. To be eligible for nomination, students must be enrolled full time with a grade point average of B or better, be a United States citizen or resident alien, and be planning a career in the natural sciences, mathematics or engineering. The deadline for submission of nominations by the university is Jan. 15, 1997. Faculty who identify potential nominees should contact Lawrence Tanner, geography and earth science at 4142 for nomination procedures. Students should not be sent directly to Tanner.

Roh endows scholarship for BloomU students to participate in Global Awareness Society

Chang Shub Roh, sociology professor emeritus, has established an endowment to fund a scholarship for Bloomsburg University students to attend Global Awareness Society International meetings.

"This gift symbolizes gifts contributed toward my retirement by the Bloomsburg University community, my friends and family," says Roh.

Roh has presented the university with $10,000 to endow the "Chang Shub Roh and Myung Ja Roh (Mrs. Roh) Bloomsburg University Student Scholarship." The scholarship will be first awarded in the year 2000. Scholarship awards will be determined by a scholarship committee of faculty members who will base their decision upon a paper competition.

1997-98 academic year. The committee's recommendation was based on full-time enrollment (FTE) projections of 688 summer students, 6,630 fall students and 6,230 spring students. It assumes a three percent tuition increase and a one and one-half percent increase in state appropriations. The scenario will be modified as factors, such as the appropriations issues, are clarified.

Admissions report

Chris Keller, director of admissions, discussed his staff's focus on the quality of students. Keller reported an emphasis is being placed on early commitments by prospective students. Indicators point to another successful recruiting process.

President's report

During her report to the committee, President Jessica Kozloff requested a recommendation from the UPBC concerning existing caps on student enrollment. The committee recommended Kozloff request an increase from 10 to 15 percent the university's limit on out-of-state enrollees. The overall caps will be discussed further at the December meeting. The president also presented her plans to form a facilities master plan advisory committee to assist in preparing a report to the State System of Higher Education (SSHE). The planning process will be done over the next few years to provide the SSHE with projected usage for existing facilities on campus.

Safety Tip: The holiday season will soon be upon us. One of the annual traditions is the escalation of thefts and burglaries on campus at that time of year. People need money to buy gifts. If you are not in your office, lock it. If you are done using a classroom, lock it. Do not keep anything of value in a locker. If you want to keep it, keep it secure.

Open enrollment periods for benefit programs postponed

The open enrollment periods for the Pennsylvania Employees Benefit Trust Fund (PEBTF) and CIGNA Voluntary Group Life Insurance scheduled for this fall have been indefinitely postponed because of contract improvements and rate negotiations.

Additional information about the upcoming open enrollments will be provided as it becomes available. Those with questions should contact James Michael in human resources at 4018.

Bloomsburg Players, Celebrity Artist Series plan shows

Oedipus Tyrannos

The Bloomsburg University Players will stage "Oedipus Tyrannos" Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21 to Nov. 23, at 8 p.m., in Carver Hall, Kenneth Gross Auditorium. Admission is free for those with a community activities sticker, $6 for adults and $4 for students, children and senior citizens.

The play is directed by visiting artist Aaron Cabell, an actor and director.

"You won't see people running around in bed sheets because it's a Greek play," promises Cabell. Instead, the production will emphasize the contemporary relevance of the work.

"Oedipus was a consummate politician," says Cabell, who acted in a production of Oedipus Tyrannos in 1992. He's a man who is so sure he knows who he is, and he finds out that he doesn't know at all."

Set design is by guest artist Eric Lowell Renschler, whose stage designs include premieres in New York City.

A Christmas Carol

The Nebraska Theatre Caravan will present A Christmas Carol at Bloomsburg Thursday, Dec. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in Haas Center for the Arts, Mitrani Hall.

The Nebraska Theatre Caravan has been touring Charles Jones' adaptation of A Christmas Carol since 1979. The Caravan's Carol weaves traditional Christmas carols throughout the narrative.

Tickets for the performance are $20 and are available by calling 4409. Community activities tickets will be available beginning Friday, Nov. 22, at 10 a.m. at the Kehr Union, Information Desk.

President plans open office hours

President Jessica Kozloff will hold open office hours Tuesday, Dec. 10, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. It is recommended that visitors call 4526 to reserve a time.

Quest plans European walking, bike tours for '97

Quest is sponsoring several trips during the spring and summer of 1997. For more information about any of the trips, call the Quest office at 4323.

Trips include:

Walking Trips in Europe

England

A walking tour of England July 3-15 will cover the breadth of Northern England and some of the island's most beautiful mountains and moorland. It begins in the Lake District region of Northwest England and ends in the North Yorkshire Moors.

Scotland

A walking tour of Scotland July 1-13 will begin at Rowardennan which lies on the eastern shores of Loch Lomond. Walkers will then cross the western fringe of Rannoch Moor and through the magnificent and wild landscape of Glencoe and the Mammores to Fort William at the foot of Ben Nevis, Britain's highest mountain. Walkers will also travel by train to Mallaig and ferry to the Island of Skye.

France

A walking tour of France June 17-30 will feature two weeks of travel in the towns of Alsace, the mountains of the Vosges and in the city of Mullhouse in the valley of the Rhine.

Ireland

A walking tour of Ireland July 4-17 will start south of Dublin and end up at the westernmost tip of Europe, Sleah Head on the Dingle Peninsula. Participants will pass bronze and iron age sites, early Christian monasteries, and medieval castles. The trip concludes with a day in Dublin.

Biking in Holland

A biking trip through Holland and Belgium will run from July 10 to 21. Travelers will pass through the landscape of Van Gogh and Rembrandt on quiet country roads through medieval towns and villages and stay overnight in small hotels.

Tutu's commencement address to be broadcast on cable TV

Winter commencement speaker Archbishop Desmond Tutu will have his Saturday, Dec. 14, address broadcast live on the Bloomsburg and Berwick cable television systems. The channel number is 8 for Bloomsburg and 10 for Berwick.

Commencement will begin at 2:15 p.m. in Nelson Field House. Graduate and undergraduate ceremonies have been combined this winter because of the opportunity to hear a speaker with the international stature of Archbishop Tutu. Graduate and undergraduate students will return to separate ceremonies in the future.

Admission to the commencement ceremony is by ticket only. Graduates participating in the ceremony will receive one ticket for themselves and three tickets for family members. There are no additional tickets.

People may also view the ceremony on live television via BUTV in the Kehr Union Ballroom.

At the ceremony, Archbishop Tutu will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters. A press conference will be held immediately after his commencement remarks at approximately 3:45 p.m. in a nearby conference room.

Archbishop Tutu's contribution to the cause of racial justice in South Africa was recognized in 1984 when he received the highest award the world can offer — the Nobel Peace Prize.

Today, Archbishop Tutu is chairman of South Africa's Truth and Reconciliation Commission, which is charged with discovering the depths of human rights violations during the 1960-1993 apartheid era.

Archbishop Tutu's visit is sponsored by the Bloomsburg University Foundation and is being coordinated by a close personal friend of the archbishop, Harold Hein.

The PEBTF open enrollment for employees in AFSCME, UPGWA and PNA bargaining units will run through Dec. 20 with an effective date of February 1, 1997. The PEBTF will be mailing an enrollment brochure followed by a newsletter to each employee's home. Those with questions should contact Jim Michael or LouAnn Tarlecky at 4018.

Food drive runs through Dec. 13

The university will hold a holiday food drive through Friday, Dec. 13.

If each member of the faculty and staff donates one can of food, the goal of 1,000 food items will be achieved. Canned or processed food will be accepted and monetary contributions will be accepted to purchase holiday hams and turkeys. Checks should be made payable to "Bloomsburg University Agency Fund" and submitted to Audra Halye, budget and administrative services, Waller Administration Building.

The food will be distributed to several social agencies in the area so deserving families receive it. Donors may designate a family to receive the food.

following locations: Andruss Library, employee lounge; Bakeless Center, English department; Ben Franklin Hall, room 11; Carver Hall, lobby; Elwell Hall, residence life lobby; Haas Center, room 114; Hartline Science Center, room 125; Luzerne Hall, academic support services office; Maintenance Center, lobby; McCormick Center, room 1132; Navy Hall, room 101; Nelson Field House, room 238; Old Science Hall, room 103, history department; Sutliff Hall, faculty/staff lounge; Waller Administration Building, APSCUF office or switchboard.

For more information, contact Audra Halye at 4023, Bonita Rhone at 4038 or Bob Wislock at 4414.

Webb named interim Multicultural Center director

Felicia Webb has been named interim director of the Multicultural Center. Webb, a 1996 graduate of Bloomsburg with a bachelor's degree in history, previously was a resident care manager at Chandler Hall Health Services in Newtown. Webb will serve as director until June 30, 1997.

While at Bloomsburg, she was a founding member of START (Students Together Alleviating Racial Tension), served on the Task Force for Racial Equity, and was a tutor for Project Retain in the Berwick School District.

Campus notes

Ronald Ferdock, English, presented a paper, "Two Themes in The Maltese Falcon," at the 25th Anniversary Conference of the Popular Culture Association in the South, which met in Savannah, Ga.

Raymond S. Pastore, curriculum and foundations, recently made a presentation at the 25th annual conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Teacher Educators. His session was titled "The Creation and Use of Student Teacher Web Pages on the Internet."

S. Ekema Agbaw, English, organized a session titled "Issues in Post-Colonial Literature" at the recent annual conference of the English Association of Pennsylvania State Universities at Clarion University. His paper, "Language, Religion and Gender Politics in Zaynab Alkali's The Stillborn and Tsitsi Dangaremba's Nervous Conditions" demonstrated how African response to the English language and Christian religion redefined the relationship between men and women in colonial and post-colonial societies. The session was chaired by Michael McCully, English, who presented a paper, "Teaching Franz Fanon in a Colonized Classroom."

Lawrence Tanner, geography and earth science, presented a paper titled, "Evolution and Early Fill of the Orpheus Graben, Scotian Basin, offshore eastern Canada, at the Conference on Aspects of Triassic-Jurassic Rift Basin Geoscience held recently in Rocky Hill, Conn.

John E. Bodenman, geography and earth science, recently presented a paper, "The Suburbanization of the Institutional Investment Advisory Industry: Metropolitan Philadelphia, 1983-1993," at the Regional Science Association International, North American Annual Meeting in Washington, DC.

David E. Washburn and Neil L. Brown, curriculum and foundations, have co-authored The Multicultural Education Directory, published by Inquiry International of Philadelphia.

Tim Phillips, instructional technology and Institute for Interactive Technologies, Terry Riley, English, Chip Peters, instructional technology graduate, and Frank Peters, English, presented a paper titled "A Fully Interactive Freshman Composition Course" at the Mid-Atlantic Alliance for Computers and Writing held at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, Va. The paper demonstrated the interactive composition program developed in the Institute for Interactive Technologies and writing labs, and presently in use at Bloomsburg.

Donald Pratt, curriculum and foundations, recently gave a presentation titled "Teaching Measurement Without Formulas" at the annual meeting of the School Science and Mathematics Association in Little Rock, Ark. While at the meeting, Pratt conducted the association's awards breakfast, which he planned. Pratt is in his second term as executive secretary of the association.

Michael Hickey, history, presented a paper, "Revolution on the Jewish Street: Smolensk, 1917," at the Delaware Valley Seminar on Russian History. Hickey also presented a paper on "1917 in the Provinces: Smolensk" at the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies Conference in Boston and served as a discussant on the association's panel "Political Legitimacy and Independence in the Baltic States, 1917-1921." His article, "Local Government and State Authority in the Provinces: Smolensk, February-June 1917," has been accepted for publication in the winter 1996 issue of Slavic Review.

Sheila Dove Jones and Philip Tucker, communication disorders and special education, were presenters at the American Association on Mental Retardation 1996 Region IX annual conference in Princeton, N.J., and at the 19th annual Teacher Education Division conference in Washington, D.C. Their presentations were on the Bloomsburg University Early Intervention Personnel Preparation Project and the development of Supportive Interaction Scalle Interactive Video Instructional Program. Don Riether, a graduate student in the instructional technology program, was a co-presenter at the conference.

David G. Martin and Wm. Steven Smith, finance and business law, have had a paper accepted for presentation at the 1997 annual conference of the Eastern Finance Association. The paper is titled "On the Use of the Coefficient Variation in Financial Textbooks." Martin has co-authored a paper, "Economic Theory of Gift-Giving in the Health Care Industry: A Case of Charity Care," which was presented at the 1996 annual conference of the International Association of Management in Toronto.

Gilbert Darbouz, languages and cultures, chaired a session at the fifth AIZEN International Conference on Émile Zola and Naturalism and third annual Naturalist Film Festival at New York City's Hunter College. He presented a paper, "Le Calvaire du Plaisir ou le Chemin de la Rédemption" (The Calvary of Pleasure or the Path to Redemption).
